Little Neck, New York 11362

An Equal Opportunity Employer
A Plans for Progress Company

Editorial Section

We Need You

Wednesday evening the Collegian will hold a recruiting campaign in the Council Chambers. The campaign will attempt to secure a much needed staff.

In the past the Collegian has had trouble in getting new staffers. Even when new personnel are acquired, they usually become inactive in a short time.

The problem of getting help for the Collegian does not center around apathy, it is a problem of ignorance. Few people realize the work put into the paper. Fewer still are willing to do even a small part of it.

However, The Collegian is not alone in its woes. Critique is similarly having very serious problems due to the lack of help. YaHoo is now in the process of recruiting a staff.

No great experience is needed to work on the Collegian. If you're willing to learn, we are willing to teach you what you need to know.

The Collegian needs copy editors, columnists, reporters for all staffs, review critics, typists, make up and headline personnel, and advertising and business staffers.

Why not come Wednesday and see what you can do?

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

A Lack of Trust

by DANIEL MADDEN, Editorial Staff

There it was right in front of us—a time of almost peace—maybe, just maybe. The leaders of the two chair countries of the 1954 Geneva talks, Britain's Wilson and Russia's Kosygin, were in London, "within an eyelash of agreement." A statement that to be sure didn't mean much—but was hopeful. New York's Junior Senator returned from France with a yes-no feeler, that in all probability didn't mean much either, but it, too, was hopeful.

Even the obscure words from what is left of Hanoi seemed hopeful. One is even tempted to believe that the grey trio of visages who rule Washington were hopeful: Cautious — after all, everything in moderation—but hopeful.

For two glorious days—real, live unexpected hope.

Then with a Shadow over the Hanoi-Haiphong Highway, hope died. Killed "in fairness to the troops." Killed in order to "resume full-scale hostilities." Harold Wilson may have put it best: It was killed, he said, for the lack of "one single, simple act of trust."

Commons Blues

by PAUL ROBERT HALLOCK, Editorial Staff

"Guess what day it is."

"I dontknowwhatdayisit?"

"It's the THIRD day all semester I've eaten all three meals at the commons."

There are a few special points here.

This semester, each student will be charged $220 for board (five-day meal ticket), an increase of $35 from last semester.

One of the biggest complaints on this campus has been the inferior food served to students who are paying exorbitant prices for meals that they don't (or can't) even eat. When they do eat, some of them say that they don't know what they're eating.

There are two areas into which criticism can be channelled — Quality and Preparation. I know from an inside source that the University of Massachusetts purchases nothing but the best quality foods. So the inefficiency is further narrowed to preparation.

You'd think that, for all the money we're spending on board, we could at least get decent meals. You'd think that people would be more careful in preparing what we eat.

Point two is a question that probably has been debated before. I think it is worth bringing up again.

The student should be charged for only the meals he eats. At the end of the semester. It would seem that this arrangement could be made with little difficulty through the complex computer systems that the University already has.

Institutional feeding is not the impossible task that some people make it out to be.

Give us something for our money.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chet Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Bolvier '68
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or whn a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amend by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price

$4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office: Student Union, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.

Sam Spark Speaks Out

Say, Sure I Like Art?

Did you see the latest issue of Caesura? I was so thrilled with it, I couldn't wait for the next issue to be published in order that I might read more earthy poems and study additional romantic brush paintings.

So, late last night, I crept past the Critique coffin, lifted up the Yahoo tophat, and there beneath a rabbit's right paw guardedly lay the material for the forthcoming issue of Caesura. I'd like to share them all with you, but because I have no desire to upstage Caesura, I shall only print a few of the works that are typical of the quality art for which the magazine is renowned. Here, then, is some of the material.

AIRWAYS OF THE SKY
by: L. Al

Blue
Red
Green
Purple
Sky-blue-pink
What color am I really?

* * * * *

A BOY RUNS DOWN AND FALLS ON THE CEILING
by: Eveready Threadbare

A boy runs down
and falls
On the ceiling.

* * * * *

The next poem was preceeded by a work of art by Sumner Hendryks. It was titled "Confusion", and portrayed two mammary glands captured in a jar of Skippy Peanut Butter and was set against a pink picture of an 80 year-old Jack E. Leonard —laughing.

Then followed another poem.

* * * * *

STRAVINSKY'S LAST CONCERT
by: Cigarette Runner

The pearl man digs for oysters
Bobbing through the mills of life
Like a jack-in-the-box
Worried about V.C. and 4-F
While eating a peanut butter sandwich
Is there justice, I ask my god?
Drop dead, world.

WAR
by: Cigarette Runner

Hit the submarine deck.
Breeze in the trees?
Hot. Hot. Hot. Hot.
Cold.
Sleep; honk; dive.
Society—submerge!
As Eleanor Roosevelt laughs,
And Helen Keller trembles,
The world, cruel world
Is really off the beam.
Yea, Team!!!

* * * * *

This was followed by a drawing of an olive pit symbolically placed in the center of a skull and crossbones warning symbol taken from a bottle of Sloane's Linament. All this was set against a backdrop of sixty phallic symbols.

But it was the final poem which seemed to me to be the best.

* * * * *

PARSELY, SAGE, AND SOPHIE
by: Cigarette Runner

A stranger walked up to my daughter
"Hi, Little Girl," said he,
And lit a cigarette.
"Hi, big man," said she.
And lit a cigarette.
Damn world.
Get a beard and sit at a desk with a swimming pool and Sophie Tucker.

* * * * *

The concluding picture was a checker board on top of a tennis net on top of a picture of Hiroshima in 1945 with an entire city of topless women running through the red squares of the checkerboard.

I felt this was as fitting a place as anywhere to end my sneak preview. Meanwhile, the rest of the campus waits!

Campus Comment

Wholesome Happening?

To the Editor:

This letter is meant to openly protest against presentations such as "A happening" of Sat., Feb. 11th, put on jointly by the departments of music and art. We assume this was meant to be an experiment in the field of modern dance—theater—concert and hope it will be treated as such, its few merits notwithstanding. We cannot help but feel that young unmarried people should not be exposed to such obscene and sarcastic treatment of a topic such as marriage. Certainly it was only one part of the performance, but spoiled the rest for us "prude" people present.

An argument may be that there is enough reading material for sale for anyone interested in it, but at least it is not endorsed by the faculty. The abstract treatment of this "counseling and advice" could not hide its nauseating effect and we feel that it had no artistic values whatsoever and its appeal is limited to certain minds. Thus the art department only added to its controversial reputation.

There has always been so much talk about decaying student morality. "A happening" showed how it can be helped along being very explicit in all its details. Students in the field of anatomy may have profited from it.

We trust that more complaints reached the responsible sources and future "happenings" will be of a more wholesome nature.

Monika L. Parker

WANTED

News Reporter	Book Reviewers	Editorialists	Photographers
Sports Reporters	Music Critics	Copy Editors	Advertising Personnel
Typists	Cartoonists	Makeup Editors	Business Personnel
Feature Writers	Secretaries	Rewrite Personnel	Theater Critics
	Columnists

If you are willing to work, we'll find a place for you. The Collegian will only take a couple of hours each week – no more. No previous experience is necessary.

The Collegian's future is bright. Why don't you plan to be part of it?

COME IN AND SEE US

WEDNESDAY at 6:30 p. m.

in the

COUNCIL CHAMBERS, Student Union

All old staffers should attend . . . all editors will be present. The Collegian wants you!

Playmate Finalists Are Announced

by RICHARD KLINE,
Associate News Editor

Sophomore class president Wayne Thomas announced Friday that the nine finalists for Sophomore Class Playmate of the Year had been chosen.

Chosen on the basis of personality, personal appearance and poise, the nine sophomore girls were selected from sixty nominated by UMass students. They are: Candy Ahearn, Janet Dowdell, Dorothy Glogowski, Donna Hayes, Pat Jaquith, Jane Ludlow, Pat McMahon, Cindy Shea, and Janice Tower.

Judges for the selection of the finalists were Judy Sturdevant, the reigning Miss University, Wayne Thomas, Sophomore class president, and Lois Frey and Sheila McRevey, R.S.O. Program directors. Final selection of the Playmate will be made by the editors of PLAYBOY magazine in Chicago.

Pictures of the girls, taken last Saturday were sent to the editors air-mail-special delivery and they will decide the winner. The annonucement of the winner will be made on Wednesday April 5 at the Sophomore Class' "Playboy Nite."

Tickets for the banquet, Playboy style, are scheduled to go on sale Monday, March 20. Only sophomores, however, will be able to purchase tickets the first few days that they are on sale.

When questioned on his reasons for the early sale to sophomores, Thomas explained that, "Since the demand for tickets is expected to exceed the supply, I feel that it is only right that sophomores be given the opportunity to purchase tickets first. This is their banquet."

Thomas emphasized the fact that, "No expense is being spared to assure that the evening will be one remembered by all who attend. The tickets are expected to cost two dollars apiece, but this will by no means cover the cost of the evening."

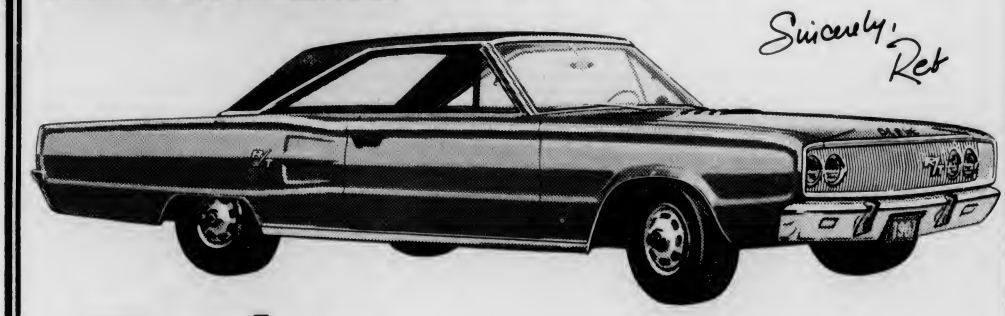
"However, since each member of the class, payed his dues and since the primary function of the class officers is to provide for the best interest of each member of the class, part of the sophomore tax will be returned to the student through the best in food, entertainment and authentic playboy club atmosphere."

Co-chairmen for the event, Debbie Nicholls, and Peter Lewenberg, were given great praise by Thomas, as were the rest of the "Playboy Nite" committee for their oustanding work on the banquet.

DEAR REB:

World War I Ace Snooping Around for a New Car

DEAR REB:



I'm a former World War I Air Ace, and when it comes to buying a new car, I can really fly off the handle. Frankly, the whole thing is a dogfight for me. I'm tired of piloting my present car and have got my sights set on a performance model that'll let me strut in style. But its price has got to be solo it won't shoot me down. I'm banking on you to help me find one, Reb.

MAX, THE RED BARON

DEAR RED BARON:

Don't be blue, Max! Tri-winging around in a new Dodge Coronet R/T—Road/Track. The hottest new performance car of the year. Standard equipment includes a 440-cubic-inch, 4-barrel Magnum V8. Front bucket seats. Air-scoop hood design. High-performance Red Streak nylon tires—and more! Join the Dodge Rebellion in a Coronet R/T—you can do it for peanuts. And as for your present car: Junker.

Sincerely, Reb

Dodge

CHRYSLER MOTORS CORPORATION

The '67 Coronet R/T is strictly a driving man's car, with a long list of standard performance features designed to give you cat-quick responsiveness on the road or the track. Your choice of four-on-the-floor or a three-speed automatic transmission. Heavy-duty brakes. Heavy suspension underneath. Dual exhausts. Full-length paint stripes. All standard. And as an option, you can have a dynamic 426-cubic-inch Hemi V8 under the hood.

Choose your R/T in either a two-door hardtop or convertible model. Check one out at your Dodge Dealer's soon.

THE DODGE REBELLION WANTS YOU

- Notices -

STOCKBRIDGE SENATE
Meeting Tues., Feb. 21, Council Chambers, SU.

YAHOO
General staff meeting, Mon., Feb. 20, 7:00 P.M., SU., All Welcome.

NEWMAN CLUB
Mon., Feb. 20, Classroom 2, Father Cahill will conduct "Questions on Campus Theology."
Mon., Feb. 20, 8:15 P.M.
Inquiry Class.
Tues., Feb. 21, 7:00 P.M., Choir Practice.
Wed., Feb. 22, 7:30 P.M.
Father Bennett's "Philosophy of Freedom."
Rosary, 6:30 P.M. every night except Friday.

G.S.S.
"Come See Come Serve" for interested pledges, Feb. 20, 7-9 P.M., Farley Lodge
Exec. Board meeting, Feb. 21, Middlesex, SU., 6:30 P.M.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST
Weekly Bible Study, Tues., Feb. 21, 6:15 P.M., Tower 5, 12th floor.

SCUBA CLUB
No Meeting Wed., Feb. 22.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB
Meeting, Mon., Feb. 20, Essex Rm. SU., 7:00 P.M. New members welcomed, all members expected.

MARKETING CLUB
Meeting, Mon., Feb. 20, SBA, Rm 5, 7:00 P.M., All members urged to attend.

MUSIGALS
Try outs, Feb. 21-22, SU. 6:00-8:00 P.M. Soprano I and II.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION
Meeting, Tues., Feb. 21, 6:30 P.M. Worcester Rm., SU.

NOTICE TO INFIRMARY PATRONS COME EARLY TO AVOID THE RUSH
The Outpatient Clinic is open with a full staff at 8 a.m., Mon. through Fri. By coming in early (8-9 a.m.) you will reduce substantialy the waiting time before being seen, and will find all of your needs met more promptly.

Our space is limited and will continue to be until an addition can be built. Until that time, it will be difficult for the staff to see everyone promptly during comfortable mid-day hours: therefore, in your own interest and in the interest of other students, please try to make your visit early in the day, whenever possible.

HILLEL
Tues., Feb. 21, Exec. Board Open to all members, Norfolk rm. SU.

AMATEUR RADIO ASSOCIATION
Antenna Trimming Wed., Feb. 22, 1:00 P.M. Eng. Lab.

PINNINGS
Mary Ellen Dean, Lewis, to David Mosgala, U.S. Merch. Marine Acad.
Linda Frieble, Westfield, Mass., to C. Mason Maronn '67, Chadbourne Hse.
Susan E. Niopen '70, Johnson, to James P. Slavas '70 Webster.
Cheryl Herdman '69 Coolidge to Tom Ryan '68, Chi Phi, Amherst College.
Carol Rudge '67, SDT to David Lodding '66, Middlebury College.
Joy Roth '68, SDT, to Rusty Leabitt '67, TEP.
Ann Soja, Emerson to John Fullmore, Lance Corporal Marines.
Carol Bielanski '67, Westfield State College to Jim Gromelski '67, Grayson.
Tina Mitchell '70, T-4, to Joseph Bohnak, Sigma Chi, U. of Kentucky.
Ellen Paster '67, SDT to David Fisher, San Francisco.

ENGAGEMENTS
J. Elaine McClung '68, Alpha Chi Omega to William L. Sheldon, Grad.

Californian's Apathetic Over Kear's Dissmissal

More Californians approve of Clark Kerr's dismissal as president of the University of California than disapprove.

According to a poll by Mervin D. Field, 34 per cent of those who had heard or read of the dismissal approved of it; 28 per cent disapproved, and another 43 per cent had no opinion.

The poll was conducted shortly after Kerr was fired by the Board of Regents Jan. 20.

Two out of three people who approved of the removal felt that Kerr had failed to control the students and 42 per cent of those who disapproved believed the firing was politically inspired.

Those against the dismissal thought Kerr had done an "excellent job" while serving as president.

There was clear partisan reaction. Fifty-eight per cent of all Republicans approved while only 19 per cent of the Democrats surveyed approved.

Forty-two per cent of the people polled who had attended college said they supported the ouster while 34 per cent said they disapproved

Of those who attended a state supported institution, 40 per cent were against the firing while 34 per cent approved of the Regents' action.

If You See
News in the Making
Dial
COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"

RAYTHEON
CAMPUS INTERVIEWS
February 27 & 28

Openings for
BS, MS, and PhD Candidates in ELECTRICIAL ENGINEERING
MECHANICAL ENGINEERING INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERING MATHEMATICS
PHYSICS

For work in RESEARCH and DEVELOPMENT
DESIGN
MANUFACTURING

Sign up for interviews through your Placement Office, or write Manager of College Relation, Raytheon Company, 141 Spring Street, Lexington, Massachusetts 02173.

RAYTHEON
EXCELLENCE IN ELECTRONICS
An Equal Opportunity Employer

New England Universities;

Provincial Despite Growth

In 1951, there were less than 3,000 undergraduates at UMass. In 1966, three times that amount were rejected for fall admission. The once seemingly dormant valley campus is now beginning to erupt with such structures as the Southwest towers.

UMass study opportunities have expanded to include four-college cooperative courses and an affiliation with the University of Friburg in Germany. These and other factors ad up to what the Springfield Sunday Republican terms a "dynamic institution".

Not only UMass, but also the other five New England state universities seem to be overcoming their "heritage of neglect". This development of state school potential is a very slow process, especially in New England.

"Ironically, stated the Republican, "in the heart of rugged individualism country, there is an emphasis on orderly process that inhibits change".

Four UMass upperclassmen stated in an interview that they would never participate in a demonstration no matter how strongly they felt about the subject.

"There's a normal way to file a protest," stated a junior. "If I wanted to change something, I would see my advisor and go through channels."

In an effort to promote the development of the area universities in an orderly way, a six school compact was formed. This allows a student to transfer to another university to pursue a course not available at his school. The student would be paying in-state tuition at his home university.

This program, however, has been met with only slight enthusiasm by the students. There were only 372 participants last year.

According to H. Austin Peck, vice-president of academic affairs at Maine. "The bigger the university the less desire it has for regional cooperation. Connecticut or Massachusetts are likely to feel they would like to have a program of their own instead of sending their students up here."

President John Lederle commented, "There is still a question among many people here whether public education really can be excellent."

Scolls to Scrape For Scholarships

Do your shoes have that dull, lusterless look from lack of attention? Maybe you are trying to find some energy to scrape off that layer of Southwest mud and dab a little polish on them?

Well, your shoes won't have to suffer much longer because the Scrolls are going to get down on their hands and knees to overhaul them for you. That's right, you won't have to lift a brush!

On Feb. 23 and 24, between 2 and 6 p.m., the Scrolls will be in the SU lobby to energetically polish your shoes for $.25 a pair. As a special bargain, two boots will be shined for only $.35. All proceeds will go into a scholarship fund.

So, don't let your footwear corrode on your feet. Walk your shoes and boots to the Scroll's Shoe-shine this Thursday and Friday.

FOUR-COLLEGE TRANSPORTATION SCHEDULE -- 30, 1967

ROUTE I

Trip No.	Leave Mt.Holyoke	Arr. Amherst	Lv. Amherst	Arr. U. Mass.	Lv. U. Mass.	Arr. Amherst	Lv. Amherst	Arr. Mt.Holyoke
1.	9.05 A.M.	9.25	9.25	9.30	9.30	9.35	9.35	9.55
2.	10.05	10.25	10.25	10.30	10.30	10.35	10.35	10.55
3.	11.05	11.25	11.25	11.30	11.30	11.35	11.35	11.55
4.	12.05 P.M.	12.25	12.25	12.30	12.30	12.35	12.35	12.55
5.	12.55	1.15	1.15	1.20	1.25	1.30	1.30	1.50
6.	2.05	2.25	2.25	2.30	2.30	2.35	2.35	2.55
7.	3.05	3.25	3.25	3.30	3.30	3.35	3.35	3.55
8.	4.05	4.25	4.25	4.30	4.30	4.35	4.35	4.55
9.	5.00	5.25	5.25	5.30	5.35	5.40	5.45	6.05
10.	6.05 - RETURN TO SMITH

ROUTE II

Trip No.	Leave Smith	Arr. U. Mass.	Leave U. Mass.	Arr. Amherst	Leave Amherst	Arr. Smith
1.	9.00 A.M.	9.20	9.20	9.25	9.30	9.50
2.	10.00	10.20	10.20	10.25	10.30	10.50
3.	11.00	11.20	11.20	11.25	11.30	11.50
4.	11.55	12.15	12.20	12.25	12.30	12.50
5.	1.00 P.M.	1.20	1.20	1.25	1.30	1.50
6.	2.00	2.20	2.20	2.25	2.30	2.50
7.	3.00	3.20	3.20	3.25	3.30	3.50
8.	4.00	4.20	4.20	4.25	4.30	4.50
						Arr. U.Mass.	Lv. U.Mass.	Arr. Smith
9.	5.00	5.20	5.20	5.25	5.35	5.40	5.50	6.10

Student Senate Skirts Controvesy; Accepts Forensic Society Budget

by PAT PETOW,
Senate News Editor

Editor's note: This article is a correction of the one which appeared in Friday's paper, headlined: "Senate F[illegible]'s Money for Forensic Society."

The Forensic Society's preliminary budget, totalling $6,942.-00, passed the Student Senate on Feb. 15. The appropriation, recommended by the Budgets Committee, will be used in 1967-1968.

On the floor, the organization's treasurer requested the Senate to reinstate the amount of $991.00 which had been trimmed by the Senate committee. This amendment failed to receive approval.

Senators, who spoke against the reinstatement, expressed the feeling that the administration, which supports the debators, should bear a larger share.

According to the Forensic Society, the College of Arts and Sciences pays portions of the faculty salaries of their director and assistant director as well as making other contributions.

According to the Forensic Society, the administration simply has no additional money to allocate.

But the bombshell of the meeting was a financial policy challenge by Mike Garjian (J.F.K. Upper). His remarks met with enthusiastic applause:

"I have nothing against the Forensic Society itself, but there are a few things about the administration . . . We're being taken for patsies by the administration. I think it's time we put our feet down and get out of the mess we're in now."

Garjian asked that the Senate defeat the budget request, in effect, and that the Senate force the administration to begin to pay the total expenses of the Forensic Society.

Garjian moved to strike $835.00 in the registration fees category. "I think this should be a beginning," he said.

Without paying this amount, the debators could not enter tournaments. Garjian reasoned that the administration would not be able to absolve itself from its facutly salary commitment nor would it let the group die.

But the Senate declined to use the Society as a "pawn" in a struggle with the administration, a "ridiculous" approach according to Sen. Chambers. Opposing this manner of a slap at the administration, Chris McGahan (Commuters) declared, "The Student Senate represents all students including the Forensic Society."

The vote on the amendment to strike category 270 was 13 in favor, 19 opposed, and one present.

The total budget thereafter received approval.

UMass Prof. To Discuss DaVinci on TV

Dr. Edward C. Moore, Dean of the UMass Graduate School, will appear on NBC-TV's Today show tomorrow (Tues.) morning in a discussion of the recent discovery of the DaVinci papers by UMass art professor Jules Piccus.

He will be discussing the find with Bern Dibner, a DaVinci scholar from Connecticut. Dr. Moore will have some public drawings of the manuscripts of the papers. The program begins at 7:00 a.m.

World Wonders; Will 'GOOSE' Eat 100?

Al "Goose" Saggese, 6'4', 250 lbs. of Pancake Power, represents the REVELERS this Wednesday morning at 9 A.M. in the Student Union Ballroom in the greatest pancake eating contest of all times. Pushing 100 pancakes per sitting, the Goose is ready to challenge anyone for this Flap-Jack title.

All campus organizations are invited to enter the Challenge. If your dorm or fraternity has not been contacted, pick up an entrance form in RSO and return it by Tuesday, February 21. The winner receives two free tickets to the Bill Cosby Concert along with the prestige of being the campus Pancake Powerhouse.

Be on hand this Wednesday morning, February 22, from 9-12 A.M. for the annual Pancake Breakfast, and especially don't miss the 10:30 A.M. contest. REVELERS invites you to join the fun and cheer your favorite candidate to victory. One last reminder: BRING YOUR OWN ALKA-SELTZER!

If You See

News in the Making

Dial

545-2550

SUMMER JOBS UNDER WORK STUDY

Students who are presently working under the Federal Work Study Program and students who think they might also qualify for the program should see Mr. Siegrist in the Placement Office in reference to obtaining a summer job with a non-profit organization in their community.

There are a limited number of these jobs available and eligibility is based on the student's financial need as determined by the Placement & Financial Aid Office which is located in Machmer Hall.

ELECTIONS

Student Senate elections to fill vacancies will be held on Thursday, Feb. 23 in the following dormitories.

BRETT
CRABTREE
GRAYSON
HILLS SOUTH
JOHN ADAMS MIDDLE
J.F. KENNEDY MIDDLE
VAN METER SOUTH
WEBSTER

INTERESTED?
Come see US in the Advertising Staff Office or leave your name at the desk
in the COLLEGIAN office.

BAND'S BATTLE
TUES.—9—1:30 a.m.
with THE INMATES & THE BOSS TWEEDS
S.U. Ball Room .25

AD DEADLINES

(No exceptions please!)
Please submit all copy to COLLEGIAN Office by:
5 P.M. THURS. for Mon. paper
5 P.M. FRI. for Wed. & Fri. paper
the week prior to desired insertion

MASS. CLASSIFIED

HELP WANTED

Nurse, R.N. four nights. Also, ex. Aide 7:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon.
Kane's Nursing Home
Amherst, Mass. 253-7557

Male part time help needed. Call 256-6759 or stop in at Rapp's Delicatessen, 79 S. Pleasant St., Amherst.

Girls: If you wouldn't mind a little cash in your pocket and a cute little one year old girl in your room while her 20 year old sophomore mother goes to an 11:15 class on Mon., Wed. and Fri. only, call Donna after 6:00 p.m. at 1-532-9585.

WANTED

Male roommates for Sunderland 7 miles from campus. Furnished Apt. — 3 bedroom with living room, kitchen. $25 mo. Call Al after 7:00, 665-3155.

Wanted: tickets for the "Lovin Spoonful" Concert. Please call 6-7887.

AUTOMOBILES

AUSTIN HEALEY SPRITE—MARK III —1965 Good cond. Snow tires, tonneau, luggage rack, other extras. 25,000 mi. $1250. Call: 253-9835.

'57 Jaguar Roadster XK 140, convertible top. Best offer over $500. Call 584-1065 after 5 p.m.

1965 SAAB sedan, excellent condition, low mileage. Averages 33 miles per gallon. $1100. Call 5-2688, Extension 101A.

FOR SALE

Flower in Botany—ACTUAL PAST EXAMS IN BOTANY 101. Now in the University Store.

Lost Wed. morning ski boots and gloves, vicinity of ROTC parking lot and Boyden. Call 549-1237.

COLLEGIAN
ADVERTISING PAYA

A Matter Of Taste

MIDWEEK WINTER CARNI '67

MONDAY — HORROR FLICKS
S.U. Ballroom $.25

TUESDAY — MARIAM WILLIAMS
Bowker

TUESDAY — BAND'S BATTLE
—The Inmates & The Boss Tweeds
S.U. Ballroom 9-1:30 a.m. $.25

WEDNESDAY — PANCAKE BREAKFAST
S.U. Ballroom

THURSDAY — FOLK NIGHT IN THE HATCH

Each Week on WMUA
Action '67 with Pete Ward
Campus issues & problems
Tuesday at 8:00
R.S.O. Reports with Bob Chase
Campus Organizations
Wednesday at 9:00

Don't be confused by Chaucer—get Cliff's Notes. In language that's easy to understand, Cliff's Notes expertly explain and summarize The Canterbury Tales. Cliff's Notes will improve your understanding—and your grades. But don't stop with Chaucer. There are more than 125 Cliff's Notes covering all the frequently assigned plays and novels. Look for them in the bold black and yellow-striped covers.

$1 at your bookseller or write for free title list

CLIFF'S NOTES, INC.
Bethany Station Lincoln, Nebr. 68505

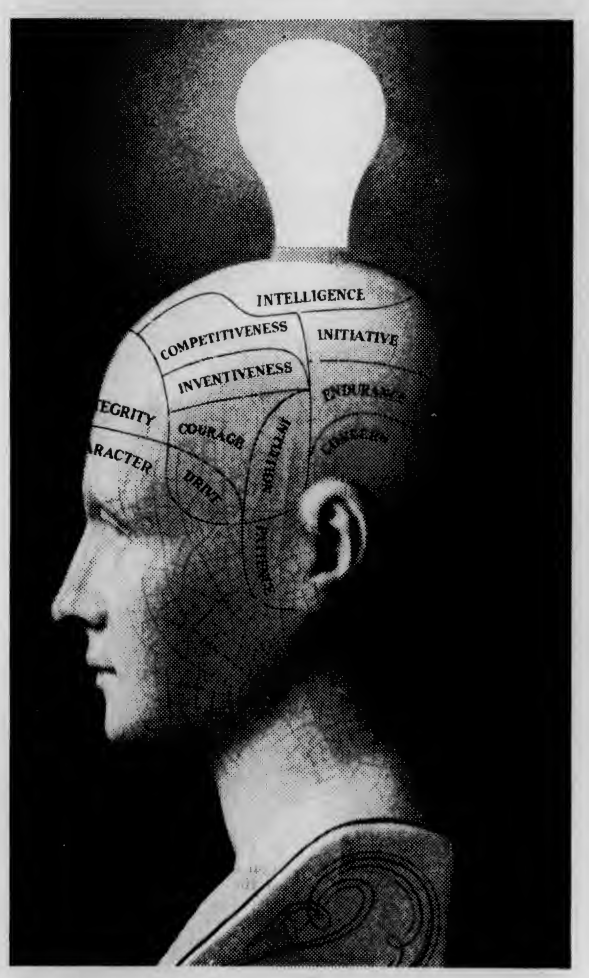
Cliff's Notes
INCORPORATED

WANTED

News Reporter	Book Reviewers	Editorialists	Photographers
Sports Reporters	Music Critics	Copy Editors	Advertising Personnel
Typists	Cartoonists	Makeup Editors	Business Personnel
Feature Writers	Secretaries	Rewrite Personnel	Theater Critics
	Columnists

If you are willing to work, we'll find a place for you. The Collegian will only take a couple of hours each week – no more. No previous experience is necessary.

The Collegian's future is bright. Why don't you plan to be part of it?



COME IN AND SEE US

WEDNESDAY at 6:30 p. m.

in the

COUNCIL CHAMBERS, Student Union

All old staffers should attend . . . all editors will be present. The Collegian wants you!

General Electric is an easy place to work.

All you need is brains, imagination, drive and a fairly rugged constitution.

Oh, yes. Something else that will help you at G.E. is an understanding of the kind of world we live in, and the kind of world we will live in.

There's a lot happening: The population is continuing to explode. The strain on resources is becoming alarming. At a time when men are being lured by the mysteries of space, we're faced with the task of making life on earth more livable.

There's a lot happening at G.E., too, as our people work in a hundred different areas to help solve the problems of a growing world: Supplying more (and cheaper) electricity with nuclear reactors. Controlling smog in our cities and pollution in our streams. Providing better street lighting and faster transportation.

This is the most important work in the world today: Helping to shape the world of tomorrow. Do you want to help? Come to General Electric, where the young men are important men.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

GENERAL ELECTRIC

COLLEGIAN

"Hot Line"

545-2550

Freshmen Edge UConn, 53-50

by MIKE CURRAN

The UMass freshmen rewarded the huge Winter Carni turnout at the Cage Saturday night with a tension-packed 53-50 triumph over the Connecticut frosh. The victory broke a five-game losing streak for the Little Redmen and handed the Huskie Puppies an unexpected loss.

For once the frosh out-shot an opponent hitting 38 percent of their shots as compared to a very poor 32 percent by the visitors. The Huskies' inability to hit the basket in the second half was particularly decisive.

Ray Ellerbrook played the hero role again, scoring 20 points and coming through with four free throws in the last minute to clinch the Redmen victory.

Both teams suffered cold-shooting lapses in the first period. Dick Samuelson's rebounding was the prime factor behind a 22-20 edge which the freshmen enjoyed at halftime.

After intermission, the teams remained deadlocked until Scott Healey's three-point play with five minutes left put UMass on top 45-42. Both teams traded hoops, but a UConn steal made the score 49-48 with two minutes remaining.

The frosh were in the process of freezing the ball when Ellerbrook was fouled. The Little Redmen's leading scorer sank what proved to be the winning points on a clutch conversion of a one-and-one opportunity. With 13 seconds to go the 6'0" lefthander again pumped in two free throws to give the frosh the well deserved verdict.

AIC's fast breaking frosh challenge the UMass yearlings Wednesday night at the Cage.

The Yellow Jacket freshmen have gone undefeated in 11 games since losing an 83-82 decision to the UConn frosh in their first outing. Curtis Mitchell, a 6'3 forward from New York City, leads the Springfield quintet in most offensive departments.

UCONN FROSH	B	F	Pts	UMASS FROSH	B	F	Pts
Crisp	1	4	6	Bolajolle	0	1	1
Coleman	4	1	9	Gallagher	4	2	10
Greenblatt	3	3	9	Samuelson	3	4	10
Budzinski	3	0	6	Ellerbrook	7	6	20
Berezen	2	1	5	Starsink	4	1	9
Granaki	2	0	4	Healey	1	1	3
Muetten	2	0	4	Perry	0	0	0
Berk	2	0	4
Kingsley	1	0	2
Storrs	0	1	1
Totals	20	10	50	Totals	19	15	53

Score at halftime: UMass 22, UConn 20.

FRANK STRONCZEK

Another Moose in Amherst

AIC (16-4) Comes to Cage Wednesday

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

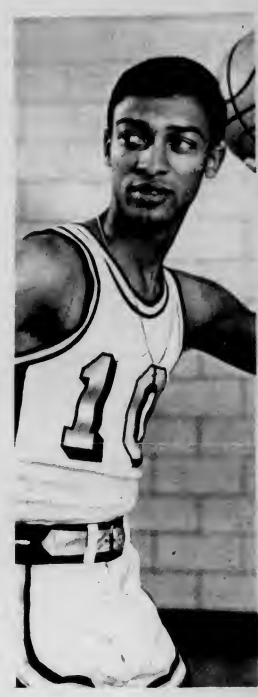
Frank Stronczek, whose rebounding aggressiveness fits his nickname of "Moose," leads a tough American International team into the Cage Wednesday night for an 8 p.m. game with the Redmen.

Stronczek, the leading rebounder among the nation's college ranks, is one of the main reasons why AIC has a 16-4 record and a good shot at making the NCAA College Division tournament.

If Stronczek hadn't received his premature discharge from Holy Cross, he and Keith Hochstein might have teamed up to form the toughest duo since Killer Kowalski and Fritz von Erich.

Another reason is guard Henry Payne, a flashy little Payne, who once scored 64 points as a schoolboy in Springfield, confines his offensive contribution for AIC to behind-the-back and over-the-head assists. These two players have made Coach Bill Callahan's squad one of the best small college teams in New England.

Moose, a 6'5 senior, has led the Yellow Jackets out of the woods with his scoring and he carries just about the entire rebounding load on his antlers. A muscular 210 pounder, the Moose horned in on 48 points in 30 minutes against B.U. Friday night for an AIC record. He paws about 26 rebounds and 24 points a game. He prefers muscle to finesse under the boards.



SAL SILLARI

Payne is considered by many to be one of the best playmakers in the nation. A 6'0 junior, he's a crowd-pleasing 150-pounder.

One of the forwards and the second leading scorer is 6'2 junior Sal Sillari. A former teammate of Joe DiSarcina and Pete Gayeska at Somerville, Sillari has an accurate jump shot.

The other forward position will go to either 5'11 senior Frank Oppedisano or 6'4 junior Larry Freed. Oppedisano is a strong leaper who has a knack for clutch baskets and rebounds. Freed hails from Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, and as far as the AIC offense is concerned, he should have stayed where the boys are.

HENRY PAYNE

Records Fall as Mermen Swamp HC

by HARVEY ELMAN
Sport Day Editor

A resurgent UMass varsity swimming team had little trouble handling Holy Cross, 60-35, Saturday afternoon at the Boyden Pool before 300 spirited fans.

The varsity entertains Coast Guard Tuesday night at Boyden Pool starting at 8. The frosh take to the water at 6.

The 400-yd. medley relay team started UM's scoring with a record-setting time of 3:58.0. Captain Dick Lennon, Ken Nowak, Steve Levy, and Bob Asquith erased the 1966 standard of 4:02.0.

Sophomores Flip Morton and Tony Cassis swept the 200-yd. freestyle with Lennon taking the 200-yd. individual medley. Dave Breed placed third in the 50-yd. freestyle.

Diving competition once again belonged to Soph Dave Larson. Another UMass varsity mark fell by the poolside as Steve Levy swam the 200-yd. butterfly in 2:24.5. Dick Donoghue completed the sweep with a second place finish. Another soph star, Bob Asquith, copped honors in the 100-yd. freestyle with Nowak and Fred Anderson sweeping the 200-yd. backstroke. Cassis won the 500-yd. freestyle. Lennon and Severn swept the 200-yd. breaststroke to complete UM's scoring.

The UMass frosh swim team opened the afternoon's activities with a thrilling 47-43 triumph over the H.C. frosh. Sensational Steve Klubeck set three more UM freshman records. Klubeck shattered his own 50-yd. freestyle mark with a 0:23.8 clocking. His new 200-yd. butterfly standard is 2:29.5.

In addition, his leadoff 100-yd. freestyle leg of the 400-yd. freestyle relay is a record-breaking 51.7 which cuts .5 sec. off the former mark. The entire relay team consisting of Klubock, Miller, Johnson and Northrup, proceeded to shatter the relay standard with a 3:48.0.

Revenge will be the varsity's main motivational factor against Coast Guard. A losing season was handed the Redmen last year due to a protested disqualification of Lennon in the freestyle relay race due to a false start. The defeat made the log read 5-6 instead of a winning 6 - 5. This year's varsity mark is now 3-5 with Coast Guard and M I T (Mar. 4 at Boston) upcoming. The frosh, who have won two of six meets, travel to Babson Institute Thursday afternoon.

Intramural All-Star Rosters

FRATERNITY ALL STARS

Name	Team
Alan Fisher	TEP
Donald Alberico	TEP
Hagan Anderson	TEP
Greg Landry	KS
Bob Detore	KS
Richard Qualey	TKE
Jeff Larson	LCA
Brian Lajoie	ZN
Tom Byron	TC
Alfred Sagasse	SPE
Alternates
Gerald Forgit	LCA
Alan White	AEP
Dimitri Malstrellas	PMD
Bill Cannata	ASP
Manager
Rick Ericson	TEP

DORMITORY ALL STARS

Name	Team
Stephen Maloney	Adams Spartans
Steve Ciechonski	Thatcher Redwoods
Daniel Verrault	Adams Flaming A's
Ray Stanells	Kennedy Patriots
Scott Healey	Kennedy Cougars
Willis Frisbee	Chadbourne Maroons
John Murphy	Chadbourne Maroons
Mal O'Sullivan	Grayson Flaming A's
Richard Meyers	Grayson Flaming A's
Al Holcomb	Hills So. Hi-lo's
Frank Holcomb	Hills So. Hi-o's
Alternates
Alec Vyce	Thatcher Redwoods
Alan Craig	Adams Smashers
John Edgar	Adams Spartans
Charles Webster	Baker Buffaloes
Manager
George Duffield	Grayson Flaming A's

The Fraternity All-Stars will be favored over the Dormitory All-Stars when they tap-off at 8 in Curry Hicks Cage Thursday night.

This will be the third annual intramural basketball all - star game, with the Frat stars being victorious the previous two years, 76-47, in 1964-65 and last year's 53-45 margin.

Gymnasts Sunk by Navy, 173-162

by TIM MURPHY
Staff Reporter

ANNAPOLIS, MD. — The University of Massachusetts gymnastics team absorbed its fifth loss in six E.I.G.L. contests Saturday, as the Midshipmen of Navy scuttled the Redmen, 173-162, at Annapolis, Md.

The meet was a close one throughout. Navy led by less than a half point after the first event but annexed 26.5 points to the Redmen's 21.5 on the side-horse to open a 5.3 point lead, which was eventually stretched to the final 11-point plurality.

UMass made its most impressive event score on the long horse vault. Clarence Fraser (8:55), Bob LeClair (7.95), and Captain Mike Carver (9.0) combined to give the Redmen an event total of 29.95 and 114.95 for the meet. The total left the Redmen behind by only six with two events remaining.

Those events, however, proved to be more applicable to Naval maneuvers than to those of U-mass, as the Academy notched 26.4 points to the Redmen's 24.65 on the parallel bars and outscored the visitors on the rings by 25.35-22.85.

Dave March twisted, turned and balanced his way to an 8.3 on the parallels to pace the U-Mass competitors and was followed by sophomore Jim Webb at 7.85. March's performance was enough to anchor down third on the event.

Dick DelGallo, who earlier in the afternoon maneuvered his way to a fourth-place finish in the floor exercise, cut his ring routine in an 8.9 to place second on the event. March followed him with a 7.5 and Tom Woods was the third Redman at 6.45.

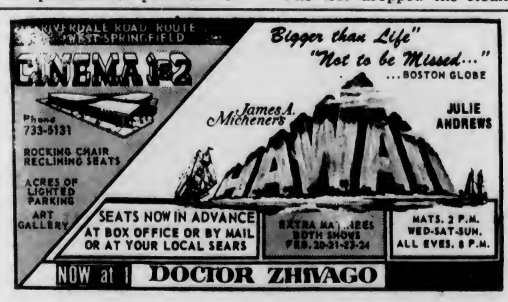
On the high bar, the sole event won by the Redmen in the encounter, Steve Brown placed second with a 7.85 and Carver third with a 7.65. Also performing well for the Redmen on the event was Al Siebert who finished at 7.15. The total scores on the high bars were 22.65 for UMass and 21.8 for Navy.

Turning in their best collective performance of the season, the trampoline trio of Carver, Toby Kasavana, and Ken Adams scored 7.1, 5.85 and 7.1, respectively, for an event total of 20.05. For Carver, the performance represented a return to the form he flashed earlier in the season.

LeClair's 8.75 on the side horse was the best UMass score on the event. His show was worth third place.

The loss dropped the Redmen closer to the bottom of the eight-team circuit which features such squads as Penn State, Army and Springfield College. The next meet for UMass is Friday at 7:30 against Syracuse in Boyden Auxiliary Gym.

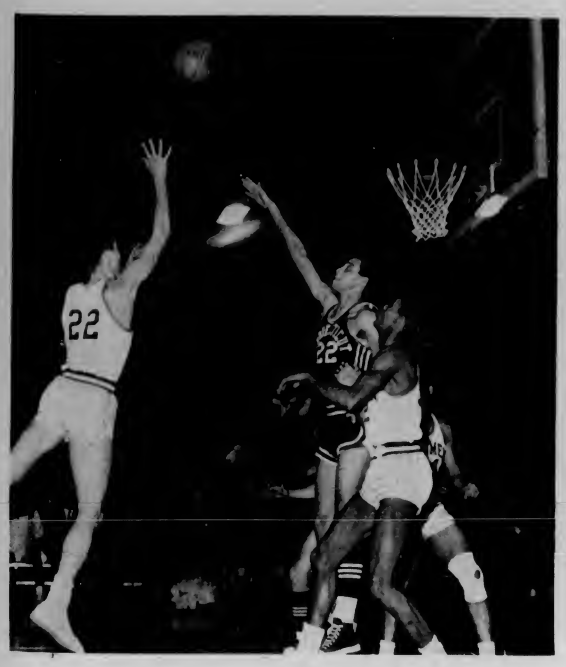
Intramural Volleyball Timetable



MONDAY			7:30	1	Blueballs-Fruits
6:30	3	LCA-PMD		2	Orgies-Tigers
	4	PSD-ASP		5	Bruins-Bulldozers
	5	AEP-ATG		6	Senators-Buffaloes
	6	KS-TKE		7	Maroons-Grants
	7	BKP-SPE		8	Eagles-Giants
	8	QTV-TC		11	Patriots-Comanchees
	11	ZN-APO		12	Colonials-Colts
	12	TEP-SAM	8:30	1	Panthers-Jaguars
7:30	3	Phallics-Flaming A's		2	Chem Club-Sched-Ed
	4	Aces-Chestnuts		5	"A" Type-Selohssas
	5	Lemons-Limes		6	Toads-Bismarks
	6	Hoovers-Hi lo's		7	Numerals-Imps
	7	Hicks-Trojans		8	Oddballs-Moots
	8	Elms-Maples		12	AEP-KS
TUESDAY
6:30	1	Smashrs-Seagrams
	2	Apples-Redwoods
	5	Hemlocks-Academics
	6	Spartans-Flaming A's
	7	Camoflague S.-Smittys
	8	Camoflague N.-Boilermakers
	11	Forestry-Lassie's Losers
	12	Jaspers-Phantoms

If You See News in the Making Dial 545-2550

BASKETBALL



UMass vs. AIC

Wednesday, Cage

AMHERST Cinema
LATE SHOW FRI. at 11:30 p.m.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Bill Gleason

PUSH FOR POINTS—John Lisack (22) puts in a push shot early in the second half over UConn's Bill Corley. Ron Ritter (33) of the Huskies and Bill Tindall watch.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Bill Gleason

SWELLED HEAD—No one has ever accused Joe DiSarcina of having a swelled head, but in third period action against UConn Joe's head seems to be the center of attraction for Tom Penders (15), Bill Holowaty (31), and Dick Thompson (40), all of UConn, and UMass' Bill Tindall.

Redmen Lose to Connecticut In Eleventh Hour, 60-59

by DAVE JARNES
Staff Reporter

Frustration and bitter disappointment. That's the story of UMass' heartbreaking 60-59 loss to UConn before Saturday's turnaway crowd of better than 4700 at the Cage.

UMass is thus out of the running for the Yankee Conference title with a 6-3 record.

The Redmen led from the 12 minute mark of the opening half until the last minute of the game. They took 15 more shots than the Huskies, they got eight more baskets, they outrebounded UConn by eight, but still lost the game. Connecticut won the game at the foul line where they made an amazing 20 of 21 attempts while Massachusetts could hit on just three of seven.

From the start of the game it was obvious that UMass was fired up. Coach Leaman stayed that kept UConn off balance for with a tough man-to-man defense most of the night.

Meanwhile, UConn was using the 1-2-2 zone, a familiar sight for the Redmen.

Instead of playing the "merry-go-round" offense, however, Massachusetts effectively broke that zone in two ways. First, they were able to get the ball downcourt before the Huskies could set up that zone. Secondly, John Lisack and Joe DiSarcina were hitting from outside.

With UConn holding a 16-12 lead after 12 minutes of play, the Redmen, led by the spectacular play of DiSarcina and Bill Tindall, went on a 21-9 rampage to take a 33-25 halftime lead. Tindall put UMass in front for the first time at 19-16 when he literally went into orbit from the foul line and was fouled for a three-point play.

Lisack and DiSarcina continued to electrify the crowd (and the stunned Huskies as well) with their shooting.

UMass played a near-perfect opening half. Their defense was as tough as ever. But in contrast to recent games, their shooting was also strong (16-33 for 48 percent). However, basketball games last 40 minutes, not 20.

UConn started the second half with an alternating zone press and man-to-man press. After four minutes of play the lead was down to 35-33. Finally, Bill Tindall broke the ice with a two-hand stuff shot and the Redmen were on their way again. Ron Nowakowski began to sparkle as the point spread reached a seemingly safe 51-43 with about five minutes left.

At this point UMass tried to slow down the action, but this strategy backfired. UConn had committed few fouls and could afford to take chances. Their aggressive tactics paid off as the Redmen lost their poise.

UConn took the lead for the first time since the first half when Bill Corley made two foul shots with 41 seconds left in the game to make the score 58-57. Lisack missed two jump shots and Wes Bialosuknia calmly sank two fouls, putting the game on ice. The Huskies let Frank Stewart drive the length of the court for the last basket.

Once again Bialosuknia (24 points) and Corley (19 points and 12 rebounds) were UConn's big guns. Despite the close guarding of DiSarcina, Bialosuknia was hitting his jumper from just about everywhere on the floor.

Tindall paced the balanced Massachusetts attack with 13 points. Lisack was next with 12, but he had only two points in the second half. Although he scored just nine points, Tim Edwards did a superlative job off the boards. When he fouled out with two minutes left in the game, he received a minute-long standing ovation.

MASSACHUSETTS	Fg	Fga	Ft	Fta	Reb	Pf	Pts
Nowakowski	5	8	0	0	4	2	10
Tindall	6	13	1	2	8	2	13
Edwards	4	13	1	3	11	5	9
Lisack	6	17	0	0	4	1	12
DiSarcina	5	10	0	1	6	5	10
Stewart	2	4	1	1	1	0	5
Murphy	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Team					6
TOTALS	28	65	3	7	40	15	59

CONNECTICUT	Fg	Fga	Ft	Fta	Reb	Pf	Pts
Holowaty	2	4	2	2	9	1	6
Ritter	1	4	2	2	1	2	4
Corley	5	13	9	10	12	3	19
Penders	2	7	1	1	0	1	5
Bialosuknia	9	20	6	6	4	0	24
Thompson	1	2	0	0	4	2	2
Melen	0	0	0	0	0	1	0
Team					2
TOTALS	20	50	20	21	32	10	60

Halftime score—UMass 33, UConn 25

Frosh Puckmen Tie Amherst, 2-2

The UMass freshmen hockey team skated to a 2-2 tie with the Amherst last Wednesday afternoon at Orr Rink.

UMass answered a first-period Amherst goal with two second-period goals. Bill Fallon scored first at 10:03. With 3:53 remaining in the period the Little Redmen scored again on Jim Curley's goal, to take a 2-1 lead.

It was short lived, however, as Dick Nelson of Amherst scored less than two minutes later to tie the contest.

Besides Fallon and Curley, Doug Powling, Pete Brebbis, and Bob Fiorini were outstanding for the Little Redmen.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN
SPORTS
MONDAY, FEB. 20, 1967
Page 10 Vol. XCV, No. 46

Golf Candidates

All candidates for the varsity golf team will meet tonight in the Berkshire Room of the Student Union at 7 p.m.

North-South Game

UMass to Become Lacrosse Mecca

by TOM FITZGERALD
Sports Editor

Coach Dick Garber's lacrosse players always wondered what shape the sport would be in without him.

The question may be evident to a considerably wider audience this year with the coming of the annual North-South All-Star lacrosse game to Amherst.

It's going to be played at Alumni Stadium on June 10. That's the weekend following Commencement. So Garber and other officials of the National Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association won't confine their promotion of the game to the Amherst community.

Coaches, players and just plain fans will be coming from all over the east. The game is that big.

"It's a New England venture actually," Garber said at the kick-off press luncheon last week in the Student Union. But UMass will be the focal point of all the pains-taking preparations.

The 21,500-seat Stadium will be the largest site in the history of the All-Star game.

The 48 best lacrosse players in the country will be competing in this, the 26th game in the series. The South holds a 14-10-1 edge overall. Players from Army, Syracuse and Rutgers traditionally anchor the North, and the South usually counters with talent from Navy, Maryland, Virginia and Johns Hopkins.

UMass has another connection in the affair. One of its grads, Joe Morrone '58, will be the head coach of the North squad. Morrone, who now coaches lacrosse and soccer at Middlebury College, won acclaim in those two sports at UMass.

The game will climax a week of coaches' meetings, social events, and lacrosse scrimmages. The buffet dinner-dances will be held at the Student Union, along with a reception for all past lacrosse All-Americans. In addition, a barbecue and a coach-guest golf tournament are planned.

Besides the game itself, however, probably the best attended events will be the practice sessions. The players of course have all had years of experience in stick-handling.

The caliber of play in the All-Star games, Garber said, "has gone from good to excellent to great."

Dean Warren McGuirk, on hand for the luncheon, said "Coach Garber and I have talked over this game for a number of years."

Morrone, who also appeared, emphasized that "In terms of preparations, this should be the best game ever."

Bladesmen Bow To Colby, 14-1, And UNH, 8-0

by TIM KELLEHER
Staff Reporter

UMass' varsity hockey squad faced two of the toughest college hockey teams in the Northeast this weekend and bowed 14-1 to Colby and 8-0 to UNH.

Colby 14, UMass 1

WATERVILLE, Maine — The Colby Mules are probably the finest team to face-off against the Redmen skaters all year. With three equally capable lines, Colby completely dominated the contest Friday night.

Colby started quickly, netting four tallies in the first eight minutes. The Redmen eventually regained their composure long enough to hold the Mules scoreless until the final minute of the period. UM's lone counter by senior Ed Kinsella, a 15-foot bouncer, was assisted by Jim O'Brien at 14:34.

From the second period until the final buzzer sounded, the Mules continued to wreak havoc on the UM defense. Defensemen Mike Self of Colby had a total of eight points, including four scores. Bill Henrich also performed the hat trick.

UM was penalized 13 times, Colby only three times. Of Colby's 14 goals, eight were scored when the Redmen were shorthanded. Redmen goaltenders again had a busy night. Ed Sanborn saved 29 in two periods and soph Dave Liberatore, kicked out 17 in the final period. Center Charlie Hanifan and wing Ed Quimby starred on offense with Ed Graney standing out on defense.

UNH 8, UMass 0

DURHAM, N.H. — The score does not indicate the battle the Redmen gave the UNH Wildcats. Most of the credit must go to goalie Ed Sanborn, who came up with an unbelieveable 79 saves, often with two or three in a row.

The first period was scoreless with plenty of action in Sanborn's direction. UNH kept on the offensive throughout the period. UM's lone offensive thrusts were by right wing Jeff Sanborn as he frequently broke past the Wildcats' blue line.

UNH's Canadien-laden squad broke the scoring ice at 5:18 of the second stanza with a Walsh screen shot. With efficient passing and skating, the Wildcats notched three more counters in the next six minutes, all three coming when UM was shorthanded.

Four more quick scores by the Wildcats in the final period put the game on ice

FIRST WITH THE NEWS 545-2550

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

YAHOO Page 3

VOL. XCV, NO. 47 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1967

SNOW BLANKETS CAMPUS

Senate Election Results

BRETT

Barrie Wagenfeld	2
Jim Moran	66
Hal Blain	50

VAN METER SOUTH

Gale Palmer	33

JFK MIDDLE

Jon Edwards	22

CRABTREE

Paula McCarthy	47

WEBSTER

Stan Levco	67
Frederic Hartwell	75
Write-ins	35

HILLS SOUTH

Joseph DiVincenzo	35
Paul Silverman	51

J. Q. ADAMS UPPER

Pat Smith	9

"Thinking Snow" Pays Off

Winter Carnival fans were ecstatic yesterday as a northeast storm swept New England, leaving over five inches of fresh snow.

The snow, together with forecasts for clear, cold weather for the weekend, brought fresh hopes to snow sculpturers, many of whom could be seen working late into Thursday night on their projects. The sculptures are to be judged tomorrow afternoon.

Proof was given of the power of collective thought as well. The Winter Carni committee's "Think Snow" stickers, which have been appearing all over campus in recent weeks, evidently produced results, according to some.

SEE PAGES 6 & 7

Others claimed that "Stein, the god of Snow" had chosen this opportunity to smile on the snow worshippers.

Whatever the cause, the spirit of winter has definitely come to Winter Carni, after many years of snowless celebrations.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Bolivar

Miss Joan Dombkowski '68 – Winter Carnival Queen 1967

DaVinci Papers Kept Under Wraps In Nat'l Library

by DON EPSTEIN
Staff Reporter

More controversy has erupted this week concerning the discovery of two lost Leonardo da Vinci manuscripts by Dr. Jules Piccus, a UMass Professor of Romance Languages. Dr. Piccus discovered the lost manuscripts in the National Library of Madrid.

Since his return to Madrid last week, Prof. Piccus has not been allowed to see the manuscripts. He has asked to see them, but the Library has denied him access to the documents.

According to the UM administration, Dr. Piccus will remain in Madrid and will continue to represent the University.

On Feb. 7 a contract was signed between UM and the National Library of Madrid, Spain, giving UM the exclusive publication rights to the manuscripts within the next four years.

But, with the contract the question remains; scripts? UM claims that it has not received any direct complaints from the Spanish officials. As of now the University plans to go ahead and carry out the terms of the contract.

In a Collegian interview, Dr. Edward C. Moore, Dean of the UMass Grad School, said that UM is ready to discuss any misunderstandings with officials of the Spanish National Library. In fact, Dean Moore stated that if he receives an invitation from the Library officials in Madrid, he will go there to discuss all differences of opinion.

Asked why he thought Dr. Piccus has been denied access to the manuscripts, Dean Moore was quick to comment that as far as he could tell, "There has been no violation of the contract on the Spanish part. It appears that all the Spanish want to do is clarify the situation."

Dean Moore went on to say that a question has been raised pertaining to the legality of the documents. It is not known whether or not the manuscripts should be signed by the Spanish Minister of Education.

Also, since the contract has been signed, the Madrid Library has raised the possibility of it being included in the actual publishing of the manuscripts.

The original contract which was signed on Feb. 7, states that the National Library of Madrid, Spain, will get 10 per cent of the earnings of the manuscripts.

Dean Moore went on to say that he had received a telephone call Thursday afternoon from Prof. Piccus in Madrid. Dr. Piccus reported that the Library officials still wouldn't let him see the manuscripts. However, the situation looks much better to him because he was invited to have a conference with the library board.

Love, Hot and Cold, Featured in Dear John

by N. C. SCANLAN
Staff Reviewer

Dear John opened in thirty degree Amherst Wednesday night, warming up the cold, hard truths of love and loneliness with an elegant and artistic production and an artificial hot-plate ending. But warmth is warmth; and as Anita says, "we must believe in love and a happy ending."

Dear John is successful for many reasons. First, the love is everyday. In between the passion, the hot - blood - running scenes, is the slow, empty nothing. He to her, she to him, a dialogue of "nice fire" and "being here is swell." It is recognized yet it is made interesting.

Director Lars Lingren avoids boredom by destroying enemy time. Is it Sunday or now? Is it tomorrow or before? It is somewhere in the weekend, anyway—John and Anita in their simple love. Lingren, if not poetic, is an uncanny editor, hatching together an otherwise unworkable story.

Other reasons. Thin, blonde, Bergmanesque Jarl Kulle is the captain that came this weekend to load sand. Like the others of his crew, he seeks a hiding place from his loneliness. He finds it. Christina Schollin is the place, a loneliness in herself. Her daughter Helena is the beautiful scar past love has left her.

A dark-haired Swede, she seems reluctant, all the way to bed she spells tease. She is a mystery, a "dynamite" (all women are, says John) and as expressive without words as the thinner Redgrave. She has a fine figure, "something you can grab hold of," says John. Both are excellent, a true John, a real Anita (who is really Ann).

Photography by Rune Ericson fits the film's poetic quality: the sea and the lovers, the giggly zoo and kids, bathing holes and athletes. Never too much, never short, always alive.

What is this weekend then? A permanent trip or just a visit away from loneliness, the place back home. It is Monday. The sun, the departure. Anita has lied. She is not Anita. She is Anne. Anne has lied. She has gone on a vacation "already had." The warmth is shattered, the cold wind of truth blows in. But all is redeemed by a phone call, a proposal to abolish this loneliness, an infra-red finish to an already cooked story. Evidently, "Dear John" in Swedish has a different meaning from the American cliche. Love has its happy ending.

Dear John is an excellent movie, soft and soothing, a change of pace. It's worth going to bed with before it sails away Tuesday.

McCoys to Highlight Saturday Nite At Class of '69 Potpourri

The McCoys, of "Hang on Sloopy", are headlining Saturday night's potpourri.

The McCoy's, of "Hang on Sloopy," "Fever," and "Got to Go Back," are headlining Saturday night's potpourri of experiences all taking place in the Student Union Ballroom, sponsored by the class of '69.

The dance will begin at 8:30 p.m. and according to class President Wayne Thomas, it promises to be "a recreation of the discotheques of the West Coast."

Headed by V. P. Tom Mitchell, and his production staff of 35, the dance will feature the rhythmic beats of "The Last Rites" along with the McCoy's.

To augment the music, 5 go-go girls, 7 movie projectors, and 7 slide projectors are being provided. Sometimes during the evening two "underground" movies will be shown, one of which will be a color interpretation of a Beatle's record.

Since the Cosby Concert will be over around 10:00, the Sophomore class has set aside tickets for all the Cosby fans who don't want to miss the discotheque potpourri.

Chess Tourney Opens Monday

The Campus Chess Tournament will be starting Monday, Feb. 2. There will be six rounds, and all contestants will be scheduled for six games. This is not an elimination tournament.

Pairings will be posted outside the R.S.O. Office in the Student Union every Monday, and results must be turned in there by 5:00 Friday afternoon or phoned in to Russell Salk at 549-0363 by 10:00 Saturday night.

If no results are given, the game will be declared a double forfeit unless one of the players can demonstrate that his opponent refused to play the game for that round.

Prizes will be given for the best three performances. Tournament rules for games must be followed, except that no time clocks will be used unless both players agree to it.

If there are any problems or questions, players should call Russell Salk for clarification of the rules and extensions of the deadline for reporting games.

ACTION "67"
This week at 9:30, a discussion with the Valley Centre, WMUA, 91.1 FM.

CARD PLAYING
Card tables have been set up in the Governor's Lounge of the Student Union. While the "Lodge" is being renovated, card playing will be permitted temporarily in this lounge.

Card playing is not permitted in Food Service areas according to SUG Board policy.

Great Decisions Deal With Vietnam Issues

by PHILIP LERNER
Staff Reporter

The University of Massachusetts committee which sponsors the Great Decisions program, meeting last Monday night, dealt with Vietnam. This issue sparked provocative and interesting discussion. The relative positions of "dove" and "hawk" were taken respectively by G. Braunthal and L. Allen (both of the UMass Government Dept.)

Allen, an expert on Vietnam, took over much of the debate. The questioners, from all over the world, added international flavor to the procedings. They talked as much from the heart as they did from the mind. An example of the perceptive questions that they raised was, "How can an average U. S. citizen be expected to support an undeclared war, that has no rallying, uniting slogans, that many of its citizens have "turned off," and that has no finite solution in sight?"

Escalation, de-escalation, hopes for peace, the effects of the war on our world position, on our allies, on our enemies, and perhaps most importantly, on ourselves were among the topics discussed.

Once again three questioners were chosen to represent the Amherst end of the Joint Amherst-Boston Radio hookup over WFCR--WGBH that took place at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. The students represented Mt. Holyoke, Amherst, and the University of Massachusetts. In Boston, the Vietnam expert was Stanley Hoffman from Harvard.

Next Monday night at 6:30 p.m. in Webster Lounge the Great Decisions group will delve into the question of two independent-minded Communist countries of Yugoslavia and Rumania. It is these countries, and others, that have forever split the phantom figure of the Communist Monolith and made International Communism an ideological Marxist struggle between the "Revisionist" Soviets and the "Hard-line" Chinese.

This interesting and important topic will have Ferenc Vali (UMass government department) as one panel expert and a yet-to-be-named co-panelist.

This program is, as all Great Decisions programs, open to all students interested in authoritative answers to world-wide questions.

Unique Services Held By Ecumenical Group

Ecumenical worship services are now being held every Sunday morning on campus in Mahar auditorium. The time is now 10:30; however, starting with the March 5 service it will be 11:00. The worship is intended to be an ecumenically Christian worship experience.

The services are contemporary in content, using a variety of material available in present-day styles of language and art form, and they are experimental in form.

Services have used the poetry of Ferlinghetti, Auden, Eliot; spirituals like "Kum ba ya," popular songs like Simon and Garfunkel's "Sounds of Silence"; and other contemporary art forms.

In many ways, the continuing symbol of worship at Mahar is a rugged cross of nails. What is trying to be done is the presentation of the Christian message to the UMass community in here and now terms.

The University Christian Worship, the group which presents these services presently consists of about a dozen students and two of the campus ministers. The services are intentionally geared to students, but faculty and others are welcome to participate.

The services are planned and produced by students; the chaplains serve in resource capacities.

The planning of each Sunday's liturgy is delegated to a different themes committee, each consisting of three students and one of the chaplains. The themes committee creates the order of the service and then calls upon those available to fill the various roles in the service. Anyone interested in joining the group in either the planning or any other aspect of future services should contact the convenor, Charlie Guyotte, 512 Grayson (6-6989).

The Massachusetts Collegian

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week following vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price:
$4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office:
Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Telephone: 545-2550 — 549-1311

PIERCED EARINGS
A selection of over 50 pairs
Winn
Jeweler
Amherst

AD DEADLINES
(No exceptions please!)
Please submit all copy to COLLEGIAN Office by:
5 P.M. THURS. for Mon. paper
5 P.M. FRI. for Wed. & Fri. paper
the week prior to desired insertion

FACTORY OUTLET
25 Market Street, Northampton
Sweaters for the Entire Family
Pullovers $6 to $11 values to $18
Ladies Cardigans $4.95 values to $7.95
Ladies Pullovers $3.95 values to $6.95
Cashmeres $11.95-$17.50 values to $30
MON. THRU SAT. — 10 AM.-5 P.M.
THURS. EVENING TIL 9:00 P.M.
Market St. is across from Jack August

AMHERST Cinema
NOW - 6:40-9:00
SUN. 1:30-4:15-6:35-8:55
"Altogether it is a stunning picture, a compelling picture! A frank and uninhibited exposition of the on-rush of physical desire. One after another scene expands upon the brash techniques of courtship and the clamorous fulfillment of desire!" Bosley Crowther, N.Y. Times
DEAR JOHN
STARTS WED. MARCH 1
"LOVES OF A BLONDE" (French)

STATIONS of the CROSS
Friday, 7:00 P.M.
NEWMAN CENTER CHAPEL

Recommendation Passed To Allow Yahoo Publication

By JIM FOUDY

The UMass Student Communications Board unanimously passed a motion Tuesday recommending to the Dean of Students and the Student Senate that Yahoo be allowed to publish.

Yahoo's funds were cut from the Student Senate Budget by Dean of Students William Field last Spring. Yahoo is presently considering selling the magazine both on and off campus.

According to editor Eric Kramer, Yahoo hopefully plans to publish shortly after spring vacation with "a lot of new ideas in the pot." He also expressed his desire for anyone wishing to work on the publication to contact the Yahoo office.

Yahoo first raised the question of re-establishing the magazine on a sales basis at meetings of the Publication Commission which met last summer.

The present Student Communications Board was established by the Student and Faculty Senates upon a recommendation of the summer Publications Commission late last semester. Since its first meeting in December the work of the Board has concentrated primarily on the re-establishment of Yahoo.

As a result of working with a sub-committee of the Board, Yahoo has come up with two alternate solutions to selling the magazine.

These are:

1. Yahoo will borrow a set amount of money from the Student Senate to be repaid as the magazine becomes financially independent.

2. The Student Senate would agree to back Yahoo should the revenue from advertising and sales fall short of the cost of printing.

Before recommending that Yahoo be allowed to publish, the Communications Board requested from the editors a list of proposed plans for the operation and improvement of the magazine.

While the Board expressed satisfaction with Yahoo's proposals, it recommended that its sub-committee on Yahoo continue to function in order to provide further recommendations and suggestions which were not covered in Yahoo's report to the Board.

These recommendations would probably include the soliciting of specific advisers to Yahoo, the broadening of recruitment programs and further suggestions for the procurrement of material for publication.

These have always been sore points between the University and Yahoo and are expected to play a large role in the decisions of Dean Field and the Student Senate.

The recommendation of the Board will formally be presented to Dean Field by the Board's subcommittee next Wednesday.

At its meeting Tuesday, the Board, under the chairmanship of Student Senator Lewis Gurwitz, expressed concern in making members of the communications media on campus aware of their obligations to the Board and of the Board's interest in assisting the media.

To this end, the Board has established a subcommittee to contact media editors in an attempt to make the role of the Board better understood. Student members of the Student Communications Board are: Lew Gurwitz, chairman, Al Davis, Fred Pilon, Norm Ryan, Mel Fisher, and James Foudy.

Members appointed by the Faculty Senate are: Mrs. Leone Barron, Gerald Scanlon, Prof. Harry Allan, Dr. William Havard, Albert Hulsen and Prof. Isadore Silver.

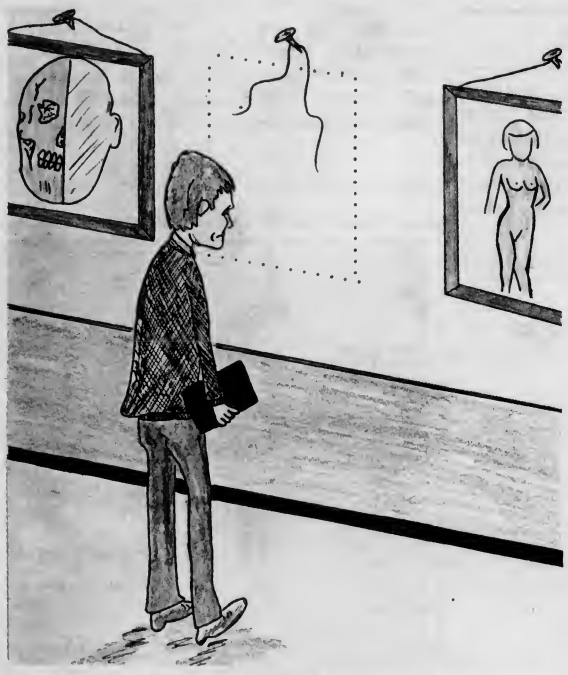
Meetings of the Communications Board are open to the campus and members of the media are encouraged to attend. The next meeting is Tuesday at 7:30 in the Student Union.

Stubbins Takes Action In SW Heat Problem

by RICHARD STAPLES
Staff Reporter

At a recent meeting of the Southwest Presidents' Forum, Assistant Director of Housing for Southwest Thomas Trotman responded to numerous complaints and comments on the condition of buildings in the Complex. The problems raised ranged from elevator breakdowns to design faults in the dorms.

The emphasis, however, was on the recurrent heating failures, which, Trotman said, were not entirely the fault of any one party, but rather a combination of design weaknesses, poor installation, and imprpper adjustment.



Relating the steps taken to date to correct the situation, the Assistant Director stated that neither the contractor, nor the manufacturers of the system, Johnson Controls, had been willing to accept the responsibility for the problem.

Positive action finally came about, he revealed, when the Board of Trustees threatened to hold up bidding on future campus projects designed by Southwest's architect, Hugh Stubbins. Stubbins was therefore forced to take action personally.

At this time, an engineer has been asigned 24 hours a day to Southwest in order to make the necessary adjustments and tests on the heating system, and a satisfactory solution should result.

In an interview, Mr. Trotman characterized most of the difficulties experienced in Southwest as the type of teething troubles inherent in any large project of this type.

Comparing the area with a private home, he said "when a person has a new house built, he expects to experience a number of problems, which will require the contractor to return to correct. The problem is magnified in a project as large and complex as Southwest."

Seal Unveiled At Carnival Reception

President and Mrs. John W. Lederle were the honored guests at a Winter Carnival Reception and Tea for residents, parents, and members of the administration held February 19, 1967, on the nineteenth floor lounge of the John F. Kennedy Tower.

The Tea, sponsored by John F. Kennedy Upper and Henry David Thoreau Houses, was attended by approximately four hundred guests, including Dean and Mrs. William Field, Dr. and Mrs. Mark G. Noffsinger, Dean Helene Curtis, Dr. and Mrs. Henry L. Varley, Master and Mrs. Clarence Shute, the faculty fellows of both houses, and the presidents of many of the houses in the Southwest Residential College.

An evening of unprecedented elegance and display awaited all who attended Sunday evening's reception. The very talented Paul Kaufman entertained on the piano as guests relaxed amidst the lounge area.

The Art Department supplied a collection of contemporary ceramic pieces to supplement the collection of art created by the Head of Residence, Mrs. Regina Korpela. Highlighting the evening was the unveiling of the dormitory seal, designed by David Gentry and drawn by Robert Hyland.

The chairman of the Tea was Gordon Bennett, Moderator of the Southwest College Council.

Hillside Service Resumes After Agreement Reached

by ELAINE KAGAN
Staff Reporter

The temporary suspension of Hillside Dairy's milk and ice cream machines has stirred various rumors and disquiet on campus.

Rumors varied considerably. The most extreme of them stated that the vending machine service on campus had broken contract with the University ending all vending services. Other imaginative rumors were that the dairy products were shown to be unwholesome and that the milkmen were on strike.

According to James West, director of the campus vending service, the temporary suspension of milk products on campus was due to a question of contract requirements. The University was attempting to improve service.

Dairy product service resumed on Thursday, Feb. 16, after a satisfactory agreement was reached.

Because each residence on campus benefits from vending machine profits, through the Cultural Enrichment Program, the University is trying to increase the variety of machines and increase the number of machine locations.

At present each dorm receives $100 a semester from the Cultural Enrichment Program to use for some type of cultural expansion program.

OPEN HOUSE

Pres. Lederle will have open office hours on Tues., Feb. 28 at 4:00. All students are encouraged to come and voice their opinions to the president.

Art Exhibits Plagued by Empty Spaces, Broken Glass

By RICK MORAN and DAN MADDEN

The theft of two paintings from the current University Acquisitions Exhibit has pointed up the problem of artistic vandalism on the campus. While one of the paintings, A Lord of Wm. Kent has been returned, of Wm. Kent, has been returner, the other, The El Arbolof, is

During the controversial Close exhibit the preliminary sketch for the sculpture, Humanist Housewife, owned by Art Faculty member James Hendricks, turned up missing. In another recent exhibit a drawing of John Townsend's was stolen.

The showings at the Student Union have not been the only victims of artistic pilfering. Thefts from exhibits held elsewhere in the past were so frequent that the series was terminated.

The problem is raising one of insurance. The University can not hold an exhibit unless the works shown are adequately insured. The loss or damaging of seven works in the last ten months has caused an increase in the premiums for Student Union exhibits and termination of the policies for all non-SU shows. It is feared that another incidence of vandalism will cause termination of all public exhibition insurance. The issue of vandalism will probably be taken up by the proponants of a special area or room for University exhibits as a commanding argument for their proposals.

Free Film Sun.

The widely-acclaimed television documentary, "A Time For Burning," produced by Lutheran Film Associates, will be shown at Immanuel Lutheran Church, 867 No. Pleasant St., Amherst, Sunday, February 26, at 7:00 P.M. The film will be screened in the sanctuary of the church. No charge will be made for admission.

Interested in a Career in Retail Store Management?

The W. T. Grant Co. Offers Men an Interesting and Challenging Opportunity in its MANAGEMENT TRAINING PROGRAM to Prepare for Store Management and Later Executive Positions in a Rapidly Expanding Company. Unusually High Income Potential, Good Starting Salary.

Interviews March 1, 1967

Register at Your Placement Office— School of Business— and Request Copy of "W. T. Grant Co. — Your Career".

MOUNTAIN PARK
RTE. 5 HOLYOKE—GO WHERE THE ACTION IS
EVERY SAT. 8 P.M.
COLLEGE MIXER
2 BANDS FEATURING NEW ENGLAND'S
NO. 1 ROCKING BAND MONTY & Specialties

PI LAMBDA PHI
Builds a Brotherhood!
this year,
A snow sculpture
next year.

Editorial Section

Sam Spark Speaks Out

What's Happening, Baby?

There was a time when possession of complimentary tickets to Winter Carni events signified attainment of "B.M.O.C." status. But this year, since anybody who is anybody has at least a pair of complimentaries, a new feeling is manifesting itself, among the decreasing few without them.

Last Sunday, I walked into the Cage for the concert and immediately noticed that the majority of the seats were folding chairs situated on the floor. I was at first undecided where to sit, since there were so many thousands of good seats to choose from. As I stood there contemplating, an usher came over and asked to see my tickets. When I showed them to him he said haughtily, "I'm sorry but these seats are reserved for our student dignitaries."

I was embarrassed. I tried to hide my face from all my friends who had complementary tickets, but it was to no avail. Bob Smith, who was assistant chairman in charge of getting the piano keys cleaned for Ramsey Lewis, and had been given twelve complimentary tickets for his labors, spotted me. Bob called me over to speak with him. All Bob's friends, curious to see just what kind of person did not get a complimentary ticket, gathered around.

"It's unbelievable that he goes to U-Mass and didn't get any complimentary tickets," a girl whispered just loud enough for me to hear.

"Maybe somebody made a mistake,"' I timidly suggested.

They all smiled sympathetically, but I could see they didn't believe me.

There I stood, fighting back the tears, knowing that I was destined to be ostracized by my friends. I was thinking that maybe if I transferred schools, I could get a fresh start on life. But it was obvious I could no longer hold my head high on the UMass campus.

Just then Bob looked me straight in the eye and said, "I know why you didn't get any complimentary tickets."

"Is it because I wore white socks to a Theta Chi smoker?" I asked innocently.

"No," said Bob. It's because you're the only member of the Junior Class not on the Executive Council."

I was beaten and I knew it. Without a word, I turned away and strolled toward the deserted slums of the grandstand, hoping to find some solace in the melodic strains of Ramsey Lewis and Benny Goodman.

Anti-Marriage?

It is about time that the married student be treated as more than a second-class student.

Why are the university apartments rented to faculty first and married students practically last? What will the Administration do when the married Vietnam GI's return and want to attend school? Will the Administration put up more dormitories with community bathrooms?

Can the Administration demonstrate a possession of progressive thinking? Will it build some university apartments expressly for the married students and show them that the University is not anti-marriage?

We think it's long overdue.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

Number 6099663 on the Big Campus

by PAMELA METAXAS

Considering the complaints heard on campus every day the University is a pretty bad place to be. Students complain they are just number 6099663. Their lives are run by the overpowering computer.

They have no say in campus affairs. They have few friends because too many students are enrolled here. And worst of all, an invisable Phantom runs the whole place.

This is an excellent theory for the apathetic and for the weak. It satisfies their need for rationalizing exactly why they never made it on a big campus.
It is a perfect excuse for going to three classes a day and then returning to an empty room every night. Yes. This belief fills a need. But it also is the most untrue statement made about the University.

It's a big place. Sure. But there are bigger. It's run by a computer. Sure. But how else can the schedules of 13,000 be filed? By hand? A real man is President and runs the school. Sure. He's not phantom. You just think he is. His office is always open to anybody on campus.

And big wheels run campus affairs. Sure. But they're students like everyone else. They made it. You can too.

Any student can know anybody in the administration. President Lederle, Provost Tippo, Dean Field, Dr. Nofsinger are always there to speak to interested students (the President is conducting office hours for students at 4:00 Tues., Feb. 28).

Any student can have a say in his campus affairs. The Student Senate exists for that purpose. And real live students are senators!

The Collegian operates as a forum for debate and criticism. You can join just by walking into the office, etc., etc. The other campus organizations are too numerous to name. They are all created expressly for the participation of students.

The organizations, the Administration, the Trustees, the Faculty and would you believe, even the computer works just for you—You, Who Think you're Just a Number.

It's not true. You can make it on a big campus. The catch is you have to work for the recognition you later earn. You have to care and have the school spirit that runs the University.

You can't blame any one for not caring about Number 6099663. You're to blame for not caring in the beginning.

S. P. A.--An Awakening?

by RICHARD STAPLES, Editorial Staff

The recent demonstration by members of the newly-organized Students for Political Action, wherever else it may have accomplished, shows that at least some UMass students have the courage of their convictions.

Now, at last, a group of students have stood up and told the campus and the world that they believe a wrong is being committed. Whether or not we agree with their stand is another matter, but one can't help admiring their candor.

Far too often, we hear a Umie say "I don't like it, but what can I do?" These people are underestimating their own power. Be it on campus issues or international affairs, we the students must realize that our opinion does count, and that if enough of us take action on a matter we may well influence the course of events.

"Student Power" is not a figment of someone's imagination, it can be a reality.

The S.P.A. has set an example: will the students of The University follow it?

Will we wake up?

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Associate News Editor ..... Richard Kline '70

Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Bolvier '68
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Fridays Day Editors: News—Marjie Flanders '69, Editor—Nancy Bourgoin '69, Sports—Steve Lotterman '70, Photo—Neil Rennie '70

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.

Campus Comment

"Our Problem Is..."

To the Editor:

I am sure that the rest of my colleagues on the Caesura staff will agree with me in saying that we appreciate (to some extent) sincere criticism of our efforts to provide the University with a quality literary magazine. Some of the points made in your recent editorial, entitled Caesura's Poets, were well taken.

We attempt to choose those contributions which best represent those which we receive. The Caesura staff has been accused of being a clique many (and probably too many) times, and that a substantial amount of its content is created and submitted by its own members. It has also been accused for its narrowness in "scope of art and literature."

Caesura's problem is that not enough students on campus submit material. It has too little support. If the people on this campus would desist talking about the inadequacies of the publication and start contributing to it, satisfaction would be more easily achieved.

We have even more difficulty in advertising for deadlines with the constant mutilation and removal of posters. This attitude is somewhat childish.

The Caesura staff is by no means a clique. It welcomes new members with open arms, and especially appreciates contributory efforts. Sam Spark's recent article may have been humorous to some, but the people who work hard for the magazine consider it a gross insult.

I suggest that the Collegian editors take a closer look at their own efforts toward quality before criticizing one of its fellow publications.

Caesura staff member
Tim Buckley

Food Costs Money

To the Editor:

The editorial about the Dining Commons on Feb. 15 would have made a good letter-to-the-editor. But is was a poor editorial. The difference between editorials and letters, I think, is that the former should be researched.

I think the raising of "wild" questions and mis-statements are not improper in letters. At the same time, I am assuming that either the paper or a concerned individual will set the facts of a letter straight.

Paul Robert Hallock referred in his "discussion" to the recent board increase. The $220 is certainly a fact. It was quoted in this editorial advocating (1) better food preparation and (2) that the student only be charged for the meals he eats.

We perhaps should not assume that the Dining Commons is preparing food to the best of its ability. Probably we should assume that management is "inefficient."

But, in any event, how can we assert, as though we were experts, that the preparation can be X times better at the same cost? If Mr. Hallock wants a debate, he must first secure an expert to speak for his point of view.

Then there is point two: The student should be charged only for what he eats. Wow! Did it ever occur to you, Mr. Hallock, that Dining Commons figures its meal ticket cost partly on the basis of the amount of food purchased and used?

Can you understand that over the years a record has been built up so that the Dining Commons does not expect every student to eat every meal?

What about the guy who gets three servings of the main entree and the girl who takes only one — should they be charged the same amount for each meal they eat?

Unfortunately, you can not do away with common costs at an institution of this size. The idea, presented by itself, makes a poor editorial. It stimulates wishful thinking, not serious thought.

Keeping the faith,
Pat Petow,
Student Senate Sub-committee on Food Services

Budget Battle

To the Editor:

After reading the article by Pat Petow entitled "Student Senate Skirts Controversy; Accepts Forensic Society Budget" in the February 20 Collegian, I felt it might be appropriate to give my personal views and reasons for making a motion to cut the $835.00 registration fee from this budget.

I cannot see the Senate's rationale in granting $6,942.00 to this 22 member group. This appropriation amounts to over $315 per member to cover costs for about 38 debates with not more than six members at each debate.

By conducting these debates the club feels that they "can enhance the name of the University of Massachusetts throughout different schools"—the usual reason offered to the Senate by organizations whose members travel. I seriously doubt that debating in such areas as Miami, Florida; Chicago, Illinois; and numerous New England and New York areas can enhance the name of the University to such a degree that would make it worthwhile for the Senate to grant the Forensic Society close to $7000.00.

Also the article stated that I wanted the Senate to "force" the administration to pay for the Forensic Society. Perhaps this was a misinterpretation of my intent in making the motion to cut the budget. It was and is my feeling that this $835 reduction would have been influential in causing the administration to re-assess their financial policy regarding organizations of this type.

This situation is not unlike that of the Crew Club in which the Senate has supported with substantial appropriations for a number of years, an organization which rightfully should be sustained completely by the Athletic Department. I regret that an institution with the ever increasing stature of the University should "pass the buck" to the students in the manner that Dean McGuirk of the Athletic Department has done and will continue to do unless students' rights are defined and defended.

Dean McGuirk will continue to landscape his stadium with $10,000 worth of trees; and he will continue to dispense scholarships to football players who in many cases must sit the season out on the bench. All this is done with funds which he "does not have" to support a rowing team which has copped national honors while existing in a limbo of vague departmental identification.

One also wonders how the Athletic Council can finance their frequent meeting banquets at the Lord Jeff with these "non-existant" funds.

I doubt that students at the University want their Activities Tax spent to subsidize the Forensic Society's nationwide jaunts, or legitimate Athletic Department responsibilities.

Or perhaps they do . . . . .

Mike Garjian
Senator, J.F.K. Upper

Campus Comment

An Academic Function?

To the Editor:

I have followed the current debate concerning the Forensic Society budget with great interest. In addition I have spoken at length with many students concerning their feelings about the club. Consequently, I believe that the question in debate is not so much whether the budget is padded or not, but whether the budget is justified at all.

I sincerely believe that the Forensic Society budget should be included in the general University of Massachusetts budget, and not from the Student Activities Tax. Furthermore, the society is in essence an academic function which should come under the auspices of the Speech Department.

It is not at all fitting that each student on this campus should contribute about fifty cents toward the finances of the club. In fact, considering overall benefits given to each member of the club, it might be said that each one receives about $350 in expenses. I am told that expenses for some members reach as high as $800 or $900. Indeed, this is tantamount to a form of scholarship for each member of the club from student funds.

In no way am I critical of the members of the club or its function. I am, however, disturbed that our student money is being used to provide a function which should be a more major concern of the administration, i.e. fostering the good name of the University of Massachusetts across the nation.

Wayne M. Thomas
President
The Class of '69

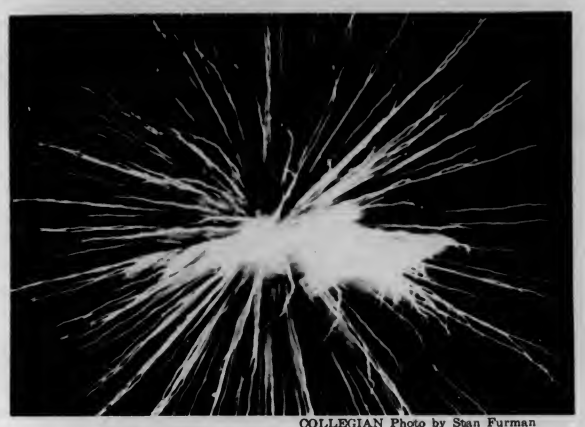
"It was only a little thing to do, and no trouble; and it's the little things that smooths people's roads the most, down here below"

—Huck Finn

"I've ironed my hair...tried lots of torchery things to get rid of natural curl."

(This is how Dee Dee Dolan looked before using CURL FREE. And these are her own words.) "It's obnoxious...not so much the ringlets...as the frizzy ends. I've tried all kinds of things to get the curl out but nothing does it. I have to set it in great big rollers...and just keep my fingers crossed. Whenever it's even a little damp outside...the set comes right out. My hair just hangs sort of bushy.

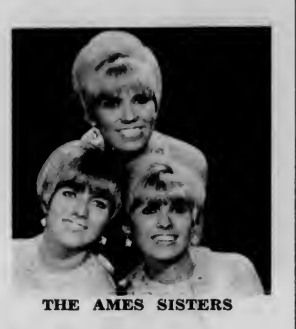
"I've always envied kids who've had straight hair. I'd really love to wear those straight, collegiate styles. Do you really think CURL FREE can do that for me?"



"My bangs! The sides! Curl Free really took the curl out."

"The bangs—that's the part I'm crazy about. And it's springy. You know...not limp or anything. I love it! It was simple, too. Mainly, I just applied CURL FREE and combed it through. Now I won't have to set it as much. It won't frizz up—fantastic!"—DEE DEE DOLAN.

Comb those natural curls right out of your hair with cool, creamy CURL FREE. Even if your hair is so curly it puts up a real fight—it will surrender to CURL FREE. Just keep using it and you'll see. Styling Freedom that lasts for months. That's CURL FREE.



COLLEGIAN Photo by Stan Furman

WINTER CARNI started off last Friday with a bang!

Winter Carnival 1967 Ap

THE AMES SISTERS

Cosby and Rush High

The Saturday night concert will be headed by one of the finest comedians in the world today — Bill Cosby, who will be featured Saturday night, February 25, with Tom Rush, noted Boston folksinger.

"How long can you tread water?" asks God, looking very much like Bill Cosby, America's latest comic, here of TV's I Spy.

Cosby, a miraculous blend of "cool" and straight, has become one of the most popular come star thre

TV
If
runs proj
it's ple whe
laug

BILL COSBY

Tonight—L. S. Den

JERRY SHANE

An unusual event has been planned for Friday by the Class of 1968. The atmosphere of the Winter Carnival Ball has been substituted by that of a nightclub happening, The L S Den. The scene, painted by flashing lights, a variety of dance rhythms, small tables, and a rathskeller, will transform the general atmosphere into a discotheque happening.

Featured entertainment will include Mamie Lee, famed nightclub singer; Jerry Shane, renowned comedian; the Ames Sisters, popular singing group; and the ever-popular tunes of the Les Smith Band.

In such a unique and transitional arrangement, the nightclub will feature a semi-formal innovation which will highlight this eighth day of Winter Carnival '67.

MAMIE LEE

. . . After a Week of

COLLEGIAN Photo by Bill Gleason

THE FLYING REDMEN drill team were an added attraction at l ast Friday's basketball game.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Boliver

THE RAMSEY LEWIS TRIO led off the concert series last Sunday afternoon in the Cage.

Nina Simone

Added Attraction Saturday Night

Nina Simone will add a welcome dimension to the Sat. evening Winter Carnival concert. As a performer, Nina parsonifies the rare combination of a fine vocalist and a great musician.

It would be a musical inaccuracy to categorize her singing as being strictly popular, jazz, folk or gospel because while she sings in all of these idioms she cannot be pigeonhoed in any one of them exclusively.

Her keyboard ability, too, displays a rare extent of musical breadth, ranging from the studied discipline of a concert pianist to the improvisational and imaginatve scope of a jazz muscian.

On stage Nina Simone is regarded as "an experience" as well as an act, and press reviewers invariably make particular note of her "spellbinding" effect on audiences. No Nina Simone performance is the same as any one preceding it, and whether you like her or not, you can never simply sit back and be indifferent to Nina

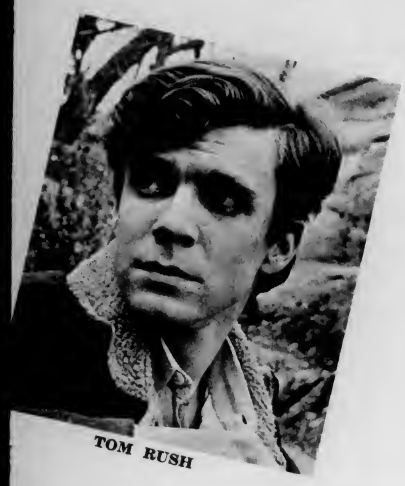
Both fan and foe alike seem to sense something of real importance about this astonishing woman, and it is not surprising that audiences have labeled her with a string of epithets varying all the way from "witch" to "avenging angel."

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Boliver

AFTER INTERMISSION Sunday, the tension mounted as the Winter Carni Queen for 1967 was about to be chosen, and . . .

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Boliver

JOAN DOMBKOWSKI '68 was the lucky girl . . . and a very surprised girl!



Wi
The Winter highlight Thre
tive spiri
The dog any driv snowshoe provided,
The Part from the trophies,
petitors
Join
pate or v

...pproaches Grand Finale..

...light Weekend

...dians with the collegiate set today, Besides ...ing in his own TV series, he has made ...e record albums and has appeared on other ...shows.

...Bill Cosby isn't the funniest man alive, he ... a very close second. The image which he ...cts on the stage is not an image at all—...he man himself. His ability to make peo...augh is geared to every level. No matter ...ther seven or seventy, one is forced to ...h at his tremendous wit and humor.

TOM RUSH

THE LOVIN' SPOONFUL

THE YOUNG RASCALS

COLLEGIAN Photo by Gerri Cote

DICK WOOD, Junior Class president, takes time to smile at the Collegian's camera between events. The Class of '68 is sponsoring the carnival.

Sunday's Finale

Saturday evening, "The Lovin' Spoonful" and "The Young Rascals", two of the newest, most exciting "Pop-Rock" groups on the entertainment scene today, will be in concert at the University. Their type of music is a refreshing link between rock and roll and jazz.

Both groups have recently toured the country, appearing on several TV shows such as The Ed Sullivan Show, Hullabaloo, Where The Action Is, and The Lloyd Thaxton Show. The Rascals already have three records out—Mustang Sally, Good Lovin' and You Better Run Along, with a hit album entitled The Young Rascals.

The Lovin Spoonful have made three hit albums as well as many singles such as Summer In The City, You Don't Have To Be So Nice, and Nashville Cats. The City, You Didn't Have to Be

...Festivities

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Boliver

...HE BENNY GOODMAN SEXTET provided the oth... half of Sunday's entertainment.

...nter Olympics Tomorrow

...Campus Pond is the scene for Saturday afternoon ...arni entertainment. Many different events will ... the 1967 Winter Olympics.

...e new events promise to promote campus competi...t. The tug o'war matches the frats and the rats. ...led race, the Winter Carni chariot race, is open to ...r with a tobaggan and six dogs (friends). The ... race is an obstacle race. The snowshoes will be ... but participants must bring a female partner. ...traditional speed skating races are also scheduled. ...icipants will be competing for gift certificates ... House of Walsh and recognition on permanent ... seen in the Student Union lobby showcase. Com...nust submit their entries 12:30 P.M. on Saturday. ... the fun around the pond at 1:00 P.M. to partici...vatch. Free hot chocolate will be served.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Gerri Cote

COLLEGIAN Photo by Gerri Cote

MIRIAM WILLIAMS completely captured her audience Tuesday night as she performed at Bowker Auditorium for D V P.

"NO CURFEW"

Upon recommendaion of the Women's Affairs Committee of the Student Senate, Dr. Mark Noffsinger, Associate Dean of Students, has approved a "no curfew" policy for freshmen women this Friday and Saturday night only. Regular dormitory closing hours of 1:00 a.m. will still be in effect each night, however, according to Betty Chambers of the Women's Affairs Committee.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Boliver

THE BOSS TWEEDS, top-rated campus band, performed Tuesday night at a "happening" in the SU Ballroom. They were very well complimented by The Inmates.

"Goose" Retains Crown

by RON LaBRECQUE, Staff Reporter

"I only wish my mother was here" were the humble words of Pancake King Al "Goose" Sagesse after successfully defending his crown Wednesday in the S.U. ballroom against fourteen challengers.

The contest was held following the pancake breakfast sponsored by the Revelers for their scholarship fund. Pancakes were consumed by the dozens as contestants began to drop out one by one. Some ninety minutes after the bon vivant gourmands had sat down, only Sagesse of The Revelers and Ray Rodgers from Thatcher House remained

Trying to keep up with the lightening pace set by Sagesse, who had already consumed 29 pancakes, Rodgers blew his chances for the crown when he balked on his 28th. A small but lively crowd was on hand.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

PANCAKE KING SAGESSE

College Hockey Ends for Polchlopek, Skowyra

Well-Developed Players in an Undeveloped Sport

By TIM KELLEHER

"You couldn't meet any two more unselfish, respected men than Ed Polchlopek and Bill Skowyra." Steve Kosakowski, UMass hockey coach, was talking about two of the most valuable hockey players ever to play for UMass.

"If I had to pick an All-Star team from my years of coaching," he said, "both Ed and Bill would be on the team."

Both seniors, Captain Polchlopek and Skowyra have been lost for the remainder of the hockey season. Polchlopek suffered torn ligaments in his knee against U-Penn last week and will wear a cast for eight weeks. A concussion sustained against Holy Cross has forced Skowyra to quit playing all contact sports for good.

With six games remaining in the season, both players could have easily broken school scoring records. This season Polchlopek had 12 goals and three assists in 14 games. With six more goals he would have broken the goal record set by Russ Kidd ('56) of 50.

Ed's totals since his freshman year were 45 goals and 24 assists for a total of 69 points; only three players have bettered this, Jim Ellingwood ('62) with 70, Ron Lung ('57) with 75 and Kidd with 80. Polchlopek was also third in career assists with 25.

BILL SKOWYRA

A disputed assist in the UConn game was credited to Skowyra, enabling him to break the UM record with 39. His record this year was six goals and 13 assists giving him a total of 60 points.

Polchlopek, who played left wing for three years switched positions this year with Skowyra, a center, and the two formed the best scoring combination in UMass history. Ed was deadly from 15 feet out and Bill was one of the fastest skaters and slickest stick-handlers on UMass ice.

Their spirit and leadership molded the team into a cohesive unit. Polchlopek and Skowyra agree that the team is making a tremendous showing this season. The morale of players is extremely high. "If I had to pick an All Star team from my years of coaching," says Steve Kosakowski, "both Ed and Bill would be on the team."

Captain Polchlopek, who hails from Chicopee, was an outstanding athlete and student in high school. He is majoring in civil engineering.

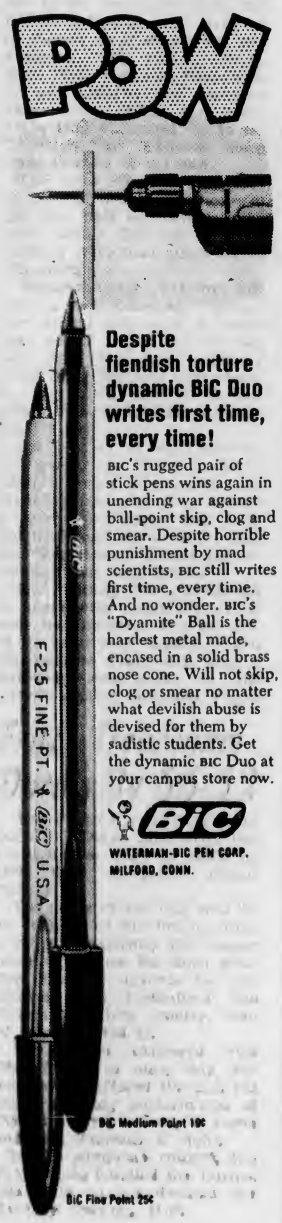
Besides playing hockey here, he played baseball in his freshman and sophomore years (batting over .300) and led the golf team to the Yankee Conference Championship last year. Ed shoots in the low 70s. He also made the All-Star intramural football team as a quarterback two years in a row.

Skowyra's hometown is Palmer, where he lettered in baseball, hockey and football. A good student, Bill is a government major and a brother of Theta

ED POLCHLOPEK

Chi. During his freshman year, he also played baseball here.

The lot of a UMass hockey player has certainly not been the best. For several years now, the Redmen have been practicing and playing games at Amherst College, last year the first time under a roof. Before playing at Amherst, the hockey team had to drive around in cars with the goalie nets on top looking for a clear patch of ice to practice on.



Today the picture is somewhat better. The players now have transportation into Amherst to practice. Before last year they had to thumb. Their supper still consists of sandwiches because they have to practice from 6-7:45 each night.

A few years ago it was a crowded night when 10 UM fans showed up for a game. Now that the team has a chance of a winning season, the average attendance hovers around 200. Out of 14,000 students, considerably more support might be expected.

A hockey rink has been in the planning stages at UM for over six years, but other buildings have been given priority by the UMass budget-makers and the athletic department.

This year's team was also hurt by the loss of soph Fred Mulcahey, who was injured and John Hartnett, who left school. But the big blows were the injuries of Skowyra and Polchlopek.

Their college hockey days are over, and with them perhaps went UMass' chances for a winning season. The slim UMass hockey faithful hopes that help is on the way.

Despite fiendish torture dynamic BIC Duo writes first time, every time!

BIC's rugged pair of stick pens wins again in unending war against ball-point skip, clog and smear. Despite horrible punishment by mad scientists, BIC still writes first time, every time. And no wonder. BIC's "Dyamite" Ball is the hardest metal made, encased in a solid brass nose cone. Will not skip, clog or smear no matter what devilish abuse is devised for them by sadistic students. Get the dynamic BIC Duo at your campus store now.

BIC

WATERMAN-BIC PEN CORP. MILFORD, CONN.

MASS. CLASSIFIED

HELP WANTED

Male part time help needed. Call 256-6759 or stop in at Rapp's Delicatessen, 79 S. Pleasant St., Amherst.

Girls: If you wouldn't mind a little cash in your pocket and a cute little one year old girl in your room while her 20 year old sophomore mother goes to an 11:15 class on Mon., Wed. and Fri. only, call Donna after 6:00 p.m. at 1-532-9585.

FOR SALE

Flower in Botany—ACTUAL PAST EXAMS IN BOTANY 101. Now in the University Store.

Lost Wed. morning ski boots and gloves, vicinity of ROTC parking lot and Boyden. Call 549-1237.

FOR SALE

Honda sport 65—1966 excellent condition; black & chrome; 1800 miles. Call 546-9027 after 12:00 p.m. Price: $190.

AUTOMOBILES

AUSTIN HEALEY SPRITE—MARK III —1965 Good cond. Snow tires, tonneau, luggage rack, other extras. 25,000 mi. $1250. Call: 253-9835.

'57 Jaguar Roadster XK 140, convertible top. Best offer over $500. Call 584-1065 after 5 p.m.

1965 SAAB sedan, excellent condition, low mileage. Averages 33 miles per gallon. $1100. Call 5-2688, Extension 101A.

- Notices -

NEWMAN CLUB
Sunday at 3:00 P.M. in Social Hall "The Paulist Folk Singers" will sing. Admission is free.
Friday, at 7:30 P.M. in the Social Hall, "Bridge to the Sun" will be shown.
Friday, at 7:00 P.M. Station of the Cross will be held in the chapel.
Monday, at 7:00 P.M. in Classroom #2 Father Cahill will conduct "Questions on Campus Theology".
Monday, at 8:15 P.M. Inquiry class will meet.
Tuesday, at 7:00 P.M. the choir will practice in the chapel.
Rosary every night except Friday, at 6:30 P.M.
Father Bennett's "Philosophy of Freedom" meets at 7:30 P.M. Wednesdays.

MUSIGALS TRY OUTS
Tryouts will be on Feb. 21-22 from 6:00-8:00 P.M. in Student Union for soprano I & II.

HILLEL
On Feb. 28, at 7:00 P.M. there will be a lecture on "Conservative Judaism" given by Rabbi Arthur Langenauer in Middlesex Room.

DAVID GRAYSON CONCERTS
On Sun., Feb. 26 at 4:00 P.M. in David Grayson Lounge there will be a performance by Hartt School of Music.

SKI CLUB
There will be a meeting at 7:00 on March 6 in Morrill Aud. All members please attend. Giant Slalom Ski race for members only will be planned—9 trophies. Free Warren Miller movies.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST
On Tues., Feb. 28 at 6:15 P.M. the weekly Bible study will be held in T-5 on the 12th floor.

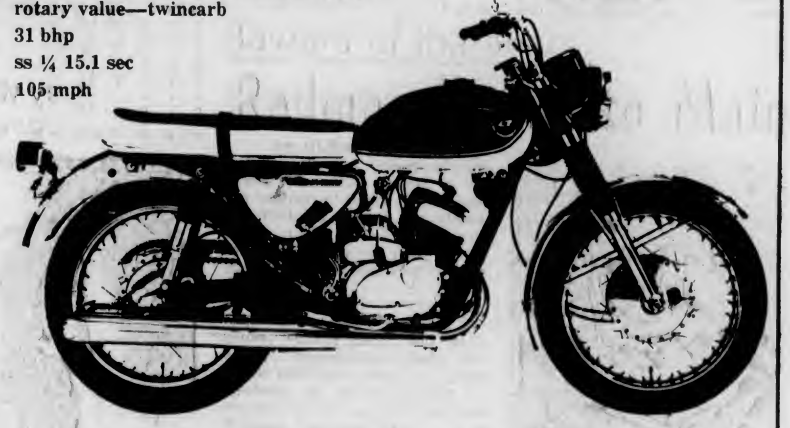
SCIENCE FICTION CLUB
On Tues., Feb. 28, at 6:30 P.M. there will be a general meeting in the Hampshire Room, SU.

SOPH EXEC COUNCIL
On March 2, at 8:00 P.M. in Melville Lounge there will be a meeting of the sophomore executive council. All are invited; refreshments will be served.

STUDENT SENATE PUBLIC RELATIONS
Will the presidents of all RSO organizations (excluding dormitories, sororities and fraternities), please leave their names and addresses in th Public Relations Committee message box in the Senate office. This information is essential for a current PR project.

ALL CHRISTIAN WORSHIP
Every Sunday morning at 10:30 in Mahar Auditorium there is a worship, sponsored by the Campus Worship Committee. Theme for Feb. 26 is "Christ the Revolutionary". Coffee hour following service.

LOST:
Class Ring P.C.M.—A.P.O. engraved on stone. Lost in Morrill before vacation. Reward — contact Pete, 223 Webster 6-7085. Sentimental value. I paid for it and its insured.
Will the person who accidentally took a pair of black and silver Northland ski poles from the 11:00 P.M. bus on Sun., Feb. 12 please return them to Lois Bredberg, 607 Dickinson, or call 546-6672.
Black gloves with leather palms. Lost near or in Goessmann. Please call 6-7705.
Round service cross, probaby lost at Grayson House on Friday, Jan. 6. Reward. Please contact Linda MacCuteleon, 207 Crabtree.



FOUND:
Bulova men's silver wrist watch found in Case on Saturday, Feb. 18, initials G.J.C. class of 1964. Come 7 A.M.-5 P.M. Mon-Fri. University Police Station
Skirt in North Quad. Call Cheryl or Joanne, 112 Johnson.
One pair brown gloves in Mahar Men's Room. Call 546-8802.

PINNINGS:
Cindy Rosenfield, class of '69 Mary Lyon to Ed Solomon, class of '68, Thatcher.
Lorraine A. Files, class of '69, T-2 to James W. Sears, class of '67, Granby, Mass.
Jane F. Clarke, class of '70, Eugene Field, to Barry A. Knight, class of '69, Beta Kappa Phi.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Linda G. Sherman, class of '68, IGU, to Leo P. Delaney, class of '67, Sig Ep.
Kathryn L. Aucion, class of '68, IGU to Michael R. Shaughnessy, class of '68, QTV.

KAWASAKI 250 "Samurai"

MODEL A1 (SUPERLUBE)
rotary value—twincarb
31 bhp
ss ¼ 15.1 sec
105 mph

Models from 85 cc to 650 cc
SERVICE AND REPAIRS ON ALL MAKES
Parts — Accessories — Winter storage
Phone 253-3285
HOURS: MON.-FRI. NOON-8 P.M.
SATURDAY 9 A.M.-2 P.M.
Shop, inc
51 S. Prospect st. (Behind AD)

Rutherford's Late Hoop Beats Freshmen, 57-56

A diving lay-up at the buzzer by AIC's Bob Rutherford sent the UMass freshmen down to a 57-56 defeat Wednesday night at the Cage. The one-point loss, the third this season for the Little Redmen, gave UMass a final record of 7-8.

The visiting Yellow Jackets rallied late in the second half for the victory. A good effort by Dick Samuelson gave UMass a 56-55 lead with nine seconds showing on the clock. AIC called time out with three seconds left and after the break Rutherford faked right and drove down the left side of the lane, banking a scoop shot in off the boards at the horn.

Behind the strong work of Jack Gallagher, Samuelson and Kevin Bosjolie, UMass controlled the game in the early going. Ray Ellerbrook's 30-footer at the intermission buzzer gave the frosh a 31-23 advantage.

Gallagher's jump shot put the Redmen on top 43-33 with 10 minutes remaining.

Then the roof fell in as the erstwhile dormant Yellow Jackets stung the frosh with an eight point streak.

Ellerbrook, Gallagher and Bob Perry came through with some clutch baskets, but there was no stopping the Aces.

Alan Bush, a 5'7 guard, and Rutherford started hitting from the outside. A foul shot by Bush gave AIC its first lead of the game, 55-54. Samuelson's hoop set the stage for Rutherford's last second heroics.

COLLEGIAN Photos by Bob Soffer

OLD RELIABLES—Soph diver Dave Larson (left) and senior butterfly specialist Steve Levy have been consistently important cogs in the UMass varsity swimming team's scoring power all season.

SWIMMING . . .

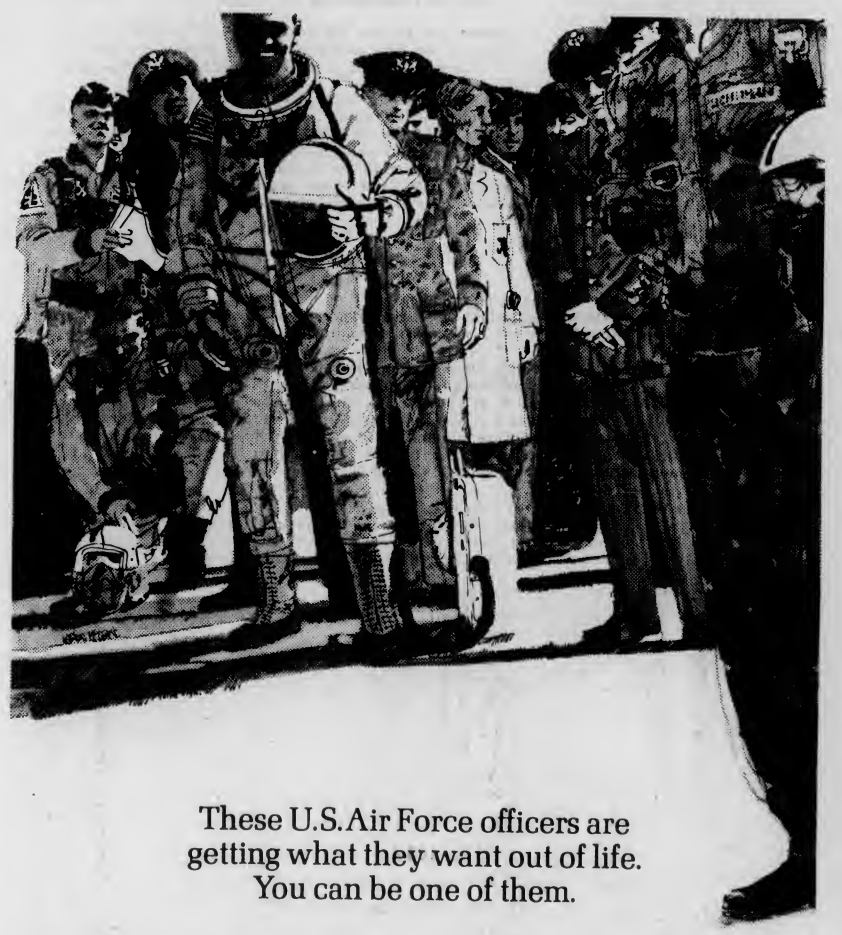
(Continued from page 12)

and Asquith responded to the cheers. In a thrilling finish to an exciting home schedule, the old standard of 2:30.9 was eclipsed by 1.8 seconds.

If You See News in the Making Dial

545-2550

Last Night's IM Volleyball



FRATERNITIES
PSD over ATG (15-10, 15-3)
AEP over LOA (15-8, 15-12)
SAM over SPE (15-9, 15-9)
APO over QTV (Forfeit)
BKP over ZN (Forfeit)
TC over TEP (16-18, 15-4, 15-9)
DORMS
Hemlocks over Spartans (15-6, 4-15, 15-4)
Redwoods over Academics (15-13, 15-13)
Apples over Seagrams (15-7, 15-9)
Original Flaming A's over Smashers (15-10, 15-7)
Lemons over Flaming A's (19-21, 15-12, 15-9)
Chestnuts over Phallics (15-0, 15-3)
Trojans over Hoovers (15-13, 15-3)
Patriots over Colts (15-16, 15-11)
Comanchees over Cougars (Forfeit)

Frosh Box Score

AIC FROSH	B	F	Pts	UMASS FROSH	B	F	Pts
Cronin	2	1	5	Gallagher	4	2	10
Rutherford	5	4	14	Bolsjolie	1	0	2
Bednash	1	2	4	Samuelson	4	1	9
Jackson	2	5	9	Starsiak	2	2	6
Bush	5	1	11	Ellerbrook	8	5	21
Mitchell	3	6	12	Shea	1	0	2
Cook	1	0	2	Healy	0	0	0
				Perry	2	2	6
Totals	19	19	57	Totals	21	12	56

Score at halftime: UM Frosh 31, AIC Frosh 23.

Enjoy Gracious Dining Winter Carnival Weekend at the Hadleigh House, Inc.
489 Granby Road - Rte. 202
South Hadley Falls, Mass.
Jefferson 6-3100
LUNCHEONS FROM 12:00; DINNER SERVED TILL 9:00;
RESERVATIONS ADVISABLE
BANQUET AND PARTY ROOMS AVAILABLE

These U.S. Air Force officers are getting what they want out of life. You can be one of them.

What are they doing? They are performing a job of importance. Hour after hour. Year after year. Many of them will serve for 20 or more years. The fruitful part of a man's life.

Will yours be fruitful and creative?

Or just spent?

You're going to college to do something constructive, important. And you can be sure of it, in the U. S. Air Force.

Start now in the Air Force ROTC program on your campus. Your Professor of Aerospace Studies will explain the variety of career opportunities. Pilot. Navigator. Engineering. Science. Administration.

If you get in on it, you get paid to be part of the most exciting technological breakthroughs of all time. You'll become a leader, an officer in one of America's most vital organizations...the U. S. Air Force.

You can be part of the Aerospace Age when things are most exciting...at the beginning. While you serve your country, the whole universe will open up to you.

There's a 2-year Air Force ROTC program, and the 4-year program has new attractive scholarship provisions.

Lots of men waste their working years. But you don't have to be one of them.

UNITED STATES AIR FORCE
Box A, Dept. RCP-72
Randolph Air Force Base, Texas 78148

NAME _____
(please print)
COLLEGE _____ CLASS _____
ADDRESS _____
CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____

Salem Cross Inn

For an adventure into Early Americana . . .
Food
or Drink
in the delightful 1705 farmhouse
–Salem Cross Inn–
Dancing
Friday Night
—
Free
Old-Fashioned
Sleigh or Hay Ride
for our guests on Sundays
—
Facilities for banquets, wedding receptions and family gatherings.

Just 30 minutes
East of Amherst
on Route 9

West Brookfield, Mass.
For reservations call:
(617) 867-2345

Did you order your weekend flowers? Hurry!

Call 253-3805

KNOWLES FLOWER SHOP

172 No. Pleasant Street

Red, Orange Equal on Paper

Gymnasts Seek Second League Win Tonight, Host Syracuse at Boyden

By TIM MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The colors are orange and red and, as the two are nearly equal on the spectrum of colors, so are they nearly equal in gymnastic acumen.

That equality will be put to the test tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Boyden Auxiliary when the UMass gymnastics team entertains Syracuse University in an E.I.G.L. tiff.

Both contingents, according to UMass Coach Erik Kjeldsen, have been averaging in the low 160's. In their last outing last week at Navy, UMass netted 163 points, while the New Yorkers chalked up 165 points in their last meet.

On paper, Kjeldsen says, "the match should be one of the closest of the year. But scrawls on paper don't mean much, so we'll have to wait until Friday to tell."

Kjeldsen hopes to stay even with the Orangemen on the floor exercise and trampoline, "hit them hard on the side horse, vault and high bar, events on which they have no depth," and hang on through the rings for the victory. A win for UMass would be the first in a month. The last win came at the expense of Pittsburgh.

The freshmen are inactive tonight but journey to Long Island University tomorrow to meet CCNY and Long Island in their only triple meet of the season.

ON THE FLOOR—UMass' leader in the floor exercise, Dick Dauphinais, goes through part of the routine he'll present tonight against Syracuse at Boyden.

Mrs. Kitty Kjeldsen's women's team will entertain Springfield College and Westchester State College, tomorrow at 1 in Boyden Auxiliary Gym. "This is our biggest of the schedule so far," notes Mrs. Kjelds n, "and is causing quite a commotion in high school circles." The three teams compete almost exclusively for Massachusetts' high school talent.

Springfield's women are not as strong as they have been in recent years and boast no Olympic talent as they have in the past.

Riflemen Hit Target at UNH

The undermanned UMass rifle team journeyed to Durham, New Hampshire, Saturday to extend its winning streak to two consecutive shoulder - to - shoulder matches. The Redmen outshot the Wildcats, 1191-1173.

During the match, Captain John Bergs set an individual seasonal scoring high of 260 for the three position series.

After a shaky start at the beginning of the season, the team now holds an overall 4-2 record. Coach Mike Goodge has great hopes for the team in the coming matches against Vermont, Brown, Dartmouth, and at the Yankee Conference Meet in March.

UMASS		UNH
Bergs	260	Smith	247
Gallagher	244	Herman	240
Gallerani	242	Aver	234
Chen	225	Valentine	231
Walter	220	Desautils	221
	1191		1178

Sports Week in Review

The Pro Shop

by Steve Ross

BASKETBALL

The NBA has come into the final stages of its regular season, an 81-game prep for the second season, the playoffs, the season that counts. In the Eastern Division, Philadelphia's 76'ers are en route to their second consecutive regular season title.

The Celtics, seven games out in the important loss column, appear to be headed for another second-place finish. This year both the first- and second-place teams play semi-final rounds in the playoffs. Thus, New York and Cincinnati are jockeying for position to be thrown to the lions. Neither team has beaten the Celtics, and each has beaten Philly but once. Baltimore is hopelessly out of it.

Fierce competition for the fourth playoff spot highlights the Western Division. Chicago, the expansion club, still has a chance of catching fourth-place Detroit. The Bulls are only two games behind the Pistons. Bill Sharman's San Francisco Warriors are comfortably ahead, with St. Louis and Los Angeles trailing in that order.

Boston College mentor Bob Cousy disclosed that he was approached by the newly formed American Basketball Association. Cousy turned down at least four offers to coach and will stay with the tournament bound Eagles on a year to year basis.

HOCKEY

Fourth place, the final playoff spot, is the only position undecided in the NHL. Detroit trails Montreal and Toronto by four points, but the Wings have played four more games than the Canadians and three more than the Leafs. Chicago is comfortably ahead of second-place New York, and Boston, barring miracles, will finish out of the playoffs for the eighth straight year.

Next year's expansion schedule was disclosed. The six charter teams will play each other 10 times, while playing each of the six new teams four times. This will add four games to the schedule and have each team playing 74 contests.

FOOTBALL

The NFL made two small rule changes and a suggestion. It also announced its championship schedule for next season. Punt returners will no longer be able to signal for a fair catch to let the ball sail over their heads and block out relaxed opponents. If they do they will be tagged with a 15 yd. penaty.

The league also decided to try the new one upright "slingshot" goal post. This upright, with a center post, is recessed six feet behind the goal line in order to open up goal line offences. Field-goal kickers will have an improved target in the center upright and will be kicking at the 20-ft. uprights adopted this year. It was suggested that six-foot sidelines, used in the championship game and the Superbowl, be used wherever possible.

The two Western subdivisional winners will play on Saturday, December 23, in the home of the Central Division winner (Green Bay, Chicago, Minnesota, or Detroit). The two Eastern survivors will meet in the home park of the Capital Division winner (Dallas, Washington, Philadelphia, or New Orleans) on Sunday, December 24.

Those two winners will meet on the Western Division winner's gridiron December 31. In one other minor shift, Atlanta moves from the East to West while New Orleans will enter as an Eastern team.

....?

BASEBALL

That annual winter clambake jokingly called "Spring Training" got under way this week. Soon all teams will be trying to get in shape for the season that fills in between the last Stanley Cup game and the first All-Star Football game (sometimes referred to as the Endless Summer).

Contractual disagreements will delay some players from reporting immediately, but all will have their pacts inked in time for the opening of the season.

Frosh Matmen Pinned by Conn.

The UConn freshmen started quickly and ran away from the UMass freshmen wrestlers for a 27-5 victory Tuesday afternoon in the Boyden gym in the prelim to the varsity meet.

Billy Goodwin of UMass, wrestling in the 123 lb. class looked good, but dropped a close 7-5 decision to UConn's Rich Puka. Brian Urquhart salvaged a draw for the little Redmen in the 137 lb. class and it was not until the last match when Bruce Fulton emerged victorious, did the freshmen again score.

A big surprise was Bruce Fulton. Wrestling in the unlimited class, he impressed everyone with an 8-4 decision. Bruce had wrestled for about one week, yet showed a good deal of know-how. His biggest assets are his strength and his aggressiveness.

The UMass freshmen have a better than average team as their 3-1 record attests, but the UConn frosh were great. Men like Bruce Meller, Stu Levine, Dave Kievit, and Bob Shone will make the Redmen varsity a tough outfit in a year or two.

SKI MORE!
PAY LESS DRIVE LESS

- Group Rates Weekends
- Low Lift Rates Weekdays
- New Beginners To Advance Novice Area
- Intermediate To Expert Area
- Each Serviced by Chairs, T-Bars and J-Bar
- 24 Trails and Slopes
- Natur Teknik Ski School
- Snow Making

Latest Ski Reports 413-339-4986
Room Reservations 413-339-6610
Where the Action Is!
Thunder Mountain
Charlemont, Mass.
Route 2, Mohawk Trail

After Cosby —
THE McCOY'S
and
The Last Rites
"Discoteque '69"
5 Go-Go Girls
7 Movie Projectors
7 Slide Projectors
MANY, MANY LIGHTS
TICKETS AT THE DOOR
ONLY ONE DOLLAR

TOBOGGAN RUN-RACE
February 25th
In front of MORRILL
CLASS OF 1970
Comes through for tradition
Subject to temperature change

Husband-Wife Coaching Team: 5 Years of UM Gymnastics

by TIM MURPHY

What Newark, N. J., and Tartu, Estonia, have in common has reaped a harvest of enthusiastic and consummate instruction for the University of Massachusetts department of physical education.

From the large eastern seaboard city and the tiny Baltic town have merged a phenomenon which is perhaps unique in the ranks of collegiate coaches in the United States: a husband and wife team, Erik and Kitty Kjeldsen.

Mr. and Mrs. Kjeldsen first appeared at UMass five years ago and since that time have built a highly respected gymnastics program. The University administration has taken a direct hand in promoting the program, installing facilities recognized among the best in the East.

"We first met in a gym," recalls the blond, crew-cut Kjeldsen, who still cuts a figure which belies his 35 or so years. "Mrs. Kjeldsen and I were both attending Springfield College at the time, and until then the only experience she had with gymnastics was a background in dance."

At the time they were attending Springfield College, Mrs. Kjeldsen says, gymnastics was conducted on an exhibition basis. Competition was not begun until the mid-fifties and, as a result, Kjeldsen was able to compete in only 10 collegiate meets and his wife in three.

After college, Kjeldsen served in the armed services in Germany for three years. There he was able to continue studying gymnastics and competing in the European tradition that he had begun several years earlier. "Between my senior year in high school and college," says Kjeldsen, "my family visited Denmark for a year. There I was able to attend a physical education school, which greatly promoted my interest in gymnastics."

The European experiences of both Kjeldsens have led to the realization on their part that the type of physical education received during childhood contributes immeasurably to gymnastic excellence at the collegiate and post-collegiate levels.

Says Kjeldsen, "Particularly in Germany, where the sport of gymnastics was first developed, and generally throughout Europe, children are initiated at an early age. Parents have three and four-year-olds doing forward rolls down inclined planes to facilitate the roll and promote confidence in the child. This type of training is almost totally lacking in the U.S. and international competition points this up."

Reiterating her husband's observations, Mrs. Kjeldsen, a smiling, sandy-haired woman, who during WWII fled the Eastonian city in which she was born, noted that "in America gymnastics is started at a high level of execution."

"Not enough emphasis is given to the relatively more simple moves which, when well founded, can be expanded into a fine routine." She says, "Fifteen years of experience cannot be bunched into a high school and college career and be expected to yield the same degree of skill. It is simply not possible."

Mrs. Kjeldsen, though a relative late-comer to gymnastics by her admission, has progressed far. She was one of five women coaches in the United States to be considered for accompanying the U.S. women's gymnastics team to Europe a year ago. "A girl from Southern Illinois was selected to go, but in the end the A.A.U. could not afford to send her," she said, shrugging her shoulders.

The Kjeldsens have two children, both of whom usually attend UMass home meets. Rickey is nine and Dee Dee, who was adopted last year, is two. Dee Dee, blond and pudgy and naturally capricious, has been known to charge down the approach run to the long horse vault during a meet only to stop short of the appartus due to the intervention of her smiling, though somewhat red-faced father.

Commenting on the difference between the form and execution of routines by male and female competitors and the application of specific apparati for men and women, Mrs. Kjeldsen notes: "Gymnastics is one of the few sports in which women do not perform a modified male routine of exhibition. Men use seven pieces of equipment, while women use four. Women do not perform on the rings, the side horse with pummels, the parallels, the high bar or the trampoline."

"Instead," she continues, "they use uneven parallels, the ballance beam, the small horse vault, and incorporate the floor exercise while adding music."

She says that, according to Mrs. Alena Tinterova, coach of the Czechoslovakian women's national team who conducted a three day clinic here last Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, music will be added to the balance beam event within a few years. Mrs. Tinterova's appearance here, one of only five she will make in the United States, attracted an average of 250 persons each day. Mrs. Kjeldsen says coaches and judges came from as far as Maryland, Pennsylvania and northern Maine to the clinic.

AND ITS THE STRETCH—Dick DelGallo, who figures imminently in UMass gymnastics ring competition, will be in action Friday night at Boyden Auxiliary Gym against Syracuse.

Scholarships and recruiting are a major point of concern to any college coach, and Kjeldsen is no exception.

"Scholarships here are mostly partial. The first full tuition scholarship was awarded this year to an incoming freshman. But he was an exception as he scored far above 700 on both of his college boards and is an outstanding student as well."

Kjeldsen goes on to say that the base of any good collegiate program is its underpinnings. "The support UMass gives to high schools throughout the state and New England aids immeasurably in attracting top local talent." National recruiting is not, as yet, an objective, according to Kjeldsen.

"We'll see what the future dictates in that direction. Right now our basic concern is to attract top local men and women to U-Mass. Our area here in New England, especially in Massachusetts, is one of the top five pockets of gymnastic talent in the country and, as I say, we'll concentrate on this area for the time being."

The Kjeldsens know their subject well and through their vibrancy and enthusiasm they have put UMass on the gymnastic map, somewhere between Estonia and New Jersey.

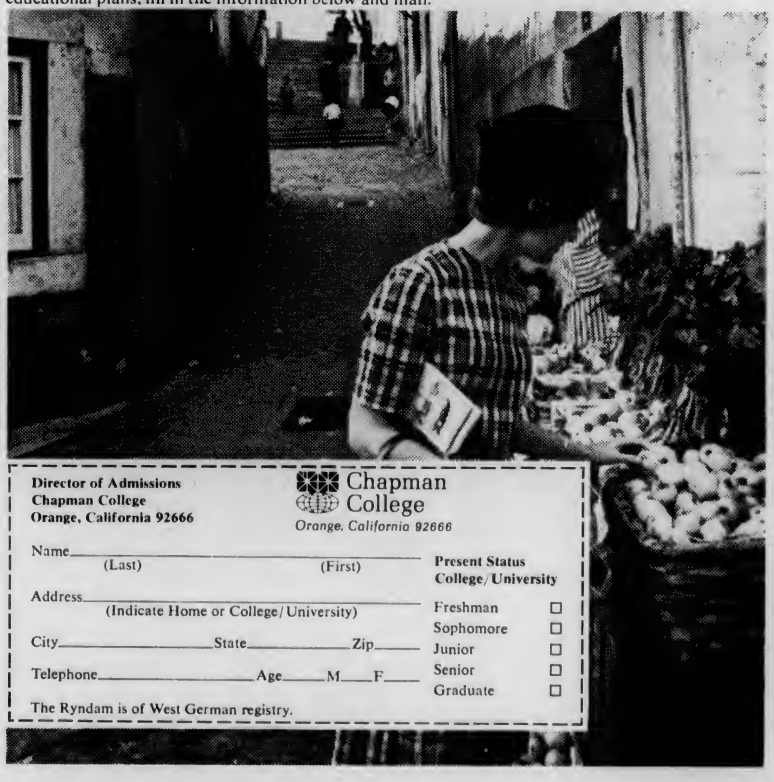
If You See News in the Making Dial
545-2550

The Newport-Balboa BEACH FILM
a different type of
CALIFORNIA BEACH ACTION
Admission Free
SBA 120 7:17 P.M.
Fri., March 3
SPONSORED BY CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST

AMHERST Cinema
LATE SHOW Tonight 11:30 p.m.
"THE KNACK ...and how to get it"

STARRING RITA TUSHINGHAM
A WOODFALL FILM
A UNITED ARTISTS-LOPERT RELEASE
THIS PICTURE IS RECOMMENDED FOR ADULTS ONLY
NOT PART OF REGULAR PROGAM—ALL SEATS $1.25

Examining produce in an open-air marketplace in Lisbon is one way to broaden one's knowledge of the ways of the Portuguese people. These girls found exploring the markets of cities around the world a relaxing change from studies undertaken last year during a semester at sea on Chapman College's floating campus.



Alzada Knickerbocker of Knoxville, Tennessee,—in the plaid dress—returned from the study-travel semester to complete her senior year in English at Radcliffe College.

Jan Knippers of Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, a graduate of the University of Tennessee, and a former Peace Corps Volunteer, first pursued graduate studies in International Relations and returned a second semester as a teaching assistant in Spanish on the world-circling campus.

The fall semester voyage of discovery, aboard the s.s. RYNDAM, for which Holland-America Line acts as General Passenger Agents, is carrying 450 other students to ports around the world as you read this.

Still another 450 will leave from Los Angeles in February for the spring 1967 semester set to transit Panama Canal and call at ports in Venezuela, Brazil, Argentina, Nigeria, Senegal, Morocco, Spain, Portugal, The Netherlands, Denmark and Great Britain, returning to New York.

For a catalog describing how you can include the spring semester aboard the RYNDAM in your educational plans, fill in the information below and mail.

Director of Admissions
Chapman College
Orange, California 92666

Chapman College
Orange, California 92666

Name_____ (Last) (First)
Address_____ (Indicate Home or College/University)
City_____ State_____ Zip_____
Telephone_____ Age____ M____ F____

Present Status College/University
Freshman ☐
Sophomore ☐
Junior ☐
Senior ☐
Graduate ☐

The Ryndam is of West German registry.

Fast-breaking AIC Stuns Defenseless UMass, 81-76

by DAVE JARNES, Staff Reporter

For all intents and purposes, the UMass basketball season ended with last Saturday's loss to UConn. At least, that's the way it seemed to those who saw the Redmen snatch an 81-76 defeat from the jaws of victory against American International College Wednesday night at the Cage.

AIC has been beaten by St. Michael's and Amherst College this year but now owns a 17-4 record.

UMass has beaten Rhode Island and DePaul but now owns a 9-13 record.

Wednesday night the Redmen employed a defense created by Oklahoma City Coach Abe Lemmons. He calls it "The Sieve."

The Redmen went through the motions in the first half and trailed, 45-29, at the break. UMass tried in vain to regain its lost pride in the second half.

AIC took an 11-5 lead after the first four minutes, but a UMass press got three quick hoops to tie the score at 11-11. This was the closes the Redmen ever got in the game.

During the rest of the half, big Moose Stronczek and skinny Henry Payne took over. Stronczek completely dominated Tim Edwards with 14 points and 10 rebounds. Payne, meanwhile, dazzled the crowd with his pin-point passes to Stronczek, Sal Sillari and Jim Miele for easy baskets.

Part of Payne's success was due to his own great skill, but UMass defenders were generally playing as if they were still watching the UConn films. More often than not, little Henry was able to find his man wide open under the hoop. AIC's lead ballooned up to 45-27 before an Edwards hoop made it 45-29 at the half.

The Aces shot an excellent 51 percent from the floor in the first half compared to U-Mass' paltry 37.5 percent. The Redmen were also guilty of 13 turnovers.

Massachusetts, led by Bill Tindall and Edwards, opened the second half with a surge that nearly wiped out the big AIC lead. The Aces suddenly went cold, the lead was down to just 53-52 with 11:30 left and it looked like UMass would pull it out.

But just as in the Connecticut game, the Redmen didn't have it when it counted. Jim Miele's three-point play started a seven-point spree that took the Springeld boys out of danger. The closest UMass got after that was four points.

The hustling Miele continued to score with regularity as he took Joe DiSarcina into the pivot for some easy baskets. When the Redmen desperately tried a half-court zone press in the game's waning moments, Payne found Larry Freed for 10 of his 16 points.

The final score of 81-76 is not truly indicative of AIC's superiority. But for the tournament bound Aces it was a prestigous win. Their vocal fans chanted, "We're number one!" and "It's all over!" near the end of the contest.

Miele was high man for the Aces with 22 points while Stronczek followed with 20. Edwards woke up in the second half to score 25 points, but he let the Moose do too much damage in the first half. Tindall scored 13 of his 17 points in the final half while Bob Murphy got all of his 10 points after intermission.

If AIC lost to lowly Amherst College, where does that put the Redmen? Maybe they should join the Hampshire League. Undoubtedly they could beat cross-town rival Amherst High, but the league-leading Falcons of Smith Academy would probably have too much class for our heroes. Who could Possibly guard Chet Skorupski and Bob Pelis?

They say there's a silver lining to every cloud and the Redmen can take solace in the fact that the season has just three more games to go before it comes to a merciful end.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

BILL THE HILL—UMass' Bill Tindall leaps high to garner rebound in second quarter action Wednesday against AIC at the Cage.

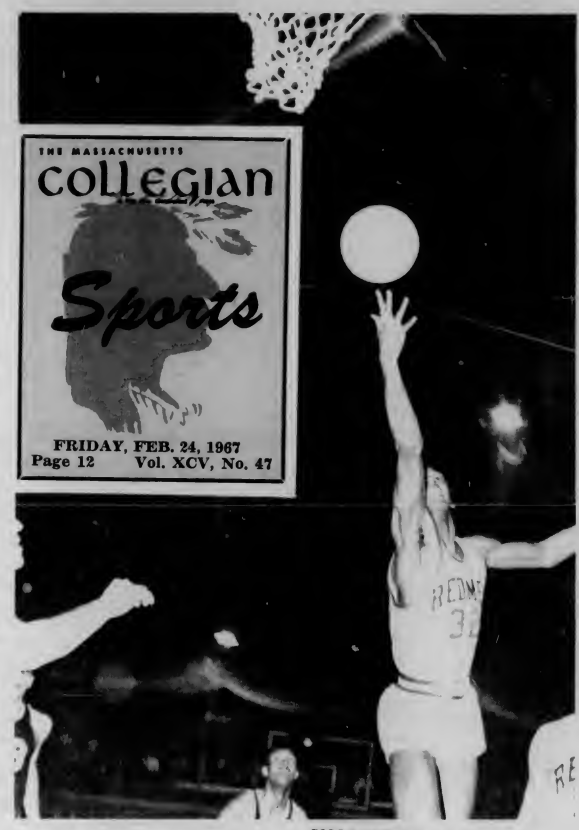
MASSACHUSETTS	Fg	Fga	Ft	Fta	Tp	R	Fls	As
Nowakowski	4-9		1-1		9	9	3	2
Tindall	7-15		3-4	17	13	4	4	2
Edwards	10-16		5-8	25	14	4	2
Murphy	4-7		2-2	10	3	1	0
DiSarcina	3-7		1-2	7	2	5	8
Lisack	2-7		2-2	6	1	0	1
Stewart	1-6		0-0	2	2	2	1
Gasperack	0-0		0-0	0	1	1	1
Girotti	0-0		0-0	0	0	0	0
TEAM					6
TOTALS	31-67		14-19	76	51	19	17

AIC	Fg	Fga	Ft	Fta	Tp	R	Fls	As
Freed	7-13		2-3	16	4	1	0
Sillari	4-9		1-4	9	0	1	0
Stronczek	8-16		4-7	20	14	3	0
Payne	3-9		4-5	10	2	2	13
Miele	10-17		2-4	22	3	3	3
Oppedisano	2-4		0-1	4	2	2	2
Guenn	0-0		0-0	0	0	2	0
Hansley	0-0		0-0	0	0	0	0
TEAM					10
TOTALS	34-68		13-24	81	35	14	18

Redmen on the Warpath

BASKETBALL—vs. Maine (Away), Saturday, 7:35 p.m.

HOCKEY—vs. Norwich at Orr Rink, Tonight, 7 p.m.



HOCKEY—vs. Bowdoin at Orr Rink, Saturday, 2 p.m.

GYMNASTICS—vs. Syracuse at Boyden Auxiliary Gym, Tonight, 7:30 p.m.

GYMNASTICS (Frosh)—vs. C.C.N.Y. and L.I.U. (at Long Island), Saturday, 2 p.m.

TRACK—vs. New Hampshire (Away), Saturday, 1 p.m.

TRACK (Frosh)—vs. New Hampshire (Away), Saturday, 1 p.m.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

ALONE, ALONE, ALL, ALL ALONE—UMass center Bill Tindall releases ball as he drives an open lane in fourth quarter against AIC.

Mermen Belay Guardsmen, 69-26

by HARVEY ELMAN
Staff Reporter

A determined UM varsity swimming squad gained a small measure of revenge on Coast Guard with a decisive 69-26 rout of the Guardsmen Tuesday night at Boyden Pool before a capacity crowd of 600.

The final home meet for the team this season proved to be their finest hour.

By winning 10 of 11 events, the Redmen reversed last year's frustrating setback at New London. A losing season was handed the squad last season due to a protested disqualification of current Capt. Dick Lennon in the freestyle relay race due to a false start. The defeat made the log read 5-6 instead of a winning 6-5.

A fired-up 400-yd. medley relay team, consisting of Bob Asquith, Steve Levy, Ted Severn, and Flip Morton, got UM's scoring off to a fast start with a seven-point win in the opening event.

Tony Cassis followed with a triumph in the 200-yd. freestyle with Ken Nowak doing likewise in the 50-yd. freestyle. Lennon copped honors in the 200-yd. individual medley. Sensational soph diver Dave Larson twisted his way to five first-place points.

Nowak and Morton swept the 100-yd. freestyle with Dick Donoghue and Levy taking the 200-yd. butterfly event. The 200-yd. backstroke belonged to Asquith with Fred Anderson taking the third place. Cassis and Tom Beck swept the 500-yd. freestyle. Severn grabbed second spot in the 200-yd. breast-stroke.

The final home event of the season found the crowd cheering enthusiastically for a new record and the 400-yd. freestyle relay team of Nowak, Morton, Lennon,

(Continued on page 9)

Frats Overcome Dorms By 66-52

The Fraternity All-Stars clobbered the Dorm elite, 66-52, last night at the Cage to chalk up their third successive all-star victory.

The score at the half was 20-16 in favor of the Dorms when a red-hot fraternity five began popping to open the third quarter. Leading scorers for the Greeks were footballers Bob Detore and Greg Landry, each of whom netted 15.

The Dorms answered with Dick Meyer at nine, Ray Stanelis, who suffered through his worst shooting performance of the intramural season, at seven and Dan Varrault at eight.

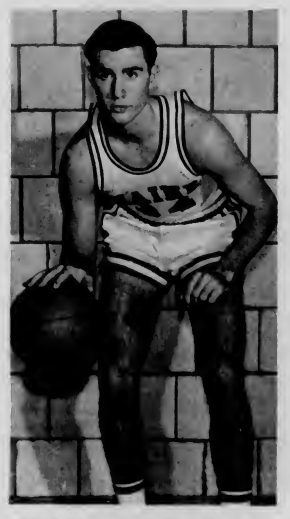
..In the runnerup contest, the Frats again handled the Dorms, this time as KS downed the Kennedy Cougars, 47-37.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

TIM FOR TWO — Redmen's Tim Edwards jumps and pumps in two over the long reach of AIC's Neil Guerin in third period. AIC won, 81-76.

Beware of the Bears

Redmen Travel to Maine Tomorrow



by GLENN BRIERE

With only the echoes of the 1966-67 basketball season to fill the confines of Curry Hicks Cage, the Redmen travel to Orono, Maine, tomorrow night to meet the Black Bears in what "might have been" a big Yankee Conference game.

But UMass was eliminated from the race by UConn last Saturday, so the game will be a rather meaningless clash between two teams that are going nowhere. By beating Maine tomorrow night, the most that the Redmen can hope for is a 12-13 (providing they shock St. John's).

In their first meeting back in December, which seems like two years instead of two months ago, UMass defeated the Bears, 87-68. But Maine trailed by only one with as little as 11 minutes to go in the game, and it took a full-court press by UMass to blow the game open.

Coach Brian McCall's leading scorer this season is 6'3 sophomore forward Jim Stephenson, who scored 20 points against the Redmen at the Cage.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

JIM STEPHENSON

Captain Terry Carr is Maine's second offensive threat. He too poured in 20 points in the first battle with UMass. A 5'10 senior, Carr does much of the Black Bears' ball-handling.

Dean Chase, a 5'9 soph, is a good outside shooter who also averages in double figures. He'll be backed up at guard by 5'9 junior Tom Farrell.

The center is 6'6 Walt Edgecomb, who does most of the work underneath by virtue of his height. However, he's not likely to win any medals for aggressiveness.

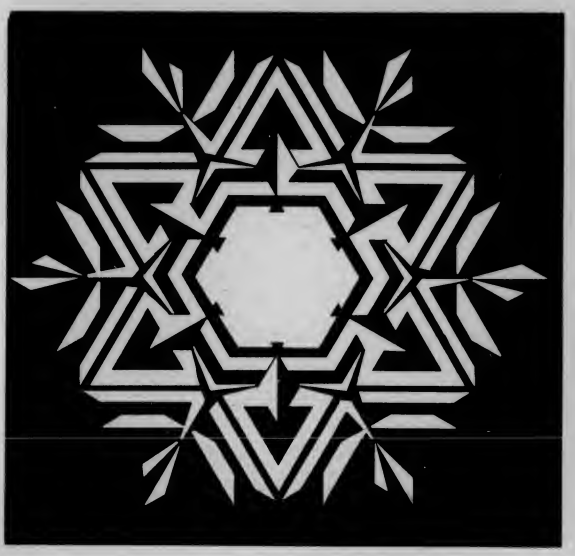
The other forward, 6'3 junior John Eisenhard, gets an occasional rebound and an occasional basket and is occasionally noticed by the fans.

After tomorrow night, the Redmen have two games remaining, both on the road. They travel to Boston on Tuesday to play hapless B.U., and wind up the season at New York on March 4 against NCAA-bound St. Johns, one of the best in the east.

This Was "A Winter Happening" 1967

COLLEGIAN Photo by Neil Kennie

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly



COLLEGIAN Photo by Joyce Harvey

COLLEGIAN Photo by Joyce Harvey

WINTER CARNI..

'67

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kornfield

Friday nights Winter Carni activities featured the L.S. Den, a nightclub in the SU Ballroom. The Den spotlighted jazz-pop singer Mamie Lee, the Ames Sisters, comedian Jerry Shane and the Les Smith Orchestra. From audience response, the Ames Sisters were the best of the evening.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Furman

During and after the Cosby Concert Saturday, the McCoys of Hang on Sloopy" fame performed at a discoteque in the Ballroom. Combining their own material with new versions of some "oldies" the McCoys performed to the background of flashing slides, cartoons, oldtime movies and two eight foot weather balloons. To add to their bag of tricks five go go dancers led the audience of about 2,000 through the gyrations.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

Saturday, with temperatures hovering close to zero, the campus pond became the scene of the slightly disorganized but ever popular Winter Olympics.

In the powder puff hockey game the dormitory girls were no match for the competition and the rats (dorm residents) beat out the Greeks in the tug-of-war. The commuter team headed by Captain Bob Godwin won the dog sled race handily and one of the dogs, John Walters of Brighton also took first place in the speed skating contest.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kornfield

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kornfield

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

The folk night at the Hatch was one of the best received events scheduled during Winter Carni. Local talent performed well to the warm appreciation of the audience.

Pictured above is Beta Kappa Phi's entry into the snow sculpture contest—"20,000 Leagues Under The Sea". With the theme of a Journey Beyond, and the addition of the fluffy white stuff to the previously muddy campus, both dorms and frats and sororities transformed the snow into the masterpieces now melting along N. Pleasant Street and elsewhere. Winners in the sculpturing contest were: fraternities—Sigma Phi Epsilon; sororities—Kappa Kappa Gamma; women's dorms—Eugene Field; men's dorms—Webster; and combined competition—Brett and Leach.

Think Sun!

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

FIRST WITH THE NEWS
545-2550

VOL. XCV, NO. 48 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1967

Campus Police

UMass Security Adequate?

UMass vs. Harvard Security Systems:

by PAT PETOW, Senate News Editor

In contrast to UMass, Harvard University employs about 15 men from its 60 man force for duty during the night said its chief. Nearly that number serves during the day, added Chief Robert Tonis.

He estimated that 25,000 students-faculty-employees and others associated with the Cambridge - centered institution and approximately 200 buildings are protected in the 327 acre area.

Four divisions have been made for the convenience of patrolling, the chief explained. These are:

(1) the main area including the College and other Harvard grounds in Cambridge (the police headquarters is here in the basement of Grays Hall in the Yard);

(2) Radcliffe College;

(3) the Business School and stadium area in Brighton across the Charles from the College; and

(4) the Med School area on Longwood Ave., Boston.

In each of the four sub-divisions, there is a station where the men have lockers and other facilities. Although the officers are assigned to one area specifically in their tour of duty, the three cruisers cover all four districts, Tonis said.

He described for the Collegian the headquarters-to-men communication system which allows two-way conversation by radio with the cars and reception of instructions by the men on foot.

The force, which has added 11 men in the past two years, grew out of the old watchman system, Tonis stated.

Full police powers on Harvard property (only) are accorded the officers by a Massachusetts statute, con-

(Continued on page 3)

Police Chief "Red" Blasko was the first police officer at UMass. Since his earlier years the police force has expanded, but has it expanded enough? After all, tagging cars is only a small part of the Campus Policeman's job.

Marchant Describes UMass Police System

by PAT PETOW, Senate News Editor

There are times when we have as many as four police officers on duty during the day, said Colonel John Marchant recently. The director of University Security described the night shift as two men on patrol for the approximate 10,000 residents with another man at the station.

Counting the chief, Alexander P. Blasko, a lieutenant, and two sergeants, there are 14 regular campus police officers, he said. In 1963, the force consisted of nine men, Marchant stated.

Marchant will include in his next budget (fiscal 1969) a request for funds to add to the force, he said. He declined to say how many men he would request.

There are, however, three other parts to University Security, its director pointed out. The night watchman service, numbering about eight men at the present although 12 positions are authorized, covers administration buildings, he explained. The pay scale, according to Marchant, is lower than that for janitors and is one reareason why all the positions are not filled.

Six residence hall fire and security guards patrol throughout the night, Marchant said. Two additional residence hall security officers are being sought by the director.

Another aspect of University security is the Auxiliary. These officers are present at Student Union, athletic, and other events, said Marchant. About three such activities are generally covered in a week, he observed.

It was pointed out by the director, that officers in the Auxiliary have the same police powers as the regular University force—which means they have "full" powers except that neither serve civil processes.

(Continued on page 3)

UMass Student Protests G. I. Loan Bill Rider

by RICHARD LANE

A RECENT RIDER BY MASSACHUSETTS LAW MAKERS ON THE G.I. LOANS FOR VETERANS AT STATE SUPPORTED SCHOOLS HAS BECOME THE FOCAL POINT FOR SHARP CRITICISM AND CALL TO ACTION BY UMASS STUDENT MANUEL GROSS.

GROSS, A NAVY VETERAN HIMSELF AND MARKETING MAJOR AT THE UNIVERSITY, HAS ATTACKED A PIECE OF MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATION WHICH EXEMPTS VIETNAM VETERANS TO ANY KIND OF TUITION AT STATE SUPPORTED INSTITUTIONS.

The University junior's complaint settles around the "definition" involved in this piece of legislation.

The bill, which went into effect on Dec. 8, 1966, calls for an exemption to any Vietnam veteran serving "from 1955 until the termination of the present Vietnam conflict."

Previous to this, the bill called for exemption to those vets who were "in Vietnam and received the Vietnam campaign ribbon."

Gross stated that he knew of one individual who had served 90 days off the shores of Vietnam and was ineligible for such exemption, as well as countless others who had been turned down, "and had their hands slapped for trying."

The reasoning behind this refusal, states Gross, is a slim argument held by the head of the State Board of Education of Massachusetts, Owen B. Kiernan. Kiernan is holding back on the bill because the new rider conflicts with the old definition, due to the fact that not all the phraseology was changed.

Furthermore, the rider has been submitted to the Attorney General's office for clarification. Gross states that this will finish the issue unless an effective cry for action is raised.

The Northampton resident stated that he believed this by Kiernan and the Massachusetts legislature to be one of merely politics, and an attempt to "pigeon-hole" the issue.

Gross cited the date of the rider itself, Dec. 8, right after recent November state elections, as proof that it was a political move to "cool off and not pay off."

It was also an attempt to "renig a piece of legislation," according to the Navy veteran.

To combat this Gross plans to take effective action in the form of explaining the situation on the campus and start a petition for all service vets at UM and any interested parties over 21 to sign.

The idea behind the latters' signatures is that of bringing voter pressure to bear on vote-conscious legislatures.

Besides generating support on

(Continued on page 2)

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kornfield

This ski mobile powered by a 2 cycle engine was a natural winner in the dog sled race during the Winter Carnival. Judges declared the entry illegal, however, when it was discovered he was using HORSE power.

Trustees Express Opposition To Possible Repeal of Autonomy

The University of Massachusetts trustees are on record as being "strongly opposed" to proposed legislation that would require all University directed federal grants to be paid directly to the state treasurer.

In a resolution passed unanimously on recommendation of Chairman Fred C. Emerson of Agawam, of the trustees' Government and University Relations Committee, the board said no other state in the nation has such a provision affecting federal programs of assistance to public higher education.

"The effect of such a bill," the board said; "in addition to complicating project proposals, would seriously weaken the ability of these institutions of higher learning to conduct research, to meet the cost-sharing principle involved in such grants, to encourage service and publication functions, and to attract federal funds to Massachusetts."

Members also maintain that, under such restrictions, "there is no possibility of building a quality med school program" and that the proposal opposed by the state Board of Higher Education, would weaken their ability to attract notable faculty, and to conduct programs of quality education at no added cost to the Commonwealth.

Friday, trustees also enacted a resolution in support of a bill introduced by Sen. Pres. Maurice A. Donahue of Holyoke, to authorize trustees to establish salaries of the officers and members of the University medical school.

Other resolutions expressed the board's opposition to legislation designed to repeal or to limit fiscal accountability and autonomy for public institutions of higher learning in the state, and trustees' support of state legislation which would enable trustees to establish an educational TV station on Channel 57, if authorized by the F.C.C.

(Reprinted from Springfield Republican)

Recently, the 370th Cadet Wing of Air Force ROTC held its Change of Command Ceremonies in Mahar Auditorium. At that time, Cadet Col. Albert P. Richards, Commander of the 370th Cadet Wing, presented his command to its present commander, Cadet Col. Richard A. Starkweather. Cadet Col. Richards is seen pinning the rank insignia of a Cadet Colonel on Mr. Starkweather.

Mungo Demands Impeachment

Administration Revamps NEWS

Boston University has taken steps to revamp its student newspaper, the News, following an editorial demanding impeachment of President Johnson.

President Harold C. Case Saturday announced formation of an 11-member special committee to draft plans for publication of two newspapers, an all-University paper and an independent student newspaper.

The University would support the first newspaper, which would be student-staffed, but designed to serve students, faculty, administration, alumni and others.

The second student-run newspaper would be on its own financially, though President Case has suggested the possibility of a one-time loan to help get it launched.

Meanwhile, Raymond Mungo, 21, editor of the News, has announced plans to spread the demand for Johnson's impeachment to other college newspapers across the country.

The News Thursday, in an editorial signed by eight editors, demanded that President Johnson be impeached for "high crime" because of the Vietnam War.

Mungo indicated Saturday that he would call a college editor's conference in Boston within the next two weeks to drum up further support for impeachment.

"We seriously believe Johnson should be impeached. We know he isn't going to be because, as we said, it's beyond the pale of American tradition. But, we have not overstated our case."

"The BU News is consistently controversial," Mungo said of the newspaper which — earlier this year—called for abolition of the University ROTC program, softening of parietal rules and sexual freedom, among other campaigns.

"We do it deliberately. It's very valuable. We want people to read the papers so they can accept or reject our ideas. We don't care if students agree with us.

"The News reflects the opinion of the people who run the paper. It's a ridiculous concept to expect it to represent opinions of all University students. The paper should be a catalyst."

Galluzzo, in his telegram to senator Kennedy and Brooke, said BU students had been "slandered by the personal campaign of the BU News editors."

"Impeachment is not generally endorsed by BU students," he said. He sought Kennedy's and Brooke's help in "restoring the integrity" of the student body.

BU now has a policy of no prior review of editorial content of the News. In effect, the University has legal-fiscal responsibility, while News' editors have full freedom on editorial content. Taylor may give only technical advice to News' staff.

The News Board had noted that the BU News, although purporting to be a university newspaper, actually was a student newspaper, edited entirely by students and directed essentially to students.

It noted that the University was hamstrung in any control, while having legal and fiscal responsibility, and recommended that there be two newspapers at BU.

President Case, immediately following publication of the impeachment editorial, wired an apology to House Speaker McCormack. Case referred to the editorial as "intemperate," and irresponsible, and said "our patience is corely tried by such unrealistic immaturity."

The editorial was part of a two-page spread, which included an endorsement and statement on impeachment by BU Government professor Howard Zinn.

Reprinted from Boston Herald

Michgian Pub Board Rejects, Recommended New Editors

ANN ARBOR, (CPS)—Staff members of the Michigan DAILY may stop publication of the paper as a result of the rejection of staff recommendations for next year's DAILY editors.

The Board in Control of Student Publications refused Tuesday (Feb. 21) to accept the DAILY senior editors' list of new editors by a vote of 7 to 4.

Rejection of the slate, according to a Michigan DAILY report, came because of the recommendation of Roger Rapoport as next year's editor-in-chief. Rapoport has created a great deal of controversy with his reporting of conflicts-of-interest involving University regents.

Professor Luke Cooperrider, chairman of the publications board, told the senior editors the group found Rapoport "unacceptable as editor."

The board has overturned a slate of DAILY editors only once in twenty-five years. Following the board's meeting, the current DAILY editors reaffirmed their support of Rapoport as "the best candidate for editor."

DAILY staffers stated, "He alone deserves the post. We will not put him in another post. We cannot and will not consider substituting another candidate."

The board is composed of faculty, administration, students and alumni and is charged with overseeing the functions of all University of Michigan student publications.

Recently the board requested the school's Advisory Committee on University Affairs to conduct an investigation into the board-Daily relationship.

Steven Schwartz, a student member of the board, supported the editors' slate as "both desirable and in the best interest of the Daily."

Another student board member, Stephen Berkowitz, stated, "I feel I must disassociate myself strongly from the action of the board. I feel that this action is not in the spirit of editorial freedom which the Daily has enjoyed in the past."

Rapoport has worked for a number of publications, including the Wall Street Journal. His articles have appeared in McCall's, The New Republic, and The Nation. A member of Sigma Delta Chi journalism honorary, he has received three awards for outstanding journalism.

General Court Will Exercise Power Of Judicial Review

The General Court of the University of Massachusetts Student Government Association, in an unusual move, will meet this week to exercise its power of judicial review.

The bill to be considered is S-100 SF-1 which provided for the appropriation of $500 to the Valley Center in Northampton, Massachusetts. It was passed on Jan. 4, 1967. The Court will hear the views of prominent Student Senators from both the majority and minority sides, as well as members of the Administration.

The constitutionality of the bill has been brought to question by a number of University students at whose written request (as provided for in the SGA By-Laws) the Court has undertaken study of it.

The Court is "divided into two bodies, Men's Judiciary and Women's Judiciary," (from the SGA By-Laws) which normally meet and function separately as the highest student judicial bodies of the University.

The hearing will begin at 8:00 p.m. on Tuesday, 28 February, in the Council Chambers of the Student Union. It is open to the University community, and students are encouraged to witness this rare exercise in student government.

G. I. Loans...

(Continued from page 1)

campus at Amherst, Gross plans to take his case before Boston newspapers, radio and TV (having already gone to Springfield for Channel 22), as well as vet's and fraternal organizations.

In addition to this spearhead group Gross himself will also send out letters.

Gross has said that he has already talked with many vets, almost all of whom agree with him.

The UM student-vet feels this present rider is a real "farce" and argument over a technicality, and no more, in definition.

He is looking for "determined, straight-forward answers," and is seeking an either "yes" or "no" to the current law.

By "yes" Gross means that the present definition does hold up and those eligible should and will receive the exemption.

By "no" he means that the definition of "Vietnam vet" is unclear and that there is no exemption, at which time Mr. Gross would work for the law's repeal.

Marketing Club Visits N.Y. In Unprecedented Trip

Recently, the UMass Marketing Club made an uprecedented field trip to New York City. The purpose of the trip was to gain insight into the actual set up of marketing-oriented firms and see how closely their business philsophies compared with actual classroom teachings.

The trip, partially subsidized by the Student Senate, took two days and was felt to be a valuable and worthwhile experience by all who went. The group visited Kenyon and Eckhardt, an advertising agency; Gimbel's Department Store; The Borden Company; and Consumer's Union, publishers of Consumer Reports magazine.

Membership in the Marketing Club is not restricted to marketing majors, but is open to the entire campus. New members are welcomed throughout the year and with new elections of officers coming this spring, the club is specifically interested in recruiting sophomores and juniors with interests in the business world.

SOPHOMORES PLAN NOW

Any sophomore men interested in the Two-Year Army ROTC program must act soon. This program, developed for sophomores, leads to a commission as a Second Lieutenant in the Army on graduation day and a two year active duty obligation that may be deferred for graduate school. To be commissioned, you must complete a six week training period this summer at Fort Knox, Kentucky and then enroll in ROTC during your junior and senior years.

If you are interested, see Major Gingras in room 105, Dickinson Hall now.

"CONSERVATIVE JUDAISM"

with

Rabbi Arthur Langenauer

Feb. 28 7:00 P.M.

Tues. Middlesex Room

AD DEADLINES

(No exceptions please!)

Please submit all copy to COLLEGIAN Office by:

5 P.M. THURS. for Mon. paper

5 P.M. FRI. for Wed. & Fri. paper

the week prior to desired insertion

INFIRMARY PATRONS

Come early to avoid the rush.

The Outpatient Clinic is open with a full staff at 8:00 A.M. Monday thru Friday. By coming in early (8-9 A.M.) you will reduce substantially the waiting time before being seen, and will find all of your needs met more promptly.

Our space is limited and will continue to be until an addition can be built. Until that time, it will be difficult for the staff to see everyone promptly during comfortable midday hours; therefore, in your own interest and in the interest of other students, please try to make your visits early in the day, whenever possible.

xanad' EAR

The Massachusetts Collegian

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week following vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price:
$4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office:
Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Telephone: 545-2550 — 549-1311

Wed., March 1, 1967 at 8:15 P.M.

"GIGI"

LESLIE CARON LOUIS JOURDAN

EVA GABOR MAURICE CHEVALIER

in color

MAHAR AUD. $.50

Doctor, I've Been Wondering...

by THE INFIRMARY DOCTORS

Q. How contagious is mononucleosis ?

A. The precise cause of mononucleosis is not known. Although the clinical appearance of the illness is similar to some viral illnesses, it is similar also to some other diseases which are thought to be due to unusual immune response. We believe that mono is not very contagious because of the failure of experimental efforts to transfer the illness to healthy subjects. The illness rarely occurs among close friends or roommates. It does not occur is epidemics in the way that highly contagious diseases do. The Health Services does not isolate patients with mononucleosis when they are in the Infirmary.

Q. What is the difference between V.D., syphilis and gonorrhea?

A. Both syphilis and gonorrhea are venereal diseases (V.D.) and both are contacted by sexual intercourse. Syphilis is the more serious disease became of the widespread damage to the body and because infection often escapes detection. It is caused by a micro-organism called Treponema pallidum. Gonorrhea, on the other hand, usually involves the urethra (the tube which empties the bladder of urine) and the adjacent sex organs. This causes pain on urination and a thick pussy discharge. Gonorrhea is caused by the bacteria Neisseria gonorrhoeae.

Both diseases are treated and cured by proper doses of penicillin. Both are highly contagious and are increasing steadily in those from 15-25 years of age. Prompt diagnosis and treatment are essential to prevent serious and irreversible damage to the body.

Q. Why isn't there an extension of the Infirmary at the Southwest dormitory complex ?

A. In order to give the most comprehensive medical care, certain facilities such as x-ray, laboratories, physiotherapy, etc., must be readily available to the physicians. Unfortunately, these cannot be duplicated easily and it is doubtful that minimal services would satisfy many patients. The distance that you might travel in your home community to see your family doctor is unlikely to be less than the trip across campus. For those students who are actually ill and unable to work or find other transportation to the Infirmary, the campus police will provide emergency transportation. If there is a question of moving an acutely ill or injured patient, the Infirmary physician can call at the dormitory, if this seems necessary. We hope all students will remember that abuse of these services for minor illness compromises our care for the patients waiting in the Infirmary.

UMass Police...

(Continued from page 1)

Included in the makeup of the Auxiliary are regular campus officers off-duty and members of local town auxiliaries.

The police force, according to chapter 5, section 32A of the Massachusetts General Laws, must be hired from among the existing University personnel. But after an officer is hired, he is not expected to keep his original job, Marchant said.

Radio communication with the police cars is maintained with police headquarters, the University operator, and Amherst police, said Marchant. The residence hall security officers also have a two-way system, he continued.

What Marchant described as a Colt "officers' special," a 38 caliber pistol is carried by the police. In addition to their arms and full police powers, each man on the force is an auxiliary officer of the Amherst police, said the director.

Although no previous experience or training is required for the job, a comprehensive selection process was described:

Each candidate must take the University's general education test, given to all non-professional employees; a police test comparable to the state examination required for a municipal position; and a physical agility test, modeled on one used in California, administered by Professor Benjamin Ricci of the physical education department.

After the tests, Marchant stated, a Personnel Evaluation Board meets to consider the results and rates the candidate on an interview.

Recent boards, according to the director, have included either the commander of state police Barracks B or his lieutenant; Chief Blasko or his representative; J. Alfred Southworth, director of guidance; Dean of Men Robert Hopkins; and Sidney Myers, University attorney as a recording secretary.

A personal history statement is also submitted by the candidate, and it, along with the recommendation of the board, is used in the final selection made by Marchant and the chief of police, said Marchant.

Discussing on the job training, Marchant said that the new officer spends the first six months working with an experienced member of the department.

Three courses are also part of the prescribed training: (1) a first aid and safety course given by Professor Lawrence E. Briggs of the physical education department; (2) a fire prevention and safety course given by Edmund Goetzl, University Fire and Safety Officer; and (3) a workshop on handling the mentally disturbed, given by Drs. Joseph Havens and Julian Janowitz of the University Health Services.

Each officer after about a year's experience is sent to take the state police six week course for local police officers. The program has a limited enrollment and is geared to men who are experienced in law enforcement.

In summing up his observations on the training, Marchant called attention to the fact that 80 percent of the force had military service including firearm training. One officer, he added, had 20 years' experience with the New York City police.

OPEN HOUSE

Pres. Lederle will have open office hours on Tues., Feb. 28 at 4:00. All students are encouraged to come and voice their opinions to the president.

UCLA Cancels DaVinci Book; Fear of Spanish Reprisal Cited

LOS ANGELES — An expert on Leonardo da Vinci said today that fear of political reprisals in Spain had undermined a plan to publish manuscripts of the 15th century Italian artist-engineer.

Dr. Elmer Belt, donor of one of the world's foremost Leonardo collections at the University of California here, said that Dr. Ladislao Reti, a university scholar, withdrew Tuesday from the publication project to relieve political pressure on his close friend, the Rev. Jose Lopez de Toro, vice director of the Madrid and National Library.

Dr. Lopez has been under heavy public criticism in Spain since the disclosure Feb. 13 that two American scholars reported they had found 700 pages of handwritten da Vinciana "lost" for two centuries in the library and had made a contractual arrangement to publish it in the United States. The scholars are Dr. Reti and Dr. Jules Piccus of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

The University of California Press at Berkeley, Dr. Belt disclosed, was to have done the publishing, a $200,000 project. Dr. Reti's withdrawal from a three-party contract with Dr. Piccus and the Spanish Government terminates the University Press's underwriting of the project.

Dr. Reti, a Brazilian industrialist and Leonardo scholar, has been working at the Belt Library of Vinciana. He was called in to verify Dr. Piccus' "discovery" of the manuscripts while doing other research at the Madrid Library.

The national library in Spain maintains that Dr. Piccus committed a "misrepresentation" by asserting that he had "discovered" the manuscripts in 1965. The library says the manuscripts were listed under the wrong catalogue number 75 years ago but that the error was corrected in the nineteen-fifties.

Dr. Belt said he doubted that the University of Massachusetts would now be able, as a practical legal matter, to hold the Spanish Government to the publication contract.

"The University of Massachusetts may be provoked at Dr. Reti for withdrawing, and may not be on speaking terms with us." Dr. Belt commented. "But if they manage to keep the publication alive, we'll be very willing to cooperate with them."

He indicated that the decision to withdraw had been entirely Dr. Reti's, and said he did not blame him in view of his long and close association with Dr. Lopez.

The University of Massachusetts intends to carry out its contract with the National Library of Spain to publish the Leonardo manuscripts, Dr. Edward C. Moore, dean of the university graduate school, said today.

"Our position is that the contract was entered into, legally and honorably, between the University of Massachusetts and the library, and no other party," Dean Moore said.

(Reprinted from N. Y. Times)

UMass vs. Harvard...

(Continued from page 1)

tinued the chief, pointing out that each man carries a Smith and Weston "38." Asked if he thought that police were more effective in their duties than a guard system, Tonis replied without hesitation, "Yes, very much more so."

"One of the biggest things," which occupies the force's attention, he pointed out, is tagging illegally-parked cars and issuing stickers and assigning spaces for students. (A committee distributes faculty parking spaces.)

On the campus, lighting is now in "good shape," according to the police head. While he observed that no system could be perfect —it was not thought desirable or necessary to flood the University with lighting—he indicated satisfaction with recent installations.

The improved lighting resulted from administration scrutiny (or from student complaints), and officers assigned to night details assisted by locating spots where more lighting would be helpful, he explained.

Off campus, the chief called relations with the city's police force 'excellent'—the Cambridge and Harvard departments come to each other's aid on request.

Tonis considered the cooperation extremely helpful for adequate protection for the urban campus, but indicated that his men did their jobs so that the local officers had no need to duplicate coverage of the area.

While there are no "hard and fast" qualifications demanded for the position of Harvard University policeman, a one-month period of on-the-job training is required of new personnel. In this time, Tonis continued, all three shifts and regular duties are included; training in firearms is also a part of the course.

Nearly half the force, 26 men, presently are taking courses at Northeastern University's University College program in law enforcement and security, on their own time, he pointed out with evident pride.

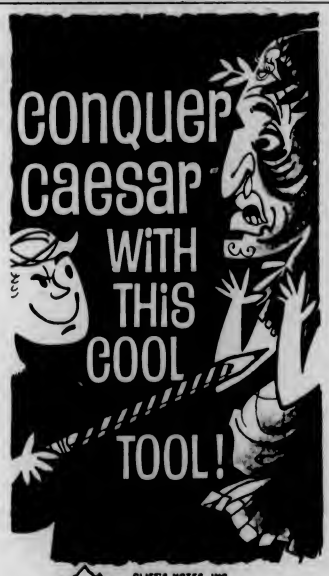
Tonis cites a good rapport with students, faculty, and employees.

(Editor's Note: Chief Tonis was not asked to comment on UMass conditions.)

Sophomore Executive Council Meeting

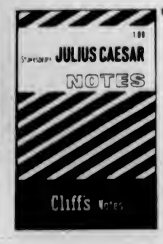
Thurs., March 2—8:00 p.m.
Melville Lounge

Everyone welcome
Refreshments will be served.



Would you believe a free movie?
The Newport-Balboa
BEACH FILM
with a challenge for you

Fri., Mar. 3
SBA 120
7:17 p.m.



Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ

Showing at Mahar 7:00 Monday, Feb. 27
MARILYN MONROE
in
"Bus Stop"
and
"The Seven Year Itch"
SOCIOLOGY CLUB

Cliff's Notes can keep you from falling behind and failing to understand classic literature. For Julius Caesar, and all of Shakespeare's plays, Cliff's Notes give you a complete explanation and summary of every scene — in language you can understand. Don't worry about your literature grades — let Cliff's Notes help you improve them. OVER 125 TITLES covering frequently assigned plays and novels.

$1 at your bookseller or write for free title list

Editorial Section — Campus Comment

Our Cool Cage

A cage according to the American College Dictionary is; 1. a boxlike receptacle or enclosure for confining birds or other animals, made with openwork of wires, bars, etc. 2. anything that confines or imprisons; prison. 3. something like a cage in structure or purpose . . .

The Curry Hicks Cage certainly fits this description. It very defintely is a boxlike receptable or enclosure which often makes the audience feel like animals, surrounded by an openwork of wires and bars, and is most definitely confining.

This is our field house where we have our concerts and basketball games. This is where performers such as Harry Belafonte, Peter Paul and Mary, and the fabulous entertainers that we have seen the last two weekends must appear.

When absolutely no atmosphere can be created, such as for a daytime performance in the Cage (Ramsey Lewis), it severely hampers the impact of a performer. When you, the audience, suffer from a lack of warmth during a concert, can you completely enjoy what you're seeing? If, in the atmosphere of the Cage, the performer can't relate to the audience and you the audience can't enjoy yourselves. Why are concerts held there?

There is no other place. No place better, and no place worse (perish the thought). There is no Field House or large auditorium in the future plans of the University. There are no plans for major renovation of the Cage. Not only is the Cage at present an insult to the performer, but also to the audience. We feel it is time that something was done.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

A 'Spring Reality'

By SALLY DOLGIN, Staff Reporter

Sunday night, 11:00. The heady, intoxicating Winter Carnival balloon has been deflated.

The last bus of imports has disappeared. Bill Cosby's sugar-plum jokes have been stashed away with memories of Benny Goodman's old-hat tunes.

As the psychedelic lights of L.S.Den become dim, a cold gust of wind drowns out the lonely whistle of a Lovin' Spoonful melody.

Toboggans have been propped back up on the rafters; crocodile tears are slowly rolling down TEP's icy snow sculpture. Zeta Nu's melting bear mug has been quaffed in one universal hangover.

A spaghetti bib and a little black button are all that is left of a memorable "Winter Happening".

Yes, the glitter of a great event has passed—but the reality is still with us. As we recall the crowded conditions of the L.S.Den, the icy temperature of Saturday night's concert, the annoying parking jams, are we going to resignedly close our minds until the next big weekend?

Did we groan as Dick Wood spent a couple long minutes congratulating the behind-the-scene workers who made Winter Carni a success? Or did some of us feel a slight twinge of inadequacy in face of their tremendous accomplishments?

Are we going to try to prolong the holiday for a couple more weeks because we don't have any interest or initiative to look into our studies, look ahead to the future, or look objectiveiy at ourselves?

Are we going to continue being a passive UMass number, stimulated by only a couple spotlit events a year—or are we going to take immediate action—by joining one or two of the university's numerous organizations, by delving into our courses and maybe even by coming up with an inspiration; by joining instead of ignoring the rest of the campus, the community, and the country? Let's turn a "Winter's Happening" into a "Spring Reality."

The Cost of Deceit

Special to the Collegian from the Collegiate Press

The National Student Association is as good as dead.

Much of what the NSA has done and many of the fine people who have come out of it have been cast into suspicion. Many past and present staff members might never be cleared unless there is a thorough clarification of the substantive relationship between the NSA and the CIA.

It is deplorable that the U.S. government has chosen to combat the communist "conspiracy" with a grand deceit of its own, by secretly financing one of our largest, and ostensibly independent, youth organizations.

It is also sadly ironic that NSA's present leaders were trying to extricate themselves from their intricate and shrouded involvement with the CIA—an involvement they inherited from their predecessors of 15 administrations ago—when they were dragged into the spotlight of public disgrace.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Associate News Editor ..... Richard Kline '70
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Bolvier '68
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Monday's Day Editors: News—Jim Foudy '68, Sports—Harvey Elman '68, Photo—Neil Rennie '70
Photo—Neil Rennie '70

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office: Student Union, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.

On Gordon's Linen

To the Editor:

For the third time this year our house residents who subscribe to Gordon Linen had to pick up their linen on a Friday night when many of them have gone home for the weekend or else will be participating in one of the Winter Carnival events planned for that night. Admittedly there is no stipulation in our contracts which states that the linen has to be delivered on a certain day at a certain time each week. However it is usually assumed that a company will provide its services at a time convenient to its customers.

This is usually the case, except when the company involved has a monopoly on the business and doesn't have to worry about customers forsaking its services for those of a more efficient or considerate competitor.

Thus, I would urge other houses similarly affected to also make known their dissatisfaction with the arbitrary distribution times now set by Gorden Linen. In addition, it would seem that the houses should have the right to democratically set the time at which Gordon Linen should be distributed, and that any deviation from the appointed day due to holidays should require approval of the house government. By gaining individual house control over the distribution times of Gordon Linen we will help to insure that the residents get what they paid for.

Charles Hopkins,
President of John Adams Upper

NSA and CIA

To the Editor:

The recent flap over the National Student Association and the C.I.A. brings back not-to-fond memories of a night in the Spring of 1965 when I introduced a bill in the Student Senate which would have given our student government membership in the N.S.A. In the end, the bill went down in flames, but the circumstances surrounding its defeat, in view of current developments, seem quite interesting.

In recent years, the Young Americans for Freedom, commonly known on campus as YAF'ers of worse, has waged a campaign to rid student governments of their NSA memberships and to prevent those that do not belong from joining. In my attempt to have the bill adopted, I ran into charges that NSA was communist-dominated, supported communist issues, was anti-American, and generally a no-goodnik as far as moral, religious, mother and apple pie type Americans were concerned. With the predominance of freshman and sophomore student senators, and their natural conservatism, accompanied by Dick Wimberley's (the Past Grand Wizard of YAF, Senate Division) dire predictions of peril, the bill suffered a horrible death.

The charges of communism in the NSA stem from the attempt in the late 1940's of a takeover by American communists. Now, however, we find that the all-that-is-good CIA has been supporting this communist-dominated (the Senate said so) group. Obviously, this group is not as left-wing as the Student Senate thought it was in 1965.

If this year's Student Senate feels itself mature enough to look beyond Amherst, perhaps it will consider the NSA in a new light, not as just another group to join, but as an instrument to extend the horizons of not only itself, but the student body it represents as well.

William R. Donovan '65

VALLEY CENTRE ON WMUA

Tuesday at 9:30, ACTION "67" will present a program on the Valley Centre Free University in Northampton. Host Pete Ward and his guests, members of the Centre, will explore the value of the Centre in terms of the courses offered, and the manner in which they are conducted. The courses include discussions in Anarchy, Civil rights, and the problems of drug addiction. Tune in WMUA on Tuesday at 9:30, 91.1 on your FM dial.

L. S. Delight

To the Editor:

Thank you, Dick Wood and staff, for a delightful evening at the L.S.Den.

For your program to have been successful, appropriate selection of entertainers was essential, and your choices were admirable. The nightclub atmosphere permeated the bubbly air from the moment the charming Ames sisters took the stage, and was subsequently enhanced by the informal hilarity of Jerry Shane and the sweet sounds of Mamie Lee. The whole evening was a refreshing change of pace from the usual Friday night suffocating sessions in the ballroom.

Judging from the reactions of the overflow crowd, your L.S.Den experiment was a fruitful and most enjoyable happening. May it become a Winter Carnival tradition at the University.

Mike Gould '67

"Like a College Thesis"

To the Editor:

In the controversy over Botany 101, the falacies in other courses have been overlooked. What badly needs attention is the textbook presently in use for History 100 and History 101, E. N. Johnson's An Introduction to the History of the Western Tradition Vol. I and II. Although nothing has been done about them. Why should students be made to use a bad text simply because the author is a member of the faculty. (To my knowledge, UMass is the only university carrying this text.)

The book is poorly organized and difficult to study from. Facts are buried in opinion and excerpts from literary works occupy a considerable portion of the book. It is more a study of the culture of a period than of its historical significance.

The book reads like a college thesis; the author argues an original premise (the conflict between Christian Asceticism and Greek Humanism) by offering it as a cause, effect, or characteristic of every historical event from 500 B.C. to 1960 A.D. As supplementary reading or taken only in part, it is an interesting and worthy study, but it is an unquestionably bad choice for a text.

Lila Geer '70

Draft Commentary Critique

Dear Mr. Holzer:

Unfortunately my job prevented me from going to the Draft Symposium last Saturday. But I got a chance to take a look into the Collegian. I read the commentary about your speech and I was rather surprised to read the following statement: "A fault of the Court in proving the legality of the draft was its use of some thirty-three other nations as comparison, among them Russia, China, Australia, Switzerland etc.

"These nations represent, according to you, "banana republics" and "backward primitives." Don't you think this is a little too emotional and not very realistic?

In my opinion one cannot defend such an important standpoint—and be it a very justifiable one—by putting the blame of the draft system on other nations. Perhaps your criticism could be even more effective if you were a little less emotional, less insulting and more objective.

I do not think your speech has any influence in international relations. Nevertheless such opinions are out of place today and suggest a rather tactless and ignorant attitude. Do you really think Americans like you can still afford to call the Russians "backward primitives?" I as a Swiss foreign student would like to inform you that in Switzerland there are no bananas growing except in green-houses. Don't you think one could expect a little more of a constitutional lawyer?

Hanni Meier

Psychological Warfare

To the Editor:

The United States, I am sure, does it's best to avoid killing civilians; but some imply that we do this deliberately. If so, why? Why destroy a city? The only reason anything is bombed in a limited war, is to destroy war material or it's means of production. Killing civilians accomplishes little of significance in obtaining these objectives in Vietnam.

But if I were the North Vietnamese, I would want a place near central supply routes to store imported supplies until they are needed. If America bombs these supplies wherever they are found, there are two solutions—dispersion or sanctuary. Dispersion is difficult. The supplies are scattered, and it is difficult to keep track of them, and of course the Americans might still find and destroy them.

So one needs a central supply depot immune to bombs. How? Show the foolish Americans the destruction in cities, maimed children, etc., tell them that the Americans did it, regardless of the source of the destruction. They won't inquire too deeply into the cause of the destruction, because they want to believe that they did it. Now, one must extract a pledge from the Americans to "stop" bombing the heavily populated areas, regardless of whether or not the Americans ever did bomb there in the first place.

Presto the strongest shield, America's word that she will not bomb populated areas. Now supplies can be stored in the villages and cities, and they will be safe because the population is used to shield the war supplies. Neat, eh? So we can't destroy the ammunition dumps with one bomb, but must attempt to destroy it as it filters south, and kills us.

Why not destroy military supplies wherever they are found, populated areas or not? Then, by using the cities as supply depots, it will be the North Vietnamese who invite the destruction.

Peter LaMontagne '68

And is not time even as love is, undivided and paceless? But if in your thought you must measure time into seasons, let each season encircle all the other seasons, And let today embrace the past with remembrance and the future with longing.

—Kahlil Gibran, The Prophet

To Sleep...?

To the Editor::

It is two in the morning; most of the residents on the South side of T-6 are asleep. The light sleepers wake to the sound of trucks in the parking lot below. The average sleeper sleeps on a few seconds longer, then he is rattled awake by the sound of a tow chain being dragged over the side of one of Anderson's wreckers.

Chief Blasko and Co. are at it again. The heavy sleeper who sleeps with his window shut never heard a thing. How many heavy sleepers who shut their windows at night live on the South side of T-6?

Three cheers for law enforcement. Disgusted

FROSTY GOGGLE LODGE
Rt. 100
Wilmington, Vt.
MT. SNOW — HAYSTACK SKI AREAS
COLLEGE DESIGNED RATES
Midweek—$3 & up
Weekends, Holiday Weeks—$4 & up
Reservations 802-464-5017

Campus Comment

Exams and Winter Carni

To the Editor:

The Hebrew, Greek, and Roman calendars show us that these productive people had an overabundance of festivals and holidays which helped to break up the monotony of their day-to-day existence, add cheer and variety to an itinerary of hard work and much suffering, and thus provide for better mental health and community spirit when the hard life had to be faced again.

This plethora of short but important holidays has been lost to the Western tradition, but the basic principle should be retained. I refer specifically to the three big weekends at UMass each year: Homecoming, Winter Carni, and Greek Week. It is both unfair and academically disadvantageous for instructors to spoil these three "festivals" as many have done in the past. It is unfair for some students to have as many as three exams on the three days following Winter Carnival while other students can devote the entire weekend to the enjoyment for which it was intended.

I suggest that the Faculty Senate pass a resolution strongly urging all instructors to refrain from giving exams or collecting large assignments on at least the three days and hopefully the entire week following each of these three big weekends.

It is almost impossible to study under present conditions. The dorms are even noisier than usual, the library closes early and one's friends are all out enjoying their youth. The attitude created by such a refreshing break would greatly overbalance the time lost in studying over the weekends involved. Why not try to make our society a more "livable" one instead of speeding the approach of the pressure cooker, anxiety-ridden world ahead?

Jon Gerard '69

Are you discontented enough to work for G.E.?

Does water pollution bug you? Or smog? Does it concern you that some places in the country never have enough teachers? Or nurses? And when you read about the growing pains of a developing nation, do you wish you could do something?

You can. Thousands of General Electric people are helping to solve the problems of a growing, changing world.

Generating more (and cheaper) electricity with nuclear reactors. Controlling smog in our cities and pollution in our streams. Using electronics to bring the teaching skills of an expert into many classrooms at once, the trained eyes of a nurse into many hospital rooms at once.

If you're not content with the world as it is . . . and if you have the brains, imagination and drive to help build a better one, we'd like to talk to you.

See the man from G.E. during his next campus visit. Come to General Electric, where the young men are important men.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

GENERAL ELECTRIC

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kelly

A New Door Prize? Nancy Walker, class of '70, must have danced too energetically at the S.U. one fine night. She ended up with the door prize, a cast from her hip to her ankle. Can dancing be joining the list of dangerous sports?

New Book On Bob Dylan Completed By Famous Photo-Journalist

Bob Dylan, a large format book by photo-journalist Daniel Kramer, which has been two and a half years in preparation and has had to battle its way through the courts, is now ready for publication. The publisher, Citadel Press of New York, announced this week that although the book is just coming off the presses, the first edition is almost sold out.

During the period of preparation, Dylan asked the courts to enjoin the book and prevent its publication. Kramer appealed to the courts that a true and first-hand account of one of America's most influential and gifted artists should exist: he contended that the public was entitled to know the man through an honest portrait based on fact. The courts agreed and the book will be ready the first week in April.

The volume documents a time when the great folksinger-poet rose from near obscurity to become king of the folk world — through the time his creation of "folk rock" changed the face of popular music. Kramer, first noticed Dylan when he saw him on a television screen in 1963. His search for Dylan, a first-hand account of the man, how he works and a probing analysis into the concept of Dylan is the subject of the 15,000 word text and the nearly 150 photographs. Often called "the best pictures of Dylan made," the photographs reveal the folk artist in many facets of his life—working, playing, resting—and a certain number of them include Joan Baez in rare moments of the path-crossing of these two artists. Singer Judy Collins has this to say, "I am every much excited about the Dylan book—I feel it is altogether a beautiful and sensitive book." Within the text, the author states his purpose as "an attempt to document Dylan; who he was, what he was doing; and to make this documentation available to the public at large."

The public at large has responded enthusiastically to news items appearing in New York newspapers that the book had passed through the courts and was about to be published.

Citadel Press advises the book will be in the stores in early Spring.

Air Force Cheating Scandal Expected to Spread Today

The Air Force Academy's academic cheating scandal—its second in two years—is expected to spread to 60 or more cadets, academy authorities said Saturday.

Nine more cadets resigned Saturday morning, bringing the total to 33 who have quit since the scandal was uncovered. More will probably leave the sprawling 18,000-acre campus today.

All but four of the cadets who have resigned since Thursday actually cheated on examinations, the academy said. The others, in equal violation of the code, had tolerated cheating by their classmates.

The code says, "We will not lie, steal or cheat, nor tolerate among us anyone who does."

The 1965 episode involved stolen keys to lockers in which examinations were kept and a ring of 11 cadets sold the questions to their colleagues.

The present episode involves the passing of questions and answers from one cadet to another.

Reprinted from Springfield Republican

Bridal Fair In SU To Be Held Next Week

Bridal Fair, sponsored by the Special Events Committee of the University of Massachusetts in cooperation with Bride and Home magazine, will be held at the SU Ballroom on Monday, March 6th from 1:30 to 10:00.

Months in planning and weeks in preparation, the fair, hopefully to be an annual campus event, is open to the general public at no admission charge.

Over 2,500 visitors are expected to attend the show which will consist of booths and special exhibits by 26 companies. Among these will be International Silver Co. The Irish Linen Guild, Oneida Silver, Coty Cosmetics and Corning Ware.

In addition, Bonwit Teller of Boston will present a special Bridal fashion show featuring models from the University of Massachusetts, and every visitor will receive a shopping bag filled with over 30 pamphlets offering useful household tips and rules of etiquette, not to mention many valuable door prizes.

Men will not be forgotten, either. There will be special displays to interest them as well as a display of new model automobiles.

University of Massachusetts senior, Michele Feldman, general chairman of the event, feels confident that this year's fair will prove to be so fantastic "as to set a precedent for those to follow".

- Notices -

LITERARY SOCIETY
On Feb. 28, at 7:30 P.M. in Bartlett faculty lounge, Mr. L. M. Tikos of the Russian department will speak on the controversial Soviet writer, Sinyavsky. Everyone is welcome.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST
The Weekly Bible study will be held on Tues., Feb. 28 at 6:15 on the 12th floor of Tower 5.

LOCAL #1776 UMASS EMPLOYEES
Union AFSCME-AFL-CIO will have its regular monthly meeting on March 2, in Plymouth Room, S.U. at 7:30 P.M.

COLONEL'S CADRE
On Tues., Feb. 28 and Thurs., March 2, at 7:30 P.M. there will be open rush parties for Colonel's Cadre—Hostesses for the Army ROTC. All female undergraduates welcome, in the Bristol Room, S.U.

SCUBA CLUB
There will be a meeting of the club on Wed., March 1 at 7:00 at the Cage. Plans for the upcoming dives will be discussed, and class will be held.

PSYCHOLOGY LECTURE
On Wed., March 1, in Bartlett 61, Harold B. Gerard, Professor of Psychology, Univ. of California, will speak on "A Test of the 'Suffering Leads to Liking' Hypotheses".

SOPH EXEC COUNCIL
On March 2, at 8:00 P.M. in Melville Lounge there will be a meeting of the Sophomore Executive Council. Everyone is welcome. Refreshments will be served.

STUDENT SENATE PUBLIC RELATIONS
Will the presidents of all RSO organizations (excluding dormitories, sororities and fraternities), please leave their names and addresses in the Public Relations Committee message box in the Senate Office?

NORTH COMMON COMMITTEE
The North Commons committee will meet Tuesday, Feb. 29 at 12:20 at Line 1. Members are expected to attend or notify the committee that they are no longer interested in being members.

LOST:
Friday, a gold-chain-type bracelet. Sentimental value. Please call 6-6853.

FOUND:
One Northand 52" ski pole found in mixup after Haystack ski trip. Did you get a 54" Northland by mistake? Call Bill 546-6112.

PINNINGS:
Helen Barrett, class of '70, J.Q. Adams, to Robert Livingstone, class of '70, John Adams.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Joyce Selman, class of '67, Hamlin, to Edward A. DeRosa, class of '65, Grad. Northeastern Univ.

LIBRARY HOURS

1. Regular Hours
   Monday-Friday
   8:00 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
   Saturday
   8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
   Sunday
   1:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
   Additional Reserve Desk service and Study Hall
   Sunday-Thursday
   10:00 p.m.-12 midnight
   Saturday
   5:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
2. Vacation and Intersession Hours
   Monday-Friday
   8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
   Saturday, Sunday
   Closed

Library Calendar, February-June 1967

Wednesday, 1 February-Friday, 24 March — Regular hours
Saturday, 25 March — 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Sunday, 26 March-Saturday, 1 April — Vacation hours
Sunday, 2 April-Friday, 26 May — Regular hours
Saturday, 27 May — 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Sunday, 28 May — 1:00 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Monday, 29 May — 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Tuesday, 30 May — CLOSED
Wednesday, 31 May-Monday, 12 June — Vacation Hours

NOTE: There will be additional Study Halls on Friday, 12, 19 and 26 May, 10:00 p.m.-midnight; and on Saturday 13 and 20 May.

THINKING OF GETTING ENGAGED

Student Diamond

BUYING SERVICE

(WITH SPECIAL PRICE CONSIDERATION)

by

HERB COHEN

in association with his father

NATHAN COHEN
Jeweler & Diamond Merchant
"In the Bowles Building"
Room 206 - Second Floor
1016 MAIN STREET, SPRINGFIELD 3, MASS.
Established 1912 Phone RE 2-5244

Dear Student,

"A diamond engagement ring--one of the most personal and important purchases in an individual's life--is often one of the most difficult.

"I believe that young adults in general, and university students in particular, would welcome a straight-forward unembellished presentation of the facts by someone qualified by training and experience, who is sincerely interested in assisting them in making an intelligent and informed selection."

Qualifications:

N.Y.U.—B.S. Marketing

G.I.A. (Gemological Institute of America)—Specialized Diamond Training

MASS. CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

Flower in Botany—ACTUAL PAST EXAMS IN BOTANY 101. Now in the University Store.

Lost Wed. morning, ski boots and gloves, vicinity of ROTC parking lot and Boyden. Call 549-1237.

Honda sport 65—1966 excellent condition; black & chrome; 1800 miles. Call 546-9027 after 12:00 p.m. Price: $190.

AUTOMOBILES

AUSTIN HEALEY SPRITE—MARK III —1965 Good cond. Snow tires, tonneau, luggage rack, other extras. 25,000 mi. $1250. Call: 253-9835.

'57 Jaguar Roadster XK 140, convertible top. Best offer over $500. Call 584-1065 after 5 p.m.

1965 SAAB sedan, excellent condition, low mileage. Averages 33 miles per gallon. $1100. Call 5-2688, Extension 101A.

This Week on

WMUA 91.1 F.M.

ACTION "67"

with Pete Ward

Discusses the Valley Centre Free University with some of its members.

Tuesday at 9:30—After the B.U. game.

Gymnasts Topple Syracuse, 168-161

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reviewer

The UMass gymnastics team notched their second victory of the year over Syracuse, 168-161, at the Boyden Auxiliary Gym Friday night. Paced in the early going by Dick Dauphinais and Fred Babakian and in the late stages by Steve Brown and Dick DelGallo, the Redmen led at every checkpoint.

Dauphinais, with his best performance of the season, 9.15, managed to give the Redmen a slim lead at the end of the floor exercise, 25.25-25. Syracuse had little in the sidehorse and could manage only 19.05 points. Babakian, with a spectacular 9.15, and Leclair finished 1-2 to give UMass 24.2 points to keep them out in front to stay.

Trampoline was a virtual standoff, but the high bar spelled defeat for the Orangemen. Brown, Carver, and Siebert finished 2-3-4 for 24 points. Except for all-around man Al Kevles, who participated in six of the seven events and won the high bar, Syracuse had little talent on the eight-foot horizontal bar. They garnered a mere 20.55 points to make the rest of the meet a formality.

The 500 fans were treated to some excellent vaulting. Syracuse's Dennis Engle won it, followed by UMass' Captain Al Carver and Bob Leclair. Engel was outstanding. He participated in three events and finished third, second, and first. His average score was a fine 8.97.

All-around man for UMass, Steve Brown, took the parallel bars with an 8.7 which gave the Redmen the event by three quarters of a point. Dave March dislocated his hand during his routine but managed to finish. He then came back to perform creditably on the rings.

Syracuse was reputed to be one of the best teams on the rings anywhere. But Syracuse had troubles with their dismounts, and, although scoring well, it was not nearly enough. DelGallo iced the win with a magnificent performance. It earned him nine points and second place. The Orange took the event by more than two points, but fell short by more than six points in the final tabulation.

Coach Kjeldsen remarked, "The first four events for us were really great." He also praised Dick DelGallo for his performance. The UMass mentor was also surprised by the trouble Syracuse had with the rings.

This was the last meet for the Redmen who finished the season with a 2-5 record. Only Captain Carver will be graduating. With the improvement shown by many of the sophomores over the season, and some of the fine freshmen becoming eligible for varsity competition next season, prospects look bright.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

BALANCING BOB—Bob Leclair, appearing to be doing a tough balancing act, is caught during his side-horse routine during Friday night's gymnastics meet against Syracuse.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

MARKED MAN—UMass goalie Ed Sanborn kicks Bowdoin shot aside in Saturday's game. Over the two-game weekend, Sanborn totaled 64 saves.

Sanborn's Wild Weekend

(Continued from page 8)

slammed in a 35-footer from the left side at 13:05 of the second period. Ed Kinsella assisted on the play.

Norwich then scored three quick goals, two of them by Paul Gallerani, an aggressive, little wing who spent half of the period in the penalty box for a flashy display of his temper.

McCarthy of Norwich then scored unassisted to even the score at 4-all at the close of 1 period.

Norwich then went ahead for the first time in the game on a goal by Roger Guillemette, one of the finest skaters the Redmen have faced this year. Hanifan evened it up when he took his own rebound off the post and sent it past a surprised Norwich goalie. Three minutes later, Norwich's Gallerani scored again for the third time.

Trailing 3 0 in the second period, Jim O'Brien put the Redmen in the scoring column when he scored on a backhander after a fine assist from Charlie Hanifan at 4:36. The Redmen scored two more times in the second period on goals by Fran Mulcahy and O'Brien to complete the scoring for the day.

Mulcahy's goal was a beauty as he scored on a breakaway depositing the puck over the left shoulder of surprised Bowdoin netminder Dave Macomber. O'Brien's eighth goal of the campaign, last UM tally of the game, came with UMass at a one-man advantage.

Either Hanifan, O'Brien or Mulcahy figured in no less than seven of the Redmen's eight goals during the long weekend.

Plenty of praise is in order for Redmen netminder Ed Sanborn, who made countless impressive saves over the weekend. Sanborn made 22 saves against Norwich and 42 against Bowdoin.

The pucksters, who now stand at 8-10-1, close out the season when they meet Holy Cross tomorrow in Worcester.

Frosh Gymnasts Best LIU, CCNY

The UMass freshmen gymnastics team rolled up an impressive 150-93-91 win Saturday in a three-team meet against Long Island University and City College of New York at Long Island.

Coach Julius Gundersheim's charges, who had lost nine men and 12 team places since the Army meet last month due to marks and injuries, registered their second highest contest score of the year. The high is 154 against Army.

The Little Redmen started fast by registering 26 points in the floor exercise and ultimately bulged the margin to its final 57 points.

Leading performers for UMass were Steve Carey, who carded 9.0 on the long horse vault; Dick Hagen, with 7.95 on the parallels; and Joe Reed, who netted a 9.15 on the vault and an 8.9 on the parallels.

Reed's all-around show accounted for 49 of UMass' 150 points. The final frosh record is 4-3.

Wednesday afternoon at 4 in the Boyden Auxiliary Gym, the varsity gymnastics team faces the frosh in what should be an interesting exhibition. T.M.

Sports Week in Review

The Pro Shop

BY STEVE ROSS

Philly's 76'ers are rolling along in the East. Chicago is unable to catch Detroit in the West. The Red Wings' chances of catching the Canadiens grow smaller and smaller and the football discussions have been delayed until the draft, hopefully March 15. Baseball took over the news.

In the American League, battle lines have been drawn for "Basement Battle '67," a 162-game tussle to see which team can stay at the bottom. Prime contenders for that coveted spot are New York and Boston. Last year the Yanks nosed out the Bosox by half a game for 10th place. This year, competition should be equally fierce.

Uncle Sam gave the Yankees an unexpected boost in that direction by drafting shortstop Murcer for a two-year stint starting March 6. Murcer, a good-hit, no-field infielder, was expected to start this season for the Bronx Buffoons. Veterans Amaro and Howser will fight for the job left open by Murcer's departure.

Boston's rookie manager Williams delivered his innaugural address to his batterymen Saturday. Williams announced a 12:30 curfew and told his players they were expected to stay under a specified weight. He also stressed that his pitchers were expected to do "a lot of running".

The last time a Boston manager attempted to check the weights of his charges, they doctored the scale so that it would register any desired weight. They were caught later in the season. This years' group is younger and smarter; they may find some foolproof method that will go undetected.

Williams has based his optimism on the second half of last season. The Jersey Street AC was 43-39 for the final half last season fourth best for the junior circuit. The pitching, 10th in the league for the season, was fifth in the loop for the same span.

In the past, the Hose has been notorious for late season "salary drives." Tom Yawkey, the hobbiest owner of the club, always rewarded second half improvement with fatter paychecks.

Yankee manager Houk bases his hopes on Medicare, but his old players can't perform as they did in their prime. Mantle, Howard, and Ford are ghosts of their former selves. Boyer and Maris are gone. Without the great prospects coming out of the farm system as in days gone by, the Yankees, to quote an old Ebbetts Field saying, "is dead."

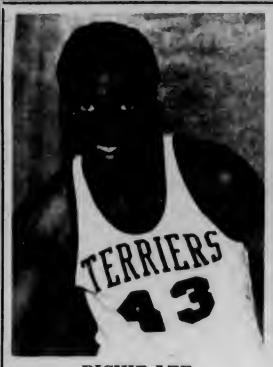
With two good rookies coming up from Toronto, Smith and Andrews, Red Sox prospects look slightly improved. Thus, with weaker horses, advanced age, and no rookies to take up the slack, the Yanks look like the best bet to win "Basement Battle '67."

Intramural Volleyball Timetable

Time	Court	MONDAY Teams
6:30	1	PMD-ASP
	2	LCA-TKE
	5	KS-ATG
	6	FSD-AEP
	7	SPE-TC
	8	BKP-APO
	11	TEP-APO
	12	GTV-ZN
7:30	1	Boilermakers-Forestry
	2	Camo So.-Lassies Loosers
	5	Smitty's-Camo N.
	6	Jaspers-Tigers
	7	Fruits-Phantoms
	8	Bluebells-Orgies
	11	Maroons-Eagles
	12	Bruins-Grants
8:30	1	Giants-Buffalos
	2	Bulldozers-Senators
	5	Colonials-Cougars
	6	Panthers-Commanchees
	7	Jaguars-Colt 45s

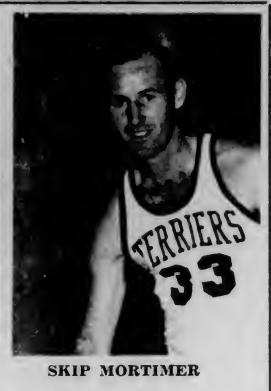
Time	Court	TUESDAY Teams
6:30	1	Smashers-Redwoods
	2	Spartans-Academics
	5	Apples-Flaming A's
	6	Seagrams-Hemlocks
	7	Aces-Phallics
	8	Lemons-Chestnuts
	11	Flaming A's-Limes
	12	Hicks-Hoovers
7:30	1	Elms-Trojans
	2	HiLo's-Maples
	5	Eagles-Senators
	6	Bruins-Buffalos
	7	Maroons-Giants
	8	Granits-Bulldozers
8:30	1	"A Type-Sched Eds
	2	Chem-Dufarbs
	5	Toads-Moots
	6	Bismarks-Imps
	7	R. Numerals-Oddbadds
	11	PMD-AEP

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki



GOLDEN GREEK—A member of the fraternity all-star team puts up shot against the dorm all-stars during last Thursday's annual intramural showdown. The frats won their third game in the three-game series.

Stockbridge Outguns MIT



The Stockbridge rifle team posted an overwhelming win by 169 points over the MIT freshmen on Saturday, February 18.

The top five men for Stockbridge all had scores over 140 with Ron Clough top man, shooting 97, 82, 79 prone, kneeling and offhand. Top man for MIT was Bob Woerner with 90, 70 and 77 respectively.

STOCKBRIDGE		MIT
Clough	258	Woerner	237
Enseleh	253	Evans	232
Andrews	248	Chasin	213
Miller	244	Tompson	206
Welcome	242	Whelan	188
	1245		1076

RICHIE LEE

SKIP MORTIMER

Homecoming for Leaman

Next Stop: Boston U

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

A long, hard season nears its end tomorrow night as the Redmen face a Boston University team which has distinguished itself as one of the worst in New England this year. The game will be played at B.U.'s Sargent Gym in Boston.

The Terriers have done a lot of moaning while compiling a 4-15 record, which includes losses to such powers as Maine, UNH, Vermont and Albright. Charlie Luce, ending his first year as coach, is looking far to the future when he hopes to make B.U. a basketball power again.

This will be UMass' next-to-last game, and it will be Jack Leaman's first against his old alma mater. But when the UM coach played there under former UM coach Matt Zunic in the late '50's, the Terriers were considerably stronger than they are now.

Last year B.U. was 4-19, including a 65-49 loss to the Redmen, but the Terriers still lead UM in the series, 18-16, in a rivalry that goes back to 1903.

B.U. is one of the shortest teams that the Redmen face this season, and UM should have little trouble outrebounding them. The Terriers rely on a running game, but take one look at their record and see how fast they are.

B.U.'s leading scorer is 6'1 guard Richie Lee. Lee returned to the team after a year's absence for reasons unknown to the general public. He's a good playmaker and a steady shooter.

B.U.'s captain is 5'10 senior guard Skip Mortimer. He is steady but unspectacular, and is second in scoring on the team.

One of the forwards is 6' junior Freddie Washington. A quick ball-handler, he sparks what the Terriers call a fast break.

The other forward is Dave Walko, a 6'4 junior. He is a fair rebounder but can't be considered much of an offensive threat.

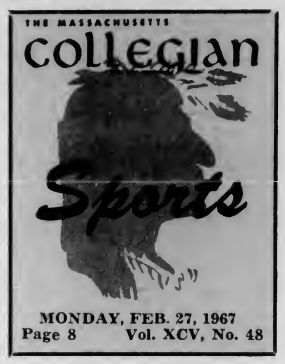
At center is 6'5 junior Randy Robinson, who gathers what the other team misses off the boards.

UM football fans will remember Reggie Rucker, the swift halfback who ran back a 71-yd. punt for a touchdown against the Redmen last fall. He has given basketball a try and his speed may help the Terriers at forward.

Redmen Sink Maine, 83-75

Tindall, Edwards, Lisack: 23 Each

by MIKE CURRAN
Staff Reporter



ORONO, Me.—A 21-point second half by John Lisack sparked Massachusetts to an 83-75 victory over a stubborn Black Bear squad here Saturday night. The hard-earned triumph dimmed the Winter Carnival festivities for the hosts and gave the Redmen a closing 7-3 mark in Yankee Confeernce action.

Terry Carr and Jim Stephenson got Maine out to an early 17-10 advantage with some strong outside shooting. A bucket by Bob Murphy and five points by Tim Edwards knotted the score at 17-17. Dave Hale's tap-in and Carr's 20-footer put Maine out in front, but two hoops by Joe DiSarcina tied the game at 21-apiece.

The Black Bears capitalized on a UMass cold spell to take a 28-21 lead. For the rest of the half only the strong offensive rebounding of Bill Tindall kept the visitors close. Maine held a 40-34 edge at the intermission.

Baskets by John Eisenhard and Carr at the start of the second period put the Redmen 10 points down. But Lisack hit two bombs from the top of the key and suddenly there was hope for the Redmen.

UMass narrowed the gap even further on Edwards' acrobatics above the rim, but Maine wasn't about to let victory slip away easily. Stephenson's driving lay-up at the 12-minute mark put the home team up, 55-50.

A tap-in by Tindall and a turn-around jumper by Edward lit the fuse to a Lisack explosion. The 6'4" senior from New Jersey converted steals by Gary Gasperack and DiSarcina into four straight jump shots. He added a free throw, and the Redmen were on top to stay.

Clutch shooting by Edwards and Tindall kept the pressing Black Bears at bay for the remainder of the contest.

Massachusetts had three players over the 20-mark for the first time this season. Tindall, Lisack, and Edwards all finished with 23 points.

Edwards is closing in on more records. The 6'4" senior needs 31 rebounds for a 900 career mark, 23 for a new season's record, and 14 points to reach the coveted 1000-point club. DeSarcina has an outside shot at a new record for season assists. Joe needs 20 in the remaining two games for the Redmen playmaking crown.

On the long haul up to Orono, the gallant Redmen picked up a stranded high school girl's swimming team. Coach Jack Leaman went out of his way to deliver the young mermaids to their YWCA destination in Bangor, Maine.

UMASS	B	F	Pts	MAINE	B	F	Pts
Nowak'ski	1	1	2	Stephenson	8	4	20
Tindall	10	3	23	Hale	6	0	12
Edwards	10	3	23	Eisenhard	6	0	12
Murphy	1	0	2	Carr	10	1	21
DiSarcina	3	0	6	Farrell	2	0	4
Lisack	11	1	23	Chase	3	0	6
Stewart	0	0	0	Edgecomb	0	0	0
Rand	1	0	2
Gasperack	1	0	2
Totals	38	7	83	Totals	35	5	75

Score at halftime—Maine 40, Mass 34.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASKETBALL — vs. Boston University (Away), Tuesday, 8 P.M.

HOCKEY — vs. Holy Cross (Away), Tuesday, 8 P.M.

HOCKEY (Frosh) — vs. Holy Cross (Away), Tuesday, 6:30 P.M.

WRESTLING — vs. Tufts at Boyden Auxiliary Gym, Today, 3:30 P.M.

Conference Standings

	W	L
x Connecticut	9	1
Rhode Island	8	2
MASSACHUSETTS	7	3
New Hampshire	3	6
Maine	1	8
Vermont	1	9

x Clinched Title

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

"ARE YOU KIDDING ME?"—Stellar UMass soph Charlie Hanifan strikes a characteristic pose in the penalty box during the Bowdoin game.

Skiers Place 2nd in Slalom

WARREN, VT.,—The UMass ski team finished second to A.I.C. Saturday in the two-run slalom of the New England Intercollegiate Ski League at Mad River Glen.

With high winds and sub-zero temperatures making the course difficult, AIC's Steve Perrins turned in a time of 61.5 as AIC tallied a combined time of 298.9 seconds to UMass' 305.1.

Frosh Lacrosse

All freshmen lacrosse players will receive physicals Wednesday night at the infirmary, Coach John Bamberry has announced. Players are to check for the exact time.

Puckmen Beaten by Norwich, 6-5; Bowdoin, 8-3

by JOE DUFFY
Staff Reporter

Despite enthusiastic crowds and a spirited offense, the Redmen pucksters lost to two powerful northern New England hockey schools over the Winter Carni weekend. The Redmen bowed 6-5 to Norwich Friday night and then dropped a 8-3 decision to a talented Bowdoin sextet Saturday afternoon.

Norwich 6 UMass 5

Sophomore wing Charlie Hanifan got the ball rolling for the Redmen as he took a neat pass from teammate Fran Mulcahy and sent the puck flying past Norwich goalie Dick Kelleher who was screened out on the play.

Fifteen minutes later Mulcahy centered another perfect pass in front of the goal to Jim O'Brien who scored easily to give UMass a 2-0 first period lead.

Norwich opened up the second period with a quick score by Herrow to close the gap to one goal. O'Brien, playing increasingly better as the season progresses, scored again in front of the crease taking a fine pass off the sticks of Mulcahy and Hanifan.

Shortly after, a scuffle broke out between the two clubs when a Norwich player violently swung his hockey stick at a few members of the Redmen outfit. A few minutes and a few penalties ensued before action was resumed.

Senior letterman Ed Quimby put UMass in what seemed to be a commanding 4-1 lead when he

(Continued on page 7)

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

MAIN EVENT—The most action during Saturday's game with Bowdoin wasn't around the goals.

SATURDAY'S NIGHT'S CONCERT was doubly cool as Tom Rush (below), Bill Cosby (right), and special guest Nina Simone (lower right) entertained a capacity crowd in Curry-Hicks Cage.

COLLEGIAN Photos by Joyce Harvey

Saturday Night

Cosby
Rush
Nina Simone

Tom Rush

An Individual

Tom Rush maintained his standing for being an individual by keeping his performance Saturday night to a scant 20 minutes.

He sang his recent hit The Urge for Going, The Circle Game, Duncan and Brady, and Who do you Love?

Rush said that he kept his performance short because he didn't want to dominate the concert.

Concerning the audience response, Rush said, "They were very warm, but they were freezing to death physically."

Despite the cold, he "was amazed with the sound in the Cage. Usually in gyms and cages it's poor. But the sound was great."

When asked about his future plans, Rush said that he wouldn't even try to definitely say what he plans to do in the future. However, he will probably sing contemporary songs such as Janie Mitchel's The Urge for Going.

He intended to use an electric guitar to amplify the sound, not to change the beat to rock and roll.

Rush said that he will be going to England, Scandinavia, and Greece in the near future. He sang in England for a summer one year when he was going to Harvard University.

Although he received a Bachelor's degree in English from Harvard, he doesn't plan to use it for any specific purpose at the present time.

...and Sunday

The Young Rascals
The Lovin' Spoonful

by JACK DEAN
Managing Editor

The Lovin' Spoonful were the bigger drawing card, but the Young Rascals definitely had the bigger beat last night. Their smooth, polished performance put the audience in a receptive, enthusiastic mood which was somewhat dampened by the less spectacular style of the Spoonful. The difference in showmanship would undoubtedly have gone unnoticed, however, had the order of appearance been reversed.

The Rascals, who originate from New York, put forth a tremendous sound, especially considering the fact that only three of them play instruments. Gene Cornish on guitar, Dino Danelli on drums, and Felix Cavaliere on organ all combine with the entertaining gyrations of singer Eddie Brigati and his tamborine to give the Rascals their familiar, refreshing sound.

When asked how they liked playing in the Cage, Gene Cornish remarked to this reporter that it was "pretty good, but it was a little chilly at first." He also mentioned that the audience was "great."

"We play about one college a week," he continued, "and we can sense the difference between these audiences and the teenyboppers. College students listen rather than watch, and are therefore much more critical."

In answer to a question concerning Beatles versus Monkees, he wasted no time in stating that the Beatles are great and the Monkees have no talent.

"Our friend Niel Diamond, who writes songs for the Monkees, is very talented," he explained, "but unfortunately the Monkees aren't." He agreed that their success is mostly due to their television show and some fantastic publicity. They're great actors," said Gene, "and their show is reminiscent of the Beatles' Hard Day's Night."

Though he wouldn't go into detail, Gene did say that the Rascals will be putting out a new album soon which will "be different" from anything they've done so far.

The group left immediately after the concert for a New York engagement.

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

THE YOUNG RASCALS

GENE CORNISH (right), of the Young Rascals, concentrates all his musical energy as the group performs its big hits "Good Lovin'," "I've Been Lonely Too Long," and "You Gotta Run," among others.

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

THE LOVIN' SPOONFUL, though plagued by sound problems, were well received by last night's crowd at the Cage. Particularly enjoyable were the renditions of their hit recordings such as "Summer in the City", "Do You Believe in Magic", "You Didn't Have to Be So Nice", and "Nashville Cats."

COLLEGIAN Photo by Joyce Harvey

COLLEGIAN Photo by Larry Kornfield

Winter Carnival 1967

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Boliver

COLLEGIAN Photo by Bob Gaudet

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

COLLEGIAN Photo by Larry Kornfield

"A Winter Happening"

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

INDEX

Comp. Lit. ..... pg. 2
Dirty Sheets ..... pg. 4
Notices ..... pg. 6

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Basketball Victory
Pg. 8

VOL. XCV. NO. 49 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS Wednesday, March 1, 1967

Representative James Nolen of Ware. If Nolen's State House bill goes through, the university's Campus Center will have one of its "reasons d'etre" demolished.

Local Legislator's Bill Threatens $6 Million UMass Campus Center

by DAVE O'CONNOR
Staff Reporter

What could possibly squelch the newly planned multi-million dollar Campus Center at the University of Massachusetts has been the recently proposed legislation by Rep. James Nolen, (D.), Ware, Amherst, Belchertown, Pelham and Granby.

In House Bill No. 3683 Nolen has moved for "An act prohibiting the operation of a hotel or motel by any public authority." It was initially understood to refer to further establishment of such motel-hotel facilities as are in existence at Logan International Airport in East Boston under the State Airport Management Board.

The threat to the University's Campus Center has been interpreted from the bill's wording "the commonwealth, its departments, boards and political subdivisions shall not operate any hotel or motel." The University, operating under the control of a board of trustees would be limited, by this bill in establishing its new Campus Center.

In an interview with Dean of Administration, Leo Redfern, the Collegian learned that an amendment to the bill had been proposed but was not accepted by the House Committee on State Administration which gave the bill its first hearing. The amendment would sanction the University's participation in a program of training of food service and hotel management students.

One UMass official has said that failure to adopt the amendment could not only "seriously impinse" the on-campus establishment of such a facility but would as well "be detrimental" to the expanding programs of education offered at the University to government employees, officials and professionals who come to the University from throughout the Commonwealth and the nation.

(Continued on page 2)

Students May Be Paid After the End of March

Financial incentives for certain student leaders and extra-curricular participants may be instituted if members of the Student Senate Sub-committee on Incentives get their way.

A study, drawing on work done in previous years, has been underway since the beginning of the semester. A bill providing for incentives is expected to be introduced around the end of March.

A number of colleges around the nation offer financial incentives to students in leadership positions as a 1961 Collegian study and last year's Index study reveal. One goal cited by the present committee is to gather a representative sampling of the form of incentive plans in operation.

Although the committee members favor some form of monetary incentive, they are attempting to gather vi ws pro and con from the campus. Any member of the University community is welcome to submit his views to committee chairman, Bob Gaudet (Senate Office, Student Union).

For one part of the study, nearly 300 questionnaires have been sent out to date asking "...do you favor financial assistance or a form of salary to staffers or editors of the Collegian?"

Members of the Faculty Senate were sent the questionnaire only recently. But the others whose opinions were solicited, the newspaper's staff, student senators, and administration officials, have responded poorly to the questionnaire according to the committee.

"The returns may be classified as 31 favoring some incentive form and 11 opposing the idea completely. But I can't consider this as a representative sampling," said a member of the committee.

Anyone wishing to have his opinion considered was urged by the committee to submit a statement.

Opinion which discusses the purposes of a particular extra-curricular activity or all extra-curricular activities and an explanation of opinion on incentives and methods of implementation was requested.

PRESIDENT LEDERLE, HEAD OF FACULTY SENATE

Faculty Senate Debates New Graduate Program

by PAMELA METAXAS
Staff Reporter

UMass will be the first New England public institution to offer a graduate program in Comparative Literature if the present program under consideration by the Faculty Senate is approved this year.

There are 40-50 such programs in the U.S., according to Dr. Bernard Fleischmann, head of the department of Comparative Literature at UMass, but the only ones in the New England area belong to private colleges such as Harvard, Yale and Brown. He added that the public university programs in Comparative Literature are "heavily concentrated in the west and in the mid-west." The most prominent program is at Berkeley.

Fleischmann was visiting lecturer at Princeton last semester in the Comparative Literature Department and was brought to UMass "to build and take care of the new Comparative Literature Graduate program," he said.

At the University, the program started spontaneously from the faculty. It was generated by their interest in building a graduate Comparative Literature at U-Mass. He noted that the English 125-126 course here is a kind of Comparative Literature course. "It is unusual in a large public university that such a course should be the requirement."

However, he believes this is good for the student to be required to take such a course.

Fleischmann went on to say the entire program is still going "through various stages of approval." The Ph.D. program in Comparative Literature will be considered by the Faculty Senate sometime between April and November of this year.

"We will have some undergraduate courses offered in Comparative Literature as electives which will not have a language requirement. There will also be middle-level courses where one of the foreign languages will be required," he stated.

He explained that Comparative Literature is "comparing the literature of one country with that of another in regard to forms, structures, ideas and styles. Comparative Literature works "with literary history," he said.

He also said the undergraduate courses "are going to remain electives and the middle-level and graduate courses now being offered as electives for graduate work in English, Romance languages, German and Slavic languages will blend into the new Comparative Literature Program when it is approved."

Judicial Review Exercised On Valley Center Appropriation

For the first time in years, the General Court of the Student Government met last night to exercise its power of judicial review and tabled until next Tuesday any decision on the legality of appropriations to the Valley Center.

The act in question, passed by the Senate last January 4, appropriated $500 to the Valley Center, an institution set up to provide students in the four-college area with the opportunity to persue academic endeavors which are not available in the regular curriculum.

The constitutionality of the appropriation was challenged by Senate Vice-President Tim Cunningham. He argued that the Valley Center is not an RSO organization, and therefore not entitled to receive RSO funds.

The argument centered around a clause in the Senate's financial policy that "Any RSO Organization which is deemed to be a service to the campus or a significant portion thereof . . . may apply at any time to the Student Senate for SAT funds in order to finance activities of that organization."

Cunningham claimed that this clause was intended to exclude non-RSO groups from obtaining Student Activities Tax money from the Senate.

In support of his contention, he quoted a letter from former Senate treasurer Gary Bombardier, who recalled that when the financial policy originally came before the Senate for approval, the Senate struck out a provision which would have allowed non-RSO groups to apply for money.

Supporting Cunningham, former Senator Joe Ross recalled that in the past, the Flying Redmen, the University Reform Committee, the Band, and other groups became RSO organizations in order to be eligible to receive SAT funds.

Student Senate President John Greenquist and Treasurer Burt Freedman defended the constitutionality of the appropriation. Freedman claimed that while the financial policy stated that RSO groups could receive SAT funds, it nowhere specifically excluded non-RSO groups from receiving funds. He pointed to the fact that non-RSO groups, such as the four-college radio station, WFCR, had been given SAT funds in the past.

President Greenquist asked that the General Court consider the intent of the appropriation, and claimed that in the Senate's judgement it had fulfilled its constitutional injunction to "promote the welfare of the student body."

The General Court consists of the Men's and Women's Judiciaries meeting together. It has the power, according to the Student Government Constitution, to void acts of the Senate if they are found to be unconstitutional.

Visiting Professor Lectures

Wood, Plastics Now Combined

by BOB GORMAN
News Editor

The Visiting Scientist Program last night presented Dr. Robert W. Davidson, Assoc. Professor of Wood Products Engineering at the State College of Forestry at Syracuse University. Dr. Davidson talked on "The Recent Developments in Wood Polymer Composite."

Dr. Davidson stated that although wood materials have been used throughout history, very few changes in the properties of wood have been made. However, since World War II the research and development of wood combined with other materials has greatly increased.

The biggest development has been the combining of wood and plastics. Although the development is still in the beginning stages, manufacturers are starting to use wood-plastic combinations.

This increase of stability is very important since it remedies one of the major problems of wood, that is, its characteristic shrinking and swelling.

Dr. Davidson was brought to UMass by the Visiting Scientist Program which is jointly sponsored by the National Science Foundation and The Society of Wood Science and Technology Department.

Fine Arts Fee Approved

by PETE WARD
Staff Reporter

In a recent meeting of the Board of Trustees, a $3.00 fee per semester for Fine Arts was approved for all undergraduate students. The fee will be controlled by the new Fine Arts Council which got trustee approval last January after more than a year of bickering, confusion and compromise by the Administration, Faculty Senate and Student Senate over the make-up of the council and its powers.

The fee represents an increase of $1.00 per student per semester for Fine Arts expenses and will be used to support the University Bands, Chorale, Concert Association, Art Club, and many special events and new programs.

Some of the projected programs to be established are a folk-jazz series, expanded art acquisitions and support for a serious dance department. The Council is an autonimous body of 5 faculty and 5 students, thus assuring the undergraduate body of a voice in all decisions concerning the expenditure of this student fee.

HOUSE . . . . . No. 3683

By Mr. Nolen of Ware, petition of James R. Nolen that state agencies and public authorities be prohibited from operating hotels and motels. State Administration.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts

In the Year One Thousand Nine Hundred and Sixty-Seven.

AN ACT PROHIBITING THE OPERATION OF A HOTEL OR MOTEL BY ANY PUBLIC AUTHORITY.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Notwithstanding the provision of any special or general law to the contrary, the commonwealth, its departments, boards and political subdivisions shall not operate any hotel or motel.

CAMPUS CENTER . . .

(Continued from page 1)

Dean Redfern went further to point out that the Campus Center is to be self funded as is the present Student Union.

The Union is supported with student fees and is run jointly by representatives of the students and faculty and administration who comprise the Student Union Governing Board. The purpose of the Union is to serve the students of the University and their guests. It was in no way meant to accommodate the general public or pose a threat to motels or hotels in the Amherst area.

Plans for the Campus Center are already well underway and events for 1972 have already been placed on its calendar.

This bill has already made its way safely through the House Committee on State Administration which is chaired by Nolan, and is currently moving toward an hour of decision. It is expected to be heard next by the Committee on Ways and Means in the very near future. Informal sources at the State House do not anticipate any difficulties in approving Nolen's bill as it presently stands.

Attempts by the Collegian to contact Nolen at the State House have so far been unsuccessful.

Another bill presented by Nolen, H.190, calls for an eighteen member Board of Trustees of the University and to include on it the president of the college ex officio, and at least one qualified physician. None of these members are to be affiliated with a private medical school.

HILLEL HAS BEEN ADOPTED

by Rabbi Jacob Reiner of Holyoke

He will be here at the Hillel Coffee Hour Thursdays 1:30-5:00

CHECK BOARD FOR ROOM

"THE GIRL HE LEFT BEHIND"

with

TAB HUNTER NATALIE WOOD
JAMES GARNER DAVID JESSEN

also

MR. MAGOO

in

PLAYBOY NO. 1

MAHAR AUDITORIUM 8:15 P.M.
ADMISSION 50¢ MARCH 1, 1967

The Massachusetts Collegian

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week following vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price:
$4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office:
Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Telephone: 545-2560 — 549-1811

U. T. Announces Rehearsals For Rosmersholm

Casting has been completed and rehearsals are now under way for Henrik Ibsen's Rosmersholm, a Master of Fine Arts thesis production to be presented in Bartlett Auditorium on March 17 and 18.

Among the cast members are Peter Stelzer ('68) as Pastor Rosmer and Ann Wells as Rebekka West. Stelzer was with the University of Massachusetts summer repertory company and appeared last semester in the title role in Liliom. Ann Wells has appeared in both college and summer theatre in the mid-west.

Rosmersholm will be directed by graduate student Richard Tirrell as a partial fulfillment of requirements toward the Master of Fine Arts degree in Theatre.

Mr. Tirrell chose Rosmersholm because of the problems which this early example of Ibsen's realism offers to the modern director. "It is part of the director's task," said graduate student Tirrell, "to find those aspects of a period play which are still meaningful to a present day audience."

Mr. Tirrell feels that his task has been made a little easier by virtue of the fact that Ibsen's play, although cast in a distinctively 19th century mold, attains a degree of universality by portraying the bitter struggle and ultimate defeat of two human beings engaged in fatal conflict with the dictates of their past.

RSO PRESIDENTS

All presidents of all RSO organizations (excluding dormitories, sororities and fraternities) should leave their names and addresses in the Public Relations Committee message box in the Senate Office. This information is necessary for a current PR Committee project.

SDT Enjoys New Surroundings

Members of Sigma Delta Tau sorority at UMass moved into their new $200,000 Chapter House on North Pleasant Street overlooking the campus shortly before the Christmas vacation. Construction of the house had begun in May 1966.

Designed to accommodate up to 50 residents, with a suite for the housemother, the two-story building includes meeting, recreational and housekeeping facilities, study areas and a number of features offering special comfort and convenience along with its more functional aspects.

The basement area contains a chapter office and meeting room opening onto a sunken terrace and provides rooms for laundry, utilities and storage.

Conceived by Professional Associates, architects and planners of West Hartford, Conn., the contemporary structure, with outside walls of brick veneer on the first floor and cedar siding on the second, blends tastefully with its generally colonial surroundings. The T-shaped building occupies an area of 11,860 square feet and faces West with a broad view of the UMass campus and its striking new contemporary architecture.

An impressive two-story high hall and open stairway with a balcony linking the two second floor sleeping wings is the central feature of the front entrance.

The large dining room can accommodate 75-100 and is separated by a ceiling-high folding partition from the living room, which overlooks North Pleasant Street and opens through a glass sliding door onto a covered and paved terrace, flanked by a masonry sitting wall.

Both the library and the living room afford a superb view to the west toward the new high-rise dormitories completed in 1966.

On the second floor are eight double rooms serving for sleeping and studying and six four-bed rooms with separate study areas.

Appearance, durability and ease of maintenance were prime considerations in the design. Sound conditioning materials have been used extensively to provide maximum privacy and minimum noise within. The entire building is electrically heated, with individual controls in each room.

FROSH BUILT RUN 'FOR TRADITION'

For the first time in four years the freshman class has come through for tradition and built the toboggan run for Winter Carnival '67.

The freshmen who built the run were headed by Glenn Mangurian and Bruce Balboni. Other co-workers included Bob Twiss, Vincent Voci, Ed Henley, Steve Parnell, Dave Veale, Dave Torrey, Stan Baran, Steve Weismann and Tim Berringer.

The town of Amherst and a rather cooperative gentleman, Mr. Welcome, who happened to own a plow made the job a little easier for the builders. The town dumped a huge pile of dirt (the snow was underneath) across from Morrill. This was the start. Then Mr. Welcome used his plow to make bare the lawn for hundreds of yards in order to pile up sufficient snow for the banked turns and walls of the run.

The builders worked for several hours in the cold weather.

The actual competition on the track began around noon on Saturday, Feb. 25. The fraternities that entered were Kappa Sigma, Sigma Alpha Mu, Tau Epsilon Phi and Alpha Epsilon Pi. The winner in the frat division was Sigma Alpha Mu with 12.5 seconds as the best of their two trials. TEP came in second with 14.1 seconds. AEPi was third with 14.4 and although Kappa Sigma had a time of 12 seconds this was not one of their two trials, they placed fourth with 16.2 seconds.

The sororities that raced were Sigma Kappa, Pi Beta Phi and Kappa Kappa Gamma. Pi Phi never once made a successful run down the track and after repeated attempts they gave up. Sigma Kappa had similar difficulties but they managed to reach the finish line in 39 seconds. Kappa's was another story. These girls not only won the sororities they also won overall with an astounding 11.8 seconds.

In dorms the only contestants were Crabtree and Van Meter North. Van Meter won with a very good time of 11.9 seconds. Crabtree also did well finishing in 14.4 seconds. Trophies will be awarded to all of the winners.

College Rate in U. S. to Rise 4x National Population

The college population of the United States will increase four times as fast as the national population during the coming decade, the U. S. Office of Education predicts.

The projected jump in college enrollment is 49%. The Office of Education said that the steep gain in enrollment is expected to result from higher birth rates in the late 1940's and 1950's, together with the increasing population of students who go to college and then to graduate school.

Colleges and universities are expected to enroll about 9 million degree-seeking students in 1975-76, compared with 6.1 million enrolled in 1966-67.

In addition, about one-third of the college-age population (18-24) may be in higher education institutions 10 years from now.

The number of teachers in higher education is not expected to keep up with the increase in student enrollments. The Office of Education predicts that college and university teachers may number 640,000 in 1975, up only 36% from this year's estimate of 470,000.

BRIDAL FAIR
Monday, March 6th—1:00 p.m. to 10 p.m.
Bon wit Teller Fashions Show at 3:30 and 8:00 p.m.
Free doorprizes, displays & free literature

AMHERST Cinema
Starts TONIGHT
on screen 6:50-9:10
ZERO MOSTEL
PHIL SILVERS
JACK GILFORD
BUSTER KEATON
In A MELVIN FRANK Production
"A FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO THE FORUM"
COLOR by DeLuxe
UNITED ARTISTS
SUGGESTED FOR MATURE AUDIENCES
WED, MAR. 8th—"IS PARIS BURNING"
MAR. 15-16—"THE MIKADO" 2 days only

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE
Hanover, New Hampshire
"Language and the Formation of National Consciousness"
Intercollegiate Conference
March 31 and April 1
SPONSORS: U.S. Peace Corps, Student Council for International and Comparative Studies, Comparative Studies Center.
SPEAKERS: O. L. Chavarria-Aguilar, Amiya Chakravarty, John J. Gumperz, Joshua A. Fishman, Pierre L. van den Berghe, Cameron Nish, Dale C. Thomson, Jerome B. Grieder, Yusuf Ibish, James W. Fernandez, and others.
TOTAL FEES: $10. For information, brochures and registration forms, contact your dean. Registration closes March 23.

SKI THE BIG ONE
Stowe
Ski Weeks
5-DAY PLAN $35
5 days. 5 lessons. Monday-Friday.
7-DAY PLAN $45
7 days. 7 lessons. Monday-Sunday.
STARTING DATES:
Dec. 12, 19; Jan. 2, 9, 16, 23, 30; Feb. 6, 13, 27; Mar. 6, 13, 27; Apr. 3, 10.
Contact:
Stowe Area Association, Inc.
Box 206, Stowe, Vermont.
Tel.: (802) 253-7321
(These cooperative plans available only to guests of Stowe Area Assn. member lodges.)
SKI CAPITAL OF THE EAST

Editorial Section — Campus Comment

A Dirty Deal

More often than not, they stay dirty . . . Gordon Linen that is.

It is a guessing game for many UMass students. Each week: when will they be able to receive their clean linens. The company continues to ignore student pleas to estabish set days and hours on which they can pick up their bedding.

Unfortunately, Gordon Linen is a national company with its offices in Cambridge, Mass. and since it is so large, it retains a virtual monopoly on linen service in the Amherst area. No one can underbid Gordon linen and still make a profit. It not only supplies UMass, but also Amherst College, Smith, Mt. Holyoke and numerous other schools in the area.

It is entirely possible that the complaints from the UMass campus are being lost in a flood of complaints from all campuses. It seems more likely, however, that Gordon Linen days are switched around in order to save the company money. They would definitely rather pay their drivers time-and-a-half on the day after a holiday than pay them double time on the holiday.

Thus, the day for receiving linen is pushed up and such things happen as the distribution of Gordon Linen on the night of Winter Carni. Result: 1/3 of the students do not even receive their linen, and everyone, including the Gordon Linen dorm representatives are inconvienced.

It is time that the Gordon Linen Company took their customers into consideration. The company has continued to ignore them long enough.

If no action is taken by the compay in the immediate future, the students of UMass should not continue to rely on the service. Dormitory and in-town washing machines are available.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

New Relations

by PAT PETOW, Senate News Editor

The University Food Service will distribute a questionnaire to all meal ticket holders on or near March 6. A study of the main questions reveals a new and more realistic student administration relation.

One simple explanation of how these questions can be described so importantly is that they were drawn up, and are to be distributed, under the aegis of the student administration Food Services Committee.

On the questionnaire, two of the questions reflect much about student administration relations.

One asks if the student would favor legal transferability of meal tickets. The question, however, gives a reason why transferability has not been permitted. It costs more. If a student wants transferability, because he doesn't eat every meal or go to breakfast, the policy will cost all students about $20 more a semester. That's about the cost of the food the Commons doesn't buy and you don't eat now.

Another question, which serves as an equally good example, asks if the student would like the hot breakfast extended fifteen minutes to 8:45 a.m. This was proposed as being more convenient for the student with a 9:05 class. The question is phrased so that a decision might be made if a reasonable number of students indicate they would use the extension. It should be borne in mind, however, that this extension would also increase costs.

If the questions are answered honestly, the results can be utilized in the same manner. The administration has presented a reasonable set of alternatives. The Food Services Committee is on record expecting a like response from the student.

Student Receptionists

by THOM ARRISON, Editorial Staff

Students who work as "security receptionists" should start doing their job.

The purpose of these receptionists is to protect University and student property. Take Baker as an example. One might be amazed at the laxity shown there. When a student enters late, the student on duty often does not look up from his book. He just has the door pegged to let anyone in. Early Thursday morning last week, the student had left before 2:30 rather than staying till 3:00, the requested quitting time.

These failures allow students and non-students to enter the dorm, to take what they want if they want to, and to leave by another exit.

These "student receptionists" should start earning their beer money.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Associate News Editor ..... Richard Kline '70
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Bolvier '68
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Wednesday's Day Editors: News—Joyce Harvey '67, Editorial—P. R. Hallock

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.

The Lazy Dog

To the Editor:

I would like to offer several brief comments in response to Peter LaMontagne's letter of Feb. 27. He first states "The only reason anything is bombed in a limited war, is to destroy war material or its means of production."

This, of course, is simply not the case in the American bombing of North Vietnam, anymore than it was so during the Spanish Civil War, for example, when civilian populations were bombed.

According to Harrison Salisbury's article in the New York Times that reporter observed that certain American weapons released by U.S. planes over North Vietnam were not meant to destroy anything but human life. These weapons are termed Lazy Dogs, and I would like to quote Mr. Salisbury's description of the bombs which Mr. LaMontagne forgot to mention in his letter.

"The Lazy Dog is an advanced anti-personnel weapon introduced last spring. It conaiars of a mother bomb made of light metal that bursts over a target at low altitudes or on the ground. Within the mother bomb are 300 metal balls about the size of a baseball that roll across the ground.

They have a delicate time fuse that enables them to scatter over a widespread area and then explode, sending a rain of murderous steel splinters in all directions. One Lazy Dog is supposed to Cover an area of 300 sq. yds. with lethal fragments.

The Lazy Dog. . .has begun to replace earlier anti-personnel weapons called "pineapples". . .The pineapple is a small cannister about the size of a large tuna fish can, to which aluminum vanes are attached. It is filled with steel pellets and has a sensitive pressure trigger that is set off by impact." (Harrison Salisbury, N.Y. Times, Jan. 13, 1967).

Anti-personnel devices do not connote anti-steel, anti-concrete, or anti-war material functions, Mr. LaMontagne. Furthermore, if I have correctly interpreted your innuendos, you have, rather hurriedly dismissed the U.S. as the source of destruction of the Hanoi area. Presumably you attribute most of the damage, civilian and material, to misguided North Vietnamese missiles which plunge back to earth and explode in dozens of populated areas simultaneously.

No wishful thinking on your part, Mr. LaMontagne, could attribute any but the minutest damage to the missiles in relation to U. S. bombs which fall on North Vietnam. These are the reports of not only Mr. Salisbury but also of Mr. William Baggs, editor of the Miami News who happened to observe the damaged people, houses, schools, and churches, as well as the military targets. (N. Y. Times, Jan. 19.)

You seem to also have knowledge of the fact that the North Vietnamese concentrate their war materials in a "central supply depot." This, therefore, justifies U. S. bombing of "these supplies wherever they are found." Needless to say you are wrong, for the North Vietnamese do precisely the opposite—they store large amounts of their supplies outside of Hanoi, as they also evacuate much of the civilian population to rural areas, in order to avoid the bombing (Salisbury, Jan. 13.)

The implications of your final statements ("Why not destroy military supplies wherever they are found, populated areas or not? Then, by using the cities as supply depots, it will be the North Vietnamese who invite the destruction.") speak sickeningly for themselves, and in all sincerity I hope yours is a lone viewpoint on this campus.

Marc Greenberg

War Crimes

To the Editor:

Recently the Boston University News called for the impeachment of President Johnson and described the Vietnam war as a "high crime." It accused Johnson of desiring to prolong the war and criticized him for invading Vietnam without attempting to get a declaration of war.

When all we hear these days are cautious and restrained statements suggesting changes in the war policy, it is refreshing to read of such a straightforward position. Such a direct position, though, is easy to attack because it leaves little room for modification and flexibility.

Whatever one thinks about the war, though, it is becoming increasingly apparent that war crimes are being committed in Vietnam by the Johnson Administration—crimes that in many respects rival those of Hitler. Many of these crimes involve our government's use of chemicals in Vietnam, but other crimes are the result of our government's "pacification" program. These crimes must be recognized and the criminals must be punished.

Richard Roeder

Free Tickets

To the Editor:

The information which prompted me to write the letter that appeared in Monday's Collegian was taken from the Record Week and was accurate insofar as original plans for the Winter Carnival concerts are concerned. However, as the situation now exists, original plans were changed and the information I took from the Record Week was out of date.

It seems that the original intention of giving three hundred tickets to each of the other three colleges was not actually carried out, and the only tickets that were given were to Amherst and to Mt. Holyoke and totaled far less than three hundred each, and which Junior Class Officers attempted to recall as sales soared at the University.

I should like to see any misunderstandings caused by my letter cleared up. My apologies to the Junior Class Officers who have planned a wonderful Winter Carni.

Linda Epstein
1811 John Quincy Adams

Lunch Hour

To the Editor:

Being employed here at the University and earning every dollar that we get, I would be the first not sending my children here as:

My son or daughter could very well learn how to take ashtrays apart at home, break chairs, steal furniture, damage lighting fixtures, plug up johns, drink excessively, and too many other items that aren't fit to print.

We janitors would rather take the tuition money and deposit it in savings banks.

If the administration were to have students, especially boys, put up a $25.00 bond as other colleges do, probably the furniture and other items would remain intact.

4 Disgruntled Janitors

P.S. This was written on lunch time.

Response to Sen. Garjian

To the Editor:

One of the principal functions of the University of Massachusetts Student Senate is to maintain financially the many RSO organizations. This is one of our primary obligations; an obligation which we, as student senators, cannot afford to shirk.

In serving as representatives of the entire Student body we have found ourselves faced with a dichotomous conflict: Should we support administratively oriented organizations composed of students; or should we attempt to maintain a stable and unfluctuating tax rate, leaving the burden of these groups to the various academic departments.

In my opinion each point has its basis for merit. According to Sen. Garjian and Pres. Thomas, the Student Senate should not pay for such departmental clubs as the Forensic Society, the Economics Club, the Home Economics Club, the Education Club, the Scuba Club, the Pre Med Association, the Pre Law Association, ad infinitum. They say this because they believe, as does the majority of the Student Senate, that these organizations should, and rightfully so, be financed out of the coffers of that great enigma known affectionately as the "Administration." However, what the Senator and the President of the Class of '69 do not seem to comprehend is that the various departments will not, and, perhaps more importantly, cannot take these clubs under their wings, as brought out by Dean Roilosin of the College of Arts and Sciences.

This brings me to my second point. Should these groups in which University students participate be forced to collapse due to a lack of funds? I think not, for it is one of the functions of the Student Senate to insure that these campus organizations are operating and operating well. Therefore, if the forces refuse to fund these organizations, should we just stand by on our laurels and watch them collapse? The majority of the Student Senate does not agree with this, as illustrated by our vote on the issue in question when it was brought before the Senate.

But let me again reflect upon the letters by Messrs. Garjian and Thomas. Their cause is just, and, in some respects, their arguments are valid. Every student senator whole-heartedly agrees that the University should finance such groups. However, where the majority differs with the Senator from JFK House is that we do not believe it to be in the best interests of the Student body as a whole to use these RSO student populated clubs as a pawn of Student Senate polemics and as a vehicle for our attacks upon Administrative intransigence. This, in effect, would be a dilatory perversion of the purpose behind the existance and the ideal of student government.

The Garjian-Thomas crusade is an important issue, subject to a great deal of heated debate in the Student Government Association. However, if and when a decision is reached, the course of action decided upon should not be one which sacrifices in the meanest fashion, the existence of recognized Student Organizations, not withstanding whether they contain twenty or two hundred-twenty supporters.

Harvey R. Stone '67
Senator, Gorman House

(Editors Note: The Collegian is not responsible for the opinions expressed in Campus Comment.)

'Artistic Laughing Stock'

To the Editor:

Suffice it to say that your comments on Caesura were ridiculous—that a universally satisfying Caesura would be an artistic laughing stock, than 50% of the latest issue employed traditional metric forms, that artwork was prolific, that you'd probably have denied student funds to Donne, Yeats, Creeley and all their "obscurantist" ilk, that you'd probably have forced the cash on Edgar Guest, that Caesura ought not, under any circumstances, "respect the needs and desires of the University community, that there's a fair chance this community is sponsored by the D. A. R."

Jeffrey Lister

Campus Comment

The New Colleege

To the Editor:

With the Collegian 1967 elections a month old and the new officers finally settled down to their jobs, I think a casual evaluation of the past four months might be in order.

In November, when I resigned as Editor-in-Chief to become a staff member, I viewed the change with little optimism. It seemed the staff merely wanted change for the sake of change. The then-News Editor, Gordie Davidson, took over as Editor-in-Chief while Jim Foudy retained his post of Managing Editor in addition to becoming acting News Editor.

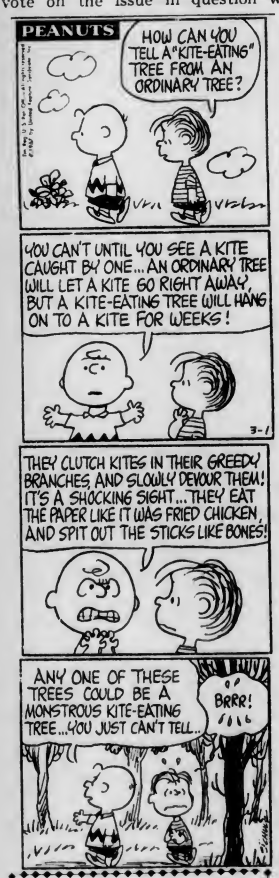
But with the new leadership of the Collegian came a revitalized spirit and closer, more open association of the different staffs. Surprisingly, this pleasant environment lasted...and continued to last. There was no evidence that the new editors were just biding their time until the second semester elections could relieve them of their unexpected obligations. The makeup of the paper was consistent in quality and imagination, the scope of coverage did not diminish, and a vigorous recruiting program was established.

Then came the annual Collegian elections early this month. If ever a newspaper faces the possibility of achieving utter chaos and dissention, it is after an election when new editors face situations they have never faced before.

Now, after a month of the new Collegian, what is it like? It is a topflight collegiate newspaper.

Sure, datelines are sometimes confused, photos have mismatched captions, editorialists tear their hair when the news staff remains silent about tomorrow's front page news. Even dirty dishes make occasional appearances. But the Collegian has a very bright month's history in addition to a sparkling semester ahead of it.

Breaking the tradition of the defeated nominee leaving the paper, aspirant Dick Kline (defeated for the News Editor slot) is now the first Associated Press wire editor in the Collegian's history. After spending a tentative few weeks, News Editor Bob Gorman now has a promising organization set up and on its way to implementation.



Former Day Editor Tom Fitzgerald is now head of the Sports Staff, and is keeping up the standards he has displayed for the past year. John Kelley, a co-Photography Editor and a fine photographer in his own right, has communicated his enthusiasm and skill to the more than 20 staff photographers, while Ellie Skinner has maintained the makeup and wide range of opinion on the Editorial page.

As Business Manager, Chuck Smith has continued the quiet dependability which made him an advertising manager's advertising manager. Dot Silvia and Sharon Kramer are sharing the Advertising Manager's desk while they pry money from local merchants and dream up catchy ads for eager student sponsors.

Everyone can't be mentioned. The staff members continue to provide editors with fewer and fewer headaches. The Collegian continues to provide its readers with more and better material.

I haven't mentioned the top two editors. Editor-in-Chief Chet Weinerman and right-hand man Jack Dean are good for the Collegian. They smile, they sympathize, they work hard. In the final analysis, it is said that the staff members make the body of the newspaper. Chet and Jack are, in a technical sense, merely representatives. The Collegian couldn't have two finer representatives.

Thank you,
Tom Donovan

SONS and LOVERS
Fri., March 3 - 8:00 p.m.
Mahar Aud.
50¢
MORTAR BOARD for Scholarship Fund

"... Our eyes
Are armed, but we are strangers to the stars,
And strangers to the mystic beasts and bird,
And strangers to the plant and to the mine."

—Emerson

ITS HERE! EARRINGS FROM XANADU
Saturdays at Xanada the Alley Amherst

INFIRMARY PATRONS
Come early to avoid the rush.

The Outpatient Clinic is open with a full staff at 8:00 A.M. Monday thru Friday. By coming in early (8-9 A.M.) you will reduce substantially the waiting time before being seen, and will find all of your needs met more promptly.

Our space is limited and will continue to be until an addition can be built. Until that time, it will be difficult for the staff to see everyone promptly during comfortable midday hours; therefore, in your own interest and in the interest of other students, please try to make your visits early in the day, whenever possible.

AN EXCUSE NOT TO STUDY
FRIDAY NIGHT
THE NEWPORT-BALBOA BEACH FILM
DO YOU DARE?
FRI., MARCH 3
SBA 120
7:17 P.M.
Sponsored by
CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST

Join a Giant on the move
ARMY & AIR FORCE EXCHANGE SERVICE
Careers in Management

Investigate the unlimited opportunities now available with one of the largest, most progressive and successful retailing organizations—the worldwide "PX" Exchange Service.

A modern training program will prepare you for an initial assignment at one of our many PX installation centers throughout the United States on the executive/management level. Transfer to overseas location available after training period.

Career positions are available in the following fields for qualified graduates:

• Retailing • Buying • Accounting • Auditing • Architecture • Mechanical Engineering • Personnel • Food Management • Systems Analysis • Personal Services and Vending Management

We are seeking graduates with majors in:

★ Business Administration ★ Economics ★ Psychology ★ Mathematics ★ Liberal Arts ★ Marketing ★ Architectural Design ★ Mechanical Engineering ★ Personnel Administration ★ Accounting ★ Systems ★ Food and Hotel Management

Excellent starting salaries. Liberal company benefits including: group insurance, paid vacations, retirement plan, sick leaves, liberal travel allowances, relocation expenses, tuition assistance.

(NO FEDERAL SERVICE ENTRANCE EXAMINATION REQUIRED)

Campus Interviews Will Be Held On FRIDAY, MARCH 3rd

For further information write to
MR. CARL SALAMONE MANAGER COLLEGE RECRUITMENT
ARMY AND AIR FORCE EXCHANGE SERVICE
OAK CLIFF BANK TOWER
400 SO. ZANGS BLVD.
DALLAS, TEXAS 75208

- Notices -

STUDENT SENATE
The Student Senate will meet this evening in the S.U. Council Chambers at 7:00 P.M. Students, faculty and other members of the University Community are invited to attend.

COLONEL'S CADRE
On Thurs., March 2, at 7:30 P.M. in Bristol Room, S.U., there will be an open rush party for Colonel's Cadre Hostesses for the Army ROTC — all female undergraduates welcome.

YAHOO ART STAFF
There will be a meeting on Sunday, March 5, at 9:00 P.M. in the Yahoo office, Franklin Room, S.U. Anyone interested in joining the art staff is welcome.

DAVID GRAYSON CONCERT SERIES
On Sunday, March 5, at 4:00 P.M. Amherst String Quartet will perform in David Grayson Lounge. Public is invited.

STUDENTS FOR POLITICAL ACTION
On March 2, at 6:30 P.M. in Council Chambers B, election of officers, and discussion of programs of semester will be held. Everyone welcome.

STUDENT RELIGIOUS LIBERALS
On Sunday, March 5, at 6:00 P.M. there will be an important business meeting and a cost supper at the Unitarian Church.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
On Wed., March 1, in S.U. Ballroom, there will be a meeting to finish plans for the Folk Festival this weekend.

WMUA INTERVIEWS
Taped interviews with the Lovin' Spoonful and the Young Rascals will be heard on the "Crazy Rhythms Show" Friday night at 8:30 on WMUA (91.1 FM).

SENATE ELECTIONS
Nominations for Senators from Grayson, Field, Sororities and John Adams Middle are due March 2. Elections will be held in dorms, on March 9, from 6-9 P.M. Sorority election will be in lobby of union.

AMHERST COLLEGE ART GALLERY
There will be an exhibit on current Israeli art beginning March 6 and continuing for 2 weeks. Gallery talk is Monday, March 6, at 4:30 P.M.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS
There will be a bus Saturday, March 4 going to Belchertown State School for all those who would like to spend Saturday afternoon working with the mentally retarded. Bus leaves the North Commons Parking lot at 1:20 and stops at Newman Center at 1:25.

FORENSIC SOCIETY
During the month of March, UMass Forensic Society will be host to the varsity debators from McGill University, Montreal, Quebec, in the third of a series of Public Debates presented to the public free of charge.
The topic for debate is Resolved: that America has passed from barbarism to decadence without passing through civilization. Place and time will be announced later.

PSYCHOLOGY LECTURE
A Colloquium will be held at Bartlett 61, on Friday, March 3, at 4:30 P.M. by John R. Frederiksen, Research Fellow in Cognitive Studies at Harvard, on a "Study of Perceptual Recognition in Two Sense Modalities."

NORTHAMPTON VOLUNTEERS
Bus will take volunteers to Northampton State mental hospital on Wed., March 1, leaving the S.U. lobby at 6:30 P.M. All are invited.

LOCAL No. 1776 UMASS EMPLOYEES
Union AFSCME-AFL-CIO regular monthly meeting will be held March 2, in Plymouth Room, S.U. at 7:30 P.M.

AUK
On Saturday, March 4, at 1:00 P.M. a trip to Springfield will take place. A must for continued membership in AUK.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA
On March 4, at 8:30 P.M. in Mahar Aud., the movie "Come Blow your Horn" will be shown with cartoons. Admission is 50c.

MANAGEMENT CLUB
There will be a meeting of the club at 7:00 P.M. on Thurs., Mar. 2, 1967 in Room No. 323 SBA. All interested persons are cordially invited.

EDUCATION CLUB
On Wed., evening, March 1, at 7:45 in the School of Ed. Aud., Mr. Fred D. Knittle will give a lecture on the Clarke School for the Deaf. The talk titled "Breaking the Silence Barrier will be followed by the film Susan's Wonderful Adventure." All are invited. Refreshments will be served.

ARCHAEOLOGY LECTURE
On March 2, at 8:00 P.M. in McConnell Hall, Smih College, Kyle M. Phillips, Jr., a member of the Bryn Mawr Department of Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology will speak. The lecture, entited "Perseus and Andromeda" is sponsored by the Western Mass. Chapter of the Archaeogical Institute of America.

THEATRE LECTURE
On Wed., March 1, at 8:00 P.M. Hans G. Helms, author composer and lecturer of the Avant-Garde, will speak at Sage Hall, Smith College on "Suppositions for Modern Musica Theatre." Open to the public.

JAPANESE LITERATURE LECTURE
On Friday, March 3, at 8:00 P.M. Howard S. Hibbett, Professor of Japanese Literature at Harvard will speak at Amherst College. The topic of his lecture will be "Natsume Sosekl and the Modernization of Meiji Literature."

SKI CLUB
All members who would like to ski in the Giant Slolom Ski Race (beginners-experts) please attend meeting on March 6, at 7:00 P.M. in Morrill Aud. There will also be free movies.

LOST:
Wallet in Bartlett Hall area, lost on Feb. 20. Leave at Lobby Counter in Student Union.
Room key on path between Morrill and South Commons. If found, please return to housemother, Van Meter South.
Set of keys, cars, apartment, etc. Identification tag is green, reads 59 CHRYS. Call 584-3684 or leave at S.U. lost and found.

FOUND:
One General Motors Car key with beige tag. Check at S.U. Lost and Found.
Box of stationery in basement classroom of Fernald Hall last week. Call Del between 11:30 and 6:30 A.M. to identify. 6-9303.

PINNINGS:
Karen Gustafson, class of '68, T-4, to Carl Gustafson, class of '68, Beta Kappa Phi.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Joanne L. Watts, class of '67, Vermont College, to Richard D. Park, class of '70, J.F.K. Upper.

Officials To Talk On Rec. Land

Two federal officials will speak on recreational land use at U-Mass in talks March 1 and March 9 sponsored by the Arboriculture and Park Administration Association.

Ira Lykes, chief of the division of park practice programs for the U.S. National Parks Service, will speak on "Family Camping Design" Wednesday, March 1 at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Plymouth and Norfolk Rooms.

Joseph Jackson of Dixon, Mont., forester for the U. S. Bureau of Indian Affairs, will speak on "Multiple Land Use" Thursday, March 9 at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Council Chambers.

The UMass Arboriculture and Park Administration Association comprises two-and four-year students in the department of landscape architecture majoring in arboriculture, park management and park administration.

WMUA Announces 'Top' 25

*former pick hit
former sure shot

no.			last week
1.	PENNY LANE/STRAWBERRY FIELDS	Beatles	9
2.	RUBY TUESDAY	Rolling Stones	1
3.	SOCK IT TO ME—BABY	Mitch Ryder & the Detroit Wheels	3
4.	I THINK WE'RE ALONE NOW	Tommy James & the Shondells	17
5.	CALIFORNIA NIGHTS	Lesley Gore	19
6.	I'VE BEEN LONELY TOO LONG	Young Rascals	8
7.	THE BEAT GOES ON	Sonny and Cher	4
8.	NO MILK TODAY/KIND OF A HUSH	Herman's Hermits	24
9.	LOVE IS HERE AND NOW YOU'RE GONE	Supremes	2
10.	SIT DOWN I THINK I LOVE YOU	Mojo Men	18
11.	DARLIN' BE HOME SOON	Lovin' Spoonful	16
12.	MORE OF THE MONKEES LP	Monkees	5
*13.	FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH	Buffalo Springfield	20
14.	YOU GOT TO ME	Neil Diamond	6
15.	INDESCRIBABLY BLUE	Elvis Presley	15
16.	GO WHERE YOU WANNA GO	5th Dimension	17
17.	KIND OF A DRAG	Buckinghams	11
18.	SAVE ME	Dave, Dee, Dozy, Beaky, Mick and Tich	25
*19.	BABY I NEED YOUR LOVIN'	Johnny Rivers	23
20.	UPS AND DOWNS	Paul Revere and the Raiders	31
*21.	HAPPY TOGETHER	Turtles	27
22.	59th STREET BRIDGE SONG (Feelin' Groovy)	Harper's Bizarre	36
23.	PEOPLE IN ME	Music Machine	29
24.	EPISTLE TO DIPPY	Donovan	12
*25.	DON'T DO IT	Mickey Dolenz	30

Lederle to Host Campus Breakfast

UMass President John W. Lederle will be the host at a University Community Breakfast, Friday, March 3, at 7:45 a.m., sponsored by the University in cooperation with the Amherst Chamber of Commerce.

The breakfast will be in Dining Commons No. 2 of the UMass Southwest Residential Area. All members of the community are invited. Admission will be 95 cents.

UMass Dean of Administration Leo F. Redfern will talk on the proposed Campus Center; UMass Treasurer Kenneth W. Johnson and Business Manager Gerald J. Grady will discuss the University operating budget and related business matters.

At 9 a.m. the program will conclude with a tour of the Southwest Residential Area.

If You See

News in the Making

Dial

545-2550

HELP!

Everybody has heard about Zip Code.

But not everybody is using it. Perhaps some people think of it as just a favor to the post office—something to do if they happen to think of it.

But Zip Code is much, much more than that.

Zip helps our postal workers move mail the modern way. With Zip, they can sort it faster and deliver it by more direct routes. With Zip, they will use modern electronic machines that "read" Zip numbers and sort mail fifteen times faster than was possible before!

People who don't use Zip Code hold up the mail for themselves and for everyone else.

So use Zip on every mailing address. Use it on your return address, too. When in doubt about a Zip Code, you can call your post office or look it up in their Zip Code Directory.

And if someone writes you and doesn't use Zip Code —tell him. For us. We need all the help we can get.

HOW ZIP CODE WORKS

Suppose the Zip Code is 60635. The "6" says it goes to the Midwest. The "06" narrows it down to Chicago. The last two digits—"35"—pinpoint the local post office. This eliminates many handling procedures. The letter is sorted faster, and sent more directly to its destination.

Published as a public service in cooperation with The Advertising Council

Mail moves the country—
ZIP CODE moves the mail!

REUNION—Intramural Director Ted Schmitt (left) presents trophy to senior Dick Qualey, this year's campus rebounding champ. Schmidt, who was appointed IM head this year, was line coach for the football team last fall, and Qualey was one of his prize pupils.

Intramural Volleyball Results

MONDAY
IFC
BKP over SAM, 15-11, 15-2
LCA over TKE, 15-11, 15-10
AEPi over PSD, 15-5, 15-6
PMD over ASP, 15-11, 15-11
KS over ATG, 15-6, 15-6
AEPi over KS, 15-13, 15-11
INDEPENDENT
Camoflagues over Lassie's Losers, 15-13, 15-6
DORMS
Flaming A's over Apples, 15-8, 15-6
Maroons over Eagles, 15-2, 11-15, 15-8
Giants over Buffaloes, 15-5, 15-17, 16-14
Panthers over Commanchees, 15-2, 15-4
LAST NIGHT
IFC
AEPi over PMD, 15-1, 15-6
INDEPENDENT
Chem Club over Dufarbs, 15-4, 15-6
Toads over Moots, 15-6, 12-15, 15-5
Imps over Bismarcks, 15-8, 10-15, 15-4
Oddbadds over R. Numerals, 15-7, 11-15, 15-6
A-Type over Sched Eds, Forfeit
DORMS
Redwoods over Smashers, 15-9, 15-1
Spartans over Academics, Forfeit
Flaming A's over Apples, 15-3, 15-6
Hemlocks over Seagrams, Forfeit
Aces over Phallics, Forfeit
Lemons over Chestnuts, 13-5, 15-8, 15-5
Flaming A's over Limes, 7-15, 15-4, 15-6
Hicks over Hoovers, 15-13, 5-15, 15-12
Trojans over Elms, Forfeit
Hi-Lo's over Maples, 15-2, 11-15, 15-11
Eagles over Senators, Forfeit
Buffaloes over Bruins, Forfeit
Maroons over Giants, 15-9, 15-9
Bulldozers over Granits, 15-4, 15-11
Redwoods over Spartans, Forfeit

Intramural Volleyball Timetable

TONIGHT

Time	Court	Team
6:30	1	Camo. No.-Forestry
	2	Camo. So.-Boilermakers
	5	Lassies-Smitty's
	6	Jaspers-Fruits
	7	Orgies-Phantoms
	11	Eagles-Grants
	12	Maroons-Senators
7:30	1	Bulldozers-Buffalos
	2	Bruins-Giants
	5	Colt 45-Panthers
	6	Commanchees-Colonials
	7	Cougars-Patriots
8:30	1	Selottasas-Dufarbs
	2	"A" Type-Lucky 13

THURSDAY

Time	Court	Team
6:30	1	SAM-ZN
	2	TC-APO
	5	QTV-SPE
	6	BKP-TEP
	7	TKE-AEPi
	8	ATG-ASP
	11	PSD-PMD
	12	LCA-KS
7:30	1	Redwoods-Flaming "A"
	2	Seagrams-Academics
	5	Spartans-Smashers
	6	Apples-Hemlocks
	7	Limes-Phallics
	8	Lemons-Aces
	11	Chestnuts-Flaming "A"
	12	Maples-Hoovers
8:30	1	Elms-Hicks
	2	Trojans-HiLo's
	5	Commanchees-Jaguars
	6	Cougars-Panthers
	7	Patriots-Colonials
	8	Toads-Imps
	11	Roman Numerals-Imps
	12	Oddballs-Bismarks

Redmen Grapplers Lose Battle To Tufts, Finish Season at 2-8

by ROGER KIPP
Staff Reporter

Tough Tufts took a double victory in a dual wrestling meet with UMass Monday in Boyden auxiliary gym, in the final home meet of the season. After the Tufts freshmen had triumphed 23-14 in the prelim, the varsity captured their end of it by a nearly identical 22-13 score.

Tufts, like UConn, the last team to appear here, had their best wrestler and co-capt. in the 123 lb. class. He was Don Altvater, who got them off to a 3-0 lead with a 9-2 decision over Redmen sophomore Tom LeFebvre. In the 130 lb. class, UMass' Marc Ryerson stayed in there all the way but dropped a 9-4 decision to Greg Gessey.

The Redmen then proceeded to pile up points. Usually reliable Gino Paltrineri racked up a pin in the 137 bracket. After two near falls in the second period, Gino needed only a little time in the third for the pin.

Despite the team's woes at times, Gene has been consistent all year. Apparently it runs in the family. A high school state champ himself, Gino has a brother, Ralph, who just recently won the Mass. state title in the 120 lb. class, wrestling out of Wellesley High.

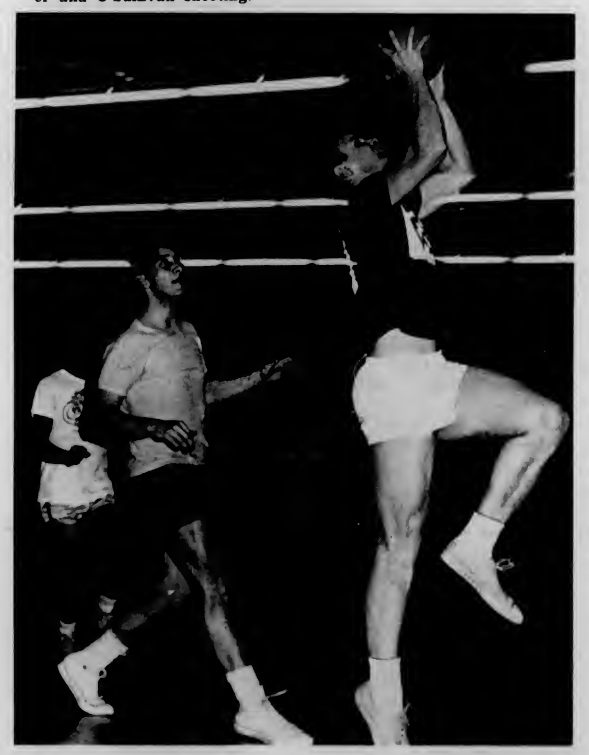
Art Keown won by default in the 145 class, but he is another one who is a good bet to win anyway. Coupled with Keown's default victory, Wayne Duckworth (152) coasted to a 6-0 decision over Al Sugarman of Tufts and made it 13-6 in favor of UMass.

From then on it was tough sledding for the Redmen. Tufts, behind Lee Norden (160), Jack Alkon (167), and Lance Johnson (177), racked up three straight victories, nailing down the victory and a 6-4 season overall.

In an exciting heavyweight exhibition, Ed Toner of UMass decisioned Jerry May of Tufts. Toner is not a member of the team. Not to detract from Toner's football ability, but it may be that he missed his call in wrestling. Ed is a tremendous athlete and with the experience required could have been one of the best in this section of the country.

All that remains for the 1966-1967 wrestling season is the N.E.I.W.A. tournament at Tufts this coming week-end.

Regardless of the final record 2-8, or the performances at Tufts, it was a good season, especially in the light of experience. There were many pleasant surprises, Paltrineri the most notable.



The future looks brighter due to: (1) a good freshmen team, and (2) an increasing interest in the sport at UMass due to the presence of Homer Barr. Coach Barr, given the chance, could make UMass an eastern powerhouse. He has that winning tradition.

Who?

Advertisement in Boston Globe of Tuesday, Feb. 27: Basketball — World Champions Celtics vs. San Francisco 49ers—Wed., March 1, 7:45 p.m.

Thanx to H.E.

Left to right: Anderson, Fisher and O'Sullivan shooting.

Women's Ski Squad Finishes Fourth in Radcliffe Slalom

The UMass Women's Ski Team competed in the annual Radcliffe Giant Slalom held on Saturday, Feb. 25, at Wildcat Mt., N. H. In a field of thirteen other colleges, the team skied to fourth place. Leading the A team with a sixth place run was Kim Garrison, while other scorers were Judy Fuller, Judy Beers, and Barb Bund.

The next day at Intervale Ski Area, the girls bounced back to capture first place in the two run slalom. Freshman Judy Fuller raced to finish third, while Judy Beers and Barb Bund skied consistently well to round out the winning combination.

UMass' women skiers placed first in a field of 11 women The Giant Slalom, sponsored by Northeastern University, was teams from Southern New England colleges Saturday, the 11th, at Mad River Glenn.
the first of the season for the Women's Intercollegiate Ski Conference.

On the trail, which had a poor base under a light cover of new powder, Judy Fuller led Coach Bigglestone's squad with a third-place run of 63 seconds. Kim Garrison finished seventh at 68 seconds, Judy Beers ninth at 70 seconds, and Barbara Fund 10th at 74 seconds.

Thus far, the UMass team is ranked first among the eleven other members of the Women's Intercollegiate Ski Conference. The last race of the season will be a Giant Slalom at Mt. Cranmore March 11.

Stockbridge Beats Yale Frosh

For the second time this season the Stockbridge rifle team defeated the Yale freshmen in a match held last Saturday in New Haven.

Two weeks ago the Stockbridge squad handled both the Yale and Harvard yearlings in a triangle meet. The earlier match was fired at American targets, with Saturday's match using the international type target.

High man for Stockbridge was Bob Andrews, who shot 97, 78, 80. In the match Andrews became the first Stockbridge rifleman to qualify for the distinguished expert award.

Saturday, both the Stockbridge team and the UMass varsity host the frosh and varsity from Dartmouth, respectively. The match will be held in Dickinson Hall in the afternoon.

STOCKBRIDGE		YALE
Andrews	255	Bieber	243
Enselek	253	Weber	236
Sears	241	Weil	228
Miller	238	Reeves	226
Welcome	237	Tourie	197
	1224		1130

"About the time you think you can make ends meet, somebody moves the ends."

Edwards Named To All-East Division I Team

Tim Edwards was selected to the All-East Division I weekly basketball team this week.

The team, picked by sports writers and broadcasters for the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference, consisted of the following:

Forwards—Andy Anderson, Canisius; Tim Edwards, Massachusetts; John Haarlow, Princeton; Charles Phillips, Fairfield.

Centers — Sonny Dove, St. John's; Keith Hochstein, Holy Cross.

Guards — Billy Evans, Boston College; Bob Lloyd, Rutgers; Wes Bialosuknia, Connecticut; Jim Walker, Providence.

THE GREAT CARUSO—Al Caruso, who won the campus and IFC handball championships for the third year in a row, is flanked by Bruce Beauvais (left), independent champion, and Mike Daley, dormitory champ and campus runner-up.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
Sports
WEDNESDAY, MAR. 1, 1967
Page 8 Vol. XCV, No. 49

Redmen Survive Scare to Edge B. U., 70-67

DiSarcina's Foul Shot Clinches with 10 Seconds Left

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

BOSTON—When Boston University hit its basketball peak in the '58-'59 season, it was a scrappy six-footer named Jack Leaman who provided the winning spark. Last night Leaman returned to Commonwealth Ave., and it was another pint-sized field general who sparked Coach Leaman's UMass Redmen to a 70-67 cliff hanger over upset-minded B.U.

DiSarcina made a number of steals, and scored 11 points, including a super-clutch free throw with 10 seconds left to clinch the victory.

For the Redmen, it was the second straight victory but only the third in the last 10 games. The seasonal record is 11-13 with only Saturday night's tussle at St. John's remaining.

With 15 minutes left, the Redmen held a 46-39 lead over the Terriers, who now stand at 4-16. But a foul shot and field goal by Richie Lee and a three-point play by Randy Robinson offset a Bill Tindall free throw to close the margin to 47-45 with 13 and a half minutes left.

UMass captain Frank Stewart traded hoops with B.U. captain Skip Mortimer, but Wayne Hannigan and Mortimer scored field goals to knot the count at 51-all with 10:53 remaining.

After Stewart and Mortimer swapped hoops again, UMass pushed ahead on a DiSarcina free throw. The Redmen held a slight edge the rest of the way.

Al Gallagher's field goal and two free throws by Robinson shaved the lead to 66-65 with slightly over two minutes left. DiSarcina and Stewart scored, however, to give the Redmen a 69-65 lead with 55 seconds left.

A bomb by Mortimer after several B.U. shots kept it tense at 69-67. Then DiSarcina was fouled, and the sophomore from nearby Somerville came through at the line with 10 seconds showing on the clock.

The Redmen held a 22-14 lead after 11 minutes in the very loosely played first half. B.U. chipped the lead away on the shooting of Gallagher, however, UMass lead by a mere point, 32-31, at the halftime break.

Tim Edwards was a shining star for UMass with 17 points, the top total for both teams. His 16 rebounds was the big reason that UMass held a formidable 50-21 lead off the boards.

Tindall and DiSarcina followed with 11 apiece. Tindall fouled out with 2:42 left in the game.

Mortimer, who only had two points in the first half, was as elusive as the Boston Strangler in the second, finishing with 16 points. Robinson had 13 and Gallagher 12.

The sky-high Terriers certainly had their shooting eyes, with a 28-43 showing from the floor and an 11-16 card at the line. The Redmen were 31 for 78 and 8 for 18.

MASSACHUSETTS	Fg	Fga	Ft	Fta	Reb	Pf	Tp
Gasperack	3	4	2	3	4	0	8
Stewart	3	6	1	3	7	5	7
Tindall	4	16	4	6	7	5	11
Edwards	8	16	1	4	16	2	17
Lisack	4	9	0	0	2	3	8
DiSarcina	6	14	1	2	5	1	11
Rand	0	2	0	0	1	0	0
Murphy	3	9	0	0	0	0	6
Gemei	0	1	0	0	0	2	0
Girotti	1	3	0	0	2	0	2
Team					4
TOTALS	31	78	8	18	50	12	70

BOSTON UNIVERSITY	Fg	Fga	Ft	Fta	Reb	Pf	Tp
Lee	3	7	0	1	9	4	6
Mortimer	6	11	4	4	1	1	16
Gallagher	5	6	2	2	4	2	16
Robinson	5	5	3	4	2	2	13
Walko	3	6	1	2	2	3	7
Washington	0	1	0	0	1	0	0
Sheehan	2	2	0	0	0	0	4
Hannigan	4	5	1	3	2	3	9
Team					5
TOTALS	28	43	11	16	21	15	67

IT'S SONNY IN NEW YORK —The UMass Redmen will run up against an All-American center in 6'8 Sonny Dove when they travel to Jamaica, N.Y., Saturday to engage in tribal warfare with the Redmen of St. John's.

Skaters Beaten By Holy Cross, Finish 8-10-1

WORCESTER — The UMass hockey team, which had beaten Holy Cross earlier in the season at Amherst, lost to the Crusaders 6-4 here last night.

It was the season's finale for the Redmen, whose final record was 8-10-1. Without the services of injured stars Ed Polchlopek and Bill Skowyra, UMass lost the last five games of the season.

It was also the last game of a 12-year career for retiring U-Mass coach Steve Kosakowski.

Holy Cross opened up a 4-0 lead on a first-period burst. Junior Jim O'Brien broke the ice for the Redmen with a second-period thrust, but the Crusaders scored again to lead, 5-1, after two periods.

The Redmen rallied for three goals in the final period. O'Brien scored his second goal and was followed by Ed Quimby and Don Robinson to trail by just 5-4 in the late stages. Holy Cross, however, notched an insurance tally.

COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"
545-2550

Trackmen Outclass UNH; Will Compete in IC4A's

DURHAM, N. H. — Getting excellent performances from several competitors, the track team buried New Hampshire last Saturday in the midst of Winter Carnival festivities.

Court Bassett, who is improving steadily, won the weight throw with a fine heave of 49'8" in his final effort of the day. Charley Lang won the pole vault, but UNH swept the broad jump.

As the running events began, the meet was even. Terry Carpenter and Greg Bowman gave UMass the edge, however with a 1-2 finish in the mile. Carpenter clocked 4:18.2 for a new cage record. Steve Burrell was nipped at the wire in the 60-yard dash with 6.4, and Bob Hasselbaum was third with 6.5 Pete Moryl grabbed second in the high hurdles.

John Andersen ran second in the 600 but clocked a fine 1:12.6 for a new school record. Diego Gonzales finished third with an impressive 1:13.3 Paul Hoss, Steve St. Clair, and Charley Lang swept the 2-mile with times of 9:45, 9:48 and 9:52 respectively.

Gonzales, Carpenter, and Bowman teamed up for another sweep in the 1000, with Diego's winning time at 2:19.3. John Anderson won the low hurdles in 7.3 and Moryl was third. The relay team of Andersen, Hasselbaum, Hoss and Bill Thoms ran a fine 3:28 but was beaten by UNH.

The win marked the first of the season for the Redmen who had previously dropped meets to Northeastern and Connecticut.

This weekend, the team's top runners will be going to New York's Madison Square Garden to compete in the IC4A. Among those making the trip will be Steve Burrell, dash; Art Larvey, broad jump; John Andersen and Diego Gonzales, 600; Greg Bowman, 1000; Terry Carpenter and Steve St. Clair, mile; and Paul Hoss, 2-mile.

Dick Lennon: Conscientious Swim Team Captain

by ELMAN

"He's the best captain I've ever had, a real competitor. He's always doing something for the benefit of the team, always taking an interest in team problems. There hasn't been any swimmer whom I've thought of more as a person."

Thus UM's varsity swimming coach, Joe Rogers, summed up his feelings toward his current captain, Dick Lennon.

Lennon started swimming at age seven, began competition two years later. His interest in swimming was initiated by Neil Gaudet, swim instructor at the Lynn Boys' Club near Dick's home. For the last two summers, Lennon has served as assistant swim director at Swampscott Beach Club under Gaudet.

The 5' 10", 175-lb. senior started his 13 years of aquatic competition at the Lynn Boys' Club, Lynn YMCA, and Huntington School. Holder of over 100 medals and awards, Lennon was Most Valuable Swimmer at the 1960 New England A.A.U. meet. In that same same year, he became Mass. breaststroke champion. He also received the Lynn Youth-of-the-Month Award in April, 1963, for serving as volunteer swim coach at the Lynn Boys' Club.

Although UMass does not offer swimming scholarships, Lennon has proven to be a dedicated and conscientious athlete. His four UMass varsity records reflect his hard work. The new standards which he set are the 200-yd. breaststroke (2:28.0), 200-yd. individual medley (14.6.0), and being a member of the record-shattering 400-yd. medley relay team (3:15.0) and the 400-yd. freestyle relay squad (2:29.1). Only the 200-yd. individual medley mark no longer stands, that mark being surpassed by Bob Asquith.

"I wish I could swim another four years for Joe Rogers and UMass," says Lennon. Dick hopes to finish his studies for his degree next year and possibly have time to assist Coach Rogers and the squad. Eventually Lennon wants to go into physiotherapy or adapted physical education.

The 21-year-old Physical Education major states unhesitatingly that the happiest moment in his swim career was "being named UMass captain this year."

Lennon's most disappointing moment occurred against Coast Guard last year. After setting a record in the breaststroke event, an exhausted Lennon was asked by Coach Rogers if he could swim the 400-yd. freestyle relay to win the meet for UMass Dick consented and the relay team would have set a new record if he had not been disqualified due to a false start by a Coast Guard judge. The ensuing bitter protest was to no avail as UM ended the season with a losing 5-6 mark. This year's squad avenged that defeat last week with a resounding 69-26 rout of the Guardsmen at the Boyden Pool.

DICK LENNON

"I wish I could swim another four years for Joe Rogers and UMass."

The swim captain points to his last two record-breaking performances against old friend and rival Pete Schliemann of Amherst College as among his most exciting moments.

Dick serves as a volunteer swim instructor for retarded children from Amherst's Cushman school every Thursday morning at Womens' Physical Education Building. He has been instructor for the last three years.

His other interests include popular music (mostly Broadway show tunes), scuba diving, sailing, traveling, and dancing. Lennon is a member of the Newman Club and a dorm counselor at Wheeler House.

Since returning to the squad following a hepatitis attack just before the Christmas holidays, Lennon has sparked the mermen to three consecutive triumphs in the last two weeks. "I'm sure that the team will do better next year as the younger swimmers become more mature." He eagerly anticipates a fine team showing in the New Englands to be held March 9-11 at So. Conn. College.

One of the most popular athletes on the UM scene, Dick has been given the nickname of C.C. by his teammates for his Cheshire Cat grin. Lennon swims so hard that he gets pains sometimes at the end of a race and instead of moaning, he will start laughing and soon everyone on the squad laughs with him.

COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"
545-2550

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

CAMPUS CENTER CONTROVERSY
Page 4

VOL. XCV, NO. 50 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 1967

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

UMass students express their concern over the killing in Vietnam. As many as thirty people stood in the bitter cold to protest the war.

SPA Holds Weekly Vigil For Peace in Vietnam

by PAMELA METAXAS
Staff Reporter

UMass had its first weekly peace vigil Wednesday morning from 11:30 to 1 p.m. The Vigil was initiated by the Students for Political Action, who have recently been granted a one month executive order.

The Peace Vigil was held in front of the Student Union. Approximately 20-25 students stood in the bitter cold.

Members of SPA passed out pamphlets to passers-by. One of the pamphlets was an explanation of the Vigil and its aims. It contained the following words: "To express our sorrow and our protest because we Americans are killing and are being killed in Vietnam: We hold this Vigil Wednesdays 11:30 to 1:00." Another was a reprint from The Minority Of One (November, 1966), An Open Letter to Henry Cabot Lodge from Corliss Lamont.

According to Victor Aranow, an SPA member, "Everyone is invited. We're open to everyone who's against the war in Vietnam." He explained the participants are not advocating any particular beliefs. They are only interested in ending the Vietnam war.

During the one and one-half hour Vigil, a bulletin board was placed against one of the S.U. pillars explaining the quiet protest and displaying several articles concerning the war.

Aranow said that the week of April 7-15 has been designated as Vietnam Mobilization Week. Activities are planned during the week all over the nation. On April 15 two mass demonstrations against the war will be held in New York City and in San Fran-

(Continued on page 3)

OPEN DOORS

The Policy Is No Policy

by MARJORIE FLANDERS
Day Editor

A recent letter from the Women's Affairs Committee asked each women's residence to formulate its own policy regarding the door situation for open houses.

According to Dr. Mark Noffsinger, Associate Dean of Students, this letter "has no force behind it."

Betty Chambers, chairman of the Women's Affairs Committee, explained that this letter was issued so that dorms could come to some sort of decision. The present policy of no policy leaves dorm councils in a perplexing position.

"The intention was good," according to the Dean of Women, Helen Curtis. "It tried to clarify something confusing."

This letter, however, had no authorization behind it.

Some confusion has occurred because of Dean Hopkins' statement of the open door policy for men's residences. At present, no such policy has been declared for women's dorms.

On Dec. 7, 1966, the Student Senate "moved to recommend to the Administration that the present open-door policy, as elucidated by Dean Hopkins, of the University be rescinded, and that the open-door policies be determined separately by each House Council."

This recommendation was sent to Dean Field who returned it to Senate President Greenquist with no statement at that time. It was then sent to the Student Life Committee, where it holds priority position on the agenda.

Acting Chairman, William Barnard, stated that the committee is trying to formulate an intelligible statement of the basic issues. "It is more complicated than meets the eye," Barnard remarked.

Lederle Meets Students At Successful Open House

by RICHARD LANE
Staff Reporter

Last Tuesday afternoon was "open door" day at President John Lederle's office in South College. From 4-6 p.m. as many as 30 to 40 students took advantage of an opportunity to have a personal talk with the University leader.

In an interview with the Collegian, Lederle stated that it was "not a lonely afternoon." The UMies "put their fingers on many problems," with some "very intelligent questions." A very wide range of topics was discussed.

The students seemed very interested in meeting Lederle and speaking out on University matters, as was the President interested in meeting with them.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Bolivar

THE PHANTOM PRESIDENT? Here President Lederle talks with students at recent Collegian Meeting. The scene was repeated Tuesday at Lederle's open house.

On the "open door" policy in general, Mr. Lederle stated that it gives students an opportunity to express their views and queries on campus matters. He said that his office always has an open door policy, but that a formally announced, specified day seems to bring forth better response by the students.

These days are set up during the academic year, depending on the exigency of the President's and students' schedules.

Lederle stated, however, that if a student has a problem, "he can see me anytime."

On other issues brought up at the interview, more specifically the recent CIA-campus student group scandal, Lederle stressed that to his knowledge there were no CIA funds to any UMass organizations. He stated that he knew of no connection between the Central Intelligence Agency and University campus at all.

On the matter of recent rumors that he is being mentioned as a possible candidate for the head post at Michigan, the President had no comment, saying he knew nothing about it.

Nolen Defends Anti-Motel Bill, Dismisses Threat to Campus Center

by DAVE O'CONNOR
Staff Reporter

"I believe the Commonwealth should restrain itself from engaging in private enterprise" were the words of State Representative James Nolen, D., Ware, Amherst, Belchertown, Pelham and Granby. Nolen was interviewed by telephone Thursday morning by the Collegian.

Enactment of House Bill 3683 could jeopardize the future of the University's proposed $10 million Campus Center. The wording of the bill clearly states that the Commonwealth, its boards, authorities and political subdivisions are to be prohibited from operating motels or hotels.

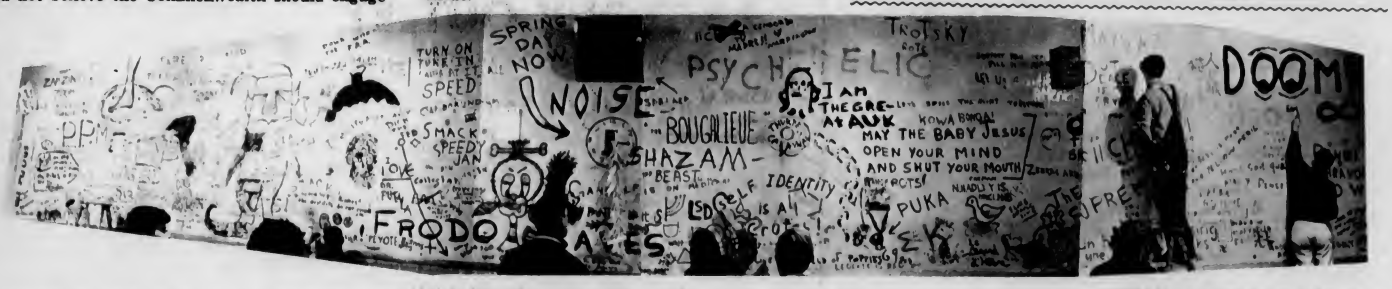
Nolen, when questioned if the University was the original target of the bill, said that it was originally aimed at the Massachusetts Port Authority which operates one motel at Logan International Airport and which plans to open another in Greater Boston.

The local solon emphasized, however, that he did not believe the Commonwealth should engage in any element of private enterprise.

Nolen felt that as an educational facility, the Campus Center would be unimpeded. When questioned about an amendment to his bill which would grant the University permission to operate the Campus Center with a motel, Nolen acknowledged that there had been an amendment presented, but that it had been defeated by the House Committee on State Administration which gave the bill its first hearing. Nolen is Chairman of the House Committee on State Administration.

The representative stated that although there were probably private parties showing interest in the bill, it was not instigated by business or hotel factions.

If enacted as it stands, the Nolen bill could preclude any further development of the Campus Center. If the Center went ahead and opened with motel accomodations, the legal operation could be challenged and a law suit or court action could ensue.



Radio-Active Discs Missing

Four radio-active discs, about the size of a half-dollar are missing from the botany laboratory in the Morrill Science Center at the University of Massachusetts.

The discs are part of a standard piece of research equipment which is also missing. According to Dr. Howard Peters, University Radiation Safety Officer, the discs would not normally be considered dangerous, but if held close to the body for a considerable length of time they could be harmful to the person. He emphasized; that the amount of radioactive material involved is very small and there is no danger at all to the community.

The piece of missing equipment is a type used by undergraduates and graduates in a number of courses and is even available in some high schools.

Dr. Peters urged anyone finding the equipment to call him (545-2682) or the University police (545-2121) or return the equipment immediately to the Morrill Science Center.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Larry Kornfield

"PAINT IT LIKE IT IS, BABY!" The Back of the Hatch Cultural Committee, under the auspices of no one in particular, gathered a large crowd of grafiti-ites at 7 o'clock Wednesday night to artistically (or otherwise) grace the south wall of the Hatch with a new mural. The old murals were removed Tuesday in preparation for the removal of the entire wall next Monday. Paints and brushes were supplied, and the results (above) were surprising. Over 20 students lashed forth with their personal witticisms: Reincarnation was Fun, (in black block letters), Join the Pepsi de-Generation, You Don't Have to be Jewish to Oppose the War in Viet-Nam, U-Mass is only Skin Deep (in red), and a large, blue and red dotted, orange arrowed (?) THE ENTIRE WALL IS A HALLUCINATION.

STUDENT SENATE

'INSIDE' STORIES

In the Student Senate Constitutional Convention and Meeting a number of issues were discussed. Among these issues were:

Senate Investigations of Class Funds Approved	Part I
Proposal for Senate President and Vice-President's election by popular vote	Part II
Proposal for addition of non-voting graduate student withdrawn	Part II
Proposal for inclusion of Judicial Procedures in S. G. A. By-Laws defeated	Part II
Bill allowing Class President to speak during Senate Officers Elections defeated	Part III
Preliminary Mortar Board Budget approved	Part III
Insurance of Crew's Club equipment tabled	Part III
Index appropriations approved	Part III
Forensic Society's budget reconsideration tabled	Part III

If Student Government Were Abolished . . .

by 937944 and 942195

No, it's not really true. And maybe some of you are breathing a sigh of relief. But chances are there are a lot of you who couldn't care less. So we thought we'd show you what might happen if student government was abolished for one week.

On Monday nite student number 7675113 was scheduled to have his case heard by Area Judiciary in the Suffolk Room of the S. U. However, all Judiciaries having been abolished, his case is being heard in the inner sanctums of South College by an obscure assistant dean in academic robes, five years and a lifetime experience away from the world of 7675113 and his fellow IBM cards.

Tuesday evening, at a special, plenipotentiary meeting of Tower three's Faculty Fellow Governing Board, Mother Machree announces the new policy of closed circuit tv supervision of all open houses. 4893002 and 2738392 try to object to this ruling, but they are informed that it is a closed-door meeting.

Meeting in Council Chambers the next nite, the Faculty Senate's Committee to Regulate Student issues a report advising that in the interests of faculty vacation periods, all students shall hereafter take all their final examinations on one day. 3214016 official student member-pawn, declares: "This is a great day in the history of student rights at the University and I am proud to have been a part of it."

On Thursday, 0859317, checking to see when the last annual Tri Vigma pledge formal will be, discovers to her dismay that the Student Union Governor General has closed all Union facilities to students so that the Philosophy Department can hold its first annual Frug Formal. However, 0859317 is relieved to find that the first floor corridor will be open between the hours of 2 and 4 a.m. to permit the viewing of an upcoming art exhibit removal.

At the end of a long and trying week, 2574802, Administration-appointed President of the Class of 1971, announces to his Exec Council that Dean Meadow has the Easter Carni appearance of folk singer Robert Zimmerman with a prayer service led by Msgr. Mighty, thanking God for the recent reinstatement of curfews for men and women. Dean Meadow noted that attendance would be required.

But of course the above situations are hypothetical. In reality, the student-run Judiciary System, dorm governments, Student Senate, SUG Board, and class governments all provide adequate and effective protection of student rights and interests. Oh, and there's one more thing—they know your name.

INDEX Photo

Senator Frank Verock, chairman of the Budgets Committee, who had proposed that the president of the Senate be elected by a popular vote of all undergraduates.

Senate Resolves Many Issues At Meeting and Convention

by PAT PETOW
Senate News Editor

I

Constitution Convention

• A motion, made when the Senate and Class officers met together in a Constitutional Convention Wednesday evening, was defeated in a contest characterized by debators as a question of class integrity versus "creeping Senatism."

"Any investigation of class funds will be done through the Executive Councils of the Classes and not by any Senate committee." Senior Class President John R. Mullin proposed this motion, objecting to a proposed Senate investigation of class funds.

Mullin rose to ask the question why was the Senate proposing to look into Class funds.

In the committee report of Feb. 2, the scope of the study included "subjects as: valid reasons for spending monies; approval of executive councils on the granting of the finances; submitting monthly reports; and whether it is the Senate or the Class Executive Councils which is finally responsible for the way in which the funds are handled."

Senate President John Greenquist declared, "Any and all money that is collected from the students, the Student Senate is going to question from now on." He had included this area of study in his outline on Feb. 1 of what the Senate should do in the second semester.

Senate Treasurer Burt Freedman offered the opinion that the Senate is not specifically charged with looking at Class financial records. But he said that the members of his committee, Ways and Means, acting as individuals might examine the records.

The Class presidents made it clear that the books are always open to interested students.

The Senate Financial Policy Booklet charges the Ways and Means Committee with examining the "manner in which R.S.O. organizations discharge their financial responsibilities with regard to S.A.T. (Student Activities Tax) funds . . ."

According to one of the three financial committee chairmen, Jim Collins, the student activities tax does not include the Class tax. He added that he thought any investigation would be improper in that it would set a precedent for investigating other R.S.O. groups which are not funded by the student activities tax.

Budget Committee chairman Frank Verock was also of the opinion that the Senate had no right to investigate the Class spending.

Despite the endorsement of Junior Class President Dick Wood and Sophomore Class President Wayne Thomas, the motion that all investigations into Class finances be conducted by the Executive Councils and not by any Senate committee was defeated.

II

Other Actions

In other action at the constitutional Convention:

• (1) An act was withdrawn

• An act was withdrawn which would have elected the president and vice president of the Senate by a popular vote of undergraduates.

Withdrawing the bill, co-sponsored with Dick Homan (Baker) and former Senator Dave O'Connor, Frank Verock termed the concept "idealistic." There had been no campus debate on the proposal. None of the Class officers offered any at the meeting.

• A provision to add a non-voting graduate student senator to the Senate was withdrawn.

It had been introduced at the request of graduate residents who afterwards changed their mind about the need for a senator.

The graduate students living at the Southwest graduate residence and Lincoln Apartments, according to Marcus, requested the senator when they thought that they would be living under undergraduate and S.G.A. regulations. The graduate students, who made the request, had been active in student government as undergraduates, Marcus observed.

• A bill, amended on the floor, to require all judiciary procedures to be included in the Student Government Association By-Laws was defeated. It cannot be considered in the same form again this year.

The constitutional amendment was strongly supported by the chairman of Women's Affairs Committee Betty Chambers. It would have provided and determined in the By-Laws the procedures followed by the judiciaries, records, duties, functions, and selections of officers.

Opposing the bill, Dick Wimberley, the chairman of Men's Affairs Committee, warned that codes always fail miserably in being up to date.

While he made reference to a system of written case decisions, the senator asserted the judiciaries would have to rely to a certain extent on judicial knowledge rather than legislation.

Former Women's Affairs chairman Jackie Hall opposed the amendment. It was established on the floor that house judiciaries would have come under the provisions.

• Also defeated was a bill to allow class officers to speak during the election of Senate officers. Dick Wood, president of the Class of 1968, spoke against the bill and John Mullin, president of the Class of 1967, spoke for it.

Defending his bill, Larry Marcus '69 said it would tend to integrate the campus government rather than promote "creeping classism." Mullin emphasized that the senior class president and president of the Senate must work closely together in their senior year.

Against the bill, Wood pointed out that the Class officers cannot know the workings of the Senate as well as its members. He looked around the Council Chambers and observed that half the officers had already left the meeting (at 10:10 p.m.).

The bill, as amended, would have allowed only the president of the class or his representative from among the other officers.

Immediately after the end of the Constitutional Convention the Senate held its regular meeting.

III

After Convention

After the Convention, the Senate turned to its regular business to deal with several financial bills. A number of bills, however, remained on the agenda when the Senate adjourned at 1:45 a.m. Thursday morning.

• A Mortar Board preliminary budget for 1967-1968 including $380 (for the national dues) of its $737 total request was approved, despite an unfavorable Budget Committee report.

Mortar Board, represented by two officers, emphasized that they are an honor society first and a service organization second. Part of their budget request would cover the costs of office supplies in their projects.

This year they are attempting, the representatives explained, to set up a room somewhere as a center location for information on study and work abroad.

Opposing the idea of funding an honor society, newly-elected Senator Marshall Nadan moved unsuccessfully to strike all monies except the category of office supplies. If the amendment had passed, the society would have lacked funds to cover the $16 national dues for each member.

• An appropriation to insure the equipment of the Crew Club was tabled for a week after questions raised in debate. Sponsoring the bill, Insurance Subcommittee chairman Harvey Stone was unable to quote the exact amount which the insurance company would pay in the case of losses.

• An appropriation of $2,650 for the 1967 Index was approved. The recent request is largely for color photography supplies. The organization received $55,925 in their regular budget.

• A late move to reconsider the Forensic Society budget was tabled to the Ways and Means Committee for two weks study, and Snate Pres. John Greenquist adjourned the meeting.

College Country Club
Route 181
Belchertown, Mass.
323-9301

THE MANHATTANS — March 6-12 — Singing & Entertainment Group
FLIP WILSON — March 13-19 — TV Personality & Comic

BO - DIDDLEY
March 20-25
Band & Singing Group

PLUS

Club Band which will make for continuous entertainment

7 nights a week from 9-1
1 Sunday matinee from 4-7

Price $3 per person Mon. thru Thurs. — $3 per person Fri. & Sat.

FACTORY OUTLET
25 Market Street, Northampton

Sweaters for the Entire Family

Pullovers $6 to $11	values to $18
Ladies Cardigans $4.95	values to $7.95
Ladies Pullovers $3.95	values to $6.95
Cashmeres $11.95-$17.50	values to $30

MON. THRU SAT. — 10 AM.-5 P.M.
THURS. EVENING TIL 9:00 P.M.
Market St. is across from Jack August

The Massachusetts Collegian

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week following vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price:
$4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office:
Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Telephone: 545-2550 — 549-1311

"Quiet Dorms" Proposed In New Southwest Project

by Rick Staples
Staff Reporter

Does the guy in the next room practice drums all day? Must you dodge football games and shaving cream fights to reach your door? Does the girl upstairs play Beatle records at 3 a.m.?

If the noise is getting you and your cume down, take heart. Southwest residents facing the same problem heve proposed to the Southwest College Council that two "Quiet Dorms" be established in the new Sunset Avenue Low-rises, which are to open next fall. The Master's Staff of Southwest has agreed to support Study lounges will be used for number of students indicate a desire to live in these residences, the proposal will become a reality.

The new low-rise dorms were selected in preference to the Towers due to problems of noise transmission in the latter (a "noisy" dorm might disturb a "quiet" dorm in the same building) and also because of the large number of single rooms in the newer buildings. Hopefully, there will be one men's and one women's dorm established.

Residents wishing to live in these houses would agree in advance to certain basic rules, including 24 hour quiet hours. Student lounges will be used for reading and studying only, with special rooms set aside for music, card-playing, and socializing. No stereos or instruments would be played in individual rooms.

The proponents emphasize that the object is not to set up a "monastery," but to affirm their belief that an individual has a right to use his room primarily for studying and sleeping, without being subjected to constant noise and disturbances.

The houses will be governed by a regular student government, which will carry out whatever cultural and social programs the residents may desire. The dorms will also be functioning parts of the Southwest Residential College.

In a Collegian interview, Master of Southwest Dr. Clarence Shute stated that he supported the project as part of Southwest's attempt to provide "something for everyone". It is hoped that each dorm in the College will be able to develop its own personality and style of life. The "Quiet Dorms" are a step in that direction, Shute indicated. Assistant Master John Hunt agreed, adding that because there are many people who find it difficult to live and work in a conventional dorm, the proposal will provide them with an alternative.

Residence in these houses is not restricted to present Southwest Residents, but is open to any student who is interested in an alternative to "life in an echo chamber". All those who would like to live in the "Quiet Dorms" next semester should sign up with the Southwest College Secretary, Mrs. Schnarr, in the Southwest Office on the ground floor of Coolidge Tower (T-2) within the next week.

Summer in Italy

Bologna Program Still Open

by ERIC GOLDMAN
Staff Reporter

Openings are still available for participation in one of the most intellectually exciting programs offered by UMass—the seven-week summer session in Bologna, Italy to be held between June 22 and August 17, 1967.

Four courses will be offered during the session: Italian Renaissance Art, which will be instructed by Michael Rinehard, Librarian of the Clark Art Museum in Williamstown, Mass.; Italian Literature, to be taught by Paul A. Mankin, Professor of Romance Languages at UMass.; History of the Baroque, instructed by Louis Greenbaum, Professor of History at UMass.; and European Comparative Govt. to be instructed by Peter F. Fliess, Prof. of political science at Louisiana State University.

Students attending the summer session will benefit in innumerable ways from exposure to the rich cultural environment of Italy. They will study art with the advantage of seeing magnificent works of architecture and masterpieces of sculpture and painting first hand.

All courses are taught in English and three credits per course are earned in the program. However, no more than two courses can be taken by one student.

The school will arrange for field trips to such cultural centers as Florence, Venice, Sienna, Pisa, Ravenna, Milan, Ferrara, Modena, and a three day visit to Rome. Classes will take place during the morning, leaving the afternoon and evening for study and other activities.

The classes are taught in the School of Advanced International Studies at the University of Bologna, the oldest university in the Western world.

The cost per student is $800. which includes air transportation to and from Italy, tuition, health and library fees, lodging, and field trip expenses.

The application deadline is March 15, 1967, and applications can be picked up at the office of the director of the program, Prof. Havard, at 315 Machmer Hall.

Communism in Balkans Topic of Decisions Forum

By RON LABRECQUE
Staff Reporter

The fourth in a series of Great Communist countries of Yugoslaster lounge Monday night centered on problems concerning the Communist countries of Yugoslavia and Rumania. Dr. Luther Allen moderated a panel consisting of Dr. Ferenc Vali and Dr. Vaclav Holesovsky.

Dr. Vali, who was born and educated in Hungary and received his PH.D. from the University of London, began the discussion by speaking about the development of what is called Eastern Europe.

He stated that an historic introduction is more important in this area than any other area of study in modern politics. Vali said that one major characteristic of this area is that it is inhabited by a number of medium or small size nations as compared to their much larger neighbors.

Vali's remarks included brief histories of Poland, Czechoslovakia, and the Balkan countries of Serbia, Rumania, Bulgaria, and Albania which set the mood for the evening's discussion.

Dr. Vali was followed by Dr. Vaclav Holesovsky, an eminent member of the economics department. Holesovsky spoke on the interest of the West in these countries and discussed the problems of National Communism and the ultimate dissolution of Soviet supremacy in Eastern Europe.

A question and answer period followed the panel from which students were chosen to participate in Thursday night's joint radio broadcast over WFCR of Amherst and WGBH from Boston

Dr. Vali was asked if he believed whether the people, the average countrymen, are capable of having a democratic government or whether they would continue to be ruled from above. He replied that "it is imaginable that democratic government can be established and be workable."

Commenting on the influence of the CIA in Eastern Europe, Dr. Vali stated that it was "nil" and Dr. Holesovsky agreed, stating that he "uses circumstantial evidence to support Dr. Vali". On the role of Radio Free Europe in these countries Dr. Vali said that it supported the spirit of resistance against Communism.

The fifth forum will be held next Monday night in Webster Lounge at 6:30 with the topic: "The Spread of Nuclear Weapons".

UMass to Get Dept. of Religion?

By TIM CUNNINGHAM

Dr. Robert Michaelsen, author of The Study of Religion in American Universities, has presented his argument for the establishment of a department of religious studies at a state university to the Academic Affairs Committee of the UMass Student Senate.

In recent correspondence, Dr. Michaelsen stated, "The rationale behind its establishment is the recognition of the pervasive appearance of religion in all human cultures both past and present, and its pronounced influence on their distinctive styles and orientations. No society or civilization can be fully understood unless both its positive and negative relations to religious beliefs and practices are studied."

Since the spring of 1966 the Academic Affairs Committee has been researching the question of a department for religious studies for UMass.

Basic to the function of the Academic Affairs Committee and to the Student Senate is a belief that the University, in realizing its educational goals, must attempt to provide for a greater and deeper understanding of human cultures and society and civilization.

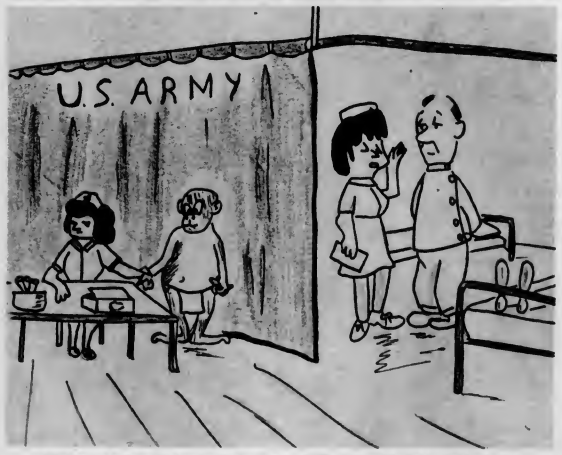
The first in a series of lectures, designed to give the campus a sampling of an academic approach to the study of religion, will be delivered on Monday, March 6, 1967. Prof. Paul Sanders will lecture on "The Bible: Myth, History, Faith."

Sanders teaches "The English Bible as Literature" in the University English Department. He holds graduate degrees in theology and English and a Doctorate degree in church history. He is presently serving as chairman of the Faculty Senate subcommittee to consider the feasibility of a Department of Religious Studies at UMass.

VIGIL . . .

(Continued from page 1)

cisco. There are plans now to have buses going to the demonstration in New York from Amherst (the four-college area). Aranow urges all students who are interested in participating in the New York demonstration to write to P.O. Box 161, Hadley, Mass.



Thursday's News Staff

Day Editor: Marjie Flanders
Staff: Larry Kornfield

Sally Dolgin
Ted Fantl
Rick Staples
Carol Eramo
Carolyn Foland

What's Happening?

by RICH MORAN and "NORMA"

"He's passed the mental — so tell him he has flat feet."

Watch for the

A.P. Wire

FROSTY GOGGLE LODGE
Rt. 100
Wilmington, Vt.
MT. SNOW — HAYSTACK SKI AREAS
COLLEGE DESIGNED RATES
Midweek—$5 & up
Weekends, Holiday Weeks—$4 & up
Reservations 802-464-5017

MOUNTAIN PARK
RTE. 5 HOLYOKE—GO WHERE THE ACTION IS
SAT. 8 P.M. — IN PERSON
ROCKIN' RAMRODS
PLUS
MONTY & The Specialties
NEXT SAT — IN PERSON
? QUESTION MARK & THE MYSTERIANS
"I Need Someone"

a cure for mental virus!
Take the snow cure. Just what the doctor ordered.
LATE REPORT (802) 422-3333
Killington VERMONT
4 mountains, 34 trails, 11 lifts / Ski weeks and lodging: call (802) 422-3333

Editorial Section — Campus Comment

Campus Center Controversy

The recent introduction of Bill #3683 in the House has created a great deal of speculation concerning the future of UMass' proposed Campus Center. The bill, which would prohibit the Commonwealth and its subdivisions from operating motels or hotels, was supposedly introduced to curtail the operations of the Massachusetts Port Authority. The Authority currently operates a hotel at Logan International Airport.

But while the real object of the bill remains debatable, there should be little need to fear for the safety of the Campus Center. It is to be used by the University and the student body for educational and official purposes only. Its plans include seminar and meeting rooms, offices, dining space, and two floors for student activities—all this in addition to the 100 or so controversial overnight accommodations.

These "hotel-like" rooms, which are undoubtedly responsible for most of the speculation concerning the Center, will not be available to the general public. They will be used for official visitors to the University, and will make it possible to schedule conferences year-round instead of just during vacations when dorms will be empty. Such a setup is sorely needed.

Perhaps one of the more important aspects of the Campus Center, however, will be its use as a training ground for students in restaurant and hotel management. The educational applications are obvious.

There is little doubt that visitors to our campus are not very impressed with present makeshift accommodations. The need for this facility is very real and very urgent. It would be unfortunate indeed if this bill were to open the way for legal attacks by local interest groups who do not fully understand the situation.

We hope that the enactment of this bill will not unnecessarily delay the progress of this much needed and long awaited addition to our growing campus.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

The Betrayed Generation

Special for the Collegian from the Collegiate Press Service

Well, scratch one dream.

The United States National Student Association, the leading voice of American youth in the postwar era, has officially admitted that it has been supported for a decade by funds of the Central Intelligence Agency.

As in most pacts of dishonor, it was easy for both participants to rationalize their actions. In the early 50's USNSA was desperately short of money, especially to carry on their vital international program. These programs included NSA's membership in the International Student Conference, scholarships to such foreign nations as Algeria, exchange programs and other vital projects.

It is at this point that the CIA entered the picture. USNSA has a liberal image in America. But in the context of world student opinion it emerged as a conservative one. USNSA's progressive ideals and pragmatic Americanism were probably America's best possible image to a world student body which blinks at the jingoistic term "UnAmerican" and fails to understand our holy crusade against the forms of socialism which many of their countries practice.

Furthermore, USNSA was the most influential member, both financially and spiritually, of the International Student Conference (ISC). ISC, composed mainly of Western and neutralist nations, was the only force blocking the rival International Union of Students (IUS) from dominating world student organizations.

The IUS, headquartered in Prague, Czechoslovakia, was and is dominated by Communist youth organizations. Thus, the corrupt bargain was struck—by USNSA out of apparent necessity, by CIA out of callous opportunism.

For a while the bargain worked. USNSA built a strong financial base. Last year they were strong enough to give up CIA money entirely rather than continue to compromise principle. CIA had an effective American voice in the councils of world student opinion. But the fruits of the poisoned tree cannot long endure when the baseness of their genesis is known.

For a generation of student leaders USNSA was the mainspring of their actions and the fountainhead of their idealism. Now that source is tainted.

Many names have been proposed for this generation. We are not the silent generation, nor the lost generation. Perhaps we have been in search of a name. But now the student leaders of America know. We are the infiltrated generation. We are the kept generation. We are the preempted generation. The words coined in jest at Berkeley, "Don't trust anyone over thirty," come back to mock us now in earnest.

In terms of the ideals of our greatest organization, in terms of the seriousness of our goals, in terms of the very sanctity of human idealism itself, we are the Betrayed Generation. Long accustomed to distrusting the establishment, we are now dazed to find that we have been but kept radicals, allowed to bray nobly while chewing for fodder of those who have cynically herded us for their own ends. USNSA will be a long time recovering.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
A.P. Wire Editor ..... Richard Kline '70
Fine Arts Editor ..... Laurence Kornfield '69
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Bolivar '68
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Friday's Day Editors: News—Marjie Flanders '69, Editorial—Nancy Bourgoin '69

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.

The American Ideal

To the editor:

Somewhere in the past decade, and even before, the American people lost track of their most valuable possession, the American Ideal. That is, the ideal upon which our country was based so many years ago, the preservation of liberty and individual rights, no matter what the cost.

There have been times when that cost was high and yet in order to gain the goal that was worthwhile, the American people fought with spirit, determination, and faith.

Today the situation is similar, the cost is just as high and the goal is just as worthwhile, but what has happened to our citizens? Where is their spirit? Where is their determination? Where is their faith?

On a recent trip to Viet-Nam and Thailand, it was fully manifested to me why our country has chosen to involve itself in that fierce and frightening war.

Here are a people as desirous of freedom and a right to choose the government they want, as were thirteen colonies two hundred years ago. Yet, these people are uneducated and helpless and they need a friendly hand to guide and protect them in their search for liberty.

They look to this friendly hand to instill upon their people the American ideals that enabled us to fight so successfully for our freedom. But they are soon to find that their ally across the sea has mislaid this "Spirit of '76."

Our President and his administration have tried to regain the American Ideal by doing the best possible to end the war successfully and soon. Yet, for all this work he is called nothing but "a rival of Hitler."

Certainly death and destruction in the North are not pleasant to think about. But war is not pleasant, it is a cold, hard fact and as long as our men and the innocent people of South Vietnam are dying at the hands of those in the North, then we and President Johnson have no other alternative than to unleash destruction upon the Viet-Cong.

Really very little is needed to regain our Ideal. Just some spirit and determination, faith and pride, and love for the cause of freedom and our fellow men.

I feel the Collegian owes to its readers, the students at the University of Massachusetts, the printing of this letter, not one of protest, but one of pleading. Let us, the citizens of the greatest nation on this earth, go searching for our long lost Ideal and once found, let us get behind our President, our soldiers, and the people of South Vietnam with a willingness to win, and end that war in the name of liberty.

Gary Vacanti

"What Price Glory?"

Dear Sir:

This is the time of year that students, parents, and faculty worry about income taxes. And well they might. Expenditures for 1966 were up more than 20% over 1965 and were more than ever concentrated on one activity: warfare. Money voted by Congress during 1966 was distributed as follows.

- Total expenditures . . . $144.1 billion ($119.4 last year)
- Current military activities . . . $77.3 billion
- Past military (veterans and other claims) . . . $6.8 billion
- Portion of national debt carrying expenses resulting from past wars . . . $10.2 billion
- Total military budget . . . $94.3 billion (about 65% of total).

By way of contrast, only $2.6 billion (less than 2% of the total federal expenditures) went for all foreign aid and technical assistance programs.

About $1.6 billion (1%) went to support higher education (NDEA, building construction, etc.). In fact, all education, health, welfare, housing, urban renewal, War on Poverty, FDA, water pollution, etc.—all the Great Society programs under attack as "wasteful and extravagant"—added up to $17.4 billion, or about 12% of the federal budget.

Reviewing these figures, there can be little question of where our country puts its energies and its wealth: not into reforming itself by waging war on poverty, and still less into aiding underdeveloped countries (of whom LBJ piously spoke as "walking in the shadow of misery . . . over half the world's people are hungry or malnourished," and looking to affluent America for help).

Our country's commitment is instead to militarism. A starving angry world sick of war and suffering will render its verdict on this choice of ours.

Dean A. Allen
Psychologist, Health Service

Concert Conditions

To the Editor:

I should like to take this time to express my gratitude to the people responsible for the planning and coordination of last Saturday night's Bill Cosby Concert. As one of the several hundred "smart" people who arrived at the Cage one and a half to two hours before the concert in order to be assured of half decent seats, I stood outside muttering obscenities until the almost-zero weather stopped the mechanical functioning of my jaw. Am I being unkind?

Was the time spent outside the Cage some type of planned ecology experiment whose ultimate benefit it will be to increase man's ability to sustain life under sub-freezing conditions?

Anyway, the gates were flung open, and the wretched mass of frozen humanity was allowed to enter. I punched and kicked my way through one of the subway-type turnstiles along with the other desperate ticketholders, and summoning all of my remaining strength, I raced in the direction of the stage to grab a good seat. O.K., now comes the frosting on the cake: There in front of the stage fifteen rows deep, were 450 reserved seats! Just before the beginning of the concert, another 100 or so seats were added on the sides of the stage.

Now I ask you, who were all of these privileged people? I realize that it is customary to provide reserved seating for members of the committees directly responsible for making a particular concert a reality, but do these people number more than 500? As one of the first people to arrive at the concert, I finally ended up sitting half way between the stage and the door, while watching the reserved seats slowly fill up.

Sure, the concert was great, Cosby is a genius, and even the people who paid $15.00 per ticket no doubt got their money's worth, but isn't there some hope that attending similar events in the future will become less of an ordeal? As a student who will be around here for a while, I certainly hope so.

Chuck Interlandi
71 South Prospect Street

Ticket, Who Has The Ticket?

To the Editor:

I think that all of us were justifiably outraged at the extraordinary large number of reserved seats at the Bill Cosby Concert and the whole situation regarding complimentary tickets.

One aspect of this problem is a complaint I received from one of our fellow students at UMass-Boston, who was unable to obtain any tickets at all. I think that an opportunity to purchase tickets for all major University events should be provided at our Boston campus.

Perhaps the Senate Ways and Means Committee could look into the problems regarding tickets, for Homecoming, Winter Carnival and other events and make some recommendations for better policies.

Marshall Nadan
Commuter Senator

Counseling Faces a Turnover

An Open Letter to;
President John Lederle
Dean Mark Noffsinger
Mrs. Alice Sargent

I am extremely disturbed by what I consider to be the worst policy that the University of Massachusetts has implemented since I became a student here. Before I explain why I feel this way, I would like to state the issue as I see it. If there is any misunderstanding on my part, I would greatly appreciate your clarifying it for me.

The policy that I am referring to is that dealing with the hiring and re-hiring of counselors. Formerly, this was done solely by the administration, but now the students are taking a large part in the process. This, in itself, is admirable, but not in the way it will now be done.

A counselor who wants to be re-hired will be interviewed by a board comprised of the Head of Residence, his fellow counselors, any Faculty Fellows that are available and the leaders of his house council. Each of the members of the board will write an evaluation of the applicant. This board also will interview all students who are eligible and interested in becoming counselors, and the same evaluation process will be used. Then, ballots are to be passed out to the students of the house and they will have the opportunity to cast a favorable or unfavorable vote for each student who wants to become a counselor and for each counselor who wants to be re-hired.. The evaluation sheets and ballots for each individual will then be compiled and on the basis of the results obtained a decision is to be made concerning the applicant.

My first objection is the obvious one that this procedure is entirely too bulky. Also, considering the number of applications that are likely to be made and the short time allowed, the burden placed on the Head of Residence is extreme, bordering on the absurd.

This method of hiring establishes a conflict in the counselor which will tend to render him totally ineffective. The question arises: "Who am I, as a counselor, working for?" He will be reluctant to carry out a University policy that is odious to the students, since he needs their 'votes' to be re-hired. This prevents his being a proper representative and employee of the administration. Similarly, he will have great doubts about effectively presenting student complaints before the administration. Since he needs the approval of the administration's representatives to be re-hired, he cannot afford to antagonize them. This prevents his being a good representative for the students. In order to be re-hired, a counselor will attempt to raise as little antagonism as possible, probably by doing next to nothing.

The good counselor from either the administration's or the student's point of view will be the one most likely not to get re-hired.

The method by which students can express their sentiments is extremely unfair. We are more likely to write something bad about those we don't like, than to write something good about those we do like or who feel have been doing a good job.

The five or six students disliking a counselor, possibly on a personal basis, will get their 'votes' counted, but what about the 180 other students who didn't say anything about the counselor? I tend to think that this implied approval will not be counted. It would be whimsical to believe that every student is going to vote on every candidate that he knows, especially when it is extremely likely that the number of candidates will reach into and above the fifties.

I feel that it will be degrading for the counselor who has been doing a good job to have to go around on his floor imploring, "Please, say something nice about me." He should not have to do this, yet this new policy forces it upon him to retain his job.

Another part of this new policy originally stated that an individual could not be counselor in the same dorm two years in a row. I believe that since then it has been amended to allow the Head of Residence to keep three counselors. The reason given for not having the counselors return is that it prevents the forming of cliques. I think that this reasoning is ridiculous, and that the decision made under this reasoning does more harm than good. A true clique is not determined by a spatial relation, but by a bond of common likes and attitudes. Moving the members of the group does not break it up and the clique will just find some place to meet.

There is little enough continuity in university dorm life as it is, and now a major part of what there is will be removed. Every year every dorm will have to start out fresh. The experience and knowledge that a counselor gains about the matters concerning his dorm will be wasted in another dorm. The understanding gained about individual students will be wasted on different students, and the counselor will every year be confronted with thirty unknown residents. Knowing that a counselor won't be back will, of course, also affect the way the students 'vote' about him.

Either the administration has sole control of the hiring and re-hiring of counselors, or the students are responsible for it. Since the counselors are supposedly there for student benefit, there is nothing wrong with letting the students have complete control over the hiring process.

This would mean turning the funds used for counselors over to the students. Understandably, there will be a reluctance to do this since the main source of power for the administration and the administrators lies in their control of funds.

The University must move in either one direction or the other; either back to sole control, or over to student control. This present half-way measure is going to turn out to be an inefficient farce. Because of it, they will probably lose a lot of good counselors who are revolted by the mess created and who, like me, can't comprehend the reasoning that should be behind it.

The opinions and comments in this letter are solely mine and do not necessarily reflect the views of the people I work with and for. My reason for making this clear is that the University has achieved a minor reputation for using personal animosities, construed out of criticism, as grounds for firing, or, to use the euphemism, "relieving someone of their responsibilities."

Guenter H. Loeser
Counselor
1006 John Adams

Campus Comment

Salem Cross Inn

Food
and Drink

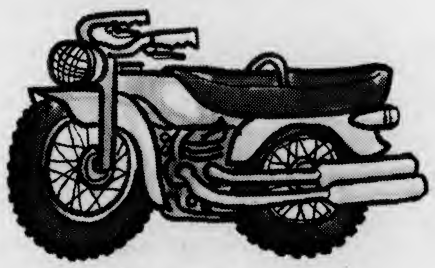
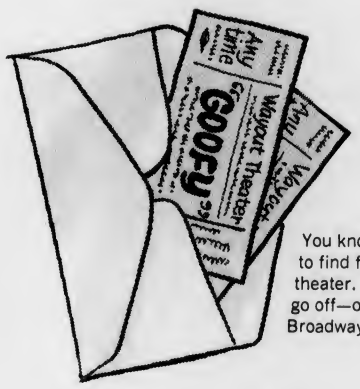
in the delightful
1705 farmhouse
–Salem Cross Inn–



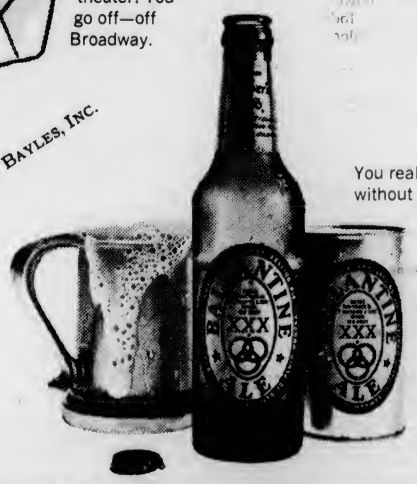
Dancing
Friday Nights

FREE
Old-Fashioned
Sleigh or Hay Ride
for our guests on Sundays



Just 30 min.
East of Amherst
on ROUTE 9
West Brookfield, Mass.
For Reservation call:
617-867-2345

When somebody tells you to go fly a kite, you strap it to your back, slip into a pair of water skis, and take off like a bird.



You remember your very first bike with great affection. It was a screamer.

You know where to find fresh theater. You go off—off Broadway.

You wear your wet suit as often as your navy blue worsted.

You realize we can't run an ad without a commercial. You're so right. Ballantine Ale is light like beer—but packs more taste. It's clean, dry, tangy. It has flavor a man can get hold of. So come on and graduate from beer. You're really an Ale Man at heart.

Sponsored in the interests of gaining greater recognition for Ale Men—and selling more Ale. P. Ballantine & Sons, Newark, N. J.

Created by Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles, Inc.

How to tell if you're an Ale Man

Bridal Fair to Open Monday; Features Fashions, Furnishings

Monday, March 6th, at 1:00 p.m. marks the grand opening of the first UMass Bridal Fair. The event is co - sponsored by Bride and Home Magazine, and national manufacturers and local merchants, who will be setting up booths at the Fair displaying merchandise which is of interest to future brides.

One of the main highlights of the Fair will be a Bridal Fashion show by Bonwit Teller. This will include the latest in Bridal and Trousseau Fashions, modeled by campus co-eds Stephanie Leach, Kathy Koumjian, Elaine Sjokuist, Cynthia Haigh, Judy Sturdevant, Dianne Janes, Sharon Eisenhoure, Maija Bergs, Cindy Hatch, Lynn Allen, Carolyn Yukna, Nancy Donovan, Diane Moir and Marilyn Thomla. These beautiful brides-to-be will also be escorted down the aisle by seven male grooms-to-be, also chosen from the campus. Dean and Mrs. Hopkins will serve as Father and Mother of the Bride. A four-foot wedding cake will be cut and those attending the Fair will be given a piece for a memento.

Other highlights of the Bridal Fair are valuable door prizes given out, such as a 4-piece Irish Linen place mat set, a 6-piece place setting of sterling silver by Lunt, a genuine China vase by Pickard, and a sterling silver bread tray. Many more will be displayed during the Fair at our Doorprize Booth. The most current issue of Bride & Home Magazine will be distributed to every girl.

"All dressed in white" UMass co-eds model for Bridal Fair.

Effective Monday, March 6th, the removal of the south wall of the Hatch will result in less seating capacity—until the renovation is completed.

Cooperation in staggering your coffee breaks and lunch hours would help the greatest number of students using this area.

SENIORS

✶

Return Proofs

March 6, 7, 8—9-4 p.m.

Plymouth Room S.U.

Last Chance

✶

INDEX PORTRAIT PHOTOGRAPHER

March 7 & 8—9-4 p.m.

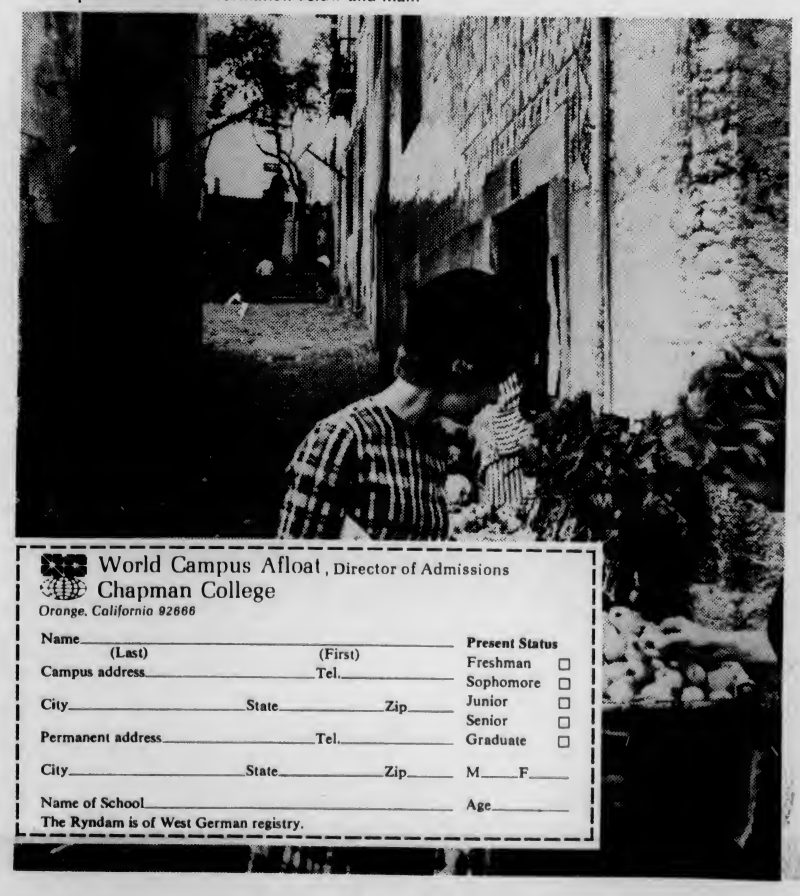
Plymouth Room S.U.

✶

NO APPOINTMENTS NECESSARY

Examining produce in an open-air marketplace in Lisbon is one way to broaden one's knowledge of the ways of the Portuguese people. These girls found exploring the markets of cities around the world a relaxing change from studies undertaken during a semester at sea on Chapman College's floating campus—now called World Campus Afloat.

Alzada Knickerbocker of Knoxville, Tennessee,—in the plaid dress—returned from the study-travel semester to complete her senior year in English at Radcliffe College.



Jan Knippers of Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, a graduate of the University of Tennessee, and a former Peace Corps Volunteer, first pursued graduate studies in International Relations and returned a second semester as a teaching assistant in Spanish on the world-circling campus.

Students live and attend regular classes aboard the s.s. RYNDAM, owned by the ECL Shipping Co. of Bremen for which the Holland-America Line acts as general passenger agent. In-port activities are arranged to supplement courses taught aboard ship.

As you read this, the spring semester voyage of discovery is carrying 450 undergraduate and graduate students through the Panama Canal to call at ports in Venezuela, Brazil, Argentina, Nigeria, Senegal, Morocco, Spain, Portugal, The Netherlands, Denmark and Great Britain, returning to New York May 25.

Next fall World Campus Afloat—Chapman College will take another 500 students around the world from New York to Los Angeles and in the spring, a new student body will journey from Los Angeles to ports on both west and east coasts of South America, in western and northern Europe and as far east as Leningrad before returning to New York.

For a catalog describing how you can include a semester aboard the RYNDAM in your educational plans, fill in the information below and mail.

World Campus Afloat, Director of Admissions
Chapman College
Orange, California 92666

Name_____ (Last) (First)
Campus address_____ Tel._____
City_____ State_____ Zip_____
Permanent address_____ Tel._____
City_____ State_____ Zip_____
Name of School_____
The Ryndam is of West German registry.

Present Status
Freshman ☐
Sophomore ☐
Junior ☐
Senior ☐
Graduate ☐
M____ F____
Age_____

Kathleen Koumjian Chosen Best Dressed UMass Coed

Miss Kathleen Koumjian, '70, a Fashion and Retailing major in the School of Home Economics has been chosen as the Best Dressed Girl on the University of Massachusetts campus. The competition took place during Winter Carnival Week in the form of a fashion pageant sponsored by Angel Flight.

Miss Koumjian appeared before the audience and the judges in three outfits from her wardrobe. These included an on-campus class outfit (shown in photograph), a date-time off-campus dress, and a pretty outfit consisting of a full length gown and a coordinating evening coat which she made.

As the university winner, Miss Koumjian was presented with several gift certificates from clothing stores in the Amherst area.

The next step toward being one of Glamour Magazine's Ten Best of Glamour Magazine's Ten Best Dressed College Girls is the regional judging. Color photos of Miss Koumjian in her three outfits have been sent to Glamour in New York to compete with photos of local winners from other northeastern colleges and universities.

Should Miss Koujian become the regional winner from this area, she will enjoy ten days in New York City with regional winners from all over the country. While the regional winners enjoy their New York stay, Glamour will select the 1967 Ten Best Dressed Girls in the nation.

The winners will receive recognition from Glamour including modeling for the August "College Issue" of Glamour.

This is indeed an honor to be taken seriously by any girl, and we give Miss Koumjian our very best good luck wishes.

University Photo Service

Kathleen Koumjian demonstrates the style that won her the Best Dressed UMass Coed award.

Associated Press is coming to the Collegian.

fine arts

A Funny Thing...

by N. C. SCANLAN

"Something for everyone . . . a comedy tonight." These are the opening lyrics as we zero in on slave Mostel and the wackiest collection of Romans since the fall. A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum opened Wednesday night at the Amherst Cinema, and a funny thing it is.

The funny thing that happened on the way was a stop off at Hollywood for repairs. The Broadway shows through in a few sparsely spaced songs, choreography and some of the original people. Hollywood, with all its evil temples of Mammon, makes it shine. Sets and costumes (not to mention the virgins) are of imperial quality. Only in Hollywood can Rome be built in a day.

The cast is plastered together for the start of the game: Phil Silvers—a surer procurer Nero never saw. Money makes him salivate, but women make him calculate—they are business.

From the Broadway production, Jack Gilfold plays a faithful servant, who, thanks to Mostel, is doomed to become eunuch, maiden, and a not-too-deadly corpse.

The highlight of the comedy is Zero Mostel. In the true tradition of stage slaves, Zero directs the dubious sub-plots into utter confusion. But he's still got them by the string, and after two hours they miraculously merge. He isn't much of a wine connoisseur though; he asks, "was ONE a good year?"

Zero, Silvers, and Jack Gilford are wonderful. They are forever feeding each other virgin jokes ("an honest virgin—a terrible combination"). And each finds room for his own quips. Phil: "You can't kill me, I'm a bleeder." Zero: "You've heard me speak of her. No. That's because I don't like to talk about her."

But that's not all of the fun. Hero (Mike Horden is out most of the film getting horse-sweat for a love potion. His love, Philia (Annette Andrea), has a positive outlook: "There will be no happiness without you . . . we will have to be happy with out it."

One special note is to the late Buster Keaton, who is looking for his children stolen away long ago by pirates. Thanks to Zero as sooth-sayer ("Silence! I'm going to say a sooth"), Buster is running cross-country over the seven hills. Yes, he does get hit by a tree. Sleep well, Buster.

The plot is old stock comedy but the jokes are fresh, and if we look closely we see that Mack Sennet directed a slap-happy finale of chases, races, and falls—ad hilarium.

When all is ended, lovers are united, virgins are vestigially saved and the eunuchs are singing. We're told the "moral for tomorrow . . . comedy tonight."

Comedy tonight through Tuesday. A high score with Zero. Make your way to the Amherst theatre, a funny thing may happen.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The University of Massachusetts Concert Association regrets to announce that it has been impossible to schedule a concert to replace the cancelled November appearance of Adele Adison. As you know, Miss Addison could not fulfill her engagement at the University due to illness. It had originally been hoped that an alternate concert could be presented during February. This, unfortunately, has proved unfeasible. For this reason, season ticket holders are advised that they may pick up a partial refund at the Student Union ticket office.

"Symbolizes Reform"

NSA to Meet in Chicago

CHICAGO, (CPS) — The National Student Congress, the annual summer meeting of the National Student Association (NSA), may have found a home, despite the furor over NSA's past ties to the Central Intelligence Agency.

NSA officials hoped to have the conference, attended by delegates from all member schools, at the University of Minnesota. Last week it was announced that Minnesota does not have sufficient dormitory space unrented to meet the needs of the 1,000 student representatives.

Yesterday the University of Chicago's NSA delegation issued an invitation to the student group to meet at that school's campus.

In issuing the invitation, the Chicago students commented that the offer "does not, however, constitute an endorsement" of the Association's present structure nor of NSA's past ties with the CIA.

The founding meeting of NSA was held at the University of Chicago in 1946. A student leader at Chicago stated, "The hope is that having the Congress here will symbolize a reorganization and reform of the Association."

Reacting to the invitation, NSA National Affairs Vice-President Edward Schwartz said, "I'm delighted at the offer."

Schwartz added, "I would also be interested in any proposals for reform suggested by the Chicago committee. That debate should be held, but we need specific suggestions to hold it."

The 1967 National Student Congress, which will include a constitutional convention, is expected to be dominated by discussion of NSA-CIA links revealed last week.

STUDENT SENATE ELECTIONS

Nominations are due March 7, elections March 9 from 6-9 p.m.

Where: Grayson
Field
Sororities
John Adams Middle

Sorority elections will be held in S.U. lobby.

UMass Artist To Display At Embassy In Switzerland

A wood relief sculpture by artist John Townsend, assistant professor of art at the University of Massachusetts, has been chosen for display at the American Embassy in Bern, Switzerland, it was anounced today.

The wood relief, "View In," was selected by Boston's Institute of Contemporary Art for the State Department's "Art for U.S. Embassies Program," and will be displayed in Bern by Ambassador and Mrs. John Hayes. Notification of the honor came from Nancy P. Kefauver, advisor on Fine Arts for the Department of State, Townsend said.

Townsend, on sabattical leave this semester to study optical problems in sculpture reliefs, has taught at UMass since 1960. Fifteen of his reliefs were seen in a one-man show in New York City last year, at the Byron Gallery.

COLLEGIAN

"Hot Line"

545-2550

WFCR

Four College Radio—WFCR is holding open auditions for an announcer-newsman to work Monday-Friday between 6:30-8:00 a.m.

Duties include introducing musical works between 7:00-7:30 a.m., reading the local weather at 7:00 a.m. and 7:29 a.m., and compiling a 15-minute newscast for broadcast between 7:30-7:45 a.m. The rate of pay is $2.00 per hour. Work begins March 13.

Students at the University of Massachusetts are invited to make an appointment to audition by calling WFCR anytime.

AMHERST Cinema
NOW SHOWING
Daily 6:50-9:10
Sat.-Sun. at 2:00
4:50-7:15-9:30
Plus Select Shorts

A MELVIN FRANK Production
"A FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO THE FORUM"

ITS HERE! EARRINGS FROM XANADEAR
Saturdays at Xanada the Alley Amherst

MASS. CLASSIFIED

WANTED

Ex. Nurses' Aide 3:00 to 7:00 p.m. R.N. 3:00 to 11:00 or 11:00 to 7:00 full or part time.

Musician(s) for St. Patrick's Day Party. Must be able to consume prodigious amounts of fluid. No R & R trash or vulgar Q-Club. Entertainers need apply. P.O. Box 701, Amherst.

FOR SALE

Flower in Botany—ACTUAL PAST EXAMS IN BOTANY 101. Now in the University Store.

650 cc BSA excellent condition. 1956. $450.00. Call 584-6739, evenings.

Honda sport 65—1966 excellent condition; black & chrome; 1800 miles. Call 546-9027 after 12:00 p.m. Price: $190.

PERSONAL

Photographer available for group pictures, portraits etc. Competent work at reasonable prices. Call 546-3865.

AUTOMOBILES

'58 Cadillac Ambulance very good condition reasonable. Call 546-8291 anytime.

AUSTIN HEALEY SPRITE—MARK III —1965 Good cond. Snow tires, tonneau, luggage rack, other extras. 25,000 mi. $1250. Call: 253-9835.

'57 Jaguar Roadster XK 140, convertible top. Best offer over $500. Call 584-1065 after 5 p.m.

1965 SAAB sedan, excellent condition, low mileage. Averages 33 miles per gallon. $1100. Call 5-2688, Extension 101A.

OPPORTUNITIES

An upperclassman or grad student to share cottage in Belchertown — 4 miles from campus. Call Rich Moran, 253-2259 or leave a message in the Collegian office.

LOST

Lost Wed. morning, ski boots and gloves, vicinity of ROTC parking lot and Boyden. Call 549-1287.

Amherst Student Council Resolution Encourages Four-College Cooperation

The Student Council of Amherst College recently passed a resolution, representing a significant step in four-college cooperation.

This motion will go into effect no earlier than March 9, unless the present plan is changed.

The following is the resolution:

Be it resolved that the Student Council, in order to further four-college cooperation and to make it more feasible for young ladies to be present at the most relaxed of all Amherst functions, Valentine Hall meals, in some capacity other than as dates, agrees to pay for lunch and dinner, Monday through Friday, for Mount Holyoke, and Smith Colleges and the University of Massachusetts who meet the following requirements and comply with the following regulations.

1) Those girls enrolled in four-college courses meeting at 11:00 a.m., 12 o'clock noon, or 1:00 p.m. may eat lunch free on the meeting days of the courses.

2) The President of the Student Council shall appoint a committee to determine which student organizations in which young ladies participate shall be deemed acceptable organizations to participate in this program. All organizations currently receiving money from the Student Council must be considered by the committee. Any other organization desiring recognition as an organization eligible for this service must apply in writing to the Student Council. This committee shall return a list of organizations to the Council as a whole for approval no later than two weeks from the date of the passage of this resolution.

3) The approved organizations must submit a list of the females participating in this program during the preceding week by 9:00 p.m. every Monday to the Secretary of the Student Council. In addition, the Secretary shall obtain from the Registrar's Office a list of those young ladies enrolled in Amherst classes at 11:00 a.m., 12 o'clock noon, or 1:00 p.m.

4) To be eligible for the program, a young lady must give her name and college to the Valentine greycoat and show him her identification card. She will also tell him her activity or course name. He will record this information and Valentine Hall will submit a list of the young ladies participating in this program during the preceding week by 9:00 p.m. every Monday to the Secretary of the Student Council.

5) If a young lady's name appears on the Valentine Hall list, but not on the organizations' or Registrar's lists, the Secretary will so inform the Treasurer of Student Council, who will withhold payment to Valentine Hall for that young lady's meals and who will send a bill to the young lady for the amount of her bill. The Student Council will pay Valentine Hall 80c for each lunch and 99c for each dinner.

'Lucky William' Opens Tonite at M. I. T.

A good but simple shepherd is the anti-hero of a realistic fairy tale, "Lucky William," the 1967 Tech Show at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The tragi-comic musical opens March 3 in Kresge Auditorium; performances will also be given March 4, 9, 10 and 11. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Tech Show is traditionally written, produced and performed by the students. The author of the play this year is Stanley Humphries, Jr., a junior physics major from Trumbull, Conn., who also collaborated in writing lyrics for the show's fourteen production numbers with Jeff Meldman, M.I.T. '65, and Steven L. Alter, a senior from Coral Gables, Fla. Composers and musical directors are William Grossman, sophomore from Roslyn, N. Y., and junior Richard Munson from Rapid City, S.D. The director is William Zimmerman, a junior from Mansfield, Ohio.

The role of William is played by Karl Deirup, a graduate student from Berkeley, Calif. Other leading characters in the highly unromanticized medieval setting include Armand, dashing bandit, played by freshman Phillip Bertoni from Uniontown, Pa.; Hoyt Hoyt and Hoyt, malleable ministers to the king, played by Richard Rudy, junior from New York City, and sophomore Robert Blum from Berkeley, Calif.; Siegfried, senile king, played by Alan Covey, junior from Burlington, Vt.; Theodore Boulder, obsequious socialite, played by Eric Goldner, a junior from Floral Park, N.Y.; and the narrator, played by freshman James Seaton from Shawnee Mission, Kan., who doubles as Ogre. Female roles will be played by co-eds from Boston University and Emerson, Emmanuel and Simmons colleges.

Singing seminarians, the Paulist Folk Singers, to appear at UM.

Paulist Folk Singers Return Sunday

The UMass Catholic Newman Club will bring the Paulist Folk Singers from Washington, D.C. to The NEWMAN CENTER SOCIAL HALL, Sunday, March 5 at 3:00 p.m. Admission is free and the concert is open to all.

The two-hour concert marks the third appearance here by the five seminarians. Last year the Paulist Folk Singers sang at many colleges throughout the East. On February 5 of this year, they recorded a new Folk Mass with the Medical Mission Sisters of Philadelphia in a Carnegie Hall performance.

The Paulist Folk Singers are studying to be Paulist Fathers, an adaptable American Community of priests founded in New York City in 1858, and dedicated to meeting the special religious needs of each age. In between classes the group barnstorms college campuses singing a varied brand of contemporary music. Although folk songs predominate, they also sing fun songs, popular songs, and sing-alongs.

Group leader Pat Hughes, a cape codder and a Boston College Business School Graduate, says, "Making people happy is often overlooked as a part of every Christian's duty. So our purpose is an attempt to carry out this responsibility. But our program also gives people a look at the type of person who lives 'behind the walls'.

"Many times an audience is surprised to discover seminarians to be normal human beings, who poke fun, laugh, and sing popular folk songs."

SKI MORE!
PAY LESS DRIVE LESS

- Group Rates Weekends
- Low Lift Rates Weekdays
- New Beginners To Advance Novice Area
- Intermediate To Expert Area
- Each Serviced by Chairs, T-Bars and J-Bar
- 24 Trails and Slopes
- Natur Teknik Ski School
- Snow Making

Latest Ski Reports 413-339-4986
Room Reservations 413-339-6610

Where the Action Is!

Thunder Mountain

Charlemont, Mass.
Route 2, Mohawk Trail

$25 fly all you want
on the newest, swingingest fare in the air!
Mohawk's "Weekends Unlimited!"

Fly anywhere Mohawk flies. Be a gypsy! Visit a host of Mohawk's seventy cities in 10 states—all in one weekend. Remember, Mohawk's new swingin' fare is good not only roundtrip but on as many flights over the weekend as you can book.

pick your cities! pick a weekend!
here's how to take off:

1. Pick your weekend.* Fare applies from 6 a.m. Saturday to 6 p.m. Sunday.
2. Phone Mohawk reservations or see your travel agent.
3. Ask for positive space reservations on the scheduled flights of your choice. (Not including Toronto.) All for $25 a person plus federal tax.
4. Reservations must be made on the Wednesday, Thursday, or Friday preceding your departure and the first leg of your journey must begin on Saturday.
5. Check the cities served by Mohawk from your city and TAKE OFF!

New York City	Cleveland	Utica	Massena	Rochester	Ithaca	Schenectady
Boston	Detroit	Glens Falls	Watertown	Jamestown	Binghamton	Albany
Philadelphia	Niagara Falls	Rutland	Ogdensburg	Olean	Poughkeepsie
Washington, D.C.	Erie	Burlington	Westchester	Elmira	Hartford
Pittsburgh	Buffalo	Plattsburgh	Lake Placid	Corning	Worcester

*Good any weekend of the year except Easter.

MOHAWK "WEEKENDS UNLIMITED!"

Mohawk's 227 Vista prop Jet, Built by Fairchild Hiller
Mohawk's One-Eleven Fan Jet, Built by British Aircraft Corporation

First Semester Dean's List Students Announced

Class of 1967 — Groups I & II (Group III and other classes will follow.)

Class of '67 Semester Average 3.8-4.0

Alessandroni Christi	Educ
Alpert Martha A	Engl
Alsing Carl J	E E
Anderson Susan M	Educ
Auclair Jerome A	Math
Austin Gail M	Educ
Bello Elaine	Educ
Betteridge Russell E	Econ
Bittner William H	Acctg
Bliss Marion M	Engl
Bloem Norma A	Math
Bourdelais Richard	Men Pe
Buckman Linda E	Educ
Burnett David R	Prevet
Butler Douglas J	C E
Campbell William K J	Hist
Chambers Elizabeth A	Educ
Cheney Gail B	Sociol
Colton Charles I	Mgt
Craigin Robert K	E E
Creem Gerald S	Econ
Crispen Jennifer L	Wo Pe
Croteau Rodney J	Fd Sci
Danoff Carol J	Econ
Desmarais Paul C	Math
Devens Barbara A	French
Duame Steffi A	Educ
Eklund Nancy J	Educ
Ennis Barbara A	Educ
Ephraim Norman A	Sociol
Escolas Filefn C	Math
Ffinberg Kenneth R	Hist
Fleischner Robert D	Engl
Fuller Mary V	Psych
Getchell Eugene M	Hist
Gibbons Gary F	Men Pe
Gniady John A	E E
Goldberg Nancy A	H Ec
Campbell Pamela Gray	Engl
Green Donna L	Psych
Greenfield Jane L	Educ
Gutt John D	Math
Hammond Claudia A	Educ
Hardy Kenneth A	Sociol
Harrison Karen A	Govt
Hawkes Donald P	Govt
Hinton Pamela K	Educ
Howe Richard A	Men Pe
Ingham Cynthia L	Educ
Johnson Bruce R	Forest
Johnson Gerald R	C E
Kaiman Deborah M	H Ec
Kaplan Richard W	Acctg
Kelberman Lynn J	Educ
Kenseth Arnold G	Engl
Keown Arthur D Jr	An Sci
Klimoski Dianne P	Art
Steinberg Marsha K	Rec
Kuske Kenneth K	Hist
Kyle Sally F	Hist
Leach Maureen E	Engl
Leefe Judith G	Educ
Liszt Harvey S	Astron
Lizotte David L	Men Pe
Mackler Frederic S	Prednt
Magistri Joan V	Math
Majercik Donald A	Premed
Majndle Sandra L	Educ
Marks John S	Govt
Matthews Wallace J	Premed
Mischi Julianne L	Educ
Novack Judith S	French
Okeefe Anne F	Educ
Omalley Carole M	Hist
Paksarian Joan P	Psych
Pearce Pamela K	Zool
Peterson Jack J	E E
Pisani Michael J	Educ
Rogers Janet B	Nurse
Pzasa Philip V	I E
Sass Lorna J	Engl
Scott Elinor J	Nurse
Scott Philip H	Govt
Seibert Virginia L	Rec
Sells Judy A	H Ec
Siccone Barbara J	French
Smith Deirdrf L	Engl
Smith Marjorie	Wo Pe
Starzyk Louise R	Math
Stewart Gail	H Ec
Studlien Gene C	Math
Tidhar Yehoshua	A&F Ec
Willis Claudia M	Govt
Winsor Nancy E	Zool
Woodland Ronald B	Geol
Wyman Charles E	Ch E
York Christopher C	Sociol
Heynek Kathleen M	Psych
King Dennis R	Men Pe

Class of '67 Semester Average 3.4-3.7

Amiot Claire P	Premed
Amundsen Paul A	Music
Antil John H	Econ
April David A	Govt
Asialdi Mary-Alice	Wo Pe
Babin Nancy J	Zool
Bailey Janet P	Hist
Bailey Susan R	H Ec
Baildieul John B	Math
Belodis Carol R	Math
Benedict Larry G	Hist
Berglund Dennis E	E E
Berry Richard C	Speech
Bird Christopher A	Econ
Bryan Peter L	Ch E
Burnett Cheryl A	Educ
Siegel Susan B	Speech
Butler Wendy B	Engl
Byrne Helen M	Educ
Cadigan Thomas F Jr	Econ
Caisse Ralph E Jr	Men Pe
Carlson Britt E	Math
Carroll Paul R	Htlmgt
Carver John A Jr	Math
Catto Susan M	Educ
Cheney Donald P	Botany
Cisek Frances M	Educ
Clancy Edward J	Hist
Comras Marc A	Psych
Cortese James	Engl
Couch Lorraine C	H Ec
Crocker Richard D	Govt
Cronin Frances M	Educ
Crook James	C E
Crotty Patrick A	C E
Curran Joanne	Engl
Cygan Ann L	Educ
Dehey Martha J	Educ
Denman Margaret L	Hist
Destefano Jean M	Educ
Dunston Margaret M	Nurse
Mitchell Larayne L	Art
Eckart Anne	H Ec
Enzinger Robert M	Fd Sci
Fairbanks Richard B	M E
Feifer Barbara J	H Ec
Fletcher M Kathleen	Educ
Floyd Jant M	Acctg
Foley Robert H	Prevet
Fontaine Hanno J	Gb Fin
Fox Robert W	Hist
Fraticelli Thomas M	Mktg
Freedman Barry I	Engl
Friedman Jay A	Econ
Gavutis Karen G	Engl
George Patricia L	Engl
Gerry Nancy E	Educ
Glasgow Barry	Psych
Goldstein Michael L	Gb Fin
Gordon Norma W	Educ
Grigsby Alan S	Engl
Grosse Carmen L	German
Guerino Mary C	Educ
Hagar Janice R	Educ
Hall David M	Ch E
Hamel Patricia A	Hist
Hartwell Edward A	C E
Hatch Cynthia H	H Ec
Haveles Andrea J	Educ
Hendrickson Maryhele	Engl
Hopkins Suzanne L	Educ
Gofttel Meredith A	Engl
Isaacson Joanne D	Ch E
Jablonski Chester R	Educ
Jacobs Richard B	Speech
Johnson Marilyn C	Engl
Jones Daniel B	Educ
Jorczak Linda J	Econ
Kaminskas Thomas	Men Pe
Kaskeski Peter A	Math
Keefe Susan P	Htlmgt
Kelley Jean M	Math
Kibbe Douglas P	Educ
Kline Allan M	Botany
Krupsky Jean A	Educ
Krusz Julia	Hist
Kucinski Helen M	Psych
Lachman Elizabeth Z	Engl
Lang Donald S	H Ec
Langan Robert E	Govt
Langdon Joan K	Educ
Lanza Angela M	C E
Lau Linda D	C E
Leabman Jerry M	Engl
Leach Donna J	Educ
Leavitt Carole E	Educ
Leventhal Lois A	Hist
Levine Ellen M	Educ
Lewis Linda J	Nurse
Lipson Alan T	Art
Lloyd Cynthia S	H Ec
Lubelczyk Raymond F	Fd Sci
Mackenzie Joanne A	M E
Marletta John	H Ec
Martins Andre Sheryl	Educ
McCarthy Francis J	Acctg
McDonald James A	Prevet
Meeker Donald W	Gb Fin
Meiser Jane K	Hist
Melody Diana E	Mktg
Miller Marilynn A	Engl
Miller Stanley J	Econ
Misener Alan F	Engl
Mitchell Kathryn E	Engl
Moore Nancy J	Educ
More Glenn B	Psych
Morin Stephen F	Gb Fin
Mulvey James E	Educ
Nagle Judith A	Engl
Niederjohn Russell	German
Noble Marilyn L	Educ
Nolan Janet A	Educ
Omalley Patrick M	Ch E
Ostrow Dani	Hist
Papeika Sandra L	C E
Pasko Walter J	H Ec
Pease Cynthia W	Educ
Pedro Joseph A	Engl
Perry Karen J	Educ
Peterson James O	Engl
Pfersich Gordon J	Js Int
Phyllides Dorothea M	Chem
Plaza Anthony F	Govt
Plumridge Margaret M	Math
Pocius Sandra D	Forest
Polansky Helaine R	Educ
Poulos George	Acctg
Preston John R	Pl Soil
Rayner Barbara J	Educ
Rayner Carolyn K	H Ec
Read Christopher	Wildlf
Rhodes Natalie E	Acctg
Roop William R	Nurse
Rosenblatt Ellen	Russ
Rubin Mavis R	Zool
Rudge Carole A	German
Sanford Judith A	I E
Sattin Miriam	Hist
Schefle Francis E	Anth
Sears George M	Educ
Seymour Pamela A	Hist
Shabman Leonard A	Acctg
Sheehan Daniel S	Educ
Sheeley Michael A	Psych
Shelley Karen L	Music
Skibiski Barbara A	Hist
Smith Carole-Jean	French
Smith James M	Govt
Spurr Gary A	An Sci
Standley Louise M	Acctg
Stephens Linda M	Psych
Derosier Paula Stone	Fd Sci
Strand Sharon E	Math
Strong Susan M	Acctg
Sturtevant Shirley M	Math
Suarez Elvira R	C E
Sutcliffe Wayne A	Wo Pe
Sylvester Robert E	Educ
Brophy Shirley Teach	Engl
Thoma William P	Econ
Tucker David E	Zool
Walker Harold W	Speech
Wallis Charles T	Educ
Walls Gerald W	Mgt
Warburton Diana	Psych
Weinstock Susan J	Psych
Whelan Janet L	Govt
Whitcomb Sandra S	E E
White Eileen	Educ
Whitman Donna L	Hist
Williams Jeanne H	Psych
Sherk Nancy Williams	French
Windheim Margaret M	Rec
Worthen Carol L	M E
Yates John G	Hist
Yee Robert H	C E
Young Judith M	Wo Pe
Lowe David A	Govt
Mgt
Educ
Men Pe
Sociol
Engl
H Ec
Men Pe
Physic
H Ec
Sociol
Ch E
Geol
Mktg
A&F Ec
Micbo
Hist
Sociol
Educ
Educ
E E
Acctg
Nurse
Educ
Speech
Hist
Acctg
Educ
Engl
Sociol
Engl
Engl
Educ
Gb Fin
Govt
French
Mktg
Hist
Mgt
Educ
Engl
Psych
Engl
Sociol
Govt
Educ
Hist
Zool
Engl
Educ
Educ
Gb Fin
E E
Engl
Educ
Premed

Graduates Earn More

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 6 (CPS)—An average college graduate will earn $141,000 more than a high school graduate throughout his career, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

Estimating the four-year cost of a private men's college at $2,-261 per year, ILI has found that investment in a bachelor's degree will earn a $132,000 profit.

A graduate of a public college in his home state will make an even greater profit of $141,104 on his average $986 worth of educational expenses.

TICKETS REQUIRED FOR FREE BUS PASSENGERS

The Amherst Chamber of Commerce has announced that, effective immediately, students using the Free Bus service will be required to present tickets upon boarding the bus for the trip from Amherst to the University of Massachusetts campus.

The tickets may be obtained free of charge, with no purchase required, at any sponsoring place of business. All such businesses display a distinctive yellow and black "Free Bus Sponsor" emblem, and these stores have already received their stock of tickets.

The bus will continue to operate between 3:45 and 7:45 P.M. on Thursdays, and 11:15 A.M. and 5:15 P.M. on Saturdays, except during exam periods and holidays. No ticket will be needed for the ride into town, which commence on the four and the half-hour.

Margaret Herrman Wins S&H Foundation Scholarship

Margaret Herrmann, (seated left)), a University of Massachusetts junior home economics major from Adams, Mass., is one of six S&H Foundation scholarship award winners in the nation.

In recognition of her outstanding achievements in the field of home economics while a 4-H Club member, she received a check of $800 from William Ruppell, zone manager, S&H Foundation, Hartford, Conn.

Looking on are (left to right): Miss Mildred Howell, associate extension professor in 4-H at UMass, and Miss Rosalie Smola, Consumer Relations Division of S&H Foundation.

Life is a woman bathing in the tears of her lovers and anointing herself with the blood of her victims. Her raiments are white days, lined with the darkness of night. She takes the human heart to lover, but denies herself in marriage.

—Kahlil Gibran, The Voice of the Master

A P is coming to the Collegian.

"A Free and Responsible Press" increases its service to you.

Join a Giant on the move

ARMY & AIR FORCE EXCHANGE SERVICE

Careers in Management

Investigate the unlimited opportunities now available with one of the largest, most progressive and successful retailing organizations — the worldwide "PX" Exchange Service.

A modern training program will prepare you for an initial assignment at one of our many PX installation centers throughout the United States on the executive/management level. Transfer to overseas location available after training period.

Career positions are available in the following fields for qualified graduates:

• Retailing • Buying • Accounting • Auditing • Architecture • Mechanical Engineering • Personnel • Food Management • Systems Analysis • Personal Services and Vending Management

We are seeking graduates with majors in:

★ Business Administration ★ Economics ★ Psychology ★ Mathematics ★ Liberal Arts ★ Marketing ★ Architectural Design ★ Mechanical Engineering ★ Personnel Administration ★ Accounting ★ Systems ★ Food and Hotel Management

Excellent starting salaries. Liberal company benefits including: group insurance, paid vacations, retirement plan, sick leaves, liberal travel allowances, relocation expenses, tuition assistance.

(NO FEDERAL SERVICE ENTRANCE EXAMINATION REQUIRED)

Campus Interviews Will Be Held On

FRIDAY, MARCH 3rd

For further information write to
MR. CARL SALAMONE MANAGER COLLEGE RECRUITMENT
ARMY AND AIR FORCE EXCHANGE SERVICE
OAK CLIFF BANK TOWER
400 SO. ZANGS BLVD.
DALLAS, TEXAS 75208

CIA ATTACKED

NSA Criticizes White House Inquiry

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 24 (CPS) — The president of the National Student Association (NSA) has criticized a White House inquiry into Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) financing of private organizations.

W. Eugene Groves told a press conference here that he did not see how the panel, appointed by President Johnson, could be critical of the CIA since it includes intelligence agency director Richard Helms.

Groves said that he found past contacts between NSA and the CIA completely unjustified. The NSA president specifically referred to the passing of information between members of the student group's International Commission and CIA agents in previous years.

He repeated an earlier call for a Congressional investigation of the use of private organizations for the purposes of American foreign policy.

Said the NSA official, "The revelations of the past week have shocked the world, to the extent of jeopardizing much of the productive work undertaken to build international understanding and of undermining the trust placed in Americans working overseas."

He said the use by the CIA of covert means in domestic groups to build democratic institutions "reflects a monumental contradiction in the construction of American society."

Groves said that "while the National Student Association has been and remains anti-Communist, the world now knows that the United States has employed many of the same secretive techniques to fight representatives of a closed society that those societies use themselves."

He said a thorough examination of the institutions of American society, "to develop new ways of building free and democratic institutions which can stand on their own in maintaining the confidence of people in this country and abroad" is necessary.

Edward Schwartz, NSA's national affairs vice-president, commented, "Those who think that NSA will roll over and play dead as a result of last week's disclosures are plainly misguided."

He said no schools had disaffiliated from the student group since RAMPARTS magazine disclosed NSA's links to the CIA, and noted that Michigan State University, Lewis College (Lockport, Ill.), and the University of Denver had joined the organization during the past two weeks.

World University Service (WUS) and the United States Youth Council (USYC), both linked to the CIA in recent news reports, have denied any knowledge of CIA involvement in their organizations.

WOMEN'S TENNIS TEAM

The first meeting of the 1967 Women's Tennis Team will be held at the Women's Physical Education Building at 4:30 on Monday, March 6. All those interested in trying out for the team are urged to attend. If you are unable to attend the meeting, but are interested in competition, please contact either manager, Miss Susan Tracy (Hamlin); Miss Beverly Mentes (Hamlin), or the coach Miss Nancy C. Rupp, Women's Physical Department.

Mungo Still Fighting To Impeach Johnson

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 27 (CPS) —A campaign for the impeachment of Pres. Lyndon Johnson has begun at Boston Univ. with an editorial signed by eight of the nine editors on the student paper, the BU NEWS.

The editorial, which according to editor-in-chief Raymond Mungo, is an "excellent documentation of why Lyndon Johnson ought to be impeached," has provoked negative reactions from the local community and the President of the University, Harold Case, but reaction from students, Mungo said, seems favorable.

Mungo stated that when he raised the idea of impeachment before a crowd of 800 students, he "got a roaring ovation out of it." Mungo said that "by and large, I don't think students here are upset or at all offended" by the proposal.

The editorial was sent as a letter to House Speaker John McCormack in Washington calling for an "investigation of the merit of the argument," Mungo said.

After the editorial appeared, President Case told a television station that he had sent a telegram to McCormack apologizing for the editorial and saying that the editors' opinions do not represent the opinions of Boston University.

Although Mungo said that Case's action was unfair, he added that "we assume that McCormack or anybody else who reads Case's telegram will be intelligent enough to figure out that Case's view is also a minority view."

He added that the university has no case for censuring the paper because any action by the administration "would be simply a matter of dismissing the editors on the basis of their political opinions."

The BU NEWS asked several writers and educators to write documentations for the paper of why Johnson should be impeached. Mungo said that "some liberals" who were asked to help the editors objected because they believed "the political impact of raising the suggestion would be detrimental to the peace movement."

The Boston editor first suggested Johnson's impeachment at the National College Editors Conference held in Washington. At that time, only three student journalists favored the proposal.

- Notices -

SENATE ELECTIONS
Elections will be held for one senator from Grayson, Field, Sororities and John Adams Middle, in the dorms from 6-9 P.M. on March 9. Sororities election will be in lobby.
Nominations are due March 2.

ALL CHRISTIAN WORSHIP
At 11:00 A.M. every Sunday, a service is held in Mahar Aud., sponsored by the Campus Worship Committee. Theme for March 5 is "Decision to Die." Please note that time has been changed from 10:30 to 11:00.

AMHERST ART GALLERY
There will be an exhibit on current Israeli art beginning March 6 and continuing for 2 weeks. Gallery talk is Monday, the 6th at 4:30 P.M.

AUK
All meet at the Student Union lobby on Saturday, March 4 at 1:00 P.M. for the trip to Springfield. A must for continued membership in AUK.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA
The movie "Come Blow your Horn" will be shown with cartoons March 4 at 8:30 P.M. in Mahar Aud. Admission charge is 50¢.

YAHOO BUSINESS STAFF
Meeting will be held on March 6 at 7:00 P.M. in Yahoo office — Franklin Room, S.U. All interested in lending a hand are welcome.

YAHOO LITERARY STAFF
There will be a meeting on Monday, March 6, at 7:00 P.M. in the Yahoo office, S.U. All interested in joining are welcome.

AMHERST THEATER PRODUCTION
The play "The Revenger's Tragedy", will be presented by the Amherst College Masquers on March 3, March 4, March 10, March 11, 12 and 13th at 8:30 P.M. at Kirby Theater. Tickets may be purchased at the Kirby Theater box office, open weekdays from 10:00 A.M. to noon and from 2:00 to 5:00 P.M. Prices are $1.50 for all performances, except Saturday evenings, which are $2.00.

WOMEN'S TENNIS TEAM
All those interested in playing on the women's tennis team, please attend the meeting of March 6, at 4:30 P.M. in WoPe.

LUTHERAN STUDENT CONGREGATION
On Sunday, March 5, at 6:30 P.M. at Immanuel Lutheran Church there will be a second showing of "A Time for Burning". All welcome.

MATHEMATICS CLUB
On Tuesday, March 7, at 7:00 P.M. Dr. William Comfort will speak on "The Marriage Lemma", in the Colonial Lounge, S.U. Refreshments will be served. All welcome.

SUNDAY MORNING LIBERALS
On Sunday, March 5 at 8:00 P.M. in the Unitarian Church there will be a [illegible] and an important business meeting.

NEWMAN CLUB
"Questions on Campus Theology" class will be held Monday, at 7:00 P.M. in classroom No. 2 of Newman Center, conducted by Father Cahill.
"Stations of the Cross" will be Friday in the Newman chapel at 7:00 P.M.
Rosary is said at 6:30 P.M. every night except Friday in the Chapel.
"Bridge to the Sun" will be shown Friday, March 3 in the Social Hall at 7:30 P.M. Members—free; non-members—25¢.
[illegible] day, March 5, at 5:00 P.M. The Paulist Folk Singers will perform in the Social Hall. Admission free.

YAHOO ART STAFF
There will be a meeting in the Yahoo office, Franklin Room, S.U. Sunday, March 5, at 3:30 P.M., not 9:00 as previously printed.
Anyone interested is welcome.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST
717 HOUR
On Friday, March 3, at 7:17 P.M. in SBA 120 color film which gives a challenge on California beaches, Newport and Balboa will be shown. Open to public, refreshments.

RESEARCH FELLOWSHIPS
Applications for Fellowships in the School of Education's Applied Educational Research Training Program are welcomed from qualified grad students who are now, or will be fully accepted in the UMass Doctoral degree programs by Sept., 1967. Since this is an Interdisciplinary Program, non-Education majors are also encouraged to apply. Direct inquiries to: Program Director, Applied Educational Research Training Program, School of Ed., UMass.

LOST:
Pair of black leather ski gloves with white lining. Call 546-7545, John Fairbanks.
Three keys on a ring, between Southwest Commons and the Drake. Contact Justus Kock, 712 T-6, at 6-9012.

FOUND:
Pair of leather men's gloves in basement classroom of Fernald Hall. Call Del at 6-9303 between 11:30 P.M. and 6:30 A.M. to identify.
Box of stationery found in basement classroom of Fernald Hall. Call Del at 6-9303 between 11:30 P.M. and 6:30 A.M. to identify.
UMass Ring '68, found in S.W. parking lot, with initials D.C. Call Gary Spurr, 546-8889.

PINNINGS:
Barbara L. White, class of '69, Lowell State, to Marcus G. Phelps, class of '68, James House.
Jayne K. Gillespie, class of '70, Emily Dickinson, to Eric M. Gordon, class of '70, TEP, Duke University.
Cheryl McCormick, class of '69 Alpha Chi Omega, to Skip Cunningham '67, Psi Upsilon, Amherst College.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Jane Mackay, class of '68, J.Q. Adams, to H. Bruce Low, class of '68, APO.

Folk Festival

The 15th annual Intercollegiate Folk Festival, co-sponsored by UMass Outing Club and Heymakers Square Dance Club, will be held this Friday and Saturday in the Student Union.

The program begins with folk dancing and folk singing at 8 p.m. Friday. A "get-acquainted dance" and exhibitions will be held Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m.—square, round, and folk dancing. Between exhibitions, leaders of the participating groups will teach the dances. Buzz Chapman will call at the Saturday evening square dance, 8 to 12 p.m.

Colleges, universities, and state teachers colleges in New England and parts of New York State receive invitations to the Festival in early fall each year. Schools with folk or square dancing clubs are also asked to participate in Festival exhibitions.

The UMass Heymakers, who dance every Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Ballroom, welcome into the club anyone interested in square dancing, whether learning or experienced. Members who will be in the Festival exhibitions are: Pat Harrigan, Jean Sandstrom, Helene Hass, Carol Douglas, Bob Pollack, Ray Fillion, Lionel Willoughby and Richard Bean.

Dead Sea Scrolls

Between 1947 and 1956, a number of Hebrew and Aramaic manuscripts were discovered in the Northwestern area of the Dead Sea. Especially notable were those found in the Zumran caves by a Bedouin shepherd. The scrolls were found to have belonged to a Jewish sect named the Essenes who lived in that region, and their discovery shed a new light on the New Testament and the beginnings of Christianity.

The Student Zionist Organization will sponsor a lecture on the Dead Sea Scrolls on March 6 at 8:30 by Dr. Johanan Wijnhoven of Smith College.

This lecture is one in a series to be presented to the University to show the relevance of Hebrew as a modern language and the influences upon it. A future lecture will deal with St. Agnon, co-winner of the Nobel Prize in literature.

Angel Flight Rush

Freshmen and Upperclass Women

Tuesday, March 7 - Memorial Hall
Wednesday, March 8 - Dickinson Hall
Thursday, March 9 - Dickinson Hall
7-9 p.m.

Ecumenical Worship Service
on Campus Contemporary Worship
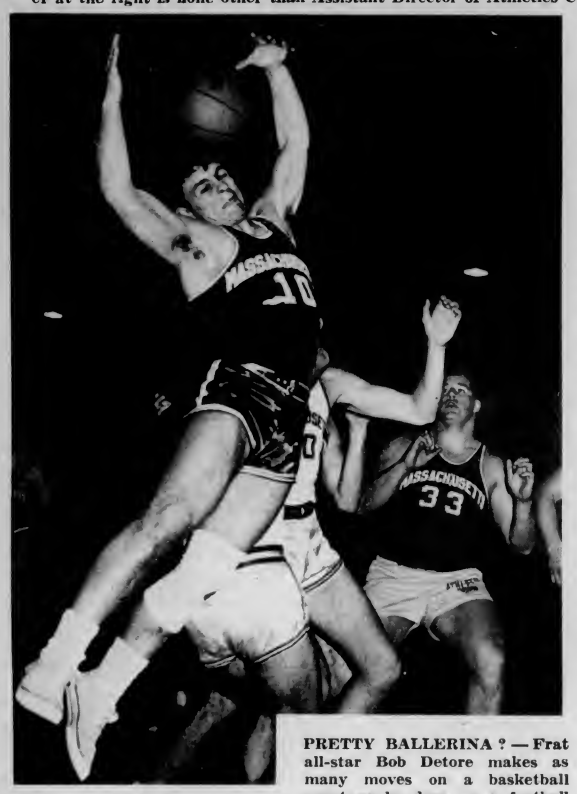
Sunday, March 5
and every Sunday
11:00 a.m. Mahar Aud.
Sponsored by University Christian Worship

Free to Univ. of Mass. Students
25¢ to others

A new booklet, published by a non-profit educational foundation, tells which career field lets you make the best use of all your college training, including liberal-arts courses—which career field offers 100,000 new jobs every year—which career field produces more corporation presidents than any other—what starting salary you can expect. Just send this ad with your name and address. This 24-page, career-guide booklet, "Opportunities in Selling," will be mailed to you. No cost or obligation. Address: Council on Opportunities, 550 Fifth Ave., New York 36, N. Y.,

Today the Campus... Tomorrow the World!!

Very soon the COLLEGIAN will be offering you national and international news direct from the wires of the Associated Press.



As "A Free and Responsible Press" it is our responsibility to keep you well informed; and this is the first of many new services which you will soon be enjoying in the COLLEGIAN—the paper with an eye on the future.

VICTUS—Members of the dorm all-star team, which lost to the frat all-stars last week are (front row, from left) Dan Verrault, Willis Frisbee, Ray Stanelis, Steve Ciechonski, Frank Holcomb, (back row) Steve Maloney, Dick Meyers, John Murphy, Mal O'Sullivan, Al Holcomb, and manager George Duffield. The scene-stealer at the right is none other than Assistant Director of Athletics Chet Gladchuk.

INVICTUS—The fraternity all-stars, campus champs, get the point from hockey coach Steve Kosakowski. Members are (front row, from left) Bob Detore, Don Alberico, Dick Qualey, Greg Landry, Hagan Andersen, (top row, Al Saggase, Al Fisher, Brian Lajoie, Tom Byron, and Greg Forgit. The frats beat the dorms for the third straight time.

PRETTY BALLERINA ? — Frat all-star Bob Detore makes as many moves on a basketball court as he does on a football field. On this play, he fumbled inside the 10. That's his blocker, Dick Qualey (33) at the right.

Young Skiers in Championship Meet

Coach Bill MacConnell's ski team is confident of success in tomorrow's New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference Championship Races on Mt. Whittier in West Ossipee, N.H.

The three divisions of the Conference will for the first time have an opportunity to compete against each other for the Osborn Trophy. Twenty-five colleges will be represented.

In its division, UMass had finished first once, second three times, third once and fourth twice. Among the 18 Southern New England schools, UMass stands second to Amherst and has drawn closer to the Lord Jeffs in every racing weekend since the Dartmouth Skiway competition Feb. 4-5 when Amherst took three firsts.

UMass has a young team with two juniors and four sophomores. Lacking experience but skiing strongly in every race, the team has done exceptionally well in all the longer and more difficult races.

MIKE ZANOLLI

JOHN HURD

Captain Collin Garstang is nearly always among the top five finishers while sophs Mike Zanolli and Ned Kelley are usually among the top 10. Dave Kamila and Dick McHugh also ski consistently well.

Junior John Hurd always skis last to provide a steady anchor man and permit those skiing earlier on better snow to go a little "further out" while he gets deep ruts, dirt and logs to jump over.

The Redmen own a win-loss ratio of four-to-one.

Intramural Volleyball

LAST NIGHT

IFC
SAM over ZN (forfeit)
TC over APO (15-5, 15-1)
QTV over SPE (15-6, 5-15, 15-9)
BKP over TEP (14-16, 16-14, 15-10)
AEPi over TKE (15-7, 17-15)
ASP over ATG (14-16, 16-14, 15-7)
PSD over PMD (9-15, 15-11, 15-9)
LCA over KS (15-13, 15-8)
DORMS
Flaming "A" over Redwods 15-4, 17-15)
Academics over Seagrams (forfeit)
Smashers over Spartans (13-15, 15-2, 15-11)
Hemlocks over Apples (15-4, 15-9)
Limes over Phallics (forfeit)
Lemons over Aces (6-15, 15-8, 15-0)
Flaming "A" over Chestnuts (6-15, 15-11, 15-12)
Maples over Hoovers (forfeit)
Hicks over Elms (forfeit)
Trojans over HiLo's (15-13, 15-5)
Comanchees over Jaguars (forfeit)
Panthers over Cougars (forfeit)
Patriots over Colonials (forfeit)
INDEPENDENT
Imps over Toads (15-3, 15-8)
Romans at Imps (double forfeit)
Oddballs over Bismarks (15-4, 15-6)
WEDNESDAY NIGHT
INDEPENDENTS
Smitty's over Lassies Losers (11-15, 16-14, 15-13)
Selohassas over DuFarbs (15-8, 15-10)
DORMS
Buffalos over Bulldozers (15-6, 15-7)
Colts over Panthers (7-15, 15-12, 15-10)
All others forfeit

GYMNASTICS . . .

(Continued from page 12)

pionships to be held April 1 at Southern Illinois.

The E.I.G.L.'s top eight men in each event will go on to the individual E.I.G.L. finals on Saturday. Saturday's field will compete at 7:30 p.m.

The meet is an important one. The E.I.G.L. team championships will be settled today and the trophy presented during the Saturday meet. The E.I.G.L. teams have met during the season and the championship will go to the team with the best record through the regular season and the championships.

UMass' hopes for either NCAA or E.I.G.L. championships rest with Dick Dauphenais in the floor exercise, Fred Bebakian and Bob LeClair on the side horse, Steve Brown on the parallels and Dick DelGallo on the rings. Brown placed sixth last year in the E.I.G.L. championships.

The UMass varsity received a stern test Wednesday in a "fun meet" against the frosh under Julius Gundersheim. The final score of 163-161 ill-bespoke the closeness of the match and, as one freshman performer drolly remarked, "We was robbed."

ST. JOHN'S . . .

(Continued from page 12)

age and the leading rebounder with a 14.4 average.

A local boy from Brooklyn, Sonny is a certain pro prospect and is probably the best big man UMass will run up against this season.

At one of the forwards in St. John's high scoring front-court is junior Rudy Bogad, who with Dove forms one of the best scoring and rebounding duos in the east.

Close behind him in scoring is sophomore forward John Warren, a 6'3 leaper with a 12.0 average. Warren jumps over skyscrapers between classes, and he's hard to stop from anywhere on the court.

Albie Swartz, a 5'11 senior, sets up Bogad so often they call him "Rudy's Valet." He can be expected to break any press with his dribbling prowess. Swartz, a tough defender, doesn't shoot much as is evidenced by his 6.3 average, although his 20-footer at the buzzer two weeks ago beat Temple by two.

The other guard is 6'4 senior Bill Jones the best defensive player on a great defensive team.

INFIRMARY PATRONS

Come early to avoid the rush.

The Outpatient Clinic is open with a full staff at 8:00 A.M. Monday thru Friday. By coming in early (8-9 A.M.) you will reduce substantially the waiting time before being seen, and will find all of your needs met more promptly.

Our space is limited and will continue to be until an addition can be built. Until that time, it will be difficult for the staff to see everyone promptly during comfortable midday hours; therefore, in your own interest and in the interest of other students, please try to make your visits early in the day, whenever possible.

DIAMOND SERVICE of top quality on easy terms
featured at
WINN JEWELERS
Amherst

Friday Evening March 10th

The Rockin' Ramrods

S.U. Ballroom 75¢ Admission

HILLEL
Deli Supper
Sunday March 5
Commonwealth Room 5-7 p.m.
Members 50¢
Non-members $1.50

RUDY BOGAD

REDMEN SHOULD WIN THIS ONE

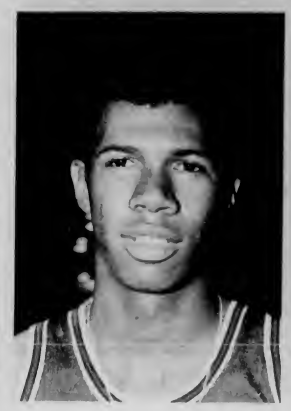
Season Ends with St. John's (20-3)

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

It will be Redmen versus Redmen tomorrow night in New York City as the UMass basketball team meets NCAA-bound St. John's at Jamaica's Alumni Hall in the last game of the season for coach Jack Leaman's squad.

St. John's could be the best team that the Redmen play this season. The Jamaica Redmen, a perennial entry in the NIT, have decided to strike for bigger game this year as their 20-3 record has earned them an at-large spot in the NCAA tournament.

Lou Carnesecca's Johnnies have lost to Northwestern, Canisius and Marquette, but two of the losses were by two points and only Marquette beat them by a comfortable score. St. John's will be out to set a school record for winning percentage.



Carnesecca

This game presents a monumental task for UMass, but Leaman noted "we always play well against St. John's." Last year, UMass almost upset the New Yorkers but lost by seven.

This will be the last varsity game for UMass seniors Tim Edwards, Frank Stewart, John Lisack and Bob Murphy. Edwards became the fifth player in Redmen history to score 1000 points with his 17-point effort Tuesday night at B.U. He now has 1003 points to go along with his rebounding record.

Leading the Johnnies' attack is all-American center Sonny Dove. A 6'8 senior, Dove is the leading scorer with a 23.2 aver-

(Continued on page 11)

JOHN WARREN

BILL JONES

Runners Head For IC4A's

The successful UMass track team will compete tomorrow in the IC4A's meet at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Those making the trip for UMass will be Steve Burrell, dash; Art Larvey, broad jump; John Anderson and Diego Gonzaled, 600; Greg Bowman, 1000; Terry Carpenter and Steve St. Clair, mile; and Paul Hoss, 2-mile.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASKETBALL — vs. St. John's (at Alumni Hall, Jamaica, N.Y.), Saturday, 8 p.m. WMUA (91.1-FM) 7:50 p.m.

GYMNASTICS—E.I.G.L. Championship (at Springfield College Field House, Springfield), today and Saturday.

SWIMMING—vs. M.I.T. (Away), Saturday, 3:30 p.m.

SWIMMING (Frosh) vs. M.I.T. Frosh (Away), Saturday, 2 p.m.

WRESTLING—New England Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Championship (at Tufts, Medford), today and Saturday.

WRESTLING (Frosh—N.E.I.W.-A. (at Tufts, Medford), today and Saturday.

TRACK — IC4A's (at Madison Square Garden, N.Y.), Saturday.

SKI—meet sponsored by Northeastern (at Whittier, West Ossipee, N.H.), Saturday.

UM at M.I.T. in Aqua Finale

The UMass swim team, riding the crest of a three-meet winning streak, sails into Cambridge tomorrow to do sea battle with a strong, swashbuckling M.I.T. contingent.

The contest is the final dual meet of the season for the Redmen who will travel to Southern Connecticut next Thursday, Friday and Saturday for the New England Intercollegiate Swimming League championships.

The M.I.T. meet will mark the final performance in dual competition for four of Coach Joe Rogers' swimmers. Seniors Dick Lennon, Steve Levy, Ted Severn and Norm Lovitch will make their final appearances at Cambridge.

A victory at M.I.T. would give Rogers' strokers a 5-5 record on the season and would up the 29-year veteran's slate at UMass to 139-103-1. A year ago the Engineers waylayed the Redmen, 58-37.

Frosh Golf

Candidates for the frosh golf team will meet next Tuesday in the Worcester Room of the Student Union at 7:30 p.m.

The Fans Cry 'Oh Shoot'

by TOM FITZGERALD
Sports Editor

The score was 17-14 in a game last year when Duke beat North Carolina. It was said that the final buzzer woke the spectators up, since they were sitting in a field house and not in a football stadium.

This year the Freeze has become as much a part of the collegiate game as booing the ref. The tactic has even dropped temperatures in Surfin' U.S.A., where the University of California at Lew Alcindor is still the hottest thing going despite the slow-down offenses of patient rivals.

Several Eastern teams have tried, still unsuccessfully, to hit single-figures this year. Yesterday, for instance, Princeton had to somnambulate into the Ivy League championship by beating Penn, 25-16.

The result of all this has been a highly vocal effort by some hoop devotees to bring about a limit to the time a team can procrastinate with the ball before shooting. A 24-second clock, the activists say, would keep the ball moving, as in the N.B.A.

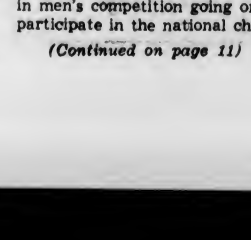
Others advocate a 30-second or one-minute limit.

On the other side of the coin are the arguments that upsets would be rare if the underdogs had to keep coughing up the ball and that coaches would have to recruit even more pros-who-sometimes-go-to-class.

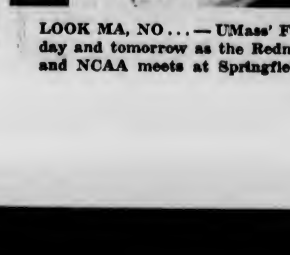
Leaman: "The 'freeze' is too rare to impose a 24-second clock."

UM coach Jack Leaman sides with the anti-limit group. "You're just going to make the richer teams even richer if you have a 24-second rule. I don't think there's any need for it."

He thinks the underdog team would be put at a severe disadvantage if a time limit were imposed. He added that, although the Freeze has appeared several times this year, "if you consider the thousands of games that are played throughout the nation, it just doesn't happen very often.



"I myself don't think I'd ever freeze."



Doesn't a slow-down hinder the sport from the fan's point of view?

"I wonder," he says, "if on the college level, you play the game for the fans or for the boys who are playing."

Leaman concludes, "It doesn't alter the outcome of the game very often. You're still going to lose, just by a smaller score."

Meanwhile, some college pep bands may be practicing lullabies.

READY AND WAITING—Prepared for the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Championships at Tufts today and tomorrow are UMass grapplers Chet Lubelczyk (left) and Art Keown.

UMass Travels to Hoop Birthplace For Gymnastics Championships

by TIM MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The Alden St. area of Springfield is a quiet, middle-class section predominated by two-family, pre-WWII homes. A portion of that neighborhood affords facilities for the campus of Springfield College.

Springfield College, as every astute student of statistics is aware, is the original home of the peach basket and the round bladder. Dr. Laurence Naismith, erstwhile faculty of the tiny college in the latter part of the last century, invented the sport of basketball, an endeavor that has burgeoned into a large-scale enterprise in recent years.

Today and Saturday, however, basketball will be set aside, Naismith will be temporarily forgotten, and the attention of the people thereabouts will turn to gymnastics.

Why gymnastics? Simply because Springfield College hosts the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Eastern Regional Championships and the 40th annual Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League individual and team championships at the Field House this weekend.

The NCAA championships will be held today at 1 and 7:30 p.m., with the eight top competitors in each of the seven events involved in men's competition going on to participate in the national cham-

(Continued on page 11)

LOOK MA, NO . . . — UMass' Fred Bebakian will be in action today and tomorrow as the Redmen gymnasts compete in E.I.G.L. and NCAA meets at Springfield College.

COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"
545-2550

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

THE DRAFT
Page 4

VOL. XCV, NO. 51 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, MARCH 6, 1967

COLLEGIAN Photo by Bill Gleason

Sculpture Jerome Radin is congratulated by Dean Moore after his bust of William James was dedicated yesterday afternoon at James House.

Lederle Issues Annual Report Stress Placed On Individual

"Only through concern for the individual can the university sustain the vital spirit necessary to create a great institution of higher learning," University of Massachusetts President John W. Lederle wrote in his annual report.

Dr. Lederle's 16-page summary of the 1965-66 academic year details growth and progress in a variety of areas, but stresses that the university's primary concern is with people.

"The fear has been expressed in some quarters that the university is growing so large that it is becoming impersonal and no one cares about the individual any more. This fear is groundless.

The university is concerned... with the individual taxpayer. It holds itself responsive to their desires and needs in every area of administration and operation," Lederle writes.

The essence of the challenge faced by the university, according to the writer, is "to provide better education for more and more students. We are upgrading and enlarging our academic programs while coping with the demands of an unprecedented admissions pressure."

The university contines to maintain a low tuition policy for Massachusetts residents in the face of a tendency by private institutions to accept a greater percentage from out of state, he said, expressing determination to "increase the scope of scholarship assistance so that no academically qualified student will be denied admission for economic reasons."

Enrollment pressures are due to increasing numbers of college-age youth in the state and increasing numbers seeking college educations, Lederle says.

It has been estimated, he adds, that post-secondary educational institutions should be prepared to accept as much as 50 per cent of the college-age population by 1970 and "all indications are that public higher education in Massachusetts will be called upon to absorb approximately half of that 50 per cent by that year."

"The implications for the University of Massachusetts are clear," writes Dr. Lederle.

"With realization of our historic role as a land-grant institution and our present status as the statewide university of all the commonwealth . . we must move rapidly and responsibly toward our changing and expanding goals.

Reviewing university accomplishments in 1965-66, Dr. Lederle lists these highlights:

- Amherst enrollment in September, 1965, reached 11,859 from 10,497 the previous year; of this number 2240 enrolled in graduate school, compared with

(Continued on page 2)

Uncle Sam Wants You

Draft Change Proposed

A drastic reorganization of the military draft proposed to President Johnson Saturday by the National Advisory Commission on Selective Service was made public Saturday night.

The President is expected to endorse most of the recommendations Monday, with Congress expected to assist in their gradual adoption.

The commission concluded after a seven-month study that the youngest of all qualified men should be drafted first, starting at age 19, and summoned in a random order by lot.

Since fewer than half of these men would actually be needed in the armed services, the rest, having escaped the period of "maximum vulnerability", would become virtually exempt.

A majority of the commission urged the abolition of almost all student and occupational deferments, subjecting nearly all physically and mentally fit 19-year-olds to a simultaneous risk of induction.

A third of the group favored continued deferments for undergraduate study, requiring the student to face random selection with the next group of 19-year-olds upon graduation.

The members of the commission agreed that too many students had worked deferments into exemptions.

Safeguards were urged against the injustices in the present system, and deferments for most grad students were called unadvisable.

The commission agreed that potential draftees should not be protected by direct enlistment in the Reserves of National Guard.

Possible shortages in both of these branches would be filled by the same random selection system.

The need for draftees would be reduced by creating more military jobs for the surplus of women volunteers and by developing programs to train male volunteers who do not meet induction standards.

The commission also felt there is a need to modify the policies toward aliens to give immigrants time to adjust before being drafted.

The commission proposed that study begin on the feasibility of an "ideal" peacetime system that would allow all drafted men to decide when, between the ages of 19 and 23, they wished to serve.

Some of the commission's most long-range proposals could be effected by executive order of the President without new legislation.

Raising the standard of expanding deferments, the commission felt, would only promote "harmful and undesirable" injustices. The drafting of older men first would leave all men in uncertainity for many years and impose unequal risks of selection.

They decided on a complete reversal of this concept. A universal testing of all men at registration at age 18. Those eligible for the draft pool would be ranked at random in an order of call. How the random will be done has not been determined yet.

The commission agreed to stand by the existing rules for conscientious objectors.

The concept of drafting younger men has now almost universal approval. Defense Secretary McNamara favors a lottery of some kind and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., submitted similar recommendations in a resolution to the senate.

Proposed Draft Changes

. A radical reorganization of the military draft, altering both methods and standards of selection was proposed to President Johnson Saturday by the National Advisory Commission on Selective Service.

The proposals call for the following:

- limited lottery with a starting of 19,
- taking these younger men first
- an abolition of virtually all student deferments
- an end to draft immunity by enlistment in the Reserves or National Guard.
- the creation of more military jobs for women volunteers and for replacing the local draft boards with about 500 area centers.

Changes Will Effect Entering UM Students

Male students entering UMass as Freshmen next year, are among eighty thousand Massachusetts young men, who will face the possibility of being called by Uncle Sam after two years of college if draft recommendations are adopted.

Those who passed draft requirements on the 18th birthday would be called after a maximum of two years of college.

But the men in the 26 to 34 age group who have escaped the draft through student deferments would become undraftable.

Under present law, a student drafted while in school can get a deferment until the academic year is ended.

The recommendation that the biggest proportion of draftees come from the 19 year-old group followed suggestions of Col. Samuel H. Hayes, director of military psychology at the U.S. Military Academy. He stated last December that "if not inducted after their 19th year or not deferred for cause, they should be excused from further liability for military service."

This recommendation prompted Stanton R. Curtis, dean of students at Boston University to comment: "Considering all aspects of the draft as it now exists, college students have been given preferential treatment. There are inequalties in the draft system as it relates to student deferments."

Even without the proposed changes in the system "students already have to make a decision about what they are going to do concerning the draft," he continued.

He does not believe that the proposal to draft 19 year-olds first will have a marked effect on the choice of present high school students.

An opposition view is held by Dr. Basil Castaldi, a dean at Bristol Community College in Fall River. He believes that the "almost certain draft" will play a part in college decision making.

He has found an attitude expressed by prospective students of: "Why bother to begin college. I'm going to be drafted anyway."

Col. Paul F. Feeney, deputy director of the state selective service, feels that the only "new" recommendation concerns the elimination of local draft boards, replacing them with regional boards.

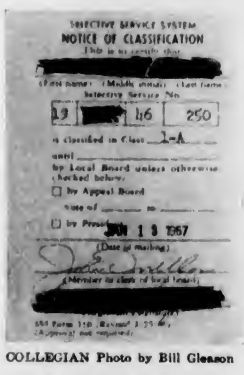
This "would seem to sacrifice the grass roots philosophy of the selective service," he said, but would permit the formation of more standard deferment policy.

UM Seeks Solution To Rift Over DaVinci

AMHERST—A letter has been sent to Spain's minister of education and science in an effort to resolve an impasse over publication of recently recovered Da Vinci manuscripts in the Madrid National Library, a University of Massachusetts official said Friday.

Creates Furor

The "Leonardo affair" created a furor when Madrid Library officials expressed displeasure over what they termed "sensational" claims by the university that Dr. Jules Piccus of the university faculty had discovered the long-lost and invaluable Da Vinci manuscripts.



Madrid Library officials said the manuscripts had merely been misfiled and denied Dr. Piccus reaccess to the papers, leading to reports that the library will not allow publication of the documents under a contract signed with the university.

A third party to the publication contract, Dr. Ladislao Reti of the University of California subsequently withdrew because of "the present state of confusion."

Willing to Talk

Dean Edward C. Moore of the university graduate school has written Spanish officials indicating the university's willingness to "iron out any difficulties" and to discuss with them the terms of the contract.

Meanwhile in Madrid, Dr. Piccus continues to be denied access to the Da Vinci manuscripts, the university acknowledged.

SELECTIVE SERVICE SYSTEM
NOTICE OF CLASSIFICATION
[redacted]
Selective Service No.
[redacted] 46 250
is classified in Class 1-A until by Local Board unless otherwise checked below.
☐ by Appeal Board
☐ by President
JUN 13 1967
(Date of mailing)
(Member or clerk of local board)

COLLEGIAN Photo by Bill Gleason

30 Years Ago
Salisbury Booted

MINNEAPOLIS (CPS)—Harrison Salisbury, assistant managing editor of the New York Times and the author of recent widely-publicized dispatches from Hanoi, was suspended from the University of Minnesota 37 years ago.

Salisbury's suspension from the University on Jan. 14, 1930, was for a "deliberate, public, and unforgivable offense"—smoking in the library — according to the then University president, Lotus Coffman. The suspension marked the high point in a "Great Nicotine War" between student leaders and administrators who issued an ultimatum against smokers in the library.

LEDERLE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

only a third of that number five years before. A record high for the fourth straight year for the Stockbridge School was 516 students. Summer school enrollment reached 4800, 2466 taking a full schedule of courses in both sessions.

- A total of 1930 degrees granted during the year, compared with 1617 the previous year, 1463 of these undergraduate and 467 advanced, including 48 doctorates. Number of higher degrees conferred more than doubled in the past three years.
- Gifts and grants for new and continuing sponsored research reached $7.5 million for the year.
- Seven new doctoral programs and six new master's degree programs approved.
- Important changes and growth in the College of Agriculture, where the number of student majors increased last year more rapidly than the university enrollment as a whole.
- Addition of 70,000 volumes to library collections, on the way to the goal of a minimum of a million volumes by 1970.
- Expansion of university facilities through the commonwealth and in many parts of the world, including growth at Boston, planning progress at the School of Medicine in Worcester, further gains at UMass-AID projects in Malawi and Uganda, Africa, and establishment of programs in Freiburg, Germany, Oxford, England and Bologna, Italy.
- Continued enlargement and improvement of the university's physical plant, including $3.9 million in facilities accepted and dedicated, $17.5 million in projects virtually completed and $11.3 million in construction in progress at the year's end.

Preliminary planning was under way by the end of the fiscal year for nine other Amherst projects: the new library, the first phase of the Graduate Research Center, the Campus Center, Bartlett Hall West, Bartlett Hall East, Machmer Tower, a central storage building, power house improvement and a new physical education field.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

Pictured above is Roger Robitaille (SAM '69) who set what would be the all-time "Hatch-ratting" record on Friday. "Filthy Pierre," as his friends call him, sat in the Hatch from 7 a.m. till closing time.

Austrian Compares UMass To Large Czech College

by WAYNE SOINI

"The East European youth are probably most like your Californians," said Doctor Ernst Winter, head of the Austrian Institute of Diplomacy, in a lecture on East European youth Friday night. "Most like your U-Mass is Czechoslovakia's Bratislava, a college of eighty-thousand, a skyscraper village planted in the middle of some very muddy country. It is five years old and still no grass."

Doctor Winter had begun his talk by placing Eastern Europe in the context of world education. In the United States 94% of all seventeen-year-olds are in school, in Russia 96%, and in Western Europe statistics run between Portugal's 6% and Germany's 28%. In East European countries, however, between 60 and 80% are in school at this age.

The East European student stays in college as long as ten years. "No one finishes in eight semesters, but ten, twelve, fourteen," said Doctor Winter.

Further, "They don't graduate from one university but three or four. East Europe is spectacular for student and professorial mobility."

On subjects he commented: "In Western Europe they study law, in Russia, physical sciences, but in Eastern Europe social sciences are one, two, three. In Western Europe a survey showed that students wanting to become medical doctors ranked second in number; in Eastern Europe the pollsters found that this group was second-lowest in number. There is, then, almost a complete polarity between them."

Doctor Winter speculated on the results: "The Polish or Hungarians are now just as conceited about their 'Herr Doktor' as the Germans and Austrians. From out of democratic environs they are becoming intellectual aristocrats. Within ten years East European countries will be unable to support its generation of college graduates, half social engineers and half computer programmers.

Winter envisioned that a revolution will come: "A democracy? No; a democracy is built upon a numerically small, mobile people. A dictatorship? No; a dictatorship requires a large, united clan, a settled Volk. In East Europe we have a large, very mobile population. So at my academy and actually at all of the universities we are searching for the solution, which will be something new."

When asked about the Ugly American, he said, "The United States, through its State Department and foundations, has sent over the wrong people to Europe. America is full of first-rate intellectuals. They stay here. American students over there wander about finding themselves and, I am sorry to say, generally spread nothing of value."

He cited a professorial exchange problem which he said was not an isolated case.

The doctor's lecture in the Student Union was co-sponsored by the history departments of Smith College and the University of Massachusetts.

Volunteers Needed For Area Hospital

Every Wednesday night, the Northampton Volunteers make their weekly trip to the Northampton State Mental Hospital.

At the hospital the volunteer engages in various activities, all of which have the same basic function—to provide an opportunity for the patients to converse with someone from outside the hospital confines. A volunteer may play cards, sing, dance or any of a multitude of other activities.

Besides providing a much needed service for the hospital, a volunteer also experiences a personal thrill by engaging in something in which he provides help to his fellow man on a direct basis. Many of the volunteers feel that this is one of the few opportunities of such a nature that can be found during a college career.

The volunteers also provide the student with an opportunity to rid himself of the common stereotyped ideas of what a mental hospital looks like.

The time is Wednesday night at 6:30 in the Student Union Lobby. A bus is provided. Questions should be addressed to Malcolm O'Sullivan at 546-7028 or Ellen Levy at 546-8258.

ATTENTION NEW STAFFERS

All new (and old) staffers interested in copy-editing and page layout should attend an instructional session tomorrow (Tues.) evening at 6:30 p.m. in the Collegian office. Please let us know if you cannot attend.

LIBRARIAN SPEAKS

"Books are normally due in the University Library on Mondays. Books falling due on Monday, March 27 are due that day and subject to regular library fines during the vacation. Students whose books are due on this date and who expect to use them over vacation should renew before leaving for vacation."

Judiciary Selections

On Sunday, March 12, at 1:00 P.M., Judiciary selections for area II will be conducted in the Student Union. There is one opening for the class of 1968, three for class of 1969, one for class of 1970, and one for Stockbridge.

All residents of Thatcher, Brett, Mills, Wheeler, Gorman, and Hills North and South are eligible. Applications are available from House Mothers and from R.S.O. and must be submitted at the selections.

On Wednesday, March 8, the Collegian will provide space for a Candidates' Forum. If you wish to state your qualifications, submit a letter to the Editorial Editor before 1:00 p.m. Tuesday. Letters must be typed at 60 spaces, double-spaced, and should not exceed 14 lines.

WE MADE 25 PEOPLE HAPPY THIS YEAR

We took college graduates from 12 different schools, who majored in 13 different fields, gave them 25 jobs in 14 completely different professional areas and came up with 25 satisfied, successful Administrative Trainees.

We made them happy and we work to keep them that way. We'd like to do the same for you this year.
If you are interested in training for a career in administration in any of the following fields, we are interested in you:

- BUDGETING
- PERSONNEL
- WELFARE
- HOSPITAL ADMINISTRATION
- BUSINESS MANAGEMENT
- FORESTRY
- INSURANCE
- LABOR
- PURCHASING
- PLANNING
- ACCOUNTING

Salary: $6240 for those with a Bachelor's; $6720 for those with a Master's. Contact Miss England, State Personnel Department, State Office Building, Hartford for the descriptive Brochure.

You'll make us happy.

THINKING OF GETTING ENGAGED

Student Diamond

BUYING SERVICE

(WITH SPECIAL PRICE CONSIDERATION)

by

HERB COHEN

in association with his father

NATHAN COHEN

Jeweler & Diamond Merchant

"In the Bowles Building"

Room 206 - Second Floor

1618 MAIN STREET, SPRINGFIELD 3, MASS.

Established 1912 Phone RE 2-5244

Dear Student,

"A diamond engagement ring--one of the most personal and important purchases in an individual's life--is often one of the most difficult.

"I believe that young adults in general, and university students in particular, would welcome a straight-forward unembellished presentation of the facts by someone qualified by training and experience, who is sincerely interested in assisting them in making an intelligent and informed selection."

Qualifications:

N.Y.U.—B.S. Marketing

G.I.A. (Gemological Institute of America)—Specialized Diamond Training

Wisconsin Demonstrators Arrested For Protesting Dow Recruiters

While students at UMass demonstrated against recruiters of Dow Chemical Company when they were on campus, a similar demonstration at the University of Wisconsin was put down by the administration there.

Seventeen students were arrested at Wisconsin marking the strongest administrative response to protests against Dow interviews on at least 14 campuses in the last 2 weeks. Dow is one of the manufactures of the Napalm used in Vietnam.

The demonstrators at Wisconsin were arrested after holding a sit-in in the campus placement office of the Engineering Building where Dow representatives were interviewing prospective employees.

An engineering professor, James Marks, who was in charge of the building registered a complaint with the police and asked that the students be arrested.

Although the chancellor of the university, Robben Fleming, later paid for the students' bail, he refused to ask Professor Marks to drop his charges against the demonstrators.

Fleming said that he would not debate the "right of an individual faculty member to keep order in the building for which he is responsible."

Meanwhile, the Faculty Congress passed a resolution empowering the administration to use whatever measures necessary to protect "freedom of speech" from incursion by illegal or coercive action. The resolution was passed as a warning to future demonstrators.

Fleming told the faculty that implementation of the resolution might possibly lead to the use of local police or the state police—"or other outside force" in disciplining students.

Reaction from faculty members, the administration and some students has centered around fears of "another Berkeley."

Although most faculty members, according to the student newspaper the DAILY CARDINAL, opposed the protestors, two professors questioned whether the university had observed "due process" for the arrested students.

A Committee, organized by an instructor, Dr. Herbert Needleman, at Temple University, plans to bring Vietnamese children to this country for care.

"The Committee cares about these injured bodies, regardless of what political system they are living under," Needleman said. "The committee not only cares but feels responsible. A major source of concern is napalm burns, and Americans are the only ones who use the stuff."

Informal Discussions

New Program Opens Wed.

On Wednesday March 8, 1967, the Student Union Arts and Music Committee of the University of Massachusetts will present the initiating program of its newly founded Faculty Lecture Series.

These programs will include lectures, poetry readings, and discussions presented by members of the Art, English and Speech Departments. Programs will be presented weekly in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union. Refreshments will be served.

The main idea of the Series

(Continued on page 7)

Guild Selects Cast For 'Wonderful Town'

WONDERFUL TOWN, the musical that New York found a wonderful show for 70 weeks, will be the next production of the U. Mass. Operetta Guild. It will be presented in Bowker Auditorium on April 7, 8 and 13, 14, 15.

The script was written by Jerome Chodorov and Joseph Fields, based on the long-popular stories by Ruth McKenney and the play called "My Sister Eileen." It is the story of two young and pretty sisters from Ohio when they arrive in New York to seek careers. The delightful music was written by Leonard Bernstein with lyrics by Adolph Green and Betty Comden.

Karen Connolly, '69 will appear as the elder sister with ambitions to become a newspaper-woman, and Heddi Zirin, Smith, '69 will have the role of her man-drawing sister Eileen who hopes to become an actress and whose innocent magnetism for every man in sight involves both girls in the show's hilarious complications.

Bob Emerson, '67 will have the tenor role of the magazine editor who almost falls in love with the wrong sister. Stephen Schnetzer, '70 will be the wolfish newspaperman, Chick Clark and Peter Schofield, '70 will play Freddie, the refined drugstore manager.

The role of Apopolous, the girl's Greenwich village landlord and painter will be played by Michail Prusky, '68, with Ray Poole as a fellow tenement tenant who sings a clever satire of athletic scholarships, telling how none of his college failures counted because he could "pass that Football."

Others featured in this cast of 25, will be Larry Benedict, '67 as 'Speedy' Valenti, Jon Hutton and Robert LaCroix as singing editors, and Sandra Rispler as Violet, the local streetwalker.

COLLEGIAN

"Hot Line"

545-2550

Action "67" on WMUA

WMUA is 91.1 F.M.

Tuesday at 8:00, Action "67"

with host Peter Ward brings three of our class presidents to campus

radio for a lively debate on Student Government.

Presenting

BOSTON'S BEST

The Rockin' Ramrods

Friday Evening March 10th

75¢ Admission

8-12 P.M. S.U. Ballroom

Soseki's Style Discussed At Amherst

In the Babbot room at Amherst College, March 3, Professor Ray Moore introduced to the four college area an authority on Japanese literature and a perspective of the modern novel in Japan.

Professor Howard Hibbett of Harvard University lectured on "Natsume Soseki and the Modernization of Meiji Literature."

Hibbett's subject, Soseki, is often considered the most important novelist of the Meiji Period, the Restoration in Japan. Soseki was a master of Western literature as well as his native culture.

He developed an artistic style blending these opposite cultures.

With the psychological novel he replaced the Japanese confessional story. Retaining the native morality of gloom, anxiety and suffering.

This lecture was the second of a series presented by the four college Asian and African Program. The first was a perspective of the modern state of Japan. Further aspects of the case For Modern Japan are to be discussed later in the spring.

The Massachusetts Collegian

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week following vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price:
$4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office:
Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Telephone: 545-2550 — 549-1311

MASS. CLASSIFIED

WANTED

Ex. Nurses' Aide 3:00 to 7:00 p.m. R.N. 3:00 to 11:00 or 11:00 to 7:00 full or part time.

Musician(s) for St. Patrick's Day Party. Must be able to consume prodigious amounts of fluid. No R & R trash or vulgar Q-Club. Entertainers need apply. P.O. Box 701, Amherst.

FOR SALE

Flower in Botany—ACTUAL PAST EXAMS IN BOTANY 101. Now in the University Store.

650 cc BSA excellent condition. 1956. $450.00. Call 584-6739, evenings.

Honda sport 65—1966 excellent condition; black & chrome; 1800 miles. Call 546-9027 after 12:00 p.m. Price: $190.

OPPORTUNITIES

An upperclassman or grad student to share cottage in Belchertown — 4 miles from campus. Call Rich Moran, 253-2259 or leave a message in the Collegian office.

Interested in International communication and languages? Join the Esperanto Club in the Student Union, every Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

AUTOMOBILES

'58 Cadillac Ambulance very good condition reasonable. Call 546-8291 anytime.

AUSTIN HEALEY SPRITE—MARK III —1965 Good cond. Snow tires, tonneau, luggage rack, other extras. 25,000 md. $1250. Call: 253-9835.

'57 Jaguar Roadster XK 140, convertible top. Best offer over $500. Call 584-1065 after 5 p.m.

1965 SAAB sedan, excellent condition, low mileage. Averages 33 miles per gallon. $1100. Call 5-2688, Extension 101A.

1962 4 wheel drive jeep station wagon. Fischer plow and profitable plowing business—sold separately or as a unit. Call Rick, 256-8146.

PERSONAL

Photographer available for group pictures, portraits etc. Competent work at reasonable prices. Call 546-8865.

LOST

Lost Wed. morning, ski boots and gloves, vicinity of ROTC parking lot and Boyden. Call 549-1237.

The Student Christian Movement in New England with the cooperation of
The Newman Clubs of New England
announcing a
MID-WINTER CONFERENCE
March 10-12
Amherst College
"Does Christianity Have a Future?"

Speakers:

Father Robert Johann, S.J.
Fordham University

Gabriel Vahanian
Syracuse University

The schedules are available and registrations may be made through the UMass NEWMAN CENTER or UNITED CHRISTIAN FOUNDATION

Open to both students and faculty

Junior Year in New York

Three undergraduate colleges offer students from all parts of the country an opportunity to broaden their educational experience by spending their

Junior Year in New York

New York University is an integral part of the exciting metropolitan community of New York City—the business, cultural, artistic, and financial center of the nation. The city's extraordinary resources greatly enrich both the academic program and the experience of living at New York University with the most cosmopolitan student body in the world.

This program is open to students recommended by the deans of the colleges to which they will return for their degrees. Courses may be taken in the

School of Commerce
School of Education
Washington Square College of Arts and Science

Write for brochure to Director, Junior Year in New York

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY
New York, N.Y. 10003

Editorial Section — Campus Comment

Draft Intellectuals!

One of the greatest threats to the educational and intellectual life of America in the 20th century has reared its ugly head in the form of the report of the President's National Advisory Commission on Selective Service.

The recommendations of this commission are to abolish all student deferments, making those students selected by "random process" eligible to be drafted after their sophomore year. What would be some of the results if this system were instituted?

- Students will be called to serve in the armed forces regardless of their scholastic ability, with the existing possibility of removing the best students and leaving the worst in school; this is contrary to the present system. The effect on the quality of already intellectually vacuous academic communities would not be hard to imagine.
- A student can begin his college career and not know whether he will be called or whether he has escaped the draft until his 20th birthday. This is hardly a "determination of his fate early in his career", and the resulting insecurity also would not be hard to imagine.
- Men who commit themselves to serve in collegiate officer programs for the security of a four year deferment would have to accept the policies of the military and the government without question, because of the basic military premise. Thus, for those students free discussion and questioning of issues, part of the educational process is destroyed.
- The possibility also exists of using the "random process", buried deep in the bureaucratic bowels of Washington, as a means of silencing those who oppose the war in Vietnam.

The most astounding part of the whole situation is that the entire report can be implemented by an Executive order of the President, and need never be debated on the floors of Congress!! The opportunities for free choice and independent action are becoming fewer as the days pass, and pervasive power and subtle influence of the government grows.

The anti-intellectuals have the field, and this report can be considered their manifesto. The old system may have been inequitable, but this one is outrageous. Is it 1967 or 1984?

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

★ ★

A Dissenting Voice

by STEVE FINER, Editorial Staff

We will all presumably breathe a sigh of relief when that intellectual bastion has left the university. And we will probably also think that we have beaten him at his own game. But perhaps this year, next year, or maybe in another five years, some of us will begin to wonder whether we have actually beaten him, or whether it is ourselves we have beaten. In view of all the contumely which has been so readily heaped upon him, some recognition of the merits of Eugene Charles Putala is due.

He is a lecturer, par excellence. One need only attend a single lecture to understand why. Each of them is well organized: concise, fluent, and lucid. He embellishes them with a protean selection of digressions on subjects like myth, C. S. Lewis' The Abolition of Man, and his former classmate, William Manchester. There is that one flagrant characteristic which most of us find burdensome: the lectures are so planned that they necessitate notes which include almost a word-for-word transcription. He does not waste his words. And, finally, there are the amusing memonic devices he suggests to us for difficult concepts: to wit, one, a water bucket brigade at a fire being analogous to the energy built up by ATP.

Mr. Putala is an educator. His policy with respect to examination questions, discouraging as we may find it, works well toward the learning process, as can attest those who have carried out his suggestion and haggled over the questions with a mind to learning something from each other. He is always willing to talk to students personally (some students have spent all of an afternoon in his office), and to teach them what their ideas mean in terms of our Western tradition, whether the subject be Botany 101 or our education at UMass. How many other professors on this campus would have listened for some two and a half hours in Mr. Kinney's apartment to the sophisticated arguments and complaints (not to mention rudeness) of students and would have pointed out logically and calmly where they err? He is, indeed, interested in his students, notwithstanding whatever we may think to the contrary.

That Mr. Putala is a scientist with the mind of a humanist seems to be of little interest. But this one attribute is indispensable for teaching such a course as Botany 101, for several reasons. It means that he is fully aware of science's merits, as well as its shortcomings. He can teach us these two things more readily than can one who is exclusively a scientist. And he knows the workings of our minds, our method of inquiry (if any), and what we are capable of. Thus, the examinations are intentionally difficult, but not impossible.

All this is rarely considered, though. Most of us apparently think it far more important that a man scale an exam immediately after it takes place than that a man be faithful to his profession.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
A.P. Wire Editor ..... Richard Kline '70
Fine Arts Editor ..... Laurence Kornfield '69
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Monday's Day Editors: News—Jim Foudy '68, Sports—Harvey Elman '68

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. Phone: 545-2550, 549-1311

A Humanistic Study

To the Editor:

(A reply to a disgruntled History 101 student—Monday, Collegian, Feb. 27)

Judging from the comments of one student regarding Professor Edgar Johnson's text presently used in History 100-101, it is clear that many students have been seriously misled in terms of 'good' and 'bad' history texts. Miss Geer's reaction to the text seems to indicate a conception that a good textbook reduces History to objective and factual knowledge, composed in simple declarative sentences, nicely arranged chronologically and topically — a conception that was shattered many years ago by historians Carl Becker ("What are historical facts?") and Charles Beard ("Written history as an act of faith"), but to which antiquated historians and naive students still desperately cling. The comment that Professor Johnson's text is "more of a study of the culture of a period than of its historical significance" indicates this confusion. It is precisely the study of cultural values, and how such values are institutionally expressed which makes the study of History a rich and creative area of knowledge.

Johnson's text marks a break away from the obsolete historical text based on the idea that History was an objective science, pretending to deliver the facts neatly arranged. Upon close reading, every text reveals a point of view which guided the author's selection, often cleverly disguised. Professor Johnson's adopts a thematic approach frankly and boldly, an approach however, not intended to be the objective truth (whatever that may be!), but rather designed to offer an interpretation of man's historical experience which might stimulate thought and generate new questions regarding the significance and implications of that experience.

As a humanistic study, which may, however, adopt scientific methods, History necessarily involves selection and subjective evaluation of man's historical experience. The historian selects from the past those events, concepts, and configurations which he believes are necessary for a present understanding of the past. He hopes for inter-subjective agreement through criticism of his work and creative dialogue—a condition sadly lacking in many faculties of History.

As soon as students as well as historians clear their minds of uncritical academic dross, they may find a text such as Professor Johnson's very readable. It demands a broader and deeper level of historical perspective and cultural consciousness.

Professor Joseph A. DellaGrotte
Department of History

Tomorrow lies in waking when the running-fast of time and the walking-slow of reason plan to meet, but never can.

—Katie Louchheim

The Communications Board

To the Editor:

The Communications Board has been functioning for ten weeks. During that time the members have become acquainted, elected a chairman and vice-chairman, created sub-committees and met every week, except during intercession.

What has the Board really accomplished? It has forwarded two recommendations: one, concerning a wire service for the Collegian, was sent to the Student Senate, and the other, concerning Yahoo, was presented to the Dean of Students.

The Student Senate and Faculty Senate established a Communications Board that was to be a consultative, advisory and mediating body.

A legitimate question is whether the Board has acted in that capacity and whether it will in the future.

Did the Board advise Yahoo? It certainly did, after it asked Yahoo to appear before the Board. The Board asked Yahoo if it wanted to publish; the answer was yes. From that point on, the Board pounded Yahoo until it presented a detailed, acceptable report of their proposals.

The Board, more or less, deceived Yahoo. The staff was led to believe that it needed the Board's support and recommendation before Yahoo would be allowed to publish.

Yahoo should have presented their new constitution to the Activities Committee, their financing proposals to the Finance Committee, and then they should have waited for the Dean of Students to forward their budget request to the President and Treasurer of the University.

And in the initial stages of their work, the Yahoo staff should have consulted the Communications Board for its advice on these matters.

The Board should not have recommended to the Student Senate and the Dean of Students that Yahoo be allowed to publish.

I do not think the Board, with its basic aim of helping the media improve themselves, has the right to decide whether any group of students should be permitted to publish. This decision should come from the Student Senate.

The Board should provide advice when asked. It is the individual medium's responsibility to improve itself, and this involves consulting the Board, which was created to give advice but not to be a watch-dog ready to pounce whenever a mistake arises.

Any mistake that arises is not the fault of the Board; it would be the result of many factors. However, the existence of the Board, and the media's faith in its advice, should reduce the number of serious errors.

Now, the other recommendation. The Board voted unanimously to recommend to the Student Senate that, in principle, the Collegian should have a wire service.

The recommendation itself is not questionable, but the manner in which the issue came before the Board is. The various editors and advisers of the media were invited to attend a meeting designed to explain the duties of the media and the Board as specified under the Board's constitution.

At that time, Mr. Alvin Oickle, the Collegian's adviser, presented the issue and asked for the Board's recommendation. The Board approved the idea and sent its recommendation to the Student Senate.

I must congratulate the Collegian on using the Board as a tool. The matter had not been presented to any of the media representatives on the Board nor was the issue ever placed on the agenda.

Hopefully, the media will neither view nor use the Board as an efficacious device only in times of urgent need.

There are other faults with the Communications Board. The constitution of the Board requires all media to submit annual budget requests which the Board will consider and forward to the Student Senate with its comments and recommendations.

The Board is also empowered to receive a slate of nominees for all elected positions. The Board will interview the candidates and submit comments to the medium on the "strengths and weaknesses of the candidates".

The Board also requests an annual report from each medium stating the duties and responsibilities of the adviser.

Finally, the Board considered itself capable of handling any new constitutions and proposed changes to the existing constitutions. The Board intends to "review the practices and procedures of these organizations and advise on the effective conformity of each organization to its constitution".

Should the Board start reviewing budgets, candidates, constitutions, and duties of advisors, I feel they will be duplicating the work of the Student Senate to a large extent, and would not be fulfilling its raison d'etre: to advise.

Fred Pilon,
Communications Board Member

UMass Budget Hit

(Editors note: The following "news story" by Wendell H. Woodman appeared on page one of the Lynn Daily Evening Item on Thursday, March 2. It also ran in the Malden Evening News and Medford Daily Mercury on Friday. We ask that you read it as objectively as you can, and we would appreciate your comments on it.)

By WENDELL H. WOODMAN

STATE HOUSE — When taxpayers are asked to fork over almost as much money to run the University of Massachusetts as they spend to run 11 State colleges, two technological institutes and 11 regional colleges combined —then there is something wrong with the Beacon Hill Priority list.

A cynic once remarked that if enough people picketed the State House to have the Mystic River Bridge torn down, it could be dismantled by Executive Order within 24 hours. He may be right!

The Volpe Administration has proposed a $35,340,200 budget for the university, including 3.5 million for the new Boston branch and $262,000 for the Worcester Medical School.

And for 11 state colleges and two tech institutes and 11 more regional colleges—24 other state high educational institutions, the Governor proposes a total appropriation of $37,174,671.

Total UMass enrollment would be 16,935. Total enrollment at the other colleges would be 35,870.

The magnitude of the outlay is dwarfed by the total state spending bill. In 1962, the year it was granted fiscal autonomy, the university's budget was $11.4 million. By 1963 it was $12.1 million. By 1964, $14.8 million. By 1965, $17.8 million. In 1966, $22.4 million. It is now at $28.5 million and expected, by recommendation of the Governor, to go to $35-.3 million as of July 1. The UM trustees requested $42.4 million.

In five years, under autonomy, the university has tripled its spending level from the state treasury. Federal grants to the university account for many millions more.

Comparisons are staggering.

The state's judiciary system— supreme, superior, probate, insolvency and land courts, districts attorneys, probation, public defenders and so on — costs $7.5 million and combined with county court costs, the tab doesn't even approach the cost of running the university at Amherst.

The total legislative budget is $5.7 million, little more than 20 per cent of the university's budget.

OTHER STATE BUDGETS

The budget of the Secretary of State is $1.7 million and the budget of the Attorney General is under $1.5 million.

The prison network is under the Correction Dept. with a total budget of $20.5 million.

It costs $37 million to run the entire state welfare system—only $1.5 million more than to run the university.

The cost of running state hospitals at Tewksbury, Lakesville, Rutland, Westfield, Canton, Pondville and the Lemuel Shattuck in Boston totals $23.2 million.

The budget for the Executive Branch including civil defense, the state military establishment, armories, scores of boards and agencies, the comptroller, purchasing agent, group insurance for state employes, rail subsidies and administration and Finance which supervises all government operation totals $36,364,519 — only $1 million more than running the university.

The cost of running UMass is more than twice the annual state revenue from the 5 per cent meals tax—four times the yield from the levy on banks and trusts.

From state appropriation alone, it costs taxpayers over $2000 to support one student at the university for a year. The tuition is $200.

3000 PAID POSITIONS

There are over 3000 paid positions recommended at UMass for the next fiscal year.

Crime, violence and the state police system are major fiscal issues this year. Yet the proposed budget for the entire Dept. of Public Safety is only $2.3 million.

Civil service reform is a major issue. The civil service budget is now $2 million.

What will the Legislature fight about this year?

It will spend hours trying to trim the $58,000 budget of the Consumers' Council, the $121,000 budget of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, the $580,000 budget of the Commonwealth Service Corps and the $42,000 budget proposed for the Health and Welfare Commission.

It will probably spend less than a half hour on the UMass budget and raise it a few million dollars.

PRIORITIES POSE CRISIS

The priorities, not the level of spending at Amherst, pose the crisis. In one year's time at the present budget growth rate for UMass, it would be cheaper to close the university and send all the students to Harvard under a state subsidy.

Unless the UMass spending level finds a water line soon, the Legislature must either abolish fiscal autonomy or salvage the taxpayer by setting a realistic tuition and lower that tuition on the basis of merit and need to a $200 minimum under an expanded scholarship program.

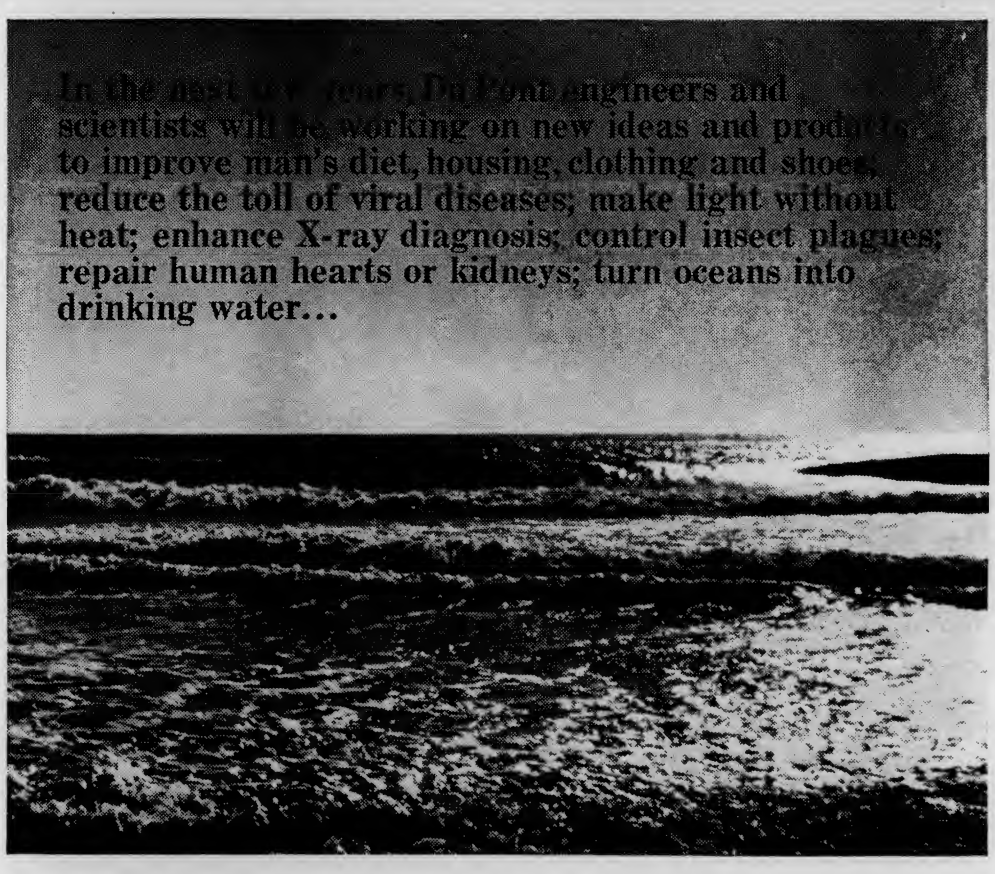
Santa Claus will not be the saving grace of our little agricultural school in Amherst.

Something Different

NOW SHOWING
on screen 6:50-9:10
plus select shorts
AMHERST Cinema
ZERO MOSTEL · PHIL SILVERS
"A FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO THE FORUM"
COLOR by DeLuxe UNITED ARTISTS
Wed. "IS PARIS BURNING"
Mar. 15-16 "THE MIKADO"

Heat up your winter weekends with

SKIING
Head 360 · White Star · Dynastar · Yamaha
Mammoth-Racersville, USA · Kitzbuhel-It Swings!
Rx for Parallel Skiing · Stein Eriksen Instructs



SKIING warms things up with The Cold Weather Story—expert advice on what to do and how to dress on sub-zero slopes from Vermont to California, with four pages of exciting color photos. Plus exclusive test reports on the Head 360, Kneissl White Star, MV-2 Dynastar, Yamaha Standard ... a photo essay on hand bootmaking ... professional tips on technique ... the news about canted soles to solve your edging problem ... and considerably more.

It's all yours in the red-hot January issue of

SKIING

Just 60¢—ask about the special half-price student subscription rate available through college bookstores.

and anything else that you might think of.

The 165-year history of Du Pont is a history of its people's ideas—ideas evolved, focused, and engineered into new processes, products and plants. The future will be the same. It all depends upon you.

You're an individual from the first day. There is no formal training period. You enter professional work immediately. Your personal development is stimulated by real problems and by opportunities to continue your academic studies under a tuition refund program.

You'll be in a small group, where individual contributions are swiftly recognized and rewarded. We promote from within.

You will do significant work, in an exciting technical environment, with the best men in their fields, and with every necessary facility.

Sign up today for an interview with the Du Pont recruiter. Or mail the coupon for more information about career opportunities. These opportunities lie both in technical fields—Ch.E., M.E., E.E., I.E., Chemistry, Physics and related disciplines—and in Business Administration, Accounting and associated functions.

DU PONT

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. (Inc.)
Nemours Building 2500—1
Wilmington, Delaware 19898

Please send me the Du Pont Magazine along with the other magazines I have checked below.

- ☐ Chemical Engineers at Du Pont
- ☐ Mechanical Engineers at Du Pont
- ☐ Engineers at Du Pont
- ☐ Du Pont and the College Graduate

Name _____
Class _____ Major _____ Degree expected _____
College _____
My address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip Code _____

Dean's List-Class of '67

Semester Average 3.0-3.3

Abrams Nancy A	Sociol	Clegg Stephen R	PlSoll	Fuchs Nancy L	Zool	Kane Patricia A	Nurse	Menza William P	Sociol	Schnare Sharon E	Educ
Adams John P	Mgt	Coates Robert E	Hist	Fullam Sara	Econ	Kaplan Gary A	Psych	Methelis Alan D	Math	Schultz Carolann M	Js Int
Jones Sandra Agar	Nurse	Cocivera Richard L	Hist	Gamache Maureen L	Mktg	Kuragosian Robert M	I E	Manning Mary Millett	Span	Scott Robert P 2nd	Mgt
Albert Thomas W	Psych	Cohen Janet F	Engl	Gamache Richard A	Acctg	Kautzmann Eleanor M	Nurse	Milner David I	Sociol	Segool Leslie A	Educ
Manley Eileen Alders	Js Eng	Cohen Karen L	Educ	Garner Steven C	Premed	Keating James J	Hist	Minasian Doris J	Premed	Selman Joyce	Educ
Alessi Frederick E	Phil	Coleman Nancy L	Educ	Garrison Elizabeth A	Govt	Keating Walter R	C E	Mirick Georgann	Educ	Shagoury John G	M E
Allen Susan L	Educ	Collis Elizabeth A	Educ	Garrity Joanne M	Engl	Keller Kathleen M	Engl	Misky Joseph W	Plsoll	Shain Neal M	Math
Allessio Lawrence P	A&F Ec	Comeau Steven A	Mgt	Garvey Maurice G	Ld Arc	Kenswil Jacqueline	Speech	Mitchell Robert C	Hist	Sheedy Jane K	Mktg
Anderson Mark C	Ch F	Connell John J	Govt	Gauger Stephen E	Gb Fin	Kent Richard J	Math	Moland Margaret N	Educ	Smale Nancy E	Sociol
Andrade Anita C	Medtec	Connelly James T	Engl	Giarla David J	Htlmgt	Ketonen Sherrin A	Psych	Moore Mary A	Govt	Smith Catherine	Govt
Andre Thomas	Psych	Connelly Judith A	Hist	Glasser Marc D	Engl	Kinch Diane M	Govt	Morash Barbara L	H Ec	Smith George L	C F
Andreassian Eugenie	French	Connors Donald S	Govt	Glassman Stephen R	Htlmgt	Kingston Carol J	Hist	Moreau Gerald R	Psych	Kates Paula Smith	Educ
Arsenault Donna K	Nurse	Consoli Grace A	Educ	Glavin Judith A	H Ec	Kosto Susan B	Hist	Morlock Mary C	Govt	Smith Sandra A	Art
Auger John J	Hist	Cook William T	An Sci	Gloster Thomas F	Govt	Koston Susan B	Hist	Moroney Kathleen M	Wo Pe	Smith Stephen F	Hist
Bailey Barbara L	Math	Cooke John P	Men Pe	Gola Douglas L	Pub Hl	Krasnow Michael A	Engl	Mosher Mary E	Wo Pe	Smith Stephen W	Hist
Buillargeon Denis R	Mierio	Corea Elizabeth M	Speech	Goldberg Barbara	Speech	Kraszeski Jon L	Premed	Moulton William H	Engl	Smola Daniel J	M E
Barker Hope I	Nurse	Cormier Russell A	Chem	Goldberg Leonard M	German	Kuzara Robert M	Acctg	Murphy Eugene P	Hist	Smolen Nancy E	Premed
Barrett Thomas M	Hist	Costa Betty P	French	Goldman Marsha E	Engl	Lamb Philip E	Wildlf	Musumeci Judith A	Psych	Snyder Ellen	Art
Barsalou Donald L	A&F Ec	Cronin Cornelia J	Psych	Goldman Richard A	Predmt	Lamond Katherine M	Engl	Najemy Joanne M	French	Sousa Michael C	Span
Bartlett Jan M	Engl	Cummings Judith A	Speech	Goodman Iris E	Educ	Lapierre Robert J	Htl Mgt	Neal Christine L	Educ	Souza Alfred F	C F
Bashista Raymond E	Engl	Cunningham John J Jr	Engl	Gordon Bruce S	Govt	Latino Jean T	Hist	Nelson Donald A	Acctg	Stacy Marilyn N	Math
Bassett Cortland P	Men Pe	Curran William C	Gb Fin	Gordon Manuel F	Hist	Latour Leo J Jr	Physic	Nichola Robert T	Govt	Statkun Cynthia L	Educ
Bassignani Peter M	Prevet	Dabrowski T E	Gb Fin	Gould Michael	Math	Laverdiere Suzanne F	Math	Nietupski Joanne M	Span	St. Charles Therese R	H Ec
Bears Norma J	Educ	Daly Mary G	H Ec	Granger Persis Roger	Engl	Lawrence, Ronald F	Mgt	Noel Barbara A	Math	St. Clair Steven H	Govt
Beekman Candace	Math	Davidson Samuel G	Acctg			Lazutin Irene P	Psych	Norman Kenneth R	Botany	St. Cyr Charles R	Engl
Benezra Jerry E	Govt	Davis Alan S	Hist	Greenman Nancy P	Anth	Leahy John F Jr	Art	O'Connell William E	Engl	Stein Aaron L	Govt
Bennard Bruce C	Hist	Defelice Marcia A	Math	Grinnell Richard S	Engl	Lee Aileen A	Govt	Oczkowski Louise V	Wo Pe	Stewart John B	Govt
Bergeron Russell N	Acctg	Main Carol Degnan	Educ	Guzzetta Francis J	Mktg	Lfen Linda	Rec	OLeary John F	Hist	Stewart Peter L	Fd Sci
Bernier Ronald P	Math	Derick Donna C	Educ	Haarmann Carl R	Engl	Leisher Hazel Marsha	Engl	Ordway Peter H	C E	Stillman Agnes C	Wo Pe
Bernstein Janis S	Engl	Desmond Janice M	Speech	Haglund Robert R	Predmt	Lemoine John W	Psych	Orzechowski Edward W	Engl	Strzegowski Joseph C	M E
Bebida Susan Berry	Zool	Dichhaut Faith I	Art	Haigh Susan P	Engl	Leussler Marylou L	Wo Pe	Ostromecki Paula R	H Ec	Strzempko Thaddeus J	Physic
Bieniek Virginia C	Nurse	Dickinson Marie E	Educ	Halvorson Craig C	Ld Arc	Levine Sanadra	Acctg	Painten James W	Art	Sullivan Gerald M	Acctg
Bigelow Elaine L	Zool	Dietch Adele S	Engl	Hamel Daniel J	Hist	Lewenberg Franklin	Hist	Drake Dorothy Parrot	Engl	Sullivan James M	Mktg
Blanchette Eileen M	Engl	Diraffaele Richard J	Engl	Harriman Richard A	Econ	Liederman Lawrence H	Acctg	Paster Ellen T	Sociol	Szymonik Evelyn C	Hist
Bleau Albert W Jr	Hist	Doggett Sally B	H Ec	Harris Beverly J	Educ	Lilly Alice L	Rec	Patterson Neil G	Mktg	Talbot Maurice P	French
Bovio Harry F C	Educ	Donovan Robert E	Pub Hl	Harris Merle G Jr	Premed	Lindstrom Martha K	Medtec	Pekalsky Paula M	Econ	Tark Lorin A	Econ
Bresnahan Rosemary K	Hist	Dowd Patricia	Hist	Hartstone Joel M	Gb Fin	Lipman Arthur L Jr	Chem	Pellissier Louis C	Sociol	Taska Barbara J	Engl
Brewster Marcia J	Zool	Doyle Edith H	Hist	Hatch Paul B	C E	Lippner Vicki F	Engl	Perriello Elaine R	Govt	Terry Paul L	Psych
Bridgman Spencer	Acctg	Doyle Jerilyn T	Engl	Harvey Joan Shusta	Js Int	Litvin Linda R	Govt	Peters Geraid J	Pl Soil	Thaler Robert M	Mktg
Brockman Lawrence A	Premed	Driscoll Elizabeth A	Educ	Hawes William E	Mgt	Lobdell Joan K	Educ	Petros Frances H	Span	Theofilis Diana N	Educ
Brooks Jeanne L	Engl	Drozek Janet L	Educ	Hayden John F	Ch E	Lord Shirley C	Wo Pe			Tibbetts Jill A	Wo Pe
Brydon Leslie V	Hist	Dube Diane L	Engl	Hennessey William J	Gb Fin	Loveland David P	Acctg	Phillips Susan E	Engl	Tobacco Richard J	E F
Burdick Carol M	Engl	Dubis Nancy C	Hist	Henry Susan E	Govt	Lund Drinda J	Educ	Piatkowski Stanley H	A&F Ec	Toner Edward W	Men Pe
Burke Ann L	Nurse	Durfee Alan R	Mgt	Hinkle David S	Engl	Lyford Robert W	C E	Pimentul Doris M	Educ	Toton Thomas A	Ch E
Burke Eileen A	Nurse	Durfee Susan L	Engl	Hongue Susan Penney	Psych	Maccombie Bruce F	Music	Pittendreigh Lorrin	Forest	Towle Barbara M	Nurse
Burt Carolyn L	Russ	Dyer Raymond G	Art	Hoy Patricia A	Econ	MacDonald Jane	Social	Potasky John S	Hist	Umbley Hfiga	H Ec
Buswick Edward H	Engl	Eastman Wayne H	Govt	Hoyne Susan F	Engl	MacDonald Theodore	Hist	Potter Richard M	Ag Ec	Vanderburgh Margaret	Medtec
Butler Bette J	Speech	Eaton David L	Htlmgt	Hunt Claire E	Engl	Machia Patricia M	Acctg	Prolman Ralph L	Gb Fin	Varney Alan F	C E
Cadigan Richard C	Men Pe	Eaton Jennifer E	Medtec	Hurvitz Kenneth M	Premed	MacInnes John R	Zool	Puffer Sue-Ellen	Hist	Watson Robert W	Ld Arc
Campbell Alan D	Psych	Egoodkin Sandra L	Sociol	Hutchinson Robert B	Art	Maciver Brian H	Govt	Rae Sandra J	Educ	Webb Martha C	Educ
Capeless John E	Govt	Ellis Glenn E	Psych	Irish Gerald S	Gb Fin	Maggiolino Leonard A	Acctg	Raymond Arthur V	HtlMgt	O'Brien Harriet Wecht	Hist
Capriole Barbara A	Engl	Epstein Robert L	Mktg	Isenor Sandra A	Nurse	Main Philip A	M E	Ripa Thomas G	Hist	Weckstein Steven A	Forest
Carlson Barbara E	Engl	Fagan Brian H	E E	Jackson Beverly S	French	Malone Kevin R	Wo Pe	Roche Kathleen M	Wo Pe	Weigel David R	Mgt
Carlson Jeanne C	H Ec	Feeley Edward W	Econ	Jackson Linda L	Educ	Maloney Maureen A	Wo Pe	Rodzwell Betteann M	Educ	Wells George D	Zool
Carroll Leo T	Hist	Fink Brian F	Hist	James Judith E	Engl	Maloof Bruce A	Psych	Rohrs David A	Econ	White Alan I	Hist
Carvalho James	E E	Fisher Melbourne C 3	Anth	Jarmes David J	Men Pe	Manix Kathryn	Psych	Romanowicz James P	Rec	Whitworth Thomas 3rd	Math
Casey Ralph B	Hist	Flavin Francis E	E E	Jarvis Carole A	H Ec	Marcus Carol E	Engl	Rozner Marilyn S	Educ	Wilferth John C	Mgt
Chaples Judith M	Hist	Ford Robert C	Govt	Jewett Michael S	Math	Morley Genevieve Mar	Botany	Russo Theodore M	Hist	Willard Walter G	Psych
Charles Janet M	Engl	Forman Jeffrey S	Govt	Johnson David M	Psych	Marier Lawrence S	Ch E	Ryan Patricia R	Medtec	Willig Geoffrey R	Econ
Chisholm Drake C	Psych	Forst Gunther E	Men Pe	Johnson Elizabeth L	Nurse	Mastronardi Merilyn	Educ	Ryer Richard L	A&F Ec	Wisemon Marcia M	Rec
Christie Susan J	Educ	Fox Stephen J	Wildlf	Johnson Nancy E	Educ	Mazmanian Sybil Y	Govt	Salice Patricia J	Chem	Wright Joseph C	Govt
Clair John J	Men Pe	Freedman Edwin E	Govt	Johnston Beverly B	Sociol	McCormack Diane E	Engl	Salter James D	Psych	Wyant Agnes K	Art
Clark Sarah A	Engl	Frisbie Susan E	Wo Pe	Jones Cheryl A	H Ec	McDonald John E	Govt	Samia Noreen G	Mktg	Yakavonis Anne C	Math
		Frost Richard E	Forest	Jones Karen S	Educ	McKenna Diana E	Wo Pe	Sampas Marina F	Psych	Yelle Raymond P Jr	Pk Adm
				Jordan Thomas M	M E	Meagher Jane E	Nurse	Sarno Allen E	Hist	Yenofsky Richard L	Zool
				Joyce Philip S	Engl	Meier Johanna	German	Savage Jean L	Engl	Zeramby Arlyne M	Engl
				Joyner Mary Judd	H Ec	Menard Alfred J	Math	Savery Lita E	Educ	Zikorus Janice E	Engl
				Kagan William J	Zool	Mendelsohn Vivian T	Psych	Seanlan Neil C	Engl	Zofrea Glenora T	Wo Pe
								Schloemer George C	Chem	Zukroff Barbara R	Engl

SENIORS

✶

Return Proofs

March 6, 7, 8—9-4 p.m.

Plymouth Room S.U.

Last Chance

✶

INDEX PORTRAIT PHOTOGRAPHER

March 7 & 8—9-4 p.m.

Plymouth Room S.U.

✶

NO APPOINTMENTS NECESSARY

- Notices -

OUTING CLUB
There will be an important meeting for all new and old members on Monday, March 6, at 6:30-8:30 in the Middlesex Room, S.U. Nominations for next year's officers will be taken. All members going to Virginia on the caving trip should be there.

SCIENCE FICTION CLUB
On Tuesday, March 7, at 8:30 P.M. in Mahar Aud., the movie "Conquest of Space" will be shown in color. Admission is 25¢ — Members free. Door prize! prize!

MARKETING CLUB
On March 8, at 7:00 P.M. in SBA Room 5, there will be a general meeting. New members welcome.

COUNSELORS IN DORMITORIES
Applications are now available for the position of Residence Hall Counselor for 1967-68. These are available in Residence Hall areas, area coordinator's offices, or the office of the Associate Dean of students. Applications should be completed and returned as soon as possible.

AMHERST ART GALLERY
There will be an exhibit on current Israel Art beginning March 6 and continuing for 2 weeks. Gallery talk is Monday, March 6, at 4:30 P.M.

MATHEMATICS CLUB
On Tuesday, March 7, at 7:00 P.M. in the Colonial Lounge, S.U. Dr. William Comfort will speak on "The Marriage Lemma". Refreshments will be served. All welcome.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION
At 6:45 P.M. every Tuesday evening, in Worcester Room, S.U. there is a meeting. All are cordially invited to attend.

SCUBA CLUB
The regular meeting will be held Wednesday, March 8, at 7:00 P.M. in the Cage. Exams will be continued and the spring dive will be discussed.

AMHERST STAMP CLUB
Friday, March 10, in the Public Health Bldg., room 103, at 7:30 P.M. Mrs. William G. Colby will show "U.S. Map Stamps" Interested visitors welcome.

ALPHA PHI GAMMA
On Wednesday, March 8, at 7:00 P.M. in Hampshire Room, S.U. there will be the initiation ceremonies plus a guest speaker. Coffee and donuts will be served. Coffee and donuts will be served. All members should attend.

SKI CLUB
On March 6, at 7:00 P.M. in Morrill Aud., all members are invited to enjoy one hour of free Warren Miller Ski movies. Non-members only 25c. The club will then hold a very important meeting about the up-coming ski race. The race is to be held in three classes; snowplow, christie, and paralel. Nine Trophies will be given out. Please attend.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST
On Tuesday, March 7, at 6:15 P.M. in T-5, the 12th floor, there will be the weekly Bible study.

CHEMISTRY SEMINAR
On Tuesday, March 7, at 11:15 A.M. in Peters Auditorium, Dr. John N. Marx of Johns Hopkins University will give a seminar on "Synthese in the Terpene Field."

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
On March 7, at 6:30 P.M. in Machmer W-26 there will be a general business meeting.

FOUND:
Class Ring—UMass 1968. Call 546-6040.
Blue plaid scarf found between Southwest and the Cage. Call John Legasey, 546-8712.
An Ithmas Schneider ski pole found in my possession after the Haystack Ski trip instead of a 56" Scott pole. Would like to swap. Call J. Humber, 549-0185.

PINNINGS:
Beverly Barrell, class of '70, J.Q. Adams Lower, to Ernest Jennings, class of '69, George Washington Upper.
Susan Clark, class of '68, Emily Dickinson, to William Humberd, Jr., class of '68, Holy Cross College.
Janet Hunter, class of '70, Elmira College, N.Y., to Paul St. Pierre, class of '68, Hills North.
Cheryl McCormick, class of '69, Alpha Chi Omega, to Skip Cunningham, class of '67, Psi Upsilon, Amherst.

Angel Flight Rush

Freshmen and Upperclass Women

Tuesday, March 7 - Memorial Hall
Wednesday, March 8 - Dickinson Hall
Thursday, March 9 - Dickinson Hall
7-9 p.m.

ATTENTION FRESHMAN!

D.V.P. will be accepting applications for membership from the class of 1970.

The Distinguished Visitors Program is financed and operated by the undergraduate students of the University of Massachusetts for the purpose of keeping the university community sensitive to the world in which it exists. In accordance with this purpose, it seeks to bring to the campus those persons whose experience in international and domestic affairs, the sciences, the humanities and the arts qualify them to interpret, explain and raise questions about life in all its dimensions. Furthermore, the Distinguished Visitors Program seeks to stimulate critical thought and debate by presenting a balanced range of opinion with respect to a given issue.

Applications available at the R.S.O. office
Monday, March 6, 1967 through Friday, March 10, 1967.
All forms must be returned to R.S.O. by
Friday, March 10, 1967.

Sports Week in Review

The Pro Shop

by STEVE ROSS

BASEBALL—The annual propaganda is drifting northward from the sunny south. Two interesting notes came from the prime contenders in "Basement Battle '67". The Yanks gleefully announced that Mickey Mantle passed his first test; he played first base without hurting himself. Mantle fielded grounders and covered the bag quite well in his first workout.

From Winter Haven came the surprise announcement that Rico "I Wanna Go Home" Petrocelli had been made 'captain without portfollio' of the Bosox. Petro's duties will include calming down pitchers, instructing hurlers how to pitch to certain batters, and generally hustling around to show leadership. Petrocelli, in terms of experience, is the oldest starting infielder on the Hose with three years. His biggest job will be to manipulate the other three men who comprise the Sox sieve, er, infield.

Petrocelli has distinguished himself in the last three years (two with Boston, one with Seattle) for his lack of desire to play. Last year Billy Herman fined him $1,000 for leaving without telling the manager. This move may be as successful for Boston as the Bailey Howell-Mel Counts deal was for Baltimore.

HOCKEY—The standings haven't changed since Toronto took third place over from Montreal. Detroit doesn't seem to have the ability, time, nor number of home games to catch the Habs. The Wings have the worst record in the league on enemy ice.

Boston general manager Leighton "Hap" Emms will step down in June. Assistant general manager Milt Schmidt will replace his tutor. Emms came to Boston two years ago for a pre-announced two year stay. Emms will return to his Junior A team, the Niagara Falls Flyers.

Some of Emms better moves were the trade that brought John MacKenzie to the Bruins for Reg Fleming, and the deals that brought Ron Stewart, Pit Martin, and Gary Doak to Causeway Street. The only thing the Bruins lack now is size. With the addition of some rugged, brawny forwards, the Bruins will move back into contention.

BASKETBALL — Both Philadelphia and San Francisco could clinch their divisions this week. After the past week's action, Philly had lost once and the Celtics hadn't lost at all. Chicago hasn't been able to pick up anything on Detroit and will probably finish last. Los Angeles and St. Louis are having a dog-fight for second place in the West, while New York has opened up some lead on Cincinnati in the East for third place.

The Players Association has threatened to boycott the playoffs. The biggest bone of contention is the pension plan. As of now retired 20-year veterans at age 65 would receive $600 a month. A baseball player at the same age with the same amount of years of play receives $1,487, and a retired NHL vet receives $1,640 for twenty years of play. The players of the NBA want to draw their pension in line with their fellow pros and make the pension retroactive for all retired players.

Fan sentiment is with the players and the owners had better offer them a better pension. Without the playoffs owners would be seriously injured in their traditional "Achilles heel", their wallet. An agreement should come about this week.

FOOTBALL—The Boston Patriots' stockholders reelected William H. Sullivan for the eighth year. Sullivan has been Pat's president since the inception of the club. In another move, the Boston-based owners blocked a move by New York-based owners Wittenhaul and McCollen to purchase 10% of the club's voting stock. The stock was first offered to three Boston owners who promptly bought it.

UMass Women Gymnasts Place Six for National Championships at So. Ill.

by TIM MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The UMass women's gymnastics team placed six individuals in the National Intercollegiate Gymnastics Championships for Women as a result of its superlative effort Saturday at West Chester, Pa.

Selected by their respective performances to compete in the Nationals at Southern Illinois in April are Ruth Morse, Arlene Binney, Leslie Gallion, Barbara McArdle, Linda Binney and Marge Smith.

Miss Morse placed first in the beginning class of the floor exercise and also on the balance beam of the same category. Miss A. Binney plied her skills sufficiently in the beginning class to finish second in the floor event, while Miss Gallion took top prize on the vault with an 8.15, highest of the meet on the event.

Miss McArdle added to UMass' bushel of laurels by finishing third in the intermediate floor exercise. Miss L. Binney, also competing in the intermediate division, took first place on the balance beam.

In the advanced group, Miss Smith placed second on the floor event to round out the Redwomen's topnotch performance.

A week earlier, the girls had dropped a three-way meet to Springfield College and West Chester State College of Pennsylvania in a meet described as UMass Coach Mr. Kitty Kjeldsen as "one of the best ever for women in the East."

In that meet, according to Mrs. Kjeldsen, "the skill was very high all around, higher in fact, than at the regionals."

High points of the meet for UMass' women were the strong individual performances rendered by Marianne Davis and Miss Gallion. Miss Davis registered an 8.7 in the floor exercise and Miss Gallion an 8.9 on the uneven bars.

Final scores in the meet were SC, 98.65; WCS, 89.4 and UMass, 87.95.

The ladies next appear at Boyden Auxiliary Gym Thursday at 6:30 p.m. when they entertain Andover High School, one of the finest schoolgirl teams in the country. Should be very interesting, what?

INFORMAL . . .

(Continued from page 3)

is to create an informal atmosphere where faculty, student, and public can meet on a common ground of interest. Subject matter will involve any field that is of particular significance to the speaker.

The speaker may comment on a social, political or artistic trend, read and comment on his own or another's work, or present a subject concerning a topical problem. The success of this program depends on the interest and participation of the public and the Four-College Community.

The initial program will feature David Clark and Robert Tucker of the English Department of UMass. The expansion of this Series depends on the success of this year's program.

GYMNASTS . . .

(Continued from page 8)

gunning for its third straight E.I.G.L. title and the 11th since 1942. This was the 40th E.I.G.L. competition which originated in 1926.

Final E.I.G.L. standings read as follows: Penn State and Springfield, tie for first; Temple, third; Army and Navy, an appropos tie for fifth; UMass, sixth; and Syracuse and Pittsburgh, tie for eighth.

The Redmen finished seventh a year ago and with several close losses this season, Ccach Erik Kjeldsen's gymnasts can look forward to a bright E.I.G.L. future, after, of course, the respective graduations of Cargill and Cohen.

TRACK . . .

(Continued from page 8)

missed the finals by two inches.

Coach Footrick says that his team should be ready for next Saturday's Yankee Conference Championship at New Hampshire.

COLLEGIAN

"Hot Line"

545-2550

What is the Student Union
Recreational Activities Committee

? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

CURIOUS ? ?

Why not come to the Council Chambers B, tomorrow night to find out!

Refreshments will be served.

FRESHMEN - SOPHOMORES - JUNIORS

Applications now available for the 1967

HOMECOMING COMMITTEE

APPLY IN THE R.S.O. OFFICE ON THE SECOND FLOOR OF THE STUDENT UNION.

Applications must be filed by March 15.

HILLEL MOVIES

TOMORROW IS A WONDERFUL DAY

and

THE BESPOKE OVERCOAT

Wed. Members 25¢
March 8 Non-members 50¢
8:15 p.m. MAHAR AUD.

ATTENTION FRESHMEN!

Maroon Key Applications

are available in R.S.O. office

Minimum cum 2.0

Must be returned by March 12

When you can't afford to be dull

sharpen your wits with NoDoz

NoDoz keep alert tablets or new chewable mints, safe as coffee, help bring you back to your mental best . . . help you become more alert to the people and conditions around you. Non-habit forming.

While studying, or after [illegible] sharpen your wits with NoDoz.

[illegible] Chewable Mints

Dove Nets 26

NCAA-Bound St. John's Prove Opportunists, 76-64 in Hoop Finale

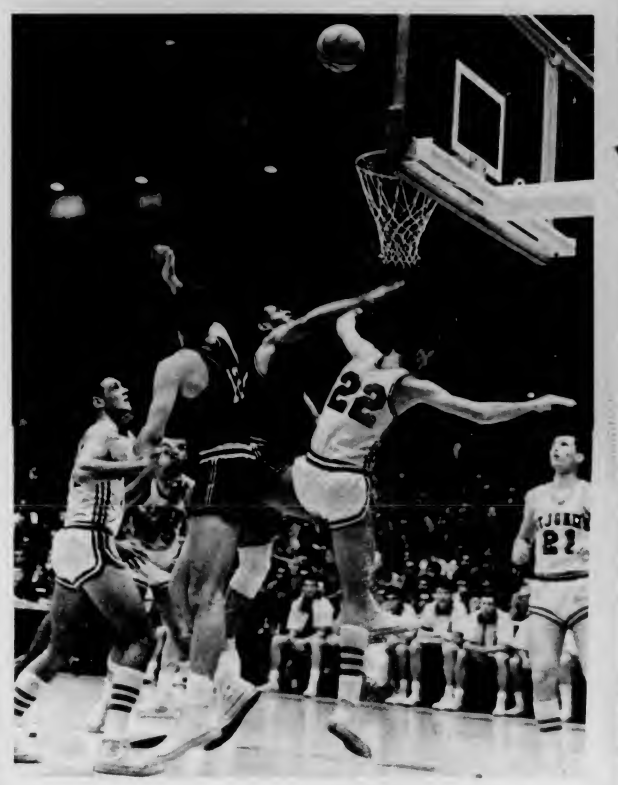
by MIKE CURRAN
Staff Reporter

JAMAICA, L.I. — Inability to score in the early minutes of both halves sent the Redmen down to a 76-64 defeat at the hands of an NCAA tournament-bound St. John's quintet here Saturday night. The loss closed out the season for UMass giving them an 11-14 record.

St. John's almost ran the Redmen off the floor in the opening minutes of the first half. The pressing Brooklynites held a 19-5 lead at one point largely on the shooting and leaping of their 6'8 All-American, Sonny Dove.

Massachusetts regained its poise, however, and played the home team even from then on. Bill Tindall and John Lisack began to hit and Tim Edwards took control of the boards away from his taller opponents. A beautiful base-line drive by Lisack pulled the visitors to within nine points with the halftime score at 42-31.

For the first five minutes of the second period, UMass was again ice cold. St. John's took advantage of the situation to stretch their lead to 51-31. At this point, Coach Lou Carneseca gave a couple of starters some well-deserved rest in obvious preparation for the post - season playoffs.



Edwards and Tindall began to really dominate the boards. This and the stealing and passing of Joe DiSarcina narrowed the gap. St. John's held off the Redmen's hustling press for the remainder of the game, however, to chalk up their 21st victory.

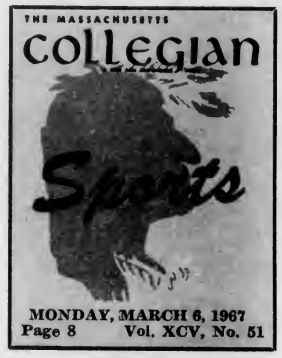
UMass once again proved it can play with the best. The Redmen may not have had a winning season, but their schedule has been grueling, at best. DiSarcina, guarding the great Albie Swartz, also found time to break the all - time Massachusetts assist record formerly held by George "Trigger" Burke. Joe picked up 11 assists to close out a fine sophomore season.

Edwards reached the 900 career rebound mark, grabbing 17 in the contest. UMass outrebounded the taller Johnnies, 45-33.

The crowd of 4,976 persons in Alumni Hall was the largest crowd UMass has played before this season.

MASSACHUSETTS	Fg	Fga	Ft	Fta	Reb	Pf	Pts
DiSarcina	2	5	3	4	2	2	7
Nowakowski	2	4	0	0	2	3	4
Tindall	8	18	1	2	12	3	17
Edwards	8	13	3	4	17	4	19
Gayeska	0	0	0	0	1	1	0
Lisack	4	11	3	5	2	2	11
Rand	1	6	0	2	2	3	2
Perkins	0	0	0	0	1	3	0
Murphy	2	4	0	0	0	2	4
Stewart	0	1	0	0	11	1	0
Team					5
TOTALS	27	62	10	17	45	24	64
ST. JOHN'S	Fg	Fga	Ft	Fta	Reb	Pf	Pts
Calzonetti	3	7	5	5	1	1	11
Swartz	3	5	0	0	2	1	6
Dove	10	17	6	8	12	1	26
Bogad	5	11	3	4	6	2	13
Warren	2	6	4	6	7	4	8
Brunner	2	5	0	0	0	2	4
Jackson	0	1	0	0	1	0	0
Cornelius	0	1	0	0	1	1	0
Rowland	1	1	4	6	1	3	6
Bettridge	1	1	0	0	0	0	2
Plate	0	1	0	0	1	0	0
Team					1
TOTALS	27	56	22	29	33	15	76

COLLEGIAN Photo by Neil Rennie

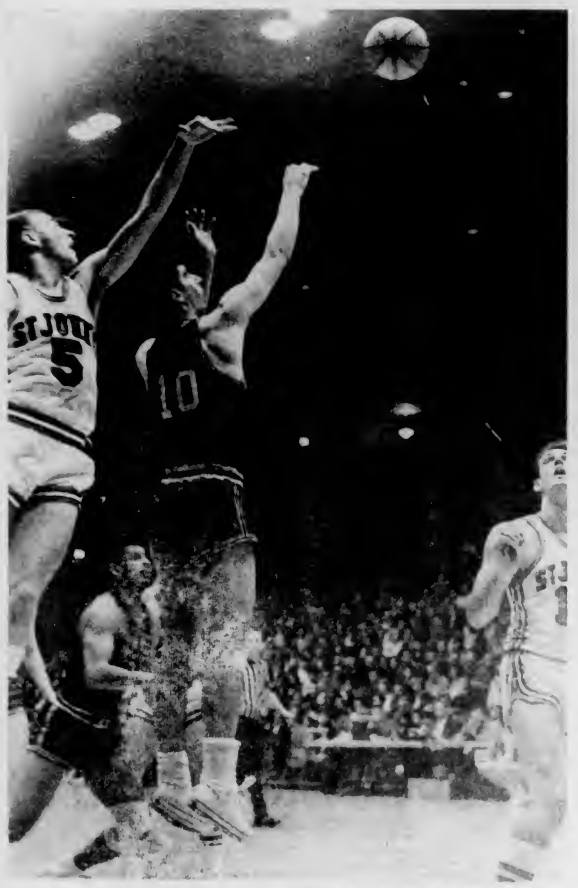


CROWDED BASELINE — UMass' Ron Nowakowski lets fire from the corner as Tim Edwards follows flight. St. John's Mike Rowland (22) seems to be having trouble jockeying for position.

Wrestlers 11th In New Englands

The UMass varsity wrestling squad placed 11th in a field of 23 teams in the New Englands Saturday at Tufts.

The meet was won by Springfield College (109 points) with Coast Guard finishing second (66 points).



UMass' Gene Paltrineri placed fourth in the 137-lb. class. Freshman Bob Spoulstra placed fourth in the 177-lb. class.

MONDAY, MARCH 6, 1967
Page 8 Vol. XCV, No. 51

CORRECTION

Candidates for the freshmen golf team will meet tomorrow at 7:00 p.m. in the Plymouth Room of the Student Union, not at 7:30 in the Worcester Room as was announced in Friday's Collegian.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Neil Rennie

JOEY JUMPS—Asad pumps ball toward hoop in first period against St. John's at Alumni Hall Saturday. St. John's Rich Cortese (5) tries to deflect shot.

Tindall Named All-N.E.

UMass' Bill Tindall has been named to the 1967 Look Magazine-U.S. Basketball Writers Association District 1 Team.

Also named to the District 1 squad were Wes Bialosuknia (U-Conn) Willie Wolters (B. C.), Steve Adelman (B.C.), and Jim Walker (Providence).

Look Magazine's All-America Team consists of Lew Alcindor (UCLA), Mel Daniels (N. Mex.), Clem Haskins (W. Ky.), Elvin Hayes (Houston), Bob Lloyd (Rutgers), Don May (Dayton), Larry Miller (N. Car.), Westley Unseld (Louisville), Bob Verga (Duke), and Jim Walker (Providence).

Runners Improve In IC4A's

NEW YORK — The UMass track team competed in the annual IC4A's meet at Madison Square Garden Saturday, and according to Coach Bill Footrick, "the times were much better than those we had last year."

John Anderson finished the 600-yard run with a time of 1:12.6, the eighth best time in his trial heat, but failed to reach the finals.

In the 1000-yard run, Diego Gonzales (2:15.5) and Greg Bowman (2:16.7) placed third and 20th in their respective heats.

Terry Carpenter ran the mile in 4:18.5 to place fourth in his trial, and Steve St. Clair made a 4:28.0 clocking to merit a sixth-place finish in his heat.

Sophomore Paul Hoss was beaten only by Shorter of Yale in the two-mile. Hoss' 9:21.1 was the 11th best time out of 40 runners.

In the 60-yard dash, Steve Burrell made the quarterfinals but missed the semis. Art Larvey executed a 20'2" broad jump.

John Aronson's 6'4" jump

(Continued on page 7)

Mermen Swamped by M.I.T., 61-34

by HARVEY ELMAN
Sports Day Editor

UMass' varsity swimming team ran up against a talented MIT squad Saturday afternoon at the Tech Pool and were caught in a 61-34 backwash.

The Engineers shattered five marks. For the Redmen, Bob Asquith tied for first in the 200-yd. freestyle. Kan Nowak placed third in the 50 - yd. freestyle. Captain Dick Lennon took second spot in the 200-yd. individual medley. Lennon's time of 2:13.4 would have shattered U Mass' school mark if three stopwatches had been used instead of two.

Another stellar performance by diver Dave Larson earned five first - place votes. Steve Levy grabbed the 200 - yd. butterfly. Dick Donoghue placed second to complete the sweep. Ken Nowak placed second in the 100 - yd. freestyle with Flip Morton taking third.

Soph standout Bob Asquith took the 200 - yd. backstroke. Tony Cassis finished third in the 500 - yd. freestyle. Lennon took second spot in the 200-yd. breaststroke to complete UM's scoring.

The final varsity record is 4-6. The squad now travels to So. Conn. College for the New Englands next weekend.

IFC Bowlers Roll For Title

The Inter-Fraternity Council Bowling Championships will be held tonight at 7 as TEP rolls against PMD.

Leclair, Bebakian to Compete in NCAA Gymnast Championships

by TIM MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The Springfield College Field House was filled to capacity on three occasions over the weekend. Each person who squeezed himself into the gymnasium to watch lithe, muscular young men perform ballet-like maneuvers with, at times, a consummate skill, came away contented.

The occasion was a combination E.I.G.L. team and individual championship and the Eastern regional NCAA championship qualification round.

What resulted was a two-day plethora of competition involving some of the top gymnasts in the country. Taking part were the eight schools contained in the E.I.G.L. and squads from East Port to Block Island and Maine to Florida.

Gleaned from the maze of activity was the E.I.G.L. team championship, this year shared by Penn State and Springfield, the top E.I.G.L. performers on each event who met Saturday for individual honors, and qualifications for the NCAA championships to be held in Carbondale, Ill., on March 31 and April 1.

UMass, a third year member of the strong E.I.G.L., fared accordingly, placing only Bob LeClair and Fred Babakian on the side horse in the nationals. LeClair and Bebakian, competing with such collegiate superstars as Penn State's Steve Cohen, winner of four events and the important all-around a year ago and repeater as all-around champ as a result of the Field House competition, Tom Auchterlonie and Bob Cargill, both of Springfield, gave a fine account of themselves.

LeClair registered a composite 8.775 for fourth place and Bebakian negotiated an 8.215 for eighth.

Cargill garnered top position on the horizontal bar and the long-horse vault and also finished second on the trampoline, third on parallels and fourth on the rings and the floor exercise.

Springfield, which came within a few points of capturing the team crown on Friday, and champion Penn State will represent the East in the NCAA championships. UMass finished the season with eight points, owning wins over Rutgers and Syracuse in seasonal dual meets and repeat victories over the two Friday at Springfield.

Penn State, long a national power in gymnastics and national champs two years ago, was

(Continued on page 7)

COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"
545-2550

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Stop
Thinking
Snow!!

VOL. XCV, NO. 52 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1967

Ted Kennedy Supports New Draft Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., says President Johnson's proposals for draft reforms give "assurance that the draft will be more equitable in the future."

Kennedy added Monday that with this assurance "we in the Congress can fully support the President's call for a four-year extension of the induction authority."

Kennedy has been an advocate of a revision in the selective service system and has introduced a bill which embodies many of the changes asked by Johnson.

"I am gratified," Kennedy said, " that the President will institute many of these reforms by executive order." He added that Johnson recognizes "the need for quick action to remedy the inequities and defects of our present draft system."

Kennedy said the President moved "forthrightly in declaring that no deferments for post-graduate study be granted in the future except for those men pursuing medical and dental courses."

Kennedy said the President's proposal "leaves open the thorny question of deferments for undergraduates."

He said he has suggested that a young man be allowed to postpone military service until he has finished undergraduate study.

"This would give a young man a fair chance to receive an undergraduate education but would not give him an unfair advantage over those who do not go to college," he said.

Rep. William H. Bates of Massachusetts, senior Republican on the House Armed Services Committee, said he has "reservations with respect" to the Johnson proposal, but he said he would study it further.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said, "Any draft law should fall as equally as possible on all citizens."

Collegian staffer's instructional session will be held Thurs. at 6:30 p.m.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Gerri Cote

Students walked to classes through a "Winter Wonderland" yesterday after UM received its weekly share of the fluffy white stuff.

Another Typical Tuesday

BOSTON (AP) — A late winter snowstorm swirled through New England yesterday, blanketing most of the area with up to 20 inches of snow.

Two deaths were reported in the wake of the storm, termed the heaviest of the season.

The heavy, wet snow created problems for removal crews and snarled traffic. Automobiles stalled everywhere, blocking the cars.

At midmorning the Weather Bureau said the storm appeared to be abating and "should be moving rapidly eastward out to sea this afternoon.

Fourteen inches of fresh snow was measured in the Boston suburb of Winchester and the Weather Bureau said a ski area in the Berkshire Mountains received 20 inches.

The agency said nearly a foot of snow fell in 12 hours over central and western Massachusetts and extreme northern Connecticut."

"Six inches or more have been reported from the extreme southern portions of New Hampshire and Vermont," the agency said.

Boston received more than 10 inches of snow but Cape Cod and most of southeastern Massachusetts reported no measurable amounts, the Weather Bureau said. Precipitation in those areas was mostly rain.

Cage look tops

New Era for 'Collegian' With AP Wire Service

One of the greatest changes in the history of the Collegian takes place today with the inclusion of state, national and international news from the wires of the Associated Press.

Chet Weinerman, editor-in-chief of the Collegian, stated the reasons for this change: "The Collegian has assumed the function of a city newspaper. Having a circulation of over 10,000—a circulation that is rapidly increasing with the growth of the University—the Collegian must provide more than only campus news."

He went on to say that the function of informing the campus of local news is being taken over to some extent by other organizations. He cited the publication of the Orchard Hill newspaper, The Hobbit, and the proposed Southwest and Quad newspapers.

"The average student does not read a national newspaper. It therefore becomes necessary for the Collegian to fill this news gap. The Collegian has the responsibility to inform the campus which it purports to serve."

Weinerman also remarked that the Collegian AP wire service will "pave the way for a daily paper that will be nearly eight hours ahead of Boston and Springfield papers."

The new wire service will be, according to Managing Editor Jack Dean, a "major step toward providing a total news service for the campus community."

Richard Kline has been appointed to serve as national news editor.

Dr. Dean Allen Explains Controversial Draft Quote

by RON LABRECQUE
Staff Reporter

Dr. Dean Allen, chief psychologist of the University Health Services, was interviewed last Friday by the Collegian concerning a statement allegedly made by him about the draft which was used in a recent Associated Press release. He was quoted in the article as saying: "Most want not to learn, but to avoid the draft."

Shortly after the appearance of the article a letter was received by the Collegian editors from a UMass student who felt that Dr. Allen was misrepresenting the students on this campus and that a retraction of the statement was necessary.

Dr. Allen discussed the situation by first stating that he felt the statement was taken out of context and his intended meaning was misunderstood. He said that he did not in any way wish to convey the idea that all male college students were in school only to avoid the draft.

He further stated that although avoiding the draft is obviously not the major reason for going to college, it is a significant concern of many to postpone the service.

He cited the example of the student who desires to leave school for a semester to "find himself" but is unable to do so because of the draft.

He also cited instances of students who because of switching majors lose credits or those who take a semester off to work and earn money to further their education, were re-classified 1-A by their draft boards for not "making normal progress toward graduation."

He said that a 2-S classification is a motivation for staying in school and that the draft steers

(Continued on page 3)

Some Big Draft Questions Still Remain Unanswered

WASHINGTON—What are my chances now of being drafted? What changes will Congress make in the Selective Service System?

Millions of draft-age youths, many in college, were asking those questions Monday in the wake of conflicting proposals that have come from (1) The President, (2) A Presidential commission and (3) A Congressional study group.

Here are some questions and answers:

Question: How soon will there be changes in the draft system?

Answer. Probably not before July 1. By that date Congress must approve an extension of the existing authority in order to draft men. The new law is likely to provide for changes in the system.

Q. What is going to happen to draft deferments for college undergraduate students?

A. Although a White House commission recommended that college deferments be abolished, the President Monday took no stand on this issue. This means the chances are better than 50-50 that undergrad deferments will be continued. However, Congress may require that youths who obtain college deferments must waive their rights to subsequent deferments on fatherhood or occupation grounds.

Q. What about students taking post-graduate studies?

A. The chances are that deferments will be abolished for post-grad work, except for those students training in certain fields

(Continued on page 3)

First Bridal Fair Well Received

by SALLY DOLGIN
Staff Reporter

Out of the bridal story for 1967 stepped fourteen radiant models, escorted by their "bridegrooms." Monday afternoon and evening, the Special Events Committee of the University of Massachusetts presented its first Bridal Fair, co-sponsored by Bride and Home Magazine.

Highlighting the fair were two fashion shows featuring bridal fashions by Bonwit Teller of Boston. A capacity audience waited expectantly for a glimpse of the gowns, as Miss Kathleen Rearick, representative of Bride and Home, offered some pointers on proper wedding etiquette.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Larry Kornfield

She mentioned that the bride stands to the left of her groom; her family accordingly sitting in front of her, while the groom's family sits on the right. "Friends", she remarked, may sit on either side and even "switch at halftime." For interested brides-to-be, she suggested a "Step by Step Guide to Your Wedding" which will be inserted in the May issue of Bride and Home.

Under the flowered lattice stepped each girl, displaying candlelite and ivory dresses with an occasional pastel or print.

Among the more outstanding outfits were an informal watermelon pink short bridesmaid's dress covered by a full length coat; a "Gibson Girl" silk linen dress topped by a yellow cartwheel straw hat; a Puritan church gown with bishop sleeves and a nun's headdress; and a geranium red and white traveling pants suit.

The most elegant gowns included a silk shantung shot with seven millimeter pearls (see photo) and a Cathedral dress of English lace which symbolized, according to Miss Shute, "elegance in motion."

Dean and Mrs. Robert Hopkins, representing the father and mother of the bride, added the glamour to the occasion, Mrs. Hopkins appearing several times

(Continued on page 8)

COLLEGIAN Photo by Larry Kornfield

Pravda Says Exchange Students Were Actually Spies for CIA

MOSCOW—The Central Intelligence Agency was accused Wednesday of throwing a "sinister shadow" over a Soviet-United States student exchange program by manipulating it to send spies to the Soviet Union.

The allegation was published in Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper. The paper asserted that CIA agents were active in the selection and training of U. S. scholars to study or carry out research in Soviet universities and institutes.

Hosted Soviet Poet

It accused a number of professors of Russian studies at U. S. colleges of being intelligence agents or of having cooperated with the CIA during studies in the Soviet Union.

Among those accused was Dr. Albert C. Todd of Queens College in New York. He was host to Yevgeny Yevtushenko, the Soviet poet, during his U. S. tour last fall.

Named by Russians

The paper also complained that U. S. agents used "blackmail, intimidation and provocations" in attempts to subvert Soviet students in the U. S. and to induce them to defect.

Pravda emphasized, however, that Soviet authorities did not consider all participants in the exchange program to be secret agents, and it stressed the value of the exchanges. The article noted approvingly the angry reaction of U. S. students to disclosures of CIA financing of the National Students Association and similar organizations.

Among those named by the Russians were the Inter-University Committee on Travel Grants, directed by Prof. Robert F. Byrnes and two other scholars active in its work, Edward Keenan and Michael Luther; Prof. Martin Malin of the University of California; John Adams and the Ford, Rockefeller and Carnegie Foundations.

(Reprint)

BU Students Refuse Support For Johnson Impeachment

BOSTON, March 3 (CPS) — Four thousand students at Boston University have signed a statement disagreeing with the student newspaper's call for impeachment of President Lyndon Johnson.

The student paper, the BU NEWS, printed an editorial which was sent as a letter to House Speaker John McCormack, requesting an "investigation of the merit of the argument "for impeachment.

The student statement condemning the position of the NEWS was presented to McCormack today by a delegation of the organizers of the petition. The declaration read: "We the undersigned do not agree with the BU NEWS' demand that President Johnson be impeached, and we deplore any implication that it represents the consensus of the Boston University student population."

McCormack's legislative assistant, Dr. Martin Sweig, said that the call for impeachment is "ridiculous. Who ever heard of such a thing!" he said.

Editor of the NEWS, Raymond Mungo, said that his letters have been running about 3 to one against impeachment. "We never even suggested," Muno said, "that we were speaking for a majority of the students at BU."

Mungo said he was pleased that students at the university were reacting to the newspaper. "What's important," he said, "is that you raise an issue."

Leader of the delegation was Agostino Galluzzo, a sophomore at the School of Public Communication, who helped to draft and distribute the statement.

Meanwhile, the campus Young Democrats club voted to endorse impeachment of President Johnson. The university's YD's have consistently been opposed to the president on the war in Viet Nam and the bombing of North Viet Nam.

'The Magistrate Gave His Opinion'

A woman was testifying in court in Montpelier, Vt., but one of the lawyers objected. "Your honor," he said, "I don't see where this testimony is revelant to the case."

"I'm not sure it is," said the judge. "But it's kind of interesting. Objection overruled."

DR. ALLEN . . .

(Continued from page 1)

people to graduate school and defense jobs.

Dr. Allen said that the lack of enthusiasm in the Vietnam War, contrasted with the patriotic feeling which predominated in WWII, is a cause for the widespread opposition to the draft.

Dr. Allen, who himself left college for the service in WWII, urged greater understanding of the expatriates who have gone to Canada for refuge from the draft. He pointed out that their spirit of conviction was not unlike that of the Pilgrims who emigrated to this country to find freedom from military conscription.

When asked about the Selective Service System, Dr. Allen commented that it is now extremely unfair in many ways, placing emphasis on statistics concerning the disproportionately high numbers of Negroes in combat.

He gave as a possible alternative to the present system a volunteer army with an increased pay scale.

Dr. Allen was a member of the faculty committee which organized the draft symposium on Feb. 18. Commenting on the event he said that it was "very good," but he wished more students had attended.

DRAFT QUESTIONS . . .

(Continued from page 1)

vital to national defense. Unless Congress intervenes, the President said he would issue an executive order denying post-grad deferments, except for men studying medicine or dentistry.

Q. Does this mean that a student who begins post-grad work in some other subject next Fall could be ordered into the armed forces in the middle of the academic year?

A. No. Any student—undergrad or grad—who is ordered to report for induction can get a postponement of the order until he finishes his academic year. This assumes that he is doing satisfactory academic work. The right to a postponement is granted by existing law and no one is proposing a change.

Q. I am 20 years old and have been classified 1-A (fit for military service). The President says he is going to issus an executive order directing that 19-year-olds be called first. Does that mean that I'm likely to be called?

A. No. Right now the chances are good that you will be called. Under existing procedure, the oldest men are called first and the average of inductees is 20.3 years of age. The point is that the President isn't expected to issue his executive order for many months. Informed sources say he plans to wait until his aides have worked out some kind of lottery system for choosing the 19-year-olds who are inducted. The only clue to timing, given by the President in his message to Congress, was that the new system would be ready before January, 1969.

Q. Assuming Congress does not stop the President from going ahead with his plan to call 19-year-olds first, what happens then to older youths who are 1-A?

A. This hasn't been answered yet. Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the Selective Service System, announced Monday that he has already prepared a draft of the executive order which the President can use when he wants to call the 19-year-olds first. A spokesman for Hershey said that under Hershey's plan no youths older than 19 would be called unless draft boards were unable to fill their quotas with 19-year-olds. This would sharply reduce the draft vulnerability of youths who are 20 or older.

(Boston Globe)

Angel Flight Rush

Freshmen and Upperclass Women

Tuesday, March 7 - Memorial Hall
Wednesday, March 8 - Dickinson Hall
Thursday, March 9 - Dickinson Hall
7-9 p.m.

What's Happening?

by RICH MORAN and "NORMA"

Red Rover ! Red Rover ! — Send George Hamilton right over !

Representative of 'Operation Mobilization' to Speak Today

Mr. Paul Troper, Eastern United States Representative of Operation Mobilization will be on campus Friday, March 10 to speak to interested members of the university community concerning the program of Operation Mobilization.

Each summer since 1963, students from the United States have gone abroad for three months to aid in distributing Christian literature in European and Latin American towns and villages.

Members of Intervarsity Christian Fellowship invite all interested persons to hear Mr. Troper speak Friday, March 10 at 7:15 p.m. in the Plymouth Room of the Student Union.

WMUA Top 30

this week	title	artist
1.	STRAWBERRY FIELDS/PENNY LANE	Beatles
2.	I THINK WE'RE ALONE NOW	Tommy James & The Shondells
3.	LET'S SPEND THE NIGHT TOGETHER/RUBY TUESDAY	Rolling Stones
4.	CALIFORNIA NIGHTS	Lesley Gore
5.	SOCK IT TO ME—BABY	Mitch Ryder
6.	LONELY TOO LONG	Young Rascals
7.	KIND OF A HUSH/NO MILK TODAY	Herman's Hermits
8.	DARLIN' BE HOME SOON	Lovin' Spoonful
9.	FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH	Buffalo Springfield
10.	SIT DOWN I THINK I LOVE YOU	Mojo Men
11.	59TH STREET BRIDGE SONG	Harper's Bizarre
12.	BABY I NEED YOUR LOVIN'	Johnny Rivers
13.	HAPPY TOGETHER	Turtles
14.	UPS AND DOWNS	Paul Revere & The Raiders
15.	THE BEAT GOES ON	Sonny and Cher
16.	SAVE ME	Dave Dee, Dozy, Beaky, Mich & Tich
17.	LOVE IS HERE AND NOW YOU'RE GONE	Supremes
18.	THE PEOPLE IN ME	Music Machine
19.	MORE OF THE MONKEES (LP)	Monkees
20.	YOU GOT TO ME	Neil Diamond
21.	DEDICATED TO THE ONE I LOVE	Mamas and Papas
22.	YELLOW BALLOON	Yellow Balloon/Jan and Dean
23.	GO WHERE YOU WANNA GO	5th Dimension
24.	MY CUP RUNNETH OVER	Ed Ames
25.	INDESCRIBABLY BLUE	Elvis Presley
26.	PEEK-A-BOO	New Vaudeville Band
27.	MAIRZY DOATS	Innocence
28.	I'LL GIVE YOU TIME	Outsiders
29.	TRAVELIN' MAN	Stevie Wonder
30.	LET'S FALL IN LOVE	Peaches and Herb

AFTERNOON A GO GO ON WMUA: WEEKDAYS 2:30-5:00; DISCOTHEQUE 5:00-6:00 UNINTERUPTED ROCK
Monday—Mike Girouard; Tues.—Bob Sawyer; Weds.—Glenn Spatola; Thurs.—Stu Goldman; Fri.—Paul

ATTENTION FRESHMAN!

D.V.P. will be accepting applications for membership from the class of 1970.

The Distinguished Visitors Program is financed and operated by the undergraduate students of the University of Massachusetts for the purpose of keeping the university community sensitive to the world in which it exists. In accordance with this purpose, it seeks to bring to the campus those persons whose experience in international and domestic affairs, the sciences, the humanities and the arts qualify them to interpret, explain and raise questions about life in all its dimensions. Furthermore, the Distinguished Visitors Program seeks to stimulate critical thought and debate by presenting a balanced range of opinion with respect to a given issue.

Applications available at the R.S.O. office
Monday, March 6, 1967 through Friday, March 10, 1967.
All forms must be returned to R.S.O. by
Friday, March 10, 1967.

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

Briefs

NEWS

NATIONAL

SOME NEGRO LEADERS say James Meredith—picked by the Republicans—has little chance of defeating Adam Clayton Powell in the special congressional election in April.

THE DROUGHT in the northeastern states appears to be easing slowly after nearly six years.

A SLIVER OF LOUISIANA land gradually is being eroded by two rivers, posing a flood threat to Natchitoches, a city founded in 1715.

NATIONAL TRUCKING negotiations resume with Frank Fitzsimmons, Jame R. Hoffa's standin, handling the talks with employers.

JAMES R. HOFFA will be treated as just another inmate, the warden of Lewisburg Penitentiary says.

WASHINGTON

A REPUBLICAN senator says home-front release of U. S. Information Agency documentary films on Pres. Johnson would be political propaganda.

SENATE RATIFICATION of a U.S.-Soviet consular treaty appears likely by next week.

THE LABOR DEPARTMENT asks the Supreme Court to give it more power to police union elections.

VIETNAM

A YOUNG MARINE in Vietnam who donated money monthly to crippled American children loses a leg in action. Now the children are trying to bring him cheer with their letters.

INTERNATIONAL

FRANCE'S USUALLY QUARRELING leftists forge a single slate to oppose the Gaullists in the National Assembly runoff election.

Assassination Probe Goes to Court

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Attorneys for Clay Shaw, the only man arrested so far in Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison's probe of the John F. Kennedy assassination, are going to court in an attempt to squash the charges.

"We will file motions for particulars—the nature of the crime, the names of the co-conspirators, the name of the unnamed informant," Johnson said.

Shaw said he did not know Oswald, the man identified by the Warren Commission as Kennedy's assassin, or Ferrie, a freelance pilot who died Feb. 22 while under investigation by Garrison's office.

One week ago today Shaw was led handcuffed from Garrison's office to be booked on a charge of conspiring to murder President Kennedy. He was later released on $10,000 bail.

Garrison has vowed there will be arrests and convictions resulting from what he says was a New Orleans conspiracy which culminated in the assassination of Kennedy.

Pastore for Random Choice

GAINSVILLE, Fla. AP—Senator John Pastore, D-R.I. says he agrees with a presidential commission's recommendation favoring a "random choice" selective service system. But Pastore told a University of Florida audience Tuesday night that he thinks college students should be deferred from the draft while in school and be inducted after graduation.

"Under the present system, there are many inequities and injustices that need to be corrected," he said.

Pastore said "many members of Congress" favor his position.

He added that he does not approve of deferments for graduate students, except those in dental and medical schools.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. AP — Democratic former Gov. Foster Furcolo is a new assistant district attorney for Middlesex County.

Furcolo sought the Democratic nomination for attorney general last year, but was defeated by Francis X. Bellotti. Bellotti, a former lieutenant governor, was defeated in November by Republican Elliot L. Richardson.

Middlesex County Dist. Atty. John J. Droney disclosed Furcolo's appointment Tuesday.

Congress Looks for Possible Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Key congressional leaders indicate they would welcome withdrawal of Pres. Johnson's plan to hike income taxes this year—a step administration sources say might be forthcoming.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee — the funnel through which all tax legislation must flow—said Tuesday he won't schedule hearings until the President provides specific legislation.

He indicated hearings probably couldn't be held before June, practically ruling out chances a measure could be enacted by July 1, the date Johnson set for tacking a 6 per cent surcharge on federal income taxes.

Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee said he had seen "a number of economic indicators already that would tend to convince me the proposal may never be submitted."

Administration sources have admitted privately the tax hike may be shelved or modified, and cited the economy's current sluggishness as the reason.

Meanwhile, Senate and House conferees settled their differences Tuesday on a measure authorizing expenditure of an additional $4.5 billion for military supplies, most earmarked for the Vietnam war.

The House negotiators accepted a Senate rider urging a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam war, while Senate conferees agreed to a House addition of $81 million for aircraft used in the war.

French Go To Polls In National Election

By STEPHENS BROENING

PARIS (AP) — France's usually quarreling leftists completed a single slate Tuesday night in a concerted effort to wrest control of the National Assembly from President Charles de Gaulle's party in Sunday's runoff election.

The Communists were reported to have withdrawn at least 15 candidates who received more votes in their districts than other leftist candidates in the first round of voting last Sunday. The Red candidates stepped down in the belief that more moderate leftists would have a bigger appeal.

The Gaullists, who received just over 37 per cent of the vote in the first round, expressed confidence they would retain a majority in the 487-seat Assembly and that voters would support De Gaulle's leadership.

Only 81 candidates—66 of them Gaullists — polled a first-round majority, leaving 406 seats to be decided. Candidates in the runoff need only a plurality instead of a majority to be elected. Most of the races will pit Gaullists against the left.

The left-wing alliance, made up chiefly of the Socialists and the Communists, got about 40 per cent of the votes in the first round, 3 per cent more than the Gaullists. But there was no assurance that the leftists could retain and unify this vote in the second round.

Results of last Sunday's first round showed a weakening of the Center Democratic party, which attracted about 12 per cent of the popular vote. It is expected to run about 40 candidates Sunday.

Any candidate in the first round who received at least 10 per cent of the registered vote in his district is eligible to compete in the runoff, but leaders of the Communist and non-Communist left agreed Dec. 20 to unify their strength in the final battle and back one leftist candidate in each district.

If You See

News in the Making

Dial

"Hot Line"

545-2550

32 Americans Dead In Cong Attack

by GEORGE McARTHUR

SAIGON (AP) — Communist guerrillas made two deadly attacks on U.S. forces in the Mekong Delta before dawn today, leaving 32 Americans dead, wounded or missing.

It was the first shelling of the camp since 9th Division infantrymen moved into it in late January. The camp is about one mile square, on ground dredged from the Mekong River, and is surrounded by paddy land largely controlled by the Viet Cong at night.

A U.S. spokesman said the Americans had four dead, two wounded and one missing. A Vietnamese spokesman said the two South Vietnamese platoons suffered "heavy casualties."

The targets included river port facilities, supply dumps, petroleum storage areas and transshipment points. The headquarters said a shore battery on Hon En Island, 41 miles south of Vinh, fired on the U. S. ships. It said the firing did no damage to the ships which silenced the battery and damaged a nearby radar station.

Fliers from the carriers Kitty Hawk and Ticonderoga smashed a series of targets at the mouth of the Red River, a U. S. spokesman said.

Since a year ago U.S. troop strength in Vietnam has grown to about 415,000 men.

It had been feared that the Communists might make the anniversary date the occasion for a major attack, but by noon nothing like that had been reported to the U. S. Command center in Saigon.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge returned to Saigon from a State Department conference in Manila and denied a report in the New York Times that he had asked President Johnson to replace him in the next few months.

"These reports about my resignation are reports that come up every so often," said the 65-year-old envoy. "The last time was last December.

"I repeat now what I said in December. I serve at the pleasure of the President. Obviously, all tours of duty must come to an end sometime.

"I have no definite plans or firm decision whatsoever."

National Negro Leaders React Coolly To Meredith's Plans

by GEORGE ESPER

NEW YORK (AP) — Negro leaders in Harlem and around the country reacted coolly today to James H. Meredith's plans to run as the Republicans' choice against Democrat Adam Clayton Powell in a special congressional election April 11.

Meredith, in agreeing to oppose Powell Tuesday after being recommended by Republican leaders, said he was aware that in running he might lay himself open to "the fear and the scorn from fellow Negroes." He said that Powell, excluded from the House last week, had lost his influence and the people deserve more than what they're getting.

Meredith, whose enrollment desegregated the University of Mississippi in 1962 and touched off bloody riots, is one of the most prominent Negro civil rights activists in the nation. He was shot last year on a civil rights march through Mississippi.

"I believe the people must have a chance to make a choice, people should have to think about the issues and not go just on emotions."

Brooke Urges Cultural Exchanges

HONK KONG AP — Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., says he favors student, business and cultural exchanges between the United States and Red China.

But he denies that he has advocated Communist China's admission to the United Nations if "such a course would mean the withdrawal and rejection" of Formosa.

Brooke said Tuesday during a two-day stopover enroute to Saigon on an Asian tour that "unreasonable demands" by Red China make that nation unacceptable for membership now.

However, he said it is not possible "to ignore the existence of 800 million people and we need to learn more about their attitudes."

"I want to see more cultural exchanges, more students and more business leaders going into China," he said. "And more of her people coming to the United States."

"They have a skirmish of wits between them."
Much Ado About Nothing

Editorial Section

The $2,000 Question

Nothing is more disheartening to future journalists than to see the press, which they must constantly defend, misuse its freedom and disregard its responsibilities to truth and its readers. This is the case with Wendell Woodman's article on the UMass Budget which was reprinted in last Monday's Collegian.

There are two basic problems with the Woodman article. First, it was presented to the readers in Lynn, Medford and Malden as news when in fact the entire article was editorial comment. When we consider the fact that the average reader accepts what he reads in the news columns as true, it becomes evident that Woodman and the newspapers for which the article was written have committed a serious breach in the responsibility of the journalist to the reader.

The second point is that Woodman is a bogus journalist and a poor writer to boot. The entire article is a series of irrelevant comparisons between the UMass budget requst and those of other systems and departments in the State. The fact that Woodman states that "The budget of the Secretary of State is $1.7 million" as compared to last year's budget of nearly 28 million to the University is of absolutely no consequence to anyone attempting to understand what the budget request means in terms of our educational system. Yet, Woodman rambles on with comparisons, and even these are often unfounded.

As an example, Woodman says that it costs the taxpayers $2,000 to support one student for a year at UMass. The real figure, which is a matter of record, is $957.81. Besides negating much of Woodman's argument, this fact also shows Woodman up to be a shoddy journalists. We doubt if he has ever visited the "little agricultural school in Amherst" as he calls it, let alone looked up concrete information about its financial procedures and the progress it is making in higher education.

Woodman has erred. Unfortunately his errors were not caught in time and have entered the realm of public knowledge as news and possibly for many as truth. We hope students will take to the defense of their education with letters to newspapers which print false reports about the progress of UMass. It is a case not only of accurately informing the public, but, more important, of stemming the anti-intellectualism which Woodman's article represents.

— COLLEGIAN EDITORS

★ ★

Qualitas et Quantitas

by PAUL ROBERT HALLOCK

Cambridge don: "I do not care what you think. I care what you know !"
UMie: "Who cares what you care !"

The story of man is the story of man increasing his human knowledge—trying to reach goals that he never before has reached—trying to learn.

There are two kinds of scholarly pursuit—broad learning, and focused learning. Broad learning sometimes is called a "liberal" education. Focused learning concentrates on knowing everything there is to know about one or two subjects.

To make the concept of a liberal education clearer, Harvard's criteria for accepting an applicant seem a fair example: (1) nature of motivation for academic work; (2) breadth and depth of intellectual interests; (3) originality; (4) independence; (5) sensitivity and power of mind; and (6) capacity for growth.

Cambridge obviously differs from Harvard in its concept of education. It stresses labored attention on a particular area above all others, and a knowledge, one might say insideout, of that area.

This is fine, as long as one does not lose sight of this area's significance in perspective to the rest of humanity and its relevence to one's own life and human interest as an advancing whole.

One might take for an example a highly specialized course. To know everything about the Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire is quite an achievement, to be sure, but what good is a knowledge of the Roman Empire for itself? It's hundreds of years gone, and we happen to be living now.

More important is the relation of the Roman Empire and its discoveries and theories to ourselves—what it had to say that is universally true—what is just as important to ourselves as it was to those creatures, long since rotted away, who wrote, discovered and theorized, in that age. For all time.

The Cambridge don, walled up in his "Knowledge," is unconditionally a buffoon unless he can relate. Moreover, one can't relate unless one knows what to relate to.

Said the venerable Louis Lyons, "But however much one specializes, there will be areas beyond." This is where the need for a liberal education comes in.

Academic, or specialized, learning for itself and itself alone—the fallacy of "Art For Art's Sake"— is idiocy, a chain on mankind's progress, and the shallow person who dares propound this theory should be, if not hung, ignored.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitsGerald '69
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Wednesday's Day Editors: News—Janet Caroprese, Editorial—P. R. Hallock '69

Almost Grown

by RAY MUNGO, Editor, BU News

If there is something about age which deactivates the sexual organs, dissipates the political impetus, and eliminates all hope in a sea of despair, then we are surely on the brink of some colossal end, for our students are growing old when they have scarcely begun to be young.

Their youth alone will allow them to practice their sexuality maturely and without either adolescent prurience or elderly cyncism, to foment a political revolution which strikes at the heart of the established "values", to reject in the academic community that which is fabricated or false.

But there is no place for youthful, halcyon indifference in a world methodically destroying itself in a maze of textual footnotes, subway clatter, pills, television fancies, packaged beauty, "show" Negroes, napalm, bombs, and gilt-edged murder. Every infant, as a popular song tells, is born with the ghostly inheritance of 20 tons of TNT and an adult responsibility which makes simplicity all but impossible.

Like all the old, we will die. And why should we be concerned when the monstrous cloud will not lighten, the harlot still walks the streets, and the educator teaches cant and sullen introspection?

We are getting old, growing up, and the odds are against our making any news.

A. J. Muste was old, 82, but he made news. His charm and freshness hung about him like the flesh on his jointed cheek-bones. He had an inner light, a seriousness which kept him on planes, in jail, and at his desk working against war. He did not betray his common humanity, but remained a man. In this sense, he never lost his potency.

Tom Hayden and Paul Potter are old, nearing 30. They helped found Students for a Democratic Society when the notion of politcally-aware students was almost inconceivable, and they now run the Newark Community Action Project and the Educational Cooperative of Boston, respectively. Even though their tenacity has not visibly affected American society, they continue to organize and activate on that inner light, which says:

—Hard times may be ripe, Vietnamese children dead, and the spirit of poetry quite gone, but I will stand for life, even if I stand alone.

And what else is there to do, as adulthood approaches? If life is truly a matter of keeping occupied for the sake of remaining something and somebody, then not even Hiroshima, or the statistical analysis of American business trends abroad, or the saccharine fraudulence of the airline stewardess' smile, can defeat us.

The young must be mature enough to take power, now, and to wield it imaginatively, or they will surely not be any more able to shape their own ends than their elders have been.

If the war is confusing, and it surely is, they must send their own observers to it to see it plain, without asking the University's permission or the world's. They must do it, move, and be serious. If the war is moreover immoral, they must refuse to fight in it, and must stand by their youthful faith. They must make news.

If the University's dormitory policies are ill-conceived and inhumane, they must disobey, for free men cannot make choices if they succumb to tyranny. If education is irrelevant, they will see through it, stage their Academic Revolution teach-ins, and begin to alter it radically.

If moral standards are outdated and inimical to human nature, they will make love, fornicate with impunity, display their youthful honesty and their blameless flesh. Youth is faith, faith the root of all power, power the song and dance of life.

Power is music and harmony, sweetness out of disorder, the capacity to move at one's will and to be young; age is weakness and discord, blindness and sterility.

Only the young, whatever their age, can sing, lead the cosmic dance, believe. By acting on the strength of their convictions, they are sure of their goals, can reserve their energies and go on to a serious challenge of the status quo. Precisely because they are young, they must emerge from the Almost Grown to the Grown, and infiltrate the skeletal foundation of the society they have not built.

Song need not express joy; it often expresses determination, tragedy, or conviction. What is important, so to speak, is that we must have something to sing about, something to say, and to believe. We must find the middle ground between indifference and dogmatism—we must find conviction.

Without such conviction, all is lost, the serious reforms unattainable, and we wait only for the grave, which is not distant, and the state of nothingness.

On the surface, there is no honest faith left—a position in an insurance company, perhaps, and a suburban wife to inseminate, with suburban children to raise, but all an anticlimax, a post-orgasm slumber. Human life is over, and the seed spent, where imagination fails.

It is a matter of life or death, of sexuality, intelligence and humanity or sterility, passive stupidity and a hideous Armageddon. The power is clearly ours, for we can withhold our support from a society and an ethic which cannot exist without it.

We can have Student Congress open its own dorms with simple legal incorporation and a larger personal contribution from each student; we can ignore the older and more pompous sexual morality until it no longer is taken seriously; we can tear down the Roxbury slum and build a new community in its place; we can study war no more.

If we do not, while we are Almost-Grown, grow up with an intent seriousness of purpose to reshape in our own image—in man's image—the world that men have allowed themselves to believe is built in the image of God, then we will be partner to Him in our delusion.

We will kill and we will be self-righteous, and will will grow truly old before our proper time—never—has come.

(Reprinted from the B.U. NEWS)

"Your life, my fellow men, is an island separated from all other islands and regions. No matter how many are the ships that leave your shores for other climes, no matter how many are the fleets that touch your coast, you remain a solitary island, suffering the pangs of loneliness and yearning for happiness. You are unknown to your fellow men and far removed from their sympathy and understanding."

—Kahlil Gibran,
The Voice of the Master

1990 Or Bust

by ALLEN PRENNER, Editorial Staff

It is a well known fact that those here at the University who are concerned with modifying the curriculum in any way—whether by eliminating three-year science requirements or by adding new and better courses — must necessarily wade through hell and high water before anyone at the "top" will hear their views. And if, when finally recognized as existing, these people come up against unsympathetic (yes, even prejudiced) administrators—well, goodbye.

There is a group of frustrated students on campus who call themselves the Student Committee for the Advancement of Hebrew. Their goal is to have Hebrew introduced as a fully-accredited course satisfying the language requirement. Seeing as it is taught by many of the better high schools in the state; seeing as it is offered by over forty major universities in the nation, most of which are public; seeing as it was the language used to write the Book held by Christians and Jews as most sacred; seeing as it is an important modern vernacular, evidenced by the winners of this year's Nobel Prize for Literature; seeing all this, SCAH asks: Portuguese and Polish, but not Hebrew?

Why not Hebrew? Because the Deans of Arts and Sciences think it is a big joke, because the mystical Curriculum Committee wishes to ignore it, because the Faculty Senate has other things to do. This—despite the fact that a questionnaire completed last year by 810 students indicated that 324 would have fulfilled their requirement with Hebrew if it had been possible, 138 who had not yet fulfilled it would gladly do so, and 288 would have studied Hebrew as an elective if offered. A majority of those completing the questionnaire were not Jewish.

Recently presenting this information to the Associate Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, the representatives from SCAH were amusingly reassured that they would definitely get their wish by at least 1990. He was the only one laughing.

Johnson's Text for Upper Levels

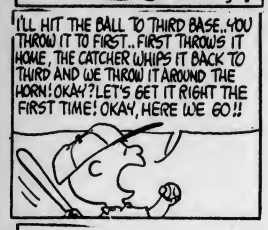
To the Editor:

(A reply to a "disgruntled" history professor — Collegian of Monday, March 6.)

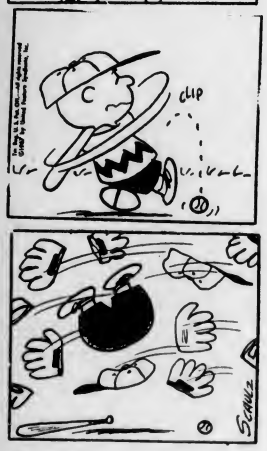
Since my right to evaluate the ability of a college professor has been denied, I can no longer take issue with the literary standing of Mr. Johnson's text. I can, however, note its inadequacy as the basis for an introductory course.

Judging from Professor Della Grotte's remarks, it is clear that he has failed to consider the students taking the course. Many of these students have had no previous exposure to European history and NEED a solid, factual background. The "deeper level of historical perspective and cultural consciousness" that Dr. Della Grotte maintains is necessary to an appreciation of the text is not to be found in the average student taking History 100, a course required of all liberal arts majors. Mr. Johnson's text would be better suited to an upper level course designed for students who have a basic knowledge of world history.

In a course such as this, lectures should clarify and expand upon reading assignments. Because of the vast amount of material that must be covered within a semester, a single lecture may deal with an entire century. At the present, lectures themselves, are "nicely arranged chronologically and topically" yet fail to correlate with the cultural outlook of Mr. Johnson's book. Examinations, then, cannot incorporate material from both text and lectures.



It is my understanding that the syllabus for History 100-101 will be revised before next semester. It would be to the advantage of the student to replace Mr. Johnson's text with one offering "objective and factual knowledge composed in simple, declarative sentences," as well as basic cultural trends.



History 100 is a survey course and should be treated as one.

Professor Della Grotte admits that the text is a "study of Cultural values" rather than "neatly arranged" fact, yet fails to recognize the inappropriateness of such an approach for an introductory course. If, as Dr. Della Grotte suggests, the text is worthwhile and scholarly, then it could be retained as the basis for an alternative course for history majors and students with the necessary background.

Lila Geer '70

THE UNSINKABLE CHARLIE BROWN

THE NEW PEANUTS® CARTOON BOOK! by Charles M. Schulz

ONLY $1 at your college bookstore

Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc.

Night is the sound of forever
Night is the Salt on the mouth
Night is the sea.

—MacLeish

Campus Comment

"Off The Wall"

I, the wall, here offer my thanks
For all your painted, printed, pranks
For finally in my final weeks
My silent plaster finally speaks.
My death is a punchline to a joke lacking laugh
Your doodles and scribbles are my epitaph.

In some, I find the wit is faint,
Apply yourselves and not your paint,
And some are so far short of original
They hit your eye much like a pigeon will Off color attempts, too staining too scrub
Offend to the bricks; This ain't the Q-Club.
So be clever, think hard, do not deface;
Write thoughts that those hammers will never erase.

I've lived 'leven years, in these hallowed halls
My friends; Floors & ceilings and these other walls
I've seen quite a lot, so before my demise,
Give your attention, hear as I advise:

Those barren walls of stone and paste
We house both those of store and waste
You'll climb three feet; T'will seem like nine.
The goings slow; but there's always time.
With footholds, your knowledge, and faith for your rope
the goings slow, but there's always hope
So learn each time that you may fall
And someday, my friend, you'll climb your wall.

—The Wall
(Eric Hughes)

recreation center

Meet Oldsmobile's new four-wheeled fun machine—swinging 4-4-2! Specs: 400 CID V-8. 115-inch wheelbase. Heavy-duty springs, shock absorbers, shaft. Performance axle. Sway bars, front and rear. Dual exhausts. Beefed-up wheels. White-line or wide-oval red-line tires. Buckets. Carpets. Louvered hood. All standard at one modest price. Includes dual master cylinder brake system, full list of important safety features. Can also be equipped with Rocket Rally Pac, UHV ignition, superstock wheels, front disc brakes, console, tach, ski rack and the like. That's Olds 4-4-2—sweetest move on rubber. Make it your move. At your Olds Dealer's.

OLDS 442 GM

ENGINEERED FOR EXCITEMENT...TORONADO-STYLE! MARK OF EXCELLENCE

OBEY LAWS DRIVE SAFELY

Olds thinks of your safety, too, with GM-developed energy-absorbing steering column that can compress on severe impact up to 8¼ inches; with four-way hazard warning flasher; outside rearview mirror; dual master cylinder brake system, plus many other safety features—all standard!

Dean's List - Class of '68

Class of '68
Semester Average 3.8 - 4.0

Atherton Esther W	Engl
Beaumont Patricia A	Wo Pe
Bergsma Nancy L	Wo Pe
Bernier Elsie J	Hist
Blumsack Charles E	Hist
Brownlow Carole J	Psych
Calef David A	Engl
Caporello David A	Forest
Chalmers Linda G	Govt
Chang Peter W	Ch E
Chmura Louis J	Math
Cloran Ellen M	Math
Crooker Joanne R	Math
Delano Jane	Govt
Desilva Bruce A	Govt
Bennett Kathleen Ens	Engl
Fairbanks Pamela K	Educ
Falco Theresa A	Educ
Farrell Victoria S	Econ
Fitzgerald Patricia	Educ
Hirsch Lenore A	French
Horvitz James M	Psych
Hunt Cynthia	H Ec
Kassner Janice R	French
Kinnard Wade T	Engl
Kittredge Frank H	Astron
Knott Peter B	Physic
Kopp Pamela M	Educ
Langdoc Jeannine M	French
Legasey John S	Sociol
Karagosian Linda L	German
Levine Carol L	Engl
Levreault Elizabeth	Educ
Maniscalco William M	Premed
Matous Patricia A	Wo Pe
Matthews Patricia A	Engl
Moseley John F	Math
Murphy Robert J	Acctg
Neufeld Elizabeth S	Speech
Pekkala Ronald B	Govt
Rehborn Bonnie L	Wo Pe
Richardson Earle C	C E
Rimmer Phyllis E	Engl
Ritzi Earl M	Zool
Sampson Bonolyn L	Micbio
Senecal Andre J	French
Singer Betsy G	Hist
Smith Carolyn G	Engl
Tomb Susan M	Psych
Weinberg Carla E	Psych
Widland Carl A	Math
Wiley Charlotte C	Nurse
Zabek Chester M	Acctg
Zona Lois A	Math
Smith Margaret W	Hist

Class of '68
Semester Average 3.4 - 3.7

Allard Ronald J	Phil
Anderson Susan C	Sociol
Anenberg Marsha J	Sociol
Banner Myra J	Hist
Belsky Albert H	Hist
Beskenis Joan L	Govt
Best Douglas J	Engl
Bitgood Stephen C	Psych
Blanchard Lynda A	Engl
Blanchet Donald W	M E
Blassberg Jane C	H Ec
Boisvert Leona J	Speech
Boudeau George E	Prednt
Brand Diane G	Educ
Brav Steven A	Econ
Briggs Dana H	Art
Brochu Nancy J	Wo Pe
Buteau Gregory T	C E
Cahill Joseph M	Mktg
Capaccio George E	Js Eng
Clark Nancy A	Wo Pe
Conner Barbara L	Educ
Crosby John E	Engl
Cutting Philip F	Mtlmgt
Daley Michael L	E E
Dandrea Richard E	Chem
Darrah Adele L	Nurse
Davenport Ann F M	Hist
Davidson Larry D	Acctg
Day Philip F	Engl
Delmolino Leonard J	Hist
Derosa William A	Men Pe
Dikan Peter N	Ch E
Dorris Wayne L	Sociol
Doty Edwin A	Econ
Duffell Carol E	Engl
Ellott Cheryl M	Educ
Evans Lorraine M	Educ
Ewell Kenneth A	M E
Farnum Timothy D	Hist
Farren Janis A	Govt
Feld Ronald D	Chem
Ferron Donald G	Hist
Fitch Jeffrey T	German
Fitzgerald George B	Zool
Fitzgerald Joan	Js Eng
Fleischer Helen E	Hist
Foxon Mary B	Hist
Freedman Paula H	Russ
Fulton Jean C	Js Int
Gamble Joan M	Econ
Garlick Joyce I	Span
Girotti James E	Men Pe
Glick Leonard J	Psych
Goldman Alan C	Math
Gray Joseph J Jr	Russ
Grigware Donald E	Span
Grudis Paul J	Engl
Halprin Paula F	Medtec
Hebert Maurice J	Psych
Hitchcock Gerald G	Zool
Hjorth Richard N	Micbio
Holt William H	Psych
Horenstein Steven B	Govt
Hubbard Jane W	Wo Pe
Inouye Shirley-Jean	H Ec
Kappa Dianne	Zool
Kaufman Nancy E	French
Kenney Barbara J	H Ec
Kriger Mark P	Phil
Lamkin Kenneth R	Psych
Lamontagne Jerome	Ch E
Latremouille Robert	Govt
Lavorgna Anthony N	Mktg
Lemieux Jean A	Wo Pe
Leonard Judith E	Hist
Mackey Donna E	Psych
Mahoney Dennis B	Math
Majka Richard D	Physic
Mandel Carol A	Art
Mascioli Robert G	A&F Ec
McCarthy David F	Govt
McMahon Kathleen M	Govt
Mees Leonard R	Premed
Merriam Dwight H	Sociol
Michalski Ronald J	C E
Modena Carol A	H Ec
Molofsky Sara E	Hist
Morton Pamela J	Educ
Mucha Mary	Sociol
Nathanson Maralynne	Engl
Neimandi A	Wo Pe
Nickels Karen C	Psych
O'Brien Kevin P	Men Pe
Olinsky Sue A	Educ
Olson Gustave D Jr	Ld Arc
Pappas Charles C	Govt
Parent Deborah L	Math
Patten Anne V	H Ec
Perkins Richard A	Govt
Peterson Frederic D	Men Pe
Pfeiffer Patricia A	Engl
Phelan Kenneth E	Mgt
Place Carol D	Sociol
Polchlopek Phyllis A	Hist
Pruitt Richard G	Engl
Rakouskas Michael G	Gb Fin
Raphael Harriet L	Engl
Ravinski Linda S	Micbio
Redfield Sharon L	Math
Roessel Paula L	Econ
Rogers Walter E	Ld Arc
Roland Jane E	Js Int
Roubound Anthony L	Sociol
Sackett Raymond A	E E
Saltman William A	Art
Saltus Edgar R	Govt
Schmoyer Marianne L	Educ
Shepard Ronald B	Acctg
Sherman Ida L	Math
Shippee Lindsay A	Hist
Sibley David A	Math
Smith Kathleen K	Engl
Snyder Suzanne C	French
Spartos Anthony G	Premed
Spears Peter F	Gb Fin
Stefanik Stephen A	Math
Stevens Kent G	Men Pe
Sutherland Douglas F	Russ
Swierzbin Lynne J	Engl
Tabloski Theodore F	E E
Tedesco Eileen P	Art
Teubner John E	Forest
Tressler Michael B	E E
Tsoucalas Gregory A	Math
Tucker John D	Forest
Tumuma Etel L	Engl
Vaillette Paul K	Acctg
Vangemert Barry	Botany
Vigeant Gerald W	Js Eng
Wadlegger Richard	M F
Wakeman Cynthia L	Sociol
Wallewitz Donald E	Men Pe
Wells Franklin E	Men Pe
Wilson Raymond G	Sociol
Windlf Warren T	M F
Wisnaucwkas Cynthia A	Art
Woodcock David J	Govt
Yankee Joan G	Educ
Young Diane L	H Ec
Yurko Donna J	Acctg
Zariengo Catherine T	Span

Class of '68 Semester Average 3.0-3.3

Adelman Lannie J	Nurse
Aframe Carl D	Govt
Alberghini David P	Ch E
Allen Judith L	Educ
Allison John P	C E
Andersen Judith E	Sociol
Anderton Jaye R	Educ
Arcita Carol M	JS Eng
Avellar Mary J	H Ec
Azer Sandra R	Educ
Bacon Rosanne K	Engl
Bagnall Norene A	Govt
Batchelder Katrene	Psych
Bender Gerald E	Physic
Berryman Susan J	French
Bidwell Douglas F	Sociol
Bieniek Joan W	Zool
Bienvenue Gordon R	Speech
Birch Robert W	Zool
Bistran Stephen J	Psych
Bizios Rena	Ch E
Blonder Carole A	Educ
Bodurtha Diane E	Ch E
Bogie Cheryl A	Govt
Bolduan Carol E	Engl
Booth Richard H	Govt
Boronski Frances K	Govt
Bouchie Josette C	Educ
Boyden David E	M E
Bransfield Edward J	GB Fin
Bressler Ronda B	Engl
Briggs David W	Govt
Broderick Susan C	Engl
Bromstrup Kathryn A	Zool
Brown James B	Hist
Brown Stephen H	Psych
Bryant Rosemary	Educ
Burrell Bonnie L	Educ
Byers George A	Hist
Bzdula Paula A	H Ec
Campbell Catherine E	Art
Carleton Dawn E	Educ
Carter Lorraine B	Engl
Casey Kathleen A	Speech
Cellilli Gerald R	Math
Charbonneau Joan E	Math
Clark Elizabeth K	Wo Pe
Cohen Harold J	Prednt
Cohen Jeffrey L	Acctg
Cohen Jordan R	E E
Cohen Laura F	Acctg
Cohen Myron D	Acctg
Cohen Steven P	Acctg
Cole Virginia A	Engl
Collins Jane L	Sociol
Collins Martin E	Govt
Comstock Claudia G	Art
Congdon Jennifer B	H Ec
Conveney Carol A	Math
Crawford Celinda A H	Russ
Crawford Duncan P	Physic
Cucci Linda A	Art
Cushing Maxine E	Engl
Cutting Patricia E	Engl
Czekanski James P	Hist
Dahl Kenneth W	JS Eng
Darling Susan M	Educ
Davis Erik A	M E
DeCosta Mary L	Hist
Dembski Claudia J	Speech
Demo William J	Govt
Dempsey John P	Hist
Myers Martha Dennehy	Engl
Deotte Lester G	E E
Dickerman Stephen	Govt
Dicicinson Gary E	C E
Dimock Elizabeth J	Educ
Dingman Joseph F	Chem
Donovan Mary A	Engl
Dougal Christine M	Nurse
Dowal Michael J	Hist
Downey Mary Ellen	Educ
Doyle Gail A	Span
Draper Elizabeth A	Nurse
Drega Maryann S	Math
Drzal Robert S	Chem
Dunsford Carol J	H Ec
Duval Paul H	Hist
Eacmen James C Jr	Geol
Erickson Wayne F	Chem
Erker Edward F	Zool
Esposito Marilyn E	Hist
Esty Kenneth G	An Sci
Evans Cheryl	Engl
Ezold Robert J	Music
Farrell Frank C	Hist
Fielding Laurena R	Art
Fogel Harvey P	Ch E
Fontana Cathryn A	Engl
Ford James A	Mgt
Ford Jeffrey M	Zool
Frank Lynnann	Span
Frankenfield Ronald	M E
Fraser Clarence L	Micbio
French Roger A	Math
Frigon James E	Zool
Garrett Patricia L	Engl
Gaudet Robert D	Govt
Gaudreau Lauraine E	Educ
Gentile Thomas C	Forest
Giardino June E	Zool
Gigliotti Carol A	Zool
Pittendreigh Bettyja	Wo Pe
Gizienski Constance	Hist
Godlewski Roberta J	Engl
Godwin Robert C	GB Fin
Goldrick Barbara A	Hist
Goldstein Michael K	Prednt
Gould Joanne L	Nurse
Goulet Matthew C	Men Pe
Govenar Robert G	Ch E
Gowdey Joan C	French
Gowen Nancy T	Russ
Grace Donald F	Hist
Gruters William E	Art
Guillette Karen A	Engl
Gumula John B	Govt
Gunn Deborah L	H Ec
Hadley Ann P	Engl
Hale Richard D	Men Pe
Hamilton Wendy C	H Ec
Harrigan Janice A	Nurse
Hartley Susan B	Medtec
Hartmann Priscilla L	Zool
Hartrich Toni H	Hist
Healey John E	Engl
Heinicke Sandra J	Wo Pe
Helman Jane E	Speech
[illegible]	[illegible]
Hennessey Patricia J	Mktg
Hickey Peter L	Govt
Higgins James C	Forest
Higgins Thomas	Pub Hl
Hill Clarence P	Rec
Hinkley Barbara J	Educ
Hogan Francis J	Phil
Hosley Bruce A	C E
Houghton Ronald C	Htl Mgt
Hubbard James A	Chem
Hughes Kenneth B	Ld Arc
Hughes Thomas J	Engl
Ihlenburg Lois J	Wo Pe
Ilvonen Helena M	Hist
Jackman Francis X	Govt
Jacobs Robert D	Govt
Jenkins Verna M	H Ec
Jette Richard A	Acctg
Johnson Ronald W	Engl
Kamienski Sandra J	French
Kane Karen L	Anth
Kassiotis Pauline G	Engl
Katz Arlene B	Educ
Keane Sebia E	Sociol
Kelley Ernest W	Pl Soil
Kenney William R	Wildlf
Kessler Donald B	Hist
Kidder Karen L	Nurse
Koppel Robert M	Prednt
Kurzytyniak Richard	Acctg
LaBelle Jon M	Mktg
Laird Janet L	Hist
Lampron Richard C	Men Pe
Landis Judy A	Art
Landry Robert J	GB Fin
Lang Mary L	Micbio
Lanyon Maryjustine	Engl
Larson Anne L	H Ec
Lawrence Janice K	Engl
Leary Barbara E	Sociol
Leary Bernice G	Engl
Lechtur Clifford P	Ch E
Lent John D	Hist
Levandov Barbara	Psych
Lewis Linda J	H Ec
Liben Laura J	Rec
Lindahl Cynthia E	Nurse
Lindstrom Gail A	French
Liquori William J	Hist
Livesey Ronald V	Premed
Lockhart Charles B	Acctg
Lund Barbara A	Hist
MacDonnell Aline	Nurse
Machacz Edward F	Acctg
Madsen Carol A	Educ
Mahoney Maureen A	Art
Maki Kathryn	Hist
Mandracia Christine	Engl
Marti John E	Anth
Massey Donna L	Wo Pe
Matteson William J	Acctg
Maxfield Janice I	Educ
McCarthy Paula E	Hist
McCluskey Richard J	Govt
McCusker Charles A	Psych
McDonald Diane M	Nurse
McDonald Gail B	Art
McDonald Richard E	Fd Sci
McDonough Linda S	Govt
McDonough Paul W	Govt
McGuire Patricia	Engl
McMahon Jane M	Engl
Medowski Kent B	Mktg
Mentes Beverly J	Wo Pe
Mercier Jeanne C	JS Eng
Meunier Michael P	Engl
Miller Carolyn S	Wo Pe
Misiaszek Richard T	C E
Mize Jacquelyn A	Educ
Moray Elizabeth	Govt
Moresi John L	Chem
Morris James T	Govt
Morse Donald P	M E
Moss Stephen M	Econ
Moulthrop Judith A	Engl
Mueller Peter R	E E
Mullen John C	Geol
Musante Elizabeth A	Speech
Mylott Kathleen A	Engl
Mylyk Gloria A	Psych
Nathanson David	Russ
Neal Cynthia A	Wo Pe
Newman Otto R	Engl
Nicholas Robert F	Math
Noonan Joseph G	Educ
Nowak Robert S	M E
O'Connor Robert S	E E
O'Connor Susan M	Engl
Oleksiewicz Joseph M	Speech
Ostroff Leonard S	Psych
O'Sullivan Malcolm J	Hist
Pajak Robert W	E E
Palmer Stephen C	Fd Sci
Palubeckas Aurelia J	Sociol
Partridge Russell F	Ld Arc
Paseltiner Merryl T	H Ec
Morris Sandra Pauly	Educ
Pazsit Ruth E	Educ
Pearce Richard E	Engl
Pelow Kathleen U	Nurse
Perreault Edward J	Hist
Piche Dianne E	French
Podles Diane L	Educ
Pollack John E	Men Pe

(Continued on page 7)

Facts about UNITED AIR LINES

THEN (1961) ...	Operating Revenue	$502,219,000
	*Jet Fleet Size	81
	Employees	29,000
	Management Hires	30
NOW, Year Ending (1966) ...	Operating Revenue	$792,759,000
	*Jet Fleet Size	184 (Current outstanding orders $1.1 billion)
	Employees	40,000
	Management Hires	400
FUTURE (1970) ...	Operating Revenue	(Projection $1.5 billion)
	*Jet Fleet Size	340
	Employees	(Projected) 56,000

UNITED flies more people per day, per week, per month, per year than any other airline in the world. How about that for

GROWTH

You can help us maintain this pace ... make an appointment through your placement office

CAMPUS INTERVIEWS
will be conducted March 15th

To arrange appointment with members of United's Flight Employment Staff Please contact your placement office

* Only jets, props not included fly the friendly skies of United

— GIRLS —

An informal coffee hour will be held for all undergraduate girls who are interested in being a hostess for the Sophomore Class

PLAYBOY BANQUET

on April 5 — Come to the Colonial Lounge

SAT., MARCH 11, at 10 and 12 A.M.

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE

Hanover, New Hampshire

"Language and the Formation of National Consciousness"

Intercollegiate Conference

March 31 and April 1

SPONSORS: U.S. Peace Corps, Student Council for International and Comparative Studies, Comparative Studies Center.

SPEAKERS: O. L. Chavarria-Aguilar, Amiya Chakravarty, John J. Gumperz, Joshua A. Fishman, Pierre L. van den Berghe, Cameron Nish, Dale C. Thomson, Jerome B. Grieder, Yusuf Ibish, James W. Fernandez, and others.

TOTAL FEES: $10. For information, brochures and registration forms, contact your dean. Registration closes March 23.

Education Note

Wheaton College in Norton, Mass., has lost its cow, a guided inanimate type which was a weather vane on the barn behind the home of the school's president.

Wheaton says it would appreciate any information leading to the capture of the cow, which it says cannot move very fast.

Williston Academy in Easthampton, Mass., filed a petition in Hampshire County Court to remove a limitation in the school's charter stipulating faculty members must be Protestants.

The academy says it has been ignoring the stipulation for many years since it's hard enough to find good teachers without eliminating most of the world.

POLICY AND RULES DISCUSSION

The Men's Affairs Committee will be at John Adams Lower today at 7:00 p.m. to discuss University policy and dormitory rules. This is your chance to voice your opinions and ask questions.

Dean's List - Class of '68

Portnoy Allen S	Govt
Powers Mary F	Micblo
Powers Robert G	French
Pratte Claire L	Educ
Prusky Michael	Govt
Puhala James P	Pk Adm
Rainville Robert F	Ch E
Rankin James T	Prevet
Reis Katherine S	Engl
Reuben Michael I	Psych
Ringoen Alan A	Psych
Risch Dianne P	Engl
Rizzo Maria E	Psych
Robleski Paula M	Hist
Rodgers Robert M	Hist
Rogers Elaine A	Nurse
Rooney MaryEllen K	Speech
Rose Dorene L	Zool
Rosenburg Gerald S	Acctg
Roth Joyce R	Engl
Rothstein Barnett R	Chem
Rotstein Robert P	Govt
Roupenian Armen L	Premed
Roy Robert W	Art
Rozzi Louise M	Wo Pe
Ruchames Robert M	Hist
Ruckstuhl Susan I	H Ec
Ruppert Judith A	French
Sadowski Richard H	Prednt
Sanborn John W	M E
Sanderson Leslie	Engl
Sanford Lee M	An Sci
Schaffner Donna M	Engl
Schmidt Karen L	H Ec
Schmidt Leonard E	Sociol
Schneider Arnold M	Govt
Schweiger Myra E	Educ
Sears Stephen A	Engl
Sena Christine G	Ld Arc
Shappell Carol L	Math
Shores Roger W	Chem
Sibley Frederic F	Ld Arc
Silverman Janet H	Speech
Simkins Bruce F	Hist
Sinclair Kenneth P	Acctg
Smith Ernest J	Men Pe
Smith Marilyn R	German
Smith William C	Men Pe
Smola Elizabeth A	Chem
Southard Robert Y	Psych
Southwick Laura J	Botany
Spice Robert F	Math
Stanton Jacquelyn Y	Psych
Stare Nancy E	Educ
Steliga Richard	Art
Stetson Linda L	H Ec
Stiles Lauren H	Span
Stone Gwendolyn I	Educ
Strattner Gregory P	Engl
Sullivan Barbara J	Govt
Sullivan Karen M	Educ
Swan Sandra	Sociol
Swenson Eugene K	Engl
Swift Terry L	Engl
Swithenbank Brenda J	Hist
Sylva Joseph L	Phil
Taylor Janet A	Math
Taylor Pamela A	Govt
Teacher Andrea	Hist
Thompson Jay K	Engl
Thomson James W	A&F Ec
Tiberii Janice R	Math
Tietze Erich O	C E
Tincknell Gary S	Art
Tomasi Carl A	E E
Tombor Fred J	Psych
Veneklasen Sharon L	Acctg
Virga Patricia H	Music
Vrooman Dana L	M E
Waldron Christopher	Econ
Walker Ashley L	Art
Wampler David A	Govt
Waterman John R	Premed
Watson Richard T	Econ
Weinfield Ellen J	Sociol
Welenc Barbara J	H Ec
Weygand Gayle S	H Ec
White Donald R	Forest
White Margaret A	Art
Williams Paul L	Men Pe
Wilson Kathryn A	Govt
Winter Nancy A	Engl
Wisgirda Frances A	Math
Wisiolek Paul	E E
Wojcik Marianne	German
Woo David L	C E
Worth Ronald W	Chem
Ziemak Carrie A	Rec
Zink Diane E	French
Sandstrom Marilyn L	Mgt
Schmucker Patricia A	German
Vrijenhoek Robert C	Prevet

If you're not using Zip Code– you're not getting your nickel's worth

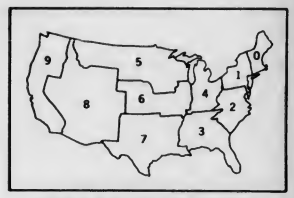
When you plunk down a nickel for a stamp, you should get the world's most efficient postal service in return.



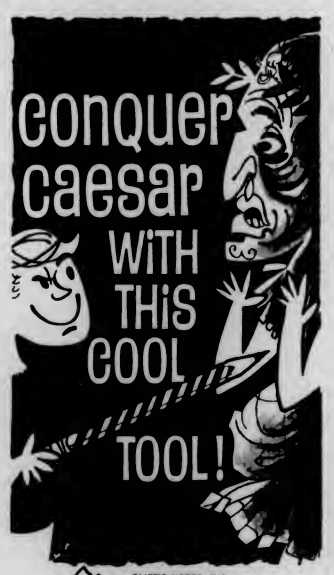
But—if you haven't added the Zip Code to the mailing address, you may not get all you are paying for.

Because Zip Code makes it possible for postal workers to sort mail faster and deliver by more direct routes. With Zip, they will use new electronic machines that "read" Zip numbers and sort mail fifteen times faster than was possible before!

That is why Zip Code is now the most important part of any mailing address. Always use it on every letter you write.

Include your own Zip in your return address, too. That makes it easy for others to Zip their mail to you. When you don't know a Zip Code, simply call your post office or look it up in their Zip Code Directory. Local Zip Codes can be found on the Zip Map in the business pages of your phone book.

It is so easy to use Zip Code. And when you do—you know you are getting your nickel's worth!

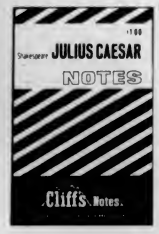


HOW ZIP CODE WORKS

Suppose the Zip Code is 60635. The "6" says it goes to the Midwest. The "06" narrows it down to Chicago. The last two digits—"35"—pinpoint the local post office. This eliminates many handling procedures. The letter is sorted faster, and sent more directly to its destination.

Mail moves the country—
ZIP CODE moves the mail!

Published as a public service in cooperation with The Advertising Council



CLIFF'S NOTES, INC.
Bethany Station Lincoln, Nebr. 68505

Cliff's Notes
INCORPORATED

Cliff's Notes can keep you from falling behind and failing to understand classic literature. For Julius Caesar, and all of Shakespeare's plays, Cliff's Notes give you a complete explanation and summary of every scene – in language you can understand. Don't worry about your literature grades – let Cliff's Notes help you improve them. OVER 125 TITLES covering frequently assigned plays and novels.

$1 at your bookseller or write for free title list

Direct from Boston's Surf Club

The Rockin' Ramrods

Friday Evening 8-12 p.m.

March 10 S.U. Ballroom

Admission 75¢

STUDENT UNION DANCE COMMITTEE

W. A. BENJAMIN INC.

WHY CHEMISTRY SUPPLEMENTS?

They make your course easier . . .
giving you a new understanding by providing step-by-step explanations of what you are studying.

They help you get more out of your course . . .
by covering specialized subjects in clear, concise language.

UNDERSTANDING PHYSICAL CHEMISTRY, PART I: PROPERTIES OF MATTER, THERMODYNAMICS, CHEMICAL EQUILIBRIUM, by Arthur W. Adamson. $3.95.

UNDERSTANDING PHYSICAL CHEMISTRY, PART II: ELECTROCHEMISTRY, KINETICS, STRUCTURE AND BONDING, by Arthur W. Adamson. $3.95.

MATHEMATICS FOR QUANTUM CHEMISTRY, by Jay Martin Anderson. $4.95.

PROGRAMMED SUPPLEMENTS FOR GENERAL CHEMISTRY, by Gordon M. Barrow, Malcolm E. Kenney, Jean D. Lassila, Robert L. Litle, and Warren E. Thompson. Two volumes, each $2.95.

THE STRUCTURE OF MOLECULES: AN INTRODUCTION TO MOLECULAR SPECTROSCOPY, by Gordon M. Barrow. $2.45.

COORDINATION CHEMISTRY: THE CHEMISTRY OF METAL COMPLEXES, by Fred Basolo and Ronald C. Johnson. $2.45.

ORGANIC REACTION MECHANISMS, by Ronald Breslow. $3.95.

THE CALCULUS OF CHEMISTRY: WITH AN INTRODUCTION TO COMPUTER PROGRAMMING, by James Newton Butler and Daniel Gureasko Bobrow. $2.95.

NUCLEI AND RADIOACTIVITY: ELEMENTS OF NUCLEAR CHEMISTRY, by Gregory R. Choppin. $2.45.

INORGANIC REACTION MECHANISMS: AN INTRODUCTION, by John O. Edwards. $4.95.

ELECTRONS AND CHEMICAL BONDING, by Harry B. Gray. $3.95.

QUANTUM MECHANICS IN CHEMISTRY, by Melvin W. Hanna. $3.95.

THE MOLECULES OF NATURE: A SURVEY OF THE BIOSYNTHESIS AND CHEMISTRY OF NATURAL PRODUCTS, by James B. Hendrickson. $3.95.

THE SHAPE OF CARBON COMPOUNDS: AN INTRODUCTION TO ORGANIC CHEMISTRY, by Werner Herz. $2.45.

LECTURES ON MATTER AND EQUILIBRIUM, by Terrell L. Hill. $3.95.

BEHAVIOR OF ELECTRONS IN ATOMS: STRUCTURE, SPECTRA, AND PHOTOCHEMISTRY OF ATOMS, by Robin M. Hochstrasser. $2.45.

THERMAL PROPERTIES OF MATTER: KINETIC THEORY OF GASES, by Walter Kauzman. $3.95.

HOW CHEMICAL REACTIONS OCCUR, by Edward L. King, $2.45.

PEPTIDES AND AMINO ACIDS, by Kenneth D. Kopple. $3.95.

TRANSITIONAL ELEMENTS, by Edwin M. Larsen. $2.45.

ELEMENTARY CHEMICAL THERMODYNAMICS, by Bruce H. Mahan. $2.45.

INTRODUCTION TO STEREOCHEMISTRY, by Kurt Mislow. $3.95.

PERIODIC CORRELATIONS, by Ronald L. Rich. $4.95.

STOICHIOMETRY AND STRUCTURE: FRESHMAN CHEMISTRY PROBLEMS AND HOW TO SOLVE THEM, PART I, by Michell J. Sienko. $2.95.

EQUILIBRIUM: FRESHMAN CHEMISTRY PROBLEMS AND HOW TO SOLVE THEM, PART II, by Michell J. Sienko. $2.95.

BASIC CHEMICAL THERMODYNAMICS, by Jürg Waser. $3.95.

These and other Benjamin titles are available at the

UNIVERSITY STORE

through April 1st at 10% OFF

Faculty Lecture Series Begins Program Today

On Wednesday, March 8, the Student Union Arts and Music Committee of the University of Massachusetts will present the initiating program of its newly founded Faculty Lecture Series.

These programs will include lectures, poetry readings, and discussions presented by members of the Art, English and Speech Departments. Programs will be presented weekly in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union. Refreshments will be served.

The main idea of the Series is to create an informal atmosphere where faculty, student, and public can meet on a common ground of interest. Subject matter will involve any field that is of particular significance to the speaker.

The speaker may comment on a social, political or artistic trend, read and comment on his own or another's work, or present a subject concerning a topical problem. The success of this program depends on the interest and participation of the public and the Four-College Community.

The initial program will feature David Clark and Robert Tucker of the English Department of UMass. The expansion of this Series depends on the success of this year's program.

RSO PRESIDENTS

All RSO presidents please leave your names and addresses in the Public Relations Committee message box in the Senate office. This information is necessary for a current PR project.

- Notices -

AMHERST STAMP CLUB
On Friday, March 10, in Public Health Bldg, Room 103, at 7:30 P.M. Mrs. William G. Colby will show "U.S. Map Stamps." Interested visitors are welcome.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL SOCIETY
On Friday evening, March 10, at 8:30 P.M. in French Hall, 209, Mr. Jean-Jacques Rivard, Secretary to the Trustees of the Mass. Archaeological Society will be the guest speaker. He will present the charter of the new chapter and will give a lecture, illustrated with slides, about the methods used at the Assawompset dig in eastern Massachusetts.

HILLEL
On March 8, at 8:15 P.M. in Mahar Aud, the movie "Tomorrow is a Wonderful Day will be shown with "The Bespoke Overcoat", Members 25¢, non-members—50c.

LECTURE ON CHINA
Walter H. Judd, former Congressman from Minnesota, will speak on China at Wright Hall, Smith College on March 10, at 5:00 P.M. His lecture will be the fourth in the Inquire Lecture Series which is sponsored by the Young Republican's Club.

SLIDES ON GREECE
On Wednesday, March 8, at 6:30 P.M. at the International Club Coffee Hour in the Governor's Lounge, Mr. Nichalas Katsarous, will present a slides program on Greece. Coffee hour starts at 5:30 P.M.

STUDENT SENATE
The Student Senate will meet this evening in the Student Union Council Chambers at 7 P.M. Students, faculty and other members of the University community are welcome.

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
On Friday, March 10, at 7:15 P.M. in Plymouth Room, S.U. Mr. Paul Troper, Eastern U.S. representative of Operational mobilization will speak to interested students concerning this summer's program of distributing Christian literature in Europe. All welcome.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
On Wednesday at 7:30 P.M. the regular dance will be held in the Ballroom, S.U.

SOUTHWEST COLLEGE COUNCIL
All interested students who want to live in the proposed "Quiet Dorms" (See Collegian article, Friday, March 3), sign up with Mrs. Schnarr in the Southwest Office, ground floor of Coolidge Tower.

Applicants must agree to the following conditions: 24 hour quiet hours. Study lounges to be used for reading and studying only. Instruments and stereos not to be played in individual rooms. Applications must be received by this Friday, March 10 for consideration.

OUTING CLUB
All members planning to go on the Virginia Caving trip must sign the final sign-up sheet on the bulletin board by Sunday, March 12.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL—'68
On March 8, at 6:45 P.M. in Hasbrouck 126 there will be a meeting. Attendance is mandatory.

MANAGEMENT CLUB
Thursday, March 9, in SBA No. 323, all interested Sophomores and Juniors are invited to attend a brief organizational meeting.

STUDENTS FOR POLITICAL ACTION
On Thurs., March 9, at 6:30 P.M. in Commonwealth Room, there will be a big membership meeting. Those who wish to become members please bring dues. $2.00 entitles you to fun and frolic with SPA. Everyone else also invited for important discussion on "Spring Mobilization."

STOCKBRIDGE SENATE
On Thurs. March 9, at 7:30 in Middlesex Room, S.U. there will be a general meeting.

LOST:
Black shoulder bag pocket book, on first floor classroom in Education Building on March 6. I.D. inside. Please call 546-9261.

FOUND:
Men's maroon car coat with zip-in lining taken by mistake from Newman Center. May be picked up in Secretary's office of Newman center. Black gloves in pocket.

Box of stationery and pair of men's leather gloves in basement classroom of Fernald Hall. Call Del between 11:30 P.M.-6:30 A.M. at 6-9303 to identify.

PINNINGS:
Susan Ellis, class of '67, Emerson, to Dennis Spurling, class of '67, TEP.

Karen von Bergen, class of '69, Hamlin, to John P. Baker, class of '69, Thatcher.

Donna Pariseau, class of '69, Hamlin, to Dennis Camach, class of '69, A.I.C.

Cheryl R. Miller, class of '70, ICU to Steven E. Murra, class of '69, AEPi.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Evelyn Syzmonik, class of '67, Alpha Chi Omega, to Philip Lamb, class of '66, Alpha Sigma Phi, U.S. Coast Guard O.C.S.

Jean Krupsky, class of '67, Alpha Chi Omega, to David McKenna, class of '68, Boston College.

Pamela Hinton, class of '67, Alpha Chi Omega, to Michael Henderson, U.S. Army.

Susan Keefe, class of '67, Alpha Chi Omega, to Patrick McGeoghegan, class of '67, Curry College.

Margaret Denman, class of '67, Alpha Chi Omega, to Scott Smith, class of '67, Phi Kappa Sigma, Univ. of Maine.

Nancy Gmyrek, class of '69, Dwight, to John Larson, U.S.C.G.

BRIDAL FAIR . . .

(Continued from page 1)

in soft pink, orange sherbert, and lime dresses.

From the Grandmother gown with high neckline to the Baby-doll dress of silt aqua, there were outfits to suit every bride. Top on the list for 1967, according to Miss Shute, is the "cage look", a halo of patterned lace net.

A Community Service Award was presented to the University's Alpha Theta Chapter of Gamma Sigma Sigma Sorority by Oneida Silver Co. for activities devoted to helping other people. Runners-up were Mortarboard and Scrolls.

At the conclusion of the show, doorprizes were awarded to members of the audience.

Applications accepted for Fellowships in the School of Education's Applied Educational Research Training Program from qualified graduate students who are now, or will be fully accepted in UMass Doctoral degree programs by September 1967. Non-Education majors as well as Education majors are encouraged to apply. Inquiries should be directed to:

The Program Director
Applied Educational Research
Training Program
School of Education
University of Massachusetts

If Mexico and Bermuda send you,
we'll send you posters of Mexico and Bermuda.
3 for $1.50.

The diver of Acapulco. The torero of Mexico. The sleek racing craft of Bermuda.

All three 30" x 40" posters are beautifully reproduced in color. And they're all yours for only $1.50.

We think you'll like them so much, you'll want to go to Mexico and Bermuda some day.

And when you do, we hope you'll go on Eastern.

So don't just sit there staring at four blank walls. Fill in the coupon below and send for your colorful posters now.

EASTERN

We want everyone to fly.

To: Eastern Airlines, Inc., Poster Offer, Box 4211, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017

Please send me the Bermuda, Acapulco, and Mexico posters, for which I enclose a $1.50 money order or check (payable to Eastern Air Lines, Inc. Poster Offer).

Name_____ Address_____

City_____ State_____ Zip Code_____

☐ I would also be interested in receiving a Youth Fare Application.

Free to Univ. of Mass. Students
25¢ to others

A new booklet, published by a non-profit educational foundation, tells which career field lets you make the best use of all your college training, including liberal-arts courses—which career field offers 100,000 new jobs every year—which career field produces more corporation presidents than any other—what starting salary you can expect. Just send this ad with your name and address. This 24-page, career-guide booklet, "Opportunities in Selling," will be mailed to you. No cost or obligation. Address: Council on Opportunities, 550 Fifth Ave., New York 36, N. Y.,

UMASS THREATENED BY SPACE SHORTAGE

by PAT KYER
Staff Reporter

Are your classes just chuck full of people? Is there no place to hang your coat but on your own chair? With an enrollment of 13,679 students and a projected 1500 more next fall—"it will get worse before it gets better."

Not that you're going to have to sit on someone's lap—though maybe that's not worse—but you might have to choose an eight o'clock or a four-forty, instead of that nice after lunch 1:25.

We're not out of classroom space—yet. The University week is 49 periods. Currently, a classroom is being utilized 30-36 hours per week. However, according to Jack Littlefield, U-Mass Planning Officer, "1968 will be a crucial year, when the capacity for growth will be stopped if the two new proposed buildings fall behind in construction." These are planned for 36-40 new classrooms, and 300 offices.

Next year, the new Administration Building will create additional classroom and office space in Machmer and South College. The Berkshire House, currently used as storage, will become instructional facilities. To quote Mr. Littlefield: "We will be able to limp along."

The major squeeze is in labs. Here, enrollments are not flexible. New labs are not easily set up. Thomas Rice, of the Geology Department, is attempting to encourage off-semester registration of Geology 101 and 102, as a temporary measure. The fall say 612 in 101, spring, only 272. It could help.

Raymond Castelpoggi, Assistant Director of the Office of Institutional Studies, points out the source of our rapidly expanding campus:

1. Rising college age population
2. Larger demand for college training
3. Longer college stay, more graduate students.

The dorm problem has been solved. Who can't remember the tripling and quadrupling of recent years? Now it's classroom needs. Fold your coat on your lap—or sit on it. To quote Mr. Littlefield, once again: "I sure hope the kids get the sense that they are in a boom town."

Maroon Keys On Review

The Maroon Keys is a sophomore men's honor society that serves the University by sponsoring various functions and offering general assistance to the students and faculty.

The Keys' program begins in the summer with a convocation and dance for the swingshift freshmen. In addition to general assistance at Fall registration, the Keys sponsor a dance for all freshmen and build the traditional bonfires for the rallies.

This year during the football season the keys ran busses to the Dartmouth game, and after Christmas vacation they sponsored direct bus service from New York City to UMass.

To assist the administration the Keys have acted as hosts for the President's Christmas party, the reception for swingshift freshmen, and in April the Keys will host high school honor students visiting the University.

Presently the Keys are involved in planning the selection of next year's members. Applications are available in R.S.O. and details are on posters in the dorms.

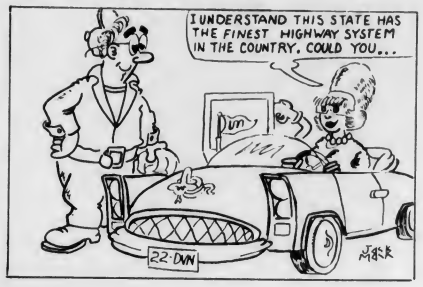
Wystan Hugh Auden To Appear Wed. In SU Ballroom

Wystan Hugh Auden, distinguished Anglo-American poet, essayist, and playwright, will be presented in a program of selected poetry readings on Wednesday, March 15, at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom under the auspices of the Arts and Music Committee of the University of Massachusetts.

Mr. Auden will narrate, read, and comment upon selections from his own poetry and that of other poets from various periods in English literature. A discussion period for questions evolving from the readings and the commentary and a reception in the Colonial Lounge will follow.

FROSTY GOGGLE LODGE
Rt. 100
Wilmington, Vt.
MT. SNOW — HAYSTACK SKI AREAS
COLLEGE DESIGNED RATES
Midweek—$8 & up
Weekends, Holiday Weeks—$4 & up
Reservations 802-464-5017

"Beggar On Horseback" To Be Presented By Smith College Theatre Department



The second major production of the Smith College Department of Theatre and Speech, Kaufman and Connelly's "Beggar on Horseback," will be presented on March 8, 9, 10, and 11 at 8 p.m. in the Smith College Theatre in the Alumni Gymnasium.

George S. Kaufman, known for such hits as "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and "You Can't Take It With You," and Marc Connelly, who wrote "The Green Pastures," poke good-natured fun at the American business world in this hilarious expressionistic comedy.

"Set a beggar on horseback and he'll ride to the devil," says an old proverb—and in this comedy, struggling young composer Neil McRae is the beggar who dreams he is doing just that.

Torn between his ideals and the temptation to marry Gladys Cady, daughter of a rich businessman, for her money, Neil falls into a troubled sleep, and dreams what it is like to enter the Cady business—where he can't even get a pencil without having a requisition signed by the president of the firm.

Appearing in this production will be Heddy Zirin '69 as Gladys, and Denton Snyder, associate professor of theatre and speech, and Sarah Harris '69 as her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cady. Michael Behnke, who teaches at the Northampton School for Girls, will play the young composer-dreamer, Neil, and Linda Machinist '69 will play Cynthia, the level-headed girl who loves him. Also in the large cast are Toby Webb, Amherst '69; Robert Emerson, University of Massachusetts '67; acting assistants Raymond Howard, Terence McCoy, and Carl Serbell; Stephen Snell, who teaches at Williston Academy; and Robert Smith of Northampton.

Who is the Ale Man of the Year?

The Ale Man-hunt is over!
The gals got their men.
And here are the lucky three,
left to right:

DENNIS MULCAHY

BILL WARNOCK

DICK BENOIT

Your vote will tell

One of these three men will be named the Ale Man of the Year. He'll win 10 hours of flying lessons at the airport of his choice, plus an Ale Man sports jacket, plus an Ale mug. Who will he be? It's up to you.

Everybody can vote in this election. Check your choice on a ballot and drop it in one of the ballot boxes you'll see everywhere.

May the best man win. All you other Ale Men, remember, there's always next year.

BALLANTINE Ale P. BALLANTINE & SONS, NEWARK N. J.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Gerri Cote

One of our Collegian photographers stood knee-deep in snow to take this bird's eye shot of yesterday's weekly snowfall.

I, a Woman Judged 'Not Obscene' by Court

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The Swedish film, "I, a Woman" is not obscene in the eyes of Supreme Court Judge Frank Licht. The judge rendered his decision Monday in the controversy between the city of Providence and the Columbia Theater, which has been showing the film for more than two months.

Judge Licht said the city had failed to prove that the film was 'utterly without redeeming social value." That must be proved under the obscenity guidelines laid down by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Licht said the film met two other qualifications for an obscenity judgment, that it has a definite appeal to the prurient interest and is patently offensive to national community standards.

But he said the film tells a story, about a girl pre-occupied with sex "to the exclusion of all other considerations" and he said that story is a "truth which is an unhappy fact of life."

On that basis Judge Licht said he could not say the film has no redeeming social value or importance.

COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"
545-2550

fine arts

Lighting Crew Seeks Revenge In The Revenger's Tragedy

At Kirby Theater March 3rd, Amherst College opened its production of the Jacobean revenge drama, The Revenger's Tragedy by (take your choice) Cyril Tourneur, Marston & Shakespeare, Middleton, Jonson, Chettle, or Dekker. The experts are not certain on the point of authorship.

However, merely for convenience, let's give the benefit of the doubt to Tourneur despite the fact that The Atheist's Tragedy, the one surviving play undoubtedly Tourneur's, is quite inferior and unlike The Revenger's Tragedy.

The plot of the Revenger's Tragedy is way too complicated and involved to describe in detail in this review. Suffice it to say that Vendice seeks revenge on the Duke for the death of his betrothed love, Gloriana. The lustful Duke has seduced and driven Gloriana to her death. Vendice disguises himself as one Piato and slips into the court to seek revenge.

This moral allegory is unique in its sardonic fury and compressed language. The procession of the ducal family at the beginning is akin to medieval dramatizations of the Seven Deadly Sins. As in moralities, the characters are personified abstractions subordinated to the symbolic and allegorical action.

Poetic metaphors treat the physical world. The play is a continuous tissue of transformations both moral and physical; it depicts a world of inverted values corrupted by gold and sensuality.

The central symbol of the evil transformations is the skull of the poisoned Gloriana; the bare truth of the skull is contrasted to the falseness of the heavily painted or gorgeously masked faces of the courtiers and ladies. To transform evil into good, Vendice enters upon a course of action in which he transforms good into evil; as he purges the court, he creates a terrible darkness in his own soul.

In productions of verse plays by college groups, vocal technique is usually the weakest element of the acting. Unfortunately, such was true of this production. Gregory Prentiss as Vendice gave a spirited portrayal in a very difficult role. Mr. Prentiss' articulation was marred occasionally. His opening soliloquy, so full of exposition, was quite lost by most of the audience.

Possibly if the vocal rate at the beginning of the show is cut in half, it would be easier for the audience to adapt to the archaic language and poetic images. As the play progressed Mr. Prentiss' clarity improved. A good deal more vocal variety was needed to interpret every nuance of meaning in the verse lines. As the performance wore on, Mr. Prentiss sacrificed subtle shading in favor of shouting.

Mr. Prentiss would do well to remember that Vendice is always Vendice even when disguised as Piato. For example, when Vendice is testing his mother and sister, we must see Vendice's feelings underneath the disguise, not merely in the asides. Mr. Prentiss slipped in and out of roles with too much facility at times.

Mr. Prentiss pointed up Vendice's moral decay quite convincingly as the play progressed. However, Mr. Prentiss was unable to make the audience believe the difficult change of mind when repentance "conjures" the "base divill" out of Gratiana.

Hippilito, brother of Vendice is played by Barry Growe with crisp articulation and, at times, a pedantic slow rate of speech. Lusurioso, the Duke's son is played by Bruce Boyer with a commanding stage presence probably due to his 6'2" frame.

However, Mr. Boyer moves with grace and control. Mr. Boyer's voice has fine strong tone with little vocal vitality or emotion. Vendice's mother, played by Abigail Spreyer, was sometimes inaudible.

Vendice's sister, played by Elizabeth Egbert, moved mechanically through her scenes and followed the director's instructions with precision and little inner belief. Susan Richardson made an attractive Duchess; her voice needs much more support to improve tone.

The physical movement of the actors in general was graceful and large enough to project this larger than life allegory. The production has been beautifully staged by director Walter Boughton; the pictorial compositions are effective and varied.

My hat is off to the settings designed by Raymond Jens Klausen. The sets place the actors in a golden world of corruption bolstering the play's theme. The sheets on the Duke's bed are gray and black reminding one of the evil sensuality throughout the entire play. The banquet scene ensnares Lusurioso and his followers in a huge golden web which glows red when they are stabbed.

The set is practical too; the changes were accomplished smoothly with little delay in a many scened show. And best of all, Klausen's scenery remained in the background supporting the play without ever becoming an isolated spectacle in itself!

However, the lighting was in many instances inadequate. When actors' faces cannot be seen, we can safely conclude the lighting is too dim!!

I can well understand putting Tourneur's world of inverted values in deceiving shadows, but I, for one, would like to see the actor's face if only to know who is talking! Was the lighting crew carrying out some strange revenge on the cast?

The Revenger's Tragedy, although not a Shakespeare, is a fine poetic drama. It is well worth seeing this seldom produced play; it has a fascinating, fast moving plot with many twists and fine poetic imagery. The Revenger's Tragedy will be performed at 8:30 p.m. on March 10th, 11th, 12th, and 13th at Kirby Theater, Amherst College.

— Peter Denis

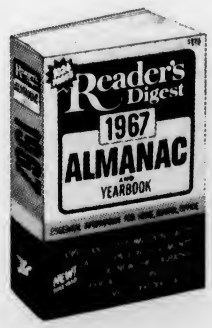
'FRODO LIVES'

New Rallying Cry Of College Students

(ACP) — "Frodo Lives!", the rallying cry of the Tolkein cult, is becoming almost as well-known to the college and high school generation as "Remember the Alamo" is to grade-scholars, notes the University of Denver Clarion.

For the uninitiated, the Clarion explains, Frodo is a hobbit" —one of the race of "haflings" who lives in Middle-earth and talks Elfish. Frodo is the hero of J. R. R. Tolkein's The Lord of the Rings, a 1,300-page trilogy.

The Lord of the Rings, published in 1956, was the result of a temptation, which Tolkein couldn't resist, to make a country to go with one of the languages he had invented. The first fantasy, The Hobbit, written in 1937 to amuse his children, is a charming story of Middle-earth in which small, warm, and peaceful creatures played through life as one large adventure.



Now 74, Tolkein has managed to delight not only his children, but also readers all over England and America. His zealous fans are devoted both to him and to his "delicious world of escape."

The Tolkein Society of America, which had 800 members at last count, analyzes Tolkein and his books. Two magazines are published regularly "in celebration of Tolkein's achievement." A recent Life magazine article stated, "This is more than mere enthusiasm; this is passion—uninhobbited, joyous passion."

Do you know...
How to get a scholarship...where to get an educational loan...the tuition costs in other colleges...the capital of the Malagasy Republic...the difference between Taoism and Confucianism... what the moon looks like...who won the National League Batting title in 1956?

Whether you're writing a term paper, trying to preserve your bankroll or playing trivia, you'll find all the answers in the New Revised 1967 Reader's Digest Almanac and Yearbook. Here are 1024 pages, 300 new photographs, the main events of the year in every field and 1,000,000 facts—indexed for quick and easy reference.

Pick up a copy at your college bookstore or wherever magazines and books are sold. Only $1.75, now on sale.

MASS. CLASSIFIED

WANTED

Ex. Nurses' Aide 3:00 to 7:00 p.m. R.N. 3:00 to 11:00 or 11:00 to 7:00 full or part time.

Musician(s) for St. Patrick's Day Party. Must be able to consume prodigious amounts of fluid. No R & R trash or vulgar Q-Club. Entertainers need apply. P.O. Box 701, Amherst.

FOR SALE

650 cc BSA excellent condition. 1956. $450.00. Call 584-6739, evenings.

AUTOMOBILES

'58 Cadillac Ambulance very good condition reasonable. Call 546-8291 anytime.

1962 4 wheel drive jeep station wagon. Fischer plow and profitable plowing business—sold separately or as a unit. Call Rick, 256-8146.

OPPORTUNITIES

Interested in international communication and languages? Join the Esperanto Club in the Student Union, every Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

HIGH-FLYING DOVE—Sonny Dove, St. John's star center fires a jumper over the outstretched hands of UMass' Billy Tindall in Saturday night's game in Jamaica, N.Y.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Neil Rennie

Baseball Clinic to Turn UMass Into 'Swinging School' Saturday

UMass will conduct a day-long baseball clinic for high school coaches and players Saturday in the Boyden Physical Education Building.

Dick Bergquist, Redman head baseball coach, is the clinic chairman. Bergquist hopes the clinic will attract a large number of high school coaches and their players from all over the state.

Registration will take place at 9 a.m. and will be followed by words of welcome from Director of Athletics Warren P. McGuirk. The first session will start at 9:55. The topic will be "Catching" and will be conducted by Arlan Barber, UMass freshmen coach who played three years in the Cleveland Indians organization.

The rest of the morning program will feature at 10:30 "General Infield Play" by Billy Harrell, former major league performer and now a scout for the Boston Red Sox; and 11:15 "Coaches Panel" that will include Pete Finn, Reading Memorial High, "Baserunning," Tom O'Connell, Braintree High, "Developing a Pitcher," Bud Pellerin, Pittsfield High, "Developing Team Hustle," and Howie Burns, Springfield Tech, "Sacrifice Bunt."

After lunch in the new Dining Commons, in the high-rise Southwest Complex across from the Boyden Building, the afternoon session will start at 1:45 p.m. The first session will be "Hitting Tips" conducted by Frank Leja, former New York Yankee. At 2:30 "Pre-Season Drills" will be led by Coach Bergquist and the clinic will end with special drills conducted by the UMass varsity team.

Stockbridge Whips Dartmouth

The Stockbridge rifle team won its sixth shoulder-to-shoulder match in eight outings with a 126-point victory over the Dartmouth freshmen here Saturday.

Stockbridge thus outshot its third Ivy League school, the other two being Harvard and Yale.

This is one of the best seasons the Stockbridge team has had, with Saturday's scores being the highest team total in shoulder-to-shoulder matches this season.

High man for Stockbridge was Frank Welcome, shooting 98, 84, 76. High man for Dartmouth was Bill Badger, who was also high man over all, shooting 98, 92, 69 for prone, kneeling and offhand respectively.

Preceding the Stockbridge-Dartmouth frosh match, the Dartmouth varsity outshot the UMass varsity by 41 points.

Next weekend Stockbridge winds up its season, firing against Boston College freshmen here in the afternoon.

STOCKBRIDGE		DARTMOUTH
Welcome	258	Badger	259
Clough	252	Allen	233
Enselek	250	Derrickson	225
Andrews	245	Rosen	218
Miller	244	Harewood	187
	1248		1122

UMass Bowlers Strike Riches

The UMass doubles team of seniors Joe Misky and Dick Minton recorded a total score of 1230 to take top honors at the Pioneer Valley Invitational College Bowling Tournament at the White House Inn Lanes in Chicopee last Saturday.

Sponsored by Western New England College, the tournament attracted some 150 men and women bowlers from 15 colleges and universities through New England.

Minton also was high singles game bowler of the tourney with a 257.

March 10 8:00-12:00

MIXER

WMUA to Broadcast LIVE from

William James House

Dance to the latest tunes

Popular records to be given away

"JOIN THE FUN"

8:00-12:00 Admission 50¢ March 10

INTRAMURALS

Unbeaten Dorms: Trojans, Flaming A's, Maroons, Lemons

by ROGER KIPP
Staff Reporter

Things are starting to mold in volleyball action as the season comes to a close and heads into the playoffs. Four dorm leagues and both leagues in the IFC are over with the winners awaiting the playoffs. Two of the four independent leagues are wrapped up.

The Adams Flaming A's have won the Tower League with a perfect 7-0 slate, while the Chadborne Maroons, champs in just about everything in the East League, have won again, winning all six of their games. The Wheeler Trojans are champs of the West League, going 5-0 in regular season play. Winners in the North loop are the Butterfield Lemons also with a 5-0 record.

The Southwest ended in a tie between the Colts, who walked off with the football title in that league, and the Patriots. Each had lost only once in six games.

The IFC is split into the Athenian and Spartan Divisions, with BKP winning the Athenian title. Their statistics show a 6-1 record, with the only loss coming to Theta Chi, who finished second.

AEP won the Spartan Division, finishing 7-0, clinching the title Monday night with a victory over ATG. LCA, who has been close to winning everything, grabbed runnerup in the division with a 6-1 slate.

Turning to the Independents, two of the leagues are all over. The International League winners are Camoflague S., while the National League champs are the James Jaspers.

The Graduate-Faculty League, an innovation in intramural athletics, is a toss up between Chem Club (4-0), and Selohssas (3-0). The American League is likewise a scramble between Oddbadds (4-0) and the Upper Imps (3-1).

LCA over ATG, 15-2, 15-2
PSD over TKE, 15-10, 15-9
AEP over ASP, 15-2, 15-9
SPE over TEP, 15-1, 15-11
SAM over QTV, 6-15, 15-4, 15-6
BKP over APO, 15-1, 15-7
Grants over Buffaloes, 18-16, 15-10

* * *

Bowling comes to a finish this week, with the All-Star match scheduled to be held March 15, at 7 p.m. at the Boyden alleys. It will again pit the dorms against the fraternities, where total pin fall will decide the winner.

Meanwhile Phi Mu Delta won the IFC bowling title Monday night, taking all eight points from TEP. PSD, last year's campus champs, won the consolation match over BKP, 8-0, taking third place in the IFC. For the champs, PMD, Dennis Erdmonn rolled a 504 triple, with a 190 in the second.

* * *

Wrestling starts to grab the center stage in intramurals for this next week or two. Monday's matches were all in the fraternity division.

Victors were Tom Bates of BKP and Dave Newey of SPE in the 128 lb. class, Frank Reynolds of PSD, John Pollack of BKP, and Dan Murphy of KS in the 137 lb. class, Bob Nancusi of SPE, Fred Fitzpatrick of KS, and Mike McArdle of KS in the 177 lb. class, and Jim Creek (TKE), Lonnie Lehrer (ASP), Paul Scully (KS), Jack Doucette (BKP) and Jim Mitchell (KS) in the unlimited weight division.

Volleyball Scores

Grants over Giants, 15-8, 14-16, 16-14
Maroons over Buffaloes, Forfeit
Bruins-Senators, Double forfeit
Eagles over Bulldozers, 15-8, 15-12
BKP over SPE, 13-11, 9-15, 15-10
Patriots over Colts, 16-14, 16-14
KS over PMD, 15-4, 9-15, 15-10
KS over ASP, 15-12, 12-15, 15-13
Dufarb over A Types, Forfeit
Chem Club over Selohssa's, 15-2, 15-11
Lucky B over Sched-Ed, Forfeit
Toads over Oddbadds, 15-9, 19-17
Imps over Moots, 15-7, 15-7
Numerals over Bismarks, Forfeit
PMD over TKE, Forfeit

Volleyball Standings

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Jaspers	x—5-0
Blueballs	4-1
Fruits	2-3
Orgies	2-3
Phantoms	1-4
Tigers	0-5

x-clinched title

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Oddbadds	y—4-1
Upper Imps	y—4-1
Toads	3-2
Numerals	2-3
Moots	1-4
Bismarks	0-7

y-playoff tonight at 6:30

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

Camoflague So.	x—5-0
Smittys	4-1
Losers	3-2
Boilermakers	1-4
Forestry	1-4
Camoflague No.	0-5

GRADUATE-FACULTY LEAGUE

Chem Club	x—5-0
Selehssas	3-1
Lucky 13's	3-1
Dufarbs	2-5
"A" Type	1-4
Sched-ed's	0-5

DORMITORY VOLLEYBALL

North League

Lemons	x—5-0
Flaming A's	4-1
Chestnuts	2-3
Aces	2-3
Limes	2-3
Phallics	0-5

West League

Trojans	x—5-0
Hicks	3-2
Hi-Lo's	2-3
Hoovers	1-4
Maples	1-4
Elms	0-5

East League

Maroons	x—7-0
Grants	5-2
Buffaloes	4-3
Giants	4-3
Eagles	4-3
Bulldozers	2-5
Bruins	1-6
Senators	0-7

Tower League

Flaming A's	x—7-0
Redwoods	6-1
Hemlocks	3-4
Academics	3-4
Spartans	3-4
Smashers	2-5
Apples	2-5
Seagrams	1-6

South League

Patriots	x—5-1
Colts	5-2
Panthers	4-2
Commanchees	3-3
Jaguars	2-4
Cougars	0-6
Colonials	0-7

FRATERNITY VOLLEYBALL

Spartan League

AEPi	x—7-0
LCA	6-1
PSD	5-2
KS	4-3
PMD	3-4
TKE	2-5
ASP	1-6
ATG	0-7

UConn Names New Hoop Coach

STORRS, Conn. (AP) —Burr R. Carlson, 39, assistant basketball coach at the University of Connecticut for three seasons, has been promoted to head basketball coach to succeed Fred Shabel who will become an assistant to Athletic Director Jim Hickey at the end of the season.

In accepting the appointment, Coach Carlson said, "Connecticut has a rich and successful tradition in basketball; and I have been privileged to take an active part in it as a student, player, alumnus and spectator. I am grateful that I have been given the opportunity to enrich my experience, as a head coach."

LOW RATES WEEKDAYS

DRIVE LESS — PAY LESS — SKI MORE

TWO COMPLETE SKI AREAS

• Beginner to Advance Novice Area, Intermediate to Expert Area, each completely serviced by chairs and T-Bars • 24 Trails and Slopes • 2 Double Chairs, 2 T-Bars • J Bar & Rope Tow • Snow Making on 25 acres

... And, a special race course for clubs. • Giant Slalom Course • Flags Supplied • Permanent Phones • Ski Club discounts, too, for 20 or more people • 6-day tickets and coupon books. No wonder everybody's skiinn at Thunder Mountain. College Rates Weekends

• Ski Reports 413-339-4986. Res. 413-339-6610.

LARGEST SKI AREA IN MASSACHUSETTS

Thunder Mountain

Charlemont, Mass. Route 2, Mohawk Trail

Former Opponents Offer Hope for UMass Swim Future

by HARVEY ELMAN
Staff Reporter

Two important contributors to the scoring power of UMass' varsity swimming team this season have been Dave Larson and Bob Asquith.

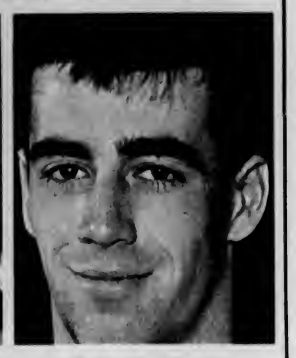
Both swimmers are sophomores and Coach Joe Rogers looks for continued outstanding performances from this pair for the next two years.

Larson, a diver, performed at Wayland High under Don Barton, whom Dave credits with initiating his interest in diving. At the Waltham Boys' Club, Dave won numerous awards.

Asquith started competitive swimming six years ago, at Catholic Memorial and Huntington Prep. His interest in the sport was initiated by his father who won medals for the Army team in Europe. As a member of the Bunker Hill Boy's Club in Charlestown, Asquith competed against Larson several times.

Assistant Coach Joe Yeskewicz is credited by Larson for developing Dave's diving form, while Bob is indebted to his coach at Huntington, Al Houston, for improving his style.

An All - American in Prep School, Asquith held the 200-yd. backstroke record and was a member of the fastest prep school 200-yd. freestyle relay team in the country.



At UM, Asquith holds four varsity records. His new standards are the 200-yd. backstroke (2:09.6), 200 - yd. individual medley (2:13.6), and being a member of the record-shattering 400-yd. medley relay team (3.58.0) and the 400-yd. freestyle relay team (3:29.6). The first three marks were set against Vermont with the freestyle relay standard set against Holy Cross.

The 5'4", 145-lb. diver points to his high point total on the high board against MIT last week as the happiest moment in his swim career. He scored a record 227 points for six dives. His most disappointing moment occurred against Bowdoin when he failed to win his event for the only time this season. His most exciting moment was executing a 3½ somersault dive last week while practicing for the upcoming New England meet. No other New Englander has accomplished this feat this year.

Asquith, a 6'0", 175-lb. freestyler and backstroker, feels his selection as a Prep School All-American was the happiest moment of his swim career. Placing fourth in the Eastern New England Prep School Championships in New Jersey was his most exciting moment. His most disappointing moment was losing the state backstroke title by a judge's photo-finish decision in his senior year in high school.

DAVE LARSON

BOB ASQUITH

A 20-year-old Business major, Larson hopes to go into marketing or sales. His other interests include surfing, skiing, popular music, and Coach Rogers' jokes. He is a brother of Phi Mu Delta, where he is known as "Teadrop."

A 20-year-old Anthropology major, Asquith is undecided on his plans following graduation. He likes water skiing, traveling, and popular music. He is a brother of Theta Chi and an IFC representative.

The duo will be part of an eight-man UMass contingent to participate in the New England Intercollegiate Swimming League championships this weekend at So. Conn. College.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
Sports
WEDNESDAY, MAR. 6, 1967
Page 12 Vol. XCV, No. 52

Gymnasts Meet

A meeting of all candidates for next year's gymnastics team will take place Sunday in Room 249 Boyden, Coach Erik Kjeldsen has announced.

Falls Hurt UMass Skiers In Last Meet of Season

WEST OSSIPEE, N. H. — The UMass ski team completed a fine season here Saturday by finishing second to Amherst College in the New England Intercollegiate championships at Mount Whittier out of 24 competing colleges.

The Redmen also finished second to the strong Lord Jeffs in the season standings. UMass had trailed Amherst by only six points in the standings going into the meet, but a pair of unfortunate falls ruined the chances of catching up.

Out of 150 competitors in Saturday's giant slalom, Ned Kelly was tops for UMass with a fifth-place finish. Dave Kamlia finished 15th, Mike Zanolli 19th and Dick McHugh 49th. All four finishers were sophomores.

UMass' best skier, Collin Garstang, fell during the race as well as John Hurd, costing the Redmen valuable points.

Nevertheless, Coach Bill MacConnell was pleased with the season. "With a young, inexperienced sophomore team, we had an outstanding season," he said. He praised the team's spirit, citing the fact that UMass skied as a team all season and not as individuals.

"They had a real good year," MacConnell said, "and they've come a long way." He was quick to point out that all six members of the squad will return next year, so he is looking forward to another great season next winter.

In the final individual standings, Garstang finished third, Zanolli seventh, McHugh 15th and Hurd 41st.

UMASS SKI COACH
BILL MacCONNELL

Gymnast Dauphinais Injures Knee In Championship Meet

The UMass gymnastics season ended on a sour note for soph Dick Dauphinais, who suffered a severe knee injury during last Saturday's Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League championships at Springfield College.

A personnel management major from Braintree, Dauphinais was warming up for the floor exercise and, according to one teammate, "was executing his maneuvers remarkably well" when he overspun his jump and landed with his right knee on the thin floor exercise mat.

He underwent surgery on his knee at Cooley-Dickinson Hospital over the weekend and is now recovering at the Infirmary.

"He should be leaving in a few days," an infirmary spokesman said, "at least we hope so."

The infirmary declined comment on either the extent of the injury or the treatment required.

Coach Erik Kjeldsen said, "Dick undoubtedly would have qualified for the finals in the event. His lowest score of the year was better than the lowest qualifying score for the E.I.G.L. final." The cut-off point for finalist was 8.65.

"His loss," Kjeldsen said, "was a tremendous blow to the team at a time when his presence would have helped very much."

Fans Get Title, Seek Pants

Knoxville, Tenn. (AP) — University of Tennessee students, celebrating their first Southeastern Conference basketball title in 25 years, darkened the campus and attempted to raid five women's dormitories Monday night.

The students shut off power at the university's power plant, darkening a mile-square area. At least seven persons were taken into custody before the disturbance was quelled two hours later.

Swimmers Seek N. E. Laurels

UM's varsity swimming team will send an eight-man contingent to Southern Connecticut College this weekend for the New England Intercollegiate Swimming League meets.

Named by Coach Joe Rogers to represent UMass are seniors Ted Severn, Steve Levy, and Captain Dick Lennon; junior Ken Nowak; and sophomores Bob Asquith, Flip Morton, Dave Larson, and Tony Cassis.

Life on the Ski Slopes Pushes Garstang Ahead

by TOM FITZGERALD

"Ever get hurt?"

"Well I've never broken anything. I've been pretty lucky," said Collin Garstang, who's been a little more than lucky on the ski slopes as UMass' foremost skier for the past three years.

Last year the tall, fair-haired junior was fourth best in the New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference. This year he was third.

Garstang's success on the slopes as a collegian comes as a big-surprise to no one. He's been skiing competitively since his freshman year at Pittsfield High School.

He was the captain of his high school team in his senior year and was skimeister of the Berkshire Interscholastic Ski Meet for three years running.

Some say he was the most talented Pittsfield schoolboy ever to snap on a runaway strap.

Such laurels are not vested on the novice. Garstang was learning how to ski even before he could read the trail signs. He took his first lessons, from his parents, at age 4.

UMass ski coach Bill MacConnell, who learned how to ski when he was 40, calls Garstang "the best performer I've had in six years of coaching, and I'm thinking back over some good people."

MacConnell also considers him a strong influence on the several sophomore members of the team, since Garstang is well-versed in the technical aspects of the sport.

The coach adds that although "most skiers are small and compact, Collin is 6' 3 or 6' 4. So he has to work a little harder."

Garstang, who belongs to the Greylock Ski Club, hopes eventually to coach skiing in his home town.

Off the slopes, the marketing major and brother of QTV likes to vary his sports. He favors tennis and water-skiing. His tastes is music vary too, although he is "a rock 'n' roll fan from way back."

Although Garstang has only one more year on the UMass team, Coach MacConnell holds an ace up his sleeve—a freshman who was also captain of the Pittsfield High team in his senior year. He's Collin's brother, Jim.

COLLIN GARSTANG

N. Y. Giants Get Fran Tarkenton Scrambling QB

NEW YORK — (AP) The New York Giants of the National Football League announced yesterday the acquisition of quarterback Fran Tarkenton in a trade with the Minnesota Vikings.

In exchange for the 26-year-old signal-caller, the Giants gave up their first and second round draft choices for 1967, their No. 1 pick for 1968 plus a player to be mutually agreed upon later.

Last month the quarterback told the Minnesota club that he wanted to play out his option for the purpose of aligning with another team. There had been reports of personality clashes with the Vikings' coach, Norman Van Brocklin. Van Brocklin subsequently resigned.

The Giants' current quarterback staff includes Earl Morrall, who is recovering from a broken right wrist; Tom Kennedy, who had been purchased from the Dodgers of the Continental League last season; and rookie Bob Post, who spent the 1966 season with the taxi squad.

COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"
545-2550

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Spring
Is Coming!

VOL. XCV, NO. 53 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1967

'Index' To Be Distributed in September

Editor-in-Chief Alex Dean discusses the proposed Index changes for 1967 with Don Lendry of the American Yearbook Company.

The graduating seniors and transfer students will receive their issue of the Massachusetts Index by mail during August, it was announced by the Index staff. While this change might entail a slight inconvenience to the students, it is the yearbook staff's hope that a more complete issue will compensate for this slight inconvenience.

Under the leadership of Editor-in-Chief, Alex Dean, the editors and staff are striving to compile a yearbook that will be a pictorial summary of the complete school year.

In the past, the yearbook has been a photographic review of the school year only from Registration Day to Winter Carnival. The period from Winter Carnival up to, and including graduation has been reviewed in a 16 page supplement which was mailed to the graduating seniors in the summer. The undergraduates therefore, have been deprived of receiving a yearbook that included the entire school year.

This year, the Massachusetts Index staff, in the hopes of presenting the entire student body with a more complete yearbook, is compiling a yearbook that will be published in July, rather than in May. To the undergraduate this means he will receive his issue of the yearbook on Registration Day of the following September.

Aside from being a yearbook that includes the entire school year, the 1967 Massachusetts Index also intends to improve its quality. The processing and printing of the black and white photography is now being done by the world famous Bernard Hoffman Laboratories in New York City. In the past, printing has largely been done by the Index staff.

Photography Editor Rich Sadowski explained that this new method frees the photography staff from too many time consuming hours in the darkroom and thereby allows them to take more photographs.

In addition to black and white photographs, the 1967 Index, in response to student opinion, has added 75 pages of color photography to its present number.

But UMass students will have to wait until next September to see the inproved Index, and seniors unfortunately will have a yearbook barren of happy signatures.

Student Senate Approves University Health Services Report

Dealing with the many areas of student concern, the Student Senate approved the report of the University Health Services, approved a recommendation for counselor selection, endorsed an amendment to a bill proposed by the State Legislature, and appropriated money to the Education Club and Judo Club at its weekly Wednesday night meeting.

Appearing before the Senate to answer questions concerning the Health Services report, Dr. Robert Gage, Director of the Service, explained the rationai behind the proposed policy for release of information regarding a student's health status.

According to the policy, published on page 6 of today's Collegian, the Infirmary will refuse to grant requests for detailed information when this information is to be used for screening. The policy would specifically apply for teacher certification, graduate school, Peace Corps and employment.

Endorsing another recommendation—by the Women's Affairs Committee—the Senate approved a plan for counselor selection.

Under this proposal, students acquainted with applicants would be allowed and encouraged to evaluate the student. Other persons involved in the selection process include the executive committees of residence halls, faculty and heads of residence, who will submit recommendations to the Area Board.

The Area Board will consist of the Area Dean, a representative from Counseling and Guidance, a faculty member selected by the Faculty Senate and four students appointed by the President of the Student Senate upon recommendation of the Women's Affairs Committee. Amendments to the policy were made by Men's Affairs Committee regarding the selection of male counselors.

In adopting the Women's Affairs policy, the Senate discounted a proposal that interviews be held for all counselors. The proposai was part of a plan presented by Mrs. Sargent, Area Coordinator of Southwest Complex.

In an attempt to provide student opinion on State House legislation, the Senate moved to recommend an amendment to a bill proposed by Rep. James R. Nolen (Ware). The bill, if passed, would prohibit the operation of a hotel or motel by any public authority. The Student Senate's amendment would recommend that all state higher educational institutions be exempt from provisions of the act.

In the area of finance, the Senate authorized budgets for the Education Club ($445) and Judo Club($650) while also approving $210 to cover insurance for Crew Team equipment. Category

(Continued on page 2)

Amherst Dems Scorn Proposal By Rep. Nolen

The Amherst Democratic Town Committee last night voted unanimously to oppose the recent proposal by Representative James Nolen (Dem. -Ware) to prohibit state agencies and public authorities from operating hotels and motels.

The 35-member committee, meeting at the Amherst Town Hall, voted to send a telegram to Nolen, Speaker of the House John Davoren, and Rep. Antony Scibelli, Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, expressing their opposition to Bill No. 3683.

American Friends Service Discusses Conscientious Objectors' Status

by DON EPSTEIN

Students who have questions concerning their draft status will have the opportunity to discuss it with two representatives of the American Friends Service Committee.

The event, sponsored by the United Christian Foundation, is similar in nature to other counseling sessions now taking place at Harvard, Princeton, Brown, Boston University, and many other New England colleges and universities.

The American Friends Service Committee was originally founded to provide services for conscientious objectors during World War I.

The New England office in Cambridge provides draft information for New England students. In a Collegian interview, Jim Howard and Steve Hedger, from the Cambridge office, outlined the steps necessary in becoming a conscientious objector.

The men emphasized that the process is long and complicated, however, with the proper counseling anyone who really wants to become a conscientious objector can do so.

The two men pointed out that becoming a conscientious objector does not mean avoiding service to the nation. Jim Howard said, "Every man has the legal alternative to apply for a 1-0 conscientious objector's status."

In order to fulfill their military obligation, conscientious objectors are required to do two years of alternative service. Conscientious objectors today are working in many various community organizations across the nation.

The men emphasized to the Collegian that the organization is non-political in nature. The organization will not be on campus to enlist supporters. Their sole purpose at UMass will be to advise students as to their rights. "Most local draft boards," Jim Howard said, "don't provide this

(Continued on page 2)

UMass Students Will Study in Tokyo At Sophia University's International Summer Session

Tokyo, Japan in the summer of 1968 will have thirty students from the University of Massachusetts and the other colleges of this area studying there. Under an arrangement of Five Colieges, Inc. and Sophia University's International Summer session, men and women students will study for five weeks. They will explore Tokyo before classes begin, and travel to Kyoto and Nara after classes stop; and return to the United States on August 30, 1967.

The experience the University has lately had with a variety of its programs overseas and with a number of groups visiting on this campus has been useful in the planning. Through the Five Colieges, Inc. (Smith, Mount Holyoke, Hampshire College, Amherst and the University in both of its branches) a cooperating arrangement with the Council on Student Travel and the Japan Society in New York has established.

Students will leave from Oakland, California on July 1, by jet flight. The total fee will not cover transportation from here to Oakland, or from Oakland to the east coast, but substantially all other costs are covered by $1300.

The academic work will offer fourteen courses. Students will elect two. The classes will meet Tuesdays thru Saturdays at 8:30 to, or 11:30. Five of the courses are in Japanese linguistics language or literature. One is a history of the Far East, one is on the governments of the Far East, one a history of Japanese economics, one is a survey of Japanese art, one is on the religion of Japan. There is a course on contemporary India, another on contemporary China, and two dividing contemporary Japan into fields of politics, sociology and economics, and into education and the arts. All courses will be taught in English.

A view of the campus looking west of Sophia University in Tokyo where 30 students from the four-college area will study at the International summer session.

Supplementary to this will be visits to theatres, galleries, print makers studios, gardens, temples, accommodations and factories in the Tokyo area, and a cross country trip to Kyoto to see other historical and cultural attractions. Attention will be paid to schedules so that students will have some opportunity to explore on their own.

Living accommodations and meals will be under the supervision of Sophia University—a famous Catholic mission institution that has had many years of interdenominational and international educational experience. Between four and five hundred students will be enrolled at Sophia University in the whole program; and at least three other American collegiate groups will also be on the campus.

The local planning group includes Prof. John Maki and Prof. H. L. Varley of the University, Prof. Ray A. Moore of Amherst College, Prof. C. W. MacSherry of Smith, and Prof. T. Yamoshita of Mount Holyoke. Prof. Variey and Mrs. Varley will direct the group, and further information may be obtained from any of these people.

Freshmen Establish Council To Coordinate Four Colleges

A major step in four-college co-operation could be in the making. In the past few months, a Four-College Freshman Council has been established representing the classes of 1970 from Smith, Mt. Holyoke, Amherst and UMass. Initiated by Jeff O'Connor, an Amherst student, the council now consists of fourteen members. The University is represented by two of its freshman class officers — Treasurer Steve Weisman and Vice President Glenn Mangurian.

The purpose of the council is to discuss problems which affect the various classes and to help improve communication channels between the four schools. The primary goal that the council is striving for is an improved four-college transportation program. The present system of Volkswagen buses, which are overcrowded and do not run at night nor on weekends, has proved inadequate.

Several plans have been suggested. One of the primary ideas being considered is to have each school levy a minimal tax on their students. This money would go into a fund to finance a forty seat bus, running between the four campuses for the full week. The cost of this transportation system is now being determined.

It is the hope of the council that an effective transportation system can be established between these four colleges by next fall.

With the initiation of the new bus run, it is hoped that greater unity and co-operation between colleges will be established. New academic and social benefits will be made available to each college. Lectures and concerts can then be appreciated by all students in the area. With the establishment of the proposed Hampshire College, this area will become an educational metropolis. Even now the cultural potential that each school offers to their students is great and with the communication block alleviated, new opportunities will be open for all students.

To make this new council known, a four college dance is being planned for April 8 at UMass. The event will be sponsored by the UMass class of '70. Tickets will also be sold at the other three campuses.

Since the council is composed of freshmen, there is great potential for continued growth and improved four college co-operation. The formation of this freshman council is a beginning, but the council needs the support of the four student bodies if it is to continue.

Stockbridge School Holds Annual Progress Banquet

The Stockbridge Agricultural School held its annual banquet in the Student Union Ballroom, Tuesday afternoon. The purpose of the banquet was to discuss the progress which the school has made during the past semester.

After a steak dinner the presiding officer, Jerry Jolly, introduced Dean Tunis, who delivered the main address of the afternoon.

Dean Tunis read some comical letters which he has received in his capacity as Dean of Admissions. Following the address by Dean Tunis, Dean Jeffrey, director of the Stockbridge School, announced the names of those students who made Dean's and Lear's List. To qualify for Lear, a senior must have a 3.4 or better cum for three semesters; for Dean's List he must have a 3.0 to 3.3 cum. Lear Prospects must earn a 3.4 or better for one semester.

Peter Houle, of the class of 1967, named Prof. Norman G. Cournoyer outstanding professor in the Stockbridge School. Jerry Jolly was named outstanding STOSO (Stockbridge Service Organization).

Among the scholarships presented were the STOSO Scholarship, the Stop and Shop Scholarship and the New York Farmer's Scholarship.

Lt. Col. John Marchant was honored with the yearbook dedication. Lt. Col. John Marchant, a Stockbridge graduate, is the Director of Campus Security and coach of the rifle team.

New STOSO members received Athletic Awards in basketball, soccer and riflry.

Symphony Band To Open Season

The University of Massachusetts Symphony Band opens its 1967 concert season with a performance Sunday, March 19, at 4:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Directed by Conductor John A. Jenkins and Assistant Conductor Larry V. Weed, the band will present a variety of original works written for band within the last half century.

Included in its program are such contemporary pieces as Vittorio Gianinni's Symphony No. 3, Divertimento for Band by Vincent Persichetti, and Lincolnshire Posy by Percy Aldridge Grainger.

Also on the program are Montmartre March by Haydn Wood, and the 49th Star March by William Gerrard.

fine arts

Faculty Lecture Series Begins

"A poem is the result of an itch; the poem itself is the scratching."

Robert Tucker, presenting his view of poetry at the first meeting of the Faculty Lecture Series, gravely uttered this line. Joining him in poetry recitation was David Clark, another member of the University's English Department.

Professor Clark opened the lecture with his poem Old Chapel, a Poem in Favor of the World. Commenting that his office had been once situated in this beautiful old English Department building, he jokingly suggested that literature and art have taken the place of religion.

As he switched over to several poems on the imagery of "reflections", Professor Clark explained how a train passenger gazing out of his window can see several reflections of the scenery outside because of the mirror effect produced by windows on the opposite side of the car.

Having lived in Ireland, the poet was well acquainted with such native sights as Dolphin's Barn, Dublin. In this poem, he captured the local color: garbage and dead cats scattered along the score and children swimming in the grand canal.

Beginning his recitation with a note on Arts and Sciences, Robert Tucker entreated "Art" to keep his "science" sound.

The main problem of a poet, he suggested, was how to be, true to both oneself and to others, to "me and all the other mes." A poem can provide only implicit, not explicit meaning. It contains no "loudspeakers" announcing everything to everyone.

Among his poems was one on race prejudice entitled Tonight. His reference to the segregation problems was so subtle, that the poet admitted, "Hardly I can get it".

Another poem, Security, struck a thought provoking chord among listeners, with the first lines:

"Filthy, sick, and dying,
The wait, the mill, and wait
Beyond the farther gate
Of our denying."

The first meeting of the Faculty Lecture Series, sponsored by the Student Union Arts and Music Committee, was a quiet success. Next week, W. H. Auden, the widely acclaimed modern poet will express his views on poetry.

Sally Dolgin

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly
David Clark discusses his work.

OBJECTORS . . .

(Continued from page 1)

sort of information."

The representatives from the American Friends Service Committee will be at UMass Tuesday, March 14, and Tuesday, March 21, between 1-5 pm. Appointments can be made by contacting Mrs. Ferguson, in the Chaplain's Office in the Student Union. The telephone number is 545-2789.

STUDENT SENATE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

changes for the Forensic Society Budget were also approved.

A final consideration was a motion to recommend to the administration that some arrangement be made for Stockbridge students to take "Speech Exemption" and "English Advanced Placement" tests offered to regular university students at orientation. This motion also carried.

Because of the lateness of the hour, several pieces of legislation were tabled and will be considered at the next meeting.

COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"
545-2550

AMHERST Cinema
WED. and THURS. only
March 15 and 16
WARNER BROS. PRESENTS
in Technicolor
THE MIKADO
AN ACTUAL PERFORMANCE OF THE D'OYLE CARTE OPERA COMPANY
MATINEE AT 2 P.M. • EVENING AT 8 P.M.
TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT BOX-OFFICE
Mat. $1.50—Eve. $2.00—Children $1.00

FACTORY OUTLET
25 Market Street, Northampton
Sweaters for the Entire Family
Pullovers $6 to $11 values to $18
Ladies Cardigans $4.95 values to $7.95
Ladies Pullovers $3.95 values to $6.95
Cashmeres $11.95-$17.50 values to $30
MON. THRU SAT. — 10 AM.-5 P.M.
THURS. EVENING TIL 9:00 P.M.
Market St. is across from Jack August

ATTENTION FRESHMEN!
Maroon Key Applications
are available in R.S.O. office
Minimum cum 2.0
Must be returned by March 12

MOUNTAIN PARK
RTE. 5, HOLYOKE
SAT. 8 P.M. – IN PERSON
? QUESTION
Mark & Mysterians
"I NEED SOMEONE"
& New England's No. 1 Rocking Band
MONTY
& The SPECIALTIES

COMPLETE SERVICE
SAFE
MOVING
DEPENDABLE
STORAGE
EXPERT
PACKING
Call
GLEASON
MAYFLOWER
Pearl St., Northampton
584-6413—for estimate

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

Washington

President Johnson says he will take part in a Vietnam strategy conference later this month "in the Pacific area somewhere."

* * *

The President's call for restoring some business tax incentives appears to be getting a favorable reaction in Congress.

* * *

The issuance of government-recommended standards for control of a major air pollutant has been stalled by coal industry protests.

* * *

Congress talks of cutting Great Society programs but splurges on staff salaries. Payroll costs have jumped 84 per cent in the House and 53 per cent in the Senate in the past six years.

Vietnam

Official acknowledgment that U.S. war planes are striking North Vietnam from Thailand smoothes the way for stationing B52 bombers on Thailand bases.

* * *

Allied intelligence sources report a change in the Viet Cong's political leadership to smooth the way to direct peace talks with the United States.

International

A report that Joseph Stalin's daughter Svetlana has defected from the Soviet Union and is now in Rome draws no comment from U.S. officials.

National

An airliner and a small plane crash in Ohio. Twenty-six persons die in the state's second major air tragedy of the week.

* * *

A 12-member federal court reviews a decree requiring school systems to accept U.S. guidelines and move toward full integration.

* * *

Adam Clayton Powell has made an about-face on the issue of court interference with congressional rulings and now asks the Supreme Court to reseat him.

Powell's estranged wife says she'll have to go to work because "it's hard making ends meet."

Volpe Proposes Junking Compulsory Insurance

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. John A. Volpe has proposed junking the controversial compulsory state auto insurance law and replacing it with a financial responsibility system.

The bill was filed late Thursday a few minutes before Volpe told a news conference details of the proposal.

The chief features of his proposed changes are these:

—A motor vehicle claims fund paid for by uninsured drivers.

—Increased minimum coverage for injuries or damage in a crash.

—Rates set by free competition, but subject to state approval.

—A Fradulent Claims Bureau to prosecute auto insurance abuses.

—A requirement that insurance companies report all auto crash claims.

"We are convinced that the result will be reductions in the cost to Massachusetts motorists," Volpe said.

The governor said the present system is inadequate because it does not protect citizens from out of state drivers, hit and run motorists and damage done by stolen cars.

The compulsory insurance rates, set yearly by the Massachusetts Insurance Commissioner have been increasingly under fire in recent years.

The governor, in his special message, said it is time for a change because "by their sustained protests, our people have demonstrated persistently their dissatisfaction and lack of confidence in the present system."

The compulsory system was set up in 1927.

10 Acres Sold For JFK Library

BOSTON (AP) — Directors of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority have cleared the way to sell Authority land in Cambridge as the site for the John F. Kennedy Library.

They authorized release of a 10-acre tract as soon as the state appropriates $6 million to pay the Authority for it. The land will then be turned over to the federal government as a gift from the people of Massachusetts in memory of the late president.

U. S. Jets Down Mig, Damage Two More

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force Thunderchief jets shot down a North Vietnamese MIG fighter, probably downed a second and damaged a third during a raid against a Communist steel fabricating mill 38 miles north of Hanoi today, a U.S. spokesman reported.

The F105 Thunderchiefs flying from bases in Thailand were attacking the Thai Nguyen steel plant when they encountered the MIG's.

No U.S. planes were reported damaged.

Official acknowledgement that U. S. war planes are striking North Vietnam from Thailand smoothes the way for stationing B52 bombers on Thai bases.

Admission by officials here and in Bangkok that Thailand has been a springboard for air attacks on North Vietnam comes about two years after these operations started.

But the officials said nothing about air strikes from Thailand against Communist infiltration routes and other Red targets in neighboring Laos.

Up to 75 per cent of U.S. Air Force strikes against North Vietnam are understood to be mounted from Thailand. Communists have threatened countermeasures against the bases, but none has been attacked.

U. S. authorities would have spoken publicly sooner about use of Thai bases for air operations against North Vietnam, but they deferred to Thai objections.

Pentagon officials speculated that the Thais removed their objections because they finally are convinced that the United States intends to stay in Thailand and defend it, if necessary, from any Communist attack.

MISSILE CONTRACT

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The General Electric ordnance department at Pittsfield has received a $25 million contract for work on the Poseidon missile guidance system program.

The announcement was made Thursday by Rep. Silvio O. Conte, (R.-Mass.).

The Poseidon is a so-called "new generation" development of the Polaris fleet ballistic missile The Pittsfield G.E. ordnance department has been working on the guidance system for some time under earlier awards.

Collegian Wire News Staff

EDITOR: Richard S. Kline

STAFF: Jan Curley
Pom Metaxas
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini

Dallas Taxi Driver Gives New Evidence

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A man who used to drive a Dallas taxicab says he once drove Lee Harvey Oswald and David Ferrie to Jack Ruby's Dallas nightclub.

Raymon Cummings, 35, has told this story to New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison's office, it was learned.

A source said the former cabbie decided to contact Garrison's office after he saw a picture of Ferrie in a Dallas newspaper in February. The picture was accompanied by a story that quoted Ferrie as saying he had never been in Dallas.

Cummings drove a cab part-time in Dallas from Jan. 11, 1963 to March 15, 1963.

While a cabbie, the source said, Cummings once picked up three men and drove them to Ruby's Carousel Club.

The three passengers were Ferrie, Oswald and an unidentified man, the source quoted Cummings as saying.

Cummings, according to the source, recognized Oswald as having been a man he had driven a few weeks earlier from the bus station to suburban Irving. Both he and Oswald were ex-Marines, Cummings said, and they had talked about the service.

Britain's Labor Govt. Jolted in Elections

LONDON (AP) — A slump in electoral support for the Labor party and a surge of Celtic nationalism jolted Prime Minister Harold Wilson's embattled British government today after three special elections.

For the first time in years bookmakers made the Conservatives favorites to win the next national election. Ladbroke's, the leading London bookie, offered 5 to 4 on a Conservative victory and even money on Labor.

The ruling Laborites lost one parliamentary seat to the Conservatives and barely held on to two others Thursday in special elections to fill vacancies in the House of Commons.

Scottish and Welsh nationalists, resentful at the treatment their sections have had from the government, cut deep in Labor's support in Glasgow's Pollok District—where the Laborites lost—and in the Rhondda Valley of Wales, a Socialist stronghold for most of this century.

The election setback had no effect on the government's Commons majority of more than 90 votes. But the British Press Association pointed out that the swing against Labor in Pollok and Nuneaton, if repeated nationally in a general election, would give the Conservatives a majority of about 100 seats in Commons.

Leadership Shakeup In V. C. Hierarchy

SAIGON (AP) — A change of leadership in the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front to smooth the way for direct peace talks with the United States was reported today by allied intelligence sources.

Huynh Tan Phat, deputy chairman of the Viet Cong's political arm, has replaced Nguyen Huu Tho as chairman, these sources said.

Reports of a change in the front's high command have circulated in Saigon government circles for more than a month, the sources said. Interrogation of Viet Cong prisoners and defectors and captured Communist documents appear to confirm the reports.

Replacement of Tho by Phat reportedly was "for the purpose of treating directly with the United States" in peace negotiations. The sources said the Liberation Front plans no place at the table for Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's Saigon government. That alone would appear to be an insurmountable obstacle to negotiations between the Viet Cong and the United States.

American intelligence sources offered two possible reasons for the switch.

They said Phat might appear more acceptable to the Americans at the bargaining table. Tho is a widely known Communist figure in South Vietnam with strong ties to Hanoi. Phat is known mostly to party intellectuals and is relatively unknown outside Communist circles.

Another possible reason, the sources said, is that Hanoi wants Phat to negotiate so he can be discarded as a scapegoat if talks break down. Tho would retain real power.

Airline Crash Kills 26

URBANA, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's second airline crash in five days —the latest possibly caused by a collision with a private plane — carried 26 persons to their death Thursday.

The DC9 Trans World Airlines jet disintegrated in flames as it approached Dayton's Municipal Airport for a landing. The private plane, a twin engine Beechcraft, fell from the sky at the same time like a wounded bird.

The crash was 45 miles south of where a Lake Central Airlines turbojet went down in a snow-sleet storm Sunday night with 38 aboard. All were killed.

Johnson Acts to Restore 7 Per Cent Tax Credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are highlights of President Johnson's news conference Thursday:

Vietnam planning—He'll meet with Ambassador Lodge and Gen. Westmoreland this month at an unannounced Pacific site.

Vietnam critics—"Individuals have different approaches to this matter Vietnam. Some of them do need more information sometimes."

Vietnam peace prospects — "We are willing to talk unconditionally, or we are willing to talk conditionally. All we ask is equity and fairness, and that the other side do likewise. I no longer see any possibility of a military victory on the part of North Vietnam."

Taxes—He's asking Congress to restore the 7 per cent business investment tax credit, but still wants an income tax surcharge.

The 1968 presidential election —"I think down the doad—several months from now—would be the appropriate time for an announcement of my future plans."

The draft—"There has been discrimination against minority groups. I will do all I can to see that this is corrected."

Federal Court Reviews Ruling

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) —A 12-member federal court reviews today a decree requiring school systems to accept federal integration guidelines and move to achieve full integration.

All the active members of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals were set to hear arguments on a 2 to 1 decision by an appellate panel upholding the guidelines of the Office of Education.

At issue in the rare full-bench rehearing was the Dec. 29 ruling of a three-judge panel that held the Office of Education's guidelines "are substantially the same as the court's standards. They are required by the Constitution and, as we construe them, are within the scope of the Civil Rights Act of 1964."

Prison Rioters Get Lengthened Terms

DEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — Four state prison convicts who took part in a riot at the state prison in Walpole last August were back in their cells today, with lengthened sentences.

Judge Edward J. DeSaulnier imposed 1 - 2 year additional terms on Bradley Ames, 25, of Chicopee; Robert P. Shea, 25, of South Boston, and John F. Giblin, 32, of Providence, R.I., when they pleaded guilty Thursday.

Michael H. Wallace, 21, of South Boston, was given 3 - 5 years in additional time after the court was told he was one of the instigators of the prison disturbance.

Editorial Section

Not by Dress Alone

There rests a bill in the Massachusetts House of Representatives which will be brought to the floor in the very near future.

This bill concerns all of us.

Introduced by Mr. Charles Iannello of Boston, the bill (H 3907) authorizes and directs University and other state college trustees "to establish rules and regulations, with penalties, relating to the standards of dress and hair style of students of both sexes attending their respective institutions, such standards to be consistent with good taste, proper decorum, and neat appearance."

The University of Massachusetts has not gained its high reputation throughout the country by dress alone. It has hired well-qualified instructors, in most instances, and has become increasingly selective in whom it admits as students.

It would be a strong blow to the judgment of University trustees and officials to pass such a bill. By doing so the House would admit a mistrust of University officials and would limit, unnecessarily, the freedom and creativity of a student body that, for the most part, has proven superior, so far uncontained by dress codes.

Bill H 3907 should be defeated in its entirety by the House of Representatives.

—THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

What Price Education?

Associated Collegiate Press

Why are textbooks so expensive, asks Western Michigan University's Western Herald? Is it the fault of the university-owned "non-profit" bookstore whose prices are as high as those of the profit-making bookstores? Is the publishing industry to blame?

Both contribute to the situation, the Western Herald concluded, but the greater culprit, without a doubt, is the publishing industry. Time magazine recently revealed that the book industry relies on textbooks and children's books to support gambling losses on dault grade books. All the major publishes, Time said, "print text and reference books, as well as children's books, which are dependable money-makers. Their profitable textbook and paperback operations enable them to gamble on adult trade books—which as a rule lose money." One publisher estimated that "60% of adult trade books end up in the red, another 36% break even, and only 4% turn a decent profit."

Should students be forced to bear the brunt of the industry's losses and non-profits? Publishers are fully aware that they have the students over a barrel since students must buy particular required textbooks.

There are two possible solutions to the dilemma. On a local level, student government could promote some type of competitive selling of new texts. We can buy everything from groceries to automobiles on a discounted basis; this opportunity should also be provided for students in the purchase of required books.

On a wider level, the National Student Association could make the public and the publishing industry aware of the abuse students face in textbook prices. If housewives can demand fairer prices for food, a nationally supported student effort to acquire more realistic prices is also feasible. It is no doubt true that profits from texts help to support great publications that otherwise never would be printed, but a 96 per cent support is entirely unrealistic.

Music to Watch Girls By?

by NANCY BOURGOIN, Editorial Day Editor

Government employees are standardly known for goldbricking, but this is ridiculous! The gawking groups of workers, leaning on shovels, "checking out" the bypassing coeds have no place on a campus where wet shoes and cold discomforts are prevalent.

Being a suburban campus, students at UMass are forced to walk considerable distances to classes. An effective system of snow removal is a must if the rush to class is to be unhampered by slushy walks and slippery paths.

Granted, immediate snow clearance cannot be expected on a campus of this size. However, it is evident that the maintenance crew leaves something to be desired in the motivation department.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
A.P. Wire Editor ..... Richard Kilne '70
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Slivin '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Friday's Day Editors: Margie Flanders '69, Sports—Phil Goepp '69, Editorial—Nancy Bourgoin '69

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Sam Spark Speaks Out

The Bic Pen Conspiracy

Ever wonder how the Bic Pen Company makes money by charging only 19 cents for a pen? And have you ever considered why you habitually lose your newly bought Bic Pen within three days after purchase?

The answers to these two questions are related. The Bic Pen Company has instituted a policy which undoubtedly will revolutionize the free enterprise system.

While most companies spend millions on advertising, the Bic people have kept advertising to a minimum by hiring a chain of international pen thieves. The going rate for one of these thieves is $1,000 a week. But a good thief can quadruple that investment easily. His job is to follow a new pen purchaser until he turns his back. The pen thief then stealthily lifts the pen from the customer's pockets and returns it back to the store for immediate resale.

According to Bic's secret files only 14% of their pens ever travel further than a 50 foot radius from the origin of purchase. One student once bought the same pen 17 times in one day.

Similar incidents occur daily on campus. One of the toughest secret agent jobs offered by the Bic Company is that of Desk Thief. He swings into action only in the rare instances when a purchaser gets by every other spy and manages to return to his room with pen in hand. It is the desk thief's job to sneak into the student's room, without the student's knowing it, wait until he leaves, and then steal the pen and return it to the store.

Another specialist hired by Bic is a Cap Stealer. The cap stealer is utilized only when the desk thief fails. This technique is extremely effective, since without a cap, you can't put the pen in your shirt and expect it to stay there. Once your pen is capless, it's only a matter of hours before your pen slips out of your pocket and is lost forever, thus capping the inevitable victory for Bic, the paradigm of capitalism.

Campus Comment

The Grubby Youth and the Green Beret

To the Editor:

A funny thing happened to me on the way to the Hatch today. Only I'm not laughing all that much.

I don't know if anyone else noticed the "Weekly Vigil for Peace in Viet Nam" in front of the Student Union today. If you're not a follower of these things you just ignore them. They've become almost a tritehood, along with the phrase "I believe in fighting for my country."

Having my own special reasons for opposing the "Get out of Viet Nam" policy, I started to walk quietly by. A somewhat grubby youth was handing out literature on the front steps, and I smiled and shook my head at the offered leaflet.

"Just take one," he insisted. Again, I declined. His voice rose, attracting the attention of passerbys. "Why are you afraid—why are you afraid to read this?"

"My brother is a Green Beret over there," I replied. "I'm not afraid." Rather than having the effect of squelching him, as I'd hoped, this seemed to spur him on to even greater eloquence.

"Would you like to see his number on here?" he asked belligerently, holding up his anti-war leaflet.

I looked around at the bystanders, most of whom were either sniggering or staring curiously. Suddenly I realized that I was putting on a show—for the benefit of the demonstrators. I was gaining them some attention! I turned on my heel and walked away. The young man yelled at my retreating back "Why don't you tell him to come home?"

Why indeed? Why, instead will I write him another letter tonight telling him what a fine job he's doing and how proud we are of him and that we're behind him all the way? Perhaps its because of the letters I've received from my brother and other fighting men in Southeast Asia. They have some sort of "square" and outdated principle they believe in and fight and die for—not only for themselves but for the very youths who are standing outside the student union today. These men are patriots. Does the word have an unfamiliar ring to it? It means to love your country and all it stands for — for better or worse.

The only thing that has the power to shake these men in the thought that they are fighting for kids who could care less about their country's future. As my brother wrote in one of his letters, "You don't know how much it means to us to know that you and kids your age are supporting us. On the roughest days, it makes it well worth it." I couldn't hate the war half as much for taking my brother as I could hate the youth of this country for making him lose heart.

In the final analysis, we are all soldiers in this war. Whether we are good or bad soldiers may well determine the outcome of the fight for our country's beliefs. The men fighting in Vietnam are counting on us. They have a great faith in us. I'm glad they weren't here today.

Sonnie Falandes
301 Dwight

"Life is my college; may I graduate with honors."

Hebrew Here

To the Editors:

One cannot help but be astounded by Allen Prenner's statistics concerning interest in the Hebrew language on this campus.

To recapitulate, here are Mr. Prenner's amazing questionnaire results: Out of 810 students, the majority of whom are not Jewish, 750 would have taken Hebrew as either an elective or a requirement filler if it were offered. If this figure is even reasonably accurate, Mr. Prenner's point is well taken, and there should be action taken to institute Hebrew as a course of study at UMass.

Since one has no basis on which to argue the validity of the above study, the only other reaction of the interested, but skeptical, reader is to consider the reasons for a college student, Jewish or not, to study Hebrew.

What some of the assenters may not have realized is that Yiddish, not Hebrew, is the true Jewish vernacular. The two languages are extremely dissimilar. Different alphabets are employed, and, as Professor Higgins of the speech department puts it, "The Hebrews learn it backwards, which is absolutely frightening."

Hebrew is rarely spoken as conversational speech outside of Israel. It is used chiefly in prayer, although relatively few really know what they are saying to God until they have checked the English translation. Perhaps this is a good reason for Jewish students to study Hebrew, but what were the reasons of the 400 non-Jewish sampling elements?

Whatever their motives, the fact that some 85% of the non-Jews possessed this alleged fascination for the Hebrew tongue could have important implications. Hillel may soon have its much wanted house. Rapp's could run out of bagels. Miss Goodman will be forced to hold her mixers in the SU ballroom.

Are these heretics for real? Is there a Christian Zionist organization on campus with which I am unacquainted? Will Rabbi Reiner have his hands full with potential converts?

It is hard to imagine why a Frenchman would be interested in studying Hebrew in college, but, then again, I somehow enjoyed the teachings of Dr. Johnson and André Gide in French 108.

Michael Gould '67

NOTICES

GOVERNMENT LECTURE
On March 10, at 4 P.M. in Colonial Lounge, S.U. Alexander Bickell, Chancellor Kent Professor of Law at Yale University, will speak on "The Supreme Court, Bar of Politics". Coffee will be served. All invited.

SOUTHWEST COLLEGE COUNCIL
All students interested in living in the proposed "Quiet Dorms" sign up with Mrs. Schuarr in the Southwest Office, ground floor of Coolidge Tower. Applicants must agree to 24 hour quiet house, study lounges used for reading and studying only, and instruments and stereos not to be played in individual rooms. Applications must be received by Friday, March 10.

ALL CHRISTIAN WORSHIP
On March 12, at 11:00 A.M. in Mahar Aud., a worship service sponsored by the Univ. Worship Committee and U.C.F. will be held. Theme for March 12, "Does Christianity have a future"

REVELERS
Applications are now available. They are due Monday, March 20.

SKI CLUB
Club members who wish to ski in the Giant Slalom race to be held Saturday, March 18, must sign up on the Ski Club board opposite the ride board in the S.U. Nine trophies will be given out. Reduced rates for the day.

SOPHOMORE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL
On March 12, at 6:00 P.M. there will be a meeting in the Hamlin House lounge for members and all interested.

NEWMAN CLUB
Station of the Cross will be held Friday evening, at 7:00 in Newman Chapel. Father Cahill will conduct "Questions on Campus Theology" Monday at 7:00 P.M. in Classroom 2.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST
On Friday, March 15, at 7:00 P.M. should meet in S.U. Middlesex Room or lobby of T-6 for transportation to home in Amherst for 7:17 hour.

STUDENTS FOR POLITICAL ACTION
On March 12, at 2:00 P.M. in Berkshire Room, S.U. there will be an executive committee meeting. Discussions of SPA-SDS programs and implementation. Everyone is welcome.
On Wed., March 15, from 11:30-1:00 P.M. a vigil for peace in Vietnam will be held weekly in Student Union driveway. Literature table is in union at lobby all day from 9-4 P.M.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA
On Sunday, March 12, in Farley lodge there will be a supper meeting. Home-cooked chicken dinner, for 50c. Pre-register before Friday evening, March 10.

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
On Friday, March 10, at 7:15 in Plymouth Room, S.U. Mr. Paul Troper, Eastern U.S. representative of "Operation Mobilization" will speak concerning this summer's program of distributing Christian literature in Europe. All welcome.

HILLEL
On Friday, March 10, at 7:00 P.M. in Worcester Room, S.U. Professor Sidney Wexler of the Spanish Dept. will speak at Friday eevning services on "The Changing Status of Jews in Spain Today."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE
On Thurs., March 16 at 7:45 P.M. in Colonial Lounge, S.U. Mr. Martin N. Hesler will lecture on "Why Not Think for Yourself ?". All welcome.

WOMEN'S JUDICIARY
Nomination papers for Women's Judiciary will be available in the R.S.O. office starting March 13. They must be returned by March 17. There is one opening for class of '69, and one for the class of '70.

LOST:
Man's UMass class ring 1960—Red stone, Initials JLS-BS-ME. If found, please notify Jim Scott, 407 Thatcher. Reward.
Brown leather wallet by Etiene Aigner. Senitmental value, reward. Please contact Diana Alvarez, at 315 Lincoln Aves., or call AL 6-6868.
Ingition key, lost in T-4 lobby. Call 6-8453.

FOUND:
Class Ring '68, found in Parking Lot f, at Southwest. Call Gary Spurr, 546-8889.
Man's watch, found on Jan. 18 in Engineering 120 at end of Math 186 final. See Mr. Allen, Arnold 215.

PINNINGS:
Susan Snell, class of '69, Dickinson, to David Waltzman, class of '68, SAM.
Cam Lentini, class of '69, Melville, to Bob Pirog, class of '68, Butterfield.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Conry Phillips, class of '68, Johnson, to Joseph Stahl, Grad., Worcester Poly Tech.
Kathy Pelow, class of '68, Leach, to Joe Dupuis, class of '69, Thatcher.
Betty Jean Mestel, class of '70, Dickinson, to David Bell, class of '67, Baker.

Applications accepted for Fellowships in the School of Education's Applied Educational Research Training Program from qualified graduate students who are now, or will be fully accepted in UMass Doctoral degree programs by September 1967. Non-Education majors as well as Education majors are encouraged to apply. Inquiries should be directed to:

The Program Director
Applied Educational Research
Training Program
School of Education
University of Massachusetts

SPA Continues Activity

May Not Be Approved by RSO

by PAMELA METAXAS
Staff Reporter

Approximately 50 students participated in the second weekly Peace Vigil Wednesday from 11:30 to 1:00 p.m.

This week the members of Students For Political Action set up a table in the Union with a variety of pamphlets and magazines with some for sale. They were titled, Liberation, Peace in Vietnam, Mobilizer, In the Teeth of War (a special Ramparts report, etc.).

Presently operating under an executive order until April 30, SPA may not be approved by the Student Senate unless the RSO ruling on graduate students is changed. RSO regulations do not allow that graduate students be officers in University organizations. SPA have two graduate students that were recently elected which is against the R.S.O. ruling.

According to Victor Aranow, "It's hard to say" whether SPA will be approved. "We feel that the Student Activities Committee is attempting to dictate the membership of organizations and we will try to get a motion on the floor (of the Student Senate) to change the ruling," he said.

One of the pamphlets SPA was handing out Wednesday included the G.I. death toll in Vietnam, with excerpts from a speech by Senator Robert Kennedy before the U.S. Senate. The Senator said, "The first task for the negotiators will be to dismantle the war. They will have to establish procedures for a cease-fire, for the laying down of arms . . ."

Aranow explained that while Kennedy denounces the war, he also votes more funds for it. "Kennedy seems to be an alternative to Johnson." He feels Kennedy is guilty of duplicity by voting for a $4.5 billion budget for Vietnam the day before he made the above speech.

The SPA member concluded by saying that "SPA is the only progressive organization on campus."

For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write: Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division.
The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States
Home Office: 1285 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019
An Equal Opportunity Employer, M/F © Equitable 1967

HIGHWAY GRILL
40 Belchertown Rd.
Amherst
OPEN 11:00 A.M. TO 11:30 P.M.
COCKTAILS ARE SERVED.

SKI MORE!
PAY LESS DRIVE LESS

- Group Rates Weekends
- Low Lift Rates Weekdays
- New Beginners To Advance Novice Area
- Intermediate To Expert Area
- Each Serviced by Chairs, T-Bars and J-Bar
- 24 Trails and Slopes
- Natur Teknik Ski School
- Snow Making

Latest Ski Reports 413-339-4986
Room Reservations 413-339-6610
Where the Action Is!
Thunder Mountain
Charlemont, Mass.
Route 2, Mohawk Trail

presents
Bayard Rustin
and
Floyd McKissick
of C.O.R.E.
BLACK POWER
in the
GHETTO
– A Symposium – March 14 - 15 - 16

Health Service Policy

To All Students:

In view of the increased concern over the manner in which confidential information concerning students is gathered and transmitted, the University Health Services has reviewed its practices and now feels that a modification in policy is in order.

We have always been deeply concerned for the manner in which confidential health information is guarded. In response to requests from instructors we have given information concerning the dates and times at which students visited the Outpatient Department or entered and were discharged from the Infirmary. Members of the professional staff have, upon request from instructors, offered judgment concerning whether or not a particular visit was urgent or necessary at that particular time and, therefore, whether or not a class absence was justified.

Under neither of these circumstances, however, has any information been given concerning the nature of the health problem or the content of the consultation with our staff. Beyond these limited communications with persons on campus it has been our firm policy not to transmit information to third parties without the direct knowledge and consent of the student involved.

In the past we have, upon request from graduate schools, prospective employers, Peace Corps, etc. and with knowledge and written consent of the student, provided limited health information relevant to applications. This has been done with the intention of assisting students in satisfying their requirements for application and to save them the expense and time of additional health evaluations. It is in this area that we consider a modification of policy is necessary.

In order to protect the confidential nature of the contact of students with the Health Services, we feel obliged to adopt a policy of uniformly refusing to grant requests for detailed information when this information is to be used for screening, be it for teacher certification, graduate school, Peace Corps, employment, or other purpose.

Unfortunately, this policy may work to the disadvantage, temporarily, of many students who have made only routine visits to the Health Services for problems which have no relevance to qualifications for the position in question and no implications for their future health. On the other hand, in the course of our caring for some students, we have gained information which, if transmitted in detail to some other authority, might be misunderstood, misinterpreted, or otherwise misused to the disadvantage of the student in question.

Obviously we should like to continue helping these students who have had no significant problems brought to our attention. We cannot, however, give information freely for some and withhold it for others without, by implication, passing unfavorable judgment on the latter. Furthermore, it is not an adequate safeguard to rely on the student's consent as a clear indication for providing information for screening, since this "consent" is often extracted under the duress of being a condition for application, and hence is far from voluntary.

Therefore, in spite of our desire to continue providing help to the vast majority of students whose welfare is not comprised by our previous policy, we feel obliged to make this change effective at once: requests for detailed health information from whatever source will be denied whenever it is apparent that the information is to be used for screening for another position. Only a general statement of health will be submitted in answer to such requests.

We shall continue, however, to complete health information forms for graduate schools, etc. whenever it can be indicated that the student has been accepted and that the health information being transmitted to appropriate medical personnel will be used only as a basis for providing health care for the future.

We recognize the need for making some exceptions to this policy, especially during the remainder of this year while we work for more general understanding and acceptance of it. Specifically, we shall address ourselves to answering on any individual basis any complaint that an application will not be considered until the requested information has been filed.

Our concern is to help students, not to stand in their way because of our self-appointed messianic role in their interest.

University Health Services
Robert W. Gage, M.D.
Director

UMASS INTRODUCES A FIRST

'Traying'--Thrilling New Sport

by ELAINE KAGAN
Staff Reporter

First there was skate-boarding. Recently Northeastern's turtle racing made news. Now UMass is proud to announce another first—a "traying" team.

A 13-man team "who thinks U-Mass should be known for traying" are very enthusiastic about this new thrilling sport.

The team was organized spontaneously by Bob Scarfo, co-captain, and Bob Silva, captain, one night about 2 a.m. during last semester's finals. "Traying" is not much of a financial investment. All that is needed is supplied on campus—hills and trays (courtesy of Butterfield Cafeteria). According to co-captain Scarfo, "traying" is more of a challenge than skiing, because the trays cannot be stopped making it dangerous. "You can get killed."

The UMass Traying team meet at the height of their season, just before Winter Carni.

Danger does not discourage our "trayers" who have tightened their organization. Now with elected officers and a female mascot, Shelly Hill, the team is ready to meet any challenges. It has already accepted a challenge from the Van Meter girls.

Looking for new pastures, the team "free bused it" to Haystack, Vermont on the Winter Carni ski trip. Haystack, which does not have "traying areas, did have a small, unused hill which the team used. Normally traying is restricted to Baker and Van Meter hills.

The team has innovated the cafeteria trays by painting and sheilacking them. Also, each tray has "UMass Traying Team" printing on them along with the tray—owner's name and number. The final touch is a stenciled snow flake in the center of the tray.

The team which claims they are "really not nuts—just ordinary college guys out to have a good time" sees a great future for "traying" at UMass. Next year they plan to challenge other schools. Maybe within our own generation we will see "traying" become a national pasttime—(sigh) and it all started in Umieland.

CORRECTION
William James Mixer will be held March 17, 1967 not March 10 as was advertised.

There are no jobs at Union Carbide ...only careers!

- The limits of a job are set by a man's superior.
- The limits of a career are set by a man's ability.
- At Union Carbide, people seeking a career today determine the jobs to be done tomorrow. Right now, we are looking for people with restless minds in the areas listed below. If you're qualified, a call can be the beginning of a career.

Engineering (Chemical, Mechanical, Industrial and Electrical) Chemistry
Physics
Math
Liberal Arts
Business Administration

Robert L. Mihuta will be on Campus on March 14th.

Union Carbide Consumer Products Division,
20575 Center Ridge Road
Rocky River, Ohio 44116

An Equal Opportunity Employer

UNION CARBIDE

First Choice Of The Engageables

REGISTERED
Keepsake·
DIAMOND RINGS

They like the smart styling and the guaranteed perfect center diamond . . . a brilliant gem of fine color and modern cut. The name, Keepsake, in your ring assures lifetime satisfaction. Select yours at your Keepsake Jeweler's store. He's in the yellow pages under "Jewelers."

PRICES FROM $100. TO $5000. RINGS ENLARGED TO SHOW BEAUTY OF DETAIL. ● TRADE-MARK REG. A. H. POND COMPANY, INC., ESTABLISHED 1892.

HOW TO PLAN YOUR ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING

Please send new 20-page booklet, "How To Plan Your Engagement and Wedding" and new 12-page full color folder, both for only 25c. Also, send special offer of beautiful 44-page Bride's Book.

Name_____
Address_____
City_____
State_____ Zip_____

KEEPSAKE DIAMOND RINGS, BOX 90, SYRACUSE, N. Y. 13202

Faculty Senate Considers Ten Recommended Courses

Ten new courses for UMass and a PhD in physics for Lowell Technological Institute are before the Faculty Senate for approval.

They were recommended by the Academic Matters Committee in February and will be considered as approved by the Senate if they lie on the table until March.

The following are the courses:

Proposal from Lowell Technological Institute for a Ph.D. in Physics

Astronomy 122 (ASTFC 22) — Introduction to Astronomy and Astrophysics

Chemistry 706 — Applied Analytical Chemistry

Chemistry 793, 794 — X-Ray Crystallography I & II

Education 954 — Public School Finance

Education 959 — School Business Administration

Education 965 — Theory and Research in Educational Leadership

Forestry 222, 522 — Conservation of Natural Resources

Geology 747 — Paleogeographic Analysis

Russian 387 — Translation

Sociology 287 — Sociology of Mental Disorders

— GIRLS —

An informal coffee hour will be held for all undergraduate girls who are interested in being a hostess for the Sophomore Class

PLAYBOY BANQUET

on April 5 — Come to the Colonial Lounge

SAT., MARCH 11, at 10 and 12 A.M.

ITS HERE! EARRINGS FROM

XANADU EAR

Saturdays at Xanadu No. 2 the Alley Amherst

Ecumenical Worship Service
On Campus
Contemporary Worship

Sunday, March 12
and every Sunday

This Sunday's Theme:
DOES CHRISTIANTY HAVE A FUTURE?

11:00 a.m. Mahar Aud.

Sponsored by University Christian Worship

THE ROCKIN' RAMRODS

Friday Evening
March 10th

S.U. Ballroom
8 - 12 P.M.
$.75 Admission

AREA II JUDICIARY SELECTIONS will be conducted
Sun., Mar. 12, 1:00 p.m.
in the STUDENT UNION

POSITIONS OPEN: Class of 1968: one; Class of 1969: three; Class of 1970: one; Stockbridge: one.
STUDENTS ELIGIBLE: Residents of Thatcher, Brett, Mills, Wheeler, Gorman, Hills N. and S.
Applications are available from housemothers and from R.S.O. They must be submitted at the selections.

Selections to Be Conducted For Area II Judiciaries

Selections for Area II Judiciaries will be conducted on Sunday, March 12 at 1:00 p.m. by the Student Senate Men's Affairs Committee. Six vacancies are distributed among the classes: one '68, three '69, one '70 and one Stockbridge.

Eligible to compete for the positions are the residents of Brett, Gorman, Hills North and South, Mills, Thatcher, and Wheeler House. Applications, which must be submitted at the selections, are available from Heads of Residences and the R.S.O. office, Student Union.

At the present time, Area II Judiciary has only two members, both juniors. Normally there are eight positions and a quorum of four. Since the vacancies now existing make a quorum impossible, Area II Judiciary has not been hearing cases.

The two members meet, without voting privileges, with Area I Judiciary.

Area I Judiciary has a bare quorum of four members with an equal number of vacancies. Additional selections for it, for which residents of Baker, Butterfield, Chadbourne, Greenough, Grayson, and Webster would be eligible, have not been announced as of this time.

The Area Judiciary system has been in use since 1962. Up until the fall of 1965, according to Bob LaTremouille of the Men's Affairs Committee, full membership was maintained. "Since then it hasn't been quite so strong," he understated.

From the time men's residences were integrated and Stockbridge students have been eligible for a position, there have not been any Stockbridge applicants, LaTremouille said.

The Area Judiciaries are brother organizations to Men's Judiciary, equal in most respects. Both judiciaries hear the same type of cases and have the same range of possible sanctions.

Each Area Judiciary is assigned jurisdiction over offenses occurring in the area about the various dorms. Serious offenses taking place in other areas are heard directly by Men's Judiciary.

The Area Judiciaries act as appellate boards for House Judiciaries within their jurisdiction while appeals of their decisions are heard by Men's Judiciary.

The responsibility of these judiciaries is dual: first, they must determine guilt or innocence of the defendant, then if the defendant is found guilty, they must recommend a punishment.

WMUA Top 30

this week	title	artist
1.	STRAWBERRY FIELDS/PENNY LANE	Beatles
2.	I THINK WE'RE ALONE NOW	Tommy James & Shondells
3.	CALIFORNIA NIGHTS	Lesley Gore
4.	DEDICATED TO THE ONE I LOVE	Mamas and Papas
5.	KIND OF A HUSH/NO MILK TODAY	Herman's Hermits
• 6.	HAPPY TOGETHER	Turtles
•• 7.	DARLIN' BE HOME SOON	Lovin' Spoonful
8.	HUNG UP IN YOUR EYES	Brian Hyland
• 9.	BABY I NEED YOUR LOVIN'	Johnny Rivers
10.	WESTERN UNION	5 Americans
11.	SIT DOWN I THINK I LOVE YOU	Mojo Men
12.	59TH STREET BRIDGE SONG (Feelin' Groovy)	Harper's Bizarre
13.	LET'S SPEND THE NIGHT TOGETHER/RUBY TUESDAY	Rolling Stones
•14.	THIS IS MY SONG	Petula Clark
15.	LONELY TOO LONG	Young Rascals
16.	FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH	Buffalo Springfield
••17.	UPS AND DOWNS	Paul Revere & Raiders
18.	SOCK IT TO ME—BABY	Mitch Ryder & Detroit Wheels
19.	THE PEOPLE IN ME	Music Machine
•20.	YELLOW BALLOON	Jan & Dean/Yellow Balloon
•21.	JIMMY MACK	Martha & Vandellas
••22.	TRAVELIN' MAN	Stevie Wonder
23.	LAWDY MISS CLAUDY	Buckinghams
24.	MY CUP RUNNETH OVER	Ed Ames
2'.	BERNADETTE	Four Tops
•26.	I'LL GIVE YOU TIME	Outsiders
27.	MAIRZY DOATS	Innocence
28.	LET'S FALL IN LOVE	Peaches & Herb
29.	LOVE IS HERE & NOW YOU'RE GONE/NO STOPPING US	Supremes
30.	TOMMY JONES	Johnny Tillotson

former sure shot (with anticipated top 10 rating); •pick hit (heard first on WMUA)

Afternoon AGOGO on WMUA: Weekdays 2:30-5:00 . . . Discotheque on WMUA: 5:00-6:00 weekdays

CRAZY RHYTHMS Fri. 8:30-1:00

Applications for

REVELERS

available now in RSO

due Mon., March 20, 1967

AMHERST Cinema

Exclusive Showing at 8:00 p.m. Daily

SAT.-SUN. 2-5-8:15

Direct from its Cinema I showing at Greatly Reduced Rates

PARAMOUNT PICTURES SEVEN ARTS RAY STARK presents IS PARIS BURNING?

Charles Boyer · Leslie Caron
Kirk Douglas · Glenn Ford
Simone Signoret

MAR. 15-16—THE MIKADO
MAR 17—LOVES OF BLONDE

MASS. CLASSIFIED

WANTED

WANTED TO MEET—Intelligent attractive, athletic girl, at least 21 with adventurous spirit. Able to converse on wide range of subjects and interested in, or willing to learn about Mountaineering and rockclimbing. May lend to a summer trip to Tetons and Canadian Rockies. If interested, call 549-0818 ask for Tom.

LOST

Tan men's trench coat size 38—Taken from coat rack in front of Ballroom in S.U. Tues. night March 7th. Please return to B. Hanelsen, 73 Butterfield Ter., Phone: 549-1233.

1967 class ring lost. At bottom of walk, going from Wheeler to So. Commons. On left side before dirt road. Reward. Call Bob, 101 Wheeler, 5-2412 or 5-2413.

For Rent

Room for Rent—Central Amherst location. Quiet study atmosphere. No kitchen facilities. Call AL 3-5024 after 3:00 p.m.

AUTOMOBILES

1962 4 wheel drive jeep station wagon. Fischer plow and profitable plowing business—sold separately or as a unit. Call Rick, 256-8146.

OPPORTUNITIES

Interested in international communication and languages? Join the Esperanto Club in the Student Union, every Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

YOU LUCKY VW OWNERS — Keep your Volkswagon young. Send $1.00 for 56 page catalog on ways to increase the value and usefulness of your VW. Write to: RONNIMART, P.O. Box 75, Tremonton, Utah 84337.

GOING TO EUROPE???
BUY RENT OR LEASE ALL MAKES OF EUROPEAN CARS—For free information send name and address to: Michael Skaling, 147 Woodside Ave., Amherst. Campus Rep. for CAR-TOURS IN EUROPE.

COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING PAYS

Lecture on Catholocism in Religious Series

Professor John Rette of the Amherst College History Department will deliver the second lecture in the series entitled, "Studies in Religion-67" on Monday, March 13 at 8 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium. Professor Ratte has called his lecture "Catholicism in a Secular Age."

Professor Ratte received his A.B. and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard University, and did further graduate work at Oxford University. Ratte's particular field of study at Amherst College is the history of religious opinion. In September of 1967 he will publish his work on a study of modernist heresy in the Catholic Church.

The lectures on religious studies are sponsored by the Academic Affairs Committee of the Student Senate.

If You See News in the Making Dial
545-2550

LIBRARIAN SPEAKS

"Books are normally due in the University Library on Mondays. Books falling due on Monday, March 27 are due that day and subject to regular library fines during the vacation. Students whose books are due on this date and who expect to use them over vacation should renew before leaving for vacation."

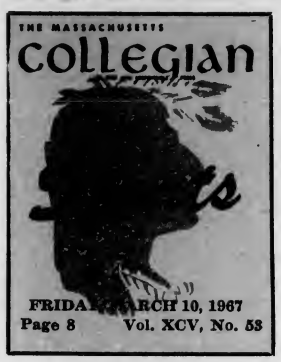
Gladchuck Recovering After Surgery

Assistant Director of Athletics Chet Gladchuk was admitted to the Cooley Dickinson Hospital for surgery Monday for the second time in the last year.

Now recovering under intensive care, he is expected to remain in the hospital for at least two more weeks, and his condition is described as "fairly good" by attendants.

Gladchuk was appointed Assistant Director of Athletics last fall, following the retirement of Earl E. Lordon. His previous experience on the UMass faculty includes 12 years on the Redmen football coaching staff and two years as Director of Intramural Athletics.

During his years at Boston College, Gladchuk was an All-American center and played on the Eagle teams in the Sugar and Cotton Bowls in 1940 and 1941.



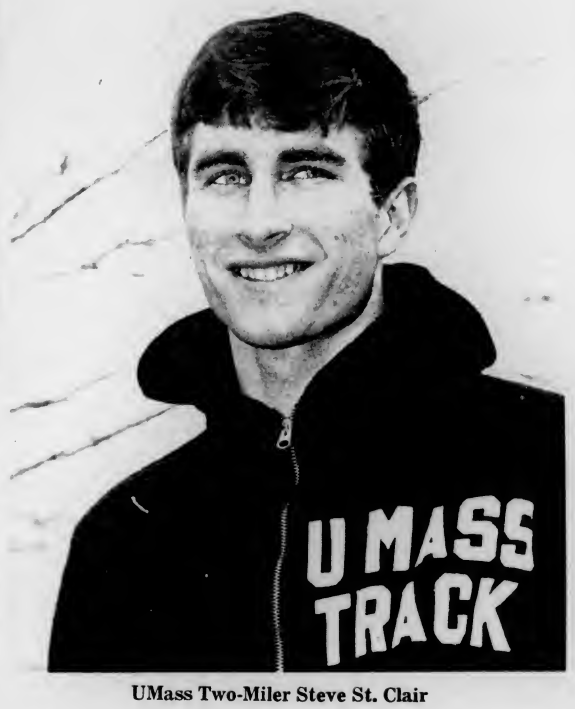
Before joining the UMass faculty, Gladchuk played for the New York Giants and was all-league choice at center for two years.

UMass Seeks Track Upset In U.N.H. YanCon Meet

Defending Yankee Conference track champ UMass will be hard pressed to repeat its smashing upset of a year ago, tomorrow at Durham, N.H.

The graduation of superstar John Medeiros and pole vaulter Bob Murphy coupled with Connecticut's added strength in some fine sophomores makes the Huskies solid favorites. UConn has already defeated its two top contenders, UMass and Rhode Island, in dual meets.

The Redmen, however, aren't going to lie down and play dead. Coach Bill Footrick's squad, which has tied a conference record with three titles in a row, will pull out all the stops for that big fourth one.



FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1967
Page 8 Vol. XCV, No. 53

The UMass team that lost to UConn by only seven points last month was minus distance ace Terry Carpenter, who was ailing with the flu, and Bill Tindall, who was playing basketball. Both boys will be on hand for the conference meet.

Competing for the Redmen in the meet will be Court Bassett in the 35-lb. weight throw and shot put; Art Larvey in the broad jump and dash; Tindall in the broad jump and high jump; John Arianson and John Lisack in the high jump; and Steve Burrell and Bob Hasselbaum in the dash.

Also competing will be Pete Moryl in the hurdles; Co-captain John Anderson in the hurdles, 600 and relay; Co-captain Bill Thomas in the 600 and relay; Diego Gonzales in the 600 and 1,000; Greg Bowman in the 1,000 and the mile; and Terry Carpenter in the 1,000, mile and two-mile.

Rounding out the UMass contingent will be Steve St. Clair in the two-mile and relay and Charley Lang in the two-mile.

UMass Two-Miler Steve St. Clair

INTRAMURALS

Volleyball Playoffs Open

By TOM CONUEL

Wrestling, volleyball and squash highlight the intramural scene this week.

In volleyball, there were only two games played Wednesday night. The Selohssas stopped the Lucky 13's, 15-10, 15-3, while the Imps outlasted the Oddsbadds by scores of 17-15, 16-18, and 15-5.

The first round of the intramural volleyball play-offs began last night.

In squash Ed Goltz of AEP won the Spartan Flight and will play Jim Hollicker of TEP who won the Athenian Flight for the IFC Championship.

In the dorms, Bob Salvaggio of the James Colts won the S.W.E.T. Flight and will meet Mike Katz of the Washington Monuments, who won the NSW Flight for the dormitory championship.

The winners of the above matches will meet to decide who will play the Independent undergraduate for the campus championship.

Last Night's Scores

Theta Chi over SAM, 15-9, 15-8, for 2nd place in league.
Theta Chi over Lambda Chi, 9-15, 15-11, 15-13, for 3rd place in IFC championships.
Trojans over Maroons, 11-15, 15-5, 15-10.
Chem Club over Camoflague South, 8-15, 15-9, 15-11.

MONDAY NIGHT'S SCHEDULE
Butterfield Lemona VS Wheeler Trojans (7 p.m.)
Adam's Flaming A's VS Kennedy Patriots (7 p.m.)
Imps VS James Jaspers (7 p.m.)
Chem Club VS winner of Imps VS Jaspers (8:30 p.m.)

In the Independent Division, Paul Norton of the Art Department defeated W. Comfort of the Math Department for the Graduate Faculty League Championship.

Mark Schlossberg of TEP won the National Flight and then was defeated by Bob Marr of Webster who won the American Flight.

Marr will now play Professor Norton for the Independent championship.

* * *

In wrestling, the fraternities were in action Wednesday night. In the 167 pound class, Plantinga, Niederjonn, Knight, and Domina gained victories.

In the 187-lb. class, Freitas, Murphy, Smith, Marino and Rose were victorious. The 197-lb. class had two winners, Glogowski, and Smith.

Tom Bates has won the fraternity 128-lb. class, and now must await the winner of the dorm championship in that class. The winner for the dorms will be decided tonight when Dave Wade and Bob Beck clash for the top spot.

* * *

PMD will face the James Comanchees in the campus bowling championship Monday night at 7 o'clock. Wednesday at 7 the frats and dorms will square off in the all-star bowling tournament.

Senior Sets Press Record

Senior Bob Rogers broke his own New England record by pressing 285 pounds at last Saturday's AAU-sponsored Massachusetts State Weightlifting Meet at the Springfield YMCA. Rogers, competing in the 181-pound class, also recorded 230 pounds in the snatch and 320 pounds in the clean-and-jerk for a total of 835 pounds, just 20 off the New England total record. UMass freshman Bob Rogers (no relation) lifted 185 in the press, 200 in the snatch and 255 in the clean-and-jerk for a 640 total.

Frosh Trackmen Show Promise; Continue Record-Setting Pace

UMass Freshmen have a meet record of 2-1 in the track season marked by several record setting performances.

Ed Arcaro served notice on freshmen competitors by tossing the shot 49' 9" in the Kof C meet and has been unbeaten in dual meet competition since that time.

The freshmen mile relay team of Pete Seward, Steve Chase, Bob Mallan and Dave Evans set and reset the mile relay record while finishing 2nd and 1st in the K of C and BAA meets respectively.

The season's opener with Northeastern saw the little Redmen losing by 2 points, 77-75, on the final event of the afternoon.

The frosh enjoyed a slim lead throughout the competition due to Mark Lefever's double record-setting performance in the high and low hurdles and a UMass sweep by Steve Chase, Jack Mercury and Dave Marble in the 50-yard dash.

The Redmen then overpowered UConn, 73-40, showing team balance. Lefever added 2 more records to his credit. Paul Nyman and Rocco Petitto led freshmen sweeps in the high and broad jump respectively, and Ed Currier, Pete Seward and Bob Keating had "personal bests" while scoring heavily in the middle distance and distance events.

On Feb. 25 the Freshmen overpowered U.N.H. by a score of 67-45. Ed Carcaro remained unbeaten in the shotput, Paul Nyman annexed his 3rd first place title with 6' in the high jump and shows outstanding potential for the spring season.

Ed Curier was a double winner in the mile and 1000 yard events. Marc Aroner led the distance runners with a fine 9:54 in the two mile event.

Mark Lefever continued his unbeaten skein by winning the high and low hurdles with performances that would qualify him for the NCAA Championships in Detroit.

The outlook for the spring season is good with the above mentioned performers running into stiffer competition and with the addition of performers in the weight and pole vault events.

SWIMMING—New England Intercollegiate Swimming League Championship (at Southern Connecticut), today and Saturday.

TRACK — Yankee Conference Championship (at UNH, Durham, N.H.), Saturday.

Track Team Registers Upset; Wins YanCon Conference Title

Special to the Collegian

DURHAM, N.H.—Taking three of the top five spots in four events and sweeping first and second in both the mile and two-mile, the UMass track team stunned favored UConn and captured the Yankee Conference Championship at the University of New Hampshire Saturday.

The final team standings were UMass 58 points, URI 41, UConn 37, UNH 26, UMaine 18 and UVM 16.

Bill Tindall, Terry Carpenter and Paul Hoss led the assault for the Redmen. Tindall smashed the Conference record in the high jump, Carpenter grabbed the record in the mile, and Hoss jaunted to an easy victory in the two - mile.

In duplicating their indoor victory of a year ago, the Redmen became the first team to win three titles in a row. Coach Bill Footrick thus became the first coach ever to win four consecutive Conference titles (The other was in cross country).

Senior Court Bassett flung the 35-lb. weight 51 ft., his best heave of the year, for fourth place. Art Larvey equalled the Conference record in the broad jump at 22'6½", but had to settle for second place.

The Redmen failed to score in the shot put and pole vault to trail by almost 20 points, but they made their move in the high jump.

Basketballer Tindall leaped 6'6" to beat defending indoor champ Childs of Vermont and defending outdoor champ Matson of UConn. Clarence Hill placed fourth with 6'4" and John Arianson fifth at 6'2".

As the running events began, the Bay Staters buried their opponents. Carpenter and Greg Bowman combined for a one-two finish in the mile. Carpenter's 4:15.1 and Bowman's 4:17 both demolished Bob Brouillet's record of 4:21.

In the 60-yd. dash, Steve Burrell ran a record 6.2 seconds in the semi-finals to establish a new record but had a bad start in the final and finished third. It made no difference, however, as Art Larvey grabbed second and Bob Husselbaum fifth.

Co-captain John Andersen was nipped at the tape in the 600 but ran a 1:12.6 to break the old record of 1:13.0. Diego Ganzales grabbed fourth and Co-captain Bill Thoms put on a tremendous stretch drive to win his heat but finished only fifth overall.

Hoss and Steve St. Clair ran away with the two-mile, and Charley Lang's bid for a sweep was checked when he was nipped for third place. Hoss clocked 9:31, St. Clair 9:34 and Lang 9:36.

An oddity occurred in the 1,000-yd. event, as Diego Gonzales and Terry Carpenter tied for third place. Gonzales ran in the seeded heat and placed third with a time of 2:15.7, and Carpenter won the unseeded heat with the same time.

Andersen grabbed fifth place in the low hurdles and the relay team of Hasselbaum, Burrell, Thoms and Hoss won third place.

Coach Footrick was once again thrown into the shower after the meet and accepted the plaque symbolic of Yankee Conference supremacy soaking wet.

STUDENTS
Support
The C.I.A.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Collegian
Information
Association
Dial the 'Hot Line'
52550

VOL. XCV, NO. 54 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, MARCH 13, 1967

McKissick, Rustin to Be Featured At DVP's 'Black Power' Symposium

Hoping to give the campus insight into the developing "black power" crisis, the Distinguished Visitors Program is presenting "Back Power in the Ghetto," a symposium at UMass Tuesday through Thursday. National leaders of Negro agitation, Floyd McKissick and Bayard Rustin will examine the ideology of Black Power and its implications for effectively organizing the ghetto to combat its problems.

A panel of guests representing several aspects of the work now being done in the ghettos will attempt to clarify the main issues at hand.

The symposium is constructed with three facets to its main purpose:

- — To arrive at a definition of Black Power as each panelist sees it in the context of his own experience;
- — To reach an understanding of the problems faced by the people of the Negro ghetto in America;
- — To examine alternative ideologies and tactics for combatting the problems of the ghetto.

FLOYD McKISSICK

McKissick has gained national prominence as the director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE). Born in Asheville, N.C., in 1922, he attended Morehouse College in 1949. By picketing the University of North Carolina, he gained admittance and took his A.B. in 1951.

He earned his LL.B. at North Carolina College in 1952 and was admitted to the Bar of the North Carolina and the United States Supreme Courts.

McKissick became a legal counsel to CORE and in 1963 was named director of the organization. His race relations and civil rights work have earned him the NAACP's Ike Small's Civil Rights Award (1962) and the Conference Award for Civil Rights (1964).

Rustin, second speaker during the symposium, bears a national personality as both an agitator and a pacifist. Born in 1910 in West Chester, Pa., he attended Wilberforce University, Cheyney State Teachers College, and the City College of New York.

He has organized and led civil rights movements since 1941 when he became the first field secretary of CORE. His efforts as Director of the Commission Against Discrimination in the Armed Forces resulted in the elimination of segregation in the American military.

Rustin has also been an outspoken advocate of pacifism, serving a two-year sentence in the Lewisburg Penitentiary as a conscientious objector. Rustin has also worked in Africa to establish the committee to support South African Resistance, presently known as the American Committee on Africa.

The panel will be Chester Gibbs, Intergroup Relations Specialist for the city of Springfield; Mike Thelwell, a former Administrator of SNCC's Washington Bureau; Melvin King, a worker in the Boston Ghetto; and Robert Lehrman, a representative of General Council for the New England area from the Organization for Equal Opportunities.

Dr. John Wilson, Assistant Professor of Sociology at the University of Massachusetts is to be moderator. McKissick will speak in the S.U. Ballroom at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday and the other two events will be at 8:30 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium Wednesday and Thursday.

Communist Troops Fire on Workers

HONG KONG (AP) — Several thousand people were killed or wounded in rural areas of Kwangtung Province when Communits troops opened fire on workers and peasants who refused to go back to work, a Hong Kong newspaper reported today.

The Chinese-language New Life Evening Post said travelers ariving from Kwangtung, across the border from Hong Kong, reported bloody clashes between army troops and workers and farmers in Fatshan, Po An, Nang Hai and Shun Ta.

W. H. Auden To Present Reading At Union

W. H. AUDEN

Wystan Hugh Auden, distinguished Anglo-American poet, essayist and playwright, will be presented here in a program of selected poetry readings on Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Student Ballroom under the auspices of the UMass Arts and Music Committee.

Generally regarded as one of the greatest literary figures of our time, Auden's most recent books are: About The House, The Dyer's Hand and Other Essays. Some of his other best-known works include: The Double Man, For the Time Being, The Age of Anxiety, Nones, and The Shield of Achilles which received the National Book Award in 1956; and Homage to Clio, published in 1960.

In its review of About The House, Time magazine said: "He has the head of an old lion and in a high rolling roar he makes some of the most spectacular conversation of the century. At 58, Wystan Hugh Auden is the only man left in the English-speaking world who can be called a major poet."

Auden was born in York, England, in 1907. He has been a resident of the United States since 1929, and an American citizen since 1946.

Educated at Gresham's School, Holt, and at Christ Church, Oxford, he became associated with a small group of young writers in London -- among them Stephen Spender and Christopher Isherwood.

Mr. Auden will narrate, read and comment upon selections from his own poetry and that of other poets from various periods in English literature. A discussion period for questions evolving from the readings and a reception in the Colonial Lounge will follow.

Local Draft Boards May Lose Classification Power

The local draft board will no longer decide whether a young man is a student or a soldier, if the proposed recommendations for draft selection changes finds approval in Congress.

The National Advisory Commission of Selective Service believes that "the United States has ourgrown its Selective Service System".

Unfairness, discrimination, and outdated practices were cited as the faults of the present system. After an exhaustive study, the Commission found local draft boards do not operate alike. They are not representative of their communities and fail to offer personal service.

The Commission proposes the retention of the national headquarters as it is now but with considerable changes on the local and state level. The 4000 local boards would be eliminated in favor of three to five hundred area boards, situated according to population with at least one in each state.

To ensure that local boards be representative of the ethnic, cultural and financial community, the board members would be appointed solely by the president. The initiation of the use of computers would allow a man to change his area draft board when he moves.

The National Selective Service Appeal Board would also remain essentially the same as now. But, the Commission proposes that there be a sharp reduction in the number of area boards—from 96 to eight. Each new appeal board would be independent of other appeal boards or the regional draft board.

Conscientious objectors' cases which are now reviewed by the Justice Department would be heard by a special appeals board created above the local level. Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey has been instructed by President Johnson to assure that advisers and appeal agents are readily available to all registrants.

Since the release of the Commission's proposals, there has been widespread support of the recommendation to draft younger men first, according to a lottery system.

The lottery was deemed the most equitable by the Commission. There are five steps in the process:

—At 18, all men will register and receive physical, moral, and educational tests.

—Those found qualified will be placed in a pool.

—The order of call would be determined through a system of impartial random selection. Men would be informed of their position on the list.

—The men would undergo a period of maximum vulnerability for perhaps a year or less.

—After that time a new pool would be available, therefore the men in the former pool would not be called.

The present system of established state and local quotas would be eliminated as the random system would accomplish the geographical distribution.

(Continued on page 2)

Mass. Student Ass'n. Becoming a Reality

by PAT PETOW
Senate Reporter

The Massachusetts Student Association is on its way to becoming a reality. A proposed constitution was drafted at a March 11-12 weekend conference of 14 schools at UMass.

The purpose of the association is "To promote effectively the cause of public higher education in the Commonwealth through the cooperation and understanding between this organization of student representatives and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

According to the constitution drafted, the Association is to be made up of three delegates selected by the student governments of each member state institution of higher education. Only those schools who accept the constitution will be members of the Association.

There are nine state colleges, eleven community colleges, and six others.

Discussion on Sunday was highlighted by a re-definition of the powers of the Exceutive Committee to read "charged with carrying out the purpose of the MSA" and other administrative functions. The officers will hold their positions on a full-year basis from May to May if the proposal is approved.

The entire draft passed the convention of delegates Sunday by a vote of sixteen in favor, one opposed, and one absention.

The conference-convention was the third this year sponsored by the UMass Public Relations Committee in its efforts to explore the need and purpose of such an organization and to bring it about.

Representing UMass were: Senators Chris McGahan; Linda Schriber; Timothy Cunningham, the convention chairman; and Larry Marcus, the parliamentarian. Also on hand were other members of the Public Relations Committee.

STUDENT SENATE ELECTION RESULTS for the election of March 9, 1967

FIELD
Elinor Needle	67*
Gail Moser	53
GRAYSON
Tom Barret	76*
Write-Ins	4
JOHN ADAMS MIDDLE
Guenter Loeser	64*
Steve Mullen	50
SORORITIES
Jean Lakness	12
Deborah Parent	12

Note: There will be a run-off election on Thursday, March 16 between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. at the S.U.

LBJ Says;

Only Method of Complete Fairness

(Continued from page 1)

In calling the lottery a F.A.I.R. (fair and impartial random) system of selection, President Johnson believes that it is "the only method which approaches complete fairness."

But it is the lottery issue which will probably incite the hottest debate in Congress. Because the president did not issue an executive order to establish the lottery, the Congress is faced with three alternatives in handling the lottery issue:

—It could initiate the lottery in its own legislation.

—The President's power to create one could be renewed.

—Or the lottery could be omitted from the legislation and the President's power to create one removed.

Solving the problem of who will serve leaves a thornier issue unsolved: who will not serve. The Commission believes that all deferments are unfair and should be eliminated except in hardship cases. President Johnson and Senator Edward Kennedy concur in this view.

The Commission of the House Armed Services Committee has called for the elimination of virtually all graduate student deferments.

A Congressional committee public hearing will begin Thursday conducted by Senator Kennedy. Two other hearings will be held in the next two months.

Hershey Defends Neighborhood Board

Lieut. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the Selective Service System for the last twenty-five years, has taken a stand in defense of the present neighborhood draft board, despite the recent decision of the President's commission on the draft that the local board be replaced with an area center.

The commission's finding was based on the theory that the local board is out-dated. If the suggestion is accepted the 4,100 existing local boards will be replaced by approximately 400 area centers.

It is Hershey's contention that the only fair method of conscription is to have men chosen for induction by their neighbors on the local board.

His opinion is that the foundation of the Selective Service System is the responsibility undertaken by the local board in drafting the young men of its respective community. Another factor is the part played by the individual state in filling state draft quotas.

Also, board members must be appointed from nominations received by the President from the governors. Thus, the governors and communities share the responsibility of calling men up for induction.

Deviation from the present system would lead to an element of "remoteness," an element which cannot be afforded, according to the general. As an example, he offered the vast expanses of Texas, where "a man is 130 miles from the county seat."

The commission report invalidated this argument. It indicated that the personalized concept exists at present only in rural areas. Urban boards welcome anonimity as an asset to their jobs.

Thus discounting Hershey's arguments, commission members indicated that the general's influence stems from his long period of unmarred administration over the Selective Service System.

One commission member stated: "To accept our recommendations and completely reorganize the system, the President would have to get rid of the general and you don't do away with institutions very lightly."

Attention Collegian News Staffers

All News staffers report to the News Editor during his office hours this week. NO EXCUSES.

ATTENTION WOMEN ! ! ! !
WOMEN'S JUDICIARY NOMINATION PAPERS

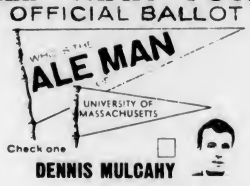
Nomination papers for Women's Judiciary will be available in the R.S.O. office starting March 13. They MUST be returned by March 17.

OPENING for the Class of 1969

OPENING for the Class of 1970

FORMAL SMOKER

TKE



MONDAY, MARCH 13

10:00 P.M.

Come See the Changes in the New TKE.

ALE - MAN VOTING
OFFICIAL BALLOT

DENNIS MULCAHY
BILL WARNOCH
DICK BENOIT

Graduate to... BALLANTINE Ale XXX

TOMORROW IN S.U. LOBBY

SOPHOMORES
CLASS MEETING
and
PRESS CONFERENCE
THURS., MARCH 16, 6:15 P.M.
BOWKER AUD.
TOPICS FOR DISCUSSION

WINTER CARNI '68
CLASS RINGS
PLAYBOY® NITE
Meeting the Playmates®
CAMPUS CHEST
A SURPRISE!

IT IS YOUR CLASS !

AMHERST Cinema
WED. and THURS. only
March 15 and 16

WARNER BROS. PRESENTS
in Technicolor
THE MIKADO
AN ACTUAL PERFORMANCE OF THE D'OYLE CARTE OPERA COMPANY

MATINEE AT 2 P.M. · EVENING AT 8 P.M.
TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT BOX-OFFICE
Mat. $1.50—Eve. $2.00—Children $1.00

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

National

JAMES H. MEREDITH makes a surprise post - midnight announcement that he has decided not to run for Congress against Adam Clayton Powell.

* * *

THE DAILY VARIATION in man's production of male hormones may have a bearing on treating some forms of cancer.

* * *

PATRICIA NEAL walks onto a New York stage and speaks to a large audience. "I did it, I really did it!" says the actress of her triumph over illness.

International

THE SOCIALIST - COMMUNIST coalition gives President Charles de Gaulle a stunning setback in the French elections.

* * *

POTENTIAL TROUBLE spots in Java are quiet in the wake of Sukarno's ouster as president.

* * *

NIKITA KHRUSHCHEV and V. M. Molotov appear in Moscow to vote—but not together.

* * *

THE SOVIET PEOPLE are told that Joseph Stalin's daughter, Svetlana, is adroad and how long she stays is a private affair.

Vietnam

PRES. JOHNSON'S Vietnam strategy conference in Guam is regarded as an attempt to dramatize the increasing U.S. military pressure a n d intensified economic and political development of South Vietnam. He will leave for Guam Saturday.

* * *

NORTH VIETNAM claims U.S. bombers attack Hanoi but the American command says the planes hit a power plant 32 miles from the Communist capital.

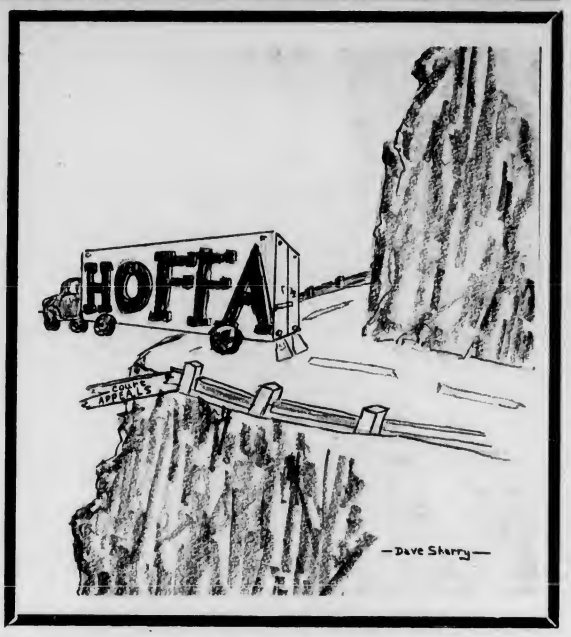
* * *

SOME U. S. AIR FORCE helicopters have been withdrawn from Thailand. Airlifting of Thai forces against Communist insurgents has been turned over to Thai pilots.

Washington

THE SENATE ethics committee begins hearings into the financial affairs of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd.

* * *



ANTIPOVERTY and Dodd investigations could steal congressional attention from an expected final vote on the U. S.-Soviet consular treaty.

Springfield Woman Shot

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Catherine Johnson, 53, of Springfield faced a murder charge today in the shooting of Rose Cortelli, 47.

The body of the victim was found Sunday in Miss Johnson's apartment, where police said she had been visiting. Officers said Miss Cortelli had been shot more than once in the upper portion of the body with a small caliber pistol.

Miss Johnson was arrested in her apartment and was held without bail in the city jail pending arraignment in District Court.

Heavy Air Strikes In North Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes made their heaviest strikes against North Vietnam in four months Sunday, concentrating their strongest attacks on an electric power center 32 miles northwest of Hanoi.

Seizing upon breaks in the weather, the American fighter-bombers from Thailand unloaded tons of bombs on the Viet Tri power complex, sending black and brown smoke billowing 3,000 feet in the air and visible in Hanoi.

On one flight of planes coming off the Viet Tri power plant raid, with their bombs all gone, locked on a convoy of 50 trucks. The flight flashed down with 20mm cannon blazing and left many trucks aflame, a spokesman said.

Although Hanoi radio claimed U.S. jets hit the capital itself, a U.S. spokesman said the Viet Tri strike was the only one in the Hanoi area. Apart from hitting the power complex, American fliers struck only at antiaircraft gun positions in the immediate area, he said.

The spokesman said 128 missions were flown against the North Sunday, meaning that possibly 400 planes took part. It was the busiest day in the air war since Nov. 8.

One American jet was lost during the day and its two-man crew was reported missing. It was an RF4C Phantam photoreconnaissance plane which evidently went in after the raids.

Dodd and Antipoverty Get Much Attention

WASHINGTON (AP) — Committee probes of the antipoverty program and Sen. Thomas J. Dodd's finances could steal congressional attention this week from an expected final vote on the U.S.-Soviet consular treaty.

Action on amendments to the treaty is expected Tuesday, with a final vote due later in the week.

But meanwhile:

The Senate ethics committee opens today its second set of hearings into the Dodd case. Dodd is charged with making personal use of thousands of dollars in campaign gifts.

A Senate Labor subcommittee begins its examination of the antipoverty program at public hearings beginning today.

A proposal by Sen. Karl Mundt, R-S.D., would make effectiveness of the treaty dependent on the halt of Soviet aid to North Vietnam.

Johnson Loses Support If Viet War Continues

Delegates of the volunteer organization representing 30,000 Democrats adopted a policy statement that unless the war ends by September, the organization will oppose Johnson in 1968 California presidential primary with a slate of delegates pledged to a peace candidate.

The group, California Democratic Council, also shouted approval for U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's plan for peace—cessation of bombing of the North as a prelude to immediate peace talks.

Though opponents of the bombing have continued to call for its halt as a means of promoting peace talks, Johnson is believed disillusioned with such efforts and believes instead that the price of the war for North Vietnam must be raised.

President Johnson's Vietnam strategy huddle in Guam next week is regarded as another attempt to dramatize the U.S. military and civil development commitment to Ky's war-torn country.

Brooke Talks to POW's

SAIGON (AP) — Sen. Edward W. Brooke talked today with Viet Cong war prisoners and defectors from the Communist ranks.

The Massachusetts Republican made a two-stop helicopter tour this morning and scheduled a visit with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky later in the day.

Brooke inspected a processing center for defectors who rally to the Saigon government's Chieu Hoi Open Arms Program. He quizzed several turncoats in the dusty camp at Phu Cuong City, north of the capital.

Brooke had lunch with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge after returning to the capital.

Surprise Announcement

Meredith Withdraws

NEW YORK (AP) — James H. Meredith, a civil rights maverick who drew the wrath of many Negro leaders for opposing Adam Clayton Powell, suddenly pulled out of the special congressional race today. He apparently gave in to growing pressures.

In a surprise post-midnight announcement, just as stunning as his entry into the race last Tuesday as the choice of Republican leaders, Meredith offered no explanation for his withdrawal. He declined to elaborate on a one-sentence statement: "I have decided not to run in the 18th Congressional District."

Some Harlem sources said that Meredith, an independent Democrat, bowed to pressures from civil rights leaders. There also were reports that Powell through intermediaries, had been appealing to Meredith to drop out.

The appeals were said to have been made on grounds of a need for Negro unity. Meredith reportedly was told that by accepting the Republican nomination to run against Powell, a Democrat, he would be the white man's candidate.

Sources said Meredith was told that he could make an even more dramatic gesture by giving up the support of the white people. This, it was said, would make him an even bigger hero in the Negro community.

Meredith, 33, admitted when he accepted the Republican offer to oppose Powell that he was laying himself open to "the fear and the scorn from fellow Negroes."

Not a single Negro political leader of either major party, or any Harlem community or national civil rights leader supported him. They said he was being used and didn't stand a chance of winning.

VolpeConsideringMore Bridgewater Shakeups

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. John A. Volpe is considering some more shakeups at Bridgewater State Hospital, including regular transfers of guards and dispersal of some patients to other institutions.

"Smaller units are better for all concerned," Volpe said Sunday night in discussing the situation at Bridgewater, from which self-styled Boston strangler Albert DeSalvo made a short-lived escape last month.

He added that he thinks guards at such institutions have a tendency to let down after their jobs become routine, and that perhaps they should be transferred from one place to another after a certain length of time.

Interviewed on radio station WEEI's weekly news program "Bay State Forum" Volpe also said his new automobile liability insurance proposal will force insurance companies "to do a great deal more selling than they have in the past" because it will give motorists an opportunity "to select the insurance company which gives them the best service and the best price."

EDITORIAL

STAFF MEETING

Wed., March 15

at 6:30 p.m.

Collegian Office

All members must attend

DeGaulle Image Mauled By French Electorate

PARIS (AP) — French voters mauled the prestige of President Charles deGaulle's government badly Sunday and left his forces with a majority of only one to three votes in the National Assembly. Even that narrow margin was in doubt.

With two of the 487 Assembly seats still undecided, the Ministry of Interior reported candidates pledged to deGaulle had won 244 seats, or a majority of at least one in the full Assembly.

The voters knocked four of de Gaulle's ministers out—Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville, Defense Minister Pierre Messmer, Veterans Minister Alexandre Sanguinetti, and Jean Charbonnel, in charge of cooperation with former French African territories.

The Gaullist defeat, which had not been foreseen in public opinion polls, was fashioned largely by a smooth working electoral pact forg d by the strong French Communist party and the leftist federation of Socialists and other non-Communist leftists.

The runoff election also was marked by the political comeback of leftist Pierce Mendes-France, who as premiere ended the French Indochinese war in 1954. Mendes-France handily defeated a Gaullist in Grenoble.

Collegian Wire News Staff

EDITOR: Richard S. Kline

STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Roupenian
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini

Editorial Section — Campus Comment

A Matter of Choice

This year, a new system of counselor selection will be used at UMass. For the first time, individual students will be able to submit their evaluation and comments on applicants for counselorships. Furthermore, interviews will be conducted by a panel composed not only of Heads of Residence, but of students and veteran counselors.

In the past, counselors were chosen by the Heads of Residence alone, and not always for the right reasons. The story is told of the Housemother who merely looked at an applicant and said "Yes, he's big enough." The new plan should prevent such occurrences and allow the persons most directly affected by counselor selection to have their say.

As the new system goes into effect, there are bound to be difficulties: for example, there should be some method of preliminary elimination so that counselors and house governments would not be forced to interview thirty or more applicants. Even if minimal time is devoted to each applicant this procedure will entail far too may hours of interviews.

Another point worthy of study is the practice of re-interviewing veteran counselors. If a person has been a counselor for a year, we believe his or her Head of Residence will know whether or not that person should be rehired. The Head of Residence should be allowed to retain veteran counselors without the process of further interviews, this simplifying the system considerably.

Generally, we believe the new system of counselor selection is a good one. It seeks to involve students in administrative decisions which directly affect them, seeks to involve house governments, seeks to correct the abuses of the old system. This counselor selection procedure with the suggested improvements deserves the support of all responsible students and administrators, and the persons who have developed it deserve great credit.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

Social Protest?

by BOB BRILL, Editorial Staff

Students at UMass are allowed quite a number of freedoms. They are permitted most of all to publicly disagree with and form organizations against government policy, if this be their desire. A result of these liberties was the formation of Students For Political Action, who have conducted Peace Vigils every Tuesday for the past two weeks in front of the S. U.

There are a number of schools in this country where student dissent is not permitte ' Anyone engaging in even mild protest is very quickly and very unceremoniously thrown out of school. This type of action is contrary to the constitution and creates an unhealthy political atmosphere. Disagreement should never be muzzled just because it does not follow the majority beliefs of the public.

This brings us to the nature of the demonstrations. They are supposed to be silent protests against the "in-human" war in Vietnam. There have been a number of incidents caused by the demonstrators quite to the contrary. People who wished to ignore these proceedings were forced into embarrassing situations, taunted, and had papers shoved at them.

Is this the kind of democratic society that SDS and its campus affiliate are advocating? Is harassment of anyone who is not interested and/or who disagrees with SPA philosophy the end sought by this organization? There would be long, loud cries of police brutality, and the like if the "rebels" were subjected to the same thing that they have forced on the unsuspecting passersby.

Actions of the sort previously mentioned make people wonder. Are the members of SPA really interested in bringing about social change or just in getting personal attention.

If the Peace Vigil is to be conducted in the future let it be peaceful or not at all. If the result of these demonstrations is public annoyance and disturbance then they should be stopped. Those who seek peace should allow others to retain theirs.

Thought For Food

by BOB BRILL
Editorial Staff

What can the residents of the Southwest Complex do when they want to study? There are two alternatives. They can either close their ears to the rock and roll, tumult and other distractions common to every dorm or they can walk over a dimly lit trail to the library, where studying is sometimes complicated by the lack of quiet and a place to sit.

A reasonably quiet place to study could be provided. The somewhat treacherous walk to the library would be eliminated.

The spatial problems in the library study halls could be partially alleviated. Just open one of the dining commons at night for use as a study hall.

Why shouldn't the conscientious student have a quiet place to study?

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
A.P. Wire Editor ..... Richard Kline '70
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Monday's Day Editors News—Dick Kline '70; Sports—Harvey Elman '68

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

"We Must Not Hesitate"

To the Editor:

Recently there has been much protest against the war in South Vietnam by students of the University Organizations which have been formed, letters written, and "peace vigils" established in Amherst and in front of the S. U. It seems to me that there has been a lot of talk by some naive if not stupid "individuals" that cannot be unchallenged.

I'm certainly in favor of free speech and the freedom to demonstrate, but I can't help but think that these people are self-centered, sheltered neophytes, unless they have actually examined all the facts, weighed them carefully, and studied the possible implications of their decision.

In my opinion, the war in Vietnam is a necessary but unfortunate war. Communist aggression must be stopped and reassurance given to our allies. Communism is a serious threat to our way of life. We must not hesitate. This is not something that we should back away from or disastrous, if not deserving, results will occur. "American war crimes," impeachment, "peace vigils" and other melodramatic expressions are a lot of nonsense.

Who do these people think they are to throw around such misguided accusations? What has happened to American patriotism? Are the beatniks and halfwits of our campus going to have the last say? I think that a minority is being heard—let's hear some support for America and its policies.

I'm tired of listening to criticism of the Johnson Administration. It galls me to think that our boys or rather men are fighting for some arrogant "philosopher-kings." Its freedom we are fighting for—not the support of Communism.

If more people thought about our men and innocent South Vietnamese instead of the Viet Cong and North Vietnnamese, we would have the kind of loyalty and patriotism that would drive the Communists back into the jungles to have their own "peace vigils." Let's unify our country and support our boys not only in Vietnam, but around the world.

John Shoemaker 163 Hills South

Information Please...

To the Editor:

On the evening of Thursday, March 9, between the hours of 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. an attempt was made to steal a green 1966 Triumph sports car from the greenhouse faculty parking lot of Morrill Science Center.

The persons involved numbered three or more. The top was cut to gain entrance and the ignition was jumped. The resulting short circuit caused an electrical fire which discouraged the thieves.

A passer-by called the fire department at 8:45 p.m. upon seeing the smoke. The campus police removed several prints from the vehicle and are investigating.

Will anyone who observed a group of three or four men working on a sports car in this lot between 7:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and can offer the campus police descriptions of persons or their vehicles please notify them as it is essential to the investigation?

Stewart C. Farrell
Dept. of Geology

The Common Place to Study

To the Editor:

Many students agree that the Library is a totally inadequate place to study, and, in fact, often presents no alternative to the nightly atmosphere of a dormitory with its variety of disturbing noises and constant activity.

Students from the Southwest Complex especially have found it increasingly difficult to battle their way through wind, snow, rain, slush and mud over at best dimly lit trails to a study hall which he dispairingly hopes will be a bit quieter than his own room saturated with Frugs, Stones, and the Kingston Trio attacking through flimsily sound proofed walls from above and from both sides. The trip to the center of campus hardly seems worth it.

Would it not be possible to open one of the Dining Commons at night as a study hall for Southwest residents? With "The Grill" located on the premises and with its proximity to living areas, it would be the most easily accessible study area on campus. The carpeting and walled-off areas help sound-proof the Commons far more than is possible at the Library.

If this plan proved feasible, North and South Commons could also be opened and the great inconvenience put on the student would be greatly alleviated.

Jon Gerard '69

Keep The Lines Open

To the Editor:

This semester, with the increase in the cost of a meal ticket, the various dining Commons have reciprocated by allowing a new policy on seconds. This is an advancement long waited for by many. However, in moving ahead in one aspect the food service department, in particular the South Dining Commons, has gained the enmity of every student who must, due to his class schedule, eat after 12:00 p.m. This is so because the commons have seemingly established a policy of closing down one line on each side of the commons while many students are still to be served. An example of this occurred in the South Dining Commons last Friday when they closed up at 12:15 with hundreds of ticket holders still milling around in line.

The result of this action entailed enormous lines of hungry students, coming directly to the commons following the conclusion of their 11:15 classes. This situation is made worse because students who have already received their first portion have returned for seconds, while others are still awaiting their firsts. In this situation the student finds himself further embittered by the fact that the women behind the "glass wall" seem to run out of the main course just as he arrives.

In my opinion, and one which is shared by just above every student that eats in the commons, this situation need not exist. I sincerely believe that this could be alleviated by taking two courses of action. This first step would be to keep both lines of both sides of the commons open for longer periods of time, or at least until the great majority of students have eaten. The second course of action would be to make sure that adequate amounts of food are prepared in advance and kept warm so that students coming to eat after their later classes need not be kept waiting.

I believe that if these proposals are adopted, that the lines of students waiting for their firsts will, of necessity, become shorter. In addition, those desiring seconds could be served more quickly and efficiently without detaining those Who have yet to eat.

Harvey Stone '67
Gorman House

Protest Signs Disappear

To the Editor:

I noticed with much disappointment that signs protesting the war and the draft were taken down. They were placed in windows of an apartment in the bank block at 69 South Pleasant Street. I can't help but think that the people who displayed those signs must not have really believed in their cause if they're willing to remove them on whim. Perhaps they felt their signs weren't being really effective —but there was always the possibility that someone saw them. They provided stimulus for conscientious thinking.

It really couldn't be much trouble to keep the signs up—they're really no bother, I wouldn't think. Why have they come down then? Perhaps there was pressure from the landlords — But really now, I would find it hard to believe that honest businessmen would attempt to supress our most precious freedoms. No American would do that—Would he?

Ronald W. Johnson

UMass Must Cope With Admissions Pressure

Massachusetts public institutions of higher education will be asked to absorb one-fourth of the college-age population by 1970. Dr. John W. Lederle, U-Mass president, predicts in his annual report.

UMass must cope with "unprecedented admissions pressure," he said, as a greater percentage of youth seek to go to college. Yet the state's private institutions accept "a greater and greater percentage of their enrollments from outside the commonwealth and grow less rapidly than public institutions."

The essence of the challenge faced by the university, according to Dr. Lederle, is "to provide better education for more and more students."

He denied "the fear . . . expressed in some quarters that the university is growing so large that it is becoming impersonal and 'no one cares about the individual any more'."

"The University is concerned . . . with the individual student and the individual taxpayer," he said. "It holds itself responsive to their desires and needs in every area of administration."

The annual report showed the distribution of urban and non-urban students who are residents at UMass. Of a total of 10,095 resident students, 3,302 are drawn from Boston, 1,683 from Springfield-Holyoke, 456 from Worcester, 222 from Brockton, and 182 from New Bedford. The total of urban students is 6,285. The total of resident students from non-urban areas is 3,810.

In reviewing the accomplishment of 1965-66, the president pointed out that:

- Enrollment grew from 10,497 to 11,859. The 2,240 graduate students were triple the number of five years before.
- A total of 1,930 degrees were granted, including 467 advanced degrees. Of these, 48 were doctorates.
- Research projects received a total of $7.5 million in grants.

Spread of Nuclear Weapons Discussed by Great Decisions

Last Thursday night, on station WGBH, Boston, and on four-college radio WFCR, the University-sponsored Great Decision Program discussed the question of "The Spread of Nuclear Weapons." Guest speakers were Mr. Quester, of Harvard College, and Mr. Boettiger, of Amherst College.

The discussion included such questions as, "Would nuclear proliferation promote peace by creating a balance of terror? Could the United States afford (economically) a reduction of armaments and a reduction in the force of the standing army . . . When and how would these millions of men be assimilated into society? Should the U.S. develop its own Anti-Ballistic Missile System?"

Civil Defense, fallout shelters, NATO, the German question, disarmament, proliferation, "tactical" nuclear weapons, Communist China, Vietnam, and additional questions were also discussed.

On Monday, March 13, the Great Decisions Program will explore the question of South America in "The New Deal in Chile." The Forum will begin at 6:30 p.m. in Webster Lounge.

Special guests on the panel will be Howeard Wiarda and Robert Potash of the University faculty. Once again, three student questioners will be chosen to participate in the Thursday night joint Amherst-Boston radio hookup heard locally over WFCR.

The United States' relations with other Western Hemisphere and particularly its South American neighbors is a growing area of concern and should be a most interesting topic of discussion.

Senate Rules Unconstitutional $500 Grant to Valley Center

by PAT PETOW
Senate Reporter

A Student Senate appropriation of $500 to the Valley Center, a four-college "free university" made on January 4 was overruled by a decision of the General Court on March 7. The ruling was announced at the Senate meeting the next day.

The case went to the General Court, consisting of Men's and Women's Judiciaries meeting together, on the appeal of Senate Vice President Tim Cunningham. It was the first such exercise of judicial review provided for in the Student Government Association Constitution.

The majority opinion, written for the Court by John A. Robinson, declared "the Student Senate must be considered to have not taken the necessary steps to 'promote the welfare of the student body.'"

The opinion continued:

"But it is the firm opinion of this Court that, in order for an organization to receive [sic] SATF monies, it must be either a Recognized Student Organization or it must be under Executive Order, as stated in the introduction to the Financial Policy Booklet." The Valley Center is not an RSO organization.

The minority opinion disagreed that the Financial Policy Booklet was an extension of the Constitution. A meeting was held last evening by the Finance Committee to revise this provision in the Booklet.

If You See News in the Making Dial

545-2550

COLLEGIANS
May Be Picked Up at Lobby Counter

why not think for yourself?

The ability to think for yourself, and to think correctly when making decisions, determines your future.

Come to this lecture that will examine the true nature of thinking and its spiritual basis.

It will be given by Martin N. Heafer, C.S., an experienced practitioner of Christian Science healing . . . and a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

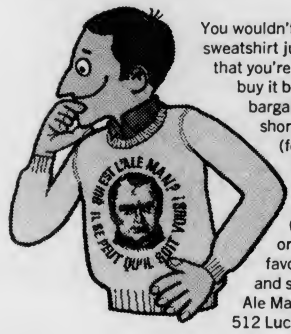
7:45 P.M.

Colonial Lounge

Student Union

Sponsored by
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION

How to tell if you're an Ale Man



You've been offered a fortune for your little black book.

You didn't learn how to surf last Summer. You gave lessons in Hawaii.

You think lightweight motorcycles are for kids. You ride the big hairy bikes.

When you see a beautiful girl you don't whistle. You get a date with her.

You wouldn't buy an Ale Man sweatshirt just to announce that you're an Ale Man. You'd buy it because it's a bargain at $2.00 (with short sleeves) or $2.40 (for the long sleeve job). Sweatshirts show famous Ale Men of the past (Shakespeare, Caesar, or Napoleon). Pick your favorite, specify size—and send your money to Ale Man Sweatshirt Offer, 512 Lucas Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

When movie buffs start discussing the films in which Bogie starred, you discuss his great stage roles.

You'd rather drink Ballantine Ale than read about it in an ad. You know it's light like beer but packs more taste. You go for that clean, dry, tangy taste. You think that ads like this one are really for people who haven't graduated from beer to Ballantine Ale. You're right!

Published with the thought that this would be a happier world if there were more Ale Men like you. P. Ballantine & Sons, Newark, New Jersey.

fine arts

Paris Is Burning Luke Warm

by N. C. SCANLAN
Staff Reviewer

Is Paris Burning? It's hard to say for it's not easy to start a fire with a luke warm film.

One of the main problems with the film is its change of media. The book is a history of a liberation. Liberations are notoriously disjointed, fragmented, and seldom move from a central point. In this respect Gore Vidal (who signed the screenplay) has decided to tell it like it is. The result is a newsreel, not a movie.

However, some of the individual events are very striking. Rene Clement has directed some powerful mass movements with thoughtful photography: hands clutching barbed wire, a dead prisoner at a soldiers feet, rain.

A number of scenes contain messages that could be entitled "We Love DeGaulle," "Americans Are Great," or "The Nazis Got No Culture."

The other scenes contribute to the picture of people and places involved. Unfortunately this collage approach doesn't tie up beyond the happy ending.

Of the characters, Gert Foebe is excellent as a pessimistic general. He is a thoughtful military man, at times appearing almost human. He realizes that the Fuhrer is mad, that the war is lost; he takes it all quite well. Of the rest of the star-studded cast, very little is seen; Simone Signorette, Charles Boyer, Kirk Douglas, Leslie Caron and Orson Welles making only token appearances.

Using the idea of newsreel, Is Paris Burning? is adequate. All those famous places (which are to be blown up) have their say.

There is a good deal of violence in the film — shells exploding, tanks burning. Oh yes, and a few people are killed. But it's so frightfully glamorous, it's easy to see why man never gives it up.

Also thrown into the film is a good deal of authentic clippings a la Victory at Sea. These shots bring the film closer to its theme and keep reminding all that this is a true story.

The answer to the question Is Paris Burning? is still hard to say. The fire like the movie just never happened. It will be at the Amherst Cinema until Tuesday.

Legislation And You

This Tuesday on WMUA at 8 p.m., ACTION "67" with host Pete Ward will present a program concerning legislation now facing the State House that can and will affect the students of UMass.

On hand to explain and discuss the Bills will be the Dean of Administration, Dean Leo Redfern; The Student Senate Public Relations Chairman, Larry Marcus; and the Collegian Political editor Dave O'Connor.

Some of the bills such as Iannello's bill to regulate dress and hair styles, while others, like the Free Tuition Bills, are part of a nationwide controversy.

Some are suggested solely from a student point of view, like the bill to place the new telephones only where they are requested. The scope of issues handled by the State House that affect UMass and you as a campus resident may be surprising.

RSO PRESIDENTS
All RSO presidents please leave your names and addresses in the Public Relations Committee message box in the Senate office. This information is necessary for a current PR project.

NOTICES

PRE-MED CLUB
On Wednesday, March 15, at 7:45 P.M. in Morrill 203, there will be a lecture by L. W. Chandler on "Miracle Drugs." The new Undergraduate Medical Experience Program will be discussed.

STUDENTS AND FACULTY
Enjoy an evening of relaxation and listenable music. Come to the Old Lantern Inn, Route 9, Hadley, and hear live Folk and Classical guitar music, on Tuesday at 8:30 P.M.

SCIENCE-FICTION CLUB
There will be an important meeting on Tuesday, March 14, in the Middlesex Room of S.U.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION
Every Tuesday at 6:45 P.M. there is a meeting in the Worcester Room, S.U. All are cordially welcome.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE
On Thursday, March 16, at 7:45 P.M. in Colonial Lounge, S.U., Mr. Martin N. Haefer, C.S. will lecture on "Why Not Think for Yourself?" All welcome.

WOMEN'S JUDICIARY
Nomination papers for women's judiciary will be available in the R.S.O. office starting March 13. These must be returned by March 17. There is one opening for the class of 1969, and one for the class of 1970.

LOST:
Silver identification bracelet in vicinity of campus. If found, please contact Myron Cook, 216 Baker House, 6-6056. Reward.

COMMUTERS:—LOST ITEMS
Have you lost a notebook, textbook or other valuables? Check the Lost and Found booth at the bus ticket window.

PINNINGS:
Cheryl Cousineau, class of '69, Kappa Chi Omega — UMass-Boston, to Louis Cioffi, class of '67, Chamberlane.
Denise Carroll, class of '67, Lewis, to James Chamberlin, Jr., U.S.N.
Debbie Gunn, class of '68, Johnson, to Kermit Symth, class of '68, TD, Amherst College.

ENGAGEMENT:
Carol Bielanski, class of '67, Westfield State College, to Jim Gromelski, class of '67, Grayson.

MASS. CLASSIFIED

WANTED

WANTED TO MEET—Intelligent attractive, athletic girl, at least 21 with adventurous spirit. Able to converse on wide range of subjects and interested in, or willing to learn about Mountaineering and rockclimbing. May lead to a summer trip to Tetons and Canadian Rockies. If interested, call 549-0818 ask for Tom.

WANTED: KEYPUNCHING DATA — Professors and students! Will keypunch your data and programs at $2.50 per hour. Verified, too! You supply cards. Call—Days—534-4061—Evenings 545-2692. Ask for Mrs. Sarah Tupper.

HELP WANTED

We need 25 people to work 25 hours per month to earn $25.00 per week. For interview, write Forest Park Post Office, P.O. Box 98, Springfield, Mass.

LOST

Tan men's trench coat size 38—Taken from coat rack in front of Ballroom in S.U. Tues. night March 7th. Please return to B. Hanelsen, 73 Butterfield Ter., Phone: 549-1233.

1967 class ring lost. At bottom of walk, going from Wheeler to So. Commons. On left side before dirt road. Reward. Call Bob, 101 Wheeler, 5-2412 or 5-2413.

For Rent

Room for Rent—Central Amherst location. Quiet study atmosphere. No kitchen facilities. Call AL 3-5024 after 3:00 p.m.

AUTOMOBILES

1967 Mustang, 8 cyl., 289 cu in., power steering, special int. and ext., 3-speed, white wall tires, radio, 3,500 mi. going in service. $2300. Call 545-2384 9 to 5.

FOR SALE

1964-1965 Honda 150 cc. Excellent running condition, new Perelli tires, new heavy duty clutch $300 or best offer over $250. Call Paul Korenberg, 726 Grayson, Tel. 546-7061.

OPPORTUNITIES

Interested in international communication and languages? Join the Esperanto Club in the Student Union, every Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

YOU LUCKY VW OWNERS — Keep your Volkswagon young. Send $1.00 for 56 page catalog on ways to increase the value and usefulness of your VW. Write to: RONNIMART, P.O. Box 75, Tremonton, Utah 84337.

GOING TO EUROPE???
BUY RENT OR LEASE ALL MAKES OF EUROPEAN CARS—For free information send name and address to: Michael Skaling, 147 Woodside Ave., Amherst. Campus Rep. for CAR-TOURS IN EUROPE.

Man wanted for packaging and shipping rodent supplies. Must provide own transportation: warehouse located ½ mile off campus. Apply in person to Mrs. Anne Pewatka, Old Conservation Bldg. Tel. 549-1252 for appointment. Must be available 1-5 p.m. 2 afternoons during week.

DRAFT INFORMATION
Counseling on Conscientious Objection
Tuesday, March 14 and March 21
1-5 p.m.
For Appointment phone: Mrs. Ferguson
S.U. Ext. 5-2789
Sponsored by
AMERICAN FRIENDS SERVICE COMMITTEE
and
UNITED CHRISTIAN FOUNDATION

TUESDAY NITE — MARCH 14
8-12 P.M.
Q - CLUB
with
"CRAZY JOHN"
and
THE "PLAYGIRLS"

HIGHWAY GRILL
40 Belchertown Rd.
Amherst
OPEN 11:00 A.M. TO 11:30 P.M.
COCKTAILS ARE SERVED.

D.V.P. presents
Bayard Rustin
and
Floyd McKissick
of C.O.R.E.
BLACK POWER
in the
GHETTO
—A Symposium— March 14 - 15 - 16

FRESHMEN-SOPHOMORES-JUNIORS
Applications now Available for the 1967
HOMECOMING COMMITTEE
APPLY IN THE R.S.O. OFFICE ON THE SECOND FLOOR OF THE STUDENT UNION.
APPLICATIONS MUST BE FILED BY MARCH 15.

Sports Week in Review

The Pro Shop

by STEVE ROSS

Basketball — The NBA playoffs, if held, promise to be the best yet. If the players and owners can agree on a pension plan, and that looks rather likely, the playoffs will start on March 21. The match-ups have not been decided, and there are several possibilities.

In the Eastern Division, New York's drive to secure third place suffered a severe jolt when steady sub Dave Stallworth sustained, of all things, a heart attack. He's out for the season and may never play again. Cincinnati can catch the Knicks with a streak this week and force them into a playoff with the Celtics.

A playoff with the Knicks would be more advantageous for the Celts, because they wouldn't be forced to play two sets of back-to-back games. The schedule with Cinci would force the Hub heroes to do just that. The third place team will meet the 76'ers.

San Francisco clinched first place in the West. The other four positions are up for grabs. St. Louis and Los Angeles are staging a battle for second place. The advantage of winning that battle will be that the winner will play a weaker club in the first round and have the odd game at home.

Chicago, all but out of the race a week ago, has staged a drive that caught Detroit. They are in a virtual tie for the final playoff spot, and Wednesday's meeting in the Windy City may well decide who qualifies for the playoffs.

Hockey — Chicago is steaming along towards its first regular season title. The Black Hawks have a huge lead over the fading New York Rangers and rising Toronto Maple Leafs. Montreal has a seven point edge over Detroit, and the Wings appear unable to string enough points to catch the Canucks. The Bruins are on the brink of mathematical elimination.

Bobby Hull is sneaking up on his record of 54 goals. Chicago's Golden Jet, despite an early season slow start caused by a painful hip injury, has been blinking the lamp with great proficiency as of late, and can set the mark if he can escape the shadows his opponents put on him.

Baseball — Exhibition games started this weekend and the biggest surprise was supplied by ex-playboy Bo Belinsky. Belinsky, pitching for the Houston Astros, hurled four shutout innings. With the exception of a no-hitter pitched five years ago, Bo was more noted for his action off the field than on it.

San Francisco's Juan Marichal is the only holdout. Marichal, a consistent 20-game winner, wants $125,000, but the Giants best offer is $35,000 short of that mark. Without Marichal, the Giants will have little chance of capturing the National League flag.

Football — Two good quarterbacks were traded this week in the NFL. Gary Cuozzo, recognized as the best back-up qb, was traded from Baltimore, where he was unhappy behind all-star Johnny Unitas, to the fledgling New Orleans Saints.

The Minnesota Vikings played Santa Claus for the rest of the loop by giving the New York Giants scrambler supreme Fran Tarkenton. The Giants give the Vikings three high draft choices and a player to be agreed upon later.

It has often been said that the New York franchise in the NFL must be a 'bag' team, i.e. a team that must be strong to project a favorable image of the league. With the good players the Giants have picked up by trade (Y. A. Tittle the most notable) this latest move leaves little doubt as to the validity of that charge.

The joint NFL-AFL draft will start Tuesday. It should be interesting to watch if the defensive stars go before the offensive ones. The first New England star to be drafted will be Harvard's Bobby Leo. Syracuse's Floyd Little may be the Patriots' first selection.

COMPLETE SERVICE
SAFE
MOVING
DEPENDABLE
STORAGE
EXPERT PACKING

Call
GLEASON
MAYFLOWER
Pearl St., Northampton
584-6413—for estimate

Mermen Sub-Par in Last Splash, Place 11th in New England

New Haven — UM's varsity swimming team finished 11th in a field of 20 in the New England Intercollegiate Swimming League championships this past weekend at So. Conn. College.

Winner of the meet was Amherst College (243.3 points), followed by host school So. Conn. College (231-8) and Wesleyan College (229.0).

UMass' point total of 46 was accounted for by diver Dave Larson with fifth spot in the one meter diving and seventh in the three-meter; Bob Asquith with sixth in the 200-yd. backstroke and seventh in the 100-yd. backstroke; and Captain Dick Lennon, who placed ninth in the 200-yd. breaststroke and tenth in the 100-yd. breaststroke. In addition, the 400-yd. medley relay team, consisting of Asquith, Lennon, Steve Levy, and Ken Nowak, finished in tenth place to complete UM's scoring. The final point total was, however, the highest amassed by a UMass squad in recent years.

A small measure of satisfaction was gained by the UMass mermen by placing ahead of Vermont. The UVM squad had barely nipped the Redmen in their dual meet during the regular season.

Girotti Named To Conference "All-Academic"

Junior forward Jim Girotti of UMass has been named to the Yan-Con all-academic basketball team.

Also named to the squad were high-scoring forward Terry Carr and center Hugh Campbell of Maine, Wes Bialosuknia of UConn, and sophomore guard Bob Jacobs of UVM. Bialosuknia and Carr were among the nation's ranking collegiate scorers with 28.6 and 21.9 averages, respectively.

ATTENTION GREEKS:

Voting For The Greek Week Queen

Finalists Will Be Tues., March 14, 1967

in the S.U. Lobby

9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Sport Coupe—comes in convertible version, too.

SS 396

Suddenly, you're elsewhere

One drive in an SS 396 and you'll find yourself committed to a new way of changing the scene. Chevrolet took its spirited new 325-horsepower V8 and teamed it with a special 3-speed full-synch transmission, put it all in a sleek Fisher Body . . . and there it is: Quick-Size departure from whatever's been boring you.

CHEVROLET
GM
MARK OF EXCELLENCE

There's a 350-horsepower version available for that extra kick and, as you'll quickly discover, the Turbo Hydra-Matic is the most advanced transmission Chevrolet has ever offered. Shift it yourself, or put it on "D" and forget it.

SS 396. Wastes very little time getting you where you'd rather be.

Try it now during Chevy's Bonanza Sale at your Chevrolet dealer's

THE SEASON THAT WAS...

Kjeldsen Sees Bright Future for Gymnastics

by TIM MURPHY
Staff Reporter

"Successful?"

"Yes, I think we were successful," began Erik Kjeldsen, UMass gymnastics coach, as he leaned back in his swivel chair and put his hands behind his head.

"My criterion of success is progress," he continued, "and in this past season we showed progress in almost everything. We moved up a notch to sixth in the E.I.G.L., which may not seem too impressive."

"But," he added hastily, "you have to remember we're only in our third year in the league. I think it's pretty good."

"We also placed two men in the nationals and in our last meet with Syracuse, we averaged 8.0." The 8.0 individual composite is significant because it represented the first time in UMass history that Redmen gymnasts had broken the eight-point barrier. Also with three men on each of the seven events averaging eight points per performance, the gymnastics team was able to set a school record with 168 points.

Kjeldsen smiled when he spoke about the trampoline troupe. "Toby Kasava, Al Carver, our captain, and Tom Adams were a great source of pride simply because of the progress they showed. In our first league meet, the three made a total of just a little over 15 points on the event. Against Syracuse, the same three improved enough to merit 22 points. That is success."

Syracuse, Army Highlights

Besides the win over Syracuse, Kjeldsen listed the Redmen's early season loss to Army as a highlight. "The boys really conducted themselves well that time," he said. UMass lost to the Cadets, 164-162.

The Redmen began the season inauspiciously enough. Traveling to Southern Connecticut, the gymnasts ran into an unexpectedly formidable SC squad, barely scraping by with a 156-150 win. Then came the loss to Army.

During a pre-intercession swing through Pennsylvania, UM performed in a losing cause before 7000 persons at Penn. State. The Redmen went down, 183-158, but distinguishing themselves were Dick Dauphinais, recently injured during the E.I.G.L. finals at Springfield College, with an 8.75 for second place on the floor exercise; Fred Bebakian as he turned in an 8.65 on the side-horse to tie for top spot; and Steve Brown, who with a 9.0, topped all comers on the parallels.

Pittsburgh was next and marked the Redmen's first league win. Umass cast the die and the Steelers went down, 149-142. In that contest, which represented UMass' poorest showing of the year, Bob Leclair took the side horse with 7.85, Carver the trampoline with 7.15, Brown the parallels with 8.35 and Dick DelGallo the rings with an identical 8.35.

After a layoff of about a month the gymnasts were back to the apparati against Temple, a staunch machine which placed third in the E.I.G.L. The Redmen lost, 176-159.

Springfield Bumps Redmen

Four days later, Springfield College brought its E.I.G.L. co-champion Maroons to Boyden to engage a Kjeldsen crew still smarting from the Temple grilling. A full gallery watched as the methodic Maroons rolled through the seven events, gradually building their lead to 16 points for a 182-166 win. While losing, however, UMass rolled up its highest meet score of the season to that date.

UMass gymnastics record

UMass vs. Southern Conn.	156-150
UMass vs. Army	162-164
UMass vs. Penn State	158-183
UMass vs. Pittsburgh	149-142
UMass vs. Temple	159-176
UMass vs. Springfield	166-182
UMass vs. Navy	162-173
UMass vs. Syracuse	168-161

Dauphinais again was superb in the floor exercise as he garnered 8.75 points on the event to nail down second place. The only man to beat him was SC co-captain Bob Cargill, who later in the campaign went to place third in the all around in the E.I.G.L. finals to qualify for the National finals at Southern Illinois.

Bebakian was true to his season-long form on the side horse, placing second to Tom Auchterlonei with a 9.0. Leclair was third with 8.3.

Brown went to the high bar and came away with second place as he recorded an 8.3. Minutes later he annexed an 8.8 on the long horse vault and was followed closely by Carver with 8.5. Dave March cut his routine for an 8.5 on the parallels to place third while DelGallo followed suit on the rings with an 8.5 for the same position.

If the Maroons were unkind, Navy was inhospitable. The Midshipmen, who finished in a tie for fourth in the league with Army, scuttled the Redmen, 173-162, at Annapolis.

On the long horse vault, UMass cut a swathe through the Navy Gym in compiling a 29.9 total. Carver led the troup with 9.0 and was followed by Clarence Fraser's 8.5 and Leclair's 7.95. Kjeldsen's previously mentioned trampoline trio turned in a collective 20.05, best of the year to that date. On the high bar, Brown picked up second place with 7.85 and Carver was third with 7.65.

DelGallo, who earlier in the meet was fourth in the floor exercise, performed for an 8.9 on the rings for second place. Leclair's 8.75 on the side horse was the best UMass score on the event. His showing was worth third place.

E. I. G. L. Finals

Finishing their regularly scheduled dual meets for the season, the Redmen entertained Syracuse and handled the Orangemen by 168-161. With a collage of experience behind them, Kjeldsen's boys set a school record for total points in a meet. Contributing heavily to the record-setting performance were Dauphinais, whose 9.15 in the floor exercise was his best of the season; Bebakian with a spectacular 9.15 on the side horse for first place; Brown with 8.7 on the parallels; and, again, the trampoline men, who composited a 24 points.

Gymnastics team captain John Carver (left) and Coach Erik Kjeldsen.

Ending the season of dual meets at 2-5, the Redmen were among the schools from all over the East competing at Springfield College in the combination E.I.G.L. finals and NCAA qualifications.

Both Bebakian and Leclair qualified for the finals of the NCAA on the side horse. Penn State had aplomb enough to knock off Springfield in the team competition to force a tie for the E.I.G.L. title.

"Next season," predicted Kjeldsen, "anybody who beats us will have to be a good team. The freshmen will be a great help to us and next year with Joe Reed we will have the first six event all around man ever here."

The all around man competes on all events but the trampoline. For each event he performs on, at times he can be scratched, the team is able to place another competitor in the event.

"Based on this year's showing and with those freshmen, I am looking forward to even more rapid advancement in the league," said Kjeldsen. "We will have added depth because, up to this point, if the first three men on an event broke, we were in trouble. A fourth good man will act as a sort of buffer," he continued.

"We will have several outstanding individuals, but none like a Cargill," said Kjeldsen. "Our immediate goal is to move up in the standings, to overtake Army and Navy, which finished just ahead of us."

Front Row (left to right): DelGallo, Dauphinais, Weeds, Estes, Carver, Adams, Babakian, Webb, Selbert. Back Row (left to right): Assistant Coach Henderson, Manager Mike Kasavana, Sward, LeClair, Brown, Bradbury, Fraser, Toby Kasavana, Vaugh, March, MacLeod and Coach Erik Kjeldsen.

Women Gymnasts Win 3-Way Meet

The UMass women's junior varsity gymnastics team took four firsts, three seconds and two thirds Saturday at Wrentham to ground Arnold College and King Philip High School in a three way meet. The women registered 80.8 points in the meet and the other two schools ran far behind.

Leading UMass performances were turned in by Marge Smith, who placed first on the floor exercise with an 8.2; Ruth Morse, first on the balance beam with 8.15 and double winner Leslie Gallion with 7.25 on the vault and 8.1 on the uneven bars.

Other performances of merit were those of Louise Oczkowski on the uneven bars and Linda Binney on the balance beam. Both finished second and carded scores of 7.45 and 7.5 points respectively.

The junior varsity's last meet is Saturday at 7 p.m. against Tantasqua Regional High School at Boyden Auxiliary Gym.

The varsity's final encounter is Wednesday the 22nd against Southern Illinois and Southern Connecticut Gym Club here.

Next Issue:

Hockey

STUDENTS Support
The C.I.A.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Collegian
Information
Association
Dial the 'Hot Line'
52550

VOL. XCV, NO. 55 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1967

Harvey S. Liszt of Morristown, N.J. second from right, learns from UMass President John W. Lederle that he has won a 1967 Woodrow Wilson Fellowship. Honorable mention fellows were, left to right, Eloise A. Chicoine of Easthampton; Kenneth A. Hardy of Swampscott and, at far right, John B. Baillieul of Southwick. Liszt is among 1259 from the U.S. and Canada to receive the 1967 fellowship from the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation. The awards pay tuition and fees for one academic year of graduate education, plus a $2000 stipend and allowances for dependent children.

Guaranteed Loan Program Available to Students

By PAMELA METAXAS
Staff Reporter

There is a new guaranteed loan program available to UMass students according to Robert J. Morrissey, Director of Placement & Financial Aid Services. It is a supplement to the National Defense Loan Program.

Morrissey explained that last year under the Higher Education Act of 1965, the Federal government instituted "a guaranteed loan program in the state of Massachusetts." The student can obtain the loan from a commercial bank or from a credit agency in amounts up to $1,000 annually.

The guarantee comes in because the federal government guarantees the bank for a large percentage of the principal and guarantees to pay the interest.

Providing parents' income is under $15,000, the Federal Government will pay the interest on the loan while the student is in college and will pay the first three percent of interest after graduation.

These loans require a certificate of attendance from the University Office of Placement and Financial Aid and are "considered part of the financial aid packet. In other words, these loans may be distributed in conjunction with other loans.

For five years this help loan has been in effect but prior the students worked off-campus and had to get the loan direct from the bank.

He noted that his office deals with a great many student applicants. "We never have enough money to go around for the students that ask for it . . . we must use our best judgement for distributing this money," he concluded.

WOMEN'S JUDICIARY

Nomination papers for Women's Judiciary are in the R.S.O. office. They must be returned by Friday, March 17.

Openings for Class of '69 and '70.

Senior Honors Policy For Grades Clarified

by MICHELLE KACZY
Staff Reporter

The annual report of the Academic Matters Committee was submitted to The Faculty Senate, last Thursday. This report contained a list of approved policies governing the grading of candidates for senior honors work. These policies were as follows:

1. A Senior Honors student registers for 0 credits in the first semester and 6 credits in the second semester of his work.

2. A student dropping at the end of the fall semester will receive no grade, and no alteration of transcript need be made. He simply does not register for the second half of the course.

3. A student registering for the second semester.
   a. will receive honors if a grade of A or B is awarded.
   b. will be switched to "Special Problems" if a grade of C or below is awarded.

4. A student may receive a W.P. in the second semester, but he will be switched to "Special Problems."

5. No W.P.'s will be awarded after April 1 of the second semester (of an equivalent time during the first semester, if the student is out of phase).

6. A grade of Incomplete may be awarded under the University regulations covering such grades.

7. Split grades for Honors are not awarded. One grade covers the whole program.

The opportunity to participate in senior honors studies is usually restricted by cumulative average, and recommendations from advisors and faculty. Seventy-eight honor theses were completed in the class of 1966. This year, 116 students are presently working in a senior honors program.

Opinion Survey to Review Existing UMass Regulations

The Women's Affairs Committee of the Student Senate will be distributing an opinion survey on Rules and Regulations Wednesday, March 15. Topics included in the survey are freshmen curfews; closing hours; open house, including the area of open or closed doors, the functioning of standards committees; and other areas of concern.

The Women's Affairs Committee hopes to get as large a return as possible to get an adequate reflection of rule changes desired by undergraduate women.

On Tuesday, March 21, an Area Meeting for the women living in residence halls in the Quad, Orchard Hill, and Van Meter will be held in the Commonwealth Room of the Student Union. A similar meeting will be held in the Southwest Dining Commons #5 Monday, March 20.

The purpose of these meetings is to give every undergraduate woman a chance to express her opinion on the value and necessity of the present rules and regulations. Topics to be discussed are "Freshmen Curfew—Who Needs It and Why", "Sign-in Procedures—Do they Work", "Open Doors—Why?"

The Women's Affairs Committee of the Student Senate is the representative of all undergraduate women in the University with relation to women's residential hall living. In order to be effective it requires that all undergraduate women express their views on rules and regulations so that they might best express changes in the rules and regulations desired by the women of the campus.

The Women's Affairs Committee upon tabulation of the poll results and views expressed in the Area Meetings will present its recommendations to the proper University authorities for rule changes.

In Today's Collegian

UMass Debaters 2
Associated Press News 3
Editorials 4
Letters 4, 5
UT Tryouts 6
Sports 8, 9, 10

Jimmy Heuga of the University of Colorado was America's best skier at the North American Alpine Races last weekend at Cannon Mountain, N.H. But—"comme d'habitude" — someone else stole the thunder. Voyez page 9 for exclusive Collegian coverage of one of the world's most prestigious ski events.

Leary's Associate

Alpert to Speak on Psychedelics

The Southwest College Council, with the assistance of the Valley Center in Northampton, is sponsoring a talk by Dr. Richard Alpert, eminent psychologist and associate of Timothy Leary, on Sunday, March 19, at 8:00 p.m. in Southwest Dining Commons No. 7.

Preceeding Dr. Alpert's talk, on Thursday, March 16 at 8:30 p.m. in Southwest Dining Commons No. 5 there will be a panel discussion. The panelists will consider some of the positive and useful aspects of psychedelics which are sometimes overlooked; as well as some of the many dangers of these drugs which are sometimes underemphasized by Dr.'s Alpert and Leary.

The panel will consist of six members: Dr. Daniel Bennett, associate professor of philosophy at the University; Dr. Joseph Havens, psychologist at the University Health Services, who has done extensive research on the subject of psychedelics; Steven Nasuta who holds a batchelors degree in psychology and a masters degree in philosophy and has had associations with Dr. Timothy Leary; Paul Provasoli, Louis Musto, and Thaddeus Dobrowski —all of the Valley Center and the University.

The panel which will encourage audience participation, will be considering such questions as: The dangers of LSD; Who should —take, distribute, control—psychedelic drugs; Is the LSD state reality or illusion? LSD and its connections with: society, psychiatry, education, personality, creativity, and the future.

Dr. Alpert and Dr. Timothy Leary first ignited the psychedelic revolution at Harvard University in 1963. He left Harvard soon after in the midst of a widely publicized and raging controversy. Since then in following his interest in the religious aspects of psychedelic drugs, Dr. Alpert has co-founded the International Foundation for Internal Freedom (IFIF), and the League of Spiritual Discovery (LSD). He has also co-authored with Dr. Leary and Dr. Ralph Metzner: The Psy-

(Continued on page 6)

Tour Proves Successful For UMass Debate Team

Professor Ronald J. Matlon, debate coach at the University of Massachusetts has announced the results of recent accomplishments of the debate squad. On March 3rd and 4th, the University of Massachusetts had the top novice affirmative record at City College of New York. Representing the University were Marlene Fine, a freshman from Deal Park, New Jersey, and Matt Novak, a freshman from Saxonville, Massachusetts. Marlene and Matt had a perfect 5-0 record, as they defeated teams from Hampton Institute, Rosemont, Delaware, Newark Engineering, and Catholic University. Matt Novak got a rank of one in 4 out of 5 debates, and accumulated 104 out of a possible 150 speaker points, which made him the 9th best novice speaker in the tournament with 112 speakers in the novice division.

On the negative side at the CCNY tournament were Mark Goodman, a freshman from New Bedford, Massachusetts, and Dan Brown, a freshman from New Bedford. Dan and Mark went 2-3 as they beat teams from Fordham Education and Rhode Island College, but lost to Bronx Community, Rosemont, and the United States Military Academy.

The combined efforts of Marlene, Matt, Mark, and Dan boosted the novice unit to a 7-3 record, and fourth place in the tournament, just speaker points shy from winning third place.

At the same CCNY tournament, Sue Zwilling, a freshman from Ludlow, Massachusetts, and John Putnam, a junior from Southwick, Massachusetts, accumulated a 4-2 record in the power-matched varsity division. They placed fifth in the division by beating teams from Brooklyn, Rhode Island College, Bloomsburg State, and Delaware, and losing only to Virginia and Iona.

Meanwhile, in far-away Detroit, James Taylor, in the class of 1970 from Shrewsbury, Massachusetts, and Steve Daggett, class of 1970 from Wellesley, Massachusetts, were only a few speaker points shy from qualifying for the quarter-finals at the Wayne State Tournament. They won debates from Minnesota, Vanderbilt, Bowling Green, Lansing Community, but lost to Wayne State and Kent State for a very respectable 4-2 record. Meanwhile, Pat Smith, a freshman from Glen Head, New York, and Jim Tripp, a freshman from Edgartown, Massachusetts went 2-4 at Wayne State, beating Indiana and Eastern Michigan, but losing to Kentucky, Albion, Maryland, and Illinois at Chicago.

Views of America

Some frank comments about Americans came from a Nigerian who'd spent a number of months recently in Amherst. Samuel A. Omenai aimed at taking a cool-headed look at this country's citizens when he wrote in a 75-page report that "American citizens have many faults (who hasn't?)."

But that was only half the picture. He found just as many virtues.

Omenai, the spokesman for his delegation at the farewell luncheon for the UMass International Training Program participants last fall, spoke honestly of his fear that he would personally feel the pricks of discrimination during his time here. Nothing of that sort had happened to him. But, on his return he wrote, "It was surprising for me to see that the problem of race relations still exists in such a civilized country."

It was also a surprise, he wrote to note:

". . . that some Americans still considered anything not American as worthless, especially when it concerned Africa."

". . . that even educated Americans still used the term "tribe" in a derogatory manner, as of old."

He also noted that "the American, even some of the well educated, were ignorant of certain obvious things outside the U.S."

Then he hastened to add an even longer list of admirable traits.

"The American works very hard, eats very well, and loves plenty of recreation."

"His continued search for improvements."

(Record Week Reprint)

CHARLES P. ANGWENYI

Commentary On Tanzania

The International Club, in cooperation with African Students Association, will present a film entitled "The Quiet Revolution in Tanzania," Wednesday, March 15, at 6:30 p.m.

The film introduces Tanzania as a newly developing African nation struggling to revolutionalize and change its economic and political systems, and emphasizes the changes in new models of political development and economic progress for Africa.

Mr. Charles Angwenyi, President of the African Students Association and Ph.D. candidate at the Economics Department, will make a few remarks on recent political and economic changes in Africa with reference to Tanzania as a model.

The program is part of a series to acquaint American students with newly developing nations.

International Club coffee hour will precede the program at 5:30 p.m. in the Governor's lounge. Everyone is invited to attend.

Computer Flunks In Grading Students

A computer flunked arithmetic at the university of Maryland, and many students were relieved to hear about it.

R. Lee Hornbake, academic vice president, said an error in programming had caused the computer to turn out incorrect grade averages for several hundred students.

For some the computer's mistake seemed to lower their averages to a level requiring probation or dismissal from the university.

(N.Y. Times Reprint)

If You See News in the Making Dial

545-2550

Symphony Band to Present Contemporary Music Concert

The University of Massachusetts Symphony Band will present its first concert of the 1967 season in Bowker Auditorium on Sunday, March 19, at 4 p.m.

Directed by John A. Jenkins and Larry V. Weed, the band is composed of 70 members, and has been preparing for this concert since last fall.

The concert preceeds a three-day tour of Massachusetts during spring vacation, presenting two or three concerts a day on tour, the band will use the numbers from Sunday's selections in addition to other lighter pieces. Sunday's program is characterized by unique examples of original band works composed within the last century.

Mr. Jenkins will open the program with the spirited Montmartre March by Haydn Wood. The Divertimento For Band by Vincent Persichetti will follow. This is a work of six short movements, serious in tone, but with an unusual lightness and delicacy of texture.

Making his first appearance directing the Symphony Band is Mr. Larry Weed, new to the University's music department this year. In addition to assisting the Symphony Band, Mr. Weed, an excellent trombone player himself, conducts the concert band, which will perform in May.

Mr. Weed will direct Percy Grainger's Lincolnshire Posy, a collection of English folk tunes. Grainger is considered one of the most experienced arrangers of the tonal aspects of the symphony band.

The highlight of the second half will be the Symphony No. 3 by Vittorio Gianinni. This is a massive sounding work in four very diversified movements requiring the greatest control by the performers.

The public is cordially invited to attend this first concert given by the Symphony Band, a group that is an outstanding part of the University's music program.

Grad Students Lose Papers In Conservation Building Fire

The spectacular fire which destroyed the Conservation building in early February struck a tragic note for Barry Parker and William Ramage, two graduate students in Art whose master's thesis productions had been stored in the basement.

The Master of Fine Arts degree, only a few years old at U-Mass, is a continuation of undergraduate work on a more professional level. Candidates for the degree are required to give a thesis exhibit of their works. Several months prior to this they must submit for approval a written statement of the intention of the showing and undergo an oral examination.

The entire content of Barry Parker's work which was stored in the building was reduced to ashes. He describes his productions as "polychrome geometric sculpture." Although he will be unable to have the usual public showing, he will have a small private exhibit, possibly in Coolidge Lower where he and his wife, Rita, are heads of residence.

Parker will still receive his MFA this spring. He received his B.A. at Eastern Michigan University and plans to begin teaching next year at St. Cloud's College, Minnesota.

William Ramage was more fortunate. His work consisted of 8 life-size human figures made of gypsum which were all badly scorched. He is now working to salvage his pieces by cleaning and resealing them.

Since the plaster is calsized, they may require painting before they are exhibited this spring. William is married and lives in Florence. He graduated from the Philadelphia College of Art and plans to teach next year.

NOTICE

All Stockbridge freshmen who are going on placement this month and have not signed up for dorm next year must do so by Friday, March 17, before 5:00 p.m. at Housing Office.

SOPHOMORES

CLASS MEETING

and

PRESS CONFERENCE

THURS., MARCH 16, 6:15 P.M.

BOWKER AUD.

TOPICS FOR DISCUSSION

WINTER CARNI '68

CLASS RINGS

PLAYBOY NITE

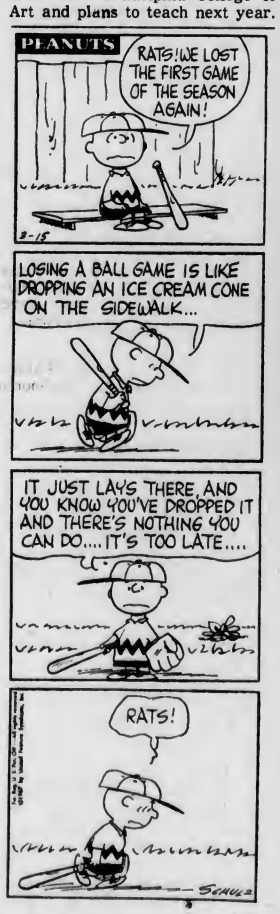
Meeting the Playmates

CAMPUS CHEST

A SURPRISE!

IT IS YOUR CLASS !

if she doesn't give it to you...



—get it yourself!

JADE EAST®

Cologne, 6 oz., $4.50
After Shave, 6 oz., $3.50
Deodorant Stick, $1.75
Buddha Cologne Gift Package, 12 oz., $8.50
Spray Cologne, $3.50
Buddha Soap Gift Set, $4.00
Cologne, 4 oz., $3.00
After Shave, 4 oz., $2.50

SWANK, NEW YORK – SOLE DISTRIBUTOR

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

National

PERRY RUSSO, Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison's key informant, faces cross-examination in his testimony that he heard Lee Harvey Oswald and two others plot to assassinate President Kennedy.

* * *

PRESIDENT JOHNSON, visiting Tennessee, lauds Andrew Jackson for believing "the national government represented the people, not the states."

* * *

A BOYCOTT by Negro and white parents has kept more than 1,000 children out of an elementary school in Harlem, and parents say they plan to continue it until their demands are met.

Vietnam

WITH 6,000 POUNDS OF BOMBS on board, Capt. Curt Richie's 25-ton jet hurtled down the Da Nang runway. Communist rocket fragments smash into his left engine. Quick action averts disaster.

* * *

THE U.S. COMMAND reports 19 Americans are wounded when the Communists hit the Da Nang air base with rockets.

Washington

SEN. THOMAS J. DODD says he has had no takers on his offers of cash refunds to testimonial-ticket buyers who may have thought the money would be used only for campaign expenses.

* * *

DENIALS OF A CUSS-WORD confrontation between President Johnson and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy bring heightened hostility.

* * *

A NUCLEAR PHYSICIST says large-scale use of antiballistic missile defense systems would threaten the survival of all inhabitants of the Northern Hemisphere.

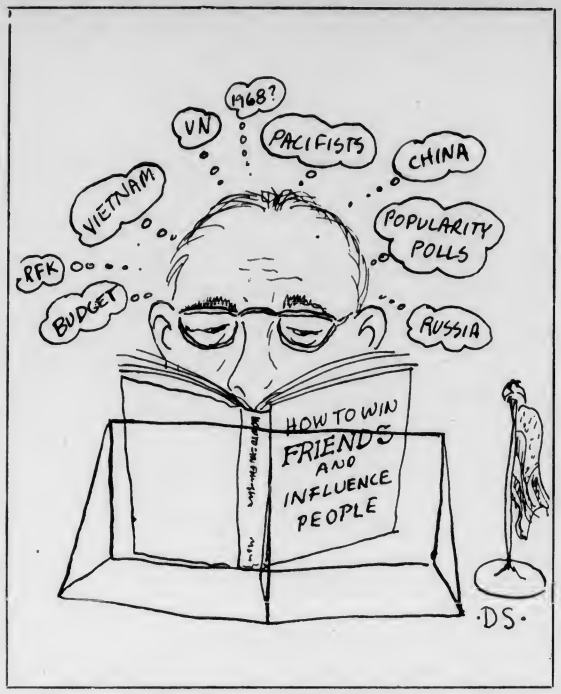
* * *

THE FEDERAL government bemoans the drain of U.S. gold to foreign countries—but don't think that means it wants travelers abroad to bring gold home.

* * *

REP. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., disclosed Tuesday on the floor of the U.S. House that he had received a fund raising appeal from the Democrats. He said he turned it down.

Powell



ADAM CLAYTON POWELL reportedly is still planning to come to New York Sunday despite a court's action which could bring about his arrest.

* * *

SOME CONGRESSMEN say that, if Powell is re-elected and the House moves again to exclude him, the double jeopardy provision of the Constitution may be violated.

International

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S proposal of $1.5 billion in aid for the Latin-American Common Market kicks up storm clouds at the meeting planning the April summit conference. "Ridiculously low," says a Latin diplomat.

V.C. Rockets Blaze Trail For US Counter Missiles

SAIGON (AP) — Communist gunners firing from a maximum range of seven miles unloaded 15 big rockets on the giant U.S. air base at Da Nang today and had to flee under a hail of return fire less than two minutes later.

Stung by a similar rocket attack on the base two and a half weeks ago, the Marines were alert for this one. Radar-directed gunfire was being laid on the Red launching positions within 120 seconds of the first explosion inside the base, U.S. spokesmen reported.

A U.S. spokesman announcing the casualties admitted somewhat sheepishly that technically none were wounded.

"There was a sort of mad dash for the bunkers up there," he said. "The casualties were all sprained backs, scraped knees and things like that. That is why we used the word injured."

The three planes will be repaired, the spokesman said.

In the last rocket attack on Da Nang Feb. 27, the first in which the Communists used the 140mm weapons, the Reds fired 52 rounds into the base and an adjacent civilian village, killed 12 Americans and 32 South Vietnamese and wounded 35 Americans and 70 Vietnamese.

Other significant items listed in the daily military communique included a ground sweep in the Kontum area by U. S. 4th Infantry Division soldiers in which 17 Americans were killed and 26 were wounded Tuesday, and the salvage of a Communist arms-running trawler that has already disgorged 700 Chinese carbines and a small arsenal of other arms and ammunition.

U. S. pilots hit North Vietnam with 116 missions Tuesday and four destroyers pounded the North Vietnamese coast. One destroyer was fired upon but silenced the Communist shore battery without damage to itself.

Kennedy Committee To Study Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., says a Senate inquiry that begins Thursday will seek to determine "the impact of military service on American youth."

Kennedy is a member of the Senate Labor Employment, Manpower and Poverty subcommittee which he said will study the draft system with an eye to compiling an extensive record before the Senate considers "revision of the draft laws between now and June."

Briefs

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — East German Communist party chairman Walter Ulbricht and other government leaders arrived today to sign a friendship treaty with Poland in an effort to shore up East German prestige despite the West German political offensive in Eastern Europe.

Ulbricht and Polish leaders are scheduled to sign the treaty Wednesday. It provides mutual military assistance against any attempt by West Germany to change by force German or Polish borders which Bonn does not recognize. Ulbricht is expected to sign a similar treaty with Czechoslovakia in Prague Thursday.

Bonn recently established diplomatic ties with Romania and is expected to do the same with Bulgaria and Hungary.

MANILA (AP) — Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel left for Tokyo today after a two-day official visit to the Phillippines which was marred by anti-Israel demonstrations.

Eban canceled a speech at the University of the Phillippines this morning because university authorities feared trouble from 100 placard-carrying Moslem students who were waiting for him to appear.

Oswald, Ferrie, Shaw Linked in JFK Death

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Perry Raymond Russo, who testified he heard Lee Harvey Oswald and two others plot to assassinate Pres. John F. Kennedy, faces cross - examination today by defense lawyers.

Before court reopened, mystery surrounding this "confidential informant" thickened.

The riddle:

Russo, 25, an insurance salesman from Baton Rouge, told the court he was in the apartment of David W. Ferrie here in Sept. 1963 and listened to the three men conspire to kill the president and escape.

But two weeks ago, shortly after Ferrie died of what the coronor termed natural causes and Garrison maintained was suicide, Russo told a newsman from New Orleans TV station WDSU that Ferrie never mentioned Oswald's name to him, adding, "I had never heard of Oswald until on TV . . .ahh. . .the assassination."

Yet in an interview earlier with a Baton Rouge TV station, Russo explained he never came forth with his information before because, "I left it to professionals. . .when they came out with Oswald was the man. Then I forgot it."

Russo told the court that Ferrie proposed flying the getaway plane into Mexico to refuel for a flight to Cuba. Russo said Shaw interrupted to say that as soon as the shots were fired "the world would know about it," and there would be no way to get the plane out of Mexico. Russo quoted Oswald as telling Shaw to "shut up. Leave him (Ferrie) alone. He knows what he's talking about. He's the pilot."

But when Russo was asked by a newsman earlier whether he thought Ferrie might have nad anything to do with the assassination, he replied: "Well, that I don't know and it would be just speculation.

Kennedy was killed in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963—two months after the alleged meeting in Ferrie's apartment. The Warren Commission decided that Oswald was the lone assassin and there was no credible evidence of any conspiracy.

No Takers for Dodd Refunds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd says he has had no takers on his offer of cash refunds to persons who may have bought tickets to testimonials for him under the impression the money would be used only for his campaign expenses.

That was the Connecticut Democrat's rely to a reporter's question as the Senate ethics committee indicated it is nearing the end of its presentation of evidence in the investigation of Dodd's financial affairs.

Benjamin R. Fern, the bipartisan committee's chief counsel, said as of now he plans to call only three more witnesses. Two, Terry Golden and Michael V. O'Hare, are former employees of Dodd. The third, Edward Lockett, was hired to ghostwrite for the senator a book about subversion.

The committee heard six witnesses Tuesday, including political allies of the senator who testified that funds they helped raise for him at dinners, receptions and other events were for Dodd to use as he saw fit.

Dodd told the Senate last week that not a single donor to any of these functions "has ever contended that they thought they were contributing to my campaign" for re-election in 1964.

The calling of O'Hare, Dodd's former office manager, indicated the committee was going to take up allegations that the senator was reimbursed both by the Senate and private organizations for a number of trips.

Dodd has acknowledged seven instances of double billing, but he put the blame on O'Hare, whom he called "probably one of the most inefficient and sloppy bookkeepers who ever lived."

JFK Re-interred In New Memorial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The body of President John F. Kennedy was transferred without ceremony Tuesday night from the temporary grave it has occupied since his assassination in 1963 to its permanent resting place in a granite memorial a few yards away.

The new Kennedy grave, like the old, is on a hillside in Arlington National Cemetery across the Potomac River from Washington.

The torch which has burned with only a few interruptions since the original burial on Nov. 26, 1963, was transferred to the memorial gravesite. Its flickering light will be visible from the Lincoln Memorial on the Washington side of the river.

ATTENTION
NEWS STAFF

There is a mandatory News Staff meeting at 6:00 on Thursday, March 16 in Collegian office. All new and old staffers must attend.

News Editor

Powell Risks Jail Sentence in U. S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell was reported today still planning to return to New York fom the Bahamas Sunday despite a court's refusal to consider an appeal from his criminal contempt citation which makes him subject to arrest in the state.

Powell's attorney, Henry R. Williams, said, "I'm sure he the sheriff knows that if he makes an arrest on Sunday, he will have violated the law."

"Under state law," said Williams, "all Sabbath-day arrests are prohibited except in misdemeanors or felonies. This is a civil offense. The judge who issued the arrest order last November made a mistake."

The arrest order against Powell was issued last Nov. 28 by State Supreme Court Justice Arthur Markewich after a jury had found that Powell had deliberately violated two orders calling for his appearance in court after he had lost a defamation of character suit to a Harlem widow.

Powell was found guilty of criminal contempt after the jury verdict and an arrest order was issued. He is subject to a maximum jail sentence of 90 days under this contempt order.

There are two other arrest orders outstanding against him for civil contempt in the defamation case which together carry a maximum jail sentence of seven months.

Powell, who has been excluded from his House seat, will run in a special election April 11.

Collegian Wire News Staff

EDITOR: Richard S. Kline

STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Roupenian
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini

Editorial Section — Campus Comment

Support Critique

Sometimes we wonder who does what for whom on this campus; well, on a publication, the staff works for the students—on most publications.

It is painfully ironic that Critique, the university course guide based on student evaluation of course content and structure, lacks the student staff with which to perform its valuable and (as it should be vital service to the college community.

The Student Communications Board, well aware of Critique's needs, has made recommendations for a better organized, smoother functioning organization—which will ultimately result in a better publication. These include the appointment of at least one person to coordinate Critique's operation. The responsibilities of a coordinator would be to establish contacts within the Schools of Education, Journalism, and Business who would work with him to develop resource pools of interested student contributors. A major problem is thus eliminated, for the members of these resource pools would not be burdened with functions unrelated to their specific field of interest.

We believe that an operation based on these recommendations would be successful.

No one group of students (or any individual) would be overtaxed with responsibilities and each person would be allowed to work in an area of specific interest to himself. There would still be room for general staff members to handle areas that do not fall under the jurisdiction of any of the above schools.

Critique's organization is improving, and, inevitably, Critique is growing.

Since critique is an expression of student opinion, it seems logical that students should aid in making that expression possible.

Critique needs people—and we are still of the opinion that "people" means you.

D-Flat

by MIKE GOULD, Editorial Staff

The requirements for admission to the UMass graduate school specify a 2.75 overall cume. The realization that a student's major courses constitute only 25% of his total grade point average makes this criterion one of considerable controversial potentiality.

A tear-jerking case in point: My good friend Sam Specialist is a senior at UM who seeks to continue his study of physics here next fall. Sam has a 3.4 cume in his field of endeavor and a 2.6 overall. Barring his discovery of new element, however, Mr. Specialist will be refused admission to UMass grad school.

Sam thinks this unfair, especially when he considers the nature of the course which proved the downfall of his quest for the magical 2.75. The guy was never noted as being sharp in Music Appreciation. In fact, his mark of "D" was written as a D-flat on his post-semester cume card. A rose is a rose, however, and Sam has hated Beethoven ever since as the man who kept him out of grad school.

It was not Ludwig alone however, who did the deed. Rembrandt was an accomplice. You see, poor Sam couldn't tell a Dutch Master's from a Charles Close if he saw 1,000 cigar commercials. His "F" in History of Art was colored with frustration.

We have learned from psychology that an individual's learning ability is not constant with respect to subject matter. Those proficient at the sciences are not necessarily as able to deal with the works of John Milton or Plato. Likewise, the Shakespeare lover may be going forever downhill with the concept of sliding friction.

Should the fact that one is neither motivated nor endowed in a few particular fields of study with which he must tangle at a liberally-minded institution cost him a chance to advance in the area in which he is both fascinated and skilled?

The idea of a liberal education in which one comes in contact with several of the magical facets of life which make it worth living is unquestioned. Likewise is the validity of the graduate school requirement which considers the student's work in several areas of study, if and only if the graduate school curriculum continues in this liberal vein.

This is not the case at present. The grad student is versed in one specified area of study. His liberal education is not left behind, rather if tags along much like a shadow, staying with him always but not serving him in a truly functional sense, as he concentrates his studies in one field.

Without under-estimating the need for a varied, liberal education, let us not let this concept interfere with those people whose abilities and motivations are directed in a specific direction. Let their talents be recognized. Any intrinsic sacrifices which might be involved in such action would bear fruit in the future.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
A.P. Wire Editor ..... Richard Kline '70

Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Bolliver '68
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Wednesday's Day Editors News—Janet Caroprese; Sports—Steve Lotterman; Editorial—P. R. Hallock; AP Wire Editor—Richard Kline

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Trivia

To the Editor:

This seems to be the latest fad among college students and Massachusetts state legislators.

I am appalled by the recent bill introduced by Rep. Charles Iannello of Boston that would establish a dress code here at the University and at other state colleges.

UMass is one of the few reputable state institutions that is operated with any degree of efficiency, and it seems ridiculous that she should be victimized by legislators who haven't anything better to do than to ruin a good thing.

If this bill were to be passed UMass could easily become the servant of every petty legislator who wishes to add another passed bill to his record.

It is to be hoped that she will not become campaign material for those who aren't deserving of the public office they hold.

I urge Mr. Iannello to direct his legislative power towards the real problems facing our state or to give his office up to someone who will.

Bert M. Rappaport

"If Not Stupid—Naive"

To the Editor:

A reply to John Shoemaker's letter of the 13th. Mr. Shoemaker:

Your letter to the Editor has left many questions unanswered. You stated that you would challenge the recent protests against the war in South Vietnam—in what way did you "actually examine all the facts" and reach the conclusion that we belong in that country?

Speaking as some of the "naive if not stupid" individuals we would like to attempt to explain some of these facts to you.

1. You spoke of freedom of speech and freedom to demonstrate, but as stated in the Declaration of Independence, "Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just Powers from the consent of the governed." Former Pres. Eisenhower in his book Mandate for Change, has stated that if Vietnam was allowed free elections, as called for by the Geneva Convention, 80% of the country would have voted Communistic. Did we not interfere with the "Men" of Vietnam instituting the government the governed wanted?

2. Who are the allies that we must give "reassurance" to? Our traditional allies are not in Vietnam, they are of the opinion that we do not belong there either.

3. In what way is Communism "a serious threat to our way of life?" The U.S. has troops all around the world, in forty different countries—do Russia or China? It appears to me that we constitute the threat.

4. The U.S. is using Napalm in this "unfortunate war" are you aware of the effects of this material? Are you aware that the U.S. is the only country which produces it? The U.S. is dropping fragmentation bombs on North Vietnam, these have no effect on guns or bridges, they are only effective on people, granting that people are what move the military supplies to the South, but does this constitute using this means to kill them?

Mr. Shoemaker, I ask you—Who do you think you are "to throw around such misguided accusations?" The "beatniks and halfwits" of our country are interested in mankind, I can also assure you that they are Americans who hold a high respect for freedom. We do feel our men are fighting for "some arrogant" philosophy — Americanism. Indeed, we must not hesitate to take action which may bring about peace talks. I would like to see our country unified, but not by giving my support to this war.

Carol Chandler
Sandra Smith
Mary Donovan
Gene O'Grady
Barbara Pease
Barbara Henry
Donna Hurwitz
Helena Lenn
Deborah Morgan
Gail Giardino

Bane or Blessing?

To the Editor:

Reliable estimates of the consumption of psychedelic drugs on campus are not available but a conservative guess is that between five and fifteen percent of the nation's college students are "turning on" with drugs. The number of "heads" seems unquestionably to be rising; This phenomenon is reflected in the burgeoning of news reports, magazine articles, TV programs and sociological studies dealing with the psychedelics (mind-expanding drugs: LSD, mescaline, peyote, marihuana, etc.).

The number of benefits proclaimed for these drugs is also increasing as is membership in the two major psychedelic religions, The Neo-American Church and the League for Spiritual Discovery. Unfortunately, there is another figure which is rising: More and more psychedelic trips are ending in the psychiatric wards.

Those who emphasize the positive values of psychedelics frequently tend to gloss over the many dangerous and negative aspects. And conversely, the news media, supported and stimulated by many MDs, usually convey the sensationalistic (i.e., bad and negative) characteristice of the psychedelics to the exclusion of their useful ones.

This Sunday evening at 8 p.m. Dr. Richard Aipert, an associate of Timothy Leary and co-founder of the League for Spiritual Discovery, will speak at the Southwest Dining Commons number seven. On Thursday evening March 16, at 8:30 p.m. a panel discussion will be held in the Southwest Dining Commons number five to consider the many blessings and banes voiced for the psychedelic drugs.

Psychedelics concern everyone not only because of their prevalence on campuses but because they may well be legalized in a few years and hence signalize the possibility of a new way of life in America. Everyone is urged to attend the panel discussion and lecture.

Louis Musto
Paul Provasoli

Vigil

To the Editor:

This is in answer to "The Grubby Youth and the Green Beret" which appeared in Friday's Collegian.

Miss Falandes claims to be proud of her brother for the "square" and outdated principle in which he believes and for which he is fighting. Is she proud of her brother for fighting an illegal war in a part of the world where the U. S. has no right to interfere? Is she proud of her brother's part in the taking of thousands of innocent and bewildered lives? Is she really naive enough to think that war games in a Vietnamese rice paddy are going to help stop the spread of "evil, rotten, nasty" Communism?

Miss Falandes seems to be under the mistaken impression that her brother's views represent America's views. I consider myself an American, and I certainly don't think the way Miss Falandes and her brother do.

As far as I'm concerned "the weekly Vigil for Peace in Viet Nam" expresses better what our country's beliefs are or should be than either Miss Falandes or her brother.

Lastly, the fact that a Peace Vigilist dresses like a grub should have no relevance to the validity of his political philosophy.

Ellen Mason
326 Field

EDITORIAL

STAFF MEETING

Wed., March 15

at 6:30 p.m.

Collegian Office

All members must attend

Patriotism Is a Warm Blanket

To the Editor:

Mr. Shoemaker's letter of March 13 distressed me greatly. In this letter he expressed his distaste for dissenters on the Vietnam war and called for support of our country's foreign policy.

Mr. Shoemaker's letter was not scholarly or even rational.

I was discouraged by the overall tone of his letter, which presented the Vietnam debate as a situation in which people with views similar to his are facing off with "neophytes" and "halfwits". It seems obvious to Mr. Shoemaker that his is the only valid position in the debate. He admits himself (in the second paragraph) that he has not taken the trouble to discover how well the dissenters have thought out their positions. I strongly suggest that he talk seriously with a few dissenters before he indulges in further sweeping judgments.

Mr. Shoemaker thinks that to be against United States involvement in the port of the actions of our government. know that the students out campaigning against our participation in Vietnam are doing so because they feel noninvolvement in this particular struggle is the best course for the citizens of the U.S. as well as the rest of the world. The word "patriotism", as used by Mr. Shoemaker, means blanket approval and support of the actions of our government.

I cannot champion this sort of "patriotism" when I look back and see that the flames of Hitler's conflagration were fanned by the unfailing support of millions of German "patriots". No government has the gift of access to ultimate wisdom. It is up to the real patriot to review his government's actions to make sure a wrong step is not being taken. If he concludes that something is amiss, it is up to him to try to put his country back on the right path. The dissenters on Vietnam are definitely fulfilling their duties as patriots.

I wish that Mr. Shoemaker and others like him would realize that blind servility to a government does not best serve the country headed by that government. I also ask that they please apply a great deal more thought to an issue before speaking out.

Kenneth C. Stowell

ALL MEMBERS MUST ATTEND

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1967

6:30 P.M.

COLLEGIAN OFFICE

EDITORIAL STAFF MEETING

Campus Comment

"The Grubby Youth and the Green Beret"

To the Editor:

Miss Falandes tells us (Collegian, Mar. 10) that the U.S. soldiers in Vietnam are fighting for us. Others say our soldiers are answering South Vietnam's call for help. Others claim we are battling the mythological Communist Monolith. At any rate, America is involved in conflict; Americans, Vietnamese and other soldiers and citizens are dying.

Miss Falandes, I ask you and your brother how the U.S. is defending her way of life by killing Vietnamese people on Vietnamese territory? I ask you if all Communists are evil and all Democrats good. I ask you if you realize that the Vietnamese hate the Chinese almost as much as they hate the white man. I ask you if you realize that the West has mercilessly exploited the East in the past. Would you trust the "free" West if you were an Asian? Why don't we fight for freedom in Spain, in Nigeria, in South Africa? Who has pinned a police badge on us, Miss Falandes?

I think if you answer these questions, fairly and honestly, Miss Falandes, you will see that we, with our artillery, napalm and lazy dogs, do not belong in Vietnam. If we want to win the rest of the world to our views, our form of government, we cannot do it with force. Our freedom becomes a sham; our slogans, lies; and hypocrisy is written across the stars and stripes.

You and your brother, I'm sure, are sincere, Miss Falandes. However, it is my contention that sincerity and might are strange bedfellows. Many Nazis and their supporters may have been just as sincere. It all comes from justifying violence and killing for some greater good to be gained in the end. I think past history has shown us we were only chasing the boney Grim Reaper. I hope you, and your brother, and that "grubby youth", and the rest of us will be able to call off the chase.

So Miss Falandes, you're not fighting for me. I wouldn't let you. I can do that myself.

Ronald W. Johnson
69 So. Pleasant St.

Did You Know That . . .

you and your party or organization
may dine privately in the Student Union
Dining Rooms with waitress service

LUNCHEONS ..... $1.35* - $1.55
DINNERS ..... $1.75* - $3.75

Included with above are:

Soup or Juice
Fresh Salad
Rolls
Dessert
Choice of Beverage

Ask about COFFEE HOURS, TEAS AND RECEPTIONS

You can be served items such as:

Golden Fried Shrimp	$1.45
Boneless Fried Chicken Cutlet Supreme	$1.50
Baked Swiss Steak	$2.10
Beef Burgundy	$2.25
Baked Rainbow Trout	$2.50
Lobster Newburg	$2.95
Prime Rib of Beef, au Jus	$3.25
Filet Mignon, Mushroom Caps	$3.75

Plus M.O.A. Tax

Ask Mrs. Nanartonis for a Menu List or Phone 545-2531 for information.

CANDLELIGHT AVAILABLE.

He: Hortense . . . they're playing our song!

She: Yes, Edgar, it brings back those wonderful days when we first met in the lobby of the Sheraton-Atlantic Hotel . . . seven years ago.

He: Seven wonderful years . . . and every college vacation since then we've been coming back to New York and the Sheraton-Atlantic. For Thanksgiving, Christmas, Mid-years, Spring vacations . . .

She: And the Sheraton-Atlantic has such convenience to theatres, museums, libraries, Lincoln Center, Fifth Avenue shops, and with such swinging restaurants right in the Hotel and dancing nightly and such low prices . . . no wonder we students always make out best at the Sheraton-Atlantic.

He: You were always such a romantic, darling.

STUDENT-FACULTY RATES*

Single	$8.00 per person
Twin	6.00 per person
Triple	4.50 per person
Quad	4.00 per person

For reservations contact your Sheraton Student Representative or in Boston dial (617) HU 2-2004 for immediate confirmation of student rates.

*Student-Faculty rates apply weekends and school vacation periods, subject to availability. (Not offered March 17-18, 1967.)

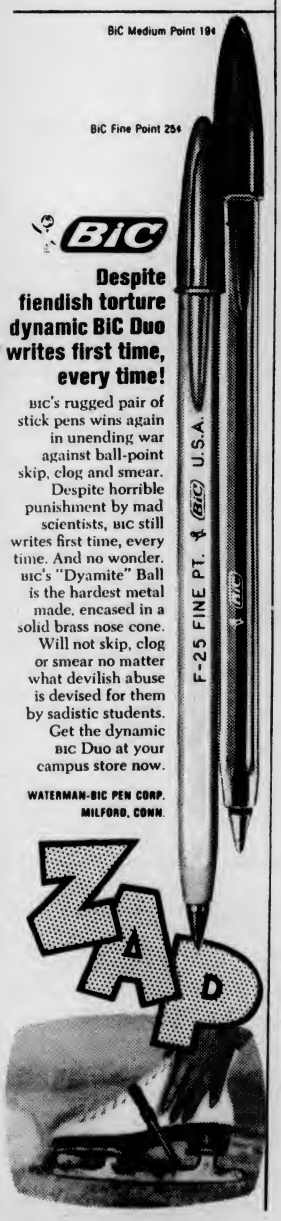
SHERATON -ATLANTIC
HOTEL Broadway and 34th St., N. Y., N.Y. 10001 (212) PE 6-5700
Ralph Hitz Jr., V. P. & Gen. Mgr.

why not think for yourself?

The ability to think for yourself, and to think correctly when making decisions, determines your future.

Come to this lecture that will examine the true nature of thinking and its spiritual basis.

It will be given by Martin N. Heafer, C.S., an experienced practitioner of Christian Science healing . . . and a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.



7:45 P.M.

Colonial Lounge

Student Union

Sponsored by

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION

BIC

Despite fiendish torture dynamic BIC Duo writes first time, every time!

BIC's rugged pair of stick pens wins again in unending war against ball-point skip, clog and smear. Despite horrible punishment by mad scientists, BIC still writes first time, every time. And no wonder. BIC's "Dyamite" Ball is the hardest metal made, encased in a solid brass nose cone. Will not skip, clog or smear no matter what devilish abuse is devised for them by sadistic students. Get the dynamic BIC Duo at your campus store now.

WATERMAN-BIC PEN CORP. MILFORD, CONN.

FEIFFER

UT Tryouts Today

Tryouts will be held on March 15 and 16 in Bartlett 119 for Feiffer, a Reader's Theatre production based upon the cartoons of the popular social satarist Jules Feiffer.

The readings will take place from 3:30 to 5:00 on March 15 and from 7:00 to 8:30 on the 16th. Parts to be cast include 4 men, 3 women, and 1 bongo player.

Feiffer, which will be presented by the University Theatre on April 13, 14, and 15 in Bartlett Auditorium, has been adapted for Reader's Theatre by Jerry De-Spain, a new member of the Speech Dept. who teaches oral interpretation.

Mr. DeSpain said that his lively one-hour production will include some of Feiffer's more popular pieces, "Passionella", "Munro", "Harold Swerg", and "Superman", along with fourteen others.

There will be elements of dance and some group reading in the presentation while props and costumes will be held to a minimum —a cape for Superman perhaps.

LIFE: WED. MAR. 15th

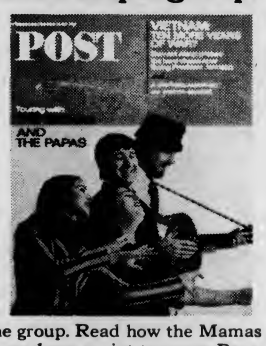
"A SPLASHY, SURF-SOAKED SLEEPER! BREATHTAKING! IMAGINATIVE!

The nicest surprise to happen in a long time. Unless you just enjoy turning your back entirely on life, you should not miss the breathtaking shots!"

COLOR

AT: 1:40 - 3:30 - 5:30 - 7:30 - 9:40

The Endless Summer



Phone 733-5131

ROCKING CHAIR RECLINING SEATS ACRES OF PARKING

CINEMA 1&2

RIVERDALE RD WEST SPRINGFIELD

The Mamas and The Papas – McLuhan Generation Supergroup.

Two years ago they were beach bums in the Caribbean. Today the Mamas and the Papas are the McLuhan generation's supergroup. Follow them in the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post as they kick off a freewheeling concert weekend with a gin-and-tonic breakfast. Learn why "Fat Angel" Mama Cass, a big-beat Kate Smith, credits a konk on the head for her success. Find out why Michelle, a favorite among aging hippies, was once ousted from the group. Read how the Mamas and the Papas instigated a teeny-bopper riot to prove Papa John's theory on controlled-audience hysteria. Catch up to the legend of the Mamas and the Papas in the March 25 issue of The Saturday Evening Post. Buy your copy today.

MASS. CLASSIFIED

WANTED

Two rides wanted round trip to Ft. Lauderdale during Easter vacation. Contact Nancy, 546-8349.

WANTED: KEYPUNCHING DATA — Professors and students! Will keypunch your data and programs at $2.50 per hour. Verified, too! You supply cards. Call—Days—534-4061—Evenings 545-2692. Ask for Mrs. Sarah Tupper.

HELP WANTED

We need 25 people to work 25 hours per month to earn $25.00 per week. For interview, write Forest Park Post Office, P.O. Box 98, Springfield, Mass.

LOST

Tan men's trench coat size 38—Taken from coat rack in front of Ballroom in S.U. Tues. night March 7th. Please return to B. Haneisen, 73 Butterfield Ter., Phone: 549-1233.

1967 class ring lost. At bottom of walk, going from Wheeler to So. Commons. On left side before dirt road. Reward. Call Bob, 101 Wheeler, 5-2412 or 5-2413.

For Rent

Room for Rent—Central Amherst location. Quiet study atmosphere. No kitchen facilities. Call AL 3-5024 after 3:00 p.m.

FOR SALE

1964-1965 Honda 150 cc. Excellent running condition, new Perelli tires, new heavy duty clutch $300 or best offer over $250. Call Paul Korenberg, 726 Grayson, Tel. 546-7061.

AUTOMOBILES

1967 Mustang, 8 cyl., 289 cu in., power steering, special int. and ext., 3-speed, white wall tires, radio, 3,500 mi. going in service. $2300. Call 545-2384 9 to 5.

A CLASSIC 1954 NASH FARINA, 4-speed automatic, radio, heater. Runs great but the body is only air. $55.00, 253-2635 after 6 p.m.

Ford Fairlane, 2-dr., 1959, V-8, 352 cu., in., auto., p.b., p.s., r. & h., 2 snow tires with wheels, 10 to 16 mi. per gal. 40,000 miles. $350. Call 253-3150 after 6

OPPORTUNITIES

Interested in international communication and languages? Join the Esperanto Club in the Student Union, every Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

YOU LUCKY VW OWNERS — Keep your Volkswagon young. Send $1.00 for 56 page catalog on ways to increase the value and usefulness of your VW. Write to: RONNIMART, P.O. Box 75, Tremonton, Utah 84337.

GOING TO EUROPE???
BUY RENT OR LEASE ALL MAKES OF EUROPEAN CARS—For free information send name and address to: Michael Skaling, 147 Woodside Ave., Amherst. Campus Rep. for CAR-TOURS IN EUROPE.

Man wanted for packaging and shipping rodent supplies. Must provide own transportation: warehouse located ½ mile off campus. Apply in person to Mrs. Anne Pewatka, Old Conservation Bldg. Tel. 549-1252 for appointment. Must be available 1-5 p.m. 2 afternoons during week.

COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING PAYS

LEAHY ASSOCIATE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

chedelic Experience, a manual based on The Tibetan Book of the Dead; and LSD, a dialogue with psychiatrist, Dr. Sidney Cohen.

Dr. Alpert has spent the last several years as Dr. Leary's complement on the West coast. He is in the East now for the opening of the League for Spiritual Discovery Center in New York City which took place two weeks ago.

"Hot Line"
545-2550

On Campus with Max Shulman

(By the author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!", "Dobie Gillis," etc.)

WHO'S GOT THE BUTTON?

I'm sure it has not escaped your notice that underlying the adorable whimsy which has made this column such a popular favorite among my wife and my little dog Spot, there is a serious attempt to stay abreast of the problems that beset the American college student.

Many a trip have I made to many a campus—talking to undergraduates, listening to their troubles, hearing their grievances, reading their buttons. (Incidentally, the second and third most popular buttons I saw on my last trip were: "WALLACE BEERY LIVES" and "FLUORIDATE MUSCATEL." The first most popular button was, as we all know, "SCRAP THE SCRAPE" which is worn, as we all know, by Personna Super Stainless Steel Blade users who, as we all know, are proud to proclaim to the world that they have found a blade which gives them luxury shave after luxury shave, which comes both in double-edge style and Injector style, which does indeed scrap the scrape, negate the nick, peel the pull, and oust the ouch, which shaves so closely and quickly and truly and beautifully that my heart leaps to tell of it. (If perhaps you think me too effusive about Personna, I ask you to remember that to me Personna is more than just a razor blade; it is also an employer.)

But I digress. I make frequent trips, as I say, to learn what is currently vexing the American undergraduate. Last week, for example, while visiting a prominent Eastern university (Idaho State) I talked to a number of engineering seniors who posed a serious question. Like all students, they had come to college burning to fill themselves with culture, but, alas, because of all their science requirements, they simply had had no time to take the liberal arts courses their young souls lusted after. "Are we doomed," they asked piteously, "to go through life uncultured?"

I answered with a resounding "No!" I told them the culture they had missed in college, they would pick up after graduation. I explained that today's enlightened corporations are setting up on-the-job liberal arts programs for the newly employed engineering graduate—courses designed to fill his culture gap—for the truly enlightened corporation realizes that the truly cultured employee is the truly valuable employee.

To illustrate, I cited the well-known case of Champert Sigafoos of Purdue.

When Champert, having completed his degree in wing nuts and flanges, reported to the enlightened corporation where he had accepted employment, he was not rushed forthwith to a drawing board. He was first installed in the enlightened corporation's training campus. Here he was given a beanie, a room-mate, and a copy of the company rouser, and the enlightened corporation proceeded to fill the gap in his culture.

First he was taught to read, then to print capital letters, then capital and small letters. (There was also an attempt to teach him script, but it was ultimately abandoned.)

From these fundamentals, Champert progressed slowly but steadily through the more complex disciplines. He was diligent, and the corporation was patient, and in the end they were well rewarded, for when Champert finished, he could play a clavier, parse a sentence, and name all the Electors of Bavaria.

Poised and cultured, Champert was promptly placed in an important executive position. I am pleased to report that he served with immense distinction—not, however, for long because three days later he reached retirement age.

Today, still spry, he lives in St. Petersburg, Florida, where he supplements his pension by parsing sentences for tourists.

* * *

© 1967, Max Shulman

Here's a sentence that's easy to parse: Subject—"you." Verb—"double." Object—"your shaving comfort when you use Burma-Shave, regular or menthol, along with your Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades."

NOTICES

VOLUNTEERS
The volunteers will be leaving for the state school for the retarded on Saturday, from both the North Dining Commons at 1:20 and the Newman Center at 1:25 P.M. All new volunteers are very welcome.

YAHOO
There will be a general staff meeting on Thurs., May 16, at 7:00 P.M. in the Student Union. All staff members should come. Index will be there to take pictures. If you want your picture in the Yearbook, you'd better come—Thursday, 7:00 P.M. in the Student Union.

ESPERANTO CLUB
On Wednesday, at 8:30 P.M. in Middlesex Room, S.U. all those interested in learning Esperanto—the International Language should meet. Anyone interested in international affairs is invited to sit in at any of the meetings.

STUDENTS FOR POLITICAL ACTION
On Wed., March 15, the weekly vigil for peace in Vietnam will be held in front of the S.U. from 11:30 A.M. to 1:00 P.M. A literature table is set up from 9:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. on Wednesday in the lobby of the S.U. Following the vigil, an open discussion will be held in Governor's lounge, from 1 to 3 P.M. Coffee will be served.
On Thursday, March 16, in Worcester Room, S.U. There will be a membership meeting. Topics will range from membership (if interested bring $2.00) to discussion of Spring Mobilization. Professor Dellagrotte of the University's History Dept. will be guest speaker to clarify his position on why he is leaving the University. All invited.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
On Wed., March 15, in S.U. the meeting will be cancelled, and will be held next week at the same time.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB
There will be a meeting on Wed., March 15, at 7:30 P.M. in Plymouth Room, S.U. Noted author and illustrator Jeanne Mellin, will be the guest speaker. Refreshments served. All invited to attend.

SKI CLUB
All members or non-members who wish to race in the giant Slalom race this Saturday must sign up by Thursday noon on bulletin board opposite ride board.

SCUBA CLUB
There will be a regular business meeting at 7:00 P.M. at the Cage on Wed., March 15. The course testing will continue. Anyone interested in the club is invited.

PRE-MED CLUB
On Wed., March 15, at 7:45 P.M. in Morrill 203, S.W. Chandler, will speak on "Miracle Drugs". The new undergraduate Medical Experience Program will also be discussed.

STUDENT SENATE
The Student Senate will meet this evening in the Student Union Council Chambers at 7:00 P.M. Students, faculty and other members of the University community are invited to attend.

STUDENT RELIGIOUS LIBERALS
On Sunday, March 19, at 6:00 P.M. in Unitarian Church, there will be a cost supper. Jeffrey Campbell will be the guest. New members welcome.

JFK LOWER COMMITTEE
On Wed., March 15, at 8:00 P.M. on 5th floor lounge, the Cultural Revolution Committee will have a discussion lead by Valley Center students on "Drugs."

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB
On March 16, at 8:00 P.M. in Council Chambers A, there will be a meeting. New members and those interested in collegiate competition are welcome.

NORTHAMPTON VOLUNTEERS
On Wednesdays, at 6:30 P.M. buses will leave from the S.U. for the trip to Northampton State Mental Hospital.

APO LOST AND FOUND
If you have lost a notebook, text, glasses, or other valuables, go to the Campus Lost and Found Booth located at the bus-ticket window and see if it has been brought in.

LOST
Gold watch, lost in Grayson House. Contact John in 507, 6-6984. Reward.

PINNING
Sheila Nugent, class of '70, Van Meter, to Stephen Niemi, class of '68, Boston University.

ENGAGEMENT
Emily Gnacek, class of '68, Hamlin, to LeRoy LaFlesh, class of '69, AIC.

UMass Sociologist Named General Editor

Sociology Professor Milton M. Gordon of the University, author of the award-winning "Assimilation in American Life," has been named general editor of a major new series of books on ethnic groups in America to be published by Prentice-Hall.

The series, according to the Englewood Cliffs, N.J., publishing firm, will comprise 10 separate volumes, each written by an authority on the life and problems of one of the American minorities. Each volume will be published both in paperback and hard cover.

Each will cover historical background, family structure, generational differences, assimilation of the group into American society, the contribution of the group to American life and the prospects of the group retaining its identity in the future.

First of the series is "The Japanese American," by Harry Kitano of the University of California at Los Angeles, scheduled for publication in the fall of 1967. Planned for January, 1968, publication are "The Puerto Ricans" by Rev. Joseph Fitzpatrick of Fordham University and "The Jews in American Life: Generational Change," by Sydney Goldstein of Brown University and Calvin Goldschieder of the University of California at Berkeley.

Future titles will deal with the American Negro, the American Indian, the Polish American, the white Protestant and others. The series title is 'Ethnic Groups in American Life."

Dr. Gordon's "Assimilation in American Life," published in 1964, is considered by many to be the definitive book in its field. He received two national awards as a result of it, the Brotherhood Award from the National Conference of Christians and Jews and the Anisfield-Wolf Award in race relations sponsored by the Saturday Review.

A graduate of Bowdoin College who received his Ph.D. from Columbia University, Dr. Gordon taught at the University of Pennsylvania and Haverford College before joining the UMass sociology department.

A Guggenheim Fellow in 1960-61, Dr. Gordon has contributed articles to sociological journals, the New York Times Magazine and the journal of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and is the author of a 1958 book, "Social Class in American Sociology." He has served as a consultant on race relations to the city of Philadelphia, the Albert M. Greenfield Center at the University of Pennsylvania and to Brandeis University.

HILLEL NEWS

Debate to Highlight Festival

A showdown between the Latkes and the Hamentaschen will highlight the Hillel Purim Festival this Sunday at 5 p.m. in the Commonwealth Room of S.U.

Reviving a dormant UM tradition Dr. Joseph Marcus, Asst. Dean of Engineering, and Dr. Stanley Moss, Asst. Prof. of Psychology will support the Latkes side of a Latkes vs Hamantaschen debate with Dr. Seymour Shapiro, Head of the Botany Dept,. and Dr. Morris Golden, Prof. of English, the Hamantaschen.

Dr. Arthur Elkins, Prof of Business Administration will moderate. The topic will be: Latkes and Hamantaschen in the race for outer space.

Purim, a Jewish holiday celebrated in synagagues all over the world by the reading of the Scroll of Esther, which tells of the saving of the Jewish people of Shushan from the wicked minister, Haman, is a joyful occasion. There will be dancing, and Hamantaschen — the traditional Purim pastry—will be served.

ATTENTION NEWS STAFF
There is a mandatory News Staff Meeting at 6:00 on Thursday, March 16. All new and old staffers must attend.
News Editor

Finest
BLUE-WHITE DIAMONDS
at Moderate Price
WINN Jewelers
31 S. Pleasant St.

HOCKEY . . .

(Continued from page 10)

Redmen fans are optimistic for a successful season next year as many underclassmen and a strong freshman team should combine to form a top-notch squad.

An announcement should be made shortly from Dean Warren McGuirk's office concerning the appointment of a new hockey coach to succeed Kosakowski.

Newman Sponsors Closed Retreats

The University Newman Club is sponsoring a closed Retreat for men and women on the weekend of April 7-9.

The Men's Retreat to be held at the Passionist's Retreat House in West Springfield will be conducted by Rt. Reverend Benedict, and the Women's Retreat at the Cenacle Retreat House in Lancaster, By Father Casey S.J.

The Retreat donation is $15.00 which may be paid $7.50 before the Retreat and $7.50 afterwards. Buses will leave from the Newman Center on Friday night and return by 4:00 on Sunday.

Anyone with Saturday classes will be excused by a note sent to the Deans of Men and Women. Non-Catholics are welcome.

For further information please contact the secretary at the Newman Center.

Free to Students
25¢ to others
A new booklet, published by a non-profit educational foundation, tells which career field lets you make the best use of all your college training, including liberal-arts courses—which career field offers 100,000 new jobs every year—which career field produces more corporation presidents than any other—what starting salary you can expect. Just send this ad with your name and address. This 24-page, career-guide booklet, "Opportunities in Selling," will be mailed to you. No cost or obligation. Address: Council on Opportunities, 550 Fifth Ave., New York 36, N. Y.,

HEALTH COUNCIL

Smoking IS Hazardous

"Caution — cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health." You've heard it all before, but it doesn't bother you. Maybe you tried to quit smoking, or made it through Ash Wednesday without lighting up, but lung cancer seems too remote. "It won't happen to me," you say. Maybe not; but it's a cinch respiratory disease will.

According to a report in Reader's Digest (January, 1967), between 1956 and 1965, deaths caused by respiratory diseases increased fourfold from 6,535 to 23,700. At this continued rate of increase, 100,000 people will die in 1976. Cause of death: Emphysema and chronic bronchitis.

Emphysema begins in the late 20's. It is the breakdown of the air sacs in the lungs. The loss of elasticity hinders expulsion of captive air. The victim is starved for oxygen, breathing becomes rapid, shallow; sleep is difficult; and any activity is characterized by rigidity.

From 50-70% of an emphysema victim's lung function is lost by the time he is 40 years old. There follows curtailed activity, disability, and death. Emphysema ranks second to heart disease as the major cause of disability.

Chronic bronchitis is a persistent inflammation of the lungs which occurs as tobacco tar builds up in air tubes. 80-90% of the cigarette smoke inhaled remains in the body; this irritation causes the mucous glands to over-produce in cell defense.

The smoke destroys the cilia which would ordinarily sweep the mucous out of the lungs, so mucous and tobacco tar clog the air tubes, and the bronchial passages collapse.

These respiratory diseases are inevitable if you are a smoker. Cigarette smokers have a 600% greater susceptibility to death by emphysema or chronic bronchitis than do non-smokers.

Cigarette smoking IS hazardous to your health.

English Institute to Be Held At UMass Again This Summer

A National Defense Education Act advanced study institute for secondary school English teachers will be held at the University of Massachusetts again this summer, the University announced today.

The English institute, held for the first time at UMass last summer, will run from June 26 to Aug. 4 for 45 participants.

The courses will be composition, poetry and criticism, each to comprise two lecture hours, two seminar hours and a half hour for individual conferences each week. Aim of the program is to improve the teaching of English in New England secondary schools.

Dr. Richard O. Ulin, associate professor of English education at the UMass School of Education, is director, assisted by Robert E. Bagg, assistant professor of English at UMass.

Major objectives, according to Dr. Ulin, are to develop skill in writing and teaching of writing, to increase competence in reading and teaching poetry, and to present the essential principles and problems of literary criticism.

Eligibility is limited to those who have taught in Grades 9-12 for at least three years, are now teaching a full English program in those grades, and will be teaching a similar program next year in one of the New England states.

Those eligible must also have at least a bachelor's degree with a minimum concentration of hours in English and have not had a full year of residence at a college or university within the past three years.

Participants will attend classes and be housed in the new Southwest Residence area at UMass. Stipends and dependency allowances will be paid.

Applications must be made by March 20. Information is available from Dr. Richard O. Ulin, director, NDEA Institute in English, School of Education, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, 01002.

SWING-SHIFT FRESHMEN
NOW ACCEPTING APPLICATIONS
FOR CLASS OF '70
EXECUTIVE COUNCIL
APPLY R.S.O. OFFICE

AMHERST Cinema
EXCLUSIVE SHOWING
Daily 7:05-9:10
Sat. and Sun.
2:00-4:45-6:50-9:00
PLUS SHORTS
"DELIGHTFUL AND UNUSUAL, A COMEDY OF THE GRANDEST SORT!" Crowther, N Y Times

Mar. 29 thru Apr. 11th
"BLOW-UP" • "BLOW-UP"

HIGHWAY GRILL
40 Belchertown Rd.
Amherst
OPEN 11:00 A.M. TO 11:30 P.M.
COCKTAILS ARE SERVED.

INTRAMURALS

V-Ball Title: AEP vs. A's

by ROGER KIPP
Staff Reporter

Volleyball is moving to its rapid conclusion this week, and the bowling season ended with the James Commanches taking the campus championship over Phi Mu Delta of the IFC.

AEPi will face the Flaming A's tonight at 7 p.m. for the campus volleyball championship. AEPi advanced to the finals by beating the Trojans last night, 15-5, 15-11. The Flaming A's had drawn a bye.

The James Commanches, who last week picked up the dorm title, swamped PMD, 8-0, with a total pinfall of 2052 to 1769 for the fraternity club. It wasn't even close. John Quinn rolled a fantastic 556 triple for the champs, with his high game coming in the second string with a 192. His supporting cast was also great. Joe Misky came through with a 552 and high single of 197, and Dick MacDonald had a 532 with the night's high single of 199.

* * *

AEPi, meanwhile, made the spotlight in volleyball, by winning the coveted IFC title over BKP in straight games, 15-4 and 15-9. Elsewhere, the Wheeler Trojans and the Adams Flaming A's advanced with victories over the Lemons and Patriots respectively, and the Chem Club won the Independent title over the Upper Imps, 15-12, and 14-16, and 15-7.

Made up of graduate students, the Chem Club cannot go on for the campus championship, leaving the Trojans, Flaming A's and AEPi, in the field.

* * *

A number of the weight classes have been wrapped up in the fraternity and the dorm flights of the Intramural Wrestling Tournament. To start with the fraternities: Tom Bates of BKP has clinched the 128 lb. division, and Frank Reynolds of PSD has likewise won over the field in the 137 lb. class. Kevin O'Reilly of PSD and Ron Marsh of BKP will wrestle it off in the finals of the 147 division.

Fred Fitzpatrick of Kappa Sig, has the most impressive record so far, winning the IFC 177 class with 4 straight pins. Kappa Sig won the team title a year ago. In the Unlimited class, it's a tussle between Paul Sculley of KS and Bill Daley of TEP.

The dorm flight has moved along at a similar pace with a few weight classes having been decided and a few still up for grabs by many. Bob Beck of the Mills Cherries is the winner in the 128 lb. class, while Dick DelGallo of the Baker Broncos is champ in the 137 category.

Bill Borowik, wrestling for the Adams Seagrams, squares against George Levan of the Adams Spartans for the 147 title and the right to go on for the campus championship in that weight class. Gary Burns of the Grayson Aces is pitted against Steve Mullen of the Spartans for the 157 title, while, in the 167 division, the only other near to a finish, Paul Robinson of the Wheeler Trojans meets Kent Hubbard of the Aces.

The Unlimited division has its champ. He's Eric White of the Chadbourne Maroons.

Name	Average
Benham—Flaming A's	185
Elsden—Flaming A's	185
Tiberio—Flaming A's	185
D'Andrea—Grants	185
Quinn—Comanchees	179
MacDonald—Flaming A's	184
Misky—Flaming A's	176
Klein—Terrors	182
Brazauskas—Buffaloes	173
Rojewski—Flaming A's	171

NOTE: Benham, Elsden, Tiberio and D'Andrea are tied for high average. The three games bowled by these three men in the All-Star game will be included in their total average, and that individual who has high average will receive the trophy.

FRAT ALL-STAR TEAM

Name	Average
DiDonato—ASP	172
Klorer—PMD	166
Edwards—BKP	162
Hamburg—AEPi	161
Fortier—PSD	161
Hatherly—PMD	160
Earle—PSD	160
Griff—AEPi	160

COLLEGIAN Photo by Stan Furman

AWARD WINNER—Coach Jack Leaman congratulates Bill Tindall, who received All-New England recognition in the current issue of Look magazine.

Women Skiers Finish Second at Mt. Cranmore

Under sub-tropical temperatures and slushy conditions, the UMass women skiers placed second in the 19th Annual Boston University Beanpot Trophy Race Saturday.

Members of the Women's Ski Team who have just recently competed at Mt. Cranmore are assembled with their coach Miss Gail Bigglestone. From left to right are Miss Bigglestone, Judy Beers, Kim Garrison, Barbara Bund, and Judy Fuller.

The giant slalom, held at Mt. Cranmore, New Hampshire, was the last race of the season for the Women's Intercollegiate Ski Conference. Judy Fuller, a freshman who has shown consistent, strong skiing all season, placed third in the race. Barb Bund and Judy Beers both quickly recovered from falls to round out the team score. Kim Garrison, the fourth member of the team, had an unfortunate fall and finished after having to put a ski back on.

This last race placed UMass only five percentage points behind Radcliffe for a final tally of the season's competition. Until this race, the UMass women had had a slight edge over the Radcliffe team.

In a final list of individual standings, three UMass women placed in the top ten racers. Judy Fuller took third position; Barb Bund took eighth and Judy Beers took ninth place. This consistency was what almost brought Coach Bigglestone's women out on top.

At the executive meeting before the awards banquet, Judy Beers was elected Vice Chairman-Treasurer of the Women's Intercollegiate Ski Conference.

Coxswain Needed

Due to the increasing student interest in crew an additional boat is planned. Any undergraduate male student interested in being a coxswain should report to the crew room in the basement of Memorial Hall Wednesday or Friday from 4:30 to 6:30. Students interested should weigh 125 pounds or less and be free weekdays after 4:30 p.m.

CORRECTION

The UMass women's junior varsity gymnastics team will compete against Tantasqua Regional High School in the Boyden Auxiliary Gym on Saturday at 1 p.m., not at 7 p.m. as was announced in Monday's Collegian.

The varsity's final meet of the season will take place next Wednesday here at 7 p.m. UMass will face Southern Illinois and the Southern Connecticut Gym

Collegian Sports Staff Meeting Sunday night, 6 p.m.

Colts Draft Bubba; Denver Gets Floyd Little

NEW YORK (AP) — The Baltimore Colts, who got first choice when Minnesota decided not to exercise its option, picked Bubba Smith, Michigan State's mammoth defensive end, as the No. 1 choice in the combined NFL-AFL football player draft today.

The Vikings, picking second with a choice acquired from the New York Giants, chose another Michigan State star, ace runner Clint Jones.

The Colts, using a choice acquired from New Orleans in a trade for quarterback Gary Cuozzo, went for Smith, who was the College Lineman of the Year.

Smith, 21, stands 6-feet-7 and weighs 283 pounds. He was chosen as an All America, as was Jones, a speedy halfback, who gained 1,921 yards during his college career.

Miami of the AFL chose Purdue quarterback Bob Griese and Houston took another Michigan State star, linebacker George Webster.

Griese was eighth in the country in total offense, passing for 1,964 yards and 18 touchdowns.

Denver chose Syracuse running back Floyd Little, greatest rusher in the history of the school.

S K I DURING SPRING VACATION?

You don't need a 4.0 cum to know that food and lodging, 5 Two-hour lessons, and use of all lifts and facilities for an entire week for $59.95 is a good deal. You must show your college I.D. for these rates.

THE SNOW BARN
MT. SNOW, VT. Tel. 464-3348

Got all your BUTTONS?

DRAFT BEER NOT STUDENTS

Get on the button with these timely buttons that are right on the button!

PEANUT BUTTER IS BETTER THAN POT

1. Peanut Butter is Better than Pot
2. I Am A Human Being: Do Not Fold, Spindle or Mutilate
3. Support Your Local Hobbit
4. Apple Pie Can Make You Sterile
5. The Governor of Alabama is a Mother
6. Thumbs up or down (reversible) picture
7. Belly
8. Button
9. Unbutton
10. Ban Buttons
11. I Like Older Women
12. Marcel Proust is a Yenta
13. God is Alive: but just does not want to get involved
14. If it Feels Good I'll Do It
15. Jewish Power
16. Irish Power
17. Italian Power
18. Draft Beer Not Students
19. Come to Middle Earth
20. Mozart Forever
21. Batman Loves Robin
22. Sex Before Finals
23. HIGH
24. Support Mental Health or I'll Kill You
25. Save Water Shower With A Friend
26. If It's Liquid... I'll Drink It
27. Gandalf For President
28. Roommate Wanted
29. Reality is A Crutch
30. Keep the Faith, Baby
31. Make Love Not War
32. Bring Back Paganism
33. Ronald Reagan for Fuehrer
34. Mary Poppins is a Junkie
35. Frodo Lives
36. Socrates Eats Hemlock

Buttons ea. 25¢. Orders under $1.00 please enclose 15¢ for handling & postage. 9 for $2.00 25 for $5.00 50 for $8.00 100 for $15.00

Heratio Buttons, Inc.
27 West 86th St., New York, New York 10024
Please send the numbers and quantity of each indicated
NAME
ADDRESS
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10
11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19
20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28
29 30 31 32 33 34 35 36
☐ Send catalog listing hundreds of other buttons & wild stuff.

COMING TO NEW YORK?

MAKE WILLIAM SLOANE HOUSE YMCA YOUR HEADQUARTERS IN N. Y. C.
REASONABLE • COMFORTABLE • CONVENIENT

Save money. Go further. Stay longer. The William Sloane House YMCA has 1491 rooms available to men, women and groups, sensibly priced at $3.15-$4.60 single; $5.00-$5.20 double. Rates include YMCA membership. Enjoy convenient transportation to everything.

Coffee Shop • Cafeteria • Laundry
Barber Shop • Check Room
Tailor • Sightseeing • TV Room
Information

REQUEST BOOKLET C

WILLIAM SLOANE HOUSE YMCA
356 WEST 34th ST NEW YORK, N.Y. 10001. OX 5-5133
ON 34th STREET — 1 BLOCK FROM PENN STATION
NOW COED

COMPLETE SERVICE
SAFE MOVING
DEPENDABLE STORAGE
EXPERT PACKING

Call GLEASON MAYFLOWER
Pearl St., Northampton
584-6413—for estimate

With complete concentration, Erika Schineggor of Austria slices through gate in the women's slalom competition.

UMass co-ed Kitty Wells '69, chats with Jean-Claude Killy after he was assured of the World Cup. Killy, called "Cassecou"—"break-neck"—by his teammates is considered the best skier since Tony Sailer.

France and Killy Execute 'Coup de Ski'

Bulling his way through the course, Jean-Claude Killy completes the "hat-trick" of skiing by winning the special slalom Sunday at Cannon Mountain, N.H.

EXCLUSIVE
Collegian PHOTOS
by
John R. Kelly III

by KITTY WELLS
Ski Reporter

CANNON MOUNTAIN, N.H. — Jean-Claude Killy flashed to a slim victory over Jimmy Heuga of the U.S. in Sunday's Slalom in the final racing event of the North American Alpine Championship last week.

With his victories in Friday's downhill and Saturday's giant slalom, Killy thus clinched the World Cup before the competition has even ended.

The French women placed Isabelle Mir and Annie Famose one-two in the total combined results, while the U.S. placed three in the top 10.

Some of the standout performers of the three-day event offered comments to the Collegian:

"It was terrific out there today. I like it when its icy. You know what to expect when its hard and uniform," said Canada's brilliant racer Nancy Greene. Nancy had the best time after the first run of the Women's Special Slalom Sunday, but crashed on her second time.

Later she said, "I caught my tip on the first gate in the middle flush. Guess I'll really have to go at Vail next week to catch Marielle (Goitsche) and Annie (Famose)."

Killy put on a show unequalled in skiing history. He has won every major race except one since the F.I.S. in Portillo, Chile.

Heuga of the University of Colorado came within seven hundredths of a second of beating Killy. He said later, "What can you do? The guy is fantastic. I thought I had him. Oh well, next week at Vail."

Bob Beattie, former coach at the University of Colorado and now coach of the America's International Alpine team, said, "We did great this weekend, except in the Giant Slalom. Jimmy made up for his fall yesterday (Saturday) by coming as close to winning as possible. I'm really proud of the team, especially the girls."

Isabella Mir of France flashes through the women's slalom course on the way to a second place finish in the North American Alpine Championships Sunday.

America's top contender, Jimmy Heuga, competing with the best Europe has to offer, races to a second place finish in the slalom.

Jimmy Heuga of the University of Colorado is shown just after he posted the fastest run in Sunday's slalom. His total time for the day was 1:28.57, seven hundredths of a second slower than the winner, Jean-Claude Killy of France.

THE SEASON THAT WAS

Puck Mark Best in Years

by JOE DUFFY
Staff Reporter

Playing an extremely difficult schedule, the UMass hockey team started out quickly in what looked like its best season ever. Then came the breaks—the bad breaks.

Coach Steve Kosakowski, coaching his final season of hockey at the University lost his two leading scorers in Capt. Ed Polchlopek and Bill Skowyra and the high-flying Redmen promptly dropped six out of the last seven games. The Redmen nevertheless finished with an 8-11-1 record.

The eight victories were the most since the 1961-1962 season and the second highest total in UMass hockey history. With a few breaks the Redmen could easily have finished with the best record ever.

The Redmen began the season with three road contests. In the initial encounter, the Redmen trounced the M.I.T. Engineers 6-1. The scoring was well distributed as six Massachusetts players contributed goals to the Redmen cause.

Three days later at Williams, the pucksters lost a heartbreaker 5-4, on a goal scored with only 23 seconds left. Standout of the evening was sophomore Charlie Hanifan, who managed two unassisted goals.

The rambunctious Redmen rebounded quickly after Williams though as they "stuffed" the Jeffs from Amherst, 7-2, on Jeff Sanborn's hat trick.

In their first home game of the campaign, the Yellowjackets of A.I.C. stung the Redmen, 6-2, to even their record at 2-2 for the season. If the Redmen weren't exhausted after opening the season with four games in 10 days, then they were two weeks later after competing in two separate tournaments.

In the Amherst College Holiday Tournament, the pucksters were trounced, 7-2, by defending champ Williams but recovered nicely with an 8-4 victory over Amherst College and an impressive 5-5 tie with powerful A.I.C.

Playing a fine-skating Williams team, the determined sextet held on desperately until the final period when four quick Williams goals put the game out of reach. Eph sharpshooter Jim Roe, one of the finest shooters the Redmen saw all season scored four goals in a brilliant one-man display.

The following day the pucksters handily defeated cross-town rival Amherst College, 8-4. The Redmen were paced by Skowyra's hat-trick and two additional goals by Jim "Boom-Boom" O'Brien.

The A.I.C. game provided the Redmen players and spectators with the considerable satisfaction as UMass tied the Yellowjackets, 5-5, in one of the most thrilling games of the campaign. Offensively, John Hartnett provided the spark by providing two goals but the real hero was senior net-minder Ed Sanborn, who turned away 59 shots in a stellar performance.

Two days after Christmas, the team traveled to Durham, N. H. to participate in the Fourth Annual Yankee Conference Championship, which has now been won four times by New Hampshire. UMass captured second place by edging UConn, 7-6, in the opener and bowing, 8-0, to UNH in the finals.

Against UConn, soph Fran "Shamrock" Mulcahy scored a hat trick as the Redmen nipped the Huskies, 7-6, in an aggressive contest.

New Hampshire was an entirely different story, however, as the Wildcats boasted a team of Canadians and Minnesotans. Bowling 8-0, the Redmen suffered their first shutout in over 40 games. Again Ed Sanborn played a most impressive game as he turned away 43 shots.

Coach Kosakowski and his boys would like to forget how they began the new year. The Cadets of Army had a little too much in their arsenal and assaulted the Redmen, 17-2.

Rebounding quickly once again, the Redmen won three successive games in their longest winning streak of the season to bring their record to 7-5-1. During this streak the pucksters defeated UConn, 5-3, Vermont, 6-5, and Holy Cross, 8-5.

In their clash against the Crusaders, the Redmen lost the services of Skowyra for the remainder of the season. Skowyra missed the remaining seven games but still managed to set a new career assist record of 39 and finished sixth on the UMass all-time point list with 61 points.

If that wasn't enough, the Redmen lost the services of Capt. Ed Polchlopek against Pennsylvania. Jim O'Brien scored two goals to lead the team offensively for the day. Polchlopek finished his career as second best in goals with 45 for his three varsity seasons, third best in assists with 24, and fourth in career points with 69.

The Redmen's final victory of the season came against the Jeffs of Amherst, whom they defeated for the third time this season, 4-3. It took a clutch goal by soph Jeff Sanborn with 24 seconds remaining to tie the Jeffs, 3-3, in regulation time. A quick goal by Don Robinson in the ensuing overtime period provided the victory.

The remainder of the season was disappointing. The team dropped the last five games, but it never showed a lack of aggressiveness even in the face of vastly superior teams. The Redmen still almost surprised heavily favored Norwich in what proved to be the most action-packed contest of the entire hockey season.

The final five games included losses to Colby (14-1), UNH (8-0), Norwich (6-5), Bowdoin (6-3), and Holy Cross (6-4).

Kosakowski compiled a 13 year record of 73-118-4, but all will agree his teams provided Redmen hockey fans with a good share of thrilling moments.

(Continued on page 7)

HOCKEY STATISTICS

	GMS	Goals	Asts	Points	Class	Hometown
Jeff Sanborn	17	8	12	20	Soph	Saugus
Bill Skowyra	13	6	14	20	Sr	Palmer
Fran Mulcahy	17	8	10	18	Soph	Arlington
Charlie Hanifan	20	8	9	17	Soph	Malden
Ed Polchlopek (Capt.)	14	12	3	15	Sr	Chicopee Falls
Don Robinson	20	6	9	15	Soph	Revere
Jim O'Brien	14	10	4	14	Jr	Holyoke
John Hartnett	11	7	6	13	Soph	Marblehead
Ed Graney	20	4	7	11	Sr	Norwood
Ed Quimby	20	4	6	10	Sr	Cambridge
Frank Buckler	20	4	4	8	Jr	Centerville
Ed Kinsella	15	4	4	8	Sr	No. Billerica
Joe Decicco	20	1	5	6	Soph	Hyde Park
Dave Goldberg	15	0	5	5	Soph	Weston
John Ledwick	14	1	2	3	Sr	Hyde Park
Fred Molander	4	0	1	1	Sr	Dedham
Totals	20	83	100	183

For the Coach, The Battle Is Over

by TOM FITZGERALD
Sports Editor

Thirteen years ago the stubby man who now has bristly white hair and shades clipped onto his glasses was handed the task of coaching the University of Massachusetts hockey team.

Steve Kosakowski didn't fight for the job. He was the only one available who knew the sport. A homegrown Amherst "towny," he played the sport at a prep school in Maine and later in an amateur league.

His first love, though, was tennis. As a pro at a Berkshire club for many years, he instructed novices like Norman Rockwell, the artist, and Edward Everett Horton, the actor.

So, being given the hockey job was quite a few rings short of paradise for him.

"I was only supposed to take it for a couple of years before they could get somebody else," he recalled one day in his office. The phone numbers tacked to the bulletin board were conspicuously large. "It's been a long two years. We've had some good clubs.

"The first years that we were carrying on hockey," he added, "things were pretty rugged.

"We used to go looking for ice wherever we could find it. I had this black car and we used to put the cage on the top and go looking around for ice on the ponds.

"We used to have kids falling in all the time. It was nothing for practice to break up and we'd have to pull some kid out of the ice."

When Amherst College built an outdoor rink, the pond hockey was abandoned. Of course the players still had to shovel the ice between periods.

As for recruiting, Kosakowski said, "We were honest with the kids. We told 'em we use an outdoor rink, you have to bum a ride to get there, and you have to shovel the ice."

The pitch produced laughs, but not much else. Naturally, he had to include the fact that the only financial benefit from playing hockey for UM are the pennies one occasionally finds on the ice.

Hockey's losing battle with basketball didn't change a great deal in recent years. Amherst did cover the rink, and the team was given transportation to town. But when a player asked for new shoe laces, Kosakowski still joked, "This goes on your scholarship fee for next year."

Playing at another school's facility, the team always faces the problem of time. With practice at 6 every night, the players are not only exhausted but famished by the time the day's work is over, around 8:15. "And they've got to study," Kosakowski said, noting the high academic casualty rate of UM hockey players.

The coach explained why, with all the hardships, he "didn't regret a minute" of coaching UM hockey. "The kids play because they like the game," he said, "they've been unselfish and dedicated to the game. They loved it. They had to."

He went so far as to say, "There's no doubt in my mind that the day is coming when hockey will outdraw basketball up here and tickets will be as hard to get as the football tickets are in the fall."

His prediction, of course, centers on the construction of a hockey rink, proposed for 1970. Whether it will be finished by then or not, Kosakowski won't be involved.

It was relatively recent that the coach began seeing haloes around the lights at Orr Rink. "I said to myself 'something's wrong,'" he recalled. "So I finally got the guts to go see a doctor.

"I have glaucoma," he said. "It's just a matter of time when I go blind."

As a result, he will no longer be able to coach hockey. He plans to remain as tennis coach and head of Stockbridge athletics, but for Steve Kosakowski, the battle to put UM on the hockey map is over.

"Puck" and "ball" are probably the two cleanest four-letter words in this vocabulary, but the combination "self-pity" just isn't there.

People may not call his departure from hockey "the end of an era." Those who have played under him probably do.

More Sports On Pages 8 And 9

A PEACEFUL MOMENT—Members of the '66-'67 UMass hockey team are (front row, from left) trainer Bill Smith, Ed Quimby, Ed Kinsella, John Ledwick, Ed Polchlopek, Bill Skowyra, Frank Buckler, Charlie Hanifan, Ed Sanborn, (back row) Assistant Coach Dave Snyder, John Hartnett, Jeff Sanborn, Don Robinson, Dave Goldberg, Joe Deciccio, Fran Mulcahy, Jim O'Brien, manager Dave Hanson and Coach Steve Kosakowski.

UMass Hockey Record

UM	6	MIT	1
	4	Williams	5
	7	Amherst	2
	2	AIC	6
	2	Williams	7
	8	Amherst	4
	5	AIC	5
	7	UConn	6
	0	UNH	8
	2	Army	17
	5	UConn	3
	6	Vermont	5
	8	Holy Cross	4
	4	UPenn	6
	4	Amherst (OT)	3
	1	Colby	14
	0	UNH	8
	5	Norwich	6
	3	Bowdoin	8
	4	Holy Cross	6
	83	(8-11-1)	124

Next Issue: SWIMMING

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Happy St. Patrick's Day

VOL. XCV, NO. 56 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, MARCH 17, 1967

COLLEGIAN Photo by Neil Rennie

SOLEMN PRECISION—Poet W.H. Auden speaks to large crowd at his poetry reading Wednesday at the S.U. Ballroom.

1000 Awed People Pack Ballroom To Hear Modern Master of English

Under the auspices of the UM Arts and Music Committee, at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom, Professor David R. Clark of the English Department introduced to an eager audience that modern master of English meters, poet, librettist, scholar editor, Mr. W. H. Auden. The poet revealed three of the four aspects of his personality and career to an estimated thousand listeners packed to the floors and doors of the ballroom.

Looking like a weather-beaten mountaineer, Mr. Auden addressed his audience in a dry, precise voice. He said that it could be a strain to have to listen to an hour of continous poetry. He had therefore decided to give the audience a pause of two minutes between groups of poems so that people might "rest and chatter" among themselves.

He then proceeded to read from his recent volume "About The House", the poet's survey of the rooms in the house he lives in twenty-four miles outside Vienna. His poem on the house's smallest room had the audience laughing in seconds. Mr. Auden recited this piece without the slightest sign of a smile and, incidentally, without reading from the large bundle of papers he had brought with him to the lecturn. As the evening went on this miracle of memory became evident to all. His fingers occasionally moved on a page, even turned over a page, but his gaze was on the audience, and his voice remained level and sure.

Eventually he gave the audience their pause, they gave their applause, and he sank his head over his wholly unnecessary papers. A dry cough and he had silenced the room. He explained some difficult words that would occur in the next poem. He then read the poem. With another piece he explained that if the audience did not have the text before them they would know the line endings by the fact that they terminated with either a dactyl or spondee. As he said this there was no sign of even scholarly humour in his face or voice. It was conceivable that this master technician expected the audience to be able to hear what he could hear. Certainly from the point of view of enunciation there was no reason for not hearing; his speech was immaculate.

The poet read on, mainly from his middle and later periods. So far as one listener without the text could determine, Mr. Auden read only one early poem. This was in keeping with Mr. Auden's present thoughts about his past self as poet. Like Yeats he has corrected much of his early work, and excised a lot of what many love. Before such an exhibition of formidable sureness as Mr. Auden's performance on Wednesday night, these recent corrections and excisions seem to have been firmly considered acts.

To finish his performance Mr. Auden gave extracts from his

(Continued on page 2)

DVP

Black Power in the Ghetto

by PAMELA METAXAS
Staff Reporter

Bayard Rustin, (DVP) speaker Wednesday at Mahar Auditorium, emphasized that the entire Negro problem dilemma in America today is "an economic and moral problem". The first field secretary of the Congress of Racial Equality in 1941, he attempted to analyze the civil rights movement in his speech.

He began by tracing the movement. Rustin said that he believed the Negroes had "the easiest period about 1955, despite the facts of brutality during riots and demonstrations. "I do not reject the fact of the sacrifice of the Negro people. Despite these facts, that was the simplest period," he added. The technique used during this period was one of non-violence.

He stated this technique employed the belief in dignity. Here, "the movement became alive" when the demonstrators attempted to obtain equal service in hotels, restaurants, libraries and other places. At this point, he said attention was called to the "evil of these institutions" (restaurants, hotels), the brutal behavior of Southerners and the fact of the integration existing in these institutions.

But Rustin went on to say that the "old tactics are no longer applicable". The tactics that were used for the movement after the passage of the Civil Rights Bill in 1965 are not used now, he said.

Concerning social conditions, he said that they "are not Negro problems now". "The Negro is not revolutionary" but the basic objective of the Negro is to create some revolutionary "social and economic thinking in our society." Since the American society "will not make decent Negro housing, find decent jobs for the Negro....it is necessary to force the society to revolutionize the school system for all Americans, find jobs for all Americans, etc," he said. In this way, the Negro will also benefit.

"Prejudice and discrimination are possible amongst all peoples, Negroes included," Rustin commented. He felt the main problem is economically and socially based. If the economic and social aspects of a society are just, then "prejudice and discrimina-

(Continued on page 2)

Teacher Award Nominations Now Open

by BETSY MORRIS
Staff Reporter

New policies for the Distinguished Teacher Awards make it possible for three outstanding teachers to be recognized,

Now, associate professors and instructors, as well as members of professional schools, will be eligible for the award. Emphasis is placed on the individual's contribution as a teacher and on his demonstrated excellence in teaching over a period of years.

The Distinguished Teacher Award was initiated in 1962 with Dr. William H. Ross of the Physics Department being the first one so honored. Since then the following have received this award: 1963, Professor George R. Richason, Chemistry; 1964, Dr. H. Leland Varley, English; 1965, Professor John H. Dittfach, Mechanical Engineering; 1966, Dr. Hans C. Duus, Chemical Engineering.

The faculty-student committee responsible for the selections have decided to include the fourteen finalists from last year. In addition, they are inviting alumni, faculty, and students to submit nominations. A nomination box will be placed in the Student Union Lobby.

Ballots will be available, or you may make your own, including the following information: name of faculty member nominated; supporting evidence of the nominee's qualifications, and your signature and class.

Nominations should be made before April 15.

THE VALLEY REVIEW
Makes its debut
Inside today's Collegian

Lynch Discusses Racism

(Continued from page 1)

tion are reduced to a minimum," he said.

He added that a good deal of the violence in the movement, such as the rioting, is due to a common source: "economic and social frustration."

He urged that the only program at this point, for the "uplift of the Negro masses," is an economic program. The program that Rustin proposed includes a minimum wage of not less than $2 and a redefinition of work. According to Rustin, "work is the development of the human mind and spirit." In this respect he felt that students should be paid to go to school.

It is essential that we develop "a commitment to a planned economy," he said.

He mentioned Rustin concluded, that the sloganism in the Black Power movement is "meaningless". "The next 15 years will not be a Civil Rights revolution but a Human Rights struggle to remove poverty.

* * *

Substituting for an ill Floyd McKissick, Lincoln O. Lynch, associate director of Congress of Racial Equality, told 200 Tuesday in the Student Union "The majority of Americans are unaware of the scope and gravity of impending disaster."

Analyzing this country's problems, he said that on one hand the overt racism of the U. S. is clearly seen in the oppression of the Negro and other minority white groups. The more covert racism is seen in international relations. The Vietnam War, the bombing of Hiroshima, the invasion of Santo Domingo and other activities he likened to the racism of Mississippi and Harlem. Most recently, the exclusion of Adam Clayton Powell from Congress can be seen in this context, he claimed. These events clearly point to the analysis, he believes, that American racism is deeply inherent in the society.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Tom Donovan

BAYARD RUSTIN

Discussing the means to end such inadequacies in the U.S., he turned to black power.

"The essence of black power," Lynch explained, "can be found in the famous words 'He who would be free, himself must break the chains'."

"Negroes," he concluded, "have nothing to lose but chains...and a world to gain."

As a method, black power would mean that the lives of Negroes would be run by Negroes; that, for example, no longer could white absentee owners reap tremendous profits from Harlem, Lynch said. "Black Power," he continued, would apply to all areas of the U. S. Negro soldiers would not fight a racist war, Negro parents would have a say in the issue of Ghetto school districts, Louisiana parishes having a population of 70% Negro would have at least that many Negro government officials in the area.

Lynch felt that "moral suasion" would no longer work, that the white population could not be convinced, but rather that a new means of activity—black power—must be used to make for a better America.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Neil Rennie

Auden Answers Questions

(Continued from page 1)

translation of the The Lay of the Volund a narrative of some complexity with many proper names. He even recited the prose glosses in between sections. The reading ended to unrestrained, sustained applause.

Afterwards part of the audience regathered in the Colonial Lounge and Mr. Auden stood with coffee-cup and cigarette hearing and answering questions. Another hour went by and the sixty year old, English-born poet indicated that he would like to rest. Some minutes later he stood on the Union steps, his "music" under his arm, watching with alert, hooded eyes the snow fall and Mr. Donald Junkins prepare the car to drive a most contemporary old master back to his hotel.

RICHARD WEBER
Southwest Poet In Residence

* * *

After last night's poetry reading, an informal reception was held for W. H. Auden in the Colonial Lounge of the SU. Although he was at first mobbed by autograph seekers and interested spectators, the crowd soon thinned out leaving only a handful of admirers.

Sprightly—his weatherbeaten face reflecting more than his sixty years—the poet chain-smoked Lucky Strikes while freely answering questions in a seemingly relaxed and comfortable manner.

Although a native Englishman, Auden became an American citizen in 1946, and now considers New York City his permanent home although he spends his summers in a village twenty-five miles from Vienna.

He mentioned that he seldom gives public readings.

Mr. Auden eagerly answered most questions about both his private and professional lives. He talked happily about his close friendship with poets Stephen Spender and Louis MacNeice, considering the latter's death a few years ago an irreparable personal loss.

He discussed his translation and editing of the late Dag Hammarskjold's Markings, adding that he knew the Secretary-General personally and felt that he had had much to offer the world.

Fluent in German, Auden has written the librettos for contemporary German operas, and was asked to comment upon them.

One young lady asked if he let people know which of his poems he considered his favorites; answering that he has none, he added that he does have a few which he calls "unfavorites," upon which, however, he did not care to elaborate.

Another student wished to know whether the poet hadn't "overemphasized" the rhymes during the readings; replying negatively, Auden stated that he considered rhyme to be an essential element in much of his poetry. He also exhibited an excellent sense of humor. Asked whether the epithalamion ("poem in praise of marriage") which he wrote for his niece was read at her wedding, he said "No, I just gave it to her—along with a check."

Auden also received a surprise question during the reception: One girl asked whether he perchance remembered a young lady by the name of Joan Murray, who had studied with him some thirty years ago. Miss Murray was related to her, and had died while yet in her twenties. The poet was astounded to meet a relative of his former student, and was happy to oblige her cousin with a short reminiscence.

Needless to say, those who were privileged to see and hear the most eminent living poet writing in English will consider it an evening to remember. The Arts and Music Committee should be lauded for bringing him to us.

—Allan Prenner

ARROW DECTON DRESS SHIRTS
- Tabs
- Button-down Oxfords
- Regular Collars

Stripes, Plaids, Plain Colors!
All Perma-Press Decton – $5 and $6

THOMPSON'S
Serving University Men for 85 years
13 No. Pleasant St., Amherst

THE PARIAHS
S. U. BALLROOM
SATURDAY
MARCH 18th
75c

MOUNTAIN PARK
RTE. 5 HOLYOKE—GO WHERE THE ACTION IS
EVERY SAT. 8 P.M.
COLLEGE MIXER
2 BANDS FEATURING NEW ENGLAND'S
NO. 1 ROCKING BAND MONTY & Specialties

FACTORY OUTLET
25 Market Street, Northampton
Sweaters for the Entire Family

Pullovers $6 to $11	values to $18
Ladies Cardigans $4.95	values to $7.95
Ladies Pullovers $3.95	values to $6.95
Cashmeres $11.95-$17.50	values to $30

MON. THRU SAT. — 10 AM.-5 P.M.
THURS. EVENING TIL 9:00 P.M.
Market St. is across from Jack August

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

National

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Vice President Humphrey says he believes the Soviets will try a space spectacular this year. U.S. space program supporters say this could boost the American effort — now facing a balky Congress.

* * *

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd may testify in the Senate ethics committee investigation of his financial affairs.

* * *

NEW ORLEANS, La. — The New Orleans investigation of President Kennedy's assassination moves ahead on two fronts, with legal infight in the courtroom and secret sessions by a grand jury.

* * *

NEW YORK—Lucille Pickett Williams, a 50-year-old grandmother, has taken on the Republican task of opposing Democrat Adam Clayton Powell in a special congressional election April 11 because she wants to "preserve the two-party system."

* * *

NEW YORK — Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her children, Caroline and John, Jr., leave today for a 10-day spring vacation in Puerto Marques, near Acapulco.

Mrs. Kennedy will make the trip with her sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, and Prince Stanislas Radziwill and their two children, Anthony and Tina.

International

WARSAW, Poland—East Germany, Poland, and the Soviet Union have stalled — at least temporarily — West Germany's diplomatic offensive in Eastern Europe.

* * *

The war of words between the Venezuelan Communist party and Fidel Castro gets hotter as the Venezuelans say he can't dictate to them.

* * *

SAIGON, Vietnam — The admiral directing U. S. Navy air raids on North Vietnam says the Communists are throwing up more antiaircraft fire than ever before.

* * *

MEKONG PROVINCE — 12 U. S. Marines are killed, 52 are wounded and a helicopter is downed in an eight-hour battle. The U.S. 9th Division reports 42 Viet Cong killed in the Mekong Delta.

Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Looking for ways to hold the price of silver steady, the Treasury wants permission to stop redeeming "silver certificate" paper money with silver.

Under proposed legislation sent to Congress Wednesday, holders of silver certificates who wanted to trade them in for silver would be given one year to do so.

"Truth Serum" Used On Witness Russo

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Cross-examination of star witness Perry Russo's mental stability had a kickback for the defense of Clay Shaw in yesterday's conspiracy trial hearings. The state—claiming that the defense opened up the area—began trying to submit testimony concerning Russo's reactions and statements under the influence of hypnotism and sodium pentothal—the so-called truth serum.

Defense's vehement objections to this stalled the hearing. Judge Bernard Bagert told both sides to study the legal precedents overnight.

Lee Harvey Oswald's whiskers haunted the case against Clay L. Shaw on Wednesday.

Shaw chain-smoked and watched impassively as his lawyers tried to destroy Russo's credibility.

Russo, stolid under questioning, said Oswald had seemed vaguely familiar when he saw photographs of him in 1963, but it wasn't until "they put whiskers on him" that he knew Oswald was the same man he had seen in Ferrie's apartment.

"Who put whiskers on him," asked Shaw's attorney. "One of the artists," replied Russo. He pointed out a man seated with a cluster of assistant district attorney's at the prosecution table. Garrison was not present.

Asst. Dist. Atty. James L. Alcock arose and handed over a picture of a rather shaggy Oswald. "Perhaps this will help the court." At this point, the hearing adjourned.

"I never met David Ferrie, or any of the others," says Marina Oswald Porter, once wed to the man the Warren Commission declares singlehandedly killed President John F. Kennedy.

Marina, now remarried and pleading for privacy, said Wednesday in an Associated Press interview she never heard of the persons New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison claims conspired with Lee Harvey Oswald to assassinate Kennedy.

She said Wednesday to an AP interviewer she had never heard of Clay Shaw or a Clay Bertrand and saw Shaw the first time "on television recently," after Garrison arrested him and said he would prove Shaw was part of the conspiracy.

Cardinal Comments

The controversial trial drew comment from Cardinal Cushing Thursday.

"I think they should follow it through," he said, adding that he never believed the assassination "was the work of one man."

Consular Treaty Approved 65-28

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate ratification of the controversial U.S.—Soviet consular treaty in effect backs President Johnson's policy of improving relations with Moscow despite the Vietnam war.

The next step is up to Moscow —and U.S. officials expected today that the Soviet presidium, or legislative body, would soon stamp its customarily automatic ratification on the document which U.S. and Soviet negotiators signed in June 1964.

The consular convention is the first treaty ever concluded between just the United States and the Soviet Union.

More Invited

Guam Confab Will Include Bunker, Ky

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson is sending his top crisis diplomat, 72-year-old Ellsworth Bunker, to Vietnam to replace retiring ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

The President is scheduled to fly to Guam, leaving Washington Saturday night, for a Vietnamese war conference which will bring together Bunker, Lodge, Westmoreland and other U.S. leaders involved in the conflict.

Sources close to the South Vietnamese government reported that eight of its top officials—including Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and chief of state Nguyen Van Thieu—will also attend the conference, which opens Monday.

The sources said the delegation would include Lt. Gen. Cao Van Vien, the defense minister and chief of the joint general staff; Maj. Gen. Nguyen Bao Tri, the minister of information and open arms the program to attract Viet Cong defectors; Maj. Gen. Nguyen Duc Thang, the revolutionary development pacification minister; Nguyen Huu Hanh, the governor of banks; Foreign Minister Tran Van Do, and Bui Diem, the ambassador to the United States.

Johnson Speech

Johnson used his Tennessee speech Wednesday to explain continuation of combat.

"The United States," he said, "cannot and will not reduce its activities unless ~~and until~~ there is some reduction on the other side.

"To follow any other rule would be to violate the sacred trust we undertake when we ask a man to risk his life for his country."

Lodge Story

"I'm not planning to get in the 1968 campaign at all," Ambassador Lodge told newsmen late Wednesday.

Asked about reports that he had been approached to advise Gov. George Romney of Michigan on Vietnam policy, Lodge replied: "I do not intend to get involved."

Fallout Can Be Reduced

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Two young Swedish scientists claimed Thursday they have found a method to reduce much of the radioactive fallout from nuclear bombs.

Stan Andersson and Bo Holmberg of the Swedish Research Institute of the National Defense said they have found a practical way to reduce the condensation around the fireball in a nuclear explosion with the help of chemicals.

"The result is that the particles, instead of falling to the ground as radioactive fallout, follow the overheated air upward because of their small weight" the scientists said.

Sweden does not possess nuclear weapons, so the scientists had to experiment with fireball models to get the high temperatures needed for their research.

To be able to study the fireball condensation at tolerable temperatures, they converted oxide into oxide-fluorides which condense from gas to solid form at temperatures of around 600 degrees centigrade instead of 2,000 degrees or more for the oxides.

B&M To Stop At Crossing

BOSTON (AP) — Boston and Maine Railroad trains must cut their speed to 35 miles per hour at five crossings in Everett and Chelsea under an order by the Department of Public Utilities.

The order, effective Monday, resulted from preliminary investigation into crossing collisions in the two cities that claimed a total of 14 lives.

A dozen persons died Dec. 28 in the fiery collision of a B & M self-propelled passenger train and an oil truck at an Everett crossing. On Feb. 20, a similar train collided with a car at a Chelsea crossing killing two women.

Clay-Hershey Bout Mar. 29

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Come April 11, it will be Pvt. Cassius Clay, U.S. Army—maybe.

The heavyweight champion, turned down by a presidential appeals board in his efforts to remain a civilian has been ordered to report for induction on that date.

Clay's attorneys had anticipated the decision, however, and before the induction order was made public, they had begun a new legal action.

They filed suit in U. S. District Court alleging racial discrimination by Local Board 47, Clay's Louisville draft board, and by all other Kentucky draft boards because of a racial imbalance in their makeup

Judge James F. Gordon set March 29 for hearing arguments on whether to name a three-judge panel to hear the suit, but he refused to issue a temporary restraining order barring Clay's induction. The suit asks for a permanent injunction.

State Accepts Hub School Plan

BOSTON (AP) — The state Board of Education has accepted the Boston School Committee's latest proposal for easing racial imbalance in the city's schools.

The 6-2 vote by the board Wednesday ends a year - long impasse and releases some $9 million in state aid funds to the city.

The plan's long-range provisions commit the school committee to the "concept of building larger neighborhood elementary schools on the periphery of the non-white neighborhoods . . . thus insuring a racially balanced pupil population."

Short-term provisions call for 3,456 Negro pupils to be moved from schools with more than 50 per cent non-white enrollments to predominantly white schools.

Closing some classrooms and assigning the children in them to other nearby schools will account for 633 of the transfers.

The remaining 2,539 transfers will be handled by independently operated busing programs.

IRISH POWER

UNIVERSITY NEWS BRIEFS

A $23,112 grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been awarded to the University of Massachusetts for microbial genetics research by Dr. Curtis B. Thorne, professor of microbiology.

The two-year grant will support a project entitled "Lysogeny and Phage Carrier State in Bacillus Species." Dr. Thorne will examine the relationship of certain bacterial cells and the virus that infects them. There is a possibility that an analogy can be drawn between this relationship and that of animal cells and the cancer-producing virus.

* * *

The University of Massachusetts has been awarded a 27,658 grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for three more years of research on vapor phase sterilization, a process that uses the complementary action of heat and gas. The research is being conducted by Dr. Charles R. Stumbo, professor of food science and technology.

Collegian Wire News Staff

EDITOR: Richard S. O'Kline
STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam O'Metaxas
Armen L. O'Roupenian
Al O'Sirota
Wayne O'Soini

Editorial Section — Campus Comment

On Freshman Curfews

A little more than a year ago—March 1, to be exact—the Collegian issued a four page special on Women's Curfews which urged a critical re-examination of the value of curfews. About two months later, curfews for all upperclass women were abolished, as were some other archaic women's regulations.

Voices of dissention and fear from outside the University community ominously forecast such evil results as statutory violations, all-night parties, 3:00 a.m. riots, and a sharp increase in the motel patronage.

On the first anniversary of the curfew controversy, we think it appropriate to see how this progressive change has worked out.

The fears were unwarranted.

No evils have come about.

And the trust of the University administration in the UMass student body has been rewarded.

We wish to commend the University community for maturely accepting this significant change and proving its great worth. We support its continuation, including some sort of Freshmen women's curfew, for we feel a curfew for new women students of 17 and 18 years old is helpful in adjusting to the strains imposed by such a new and vast environment.

Academic institutions from across the nation have pointed to our success and to the merits of our system in helping to provide for the total education of the students. We have a right to be proud, and an obligation to continue.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

Shape Up or Ship Out

by PAT PETOW, Senate Reporter

The Student Senate, perhaps wrongly, has been talked of and respected as an institution. During the latter part of the meeting on March 15, individual members placed their own views ahead of the views of the Senate.

If the Senate is to continue to deserve respect, it must put its house in order. Senators in name only, Senators without respect for the institution should be denied their minority's veto.

According to the Student Government Association By-Laws, a quorum of two-thirds is required to conduct business. According to "Senators" Garjian, Nadan, and Wimberley, business can only be conducted when their chances of success are obvious.

The Senate as an institution was denied the opportunity to pass on the Yahoo budget.

Allowing the shenanigans to be employed were the 12 Senators who never showed up at the meeting and the 11 Senators, including those directly involved, who left before the adjournment. As the Senate President has declared the members who do not care about remaining in the Senate should resign. There is no reason for Senators to be absent themselves because of "exams." If a student wants to be a Senator, then it is his responsibility to study ahead of time.

The carry-over of business of the last three meetings is a disgrace to the student body. The 45 minute delay in starting the meeting on March 15 was inexcusable.

Of course, the student body, that nebulous collection of individuals, is ultimately responsible and at fault. But the student body has never had the reputation as being an honorable "institution." The Senate has had this reputation. It is time for the Senate to put its house in order.

Draft Solution: Women in the Ranks

Special to the Collegian from Associated College Press

Although Selective Service Director Hershey's call for a draft for women was based on a need for nurses, the editors of the Xavier University News, Cincinnati, see certain advantages to giving women a more active role.

The Xavier News said:

Can you imagine the devastating effect to the morale of the Viet Cong, some of whom have been living in jungles and underground for years, suddenly being confronted with a GI version of the playmate of the month looking over the sights of an M14? It is almost enough to destroy a man's faith in apple pie.

Think of the interesting use to which a general could put this, up to now, untapped source of man—err, womanpower. Turn a battalion of women loose on the front line and they would immediately talk the enemy to death. That is, unless the enemy countered with its own women's corps. In that case, military history would be presented with the first case in which troops refused to fight because their hair wasn't dry.

Consider, also the interest women could generate in such things as battle statistics. A typical dispatch would read: "The Big Blond Thirty Six saw limited action today and reported only minor casualties: two broken finger nails, 27 runs in hose, and three women reporting to the rest area for a beauty appointment.

Of course, there would be certain occupations for which women just could not qualify. For example, fighter pilot. After all, the cockpits of those planes are just not large enough for both a pilot and her purse. Another is the Signal Corps; the battle could be lost while a commander was trying to get an open line to call up his reserves.

But the real point is that the more women drafted, the fewer male students lose their 2-S deferments.

Between the idea

And the reality,

Between the motion

And the act,

Falls the Shadow

—T. S. Eliot,

The Hollow Men

A Fine University—The Hoax?

To the Editor:
Re: Wendell Woodman's Article

Thank you very much for your enlightening news story on the University of Massachusetts. I am from the North Shore and being from this area, my primary concern is not in farming. I have been at the University for three years and have not taken a picking or plowing course yet and I have been very disillusioned — disillusioned until I read your article reassuring me that I am still going to a farm school.

You reassured and refreshed my faith in humanity. I was almost taken in by the propaganda here that I am going to a fine growing undergraduate University with many schools, residential colleges, quality professors, a four-college program, and that new and better buildings (such as a 2-million volume library, a new student center, a graduate research center, a new fine arts center, etc.) were needed to become the cornerstone of a really top-notch University.

But thn, you've probably been here, Mr. Woodman, and realize that our administration is perpetrating a big hoax by creating the illusion of buildings (School of Business Administration, New School of Education, New Engineering, Chemistry, Physics, etc., buildings).

There really isn't anything out here. You're absolutely right, $35,000,000 is a lot for chicken feed and oats to hire a driver and a sheep herder. Of course the greatest insult of all is that the "President" of this school should be considered "a top candidate for the Presidency of the University of Michigan, a real school. Lederle should be considered for no more than the foreman of the King Ranch.

Buildings do cost money, equipment costs money, and luring quality teachers (from the Illinois cornfields) costs money too. This state wants a school it can be proud of, quality pig pens, high grade stalls, etc., but it must realize, initially, that it must be willing to pay for it.

Their own sons and daughters just might want to go to a good "aggie" school someday, and would want the best for their children. The taxpayer can be proud of this school and can see concrete proof that his money is, in fact, going for good quality education.

Irresponsible news reporting has no place in modern newspapers. Even the school newspaper, The Collegian, a tri-weekly with a circulation of close to 20,000, which claims a free and responsible press is cuffed loudly when it is irresponsible.

Student journalists take this criticism and try not to make the same mistake twice. Having an editorial on the front page, and writing from lack of total information is irresponsible. You are supposed to be a paid professional journalist. Please don't make the same mistake twice.

Philip Lerner
Class of 1968

Let's Hear It for The War

To the Editor:

I have been reading all the comments on how the U.S. is involved in an illegal war, that we should pull out and let the Vietnamese fight their own war.

One said, "Our traditional allies are not in Vietnam, they are of the opinion that we do not belong there either." Who, may I ask, are our traditional allies?

Russia was our ally during World War II, but she turned against us again, as soon as she received her spoils. France has also turned away. Are these our traditional allies? I hope not.

Maybe the reason Russia and China do not have troops all around the world is because other countries do not want them with their way of life.

If President Eisenhower is so sure 80% of the people of Vietnam would turn towards communism, why didn't he pull our troops out when he was in office. He had his chance to end the war.

How many people who protest the war know what communism can do to a people and their country?

I have been to a country where the communists have left their mark on both the people and the land. Personally, I have talked with civilians and military, from a private to a high ranking officer. Besides talking, I have seen with my own eyes some of the scars and marks left by the good Communist on the people themselves. Most of them wanted to know why the Americans did not finish the job of ridding their country of the communists. What would you tell them?

No, we have no business in Vietnam. Neither did we have any business stopping Hitler, the Japanese, or Castro. They only wanted to take over a few countries by force, torture, and fear.

Communism must be stopped somewhere. Should we wait until they rule the world?

Maybe living under the Communist would do some good. I doubt if we would be driving that new car or be able to express our views, in writing or by speech, without fear.

People should sit down and really read what Communism means, and what is said about it by people who have lived under Communism. It would do a lot of good to help everyone to understand what we are up against.

Dennis Peterson
405 Brett

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Sean O'Weinerman

MANAGING EDITOR
Jackie Dowd

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

News Editor ..... Bobbie O'Gorman
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie McSkinnough
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald
Adv. Man. ..... Dotsie FitzSilver, Sharrie McRamer
Photographers ..... Sean Kelly, Pollie O'Boil

Friday's Day Editors: News Marjie Flannery, Edit. Nancy McBoniq, Sports Brendon Beeham, Photo. Rennie O'Neil, Typos. Sully McNewell

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

The VALLEY REVIEW

Malcolm Boyd and Robert McAfee Brown: American Religion

The Draft

The American Baseball Hero

God in the Pepsi Generation

By CHRISTOPHER W. NUGENT

The age of the generation is young. The places they want to go are many. And the things they want to do are even more. To this generation come the new ideals and hopes of what another generation calls the Ecumenical age, an age when we can forget the differences of Catholic and Protestant and even Jew. But to a generation who sees that the differences of black and white, poor and rich, peace and war, are still very much alive, Ecumenism is just another word resurrected "to keep the faith." Ecumenism is a whole concept which must come from the essential elements of the different faiths. But it is this young generation which cannot see truth in the institutional expressions of these faiths. It is a generation which finds no consolation in the institutional church which has a 98 percent membership in Alabama. It is a generation who listens to Cardinal Spellman ask for total victory in a dirty war, a war of napalm produced in God-loving and God-fearing America. It is a generation who can't see God's love in Cicero or Watts or Hough and so they cry out in pain that God is truly dead.

The questions that this "here and now" generation ask are more probing than most religious advisors care to think about. But as Malcom Boyd points out quite clearly, all men have to face up to what is and that "is" represents rational questions about irrational subjects: the bomb, race, war, Victorian sex ethics and so on. What this generation, this Time Man of the Year, spectacular group, asks is about the here and now, for pie-in-the-sky salvation is not where the action is. You might not be able to "save your soul" working in Cicero or marching in a protest over the resumption of bombing North Vietnam, but this generation knows that these actions do mean something, which future salvation does not.

Robert MacAfee Brown offers a very cogent idea on the traditional preachings of the institutional church. When modern man talks of Jesus Christ, the image of sanctity, purity, and the Sunday School "goodie-goodie" is too often the uppermost. The fact is that Jesus was a man who had a beard, perspired, felt pain, knew about sex, and above all was able to love men for what they tried to be in His name. Jesus was the love of God given to man. He was not an authority of divine majesty come to edit a rule book which explains why a girl and boy should refrain from pre-marital sex, rather he was life in the most normal human form, with a most extraordinary capacity to love.

The whole message that Malcom Boyd and Robert MacAfee Brown are attempting to explain is that the structural church is neglecting the real concern of humanity. An institution which is fearful of losing money if it speaks out on fair housing is not fulfilling the true meaning of the Christian commitment. As Malcom Boyd states it, the Churches today are too often dispensers of "cheap grace," of rationalizations to excuse the unpleasantness of the Christian witness. To Boyd, the churches must take the initiative of risk, they must go out on a limb or they will not represent the true spirit of Christianity. That is to say, Christianity is not true when it accepts blindly, rather it is only fulfilled when it is alive and dynamically questioning and redirecting its goals. The Church cannot rest on God as a liker of what we like, for God is not an American nor is he white middle class nor does he hate the Viet Cong.

The new generation of seekers, or young men and women who are scoffed for their radical ways, are really doing nothing more than testifying to the love that Christianity has somehow lost or maybe transformed into an unrecognizable mass of rationalizations. Most of these young men and women have disavowed any relation with a structural church because the Churches of the twentieth century have taken the place to exhibit the goodness of all men before going into the world to proclaim the sanctity of their property by not selling to a Negro buyer. The Christian Church is no longer truly Christian, for it has lost the true sense of the radicalism of Jesus' message. The conception of Christianity as a radical way of life is not one very present in our age nor in many ages of the Western world, for the Christian message has lost its dynamism by negating its ideals in vast institutions. The whole Christian context has seemed to move from the brilliant goals of the Gospels to the static cant of "just wars," "gradual integration" and "tokenism." This theme of dynamic to static evolution cannot be pinned alone on Christianity, for its evidence is seen in the democratic failures of slavery, imperialism, red-scare, and, most clearly, the general intolerance of American's for minorities.

In the analysis of American religious evolution, H. Richard Niebuhr presented a now classic study of the nature of the concept of the Kingdom of God in America. (Harper and Row, 1939.) The whole history of Christianity is just the idea of the evolution from movement to institution to counter-movement, from dynamic ideals to static conception of those ideals to dynamic counter-ideals. As Niebuhr portrays, the whole notion of Christianity is one of dynamic struggle, for "the true church is not an organization but the organic movement of those who have been 'called out' and 'sent'." (p. xiv) The very notion of a church calling its tradition a Christian one and not going forth to Selma, to Watts, to the local ghetto is beyond the comprehension of this "here and now" generation. Christianity is where the action should be and where the action is there also should be the Christian.

It is this notion of a new spirit of Christian commitment, linked with no institutional church, that Malcolm Boyd is heralding. He speaks prophetically of what must be done and he goes to the scenes of the "doings," the coffee shop, the college campus, the freedom rides. When the white suburban middle class ghetto is shocked by Stokely Carmichael or by the Black Panther movement, it is Boyd's voice that teaches the lesson that the Jewish scribes and pharisees were equally shocked by the teachings of Jesus Christ. The love that Jesus taught is not much different in its goals from the aspirations of the Black man when he searches for the ultimate brotherhood of all men through the self-realization of Black Power. As it is with Boyd, so also Robert MacAfee Brown speaks of the centrality of challenging reform, of "ongoing reform" as an integral part of the Christian message.

The final judgment which the present generation of youth receives from history will depend greatly on what effect spokesmen like Boyd and Brown will have. The Movements of the past two decades have exalted the cry of the human being and his essential worth. Whether this generation denied the personage and theological significance of Jesus Christ or whether they spoke of the death of God is not important, for the power and foresight of their judgment may lead the ideals of the Christian commitment to fruition.

Mr. Nugent, majoring in American Studies at Amherst, is writing his thesis on the "Failure of Millenial Communitarianism: Shakers and Perfectionists." He will attend the Graduate School of Education at the University of Chicago, working for an MAT in urban secondary education.

Malcolm Boyd: Against the Fat Cat

By MICHAEL GREENBERG

Malcolm Boyd makes one hesitate to call him Reverend. On the phone, he drops his title and says, "This is Malcolm Boyd." I interviewed him in sports jacket and tie; he wore a short-sleeve knit shirt and a pair of slacks. We sat in his living room, and he turned off a symphony by Mahler on the stereo set. On his wall hung reproductions of Rouault's Christs.

He's exciting and a good talker, and after a while this interviewer just let him talk. He leans forward and ends his probing with the question, "Do you understand?" Sometimes I had the feeling that he hadn't left the pulpit, but after the interview, we eased into a general conversation; he was interesting and probing without rhetoric, a man one could talk to.

Last year, he preached at the Hungry i, a nightclub in San Francisco, and years before he had been a freedom rider. Originally, a television and movie executive in the late 40's, he entered Divinity School in 1951.

His most famous book is Are You Running With Me Jesus?, a collection of prayers in slang for people who don't have time. There is a prayer for saying on the way to work (Are you running with me Jesus?) and one for an unwed mother.

How original is Malcolm Boyd? Probably not an original Church thinker. But his importance is his vigorous style. "Saintliless is action," he says, and he moves, thrusting himself forward, waiting for my reply, telling me and everyone about the relevance of the Church.

Q: Does religion have any meaning today?

A: That's very complex, not easy to answer at all. I don't think anyone would write off with a stroke of a pen any metaphysical meanings. Then you get into depth situations. Take our own lifetime: Auschwitz, Mississippi, Vietnam. In relation to those questions, this question becomes rather simplistic, academic levels of meaning which take on something that we call religious which affects men and women. I would say that organized religion offers today's college student and faculty member virtually nothing. Except—idiotically—some imagery to topple. I would consider it an Establishment charade which by design is not even really very honest. An intellectual obviously is not going to equate everything belonging to religion or to God to the charade of organized religion.

Q: What then is the function of organized religion?

A: It serves the function of being the opiate of the people, of being sexually sick, of embracing racism and giving its seal of holy approval, at its worst when it is misused. But it is misused . . . frequently. And it is maddening that it is misused. I don't wish that religion will form its own idolatry so that religion will be worshipped in place of God.

Most of us feel that we have to smash some of the organized forms so that we can find some integrity. Otherwise we don't isolate the demonic cases.

In terms of actual religious affiliation, the vast majority of people are products of historical affiliations. They have not had any radical moment of commitment. Most people, they're Methodists, Jews, Episcopalians, lacking this kind of controntation. There is this negative. This has become futile. This doesn't mean that one can't combine the historical and commitment. But this has not been done. Most people go over to Hillel, Wesleyan Centers and play, keep sexuality tidy, produce right attitudes so that nice Jews and Methodists can continue to cohabit and there will continue to be Hillels and Wesleyan Centers.

Q: What is the correct use of organized religion?

A: The Church should exist in a role of servanthood. I think that for both Judaism and Christianity it's imperative that a chosen people be a responsibility. Chosen people tend to be stiff-necked. We're being called to responsibility and servitude rather than privilege. The call is to wash the feet of men. Organized religion is to be concerned with the body and the mind of man as well as his soul. Some people feel that religion is concerned with the soul, not man's body and mind; in other words, not with his self. This is what's so maddening about missionaries (in a stereotyped way) who go into ghettos and slums. This regards a committment to change the system, a system that can have inequalities of poverty in affluence and race conflict and war. I'm very tired of churches and synagogues sitting off in the nice suburbs with high pay and with people coming in for occasional 'co-worship'—but in quotes because it's isolated from life. These churches are living in cheap grace, telling you your life is blessed. Well, where are the prophets? There has got to be a prophetic element in the Church. And it has got to be in these churches and synagogues so that they say, 'What about housing ordinances in which you take money from the city and flee?' Religion has got to remind people of the commandment, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.'

I was in the Watts Revolt, and I call it a revolt instead of a riot, and there was a classic example of 'moral leadership' refusing to be moral and refusing to lead. It was involved in its organizational life, its societies, its fund-raising, but not involved in the lives of these people and even after the revolt it wasn't involved, only superficially. One project of the Episcopal Church after the revolt was to distribute gallons of white paint. Can you imagine?

What I'm asking Christianity and Judaism to do is to examine the tenets of their faith, to try to get out of their real estate business and their power structure business and being chaplains of the status quo and to developing a certain sensitivity about people. And to seek risk rather than to avoid risk. Religion has gotten to be a fat cat and avoids risk, whereas it ought to be seeking ways to find risk. If not, what does faith mean?

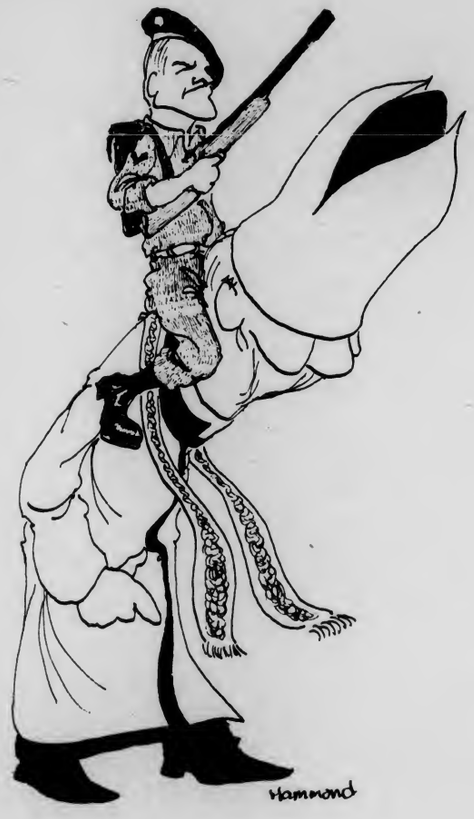
I'd like to see love understood as a word, not simply understood as a word for bedrooms or church conventions or social functions. I'm very tired of people who talk about personal salvation all the time who refuse to open their eyes to the realities of social sin and social salvation.

Q: Is God dead. Why? Why not?

A: Some of the God is Dead theologians are close friends for whom I have a great deal of respect. A too neat reply is kind of absurd. For me the reason I put a small 'g' instead of a large 'G' in the phrase, 'god is dead,' is that I think there is a large 'G.' I believe in the reality of God, who by his very nature and being could not die. This God is the God of all life. And therefore of all religions. For me, religion doesn't become a kind of extensive ghettoization. Since we share God together there is a basis of our kinship. I think the new ecumenical thrust will be Christianity-Judaism. And I'm most intrigued in the dialogue now between Western and Eastern religions.

The small 'g' that a great number of people have been worshipping in organized religions is dead because he never existed. This God is white, and American for American interests so that some people pray to this god to pray for the American soldier in Vietnam but not the Viet Cong. If we could take a moratorium on the word God, it would be very helpful. A lot of people have a very anthropomorphic vision of God. A great many people are blasphemely superstitious about God. Maybe if they engage in the sexual act in this bed, they will be struck by thunder and lightning or hopefully God has his anthropomorphic back turned.

Christmas has become such madness that we almost have to back up and do away with about 90% of the ritual. It's superstitious. It's sentimental. And for the people who get overly involved in Christmas at that level it's almost like waking up the next day with a hangover. If they had any kind of common sense or any kind of cool, they would retreat from Christmas after having this kind of orgiastic experience. Some people will not listen. "We must adhere to the letter of the law; we cannot have any change," they say. They have moved into a literal psychosis.



Q: What is the importance of Jesus to your beliefs?

A: . . . in a particular sense in the person of Jesus. God has entered our humanness so that God is not remote. That is why going into the Hungry i was so natural because God is as much a part of the Hungry i as well as a cathedral. There is no part of life that God is not a part of. Most of us are brought up with a division between the sacred and the secular. We should see God as totally involved in life, as loving.

Also from this comes my social ethic. Since God is so intimately involved in us, if in any way we are possessed by God, then we are automatically involved with man. For my generation, this question has been black/white.

Q: How does your philosophy relate to your books?

A: Some of the Death of God theologians have related to Are You Running With Me Jesus? because it's a Jesus book not a God book. God isn't mentioned in it. Even some atheists in the country have admired it for the same reason. Jesus connotes a humanism, since the book is a Jesus book, not a God book. I don't like the word Jesus Christ any more. I'd rather talk about him on a first person basis. If we can calmly talk about Jesus Christ on a first person basis, a great deal of dialogue and empathy can be felt.

There's a new book that I have just finished that will be out in March. This book goes on without Jesus. It makes its points that you can't meditate to God unless you're meditating about man and the world. Here we go on without 'Jesus,' but not really—because in the first book I wasn't going on without God. In a sense this is a profounder book for me, because I feel that one doesn't have to talk about Jesus, or erect theological walls. What the new book is getting at: someone might say, 'Tell me about Jesus,' and someone might reply, 'Stick close to me awhile. I don't have much to say about Jesus. Maybe you'll comprehend what I mean by my style of life.' The new book has a few four letter words. I'm asking, listen to some of the people in their natural speech in their natural way of life.

There are certain interesting figures who move me more than others: Henri Perrin, Sigmone Weil—a French Jewish woman who chose not to be baptized because she believed in Jesus but wanted to stand with those outside of society for whom he had died. She died of starvation in London, refusing to eat more food than allowed to the people in the concentration camps. Dietrich Bonhoeffer—who left Nazi Germany and then went back of his own will. He was imprisoned and hanged. He took an active part in opposition to Hitler. There are certain figures in the freedom movement here who have a great deal of meaning for me. They would be surprising figures. Modern saintliness is close to people I've been talking about in my view.

Saintliness must be understood today in terms of action. Piety is service. There are some jazz musicians I know, and there are people who work in community organizations who don't dress in a bourgeois way, whose language is rather earthy and rough who in my view are rather holy people, whereas a number of religious leaders I know are not.

The relationship to God involves a relationship to man. And then, to understand that the Church is called to be in this world. It's function is not to isolate, or to ghettoize itself against the world. The world is the armor of God's action. And I'm defining love certainly as social justice. The Church is not a private club with ethnic, economic racial qualifications. One's basic Christian work will not be Church work. I think it was Bob McAfee Brown who coined the word, 'Churchianity.' If the work is not 'Churchianity' it will be in the world. For instance, we have the Episcopal Society for Cultural and Racial Unity at my church and to be a member of that I have always presupposed that one was also a member of CORE.

Something happened to me some years ago. It obviously wasn't what I was saying but how I was saying it that was getting me into trouble. People were not saying it's the other guy who's at fault when they listened to my sermons. Things happened: being banned by Louisiana State University and Mississippi Southern University; forced to resign as chaplain of Colorado State University. The bishop attacked my work in coffeeshops. He said, 'You can't call yourself a man of God if you have matted hair, smell bad, work in coffeeshops, and use profanity.' A play of mine was banned by Michigan State Educational Television on grounds of obscenity and profanity. And this was untrue. NBC did the banned play coast to coast and the Anti-defamation League of the B'nai B'rith purchased portions and distributed them. The educational TV station was afraid of too strong a statement and hid behind the words, 'Damn' and 'Nigger.' The bishop there attacked me. The New York Times headlines read: 'Bishop Rebukes Priest for Profanity.' I seem to have developed as a part of my nature a way of making people aware that I am talking about them and not the other guy.

The other night I was with Stokely Carmichael in an upper middle class white suburb in Canada. And I was again struck by the hypocrisy of the middle class. (Excited, Boyd leaned forward in his chair, extended his left hand and chopped it with his right.) What I try to do is cut through the fat. Who's got time? For Chrissake we're running out of time. Why is anyone afraid of cutting to the bone, of drawing blood? If you love you have to draw blood. Love isn't sentimental pap. If you love, don't you have to get to the cancer, to the fundamental issues?

On race there's so much to say. To me the responsibility of whites is not to moralize about black power but to correct the inequities and savageries within white power and again I don't believe that a white should be teaching non-violence to a black, instead he should be curbing violence with whites. If you're black, maybe your sister has been gang-raped by young good Christians, your father's masculinity destroyed and left as a hulk. You have no part of America or the Great Society and are determined you will defend yourself from attack. You will start talking non-violence to this man? The work that has to be done is to curb violence of the white man. I agree with Stokely that the white do-gooder should not be the man that the little kid should look up to. The only way to maturity is for the kid to look up to a black male figure, not a black matriarch or a white male, to take pride in his blackness, black-strength, black-creativity. Then the self-hate is erased and then the hatred for whites is eliminated. I sat in a room with black nationalists the age of students at Amherst who will never go anywhere. They are just waiting to go to the gas chamber, to kill as many whites as they can on their way. SNCC now speaks of three moods: inspiration, frustration, and desperation. I've moved through all three. I went through two years of hating white people, and came out of it much more human. Now I don't love either black or white—don't deal with people on those terms—but as individuals. Let's quit licking our wounds and let's get back to the job and get things done. I've gone from desperation back to inspiration. This isn't pie-in-the-sky inspiration. This is a kind of hard core inspiration. I mean it's gutty. Nothing's changed. 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul', and thy neighbor as thyself. All right, but let's get on. Let's involve ourselves much more economically. Find a slum-lord with liquor stores and a monopoly and break him or make him no longer a slum lord—make him no longer charge high prices for slum dwellings, the same prices by which middle-class people pay for their own dwellings. Black Power is not a matter of hating individual whites, it's a matter of changing what's wrong in the system.

I had a parish in Indianapolis. It was my first one. I had been in France, living and working in an agricultural brotherhood. Then I took this church in Indianapolis. A number of people said, 'You should go into college work. I didn't feel that I had any aptitude for that type of work; maybe I was somewhat frightened. I went to Colorado. Suddenly I realized that my job, my meaning was to get out with thousands of alienated students and faculty to the Student Union, beer joints, coffeehouses. Being there, there was more of a chance of talking, not preaching, of having friends.

I very much like the sort of non-prestigeous small liberal arts school sort of hidden off somewhere. First of all, the enrollment is small; I can really come into contact with let's say half the student body. If I can stay three days, just being there at night and at the coffeehouses, I can really come in contact with various interesting people. I go to the drama class, to the educational TV's, talk with the student journalists. We let it go, keep it a little loose, nothing's tightly structured. Best things that happen may be at two or three in the morning maybe in the dorm or in the apartment. That's when we get down to issues—no holds barred. That's what replenishes me. By listening to students, I am able to articulate what they say to other students, who sense the honesty in what I'm saying.

I'm very often asked by adult groups what is your secret to youth. They want gimmicks, set lines. They're bureaucrats. It's hopeless for them. I tell them simply that I shut up.

Rev. Brown: Transform from Within

By JOEL BARTLETT

Minister to Stanford University, Robert McAfee Brown is currently shaking up the University, "engaging the Christian faith with the modern mind." A Presbyterian with a strong Protestant conviction, the Reverend Brown considers the Protestant movement more clergy-ridden than the Roman Catholic.

> The Protestants are now in a minority position, and therefore don't have to assume responsibilities. The Church must learn to exercise a more prophetic role. It is time to test commitment against the thrust of a secular world, yet with it, too.

Christian Century, Commonweal and Newsweek have featured him as a leader in the American Protestant movement today. As the Protestant observer to Vatican II, he mixed observation with advice and found himself within Protestant-Catholic ecumenicism, his main concern today within the Church.

Casual and collected, both in dress and manner, Reverend Brown was open to all questions and, in general, talkative and highly intellectual. Graduating from Amherst College in 1940 with a philosophy and religion major, he went on to study under Reinhold Niebuhr, noted for his teachings in Christian realism, at the Union Theological Seminary. A Navy chaplain in 1946, he was a Conscientious Objector for a time. He then came back to Amherst where he taught and involved himself with the local Congregational Church. He returned to Union for his Doctorate and accepted a position as Minister to MacAlester College, Presbyterian, in St. Paul, Minnesota. Supporting the liberal Catholic, Senator Paul McCarthy from Minnesota, in a political campaign, Reverend Brown learned that "controversial ministers get burned." He found himself at Union again, teaching this time. His most recent move to Stanford came three years ago.

Q: Would college students in particular find the Church an outlet—a valuable means of serving the community,—or would the interests today lie more in the Peace Corps, Vista, and other groups for social action?

A: Many students today are concerned about throwing their lives into the church, when so many more exciting things seem to be happening in the Peace Corps and so forth. A lot of what the current generation has to do is to transform from within the understanding of the church. We have to make common cause with the people outside the church. The whole area of what's coming to be called secular humanism is of increasing importance. Working to transform the world for the sake of your fellow man means you don't set up just little Christian enclaves, but the Christian community is the base from which all people are thrust out of all kinds of alliances with all kinds of other people—all working for some ends we can identify although the motivation for doing this will be somewhat different.

Q: What is Protestantism now in the context of the "God is Dead" theology? Faith to some now means not intellectual acceptance of an ancient confession, but open commitment—perhaps best symbolized in the United States by the civil rights movement—to eradicating the evil and inequality that beset the world. Is this where Protestantism is going to have to go?

A: I certainly would ascribe to this. A lot of the latter point concerns how faith really spells itself out. The civil rights movement is a good symbol of what it means to be radically involved in transforming the structures of society, but that isn't necessarily what it means to affirm that God is dead. I don't think these necessarily have to be tied together. The notion that God is dead is an old one. The only thing that is new is that a very few are trying to make a Christian affirmation out of this. I don't think that that route has a future. That's a kind of temporary thing that has been picked up by the secular journals because it's news. You know, if Christian theologians affirm that there is no God, that's news, but if Nietsche affirms it, that's not news. I don't see that the future of the Christian church lies in taking the secular affirmation and saying, "we can shout it more loudly than you can." For the vast rank and file of men in our day, God is dead; He has no meaning for them. This is simply a descriptive fact that one has to accept. The Christians better get with it in realizing that this is the true situation of belief and unbelief for modern man.

Q: What are the changes in Protestantism since the current "God is Dead" flare-up?

A: The kind of God we have thought about needs to be disposed of—the notion that there is a being off in the sky that pulls the puppets over human existence and so forth. We've had all sorts of curious notions; if that is the notion of God, the sooner disposed of the better. The most important changes in Protestant thought—extending to ecumenical changes, too, are radical changes for man's purpose of existence. Religion is not simply promising rewards off in the far future, rather it is deeply involved with the life of men here now. It doesn't mean that the here and now exhausts the meaning of life, but that one has no right to ignore, to bypass, to pretend that what's happening next week, next year, isn't crucial. The way, it seems to me, that one affirms faith and the meaning of life today may be by radical disavowal of our Vietnam policy, say, or radical concern to see that the poor nations are given a fair shake by those who happen through historical or geographical accident to have most of the wealth. At the Geneva Conference, consisting of Protestants and some invited Catholic observors from all over the world, it became luminously clear that the issue is not Communism-non-Communism, the issue is the rich nations-the poor nations, the colored nations against the white, the Northern Hemisphere against the Southern hemisphere. Here's where the real revolutions are going to be generated.

Q: Would you agree that the task of religion today is to define God who can touch men's emotions and engage men's minds?

A: The question sounds a little like you are saying it is our job to dream up some God—our job is to try to clear away some of the misunderstandings, distortions, so that ultimate reality, "the ground of Being," whatever term you want to

LA PLAZA DE COLORINES

By WILLIAM CLAMURRO

The women singing
There behind the cloth;
Women waiting in the plaza,
Holding out the heavy bodies,
Softly drowsing fruit;
The sullen women tired with flies.

Five dogs wait
Around the running garden
That plays in weeds as laughing children;
There they wait—for melons
And other stranger sweetness,
Dung or dying leaves.
Dogs are lying,
And waiting there in dust and patience.

. . .

The woman is a double pendulum,
Lightly wrapped in flower cloth;
And also like a copper bell,
A soft dull ring of goats.
The bottoms of her feet
Would find the road and tops of rounded stones;
Her body droops a bit content,
Her thighs a rhythm swinging through the market.

use, can once again become that to which contemporary man can relate himself. The churches have built so many smoke screens, God does not seem particularly real. Our job is to break away the misunderstandings that all of us have helped to build, so that the impingement of God upon human life can become real once more. I think a great deal of it will be in terms of recognizing that where you find Christ in the world today is in terms of the neighbor.

Q: Almost every 20th century novel I've read concludes that life is without meaning. Those that mention God say that waiting for God is futile. And D. Claude Levi-Strauss, professor of Social anthropology at College de France says, "I find it's perfectly possible to spend my life knowing that we will never explain the universe." What would you tell these people, and where is the trend going?

A: That's a big question... Tillich makes this point very nicely in The Courage to Be—that these people who talk about the un-beautiful in so beautiful a way—Eliot's The Wasteland, for instance, in which we find an implicit affirmation of meaning in the despairing denial of meaning. We would not be concerned with the problem if there were not something that still continues to haunt us. I don't want to get too subtle here, but Camus talks about no meaning, and yet he tries to carve out a whole world of compassionate concern for the brother of need. Beckett has this despairing play, Waiting for Godot, and yet they continue to wait. They don't give up; the most hopeful lines are at the end of each act when they say, "let's go," and the stage reference says, "they do not move." They stay. The totally consistent nihilist doesn't seem to be around very much.

Q: Don't you think the "authority of personal experience," as you call it, is out of balance in the church today?

A: So many of the people who have these radically oriented concerns for total involvement with other people, with humanity, with transforming the social scene at the same time, I think it is fair to say, retreat to drugs. Of course we can't experience totally all the time, but people revert into a completely interior, private kind of world of experience. These two worlds aren't necessarily tied together and in many cases they are really antithetically different. I think the ultimate goal of any kind of integrated life is the integration of the inner and the outer worlds; at this point the inner and outer worlds are held in a great tension. They seem for most people to be going in utterly opposite directions.

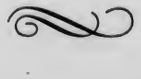
Q: Bishop Pike said recently, "I've jettisoned the Trinity, the Virgin Birth, and the Incarnation, but my present aim is to try to recast the identity of Christ. Jesus is still unique, because God who breaks through Him is unique, and the standard by which all others are measured." (Look) which holds more importance for you—Jesus Christ or God?

A: Bishop Pike has disavowed that radically iconiclastic statement of it... I would find it hard to say Jesus Christ or God. For me you can't talk about one without the other, but here is a very important link in with our earlier discussion, I think. When I say, "where do I find God?" at work and around, I have to say in what is represented by Jesus of Nazareth, who, whatever else he is, is a man among men in the world of human life and experience. There is where God is at work on the scene. This is to me the radically important meaning of the whole notion, historically and traditionally, of Reincarnation and not just a remote idea or entity off somewhere else. But God is to be found there, in the midst of human life in the very messy business of the first century politics and first century power struggles. Here is where the concerns are spelled out. When we talk about love, love is that which is ultimate. Love has to be incarnate, has to be infleshed in the human scene. So, when a person is concerned about manifesting love, he has to be manifesting it through political concerns, social structures—all this kind of thing. The focal point where I see this most totally represented is in Jesus of Nazareth.

Q: Why Jesus? Most people would accept where God lies, but would back off the moment you mention Jesus Christ. Why do people back off when you say Jesus?

A: One phrase that has been bandied about a lot in recent discussion out of Bonhoeffer I think is very useful: Jesus as the man for others. It doesn't mean that this is all we say about Him. The place for us perhaps in starting to rethink where Jesus impinges upon the life of men today is in seeing him as the man for others, and that where one finds whether he is "true" man. This is a very traditional phrase right out of the early creedal controversy. The point they are making is that he was true man, not fake, not pretend, not a phantom, not a spirit—but a full man, whatever else, that fully. It is here, in terms of the Christian affirmation, that one starts. Then the other things begin to make more sense; a framework of meaning one begins to develop here. If you affirm that compassion, love, and concern for others is really the heart of things, either it is the heart of things and you have made an important affirmation, or it is not the heart of things, and it is at the mercy of Fate, but you decide to opt for it anyhow. It is either rebellion or affirmation—you reach a watershed. The only honest alternative is Camus'. The world is absurd, it is deaf to the human cry for meaning, saying, "I will continue to carve out meaning in terms of compassion until I am defeated." Granted these are very different—there are shades in between, too.

Q: The New Theology that has been going around — described as Christocentric, theologically oriented, and biblically grounded—does this take in the constant renewal of reform within the church, as you mention?



A: Let me pick up on the theme of ongoing reform... Since that book (1960), I did a new preface. This theme of ongoing reform, is something the Protestant can no longer claim—I mean, the Vatican Council has really caught up with this. The whole Christian spectrum is involved here. I would say that if anything has come to dominate the contemporary Christian world it is the recognition that we never make final, totally adequate formulations; we do not have final answers—they always have to be re-examined. The thrust toward constant renewal, reforming the life of the church and the understanding of faith, it seems to me, has to go on. Always we stand judged by our failure to reach that which is asked of us—the theme of ongoing reform has more than just a fighting chance in our day and age. It is going to be very central in an attempt to articulate.

(With regards to his trip to Rome, Reverend Brown commented that he was merely an observor, but was gradually accepted as an unofficial participant. He considers the "Pacem in Terris" to be a separate statement, symbolizing the Catholic awareness of the importance to mutually affirm with the Protestants and non-Catholic world this community of faith. He views the ecumenical movement as a safeguard for making clear allowances of expression within the Christian faith, but, and more importantly, a move toward a collective life in Christ.)

Q: What are you doing now and how are you making up your mind?

A: I'm going over to the area of the sciences. There is a large gap lying between the humanities and the sciences. I hope to study more disciplines involving man in the 20th century. I want to study about computers and contemporary biology, areas that raise the most questions and are areas for creative possibilities for the thinking and understanding of man. I am of the opinion that the theologian is a listener. He has to listen more widely than I have listened. I've listened mainly within the humanist stream, to the voice of the Christian Community, but I would say that the listening must be in wider terms now. We live in an age that is becoming increasingly under the domination, and I don't use that pejoratively, just descriptively, of what scientific techniques and know-how, have produced. These have incredibly creative possibilities, but they also have terrible, demonic possibilities. We had better get this discussion going before we have moved away from the possibility of relating to one another.

As a Presbyterian, I am committed, fundamentally, to the death of Presbyterianism, to its death, but then its resurrection in a wider kind of unity. At times I find faith difficult, doubt very attractive, and God as an existential reality far away. Yet I know that God does exist, despite these moments of doubt, and He is embodied in Christ on the scene today. The goal of the life of the Protestant continues to be tentativeness of statement combined with the finality of commitment.

Mr. Bartlett is a sophomore majoring in American Studies at Amherst. His father is presently head of the Starr King School for the Ministry in Berkeley, California.

IN HONOR OF FANTIN - LATOUR

By RICHARD PRESTON

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Sonnenberg
I hope you know what you lent to Smith College Museum of Art last spring.

Probably
your small collection of not so difficult to come by major paintings
of a pretty minor French Impressionist.

Or do you dig him.
That is, can you smell
those still century-old flowers, or feel bold
as you peep into his lady's boudoir.
Can his self-executed stare prompt you to reconsider your gut for a moment, as you pass him hanging on your wall
in the corridor to the conservatory.
Because somehow
you own Fantin-Latour.

You know the nymph flying in one upper right-hand corner with the scroll inscribed
"Berlioz, Brahms, Schumann, Wagner;"
and that Smith Music offered one oppressive night last May selections, in his honor from Berlioz, Brahms, Schumann and Wagner

Did you know his left eye says come and the right one says go?

Defense of Student Deferment

By DORIAN FLEIGAL

Even though students make up only a fraction of the more than 50 percent of the manpower pool which never renders military service, they in particular have been singled out by the draft reform movement. The major goal of reform has come to insure that no one can turn a deferment into an exemption at age 26 which allows him to escape military service, or at the very least exposure to the draft. The question now before Congress is how to achieve this reform without disrupting the draft system which must continue to supply the needed manpower for Vietnam. Countless political figures, and endless groups, including the President's Advisory Commission have reportedly been studying the entire range of possibilities.

It is generally recognized however that no genuinely comprehensive study can be made at this time since the War precludes one basic possibility, the abolition of the draft. Nevertheless, the society seems unified in its commitment to wipe out draft inequity and impatient to do so.

It is this unanimity and impatience which are both surprising and dangerous. Beyond any doubt the draft contains basic inequities. Indeed there has arisen a massive national obsession with wiping out inequities by extending the applicability of compulsory service under the banner of democratic equality. Yet although universal service may be egalitarian, it is only in the narrowest sense democratic. The headlong movement for reform has obscured the historical reasons why inequities are legitimatized in law and why they have developed in practice, and a defense of student deferment rests upon these considerations.

Historically, two facts about the draft law are essential. The first, that it is selective because it is meant to be temporary, the second that it is temporary because it was intended to serve as a counter-balance to the growth of military power. The policy of Selective Service deferments was instituted because the peacetime draft was never intended to compel universal or permanent service, but to select only those men who were essential for the temporary requirements of an emergency period.

The present draft law, officially the Universal Military Training and Service Act, is essentially that which was signed by President Truman in 1951, and which has been extended three times since then. Its birth took place in the midst of a momentous and controversial debate.

In the context of the Korean Crisis, with the draft law of 1948 about to expire, the Pentagon was routinely given the task of writing renewal legislation. When the bill re-emerged, the Pentagon had included within it a provision for Universal Military Training, a program which would compel all males at the age of 18 to undergo six months of basic training and eight years of reserve service, and which was intended to replace Selective Service as a permanent peacetime policy. Public opinion was outraged at the Pentagon's tactics, and one of the largest civilian coalitions ever formed came into existence to oppose the establishment of a universal and permanent draft.

The major pitfall for the military was that they were unable to provide any strategic reason why the program was necessary at that time, since they admitted that it wasn't necessary for the Korean effort. On military grounds, proponents of universal military training were forced to argue that at four billion a year, it would show the enemy that we weren't cowards, and that in the event of atomic war, survivors would be able to defend their towns from invasion. But increasingly they had to resort to the moral, social and educational benefits which they said would accrue from the bill.

Liberals, isolationists, labor, church and educational leaders opposed what they considered to be a militarization of the society beyond military need. Hanson Balwin, New York Times military expert, and a figure usually tolerant of military expansion, wrote:

> The half-veiled promise of mopping up the unemployed by throwing them into uniform is the best example of a poverty-stricken imagination, it is the very argument that Hitler used, it is the apologia and last resource of a government which has failed to solve its domestic problems.

Polls showed that 81 percent of the nation's educators opposed universal military training on the grounds that the military was invading and disrupting the civilian domain of education.

Critics of universal military training argued that since 1945 the military had been attempting to secure a permanent draft, and charged that the military was exploiting the hysteria of the Korean crisis to secure its passage.

The result was that universal military training was separated from Selective Service and soundly defeated in 1952. The defeat of universal military training and the adoption of a temporary and selective draft were meant to check the growth of military power and reject the notion that conscription should serve any other than a strictly military purpose. The object of the temporary draft was to spare as many people as were not absolutely essential and to allow for the day when the draft might disappear.

In 1951 inequity was accepted as an unavoidable part of any system and as a secondary issue. The real issue was whether measures would be taken to make the draft more permanent or to insure that it remain temporary. On these grounds, the deferments built into Selective Service were justified as a guarantee of liberty.

In the operation of the Selective Service since 1951 it can be seen how inequities have developed in practice.

From the beginning there has existed a basic contradiction between the Selective Service System and the military establishment, for the purpose of the Selective Service by law was to select as pragmatically as possible only those men who were essential for military service. But the military on the other hand, recognized that in order to justify and maintain the draft they would have to take as many men as possible.

Working against the intentions of both groups but particularly the military has been the growth over the last 15 years of the manpower pool, as well as the gradual change in defense concepts from the mass conventional army of World War II to highly trained professional forces. The result has been that an increasingly smaller percentage of the manpower pool has been needed for military service. Prior to 1965 the military required only 400,000 men per year of the 12 million who were eligible, and the number of men between nineteen and twenty-six is expected to reach fifteen million by 1972. This is the central problem with the draft. As a result of it the Selective Service has granted increasingly liberal deferments, and the military has raised standards to curtail eligibility as a means of decreasing the available manpower pool. Meanwhile Congressmen have charged that the military has also padded its roster to create more positions than necessary and refused to accept voluntary enlistments beyond a point which would threaten the draft law.

Despite executive and military efforts to steer a course between a rising manpower pool and a proportionately decreasing military requirement, by 1964 over half the men reaching 26 had not seen any military service. Increasingly it was becoming obvious that the major source of inequity was the obsolescence of the draft itself.

Prior to the Vietnam buildup three major government studies of the military manpower program pointed to the waste involved in the draft system and the practicality of abolishing it and establishing professional forces.

These facts help explain why in the context of the Vietnam War a number of fundamental reversals have taken place. The most significant fact emerging from the Congressional hearings held last summer was that the military establishment opposes universal military training and contrary to the general public impression is now committed to the Selective Service System and the policy of deferment, especially in the case of students. General Hershey himself recommends no changes in the draft law, and maintains that the military has sufficent power to universalize the draft under the present Act. Most important, he insists that the military must take priority, and therefore opposes "Alternative Service."

Rather than seeing Selective Service as a temporary system based on military necessity, the military now sees it as de facto permanent. What they fear is that major changes in the draft law may jeopardize military priority and threaten the permanence of the system.

Ironically at a time when popular criticism asks for an end to the student deferment, it is the military which argues persuasively that students are in fact doing more than their part. Statistics show that the military relies upon the civilian education system for 90 percent of its new officers. And it is General Hershey who defends student deferment on the grounds that 56 percent of college students do in fact render military service, while only 46 percent of non-college students serve.

Hershey further points out that the deferment policy is invaluable in channeling students into training for positions which are essential to the national economy and defense. Finally, he has testified that even with the Vietnam buildup the 1-A pool will not have to be expanded by the reclassification of college students.

Thus, abolishing the student deferment is not necessary from a military point of view. Yet, unable to do away with the draft in the context of the Vietnam War, and impatient to deal with what appear to be glaring inequities, proponents of draft reform turn toward greater universalization of service as the solution. The hope is that through providing an alternative means of service, or by exposing everyone to a national lottery, no one will be able to turn a deferment into an exemption.

However, while these proposals would result in universalization of exposure and tend to make chance replace class as the determining principle, it would not remove the basic inequity between those who must render military service, and the majority who do not, due to the obsolescence of the draft. Yet inasmuch as this universalization appears to make the draft more equitable it would no doubt make it more acceptable on a permanent basis.

Typical of liberal attitudes, Senator Javits takes the position that since we are in a period when military service is compelled from some, we must compel it from the optimum number. Javits said before the House committee:

> To suggest that all eligible men should be required to serve is to force a ten gallon head into a five gallon hat. We simply need a larger hat.

Fifteen years ago the primary concern of liberals with regard to the draft was the justice of the system and that it remain temporary. What has been revealed in the present debate on Selective Service is that the primary concern today is justice within the system, to the extent of adopting measures which are not militarily necessary and can only strengthen the permanence of the draft. Implicit behind this public compulsion for greater universalization is the principle that we can compel conscription beyond that which is militarily required, and that the draft can be used to solve social problems.

These are issues of fundamental importance. They are involved in the reform of the draft and must be considered, but the fact is that in the context of Vietnam no fundamental debate is about to take place. A crucial point emerging from the entire issue is the extent to which the Vietnam War is engendering an important domestic change: namely a militarization of the society beyond that required by strategic needs and likely to extend beyond the war itself.

Before Vietnam the nation seemed to be heading inescapably to the conclusion that the draft was no longer necessary. Perhaps the popular refusal now to take a deep look and the impatience to get on with reform are a measure of our frustration at home and abroad.

The possibility of deferment exists within the present system as a guarantee of liberty. To remove it in the name of democratization is to accept the military, beyond its defensive function, as primary to our society and the solution of its problems.

The goal of democracy is not to compel as many as possible to serve, but to free as many as possible from compulsion.

Mr. Fliegal, a senior at Amherst, is doing independent study on contemporary American social problems, in which he spent several months studying the draft and the military establishment. An article of his on the National Maritime Seaman's Union has appeared in The Nation.

Out of the Pale of Suffering

THE FIXER. By Bernard Malamud. 335 pp. New York. Farrar, Straus and Giroux. 1966. $5.75

By TOM FELS

In Bernard Malamud's latest novel, as in the three which preceded it, he asks the reader to accompany the hero on a journey from individuality to social consciousness. The Fixer is set in the Russia of 1911; its hero, Yakov Bok, is a man of Jewish birth and upbringing, a free thinker, accused of a murder he did not commit. At first thoroughly convinced of his own individuality and his knowledge of human nature, Bok suffers a long and unjust imprisonment while awaiting trial, until finally his conservative ideals are forced into a larger sphere in the idea of social revolution.

Yakov Bck's dissatisfaction with his life in the Russian provinces and the recent desertion of his wife had prompted him to seek a better life in Moscow, where, instead of gaining any security—he could have predicted it—his own kindness gets him a job with an anti-Semite. He hides his background to keep the job as overseer of a brick mill in a district of Moscow forbidden to Jews. When a young Christian boy is murdered in the district, Bok is suspected by the dishonest foreman of the brickworks, Proshko, and is arrested and thrown into prison. Most of the novel recounts his experiences in prison and with the investigators in his case.

With the important exception of his friend Bibikov, the investigating agent, nearly everyone involved with his case presents strongly anti-Semitic evidence against him. Prejudice is so constantly presented, in the authorities' refusal to listen to Bok's evidence and his sadistic treatment in prison, that Bok cannot sufficiently free himself of it to gain any perspective on the motives of his captors. It is only the strength and duration of his experience that finally reduce him to thinking in new terms, including himself in a much more basic system of wrongs than he had considered before. He is the butt of psychological and sociological behavior that cannot be explained rationally.

In The Fixer Bernard Malamud has combined a historical fact, the Russian Beilis case, a typed character who always trips over his own actions, and a strong predisposition against the combination of the two. This makes for a novel whose frame of action is artificially removed from the feelings behind it, and whose center of action is extremely strong, yet more visceral than artistic. The book's lack of objectivity is emphasized by the unadorned, 'objective' style, much as a documentary film can present to the eye indubitable evidence of its subject without prearranging the objects it records. As in any violation of human rights, as not in any novel, the action of The Fixer is more compelling than the plot that contains it. It will surprise no one who has read the book that I characterize it as a Russian civil rights novel, but it should be noted that attempts to recount the inhumanities of the segregation of whatever race, Jewish or Negro are at their best the property of diarists, photographers, and chroniclers, not writers of fiction.

The anti-Semetic Beilis case in Russia is not itself important to the meaning of the book—it is a case in point, but in the novel serves only as a framework in which the universal Yakov Bok can operate. Malamud wants us to assume that Bok as a Jew represents a propensity for suffering that lends implicit fram work to the action of the novel. Without structuring our reading of the novel with this Jewish idiom, the book is not complete. But an idiom should be carefully set before a reader, amplified to show its interest and not merely 'drawn on'—after all, we don't all know the idiom. We feel that Malamud is familiar with it. but it doesn't come across to readers.

It should have been part of the task of The Fixer to convince readers that Jews represent universality in their suffering. This is not the case in the novel; one wonders whether Bok suffers for himself or for all. It is perfectly possible to think of Yakov Bok as we are asked to see Felix Volkbein, the Jew of Nightwood by Djuna Barnes; 'the Jew seems to be everywhere from nowhere.' The meaning of dispossession depends on the circumstances and in The Fixer the meaning is unclear. Rather than encompassing the artistic duality of universality and fictitious life, Bok is seemingly singular and human.

Bok is a handyman, good with his hands, a fixer of things, and self-taught in the philosophy of Spinoza. He couches his life in philosophical terms, frequently quoting aphorisms or voicing his own; he earns the title of philosopher if only because we can rarely tell which sayings are his own. His actions are always justified in thought rather than planned out in a cause and effect relationship.

One must begin with Spinoza to get the framework in which Bok journeys toward an understanding of his surroundings and of other people. Bok's Spinoza represents someone who lived by thought, unconcerned by externals. To his Spinoza, 'it's the purpose of the state to preserve a man's peace and security so he can do his day's work." But Bok can't seem to connect Spinoza's thought with the action which preserves the right to think, and his rejection of Spinoza's philosophy is the basis of meaning in the book: as it becomes increasingly necessary to alter his physical position, he leaves Spinoza for social thought that Spinoza would not have approved.

Bibikov also loves Spinoza and presages Bok's later understanding of his situation. "One can't be free without being politically free," Bibikov says early in the book. In the same conversation he says, "The purpose of the state was the security and comparative freedom of rational man." Bibikov's knowledge of the philosopher is more relevant to their situation while Yakov Bok's knowledge serves only himself. Bok's formulation of Spinoza is separate from his life; Bibikov on the other hand understands the system Bok is up against and the futility of an attempt to understand or change it by philosophy. Bok's enactment of Bibikov's understanding of the state is the body of the book—he suffers because he is not free. It is not the rule itself or its result that interest Malamud or the reader. Bok becomes political malgré lui.

To enact this personal-political differential, the book is set up so that Bok's thought cannot change his plight. He neither accommodates himself to his position by rational means nor considers a plan of action which will extricate him from the situation altogether. On the surface it seems easy to say that there can never be a causal connection between thought and action, because they are Bok in the light of his impracticality. categorically different. But it is clearly Malamud's intention that we think of Yakov Bok's only defense of his mind and body against authorities is his innocence.

Every important action before Bok's arrest shows the hero letting pass clear opportunities to accommodate his actions to his frame of mind. Although he thinks of himself as a very cautious person, he never stays clear of possible trouble. Naturally, when it comes to the mass of circumstantial evidence and unfounded accusations wielded against him in the later chapters, catching at Yakov's every incautious action like a bush of briars at the coat of an animal passing by, he continually spots the flaws in the arguments of the police and "witnesses." But this is to no avail, for it has been clear to us from the beginning that he has not thought himself into his plight but has done himself into it, and that it will take something more than support of the truth to get him out.

The interest of the novel, however, is not the accommodation of an individual to a philosophical or political principle. Nor does it lie in solving or following anything; the plot is blatant, the sentiments clear. It is almost material for a Sontag. The figure of the fixer is transient, he is clay for the hands of abominable authorities, and his purpose is not to reveal himself but to reveal the depths of the situation in which he finds himself.

The novel almost shows a return to the state of nature in the shattering effect of physical constraint on free thought at its nascence, a naive state of mind. The novel is not meant to be about the thoughts and activities of Yakov Bok, but about their mutability and vulnerableness. Bok's relationship to his lack of freedom and the authorities' relationship to their control of his freedom are not an equation in which it is possible to balance Yakov against any other term. They are a formula in which the term for tyranny and suppression is infinite, and any quantity of suffering is incalculable.

II

I have tried to stay away from consideration of suffering, although it is central to the novel, because I don't know what can be said about it. Bok's movement from detachment to social understanding is common in Malamud's novels, but the interest in this movement is much more mature here. There is a grating sense that the center of this novel is meant for a kind of clear absorption; the action is so plain that form appears to be absent. Events occur in a not very interesting linear fashion. The highly emotional charge of the novel makes it clear that the author has more in mind than the resolution of a problem in fiction. Nothing like the following passage is found in any of Malamud's earlier novels:

> (after a program) On the third morning when the houses were still smouldering and he was led, with half a dozen other children, out of the cellar where they had been hiding he saw a black-bearded Jew with a white sausage stuffed into his mouth, lying in the road on a pile of bloody feathers, a peasant's pig devouring his arm.

The imagery is equally as charged as the action:

> Dumping his things into the open wagon, a rusty water bucket hanging under it between the back wheels, he was displeased with the appearance of the nag . . . The nag began to trot, drawing the rickety wagon with its swinging bucket banging the axle past the cemetery hill, down the winding road.

There is an image of impotence and futilityi built into the wagon with the bucket hanging beneath it. The wagon looks like a tired dog ambling down the road. There is a quality here so strong that it exists in objects as well as action, and Yakov appears pre-destined to fight against this impotence, although he doesn't realize its existence. It appears to be in everything and everything is against him. To rid himself of this impotence is, in terms of Yakov's life, a necessity. It is something of a covenant that must be fulfilled.

In Malamud's earlier novel, A New Life, as in The Fixer, he creates the impression that his hero is returning to a pre-arranged covenant, rather than entering the new situation suggested by the plot. S. Levin, a young teacher who had been a drunkard, comes to a college in the far west to begin a career as an instructor. Instead he is caught up in various political causes within the college, and various sexual relationships in his own life. The end of the novel gives us S. Levin driving away from the college to marry the former wife of the head of his department. Like The Fixer, the novel is set in a place in which personal freedom is an important issue, an academic community during the McCarthy era.

The new life is not much different than the old, except that Levin thinks that he understands more basic reasons for behaving as he always has. The patron saint of this novel, Thoreau, like Spinoza in The Fixer, is misunderstood by the main character; Levin revels in nature, but instead of rediscovering it in innocence he makes his new knowledge a framework for rationalizing a life similar to the life he has been leading before. "Nature is the town's history," the narrator says, and Levin adopts it as his own history. His belief in Nature leads to the idea of a covenant, for the town is a sort of heaven to Levin: it is something in which there is much more than meets even his own eyes—its receptivity and its regenerative ability. He came an 'ancient' man but leaves renewed; when we think of the complicated, often nearly disastrous situations he got into, we know there must be something unusual in that town. The important truth he concludes about the town is that what he discovers is necessarily there. Neither Yakov Bok nor Levin can avoid the journey; there is more to the plot of the book than the possible fictional situation.

Recalling Cain in Steinbeck's East of Eden, Levin makes a hypothetical return to Eden as mere fallible man, and proves himself, making a moral decision. He has been vouchsafed the ability to make this decision by virtue of overcoming his faults. A New Life, like The Fixer, sets forth a moral value of love and personal commitment, but while the Fixer transcends its moral, here it is the moral, the story that is most important. A New Life is a rather comic novel; we don't really even have the feeling that the lesson we get is very good or true for the case as stated there, but we admire Levin for what he discovers about himself, and for the good fight he puts up among a group of staid teachers.

The quality in Malamud's characters which stimulates this indomitable covenant of regeneration is a lusting after wholeness. Both the fixer who finds himself a basic part of society, and Levin who sees that society as it is holds little for him believe that personal fulfillment is the basis for society and purpose. This desire for fulfillment also motivates characters in Malamud's other novels.

Frank Alpine in The Assistant is compelled to earn his way in Morris Bober's store, but we never really know why. He is guilty of a robbery he committed, he is in love with Morris' daughter, but whatever brings about the great change in him when he decides to become a Jew is not explained. Roy Hobbs, the baseball star of The Natural is obstinately set on personal exertion to become "the best there ever was in the game." Though he gives up the game eventually to marry a woman he has made pregnant, we see him with an even stronger understanding of meaning in life than he had felt in pursuit of "the game." Yakov Bok constantly feels the need to use his hands; in his life he fixes things, until finally he connects fixing and action.

The fear of an unfinished and unfulfilled life is the particular image which always reinforces the quest for completeness. While Helen, in The Assistant, is afraid of any new experience that she cannot immediately incorporate or understand, she fights against the conservatism that results from attempting to protect herself. "Her constant fear underlying all others was that her life would not turn out as she had hoped." For S. Levin "A white-eyed hound bayed at him from the window—his classic fear, failure after grimy years to master himself." Yakov Bok's case is similar except that the knowledge of cause is missing; like knowledge of Spinoza, this knowledge is not complete enough to lead him to a solution. There is pure hunger in Bok's vision, emptiness to be filled: "The wind bayed at the window like starving wolves."

It is interesting to note, in this connection, that Malamud's characters respect physical disabilities. They pity incompleteness; one can almost feel their empathy.

Despite this fragmentary evidence that The Fixer, like Malamud's other novels, aims for a particular point through similar means, the book is not satisfactory as a whole. One asks, why Yakov Bok? Why such a play of contrasts—the knowledgeable man who can't understand what is happening to him, the poor man who is rich in ideas, the man without privileges who keeps his mind better than those who have everything? And why S. Levin, whose every move removes him from the garden he comes to love so much? Why Frank Alpine, who achieves a certain goodness by physical assault, sexual assault, stealing?

Malamud has no interest in symbolic writing in The Fixer. Although there may be symbolic content in Yakov Bok's prison experience, the "message" of his suffering, in Jewish terms, there is no symbolic style to describe it. There is very little variation in the style, no piquancy of the kind we find in The Natural. The heaviness of Bok's aphoristic speech is even more serious than the style of The Assistant. We see nothing in The Fixer like the simply staged but highly effective inversions of narrative sequence, which slow down and emphasize the action and setting of Roy's pitching duel in the first chapter of The Natural. The only "message" is the action, the time Yakov Bok spends in prison, the only style, plain talk.

The evils depicted in The Fixer appear to devastate all life. There is no sense of verdancy in this novel, there is nothing we can see or grasp, the future seems to belong to all bodies like Yakov Bok. Even a knowledge of living seems to be absent from Bok. For all his faults, S. Levin of A New Life comes to have a certain rapport with nature which gives us a certain confidence in him as a character: "Over the weekend, in blasts of wind and rain, the walnuts began to fall in the backyard, plopping down on dead leaves and sopping grass . . . The nuts were large, their shells glowing orange when they fell from the broken pods. He greedily cracked one open and tried eating it but the meat was rubbery . . . In bed, for hours he heard the nuts socking the wet earth in the dark." This is Levin's perception as told by narration. Bok suffers alone.

Unlike Malamud's other novels, one feels no internal opposition or building quality in reading The Fixer. The events contained between the two covers could have occurred all at one instant; they are impossible to differentiate in any meaningful way. The Fixer invites little interest in character, situation, or plot. Its point is not made by usual art. Yakov Bok suffers before us—what do we do?

Mr. Fels, a junior at Amherst and an English major, describes himself as an interested reader of Malamud since high school, and, until the publication of this review, a personal friend of Mr. Malamud.

Where Are the Babes?

KOUFAX. By Sandy Koufax with Ed Linn. 293 pp. New York. Viking Press. 1966. $4.95.

PAPER LION. By George Plimpton. 362 pp. New York, Evanston, and London. Harper & Row. 1966. $5.95.

By HAL WILDE

During the 1930's a state in the deep south converted its means of capital punishment from the hangman's gallows to the "more modern" gas chamber. In the interest of science, a microphone was placed in the chamber to record the words of the condemned man at the first sign of the lethal fumes. The first prisoner to be put to death was a Negro. As the gas pellets fell, a crowd of observers listened for his last words. The white audience heard the whisper: "Save me Joe Louis, save me Joe Louis, save me Joe Louis . . . ."

The convict died, but Joe Louis lives on, and will continue to live on. He may not be able to save others from dying, but he can never die. For Joe Louis is a hero, like John L. Sullivan, or Jim Corbett, or Jim Thorpe, or Red Grange, or the Babe, or the Big Train, or even Shoeless Joe. They can kill that prisoner, but they can't make him give up his hero Joe Louis, his god, and a part of himself.

The distance in time, and miles, and conditions from the deep south of this Negro to the Manhattan of author George Plimpton, or the Amherst of my four college years, or the Brooklyn of baseball star Sandy Koufax, or the Milwaukee where I grew up, may be great, but the hero transcends it. Harvard, money, and all the social graces in the world have not taken away the boyish awe George Plimpton feels when he is standing next to a real live Detroit Lion. One of my college professors, a brilliant and aloof scholar, used to begin every class period with a discussion of "Mr." Koufax's latest exploits. As for me, I'd like to say that four years of college and the prospects of graduate school and a career in teaching have removed me from such kid concerns as baseball, but I can't. Last year I was sent a picture of Eddie Mathews and Henry Aaron walking out of Milwaukee County Stadium for the last time, before their move to Atlanta. It brought a lump to my throat. For like Joe Louis to the prisoner, they are more than Eddie and Henry to me, so much more—they are a home run in the 1957 World Series and a certain kind of hustle, a powder blue convertible and a "he did it" by the radio announcer after the clinching of the first pennant; they are popcorn and beer, a cub scout pack and an uncomfortable father at my side; they are black and white together in a world of equals; they are hundreds of hours not studying, and a transistor radio at the ear while cutting the lawn; they are thousands of dinner table conversations, and one or two fist fights. They are my youth, my goals, my dreams, my own. How can I reject Eddie Mathews? How could I get rid of him, even if I wanted to? When I was seven he came to town, when I was turning 21 he left.

Ultimately, the hero is a personal thing. But there are other levels. Sometimes there is the national hero, running the gamut from Sergeant York to Gary Cooper, John Kennedy to John Glenn. Partly myth, partly press agents, and partly an ability to personify the values that people like to think are as American as Apple Pie—make these "men among men." But theirs is a funny sort of heroism, built more on respect than identification. Polls tell us that President Kennedy is the hero of America's youth—but can you ever make him your own, like you could make Pee Wee Reese your own? Will his autograph make you cry 50 years from now as you remember the good old days? Maybe if you're Ted Sorensen, or maybe if you were in Sergeant York's platoon—but that's about it.

Besides the national hero, there's the group hero. Even now, it's hard to imagine an Italian who doesn't know who the Yankee Clipper was (and who Vince and Dom were as well). Jackie Robinson was no Uncle Tom when Branch Rickey first let him play or when he stole home in the World Series. Barney Ross, Jim Thorpe, Knute Rockne, the list goes on and on. They all "made it" in that most American of pursuits—the athletic career. They made it as heroes because they were able to link their success with their past, because they did not reject their backgrounds even as they entered the mainstream. But they also did not reject the mainstream.

And then there are the fake national heroes. They're the ones that moms and dads tell their little children that they should grow up like. They're the ones that make the cover of Time magazine, or page 22 of Newsweek. They're the Bill Bradleys and the Pete Dawsons, and maybe for some, the Peter Marshalls and the Billy Grahams. They're the ones that have the values that Mom and Pop could never quite live up to when they were kids.

Of course, there are other adult heroes, and the sports star is a peculiar kind of hero in any case. Courage is really what heroism is about. A Medal of Honor winner, or someone who tunneled under The Wall. Everyone has to respect such a hero, indeed the only real hero. But no one can make them his own. I don't know if I could go over the wall, but there was once a time when I knew I could pitch as well as Warren Spahn. America seems to have a curious absence of another type of the adult intellectual idol, the Jean-Paul Sartre, the Andre Malraux or perhaps the Churchill. To be sure, there's the pseudo-lover of the movies for some, and perhaps the handsome and idealistic politician, the FDR, and for a fringe, the Norman Thomas or the Sacco and Vanzetti.

But the hero must be THE AMERICAN for most, and beyond that, the mythical American. He must have innocence. He must have courage. He must be successful. He must be brash, and yet humble, he must be rough, and yet willing to sign autographs for little kids. He must be Horatio Alger, and Eugene Gant, and Ben Franklin, and Nathan Hale, and Daniel Boone. In short, he cannot exist for the adult, because the adult America of innocence and frontier values and the Dream does not exist, and probably never did. The forty-year-old may tell his son to look up to Bill Bradley, but for him, it's still Lou Gehrig. For when he was 15 he could believe that he was Lou Gehrig and Lou Gehrig was the Dream, and at 40 he knows that the dream only exists in his memory of Lou Gehrig.

George Plimpton's Paper Lion is a fascinating attempt by an adult to recapture that Dream. The adult awarenesses are there (there is no black and white together on the Detroit Lions once the season ends), but the attempt is that of a kid.

He knows it, and he's honest enough to see it in others. When he plays in a Detroit Lion's scrimmage and loses 30 yards in five plays, he notes a sigh of relief in the crowd—after all, football is not a game for amateurs. These are our heroes you're playing with. The players themselves are aware of their role, and they have their own hero—the old, tough, retired quarterback—Bobby Layne, who told the coach where to get off, and could get anyone on the team to do anything.

The world of the professional football team, childish, humdrum, card-playing, and money for services rendered, is still a romantic one, for both Plimpton and the reader. And perhaps also for the players. But the players are a special case. In a curious way, they, the heroes, are the cheated ones in American society, for they must face up to the fact that they're not mythical, that they get cut, that they like to have their own friends (even if they're gamblers), that they have a wife and kids to take care of long after they quit football. That it's a business. Some of them, like Alex Karras and Earl Morrall, love it, and almost echo the words of the "immortal" Babe Ruth when he was first signed—"You mean you're going to pay me to play baseball?" But the reality is still there. What makes Paper Lion satisfying is that Plimpton, like most sports writers, sees something mythical in the athlete (perhaps because most sports writers are frustrated athletes), and the reality is mixed with lots of old stories about the boys, with reverence, albeit not the saccharine reverence of kid's books on sports heroes.

Sandy Koufax's book, Koufax, on the other hand, does not satisfy, for it makes Koufax, the greatest pitcher since Dizzy Dean, look like a mortal. The insights about pitching, and sport, are there, but not the glory. Koufax is blessed with a great arm. That's all. Gil Hodges is really a nice guy. No monumental drinking bouts, no childhood in the ghetto, and more than that, no sense of the greatness, the courage of this guy. Only his modesty. In writing about himself, a hero may have to face up to the futility of being a hero, and this is what Koufax does. He talks about negotiations for his salary—not in terms of "I am the greatest" but in terms of this is what a good businessman would get. While reluctant to show his buddies in any-but-the-good-light of the Frank Merriwell books, he lacks the braggadocio to make himself appear the hero. His portrait leaves him little more role than that of a Bradley, the good example for little boys.

The effect of the book may be compared to the effect on a ten-year-old Cub Scout when one of the stars from the local baseball team (John Logan by name) appears at his awards banquet, and turns out to be a rotten speaker. Out at shortstop he has been everything, but now he was nothing more than a good ballplayer. There was a time in my late teens when I hitch-hiked 100 miles to see Sandy Koufax pitch. I would still do it. But it would be because he is an artist, not because he is my hero.

My hero. Somehow the words sound silly for an adult, even of the 21-year-old variety. Because heroes are for kids. It is only when you're a kid that you can make a hero your own. Not your parents', not society's, just your own. For a time they're liable to come out of the old west, Kit Carson, Doc Holiday, and the rest. But that changes. The anti-hero comes along (the "anti" directed at parents and the older generation)—Elvis, and maybe even Jerry Lee Lewis, Bret Maverick, and Brando, and later, the Beatles. Chubby Checker becomes passé when they start twisting in the White House. But the anti-hero cannot last. The rebellion stops, and the feeling goes, leaving only a nostalgia, a regret that the feeling cannot be recaptured.

But the Hero leaves more than nostalgia. He leaves warmth, and hope, and a moment in time which, if it cannot be recaptured, can never be lost. The hero is your own because you love him, because he embodies all the dreams of the child, the prowess, the applause, the pretty wife, and nice car, and perhaps most important, he waved at me once out at the ballpark (there may have been 40,000 other people present, but he waved at me). When Babe Ruth quit baseball, he wrote an article for one of the "kid's" magazines of the thirties. In the article he talked about some critics of his who said his whole life didn't mean anything, he was just a baseball player, and he was certainly not a hero (like Nathan Hale). The Babe said, fine, you tell it to those little kids who risked their lives to save an apartment house from a fire a few years ago, and when asked by a reporter what they'd like as a reward, answered: "Tell Babe Ruth that we did something good." Not the priest, not the relatives' out on the west coast, not FDR, but the Babe. For in a world where politicians must compromise, where actors get divorced, where killing (but not courage) is bad, where The New Republic and The New York Times and all the rest of the muckrakers are happy to show what is wrong with the world and its heroes, where can virtue, where can all the greatness, the uniqueness, of America, reside? Out in center field, or perhaps at shortshop or third base. Reported by sports writers who are kids at heart.

But where are the Babes today? A national business publication recently had a long article on the hundreds of sports figures turned successful businessmen. Sandy Koufax signed for a million dollars with NBC. The ballplayers have a union. How would Cox, and Reese, and Robinson, and Hodges look as Teamsters? What happens when the baseball player becomes just like everyone else, when, like the astronauts or the President, his life is dissected, and it turns out he doesn't chew tobacco, didn't come from a farm, his father wasn't a fisherman, and he doesn't have time to sign that autograph because he's due at the TV studio in an hour? Maybe it's always been that way, and I just didn't notice it, because I was a kid, and they were heroes. But maybe, just maybe, some of them have stopped realizing that they are heroes. If so, it is sad. Maybe, now that most of them come out of college, come from or quickly join the middle class, the last frontier, the last area for myth-making in American society has been closed. Of course, rationally, it is absurd to devote the best years of an adult life to hitting a baseball, or getting knocked around on the line—unless it's earning you money, supporting your family, launching you on a career as a sports broadcaster or a stock-broker. It has to be absurd, just like the mythical American has to be absurd in the days of pollution, megalopolis, and McNamara.

And perhaps if should be absurd. Cassius Ali isn't seen as a hero, because he isn't the myth, even though the values he symbolizes may be far superior to those of fighters in the past. White athletes are bigger heroes than Negro athletes, because for most of America, whiteness is a part of the myth. These are things that should change, that have to change, if that myth is ever to become more than a kid's view of his country, if the frontier is finally to close, if America is to reach maturity.

But do kids know it? I don't think so. For the kid, Willie Mays is the greatest—period. And for the kids, I hope that the end of the sports hero is not coming, I hope rather that the time is coming when the dream can be an adult dream as well. Like George Plimpton, I'm not quite ready to see the end of the American innocent. Fulbright may talk of the arrogance, but I'm not quite ready to give up that innocence. They can pollute my skies, concrete my fields, computerize my job, build a 20-story, $10-billion tower of Babel to hold the dead bodies of three modern heroes, they can rewrite my history books, they can tell me that my kind of God never was—they can do it all, but they can't take my Eddie and Henry away from me. And hopefully, before there are no more Eddies and Henrys, they will take them for their own.

Mr. Wilde, former chairman of the Amherst Student, says his life is summed up with the vow he gave his girlfriend in 1964: "Will I ever leave you? Will the Braves ever leave Milwaukee?"

Through a Lens Darkly

By RICHARD DAVIS

Since Edgar Allan Poe's "The Murders in the Rue Morgue," mysteries have been written to be solved. But the murderer is neither discovered nor captured in Antonioni's first English language film Blow-Up. Its protagonist, a modern fashion photographer (David Hemmings), spies a couple kissing in Regents Park, London, records the incident with his camera and then blows up the negatives, only to discover that he has unwittingly witnessed the murder of the male lover.

Twenty-five years ago he would have contacted Sam Spade or even the police department. However, there can be no police in Antonioni's London, for an effective police force implies laws which bind together the diverse individuals who pass through the streets of the city. Like Hitchcock, Antonioni loves odd details that remain in the background of the major action: an old antique shop, a strange woman picking up leaves in the park, or two homosexuals walking a French poodle. There is no center of authority in such a universe. Each person creates his own world which becomes a blow-up of his sense impressions. The photographer cannot act to punish the crime because he cannot penetrate another person's reality.

Critics feel that Antonioni's characters are comments upon the decay and sterility of modern society. But the photographer in Blow-Up, like Claudia in Antonioni's L'Aventura is merely anybody placed in the position of a voyeur. Not much is said about his private life. When the female lover (Vanessa Redgrave) begs for the negatives at his studio, they are interrupted by a telephone call. The photographer jokes that it's his wife, and we realize for the first time how little we know about him. Similarly, his relationship with the girl (Sara Miles) who pops into his studio every now and then is deliberately left unclear. We see him only in his professional capacity—as a voyeur exploring the mystery of worlds other than his own.

Antonioni uses photography as a metaphor to express man's relationship to of the twentieth century. In the Theory of Film Siegfried Kracauer says that the rise of photography coincided with the spread of scientific positivism. People thought reality could finally be grasped and defined, but photography has done just the opposite, dissolving traditional perspectives and making the real world even more mysterious. Paradoxically, it has even made a significant contribution to the rise of abstract art in the early part of the century. When the photographer's mistress sees the revealing blow-up, she says it looks like an abstract painting of dots. Saturday nights in New York City when the only seats available for Blow-Up are too close to the screen, the images prove that reality is a conglomeration of colors and forms which our eyes cannot adequately explore. "When viewed under a magnifying glass, photographs show minutiae which the naked eye would never have discovered." (Kracauer) Rather than solving the problem of what is real, photography has contributed to contemporary man's hallucegenic world-view.

Antonioni hauntingly evokes a psychedelic society in the pot party scene near the end of the film. The photographer, trying unsuccessfully to tell his friends about the murder, meets a girl whom he thought was spending a weekend in Paris. He asks her why she didn't go. "Baby, I am in Paris," she replies.

Sex in Antonioni films tends to involve three people. In Blow-Up the photographer invades the mystic privacy of three types of relationships: the couple in the park with their civilized love-play (Could he be her father?), his artist friend and his mistress whose love-making he disturbs (suggesting that the woman's real lover in this scene is not the man on top of her, but the photographer) and a couple of silly girls who make love to him at the same time (possessing the Lesbian-like characteristics of Anna and Claudia in L'Aventura). He is a voyeur if ever there was one. His camera makes him one. "The camera sees for him, and the outcome of his 'pleasure' trip is a collection of snapshots, which are the substitute for an experience which he could have had, but did not have." (Fromm, The Sane Society) Like tourists who photograph the sights of the world, our generation has begun to see things through the amoral eye of a camera. Lee Harvey Oswald drops dead as millions watch; years ago, the Hindenburg burned live on radio. The photographer's nudes are sexless for he sees them through a lens and deals with the reproductions. He copulates with his camera, the public equivalent of his private parts.

The cinema has often been called the voyeur's medium. Some directors like Alfred Hitchcock never allow us to forget this. In the beginning of Psycho, the camera moves over Phoenix, Arizona, creeps up the outside wall of a hotel and then crawls through the window of a room where a couple are making love. Going to the movies, we spy on our neighbors. In Rear Window a man, bored with life, while recuperating from an accident, takes up voyeurism as a hobby. With the aid of binoculars he witnesses a murder in another apartment in his building. In Fellini's La Dolce Vita the journalist Marcello (Mastroianni) with an army of paparrazi descends upon the decadent private lives of the Roman aristocracy. The photographer is like Fellini who spent many years as a scandal columnist before becoming the ultimate voyeur—the film director; just as Antonioni is first and foremost a photographer with little interest in the theater, treating actors as nameless objects.

Antonioni sees contemporary man's alienation as an epistemological problem, realizing that knowledge must proceed action. At the end of Blow-Up the photographer is annoyed at his inability to solve the crime. A group of clowns appear who play tennis with an imaginary ball. They represent those who have sacrificed their individuality in order to create a community of people who are acting together under a uniform system. For a moment, the photographer accepts the existence of the ball, but ultimately he realizes the game is absurd since no two people exist in the same world. The last image of La Dolce Vita is an innocent girl's smile, a symbol of some ideal that the journalist has forever forsaken. He wishes he could be innocent again, but he is dragged away to another orgy. Both scenes express the anguish of alienation. Antonioni's is ultimately more moving because he knows that modern man cannot act because of his ignorance before the fragmented knowledge of reality.

Mr. Davis, a senior majoring in English at Amherst College, intends to study film in London next year.

GRANDMOTHER

By JERI KROLL

Grandmother, I didn't know her,
She was simply there, framed on the bureau,
in the small china figure living on the table,
in the dinner just over.
But thinking revives her under my skin,
her photogenic smile and feeble finger guided my bones to a family order.
Composing in professional calm
She arranged the score, the notes of this piece, and made it so the instruments must play.

And after this, she could not plan the fall that cracked the older order of her hip.
Fragility, the mark of china dolls troubled her left side.
She was only allowed to fall with ease.

A View from the Shore

THE TEMPER OF OUR TIME. By Eric Hoffer. 111 pp. New York, Evanson, and London: Harper Row. $3.95.

By JOANN MOSER

In the 1930's on his way to do some placer mining near Nevada City, Eric Hoffer bought a volume of Montaigne's essays on the hunch that he might get snowbound. He did. Hoffer read Montaigne three times and later set out as a people's philosopher with little formal schooling, great numbers of books read, half of his life spent in migratory work and half of it spent as a longshoreman.

Today, he works three days a week as a longshoreman in San Francisco and spends a day as "research professor" at the University of California in Berkeley. However, he clearly identifies himself as a member of the working class a "mass man." Writing in an informal style, he often refers to his personal experience to support an argument. The reader who expects The Temper of Our Time to be a scholarly analysis will be disappointed. Hoffer's provocation lies more frequently in the splendid lucidity of his sentences and his earthy good sense, in the means by which he states his arguments, rather than in pinpoint analysis. Writing in generalizations, his work has their inherent flaws.

Hoffer's basic assumption is that "the main difficulty and challenge of our age is drastic change — from backwardness to modernity, from subjection to equality, from poverty to affluence, from work to leisure." The modern age is like the adolescent who finds himself no longer a child, but not yet an adult. This is the "Time of Juveniles," the age of plasticity of movement, "primitivization," which has produced "the great paradox of the twentieth century: namely, that a breakneck technological advance has gone hand in hand with a return to tribalism, charismatic leaders, medicine men, credulity, and tribal wars." The machine is not at fault: drastic change itself has caused this "social primitivism."

Freedom from the machine resulting from automation will not relieve society's problems: instead it will intensify them. Automation initially threatened increased unemployment:

> Now at one point in history, God and the priest seemed to become superfluous, yet the world went on as before. Then again, the aristocrats became superfluous and hardly anyone noticed their exit. In Russia, where they have capitalism without capitalists, businessmen are superfluous, yet things get done somehow. But when the masses become superfluous it means that humanity is superflous, and this is something that staggers the mind.

Unemployment was reduced not increased, yet Hoffer's concern for the neglect of the masses has not changed. He is not worried that they might starve, but rather that they might feel useless and become more receptive to extremism and political and racial intolerance, for the novel opportunity of leisure offers with it the change of juvenilization. However, the forced inactivity caused by automation can release creativity as well. Hoffer firmly believes that the masses are no less endowed with genius than other segments of the population, and that newly acquired leisure and widespread education will soon prove this.

"The present clamor for Black Power conveys the impression that power is something that comes in cans and all you have to do is reach out and grab it." In 1964 Hoffer wrote an essay on the Negro revolution for The New York Times; three years has made common knowledge much of what must have been unique to Hoffer then. He criticizes the Negro movement for focusing on white compassion and white generosity and for not establishing a community of interests among Negroes. In America Negroes are Negroes first and individuals second to themselves and to the whites surrounding them. The Negro must have pride in his race before he can attain self-respect, and only unified mass action directed solely towards ends which will generate pride in the Negro race will solve his plight. Hoffer criticizes such Negro leaders as James Baldwin and CORE activists for not rejecting white help, asking for handouts, and for not assuming the responsibility of being a Negro, demonstrating to white people their own capability.

> As a black nationalist all you have to do is shoot your mouth off about the fire next time, and about grabbing six or seven Southern states, founding a Negro empire and breathing down the neck of a cornered, frightened white America. Your heart swells with heroic négritude, and you don't have to life a finger to do a thing.

Disenfranchisement should be the first target of reform, rather than segregation, and Negro leaders should stop criticizing white liberals and begin fighting in the strongholds of the South. The white men outside of the South do not owe Negroes a thing, nor can they give them anything but money and good will.

> To sum up: The Negro revolution is a fraud. It has no faith in the character and potentialities of the Negro masses. It has no taste for real enemies, real battlegrounds, and desperate situations. It wants cheap victories and the easy way.

An advocate of the working masses, Hoffer views society as class structured. Because of technological moderization, all nations are being Americanized, presenting the promise if not the actualization of classlessness, yet simultaneously, all nations, including America, are being ruled by intellectuals. Although Hoffer does make some distinction between the European and American intellectuals, he condemns the intellectual class in general. Rule by intellectuals is characterized by their passion for grandeur, disdain for the truth, suffocation of creativity, and contempt for the common man. The intellectual's attitude toward the masses is incompatible with the spirit of America, which achieved its greatness without his rule.

Because of contempt or a search for nature, the intellectual is guilty of the dehumanization of man. The industrial revolution promised the superiority of man over nature, but men such as Lenin, Freud, Marx, Darwin, Pavlov, Wagner, and Nietsche either extolled nature or reduced men's value. But nature is primitivization and violence. Because of the absence of order in our cities, nature's chaos rules. In history, which is the story of man's struggle against nature and his humanism, nature reasserts itself in the primitivization that occurs in periods of drastic change. Men, Hoffer declares, should remake the world to the subjection of Nature.

Ambiguities appear throughout The Temper of Our Time. Hoffer is imprecise in his definitions of such key terms as juvenilization, primitivization, and Americanization. Although he states that America is not ruled by intellectuals, he never clearly explains who does have the power in America. By failing to fully explain some of his statements, he appears to contradict himself. His idea that "tyranny by an intellectocracy can be neutralized by turning everyone into an intellectual" seems incompatible with his earlier definition of an intellectual. Nor does he offer concrete suggestions about how to remedy the problems of our age. After such provocative statements as: "if we are to awaken and cultivate the talents dormant in a whole population, we must change our conceptions of what is efficient, useful, practical, wasteful, and so on," Hoffer fails to develop his idea with examples or suggestions. When he does make a concrete suggestion, it is often impractical and idealistic. For example, as a means of reorganizing the social system, he proposes to set up a pilot state made up of California and Oregon, run by the University of California, in which anyone who entered would automatically become a student. This would be done within the framework of our free enterprise system and broaden an individual's freedom of choice.

Hoffer is a man incongruous to his time, a self-made man in an era of mass education, a worker without a white collar. Although he does not adequately define an intellectual or Americanization, the fact is that the masses do not have any formidable speaker. Hoffer must don the academician's robes to converse with Amherst, Mt. Holyoke, Smith and the University of Massachusetts. And if the technicalities of his sermon remains unclear, his basic point is not. America, which was founded upon the resources of the masses, no longer consciously uses them.

> There was a time in this country when the masses acted as pathfinders and pioneers. They plunged into the unknown, cleared the land, built cities, founded states, and propagated new faiths. The masses built America and for almost a century shaped its future. But it is no longer so. America's future is now being shaped in fantastically complex and expensive laboratories manned by supermen, and the masses are on the way to becoming a waste product no one knows what to do with.

His problem is to keep the equality which he believes in America, to continue the pride and worth of his masses, and from leisure, technocracy, and megatropolis fleece Nature of her hold, so that America can emerge from the age of the adolescent into maturity.

Miss Moser is a sophomore majoring in art history at Smith.

The VALLEY REVIEW: a Four-College Review of Books

CONTENTS

2	God in the Pepsi Generation	Christopher Nugent
	Malcolm Boyd: Against the Fat Cat	Michael Greenberg
4	Rev. Brown: Transform from Within	Joel Bartlett
6	Defense of Student Deferment	Dorian Fliegal
7	The Fixer by Bernard Malamud	Tom Fels
9	Paper Lion by George Plimpton	Hal Wilde
	Koufax by Sandy Koufax and Ed Lynn
10	Blow-Up by Antonioni	Richard Davis
11	The Temper of Our Times by Eric Hoffer	Richard Kelly
12	The Deadly Logic by Philip Green	JoAnn Moser
	Essays in Analysis by Alice Ambrose	Fred Lundahl

CARTOON AND WOODCUTS

Fred Aronow '67, Amherst; Bruce Hammond '70, Harpur College; David Yaghjian '70, Amherst

POEMS

William Clamurro '67, Amherst; Jeri Kroll '67, Smith; Richard Preston '69, Amherst

EDITORS: Michael Greenberg (Chairman), Amherst; Ellen Cleary, University of Massachusetts; Laurie Maloff, Smith; Sheryl McCarthy, Mt. Holyoke

The Valley Review is a publication of the Amherst Student, Mt. Holyoke News, Smith Sophian, and the University of Massachusetts Collegian

Deadly Language

DEADLY LOGIC. The Theory of Nuclear Deterrence. By Philip Green of Smith College, Department of Government. Ohio State University Press. 1966. $6.00.

By FRED LUNDAHL

Deadly Logic is a book characterized by overstatements. The dust jacket assures us that Philip Green has succeeded in showing that nuclear deterrence theory is really pseudo-science, based on overstated and faulty logic. It explains that he "attacks deterrence theorists on their own battleground with their own weapon, crisp logic" and concludes that "the iconoclastic result is the toppling of an elite." Mr. Green's own preface tells us that "pseudo-scientists" Herman Kahn, Henry Kissinger, Albert Wohlstetter, among others, unnecessarily "feed wood to the fire of the arms race, overkill and 'thinkable' nuclear war." The book's foreword actually accuses these theorists of exploiting deterrence theory for their own profit, disregarding all scholarly integrity: "They knew a good thing."

But despite its sensationalist language, Deadly Logic is important as a long overdue criticism of many aspects of deterrence theory. Mr. Green is especially concerned because he believes that the theory is too frequently accepted as fact by governmental policy makers dealing with problems of national security. The current controversy over the development and deployment of anti-ballistic missile systems (ABM) seems to illustrate his point: most military men feel that if Russia is really determined to deploy an ABM system, the United States will have to follow suit.

Mr. Green places the blame for this acceptance of theory as fact on the theorists, the "Herman Kahn elite" whose use of "the methods of science" and "computerized studies" give a false veil of scientific expertise to their theories. He would like to give the impression that the theorists have tricked the public and defiled and misused the methods of science. But it would seem that the theorists are not at fault; it is the policy makers, the interpreters of theory, who have mistaken theory's role if they use it to make policy rather than aid in the decision making process.

The method rather than the conclusions of deterrence theory bears the brunt of Mr. Green's attack. He believes that true scientific study demands that all parameters be exactly defined. He would have to conclude on these grounds that all theories of international relations and theories of personality are also pseudo-science. But to claim that Raymond Aron's Peace and War is useless since it is based on pseudo-scientific methods is to over-indulge in petty semantics.

Mr. Green's grasp of the concepts of game theory enables him to delineate convincingly inconsistencies which result when game theory is applied to international strategy decision making. He is at his best when discussing the blithe and faulty assumption of rationality in the international system made by theorists discussing possible deterrence policies and responses. He also examines expertly the role of ethical choice in terms of the possibilities offered us by deterrence theorists and criticizes effectively theorists such as Kahn who still affirm the possibility of a limited response, a city-for-city strategy such as that presented in Fail Safe.

His conclusion summarizes the "unknowable" factors (such as the degree of credibility of one side's strategy) which cannot be measured but somehow must be considered in determining strategy. He sees a vicious cycle: these factors cannot be included in any true scientific theory based on knowable quantities and, at the same time, no justifiable theory neglects them. He does not see the possibility of a broader definition of theory which would admit its shortcomings and the impossibility of ever being fact, but still try to structure possibilities and alternatives. Mr. Green replaces the unattainable theory with a "discussion," occasionally brilliant but always meandering, lacking the order of a theory, whether based on the methods of science or pseudo-science.

Nuclear deterrents, Kahn, Kissinger or Aron cannot hide the sensationalism of some of Mr. Green's accusations and his stifling over-concern with semantics. His convincing demonstration of the shortcomings of nuclear deterrence theories and policies becomes increasingly insignificant before his own ineffective position.

Mr. Lundahl, a senior majoring in political science at Amherst, has taken seven Four-College courses in international relations.

Philosophy in Action

ESSAYS IN ANALYSIS. By Alice Ambrose. 262 pp. New York. Humanities Press. 1966.

By RICHARD KELLY

In his Tractatus Wittgenstein has written that "Philosophy is not a theory but an activity." Continuing this activity in a Wittgensteinian manner Alice Ambrose (Mrs. Morris Lazerowitz), Sophia and Austin Smith Professor of Philosophy at Smith College, has given us Essays in Analysis. The manner to which I am referring, it should be made clear from the onset, is not a literary style but a 'philosophic method'. Indeed, the series of essays that comprise this volume may be best discussed by contrasting her style and comparing her method with that of Wittgenstein in the Blue and Brown Books or the Philosophical Investigations. G. E. Moore, under whom Miss Ambrose studied at Cambridge, has said of Wittgenstein:

> "He has made me think that what is required for the solution of philosophical problems which baffle me, is a method quite different from any which I have ever used—a method which he himself uses quite successfully, but which I have never been able to understand clearly enough to use it myself."

Miss Ambrose has gotten through the esotericism and colloquialism of the later Wittgenstein, and she has understood his method clearly enough to explicate it and use it deftly. For the general reader, the value of this book is twofold: we learn what a good deal of philosophy, particularly 20th century philosophy, is about, and we see, in as fine a way as it can be done, philosophy in action.

The problems of philosophy, particularly metaphysics, unlike those of science, very rarely (if ever) are solved. Miss Ambrose, in several of th essays in this book, is in the not so peculiar position of defending a viewpoint, that of Wittgenstein, which has to be made coherent first: disagreements are not so much over the truth of what Wittgenstein said as over what he did, in fact, say or meant by what he said. These problems are familiar to anyone who has confronted the Investigations, and they are not always resolvable by consulting the published texts: Miss Ambrose frequently mentions her indebtedness to the Cambridge lectures of Wittgenstein which she attended in 1934-35. But then, this is the activity called philosophy—we try to understand what someone has said, then state our reasons for agreeing or disagreeing, and then someone else tries to understand what we have said, then etc. Miss Ambrose, unintentionally perhaps, gives us insight into this activity: Essays in Analysis is an ostensive definition of the activity, and a fine one at that!

Many of the essays are elucidations of what Wittgenstein said, but all of these extend what Wittgenstein said in original and interesting ways. And to view Essays in Analysis as a reiteration of what Wittgenstein said would do an injustice to Miss Ambrose. To know exactly what Wittgenstein meant is perhaps impossible, and I would guess that any explication would contain some original, if not un-Wittgensteinian, views, and Miss Ambrose has shown remarkable ingenuity in explicating and originality in extending the views of Wittgenstein. Furthermore, not all the essays are about or even obliquely derived from Wittgenstein: the influence of G. E. Moore is equally apparent.

I would like to look more closely at one of the essays in this volume. In "Linguestic Approaches to Philosophical Problems" Miss Ambrose "argues without reservation against the orthodox position" that philosophical theories are factual, and she argues for the thesis that philosophical statements are not what they seem to be, but are rather proposals to alter language. Her attack is three-pronged.

She writes "I want to hold that despite appearances these philosophical statements are not factual statements about physical objects, perception, the human mind, one's knowledge: first, because investigations which come to these conclusions are clearly not empirical . . . I can only say the evidence is not empirical. And I back this claim by pointing out that he has no laboratory, no experiments figure in his demonstration or refutations, he cannot claim to closer observation than other folk." We may agree with Miss Ambrose's claim but disagree with her reasons. Surely, philosophers in the past have appealed to empirical evidence to support their claims. Lucretius in De Rerum Natura, Aristotle in the Organon, Leibniz in the Monadology, Mill in his Logic, et. al. have told us to observe trees, people, stones, water, and even octopi for support of their claims. Even if philosophers do not give evidence in support of their claims is not reason enough to conclude that philosophical statements are not factual.

Her second argument is that "philosophic disputants come to opposite conclusions although the same facts are available to them and no further fact can decide betwixt them, i. e. their dispute cannot, even theoretically, be settled by any recourse to a matter of fact." Two objections may be offered. Miss Ambrose's argument seems to presuppose a method of distinguishing philosophic from scientific statements by some verifiability criterion. The reviews of A. J. Ayer's Language, Truth and Logic have shown us that such a method (although Ayer tried to formulate one) is not yet available. Furthermore, even if such a method did exist, there would still be disagreement over the claim that since no fact would resolve the dispute, the statements disputed are not factual.

Her last and most ingenious argument is that "philosophical theories cannot be empirical because they imply the logical impossibility of what is patently and undeniably possible." And she also holds that "it is simply incorrect to say that a necessary proposition is directly about words." What one knows, then, "in understanding a sentence for a necessary proposition and knowing that what it expresses is necessarily true . . . is a verbal fact." But, then, under this analysis all sentences of this type, whether philosophic or not, convey verbal information and the distinction between statements implying the logical impossibility of the possible and empirical statements collapses. Miss Ambrose then argues that necessary statements which imply the impossibility of the possible have no descriptive use. The problem with this is that the phrase 'descriptive use' is left undefined.

Although we may be dissatisfied with some of the arguments Miss Ambrose brings forth in support of her thesis, it still demands serious consideration. If Berkeley were making a linguistic proposal by changing ideas into things, then the argument that he is misusing language is seriously undermined; philosophy, the activity, then takes on a new perspective for the laymen and philosoph r alike. Philosophers are not, as if they ever were, the lunatic destroyers and misusers of our language, but rather become serious men who recommend changes in our language for clarity or, perhaps, even for truth. After all Berkeley did say that he was not, in changing ideas into things, disputing about the propriety, but the truth of the expression.

Mr. Kelly is a senior honoring in philosophy at Amherst. He is the literary magazine editor and on the editorial board of Paidaica.

Ibsen's Rosmersholm Opens Tonight

by TED FANTL
Staff Reporter

The Fourth Master of Fine Arts Thesis presentation in the history of UMass Theatre, Henrick Ibsen's Rosmersholm is scheduled to open this evening.

The scene for Rosmersholm is Bartlett Auditorium and the productions are scheduled for March 17 and 18—8:15 p.m. Admission is free.

Rosmersholm was published in 1886 and was first staged in 1887. A synopsis of the script, provided by the Speech Department, is important in understanding the deep meaning and undertones of the play.

Beata Rosmer, the wife of the supposed conservative Johannes Rosmer, the master of Rosmersholm, has committed suicide. Beata's former companion, Rebecca West, has remained on at Rosmersholm with Rosmer.

Of course, the community is stirred by this affair and to provoke the community further Rosmer plans to announce his alliance with the Liberal Party due to Rebecca's influence.

An unscrupulous newspaper editor and Kroll, Rosmer's brother-in-law, know that Rebecca and Rosmer have been having clandestine relations before Beata's suicide. Kroll convinces Rebecca (a liberal) that Rosmer will never completely escape the conservative tradition.

Rebecca, realizing her failure, confesses to Rosmer that she had planted the idea of suicide in Beata's mind, partly from love of Rosmer and partly because she wanted him free to live a liberal life. Rosmer loves her but detests her desire to convert him. Realizing that the past and their own guilty passion will prevent them from ever being happy, they commit suicide together, as Beata had done.

Ibsen wrote, ". . . the play deals with the struggle which all serious-minded human beings have to wage with themselves in order to bring their lives into harmony with their convictions."

According to Tirrell, "The play is concerned with the conflict between principle and expediency, between the 'progressive' and the 'conservative' in man's nature. The play is universal as long as man is concerned with moral conscience. Every aware individual, at sometime, is faced with the question of commitment."

Richard Tirrell directs the play and designed the sets which were constructed by George Dimock, major in technical theatre. Mr. Tirrell explained his choice of colors, which are somber variations of brown and green, as being expressive of the semi-tragic environment which surrounds Rosmer and eventually brings about his end.

Rosmer is played by Pete Stelzer. Ann Wells plays Rebecca. Ann Agard is Mrs. Helseth, Charles Horn plays Montnesgaard (the editor), Kroll is played by Larry Jakman.

Acknowledgements go to the Roister Doisters who donated the furniture in the setting and to Smith College for the costumes.

The play, with its serious content, is one to be seen and later to be thought about.

COLLEGIAN Photos by Williams

Symphony Band Opens '67 Season Sunday

The University of Massachusetts Symphony Band will begin its 1967 concert season on Sunday, March 19 at 4:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Under the direction of Conductor John A. Jenkins since 1963, the UMass Symphony Band has become a polished musical group and an outstanding part of the UM music department. Selected by audition last fall, the 70 members have been preparing since November for a concert tour to be given during spring vacation.

The band will present a variety of original works written for band within the last half century. Mr. Jenkins will begin the program with the spirited Montmartre March by Haydn Wood. Following will be Divertimento For Band by Vincent Perichetti. Conducting Percy Grainger's lighthearted Lincolnshire Posy will be Mr. Larry V. Weed, assistant conductor.

The highlight of the performance will be Symphony No. 3 by Vittorio Gianinni, a massive work in four movements requiring the greatest control by the performers.

The concert is open to the public without charge.

COLLEGIAN

"Hot Line"

545-2550

HILLEL'S ANNUAL

PURIM FESTIVAL

A HAMANTASH - LATKE DEBATE (FACULTY PANEL)

— Come and see your favorite prof —

ENTERTAINMENT • REFRESHMENTS

March 19, 1967 Commonwealth
5-7:30 p.m. Room

PUBLIC INVITED

THE FLYING REDMEN
&
ARNOLD AIR SOCIETY

ST. PATRICK'S DAY DANCE for everyone including the Irish.

FRIDAY, MARCH 17
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
8:00 P.M.

Band – The Rattletones from Mt. Park

Admission 50¢

now in paperback

A1000

The Definitive Book on the Kennedy Years

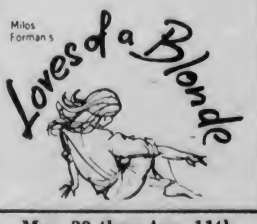
- Pulitzer Prize-winning book
- Winner of National Book Award

"The book we have all been waiting for."
—The New York Times

Wherever paperbacks are sold
—only $1.65

Fawcett Publications, Inc., Greenwich, Conn.

AMHERST Cinema



EXCLUSIVE SHOWING
Daily 7:05-9:10

Sat. and Sun.
2:00-4:45-6:50-9:00

PLUS SHORTS

"ONE OF THOSE RARE ENTERTAINMENTS! FOR PEOPLE WHO REALLY LOVE FILMS!" —Newsweek

Milos Forman's

Mar. 29 thru Apr. 11th
"BLOW-UP" • "BLOW-UP"

MASS. CLASSIFIED

HELP WANTED

We need 25 people to work 25 hours per month to earn $25.00 per week. For interview, write Forest Park Post Office, P.O. Box 98, Springfield, Mass.

WANTED

Two rides wanted round trip to Ft. Lauderdale during Easter vacation. Contact Nancy, 546-8349.

WANTED: KEYPUNCHING DATA — Professors and students! Will keypunch your data and programs at $2.50 per hour, Verified, too! You supply cards. Call—Days—534-4061—Evenings 545-2692. Ask for Mrs. Sarah Tupper.

OPPORTUNITIES

YOU LUCKY VW OWNERS — Keep your Volkswagon young. Send $1.00 for 56 page catalog on ways to increase the value and usefulness of your VW. Write to: RONNIMART, P.O. Box 75, Tremonton, Utah 84337.

Man wanted for packaging and shipping rodent supplies. Must provide own transportation; warehouse located ½ mile off campus. Apply in person to Mrs. Anne Perwatka, Old Conservation Bldg. Tel. 549-1252 for appointment. Must be available 1-5 p.m. 2 afternoons during week.

AUTOMOBILES

1958 MGA — new top, side curtains & tires—excellent condition call 253-9540 after 4.

1960 MGA 1600 engine overhauled in February excellent condition—inside and out. $800 or best offer. Contact: Joel Brebbia, 210 Baker, 546-6050.

1967 Mustang, 8 cyl., 289 cu in., power steering, special int. and ext., 3-speed, white wall tires, radio, 3,500 mi. going in service. $2300. Call 545-2384 9 to 5.

A CLASSIC 1954 NASH FARINA. 4-speed automatic, radio, heater. Runs great but the body is only fair. $55.00. 253-2635 after 6 p.m.

Ford Fairlane, 2-dr., 1959, V-8, 352 cu., in., auto., p.b., p.s., r. & h., 2 snow tires with wheels, 10 to 16 mi. per gal. 40,000 miles. $350. Call 253-3150 after 6

FOR SALE

1964-1965 Honda 150 cc. Excellent running condition, new Pereli tires, new heavy duty clutch $300 or best offer over $250. Call Paul Korenberg, 726 Grayson, Tel. 546-7061.

COLLEGIAN
ADVERTISING PAYS

No Quorum: Yahoo Budget Delayed

by PAT PETOW
Senate News Editor

Five hours after the Student Senate was called to order, the presence of a quorum was doubted, and a vote on a Yahoo budget for publication this year was delayed one more week.

The Yahoo budget will be the first item on next week's agenda. It calls for:

- $2,065 in various categories for a Spring 1967 issue,
- $1,000 for unanticipated printing expenses which would require additional Senate approval before use over the next five years—the amount set aside for issues after the first when it is hoped that the magazine will earn its own income, and a loan agreement to repay to the Senate $1,200 overspent in previous years in sums not exceeding $300 per year out of profits.

Of the total present Student membership of 65, 12 Senators never appeared and by 12:45 a.m. Thursday the departure of 11 others made the further conduct of business impossible. But the real reason the Yahoo budget was not approved, the real reason why the two-thirds quorum was not on hand was the walking out of two Senators: Mike Garjian and Marshall Nadan.

Nadan was seen by this reporter ducking below the glass window of a Student Union staircase fire-door after Senator Dick Wimberley '67-at-large had begun to insist on a quorum call. Nadan's briefcase and papers remained at his Council Chambers desk.

The Yahoo budget had been debated for several hours after the meeting got underway 45 minutes late: the lack of an initial quorum delayed the start of the session. During the debate, Garjian proposed a Binding Clause, ultimately defeated, which would have frozen funds until allegations about the recent Yahoo elections could be investigated. A staff member of the humor magazine objected to the alleged dictating of the election of officers by the out-going editor.

With exactly 43 Senators present in the Chambers, the vote showed 11 in favor, 28 opposed, and three abstaining (the Senate President did not vote also).

After the hours of debate over amendments to the budget several Senators spoke on the entire proposal. At approximately 12:25 a.m. a motion was made and passed to end debate and to vote on the budget. Before the final vote could be taken, Wimberley called for a quorum count.

Senate President John Greenquist, announcing his and the secretary's findings, declared there was a quorum. Due to Wimberley's request a roll call was then made and resulted in a count one short of the total needed.

Those Senators who left after the commencing of the meeting and before the ruling of no quorum were:

Gargian, Hall, Humber, Laconti, McMahon, Mellor, Nadan, Snyder, Tiberii, Shriber, and Byrnes.

Those Senators not present for the meeting at all were:

Booth, Cignoni, Crisafulli, Dawson, Denis, Edwards (S), Fatello, Garret, McCarthy, Nault, Smith (L), Tuber.

OTHER SENATE ACTION

(1) An appropriation was passed for the High School Honors Day.

(2) The sum of $572.30 was granted for a trip to the UN.

(3) The University Health Council was reported to be interested in off-campus living.

(4) Complaints were made about campus towing.

(5) The Senate President called for more attention to the speaker at meetings.

(6) The results of a student poll on the Senate were released.

Piccus Still Not Allowed To See DaVinci Manuscripts

by DON EPSTEIN
Staff Reporter

Dr. Jules Piccus, professor of Romance languages at U-Mass, still has not been allowed to see the DaVinci Manuscripts in the Spanish National Library in Madrid.

Professor Piccus unexpectedly found several months ago the invaluable manuscripts, which had been missing for more than 100 years. Since he announced the discovery of the manuscripts at a Boston News conference last month, the Spanish National Library has apparently ruled the DaVinci manuscripts off limits to Dr. Piccus and anyone else affiliated with the University of Massachusetts.

UMass and the Spanish Library have a signed contract which grants UMass the right to publish the manuscripts within four years.

So far the Spanish Library has not officially registered any complaints to UMass. In recent weeks UMass administrators have been trying to open a means of communication with the library. Dean Edward C. Moore, head of the U-Mass Graduate School, discussed last week in Washington with the Spanish ambassador to the United States various ways to establish a basis for negotiation with the library.

Moore has expressed his willingness to go to Madrid to confer with library officials if he receives an invitation from Spanish authorities.

Since the announcement of the discovery was made, the Spanish Library allowed Life magazine to do a story about the manuscripts. The Life article gives Dr. Piccus credit for finding the missing manuscripts.

In its cover story of March 3, Life wrote, "Professor Jules Piccus of the University of Massachusetts, who had been looking for medieval ballads in the National Library of Madrid, announced that he had accidentally come upon two red leather-bound volumes — some 700 pages of Leonardo's notebooks. It has been known for years that the notebooks had belonged to the library, but they were miscatalogued a century ago and numerous searches failed to turn them up."

Commenting on the Life magazine story, a UMass official said, "We're very pleased with the story."

Dr. Piccus will remain in Madrid continuing with other research while Dean Moore waits for an invitation to go to Madrid. The next move is clearly up to the Spanish.

WMUA's Top 15

last week	this week	title	artist and label
4	1.	Dedicated To The One I Love	Mamas and Papas (Dunhill)
14	• 2.	This Is My Song	Petula Clark (Warner Bros.)
2	3.	I Think We're Alone Now	Tommy James & Shondells (Roulette)
1	4.	Strawberry Fields/Penny Lane	Beatles (Capitol)
6	• 5.	Happy Together	Turtles (White Whale)
8	6.	Hung Up In Your Eyes	Brian Hyland (Philips)
3	7.	California Nights	Lesley Gore (Mercury)
10	8.	Western Union	Five Americans (Abnak)
25	9.	Bernadette	Four Tops (Motown)
7	••10.	Darlin' Be Home Soon	Lovin' Spoonful (Kama Sutra)
5	11.	Kind Of A Hush/No Milk Today	Herman's Hermits (MGM)
12	12.	59th Street Bridge Song	Harper's Bizarre (Warner Bros.)
20	•13.	Yellow Balloon	Yellow Balloon/Jan-Dean (Can./Col.)
13	14.	Ruby Tuesday/Let's Spend The Night Together	Rolling Stones (London)
9	•15.	Baby I Need Your Lovin'	Johnny Rivers (Imperial)

•former pick hit (heard first on WMUA); ••former sure shot (anticipated top 10 rating)

SUMMER JOBS

Students who are presently working under the Federal Work Study Program and students who think they might also qualify for the program should see Mr. Siegrist in the Placement Office in reference to obtaining a summer job with a non-profit organization in their community. Presently there are many jobs in the Boston and Fall River areas. There are a limited number of these jobs available and eligibility is based on the student's financial need as determined by the Placement & Financial Aid Office which is located in Machmer Hall.

OFFICIAL U. S. MARINE CORPS NOTICE

Captains Randall W. Austin, Charles R. Speth and Anthony M. Capozza of the U.S. Marine Corps Officer Selection Office, Boston will be visiting UMass on the 20th, 21st and 22nd of March.

Students interested in obtaining any information are invited to discuss the various available commissioning programs with the Officer Selection Team during their visit on campus.

The Platoon Leaders Class Program (Air or Ground) is open to freshmen, sophomores and juniors. This program is accomplished without military classes, drill or other interruptions during the regular school year. Candidates attend two six-week summer training courses at Quantico, Va., and upon graduation from college are commissioned Second Lieutenants.

The Officer Candidate Program (Air or Ground) is open to college seniors and recent graduates. After graduation and upon completion of a ten-week training cycle at Quantico, Va., candidates are commissioned Second Lieutenants.

NOTICES

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS
Bus will leave for Belchertown state school for the retarded on Saturday from the North Dining Commons at 1:20, and Newman Center at 1:25 P.M. All new volunteers are welcome.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB
On Monday, March 20, at 7:00 in Colonial Lounge, S.U. a coffee hour with a graduate student panel speaking on careers in Sociology will be held. Everyone interested is welcome.

RSO PRESIDENTS
All RSO president please leave your names and addresses in the Public Relations Committee message box in the Student Senate office.

JFK CULTURAL COMMITTEE
On Monday, March 20, at 8:00 P.M. in JFK 5th floor, lounge, there will be a leaderless talk and discussion with Valley Center students of "Anarchism Today".

STUDENT RELIGIOUS LIBERALS
On Sunday, March 19, at 6:00 P.M. in Unitarian Church, there will be a Cost Supper. Jeffrey Cambell will be guest. Members and new members welcome.

EDGAR ALLEN POE MOVIE
On Tues., March 21, at 6:30 and 8:30 P.M. in Mahar Aud., the Pre-Med Society is sponsoring Edgar Allen Poe's "Tales of Terror". Open to public; 25c-members, 50c-nonmembers.

KENNEDY-FULBRIGHT FOR PRESIDENT
On March 20, at 7:00 P.M. in Student Union there will be a meeting. Check spaghetti board for room.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS
On March 20, at 7:00 P.M. in Student Union there is a meeting. Check spaghetti board for room.

On Tues., March 21, at 8:30 P.M. in Middlesex Room, S.U. there will be a discussion "Effect of Prejudice". Guest speakers-open to all interested.

WAA
Voting for the 1967-68 Executive Board of WAA will be held at WoPe during the following times:
Wed., March 22 9-12, 1-2, 3-4 Thurs., March 23, 9-4 P.M. All those participating in WAA activities this year are encouraged to vote.

EDUCATION CLUB ....
On Tues., March 21, at 7:45 in School of Ed. Aud., there will be a panel discussion on "Student Teaching Experiences". Both secondary & elementary students who practice taught last semester make up the panel. Refreshments.

POLISH
Anyone interested in having first and/or second year Polish offered this summer, please leave your name with the secretary at the Slavic Dept. or call 5-2052.

ALL-CHRISTIAN WORSHIP
There is a meeting every Sunday at 11:00 A.M. in Mahar Aud.; Theme for Sunday, March 19 is "Lord of the Dance".

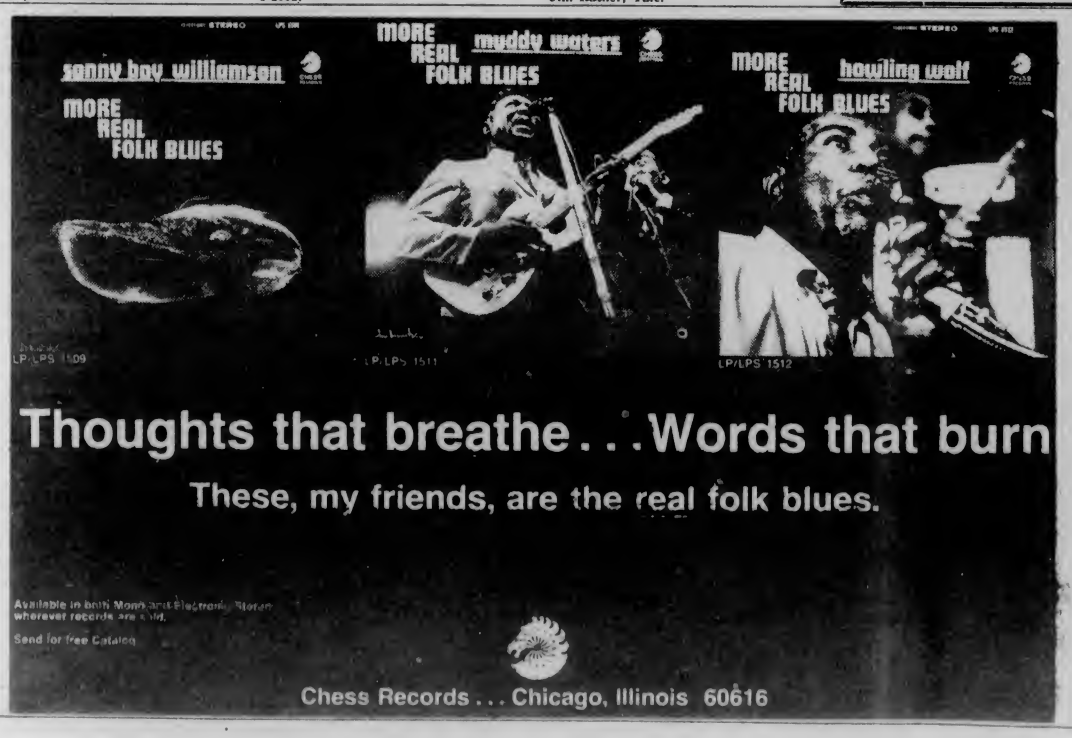
HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY
There will be a meeting on Wed., March 22, at 7:00 P.M. in 201 French Hall. Dr. F. W. Southwick, head of Dept. of Plant and Soil Sciences, will speak on "The Curriculum of the Dept. and its relation to post-graduate opportunities." All who are interested are invited to attend.

LOST
A pair of dark brown glasss somewhere between Union and Orchard Hill last Friday. Please contact Ken Quilty, 300 Grayson, 546-6921, Reward.

APO LOST & FOUND
If you have lost a notebook, text, glasses, or other valuables, go to Campus lost and found booth at the bus-ticket window.

FOUND
Would the gentleman who left his wristwatch in speedreading class call 256-6068.
Dorothy Comee, class of '69, Westfield State College, to David Liukkonen, class of '69, JFK.

ENGAGEMENT
Janice R. Dimenstein, UMass Grad., to Jim Ratner, Yale.



MAKE PAY WHILE THE SUN SHINES... get a summer job with MANPOWER

Manpower needs hundreds of stenos, typists, general office workers to work as White Glove Girl vacation replacements . . . and we're paying the highest rates in our history. Stop in at your local Manpower office when you're home on Spring vacation and let us help plan your summer schedule.

MANPOWER

An Equal Opportunity Employer

T-5 Residents Protest Conversion of Dorm

by RON LaBRECQUE
Staff Reporter

The negative response by the residents of John Adams Tower to a proposal that they be relocated in low-rise dormitories next year was dramatically manifested at a meeting held with Mr. Thomas Trotman, director of Southwest housing, in the 12th floor lounge of John Adams Wednesday night.

The proposal had been made by the Southwest administration that John Adams be changed to a women's residence as a solution to the damage problem that exists in the new dormitory.

Earlier in the week, rumor of the proposal became widespread and residents of John Adams quickly took positive action. A petition asking that the tower be allowed to remain a men's residence was circulated throughout the dormitory.

A member of the group responsible for the petition stated that out of approximately 400 residents contacted, 384 signed.

When the Master's council of the Southwest College met Wednesday morning to discuss the situation, it was decided, on the basis of the student response, to postpone the decision about the fate of the dorm until a meeting held this morning.

Conflicting statements concerning the matter by various members of the Southwest administration were given to the Collegian, and it was not until the meeting Wednesday night that the situation was made clear.

John Hunt, Assistant Master of the Southwest College, and Trotman allowed the meeting to be a question and answer period, welcoming all comments on the matter.

The major question of the evening was: Why Tower 5? Trotman stated that the damage in John Adams was a definite problem and it was the hope of the administration that moving the men to the new low-rise units which "were harder to damage" would alleviate the problem.

He also said that it would be desirable to have a better ratio between men's and Women's dormitories in the low-rise units.

The discussion of damage centered on the breakage of lounge windows. Trotman stated that the number of windows broken in John Adams is much higher than in the other Towers. However he was quickly challenged by one of the students on the validity of this argument.

Trotman conceded that the type of window in Tower 5, a vertical wire support, is more susceptible to accidental damage than the cross-wire support window placed in the other Towers.

The student went on to mention the fact that those windows with cross-wire supports which have been used to replace the broken ones have not been broken. The student said that the residents of the Tower should not be blamed for something that is the fault of inferior construction.

Both the students and the men representing the administration admitted that the large amount of freshmen in these houses is a major cause of the problem. The dorm itself is 55% freshman, and it was stated that much of the damage occurred during the inevitable "settling down" period that comes with the first semester.

Trotman also admitted that as of yet this semester there has been no appreciable damage.

A resident summed up the general argument opposing the plan by stating that much of what has happened is "not entirely the fault of the residents" and that dorm governments are just now beginning to handle the situation.

Various alternatives were presented to Trotman and Hunt, one being a better distribution of freshman, and the two men stated they would present the students' views at this morning's meeting of the southwest administration.

The results of this morning's meeting will be given to the presidents of the three houses concerned and should be announced shortly.

B. C. Sponsors Program for Pre-Law Students

Boston College is sponsoring a pre-legal institute, to be held at Boston College on Monday, April 10. Transportation will be provided for all University students who wish to attend.

The purpose of this institute is to bring to pre-legal students deeper appreciation of the legal profession and of the various options which they have with regard to their legal education.

The program will consist of dinner, meetings with the Dean of the Law School and faculty members, attendance at several classes, and observance of a mock courtroom scene.

Buses will leave at 3 p.m. from the Student Union and return at about 11 p.m. the same evening. Students are urged to sign up in Ken Suid's office in South College by March 22.

For Skiers Only

by KITTY and KELLY

The tourists are funny people. They come to the ski area for just a weekend, so they're determined to make every second count. Yet they spend their time talking. They get their biggest satisfaction out of telling the wildest story.

They're always the first ones in line when the tows open. They count their runs, add a few and brag about the number at the end of the day.

They creep down the novice slope. Their knees are trembling and their arms flapping, yet the talk is of that new feat they tried today. Some take lessons, but just for the sake of conversation.

When someone skis by, the tourists are standing, smoking a cigarette. Yet they smile and give a quick yodel of recognition. They've never seen him before but their friends don't know the difference.

They carry their skis into the village at the end of the day. I stop to help them at the base of the mountain but their real trouble can never be mended. They thank me for my concern and promise me a beer.

I see them later with their friends. They'll say they've seen me before—but not on this mountain, always a bigger and better one.

Then they continue discussing the various episodes of the day. The long lift lines, the icy patches, the crazy kids who go straight down the fall-line and have no consideration for the beginners on the expert slopes, and the patrolman who brought them down on a toboggan are common topics of conversation.

Inevitably the tourists are not satisfied with the skis they own. Theirs are too heavy for the powder in the Bowl, too stiff for the mogels on the expert slopes and too short for the giant slalom next week at another mountain. I always tell them Heads are a sure buy. They never argue.

They order another pitcher of beer and they dance. It is difficult to be graceful in their ski boots and they feel compelled to stand stiff-legged (so their Bogners won't "knee"). But of course they have two other pairs, just ask them.

They gawk at the dance we do. Then they buy me a beer and insist that I give them lessons. But their legs can't take the strain and they soon retire to their room. It was an exhausting day of skiing.

INTRAMURALS

AEP Wins V-Ball Title

The campus volleyball championship was played last night with AEP winning easily. The fraternity boys were just too tough for the dorm representatives, the Flaming A's, and downed the A's in straight games, 15-6, 15-6.

In bowling, the dorm All-Stars topped the fraternity All-Stars in a close match. Pete Brazauskas with a 219, and Rich Minton with a 210, led the dorms to their victory. Rich MacDonald from the fraternities was high man for the night with a 230.

* * *

The intramural wrestling championships between the dorms and the fraternities are scheduled to begin Monday at 7 p.m. in the Auxiliary Gym of Boyden.

This year's wrestling championship should be the best to date. There has been more interest shown this year in wrestling than ever before, and the finals should offer plenty of spectator interest.

* * *

Entries for the campus badminton tournament, which will begin April 6, are due next Tuesday, at 5 p.m. in the intramural office.

DORM CHAMPIONS
Trojans over Flaming A's, 10-15, 17-15, 15-9
Lemons over Patriots, 15-13, 15-11

CANCELLATION
SKI CLUB RACE has been cancelled due to lack of interest. There will be a meeting Monday, March 20, Morrill Aud., 7:00 p.m. Warren Miller movies will be shown.

COFFEE HOUR FOR WOMEN'S AFFAIRS

Once upon a time in a small kingdom by the sea, there was a little girl who didn't agree with some of the laws that were passed by the king and his ministers. Each day as she went about her work, she would mumble about how things ought to be.

When she was with her friends, she would often discuss methods by which the kingdom could be improved. Many of her friends agreed and they would stay up late at night talking over their ideas. But, alas, nothing was ever done because the people who could put these ideas into action were never told.

Don't let this happen in our kingdom. If you and your friends have ideas on how Women's rules and regulations can be changed for the better, tell the Women's Affairs Committee at their coffee hour.

Southwest girls—Monday, March 20, 7:00 S.W. Dining Common No. 5. Girls from traditional dorms and Orchard Hill—Tuesday, March 21 7:00 Commonwealth Room, S.U.

'PLAYBOY® NITE'

by the

Sophomore Class

APRIL 5--7:00 P. M.

TICKETS GO ON SALE
Monday, March 20 – 10 a.m.

☆ Authentic Decor
☆ Star Studded Attractions ☆ Door Prizes
☆ Playmates®
☆ Buffet Dinner

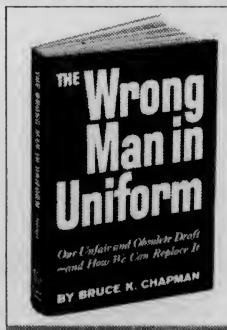
$5.00 per couple



Each couple must have their meal ticket number when buying tickets.

SOPHOMORES ONLY
can by tickets – first two days.

S K I DURING SPRING VACATION?

You don't need a 4.0 cum to know that food and lodging, 5 Two-hour lessons, and use of all lifts and facilities for an entire week for $59.95 is a good deal. You must show your college I.D. for these rates.

THE SNOW BARN
MT. SNOW, VT. Tel. 464-3348

THE BOOK THAT SAYS:
END THE DRAFT!
"... This book could well arouse the public and provide the force which gets the Congressional machinery moving."
—Rep. Thomas B. Curtis (R-Missouri)
AT YOUR BOOKSELLER'S
$3.95
TRIDENT PRESS New York

LIFE: WED. MAR. 15th
"A SPLASHY, SURF-SOAKED SLEEPER!
BREATHTAKING! IMAGINATIVE!
The nicest surprise to happen in a long time. Unless you just enjoy turning your back entirely on life, you should not miss the breathtaking shots!"
COLOR
AT: 1:40 - 3:30 - 5:30 - 7:30 - 9:40
The Endless Summer
Phone 733-5131
ROCKING CHAIR RECLINING SEATS
ACRES OF PARKING
CINEMA 1&2
RIVERDALE RD WEST SPRINGFIELD

545-2550
COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"

THE SEASON THAT WAS...

For Swimmers—A Winter of Discontent

By HARVEY ELMAN
Staff Reporter

"It's been a long, hard kinter. Steve Levy and Dick Lennon got hepatitis in the middle of the season, and they were never the same after that. But we were lucky to have them and I was proud of the way the team came back after dropping five meets in a row."

Thus a disappointed Joe Rogers, coach of UMass' varsity swimming team, viewed his squad's 4-6 season.

The mermen opened their schedule with an impressive 65-38 drubbing of Tufts. Many of the sophomores from last year's outstanding freshman squad gave stellar performances in their first taste of varsity competition.

In the 200-yd. individual medley, Captain Dick Lennon set a school record with a 2:14.7 timing, shaving a 10th of a second off his previous mark.

Despite another school record cut by Lennon, the Amherst College swimmers downed UM, 57-38. The captain eclipsed his own mark of 2:29.7 by 1.7 seconds in the 200-yd. breaststroke event. Ironically, the old mark had been set last year against the same opponent, Pete Schlieman, a close friend of Lennon.

"I thought they would do a lot better," said a dismayed Coach Rogers after his squad's sub-par performance left them on the short end of a 60-35 dunking by powerful Wesleyan.

Several swimmers recorded their worst times of the season in this meet. "The team wasn't up for this meet. We just didn't do our best," said Rogers. Only Dave Larson (diving) and Lennon (200-yd. backstroke) won their events.

Bob Asquith, a soph sensation, shattered Lennon's 200-yd. backstroke mark against UConn, but the Huskies nonetheless grabbed a 55-40 verdict. Asquith and Ken Nowak swept the 50-yd. freestyle while Lennon took the 200-yd. individual medley and breaststroke. Larson emerged with first place in the diving competition. The 400-yd. freestyle relay was won by Flip Morton, Nowak, Lennon and Asquith.

Bowdoin swam away with a 58-37 triumph at Brunswick, Maine, on Feb. 4. Asquith took the 200-yd. backstroke, Lennon the 200-yd. breaststroke, and Nowak the 50-yd. freestyle. Asquith and Lennon swept the 200-yd. individual medley.

Despite two new school records set by Asquith, the UM swimmers were submerged, 52-43, by Vermont.

The meet was actually decided by the outcome of the final event, the 400-yd. free relay. UMass trailed by only 45-43 at this point but lost the relay by a mere inch. Anchor man Tom Mills of UVM swam an incredible 50 sec. final leg to clinch the victory. It was the fifth consecutive setback for the Redmen.

Asquith broke his own record against UConn the week before with a 2.09.6 in the 200-yd. backstroke. He also shattered Lennon's 1966 mark of 2:14.7 in the 200-yd. individual medley by 1.7 seconds.

A steady performer all season, Larson again copped diving honors. Dick D'Andrea placed second. This event signified the first time that high board diving competition had been held in dual meets at UMass. Lennon captured the 200-yd. backstroke.

Snapping out of their season-long doldrums, the UM squad ripped Worcester Tech right out of the water with a 58-32 rout at the Tech pool. Asquith broke the Tech pool's record in the 160-yd. individual medley event.

In addition, the 400-yd. medley relay team of Fred Anderson, Ted Severn, Levy, and Morton grabbed seven quick points for their opening-event win.

BY LAND AND BY SEA—Members of the '66-'67 UMass swimming team are (front row, from left) Ted Severn, Captain Dick Lennon, Steve Levy, and Norm Lovitch; (middle row) Tony Cassis, Bob Asquith, Ken Nowak, Fred Anderson, Flip Morton, and Dave Larson; (back row) Assistant Coach Joe Yeskewicz, Steve Thorp, Dave Breed, Tom Beck, Dick Donoghue, and Coach Joe Rogers.

The resurgent Redmen had little trouble handling Holy Cross, 60-35. The 400-yd. medley relay team started UM's scoring with a record-setting time of 3:58.0. Lennon, Nowak, Levy and Asquith erased the 1966 standard of 4:02.0. Another UM varsity mark fell by the poolside when Levy swam the 200-yd. butterfly in 2:24.5.

A determined UM squad gained a small measure of revenge on Coast Guard with a decisive 69-26 rout of the Guardsmen.

The final home meet for the team this season turned out to be its finest hour.

By winning 10 of 11 events, the Redmen reversed last year's frustrating setback at New London. A losing season was handed the squad last season due to a bitterly protested disqualification of current Captain Lennon in the freestyle relay race due to a false start. The defeat made the log road 5-6 instead of a winning 6-5.

The final home event of the season found the crowd cheering enthusiastically for a new record and the 400-yd. freestyle relay team of Nowak, Morton, Lennon, and Asquith responded to the cheers. In a thrilling finish to an exciting home schedule, the old standard of 2:30.9 was eclipsed by 1.8 seconds. The triumph was the team's third in a row after five straight setbacks.

In the season's finale, a talented MIT squad caught the Redmen in a 61-34 backwash to prevent any hope of attaining a .500 percentage for the season.

Coach Rogers named eight swimmers to represent UMass in the New England Intercollegiate Swimming League meet at Southern Connecticut College. The contingent consisted of seniors Severn, Levy and Lennon; junior Nowak; and sophomores Asquith, Morton, Larson and Tony Cassis.

The eight-man contingent was not up to par, however, and their performances were far below those of the regular season. The team placed 11th in a field of 20, but their point total of 46 was the highest amassed by a UMass squad in several years.

Scoring for the Redmen were Larson with fifth spot in the one-meter diving and seventh in the three-meter; Asquith with sixth in the 200-yd. backstroke and seventh in the 100-yd. backstroke; and Lennon, who placed ninth in the 200-yd. breaststroke and 10th in the 100-yd. breaststroke. In addition, the 400-yd. medley relay team, consisting of Asquith, Lennon, Levy, and Nowak, finished in 10th place to complete UM's scoring.

In reviewing the season, Captain Lennon feels that it was "a pleasure and an honor to work with the fine individuals on this team. Coach Rogers and assistant Yeskewicz were a great help to us throughout the season."

Lennon was disappointed with the 4-6 record but expressed optimism about next year's squad. "Our fine sophomores should be better as they mature," stated the captain. He was pleased with the way the team rebounded from the five losses in a row to win three straight near the end of the season.

Lennon pointed to the loss of freestyler Chip Wyser as a crippling blow to the squad.

Coach Rogers feels the lack of a butterfly specialist to replace senior Steve Levy will be the only weak spot in next year's team. Current freshmen standouts, Steve Klubock and Mark Miller, will move up to the varsity.

The coach also believes Larson will score higher if he sheds about 10-12 pounds. Hopefully, Ted Hoag will join Larson to form a potent diving duo. Rogers' happiest moment occurred when the varsity crushed Coast Guard to atone for last year's disaster.

Bergquist Enters Rookie Year

From the Hill, the Outlook Is Good

By GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

A lot of question marks but a lot of optimism. That pretty much sums up UMass baseball coach Dick Bergquist's outlook for the upcoming season, in which the Redmen will be trying to repeat as last year's Yankee Conference tri-champion.

Bergquist will not have a chance to resolve these question marks before the season begins, since UMass will be thrown right into the thick of its schedule starting on March 27 at Clemson in South Carolina.

In the past, the games on the southern trip counted as exhibitions, but this year the Dixie contests are for keeps, so Bergquist, beginning his first year as varsity coach, will not have a chance to use these games for valuable experimentation.

Nevertheless, he sees a good deal of cause for optimism. Much of his team is inexperienced, but a good nucleus of veterans and a lot of team spirit should make for an interesting season.

Much of his optimism is based upon what looks like a solid pitching staff. Two good pitchers in the starting rotation can make a college team a winner, but Berquist appears to have four.

Heading the mound corps is right-handed ace Carl Boteze, who will share the captain's duties with outfielder Ted Mareno. Boteze was by far the best pitcher on last year's club which compiled a 20-6 record and competed in the NCAA District One playoff.

Last spring, Carl rolled up a glittering 10-3 mark behind an earned-run-average of 2.76. An all-Yankee Conference selection, he is expected to have just as good a season this spring.

Boteze relies mainly on breaking stuff, especially the curve. He varies this with a good fast ball. Berquist believes that "his will to win" makes him that much better. The strong-armed senior will undoubtedly be one of New England's top hurlers.

The only cause for concern regarding Boteze is the fact that he pulled a muscle in his leg a few months ago. He should be fully recovered by now, but Berquist is hoping that it will not affect him once the season starts.

"I expect a lot out of Boteze," Bergquist said. "The key to how good our pitching is will be if Carl can stay healthy. He loves the game and he really wants to play."

Firebailer John Canty is also looking forward to an outstanding season. Canty is a left-handed junior whose potential is unlimited. His fast ball is as good as there is on the college level, and he has cultivated a pretty good curve and change-up.

Canty's only problems lie in control and experience. He came down with arm trouble last spring and saw action in only seven games, although he improved toward the end of the season. He's working hard to get the ball over the plate, so his control should be improved.

Last year he compiled a 3-0 record, with an ERA of 3.80 and an impressive 47 strikeouts in 25 innings. Canty should be quite a strikeout artist.

Dave Katz, another junior southpaw, had a mark of 4-1 with a 3.30 ERA. Katz is a good competitor who goes mainly with breaking stuff. His chief asset is his control, and he likes to outthink batters.

Although the fast ball is not his forte, the diminutive southpaw should perform quite well in a starting role and in the bullpen. Bergquist believes that Katz "will be a good college pitcher."

The fourth Redman hurler is sophomore Norm Elliott, a right-hander. He likes to go sidearm with a pitch that moves in on the batter. He throws hard, with a fast ball that moves around and has a pretty good break.

His main asset, said Bergquist, is his control. Elliott is working hard to improve his curve, and although he is still recovering from a broken foot suffered in January, he'll be a man to watch. He was the leading pitcher on last spring's freshman squad with a 3-1 mark and a 1.92 ERA.

Two additional spots remain on the pitching staff, and fighting for these will be junior Don Gagner, and sophs Rich Rappoli and Skip Gerry. In addition, outfielder Alex Vyce and first baseman Roy Lasky have mound experience and will be used if needed.

Next Issue:
The Infield

GOLF MEETING

The varsity golf team will meet next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Norfolk Room of the Student Union to discuss final trip arrangements.

See Page 4

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

There will be
NO COLLEGIAN
This Friday,
March 24

VOL. XCV, NO. 57 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, MARCH 20, 1967

T-5 to Remain Male; Trial Period Established

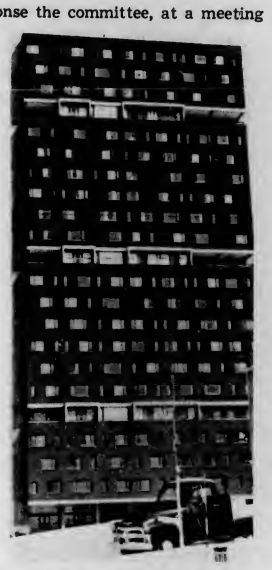
by RON LaBRECQUE

The residents of T-5 have been given a second chance to remain in their dorm by the coordinating committee of the Southwest Residential College.

According to letters received by the three house presidents of the Tower from Clarence Shute, Master of the Southwest complex, the committee was "pleased with the reports made by Prof. Hunt and Mr. Trotman on the meeting of the residents of John Adams Tower which was held Wednesday evening, March 15."

Early last week, the rumor that T-5 would be changed to a women's residence and the men now living there would be relocated in low-rise units became widely circulated and the residents took prompt action to prevent this from happening. A petition was circulated and an open dorm meeting with Thomas Trotman, Director of Southwest Housing, was held to discuss the situation.

As a result of this student response the committee, at a meeting Friday morning, decided to relay their decision "pending the receipt of a proposed plan to insure better conditions for the future with respect to damage, noise, and freshman distribution in accordance with the constructive suggestions which were made... in the meeting." The house presidents were given until the opening of Spring vacation to submit their plan.



The committee asked that four major points be covered in the plan including:

1. Individual and house responsibility for property damage.

2. Equal distribution of freshman, by corridor, in each house. The inequitable distribution was assigned as a major cause of the problem.

3. A process for limitation of noise in the John Adams area. This included possible consultation with the house governments of John Quincy Adams and Washington Towers.

4. The composition of an evaluation committee to meet with the coordinating committee to assess the success of the trial period.

Looks OK from the outside but damage on the inside of T-5 percipated a move last week to change the male dorm to a women's residence hall. A trial period is presently in the process of being established.

Moving Toward Reality

Book Describes New College

Just down Rt. 116, south out of Amherst, there is a large white house with a sign in front reading Hampshire College.

The house and the 450 acres of adjacent land is the future campus for the independent, liberal arts college now preparing to receive its opening class in 1967.

The future of Hampshire College took a definite step forward recently with the publication of a book entitled The Making of A College.

The book is called "Working Paper No. 1" by its authors Franklin Patterson, president of Hampshire College and Charles R. Longsworth, vice-president and secretary.

The book is 360 pages with over 100 pages of maps, drawings and statistics which reveils that the experiment in higher education is beginning to assume reality.

The college will be co-ed with approximately 1,440 students and 90 faculty.

In the preface of the book Patterson explains: "Its academic program will be distinctive in its ends as well as its means. And it will demonstrate that, through innovation, it is possible for a new private undergraduate college to achieve high quality without a heavy, continuing subsidy of its operations."

He further stated that an "academic program of good quality can be organized in a private college collaborating with nearby institutions, with its costs met principally out of tuition income. The collaborating schools, of course, will be Amherst, Mt. Holyoke and Smith Colleges and UMass.

As explained in an article in the Springfield Republican, Hampshire College will not be organized by departments. Instead it will be organized by major fields of disciplines and subjects into four schools designated as: School of Humanities and Arts, School of Natural Sciences, School of Social Sciences, School of Language Studies. Each of these will have a basic faculty and a dean.

Course work in foreign languages during the academic year will be supplemented by a language laboratory.

During the summer term, Hampshire will conduct intensive foreign language institutes. These will not resemble summer schools but will be "total-culture simulations" in which students will live with a language and its culture day and night for a period of six to eight weeks.

An innovation is the addition of a new field to the usual three programs of liberal arts colleges, that of language. This does not mean simply foreign language studies.

Students will have substantial introduction to each of the four schools or fields and will have intensive experience in at least one of them before they graduate.

In the process of eventually ending up in one of these four schools, students will progress through a three-phase divisional sequence in their academic work, rather than through the usual four-phase freshman-senior sequence.

As explained, Division I will introduce students to the intentions of liberal education at Hampshire and to the fields its schools deal with. In Division II students will concentrate in one of the four schools for preparation in concepts and methods of a single discipline, after having explored the school fields further.

Division III will occupy students with advanced studies in their chosen field. In the divisional sequence, students will move steadily toward greater independence in study.

Most students will be likely to spend one academic year in Division I, two years in Division II and a year in Division III.

(Continued on page 6)

Protest Raised

Phone Tax Linked to War

What is the telephone tax? Why refuse to pay it?

Tuesday night, March 21, at 7:30 in the Ballroom, Students for Political Action (SPA) is sponsoring a meeting to discuss these questions

The issue concerns the 10% Federal Tax on phone bills.

This tax, which had been 3% and was scheduled to be dropped entirely in 1969, was restored to 10% in April of 1966.

Representative Wilbur Mills, who managed the tax legislation in the House, commented that "It is clear that the Vietnam and only the Vietnam operation makes this bill necessary."

Currently, various organizations throughout the nation are sponsoring a call to boycott the phone tax.

Dick Shortt, co-chairman of SPA, a campus group supporting the boycott, gave as a reason for refusing to pay the tax the fact that "This tax has been directly imposed to pay for the war in Vietnam, a war we consider illegal and immoral."

The tax is a Federal tax, and is considered by the phone company to be a matter between the individual and the government.

In most cases, the refused tax has continued to be carried on the phone bill as an "unpaid balance". The telephone company has so far indicated that refusal to pay the tax will not result in interruption of phone service.

A leaflet now being distributed to all rooms in Orchard Hill and Southwest calls for a refusal to pay the tax, stating that the tax helps to finance "an indefinite continuation of war against a people who above all desire to be alive and to determine their destiny free from foreign domination."

Although the government has not yet pressed charges on this issue, refusal to pay can be classified as a misdemeanor under the Internal Revenue Code.

Labor Group Established To Represent Grad Teachers

by DICK LANE

A new student organization has been initiated on the University of Massachusetts campus this semester.

The recent student group is a labor union of graduate students, called the "University of Massachusetts Student Federation of Teachers, "(UMGSFT)".

It received its charter on January 1, 1967 from the American Federation of Teachers, AFT, which authorized its jurisdiction on the Amherst campus.

Leader of the union is David Carey, a former teacher and now graduate student at the Labor Relations and Research Center here on campus. James Mastriani, also of LRRC, is the Secretary-Treasurer.

Speaking on the union Carey said: "The graduate student community at UM has for too long been devoid of active representation in matters pertaining to problems and grievances arising from the curriculum and administrative practices here. The intention of UMGSFT is to establish a representative voice for the benefit of its members."

The union's president stated in an interview with the Collegian that the movement for the organization came from the "graduate students themselves." It began as recently as December of 1966, one month before receiving its charter.

Carey stated that while, "other student unions do exist," such as at Berkeley, he believes this one, "may be the first" such graduate student one.

And as for actual negotiation itself, the student labor leader said that being on "fellowships," the group "Can't negotiate" as such for benefits such as wages or the like, but must concentrate on other means to "smaller, less important matters."

Present organization of the union includes dues of $2.50 a year and an additional dollar. As for membership, Carey could not comment, saying he would prefer at this time to, "let it go" because such information might be, "self - defeating." There were enough for a charter the president pointed out, however.

At present a recruitment program is underway starting with the Collegian and through one of the other schools on campus, that of Education.

And although the union is affiliated with an international teacher's union (AFT), one need not be a prospective teacher to qualify for membership.

Identify this photograph and receive a FREE portrait in black and white by a Collegian photographer.

Write down your guess with your name and address and bring it to the Collegian office by next Tuesday.

The winner will be drawn next Tuesday.

Displaying his usual grin, UM ROTC Cadet Peter J. Gallagher, junior from Malden, is commended by ROTC staff officers for his outstanding performance as a member of the ROTC rifle team.
The marksman was given a certificate after placing sixth among all competitors in the 15-state 1st Army area in the recent American Society of Military Engineers rifle match. Left to right, Col. Delter B. Wiseman, military science Dept. executive officer; Gallagher; and Capt. Thomas A. Wilson, Rifle team coach. A cadet staff sergeant and a history major, Gallagher has been a member of the ROTC Rifle Team for three years and has received his varsity letter in rifle for two years.

Review

Loves Called 'Earthy, Universal'

by N. C. SCANLAN

The Academy Award nominee, Loves of a Blonde, came to the Amherst Cinema Friday night. The Czech film transcends the ideological barrier of politicians, capturing people and universal implications.

The story is the blonde (Hana Brejchova). This earthy factory worker lives at a co-op. The factory manager is greatly concerned over the factory ratio, 16:1, girls to boys. And so, the army is called into the crisis. Enter the universal implications: a dance.

Milos Forman records the age-old hunt, the stalking of the females. Three veteran bucks stalk three plain frightened fawns, and in the process, all the old familiars hit home to even Americans. There is both laughter and sadness; and after the dance is over, the familiar uneasiness of the next move.

Meanwhile, the blonde has met up with a young piano player (Vladimier Pucholt) who reads her palm, gains has confidence and invites her up to prove his good intentions; the love scene follows.

Back to the co-op, a short documentary which could be interpreted as the evils of the state or just another factory. The Blonde is off to Prague in search of the piano boy, only to arrive at more universals. The mother and father, straight out of Malden or Hoboken, echo concerns and worries: They are both wonderful; they hardly seem acting. She talks to him and he talks only to the TV.

Milos Forman's story and directing are only surpassed by the photography. Like Main Street, Loves is shot in a drab but graphic black and white. The movie becomes a form of extended photography, always focal, sometimes poetic. The mood created seems much like the people: earthy, simple, entirely human. The women aren't beauties; the men are no idols. It's all black and white.

People are so much people that the acting, the directing, both simply dissolve into life. Miss Brejchova is good and natural, she has little overt acting to do; the same with Pucholt. Mother, father and soldiers are all natural, all excellent.

Czechoslovakian films seem to be "in" nowadays, but there is a reason oddly enough. Loves of a Blonde is a very humorous film about people from anywhere, about situations everywhere. The only thing Czech by definition is the ending: a dream-like factory shot accompanied by a folk Ave Maria. The film is an excellent collection of slices of life.

It will be in town through Tuesday.

MONDAY NEWS STAFF
Day Editor: Jim Foudy
Associate Day Editor: Judy Leonard

ENGINEERING POSITIONS

Patent Scaffolding Co., a Division of Harsco Corporation, and a leading manufacturer and supplier to the construction industry, has a number of position vacancies in Long Island City, New York and in its branch offices in principal cities of the United States for civil and mechanical engineering graduates.

Several of the positions available involve specific assignments in the design and layout of shoring and formwork for concrete structures, while other assignments involve varied and interesting design and layout work relating to scaffolding manufacture and its use on major construction projects throughout the country.

The characteristics of the company's organization and its structure of branch office operations throughout the country make these positions particularly suitable for engineering graduates who are seeking work assignments in small engineering departments.

For those whose interests and aptitudes lean in the direction of sales engineering and ultimately branch and general management, these positions provide an excellent opportunity in a growing organization that continues to advance its position in the construction industry through a progressive program of expansion of product lines and distribution. With a continuing prevalence of opportunity, the individual's growth in this direction can be expected to be commensurate with his personal development.

If you are interested in reviewing the potential that one of these positions may be of mutual benefit to you and the company, please write

MR. A. C. BORGMAN
Vice President-Engineering
Patent Scaffolding Co.
Division of Harsco Corporation
38-21 12th Street
Long Island City, New York 11101
An equal opportunity Employer.

For Complex Problems

The Computer Age Is Here

At the University of Massachusetts, the computer age is no longer on the way. It has arrived.

In the classroom and at the $2.5 million UMass Research Computing Center, more and more faculty and students — from freshmen to researchers solving complex problems — are using the computer as a day-to-day part of the educational process.

An average of 1000 students —mostly freshmen — now take Computer Science 121, which teaches basic FORTRAN, the most common computer programming language, and provides a general introduction to the digital computer. This is in addition to engineering freshmen, who take their own special introductory computer course.

The UMass computer science department even gives a night course in computer practice for faculty, students and interested members of the community to study FORTRAN, COBOL (Computer Oriented Business Language) and other basic computer subjects.

The UMass computer center's main hardware includes a CDC 3600 computer and an IBM 1620. The center also has a growing program library and a 20-member staff of systems engineers, programmers and technicians. It now runs on a 24-hour a day basis; its use will be vastly extended in the near future through UMASS (Unlimited Machine Access from Scattered Sites).

The UMASS plan will establish teletypes at major locations on the campuses and increase the computer's effectiveness many times by providing nearly simultaneous use by several operators.

Public machines are planned at 10 major campus buildings, with five additional machines at the computer center. Predominantly student use is planned for the public machines. Campus users with sufficient need to install a private unit and research funds to support one may request a private machine. The system being installed will allow up to 64 locations.

Fine Arts Program Develops As Council Begins Discussion

by PETE WARD

The joint student-faculty Fine Arts Council held its first full meeting last Thursday to begin discussion concerning the administration of the $68,000.00 Fund that will be collected from the students to be expended on a University Fine Arts Program.

The funds are collected in the form of a $3.00 fee that undergraduates will pay for Fine Arts each semester starting next September.

Under the Fine Arts constitution, the Council is empowered to hire a professional Fine Arts manager to coordinate its program and place it on a more professional level. The salary of this manager will be paid by the administration under a plan approved by the Board of Trustees in a recent meeting.

Dr. Paul Norton, chairman of the Council announced that feelers are being extended in the hopes of hiring such a manager before the next school year begins. It is expected that this position will greatly improve the quality and planning of Fine Arts on the campus.

The Council feels that a campus of this size deserves and is capable of a professional Fine Arts Program.

The Council noted the great lack of space on campus that is of the size and acoustical quality needed for concerts. The Council is concerned that little campus feeling has as yet been generated in support of filling this need.

The hope that students and their agencies of government will begin to take steps to keep this important issue in the forefront and help the council work toward a solution was expressed.

The University Chorale and Concert Association presented a request for $4,300 designed to allow the chorale to continue its recent expansion program: new uniforms, an expanded tour, inter-university exchange concerts and improved on-campus presentations. In the last two years the Chorale has increased the quantity and quality of its service to the state and campus at an impressive rate and hopes to continue this program.

At the meeting Dr. Philip Bezanson, a member of the Council and the head of the Music Dept. announced that the Dept. was willing to extend support of the Chorale by $200. The Music Dept. already supports 50% of the Chorale budget and hopes to finance it completely whenever possible. The Council's reaction was favorable to the Chorale proposals.

Action on the Concert Association's budget was deferred to April 6th when further information will be made available.

Other proposals presented for preliminary thought were for a Dance program, possibilities for the purchase of a concert grand piano and consideration of the SWAP conference.

ELECTION RESULTS
SORORITIES

*Jean Lakness	44
Deborah Parent	21

*Elected

Nominations for a Senate eltction in Knowlton will be available in R.S.O. Monday, March 20 through Friday, April 7. Election in Knowlton will be April 13th.

"Cat on a Hot Tin Roof"
Elizabeth Taylor
Paul Newman
Mon., March 20 8:00 P.M.
MAHAR AUD. 50c

SWING-SHIFT FRESHMEN
NOW ACCEPTING APPLICATIONS
FOR CLASS OF '70
EXECUTIVE COUNCIL
APPLY R.S.O. OFFICE

SENIORS
RETURN INDEX PROOFS
TUESDAY,
MARCH 21, 9 A.M.-4:30 P.M.
PLYMOUTH ROOM
STUDENT UNION

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

National

NEW YORK — Princess Margaret of Britain and her husband, Lord Snowdon arrived at New York's Kennedy Airport for a two hour stopover on their way home from a Bahamas vacation.

BIMINI, Bahama Islands — Adam Clayton Powell had hoped to deliver his Palm Sunday sermon in New York's Harlem, where he faces arrest but canceled his trip because he feared his arrest would touch off rioting. Instead, he delivered a seven-minute sermon on the tennis court of the Bimini Hotel in the Bahamas, to a congregation of 150 tourists and residents.

ACAPULCO, Mexico — Mrs. John F. Kennedy was reported upset Sunday because a boatload of photographers cruised near the private home where she is vacationing. Enrique Flores, Acapulco port captain, threatened rental boat owners with 15-day suspension of their licenses if they take photographers close to the Parra home of Mrs. Kennedy, her children, Caroline and John, and her sister, Princess Radziwill.

Washington

WASHINGTON—The predictions that negotiations of a new national trucking contract would be upset by James R. Hoffa's imprisonment have not come true so far.

The bargainers for the International Brotherhood of Teamsters say the talks have made remarkably steady progress since the union president was jailed. Missing they say are Hoffa's sharp emotional outbursts that led to tension.

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson flew from Washington to San Juan, P.R. en route to the Virgin Islands for a few days' vacation. She will stay at the Laurence Rockefellers' cottage at Caneel Bay Plantation.

International

HAVANA, Cuba — Premier Fidel Castro and President Osvaldo Dorticos led almost the entire cabinet into the fields Sunday to begin a fortnight of hard work cutting down sugar cane. Hundreds of thousands of city dwellers trooped into the cane country for voluntary cutting, to commemmorate the sixth anniversary of the unsuccessful Cuban invasion. The anniversary is not until Apr. 19, but the mobilization is occurring early to take advantage of fine weather before the Spring rains.

SAO PAULO, Brazil — Rain-caused landslides killed about 200 persons and injured 500, reports from the south coast city of Caraguatatuba said Sunday.

It was the third major flood-landslide disaster this year in the coastal area. The others took a total of 700 lives.

MOSCOW—Richard M. Nixon inspected damage and reconstruction Sunday in the Soviet Central Asian city of Tashkent, where an earthquake last year left about 300,000 persons homeless.

COLOMBO, Ceylon—After an absence of more than two years, the United States Peace Corps will be returning to Ceylon to work in rural areas. The government has requested 81 volunteers "to participate in projects which are part of an overall nation wide effort to make Ceylon self-sufficient in food production."

Communist Troops Swarm 2 U. S. Positions

SAIGON (AP)—Swarms of Communist troops smashed Monday at two positions of the newest U.S. division in Vietnam and were hurled back with the loss of 279 counted dead.

The U.S. Command reported between 1,000 and 2,000 Viet Cong attacked an armored bivouac of the U.S. 9th Division north of Saigon. But after heavy fighting and air and artillery attacks, the Reds reeled back, leaving 224 bodies for U.S. bulldozers to push into mass graves.

A dozen miles southwest of Saigon a Viet Cong outfit of unknown size attempted to overrun another outpost of the 9th and left 55 dead on the battlefield.

With the war in one of the fiercest periods of fighting this year, bitter struggles were reported up and down the country.

Communist gunners in one area destroyed three helicopters and damaged 13. One U.S. plane was shot down in South Vietnam Monday, another was lost on Saturday and another went down over North Vietnam Sunday.

The 9th Infantry Division, which is the freshest in Vietnam, arriving only last December, covered itself with glory in its sharpest fighting yet.

One of its armored units of about 300 men bedded down Sunday night at the village of Bau Bang on bloody Route 13, some 31 miles north of Saigon, the scene of at least three attempted Viet Cong ambushes in the past 18 months.

At midnight Red mortar fire began to fall and within minutes an estimated 1,000 to 2,000 Viet Cong were dashing in. Some were screaming "Americans die" and swirling around the encircled units in wild assaults which the GIs later compared to an Indian attack on a Western wagon train.

Teens Arraigned In Landau Death

BOSTON (AP) — Three teenagers faced court arraignment today in the death of Emmy Award-winning television producer Jack Landau, whose trussed, stabbed and strangled body was found in his ransacked apartment Thursday night.

Michael E. Riley, 19, Eugene G. McKenna, 17, and a 16-year-old juvenile were taken into custody Saturday night in their hometown of Revere. The two older youths were charged Sunday with murder, and the juvenile with being a delinquent child by reason of murder.

Two neckties, a scarf and a wire were wrapped around the 42-year-old bachelor's neck, his hands were tied behind his back with a leather belt, and his legs were bound with strips of cloth.

Police said the suspects were seen by witnesses in the vicinity of Landau's apartment in the Back Bay section. They said the first break in the case came when Riley and McKenna were arrested Thursday night and charged with an armed robbery also in the Back Bay.

Johnson, Ky Clash; Lodge in New Post

GUAM (AP)—President Johnson's avowed intent to focus his Guam conference on the works of peace clashed today into a call by Premier Nguyon Cao Ky for a sharp escalation of the Vietnam war.

Johnson also got a report from his own close advisers that the Communists are doing some escalating of their own.

At the first formal conference session, atop the highest hill on this damp tropical island, Ky in his opening public statement questioned whether the time had come for the U.S. to bomb Hanoi, block the harbor at Haiphong and expand the war into Laos and Cambodia.

The public expressions of such questions made it apparent that Ky thinks the United States should do all those things. But both Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, meeting with newsmen after the session, emphasized repeatedly that there was no discussion of escalation.

Rusk contended that Ky raised his questions only in the context that Hanoi is unwilling to seek peace.

However, both McNamara and Gen. William C. Moreland, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, said Johnson was told that the fighting in South Vietnam is becoming more intense and the Communists are stepping up the tempo of their offensive operations.

McNamara said the chief executive's military advisers reported: "The tempo of the war had increased significantly in recent weeks but, despite this fact, they believed the trend of the war is in our favor."

He said the Communists are using new weapons—rockets and bigger mortars—and are making an unsuccessful effort "to seize the initiative." "The enemy is by no means beaten," said the defense chief, "but he is no longer capable of winning a military victory."

Rusk, McNamara and Westmoreland said several times that the afternoon of talk produced no discussion of sending more American troops to Vietnam—above those already planned—or about specific military measures.

Rusk made one announcement to newsmen: He said Johnson will nominate Henry Cabot Lodge, who is resigning as ambassador to Saigon, to be a full-time ambassador at large, a sort of diplomatic troubleshooter. In that position he will change places with Ellsworth Bunker, who is replacing him in Saigon.

Rusk said the emphasis in the first round of talks was on the civilian side—political processing pacification, economic matters. He said talk of military affairs was confined to a brief report.

Manchester Agrees With Report

NEW YORK (AP)—Author William Manchester has stated that he agrees with the main conclusion of the Warren Commission that Lee Harvey Oswald assassinated President Kennedy without accomplices.

However, Manchester says he refused an invitation by Chief Justice Earl Warren to declare that the findings of the Warren Commission on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy were acceptable to the Kennedys because he felt "it would be improper."

"Although I had cooperated with him in other ways, I demurred, explaining that I felt it would be improper. I was, after all, a private citizen, and my own inquiry had far to go."

Volpe Praises Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Massachusetts Gov. John A. Volpe says President Johnson has done more to "effect cordial federal-state ties than any president in recent years."

The Republican governor said the President's efforts mean states "will be able to contribute in the development of legislation, affect the outcome and avoid some of the pitfalls."

Volpe was describing Saturday's White House meeting of state governors with the President, a meeting he called "a most complete review of federal-state relations."

Senate Poll Announced

A recent poll conducted by the Student Senate Public Relations Committee in the Student Union lobby gathered 311 responses. 300 was an accurate sample.

Student response to the question "What in your opinion was the most important issue that the Student Senate dealt with last semester?"

97 "No idea"
32 Blank
32 Dining Commons/food service
27 Exam schedule
25 Yahoo
11 Closed door policy

In answer to how well the Senate dealt with the issue:

42 very well
70 fairly well
96 poorly
11 not at all
116 no response

"Has the Senate done a good job of representing and protecting student interest?"

43 very good
134 fairly good
61 not too good
25 no
48 no response

"Have you had occasion to discuss a campus issue with your Senator since his election?"

50 yes, at his initiative
61 yes, at my initiative
180 no
16 no response

"Do you think the present Senate serves a needed function on this campus?"

151 Definitely
75 To some extent
45 To a limited extent
23 No
20 No response

Clay Shaw Hospitalized

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Clay L. Shaw, destined for trial on a charge of conspiring to assassinate President John F. Kennedy, rested in a hospital bed today.

Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison, who contends that a conspiracy in New Orleans led to the murder of President Kennedy in Dallas, was expected to file a bill of information against Shaw this week.

The bill is but a technical step in the legal procedure toward bringing Shaw to trial. Shaw entered Southern Baptist Hospital here Saturday. His attorneys said it was solely "for rest and relaxation."

Garrison's case against Shaw came out last week in the preliminary hearing, when a dope addict and an insurance salesman placed Shaw with Lee Harvey Oswald weeks before the president's death.

Violence Erupts in French Somaliland

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland (AP)—At least two Africans were killed today as French troops and armored cars shot their way into Djibouti's Samali quarter to smash a demonstration protesting Sunday's vote to keep this territory linked to France.

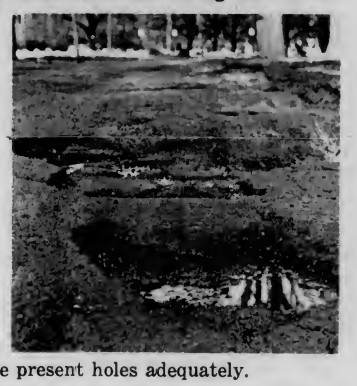
The violence erupted within hours of the announcement that France's last colony in Africa had turned down independence in the referendum and would remain associated with France.

The voting sunday reflected tribal divisions in this area, sun-baked territory at the mouth of the Red Sea.

French officials said the vote in 63 of the 67 voting stations was 21,439 to stay with France and 14,17 for independence.

Collegian Wire News Staff

EDITOR: Richard S. Kline 2
STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Roupenian
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini



Editorial Section — Campus Comment

Rocky Road to Dublin

The campus is presently plagued with potholes.

For those that drive it is a teeth rattling, car shattering experience. For those that walk it results in muddy skirts, pants, slacks and coats.

While it may be a minor point, given all the issues facing the University, it tends to demonstrate a lack of foresight in regard to the physical necessities on campus.

Just as paths are not laid with regard to the patterns of circulation, the roads are not given the adequate preventive maintenance necessary for their preservation during the winter months. The University makes no attempt to use oil and sand which would fill small cracks and prevent them from enlarging when water enters, freezes and then expands.

Since the preventive maintenance has been lacking, the least the maintenance department could do is fill the present holes adequately.

Presently cold patch or cold asphalt is being literally thrown into the potholes. This cold patch is not packed down and is quickly knocked out by cars or washed out. A better procedure would be to pour liquid hot tar into the hole, then add the cold patch and tamp it down. The hot tar would keep the patch intact.

While this appears to be a minor point, the amount of traffic passing through the campus every day has brought the condition of the roads to the forefront. We hope that, as the campus changes and new routes replace those presently in use, better care will be taken to see that our roads don't turn into another "rocky road to Dublin".

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

Toward Continued Cooperation

by BOB BRILL, Editorial Staff

There are feelings on the part of students in most American colleges of alienation and anonymity in respect to the administration. It is not unusual for the student to feel that the "people at the top" make arbitrary decisions without any respect for individual feelings. To some extent this is true; but this past week an encouraging step was taken which may bring about closer cooperation between students and the administration.

A proposal to turn John Adams Tower into a girls dorm was debated in open meeting last Wednesday night. Two members of the Master's Staff, John Hunt and Thomas Trotman, were invited to act as advisors. They gave the reasons for the proposed move and the meeting was opened for student suggestions.

Many ideas were advanced. Some were accepted and others were rejected until reasonable proposals were finally reached. These solutions were due in great part to the receptiveness of Messrs. Hunt and Trotman. This meeting showed the willingness of the administration to work directly with the students in solving student difficulties. The conclusions then went to an administrative committee for final approval.

The positive response of the committee to the administration - student proposal showed that joint efforts could prove fruitful.

It is clear that to some extent the "powers-that-be" do care about student difficulties and that student feelings are respected. It is hoped that this will herald a trend toward better student-administration cooperation in the future, and toward the dispelling of student distrust.

A letter was sent to the presidents of the three houses outlining proposed changes which the house councils were to work out and return to the administration for approval and final decision.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Associate News Editor ..... Richard Kline '70
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Monday's Day Editors: News—Jim Foudy '68, Sports—Harvey Elman '68, Photo—Neil Rennie '70
Photo—Neil Rennie '70

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

A Moral Question

To the Editor:

While I have much respect for Miss Petow as a person and as a reporter, I must take exception to some of her comments in last Friday's Collegian, and defend my action at last week's Senate meeting.

While the Yahoo budget was on the floor of the Senate for debate, it was learned that a formal complaint had been made concerning the election of Yahoo officers. The hour was late, and the Senate defeated a binding clause not to transfer money to Yahoo until the question of the elections was cleared up. This meant that the Senate would either have to pass or defeat the budget that night. The reason I walked out was to prevent either from happening. My absence resulted in the loss of a quorum.

What was involved here was more than a legal question of a possible violation of the Yahoo Constitution, but a moral question, concerning the alleged unfairness of the election. To pass the budget with this question unresolved could easily be interpreted that the Senate condones the method of election, whatever it was. To defeat the budget would be a drastic move and a disservice to the student body. Therefore I felt a moral obligation to prevent either evil, and not allow the budget to come up for a vote.

As it turns out, the Yahoo officers, although they claim that the original election was entirely fair, have agreed to hold new elections to prevent a long drawn-out fight on the issue. The Senate can vote on the Yahoo budget this week without this ominous issue hanging over it. I feel these events further justify my action.

I beg to differ with Miss Petow, and strongly affirm that I have the utmost respect for the Senate as an institution. I believe that the majority of Senators are carrying out their responsibilities to the best of their ability, and that the Student Senate as a whole is worthy of the respect traditionally shown to it.

Respect for the Senate includes respect for its rules and its protection of minority opinions. I took advantage of these rules in order to prevent a grevious error in a very serious question, and to protect the interests of the general student body as best I could.

Marshall Nadan
Commuter Senator

Simplicity

To the Editor:

I would like to express my thanks to the nice boys who entertained last Friday afternoon in Fernald during a Philosophy of Religion lecture. It sure was refreshing to see such a carefree group of "students" attempt to brighten up our day with their little antics. Those funny faces you were making were so amusing. And such strong little boys you must have been to lift each other up so we could see you better! And what clever noises you were all making—whistles, bird calls, all kinds of good things!

I guess you must have realized from the smiling faces of we poor souls who were attending the lecture how very much we enjoyed your show. Why we were positively rolling in our seats with laughter.

Mr. Bennet even interrupted the class several times because the show was so good, and then he and several of the men in the class left the lecture hall to compliment you personally. But the best part was when you marched through the lecture hall, stomping your feet like little tin soldiers.

We really felt bad when the big bad policeman came to put an end to your fun, but that didn't stop you, did it! We were learning about the simplicity of God, but you showed us, right before our very eyes, the simplicity of children.

A Philosophy Student

The Right to Refuse

To the Editor:

A grubby, bearded youth recently slipped under each and every door of my dorm leaflets which requested us all to refuse to pay our telephone tax. I imagine that this process was repeated in each dorm on campus.

I urge that the Student Senate enact a bill that RSO groups be prohibited from distributing or causing to be distributed leaflets, etc. in this manner or in any manner (dropping leaflets through the slots of the communal mail boxes) which precludes the individual's right to refuse. Penalty for this might be temporary loss of that group's recognition.

By way of personal testimony, I am head of the American Conservative Students' Club on campus. While we have distributed hundreds of various types of literature we have never invaded the normal rights of refusal or dorm privacy. I am sure that Young Republicans and Democrats can say the same. It is only when such a group as S.P.A. insists on violating this unwritten rule that a written rule is necessary. Protect the individual's rights of privacy, please!

Wayne Soini

P.S. — There may be a need for provision in the rule for dorm newsletters. (Such literature could be distributed in the way the Collegian is obtained, at lobbies, however.) An amendment might be made giving dorm house councils the option to legalize this type of distribution of literature when specific pieces are considered by that body particularly valuable to residents of the dorm for any reason.

"One Man's Propaganda"

To the Editor:

Mary Lyon was the victim of one man's propaganda. In an attempt to further the dorm's cultural enrichment Keith Hollingworth was hired to present an "Environmental Presence", which can very loosely be interpreted as a "happening". When Mr. Hollingworth was asked what the topic of his program was to be, he said he had not decided. Because he had been recommended to the Cultural Committee by the Art Department, we did not question Mr. Hollingworth's answer. We assumed that whatever he decided would be in good taste and artfully done.

We expected a mind expanding, artistically and aesthetically pleasing experience. We were told that Mr. Hollingworth would use lights, sounds, psychedelics, films and live performers and that we were to come to watch it with no preconceptions. However, the only thing "happening" was a twenty-five minute program on the evils of the Vietnam war.

Irrelevant films of amputees exercising, projected slides of deformed infants being shot by Hollingworth and assistants with a pistol loaded with red ink(for realism), Vogue models, and Kennedy's assassination were shown. Not only were these movies and slides unnecessary, they were also grotesque. The slides were in poor taste, and shooting at them with red ink served only to heighten the overall feeling of revulsion.

Mr. Hollingworth's program was entirely one-sided. The films shown were completely misleading. They were of World War II (one scene being the flag raising on Iwo Jima). Another of his slides depicted people suffering the deprivations of the Great Depression of the 30's.

We do not object to Mr. Hollingworth's political views, but think that we should have been informed of his topic before the program was presented.

Representatives of:
Social Committee,
Cultural Committee
Executive Committee of Mary Lyon House

Moral Conscience Outdated

Rosmersholm Termed 'Gloomy'

Rosmersholm was presented in Bartlett auditorium March 17th and 18th in partial fulfillment of an MFA degree by Richard Tirrell.

In his thesis proposal, Mr. Richard Tirrell director, of Rosmersholm, states that ". . . the play is universal as long as man is concerned with moral conscience. Every aware individual at some time in his life, is faced with the question of commitment."

While it must be admitted that the problem of committment is always inherent in man, the concern with "moral conscience" in today's society must be questioned.

For this reason, Rosmersholm was not received well by the college community. The students were not impressed by issues that are outdated and no longer appreciated. This, of course, makes it difficult to criticize the actors (who seemed equally unimpressed by what they were doing) on anything but a mechanical basis.

Johannes Rosmer, the master of Rosmersholm, is portrayed by Peter Stelzer. Although we have seen Mr. Stelzer as the male juvenile in many productions (as Liliom, Rudolpho, and Paris), this was his first attempt at playing a man of years, and it was a good one.

His make-up, stance, walk, gestures, even the wobbling of his head were done with the skill of an experienced actor. We are never told exactly how old Rosmer is, but Mr. Stelzer's Rosmer is, indeed, very old.

The one difficulty in the portrayal has to do with voice: Mr. Stelzer sounded as though he were crying, in fact keening, throughout the play. Perhaps this was intentional in connection with characterization, but it was also monotonous.

Voice was also a problem for Ann Wells in her portrayal of Rebekka West.

Mrs. Wells' voice often became so deep and commanding that one feared she might devour everyone on stage. Mrs. Wells also does some interesting things with her hands; most of the conversations are done with two people, full profile facing one another with Mrs. Wells' hands straight out, palms up, bearing a remarkable resemblance to Cleopatra.

There is also a very interesting character, Mr. Kroll, played by Mr. Lawrence Jakmauh, who rushes in, says what he has to say as fast as is humanly possible, is not the least bit interested in what anyone is saying to him, and then vanishes in a puff of smoke (or something).

Anne Agard portrays a middle-aged woman once again, (perhaps Mrs. Helseth is not really middle-aged?—but one is so used to seeing Miss Agard in the role . . .). At any rate, she is back in there again, clutching at her dress and complaining.

Charles G. Horne as Mortensgaard was adequately convincing as the pseudo-liberal, but one seemed to feel that without his hat he would have been utterly lost.

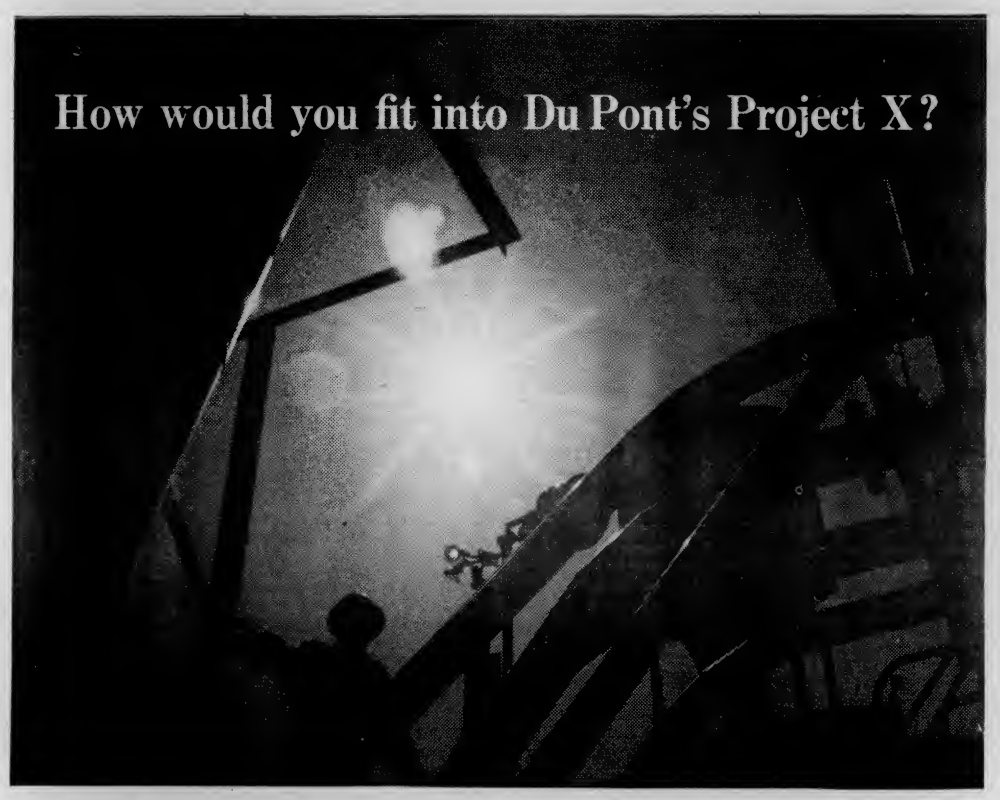
Rosmersholm has never been received favorably, wherever it was produced. The adjectives "morbid," "tiresome," and "gloomy" have been used to describe it. An evening of Rosmersholm is a gloomy one for everyone concerned. J.H.

ACTION '67

WMUA Features MSA

This Tuesday at 8:00 on WMUA, ACTION "67" with host Pete Ward will present a program on the proposed Massachusetts Student Association (MSA) that has recently been formulated by a series of meetings between Student Government representatives from the many state universities in the Commonwealth.

MSA evolved from a series of conferences sponsored by the UM Student Senate Public Relations Committee designed to foster cooperation between state schools' student governments.



The first conference was held on this campus, Nov. 19-20, 1965, and laid the ground work for subsequent meetings. On Nov. 19, 1966, fourteen state schools sent representatives to the state house in Boston and passed a resolution calling for more meetings to explore the concept of a statewide student association. On Mar. 12, at a meeting at the University a constitution was approved by the delegates.

Pending approval of the constitution, the MSA hopes "to promote effectively the cause of public higher education in the commonwealth."

Appearing on ACTION "67" will be MSA delegates, including V.P. Tim Cunningham of the Student Senate, who will discuss the nature of the organization and its goals. Tune in at 8:00 on Tuesday to WMUA, 91.1 FM.

The AP
Wire
Wants
YOU

SMITHIES
COME
TO UMASS.
APRIL 8

You are the only person who can answer that question.

To do it, you should know as much as possible about the 150 new plant units Du Pont has built since the end of World War II. You'd then choose from one of the many lively fields of interest at Du Pont: design, construction, production, marketing, research and process improvement (to name just a few).

Involvement starts the day you join. There is no training period. You go into responsible work right away. Your professional development is stimulated by real problems and by opportunities to continue your academic studies under a tuition refund program.

You work in small groups where individual contributions are quickly noted and appreciated.

The work is significant, and of benefit to society. You're part of the most exciting technical environment available today and tomorrow, and facilities and associates are the best.

How could you fit in? Why not sign up for a chat with a Du Pont interviewer and find out? The coupon will also bring you more information about us.

Finally, what is Project X?
We don't know yet. Could be we're waiting for you to tell us.

DU PONT

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. (Inc.)
Nemours Building 2500-2
Wilmington, Delaware 19898

Please send me the Du Pont Magazine along with the other magazines I have checked below.

☐ Chemical Engineers at Du Pont
☐ Mechanical Engineers at Du Pont
☐ Engineers at Du Pont
☐ Du Pont and the College Graduate

Name _____
Class _____ Major _____ Degree expected _____
College _____
My address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip Code _____

COMPLETE SERVICE
SAFE
MOVING
DEPENDABLE
STORAGE
EXPERT PACKING

Call
GLEASON
MAYFLOWER
Pearl St., Northampton
584-6413—for estimate

MAKE PAY WHILE THE SUN SHINES . . . get a summer job with MANPOWER

Manpower needs hundreds of stenos, typists, general office workers to work as White Glove Girl vacation replacements . . . and we're paying the highest rates in our history. Stop in at your local Manpower office when you're home on Spring vacation and let us help plan your summer schedule.

MANPOWER

An Equal Opportunity Employer

Guild Production to Begin

Director Bill Gile arrived last Monday and rehearsals are now well under way for the Operetta Guild's production of Wonderful Town. Bill, who has had a great deal of experience directing musical comedy, including an original play and shows on and off Broadway, is very pleased to be back at the University after his very successful production of "Carnival" last fall.

Bill said he enjoys working with the Guild because he feels it is an excellent training ground for people interested in careers in the theater.

Wonderful Town will be presented in Bowker Auditorium on April 7, 8 and 13, 14, 15 evenings at 8:15.

MASS. CLASSIFIED

WANTED

WANTED: KEYPUNCHING DATA — Professors and students! Will keypunch your data and programs at $2.50 per hour, Verified, too! You supply cards. Call—Days—584-4061—Evenings 545-2692. Ask for Mrs. Sarah Tupper.

OPPORTUNITIES

YOU LUCKY VW OWNERS — Keep your Volkswagon young. Send $1.00 for 56 page catalog on ways to increase the value and usefulness of your VW. Write to: RONNIMART, P.O. Box 75, Tremonton, Utah 84337.

FOR RENT

Furnished room with kitchen privileges, 3 miles from University. Call 253-9424.

AUTOMOBILES

1958 MGA — new top, side curtains & tires—excellent condition call 253-9540 after 4.

1960 MGA 1600 engine overhauled in February excellent condition—inside and out. $800 or best offer. Contact: Joel Brebbia, 210 Baker, 546-6050.

A CLASSIC 1954 NASH FARINA, 4-speed automatic, radio, heater. Runs great but the body is only fair. $55.00. 253-2635 after 6 p.m.

LOST

56" Scott Ski pole on W.C. Haystack Ski Trip. Found another similar pole in its place—If you have lost a pole & found the Scott. Call J. Humber, 549-0185.

1. Say, Marcello, is it true you Romance Language majors get more dates?

Certainement! No girl can resist a Latin approach.

2. Really?

Not when you whisper "Aimez-vous la vie bohémienne ma chérie?"

3. Gosh!

Or, "Carissima, la dolce vita ci aspetta!"

4. Wow!

Or, "Yo te quiero mucho, frijolita!"

5. I have to depend on plain English to get my dates.

Paverino.

6. But when I tell the girls I've lined up a great job at Equitable that offers challenge, with good pay, and a great future, I get more dates than I can handle.

You mean I wasted 3 years conjugating irregular verbs?

For career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States

Home Office: 1285 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019
An Equal Opportunity Employer, M/F © Equitable 1967

NOTICES

YAHOO
On Thursday, March 23, at 7:35 P.M. in the Middlesex Rm., S.U. there will be General Staff Meeting. All staffers should come. It will be a round-up session before vacation and elections. VERY IMPORTANT.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS
On Tuesday, March 21, at 8:30 P.M. in the Middlesex Rm., S.U. there will be a discussion "Effect of Prejudice" with guest speakers. Open to all.

RSO PRESIDENTS
All RSO Presidents please leave your names and addresses in the Public Relations Committee message box in the Student Senate office. This information is necessary for a current PR project.

WAA
Voting for the 1967-68 Executive Board of WAA will be held at WoPE during the following times: Wed., March 22; 9-12, 1-2, 3-4; Thurs., March 23: 9-4.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY
There will be a meeting on Wednesday, March 22, at 7:00 P.M. in French Hall, Rm. 201. Dr. F. W. Southwick, head of Dept. of Plant and Soil Sciences, will speak on "The Curriculum of the Department and its Relation to Post-Graduate Opportunities."

SPEED READING LAST SESSION
This will be held on Mondays and Tuesdays, 7-8 P.M. April 3rd-May 2nd, in Rm. 125 Education Building.

OUTING CLUB
The club will meet on Monday, March 20 at 6:30 in the Middlesex Rm. to nominate and elect next year's officers.

FACULTY LECTURE
On Wednesday, March 22 the Arts and Music Committee will present its second program of the Faculty Lecture Series. At 8:00 P.M. in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union, Tamas Aczel, Visiting Lecturer in the English Dept. will speak on The Origin and Rise of Modern Totalitarian Fanaticism. His lecture promises to be tinted with his experience of the Hungarian Revolution. Refreshments will be served.

AMHERST RAILWAY SOCIETY
The Amherst Railway Society's sixth meeting of the current academic year will take place Tuesday, March 21, at 7:45 P.M. in Rm. 152 Goessmann Hall at UMass.
Highlights of the program will be an 8mm. color film, "Gauges for All Ages", showing examples of all sizes of railways ranging from the table top variety to giant steam locomotives, plus a series of outstanding 35mm. slides of different eastern railroads taken by Stephen Horsley of No. Amherst.

VALLEY CENTER
The Valley Center discussion group on "Eros and Culture" with Professor Joseph DellaGrotte will meet Wednesday, March 22, at 8:30 P.M. in the Valley Center, 85 State Street, Northampton. Discussion will center around an interesting and provocative study by R. Rimmer, The Harrad Experiment (Bantam $.95).

HILLEL
There will be an Executive Board Meeting on Tuesday, March 21, at 6:15, in the Norfolk Room.

REVELERS
CORRECTION: Applications for Reveleiw are due Wednesday, March 22, at 5:00 P.M. in RSO.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION
Every Tuesday at 6:45 P.M. in the Worcester Rm. S.U. All are cordially invited.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
On Wednesday, March 22, at 6:30 P.M. in the Governor's Lounge S.U. Prof. Joseph A. DellaGrotte, a Ph.D. from Syracuse, who is teaching in the History Dept. at UMass. will give a critical and interesting talk on "The Crisis of Education in U.S.A." All are invited.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB
On March 20, at 7:00 P.M. in the Colonial Lounge S.U., there will be a coffee hour, with a graduate student panel, on the subject of careers in Sociology.
Everyone (non-majors also) is welcome.

SKI CLUB
On March 20, at 7:00 P.M. in Morrill Aud., there will be movies: Warren Miller, U.S. Olympic racing films, etc. Members free, non-members 25c.

THE DRAFT
On Tuesday, March 21, at 8 P.M. in John Adams Middle—12th floor lounge, Prof. DellaGrotti will speak on: "The Draft: the Alienated Individual and the Authoritarian State." All invited.

COVERT COMMUNICATION
On Monday, March 20, at 4:30 P.M. in Rm. 61 of Bartlett Hall, Prof. Robert Recenthal, Dept. of Social Relation Harvard Univ., will present a colloquium on Covert Communication, Experimenter Expectancy, or Pygmalion in the Public Schools.

JUDAISM
Culminating a three lecture series on the forms of Judaism, Rabbi Leonard S. Zoll, assistant Rabbi at Sinai Temple in Springfield, will speak on "Reform Judaism" on Tuesday, March 21, at 7:30 P.M. in the Colonial Lounge, S.U.

MOVIES
"Oklahoma", at the S.U. on Thursday, March 23, at 7:00 P.M. 25c charge.
"Cat on a Hot Tin Roof", at Mahar Aud. sponsored by Wheeler House, on Monday, March 20 at 8:00 P.M. 50c charge.
"Tales of Terror", at Mahar Aud. sponored by the pre-Med Club, on Tuesday, March 21 at 6:30 and 8:30. 50c charge.
"Nanook of the North" and "Zero for Conduct", sponsored by the University Theatre Film Study Series, at Bartlett Aud. on Tuesday, March 21 at 8:00 P.M. Tickets at the S.U. Ticket Booth.

APO LOST & FOUND
If you have lost a notebook, text, glasses, or other valuables, go to Campus lost and found booth at the bus-ticket window.

PINNING
Sandy Cornish, class of '70, Eugene Field to David Herrick, '68, Phi Sigma Kappa.

NEW COLLEGE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

It is expected that students will move through the three divisions at different rates. Some may take less than four years, while other students may take longer, particularly if they are given sanctioned leaves for work, travel, military service or other purposes.

The three categories of grades will be Pass, Fail and Distinction.

MEN's and WOMEN's

CLOSED RETREATS

APRIL 7-9

FRIDAY NIGHT - SUNDAY AFTERNOON

PASSIONIST and CENACLE RETREAT HOUSES

DONATION — $15

Transportation Provided

SCHEDULE OF

Christian Church Services

In Town and on Campus

HOLY WEEK

NEWMAN CENTER

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday; March 20, 21, 22.
Masses at 6:50, 12:15, 5:00 and 7:00
Holy Thursday; March 23:
Masses at 6:50 and the principal Mass at 7:00 P.M.
Good Friday; March 24:
Liturgy at 2:30 P.M.
Stations of the Cross at 7:00 P.M.
Easter Sunday; March 26:
Masses at 8:00, 9:15, 10:30 and 12 Noon

BAPTIST CHURCH

Maundy Thursday; March 23:
7:00 P.M.—Candlelight Communion Service. Following the service, a reception for new members during the year will be held by the Board of Deacons.
Easter Sunday; March 26:
10:45 A.M.—Morning Worship, Rev. Ewald Mand preaching.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH (UCC)

Tuesday, March 21:
8:00 P.M.—Alma College A Capella Choir Sacred Concert
Thursday, March 23:
6:00 P.M.—Supper (Students Welcome)
8:00 P.M.—Service of Tenebrae and Holy Communion

NORTH CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH (UCC) North Amherst

Maundy Thursday; March 23:
8:00 P.M.—Service of Tenebrae and Holy Communion

GRACE EPISCOPAL

Monday & Tuesday, March 20, 21:
8:00 A.M.—Holy Communion
Wednesday, March 22:
8:00 A.M. and 10:00 A.M.—Holy Communion
Thursday, March 23;
8:00 A.M. and 8:00 P.M.—Holy Communion
Good Friday; March 24:
12 Noon to 3:00 P.M.—Good Friday Service John Pemberton preaching
Saturday, March 25:
5:00 P.M. — Baptisms and lighting of the Paschal Fire
Midnight; March 25
Holy Communion
Sunday, Easter; March 26
8:00 A.M. and 11:00 A.M.—Holy Communion

IMMANUEL LUTHERAN CHURCH

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, March 20-24:
12:15 to 12:30 Noontime—Devotions
Maundy Thursday; March 23:
7:30 P.M.—Special Service. All are invited.
Good Friday; March 24:
7:30 P.M.—Special Service. All are invited.

WESLEY METHODIST CHURCH

Maundy Thursday; March 23:
8:00 P.M. in Fellowship Hall—Theater in the round, script reading of AREO DE CAPA by Edna St. Vincent Mallay; followed by special interpretation of the hymn spiritual, LET US BREAK BREAD TOGETHER ON OUR KNEES, with students performing. Congregation will participate in voluntary communion.
Easter Sunday; March 26:
9:00 A.M. and 11:00 A.M. — Service of Worship

UNIVERSITY CHRISTIAN WORSHIP

Wednesday Evening; March 22:
11:30 P.M.—S.B.A. 116 Ecumenical Service of Holy Communion using the Service of the Church of South India. Open to all Christians.

Ticket Sales Begin Today For 'Playboy Nite' Banquet

by RICHARD S. KLINE
Staff Reporter

Sophomore class president Wayne Thomas announced Thursday night at a special class meeting, the final plans for the sophomore class "playboy Nite."

According to Thomas, "Authentic playboy atmosphere and decor" will be provided at the April 5 event. Playboy lighters will be given away as favors with the buffet dinner styled after the Playboy Club "Living Room."

Thomas also announced that "The type of entertainment that can be seen at the Playboy Penthouse in Boston" will be provided. The show will include a seven piece Tiajuana band, "the beautiful Jana Louise" and TV personalities Stiller and Meara who appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show last night and have appeared on the Tonight Show and the Merv Griffen Show.

Tickets for the banquet Playboy style, put on sale this morning cost $2.50 per person. When purchasing tickets, it is asked that the meal ticket numbers of the couple are turned in.

"In order to give each of you a fair and equal chance to obtain tickets," Thomas announced, "we have had the French and Economic departmental exams, previously scheduled for that evening, rescheduled."

"The evening proves to be a revitalization of an old tradition here at the University; a sophomore banquet," Thomas explained. "We have a new twist to it, given it new life, and planned for an attendance three times that of last year."

Highlighting the banquet Playboy style will be the crowning of the Sophomore class Playmate of the year. The finalists are Janice Tower, Pat Jaquith, Cindy Shea, Dorothy Glagowski, Pat McMahon, Donna Hayes, Janet Dowdell and Jane Ludlow.

Cindy Shea is one of the nubile chickys selected as a finalist in the Sophomore Class Playmate contest.

Pretty Pat McMahon — an obvious finalist for Playmate.

Things were looking up for Collegian photographer John (Stinky) Kelly when he caught this picture of one of the Sophomore Class' Playmate candidates. We run it for your edification on the grounds of its 'redeeming social importance.'

S K I DURING SPRING VACATION?

You don't need a 4.0 cum to know that food and lodging, 5 Two-hour lessons, and use of all lifts and facilities for an entire week for $59.95 is a good deal. You must show your college I.D. for these rates.

THE SNOW BARN
MT. SNOW, VT. Tel. 464-3348

ENDS TUESDAY at 7:05-9:10
"LOVES OF A BLONDE"

AMHERST Cinema

WED. TO TUES. • MAR. 22-28
"FUNERAL IN BERLIN"

MAR. 29 TO APRIL 11th
"BLOW-UP"

SOPHOMORE MEN:

Want to be a leader and double your chances for success in life? You can, by earning both a degree and an Army officer's commission at the same time . . . even though you may not have taken ROTC training in your first two years!

Through a new program, you can be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant after taking two years of Army ROTC training while you complete your studies for a college degree. You can qualify for this program by attending a special six-week summer training camp after your sophomore year and then completing the ROTC Advanced Course in your junior and senior years of college.

Here's what ROTC training and an officer's commission will do for you:

- It will qualify you to fulfill your military obligation as an officer.
- You will learn to organize, motivate, and lead others.
- You will develop leadership qualities that many college men miss—self-discipline, physical stamina, poise, bearing, the acceptance of responsibility and other qualities that contribute to success in either a civilian or military career.
- You will receive $40 per month during your junior and senior years, plus pay and mileage for summer training.

The training and experience you will receive through Army ROTC will pay off for the rest of your life. A decision to take advantage of this new program could be one of the most important you will ever make.

You owe it to yourself to investigate this new important opportunity.

For complete information on the new Two-Year Army ROTC Program see the Professor of Military Science on campus.

ARMY ROTC

IF YOU ARE GOOD ENOUGH TO BE A LEADER, DON'T SETTLE FOR LESS!

The Brothers of
TAU KAPPA EPSILON
invite freshmen and upperclassmen
to an
OPEN SMOKER
FORMAL
TKE
10:00 P.M.
MONDAY, MARCH 20

Horror Show!

Edgar Allen Poe
"TALES OF TERROR"

TUESDAY, MARCH 21
6:30 and 8:30 P.M.

MAHAR AUDITORIUM 50c

SPONSORED BY PRE-MED. SOCIETY

THE MASSACHUSETTS
collegian
MONDAY, MARCH 20, 1967
Page 8 Vol. XCV, No. 57

Bergquist Confronts Problem of Rebuilding Infield

Keystone Combo Promising

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

How do you replace two ball players who had a combined total of eight home runs, 40 RBIs, a batting average of .332, and formed the left side of your infield last year?

That's the task that UMass baseball coach Dick Bergquist faces in patching up his infield this spring. But what makes it worse is that the two players, Hagan Andersen and Jim Babyak, had been expected to play this season when Bergquist took the job last year.

But since then, slick third baseman Andersen, then a sophomore, signed with the Detroit Tigers and thus became ineligible. And Babyak, a slugging shortstop who put more than a few balls out of sight, left school for academic reasons.

Replacing those two is no easy job for Bergquist, and the result is a patched-up infield that is slightly inexperienced. Nevertheless, there are bright spots with an all-Yankee Conference selection at second base, a converted veteran outfielder at first, and a very bright soph prospect at short.

The all-Conference pick is Frank Stewart, the UMass basketball captain who earns a second letter in the spring. Stewart batted .336 last year and is probably the most reliable hitter on the team. He's not really a power hitter, although he does occasionally get hold of one.

Stewart is rather big (6'4) for a second baseman, which sometimes affects his execution on the pivot. But his penchant for clutch hits makes him invaluable to the lineup. Stewart's bat will figure strongly in the upcoming season.

Roy Lasky, a senior, will take over first base after playing in the outfield for two years. The rangy lefthanded batter had a .286 BA last year, when he was platooned in right field.

"Lasky could have a terrific hitting year," Bergquist said. "He swings a good, hard bat and he has a good attitude."

Sophomore Joe DiSarcina will

FRANK STEWART

play shortstop, forming a basketball players' double play combination with Frank Stewart. DiSarcina is the best sophomore on the squad and is described by his coach as "a good pro prospect." He batted .417 for the UMass frosh last spring.

Joe should supply a lot of punch offensively and is a flashy defensive player at short. The speedy Somerville native is not a long ball threat, but he makes up for it with a lot of singles. He'll be adept at getting on base, and his speed will make him dangerous on the basepaths.

Defensively, DiSarcina has great range and a very good arm. There's no doubt that even had Babyak returned at shortstop, Joey would have worked his way into the lineup.

There's quite a battle going on to fill Hagan Anderson's void at third base. Any one of three players could find himself in the starting lineup at third on March 27 at Clemson.

One of these is junior Elliot Klein, a transfer from Nassau Community College on Long Island, which won the national junior college championship last year. Klein may also play outfield if needed.

"Klein looks like he will provide some punch at the plate," Bergquist said. "He's adequate in the field and he has a fairly strong arm."

Other possibilities at third include junior Charley Dever, a pretty good hitter, and sophomore John Mitsakes, who was the regular third sacker for last year's freshman.

Don Ferron is listed as Stewart's backup at second, but the junior has a good bat and Bergquist would like to get it into the lineup. Ferron has been having arm trouble lately, something that would make him less effective at second. Thus, he is a strong possibility for a starting outfield position.

No baseball squad is complete without a good utility infielder. Sophomore Al Craig will fill that role as a backup at second and short. He makes the pivot at second well and is a slick fielder.

Bergquist's infield may be a little inexperienced, with three of last year's four departed. But there is good talent, and as the season goes along and they gain experience, the infielders should jell and form a smooth functioning outfit as well as provide good hitting at the plate.

NEXT ISSUE: OUTFIELD AND CATCHING

Vitallo Signs with Kansas City A's

Russ Vitalle, a pitcher who was going to play for the UMass baseball team this season, has decided to sign a contract with the Kansas City Athletics, thus making him ineligible for college sports.

Vitalle received a bonus consisting of "five figures." The Athletics also agreed to pay his way through the rest of his college education as a full-time student, the condition that clinched the deal according to Vitalle. talle.

A junior from Schenectady, N. Y., he signed his contract at his home on Saturday with Tom Giordane, a Kansas City scout. He will play this summer with the Leesburg Athletics of the Florida State "A" League after the school year ends.

UMass baseball coach Dick Bergquist expressed open anger at the timing of the signing. "I'm very upset at professional baseball for signing a fellow a week before the season starts," he said.

Bergquist said he felt Kansas City gave Vitalle a sizable offer at this point instead of waiting until the end of the season, when other teams might conceivably seek the pitcher's services.

Intramural Wrestling Tournament

This years Intramural Wrestling championships will be held tonight in the Auxiliary Gym in Boyden Building. Last year's team champion, Kappa Sig will be trying to make it two in a row as they have four grapplers in the finals, two of which were campus champions last year.

DORMITORY CHAMPIONS	LBS.	FRAT. CHAMPIONS
Bob Beck—Mills Cherry	128	Tom Bates—BKP
Dick Delgallo—Baker Broncos	137	Frank Reynolds—PSD
Bill Borowik—Adams Seagram 6	147	Ronald Marsh—BKP
Gary Burns—Grayson Aces	157	Bob Detore—KS
Kent Hubbard—Grayson Aces	167	Brian Domina—KS
Bob Proudman—Adams Flam. A	177	Fred Fitzpatrick—KS
Scott Stover—Wheeler Trojans	187	Tom Rose—ATG
Joe Desisto—Toads	197	Ernie Smith—KS
Eric White—Chadbourne Maroons	Unlimited	Bill Daley—TEP

THE SEASON THAT WAS . . .

UMass Rifle Squad Finishes 4-4

With some promising team members and some excellent new equipment, the UMass varsity rifle team had hoped for a very successful season.

Unfortunately, they had no coach at the beginning of the fall semester and thus missed a lot of essential pre-season practice. After grad student Mike Goodge took over the coaching duties and the matches started, the lack of preparation was more than evident as the team shot disastrously against W.P.I. and Rhode Island.

Starting the season with two losses did not deter the Redmen and soon their scores began to improve and became more consistent. Uufortunately exams reduced the team to only six, and since 10 shooters are allowed to shoot in a match with the five high scores counting, the UMass team was at a tremendous disadvantage.

This apparent weakness inspired the team and they quickly recorded wins over campus rival Stockbridge, New Hampshire and Trinity. Two losses to Vermont and Dartmouth followed, but finally the team's record was levelled at 4-4 with a win over Brown.

Last Saturday UMass competed in the Yankee Conference championship at U.N.H., where the Redman team of John Bergs, Pete Gallagher, Jim Gallerani, Fred Chen, and Al Medeiros finished third.

Maine was a very strong favorite and proved its superiority with its third win in a row. Behind fine scores of 252 and 251 respectively by Medeiros and captain Bergs, UMass almost snatched second place but was edged out by Vermont.

The final scores were Maine 1305, Vermont 1238, and UMass 1225. Other Redmen scores were Gallagher 245, Walter 239, and Gallerani 238.

The outstanding team members this season were Bergs, a senior, and junior Gallagher. Their season's averages for the three positions were 243 and 247 respectively while their best scores were 260 and 256.

With some very promising freshmen already preparing for next year and with only two of this year's team graduating. Coach Goodge is confident of a very successful season next year.

He is also hoping to form a women's team. Already there is the nucleus of one with quite a degree of skill and enthusiasm, as shown by Linda Dempsey shooting a 251 and up to five girls coming regularly to practice.

With the season finished, any students interested in trying out for either the men's or women's teams should come to one of the practices, held at the ROTC range in Dickinson Hall on Tuesdays, and Thursdays between 6 and 8:30 p.m.

CORRECTION

The Original Flaming A's beat the Trojans 10-15, 16-14, and 15-9, for the Dorm Championship; not the Trojans over the A's as was reported in Friday's Collegian.

CO-EDS BEWARE
THE UMOC IS LOOSE.

COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"
545-2550

Sports Week in Review

The Pro Shop

by STEVE ROSS

BASKETBALL—The preliminary is over. This week the real season begins. Four three-out-of-five playoff series begin on Tuesday. The biggest surprise of all is that the Chicago Bulls made the playoffs in their maiden season.

In the East, Boston got their wish and will play New York. Without Barnett, Stallworth, and possibly Dick Van Arsdale who has National Guard commitments, the Knicks have a very slim chance. The Knicks haven't beaten the Celtics in two years, and there is no reason to expect a reversal in this trend.

Philadelphia must play Cincinnati in their semi-final round. Cinci is always dangerous simply because any team with Oscar Robertson and Jerry Lucas must be reckoned with. Last year the Royals gave the Celtics quite a scare before bowing to the Shamrocks in five games. The 76ers have too much strength under the boards and with that important edge any team is nearly unbeatable.

In the West, divisional winner San Francisco has a difficult task, drawing L.A. in the first round. In a short series the Angelonian duo of Baylor and West can bomb home shots from intercontinental distances and be unstoppable. The scoring of B. & W. must be matched by Rick Barry for San Francisco to take the series.

St. Louis will play Chicago and this should mark the end of the season for the fledgling Bulls. Since the return of center Zelmo Beatty, the Hawks have been one of the toughest units in the loop. Chicago's mere presence marks the first time that an expansion club has gone to post season play in any sport.

It is interesting to note that the four best teams, Philadelphia, Boston, San Francisco, and St. Louis, have the four best centers, Chamberlain, Russell, Thurmond, and Beatty. Without a good pivot man to pull in the rebounds, a team can't be a consistant winner.

HOCKEY—In the NHL there is a torrid race for the second, third, and fourth spots. Before Sunday's action, Toronto and New York had 65 points and Montreal had one less. Detroit is 10 points behind the Habs with only seven games left. They are all but assured of elimination.

The Boston Bruins surprised many by putting Cornell forward Doug Furguson on their negotiable list. This means that the Bruins have exclusive rights to the 'Big Red' star.

FOOTBALL—The first joint NFL-AFL draft was held this week. Baltimore had the first choice and took Michigan State's mammoth defensive end Bubba Smith. Smith, 6'7", 283 lbs., has a slight tendency towards laziness. Notre Dame didn't even put him on their all opponent team.

Some New England stars to go in the draft were BC's Hyland and Stetz, Harvard's Davis and Leo, Holy Cross's Lentz, Springfield's Bennet, and AIC's Delaney. Bob Hyland, an offensive guard, went to Green Bay on the first round.

The Patriots with the exception of 7th pick Bobby Leo went for defensive players. Their first pick, John Charles, a defensive back from Purdue, was selected the MVP in the Rose Bowl.

BASEBALL—The Red Sox stole all the news in the Grapefruit League. On Wednesday the Jersey Street AC thrashed the Mets 23-18. It was rumored that the two teams were trying to imitate their respective co-tenents, the Pats and Jets. Unfortunately for the Mets, Joe Nameth wasn't available and they couldn't quite score enough.

The Red Sox received a severe blow Saturday when right-fielder Tony Conigliaro received a broken shoulder. Conig sustained the injury during batting practice when a John Wyatt fast ball sailed into the Bosox slugger. At first it was believed that the injury was a hairline fracture. If it is, Tony C. may be back in two weeks. If its a compound fracture, he may be out for the season. Further study of the x-rays will determine the severity of the fracture.

NO MORE COLLEGIANS Until April 5

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

HAPPY SPRING (?) VACATION

VOL. XCV, NO. 58 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1967

Richard Alpert entertains.

Richard Alpert
The Psychedelic Experience

by GERRI COTE
Staff Reporter

"IMAGINE A MAN BEING CHASED BY A TIGER, WHO RUNS OVER A CLIFF TO ESCAPE, LUCKILY CATCHES A ROOT IN HIS FALL, BUT LOOKS BELOW AND SEES ANOTHER TIGER. A BLACK AND A WHITE RAT COME ALONG AND START CHEWING AT THE ROOT. SUDDENLY HE SPIES A STRAWBERRY BUSH WITHIN REACH, PLUCKS AND EATS THE ONLY PERFECT, JUICY RIPE STRAWBERRY. HOW SWEET IT TASTED!" THIS WAS THE WAY DR. RICHARD ALPERT DESCRIBED THE PSYCHEDELIC EXPERIENCE SUNDAY NIGHT IN SOUTHWEST COMMONS # 7, TO A FASCINATED CAPACITY CROWD.

In beginning his remarks concerning the central nervous system and the stimulus-response reaction, Dr. Alpert threw out to the audience, appropriately, the stimulus "grass". The expected association should have been "green", but instead the listeners responded with a knowing chuckle to which Alpert replied, "that tells me where you're at."

In describing the psychedelic experience under LSD, Alpert stated that for any one stimulus received by the brain, not only the most likely response occurs, but every response possible which the brain is capable of. As many as 20,000 occur simultaneously. The person having the experience perceives these 20,000 responses consciously and in relation to one another with no trouble!

COLLEGIAN Photo Al Sirota
DR. RICHARD ALPERT

The noted psychologist then went on to describe his first experience with LSD. His first sensation was a tingling in his fingers and toes. Being a novice, he was willing to settle for that as the psychedelic experience. He then focused his attention on the face of a woman in the room and he began to hallucinate externally. Her face became fluid, and as he gazed at one feature after another, her entire face took on the quality of the one particular feature he was observing.

(Continued on page 2)

Studies in Religion
Kaplan Speaks on Judaism

The many developments and wars during the past 30 years have greatly effected the world's population. It is therefore important that religion adjust to this change, Rabbi Solomon Kaplan of Mt. Holyoke College stated during his talk at the Studies in Religion program Monday night at Maher Auditorium.

Judaism will have more trouble attaining this change than will other religions because of its history.

Since the emergence of Judaism after the French Revolution, several factions of Judaism resulted.

The first group was the Contemporary Orthodox Jews, who believed that the world began with the Old Testament. They forbade secular education and mixing with any other religious or nationality groups.

The neo-Orthodox Jews tried to become part of the modern world by accepting secular education, but they maintained that Judaism was the only true religion.

However, another faction, Reform Judaism, pushed for change and revolution. Moses Mendelson of Germany began this reform by translating five books of the Old Testament into German and making the translation available to all Jewish youths.

The traditional groups resisted the reform and out of this conflict arose the Conservative movement, which took no firm stand on any issue.

In 1944 a more positive action was stated by the Reconstructionists, who did not call for diversification, but a total revaluation and reconstruction of Judaism.

The result of this splintering is that today most Jews do not believe in trying to convert, attending rituals or any other outward sign of religious belief.

The major problem of Modern Judaism is apathy. If something isn't done to end this apathy, Judaism will maintain little of its present form in the future."

"This trend can be ended," Rabbi Kaplan concluded, "by re-education of Judaism and the reconstruction of the Jewish family."

Rabbi Kaplan gave the third lecture of a series in the Studies in Religion Program. The series is sponsored by the Academic Affairs Committee of the Student Senate, which is investigating the possibilities of having a Dept. of Religion at UMass.

INDEX

Tuition at Berkeley ..... Pg. 2
"LSD" May Be Crutch .... Pg. 2
World News' Roundup .... Pg. 3
Notices ..... Pg. 6
Sport ..... Pg. 9, 10, 11, 12
Editorial ..... Pg. 4

Montgomery Case In Judges Hands

A request for reinstatement as University of Massachusetts librarian, made by Hugh Montgomery of Amherst, has been taken under advisement by Judge Donald M. Macauiay after a jury-waived trial in Hampshire County Superior Court in Northampton Monday.

Montgomery, claiming he was "dismissed" as UMass librarian after 10 years of service, by UMass Provost Oswaid Tippo seeks a court order to overturn the action.

In a demurrer, Tippo and acting Director of Libraries David M. Clay denied the charges, stating the position of director of university libraries was created and the position of UMass librarian "redefined" by action of the university trustees. The university officials said Montgomery remains as librarian with his title and pay continuing as before. Montgomery is on tenure at the university.

(Springfield Union)

Plans Nearing Completion For "Campus Chest Week"

The Class of 1969 will soon be sponsoring the most ambitious charity drive ever — the 1967 CAMPUS CHEST WEEK. During the week of April 9 through 15, events will be held each day to encourage money donations to help raise $6900, the goal that has been set by Ralph Stoddard and Pat Sullivan, co-chairmen of the Campus Chest Committee.

A title bout for U. S. Heavyweight Wrestling Championship between Frank Scarpa and Bill Montana has been scheduled for Wednesday, April 12, at 8:30 p.m. An added attraction of the evening is the women wrestlers. Ringside seats will be available.

Friday night, there will be a big dance with the Tidal Waves and the Ill Wind, open to all. That evening, a huge '69 Campus Chest Week banner will be given away.

Watch for the '69 buttons, the Ugly Man Contest, guest stars and most important—the beer barrels in the Student Union lobby for donations. Give to the Campus Chest and help the hungry and handicapped.

Local Group Organizes For Vietnam Referendum

A group of 100 faculty and students and 50 residents of the Amherst, South Hadley, and Northampton communities met on March 13th in Johnson Chapel, Amherst to organize the Referendum on Vietnam which will be held during the week of April 21-28 in Amherst.

The statement upon which the referendum is to be based was democratically formulated and decided upon by all those present at the meeting.

The statement reads: "We are concerned with the human and material cost of the War in Vietnam. We urge our government to cease bombing North Vietnam immediately, and to recognize the National Liberation Front in negotiations for the establishment of a coalition government, with international supervision of these proceedings and of the withdrawal of foreign troops."

The purpose of the referendum, as seen by those who attended the meeting, is to influence policy makers and public opinion, to effect discussion and debate on American foreign policy, and to provide a voice, a vehicle, and the beginnings of an organization for positive political alternatives.

During the week of April 21-28 canvassers from the Amherst, South Hadley, and Northampton communities will approach every registered voter in the town of Amherst, recording his vote for or against the statement. The notarized tally will be made public.

At the meeting, which was chaired by Sam Clark, Amherst '67 and Jon Weissman, Amherst '69, committees were established to implement the decisions of the group. A coordinating committee included interested representatives of church, civic, and community groups, students and faculty, and a committee to recruit canvassers. A committee for the orientation of canvassers was established.

The Beaux-Arts String Quartet will present its fourth concert at the University this evening at 8 p.m. An open rehearsal will be held this afternoon at 3:30. Both rehearsal and performance will be presented in the School of Education Auditorium and open to the public without charge.

"LSD May Be A Crutch"

(Continued from page 1)

The face of the woman next became the face of Everywoman — he saw in her the virgin, the harlot, the young girl, mother earth, the essence of woman. He experienced a reversal in figuring ground: the way in which she was unique became background, and the essence of woman became figure. In his words, he experienced "what the Brotherhood of Man felt like."

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kelly

Collegian reporter Gerri Cote interviews Dr. Richard Alpert in the Hatch.

"Next I experienced the phenomena of disassociation," Alpert continued. "Six or eight feet away from me I saw my 'professorness.' This was upsetting. Then I saw Richard Alpert over there also. I saw my entire 'thing' — the 'Richard Alpert thing.'"

This was all quite disconcerting, but I thought, "I still have my body," Alpert added.

Looking down at his feet, they began to disappear, followed by his ankles, his knees, everything was going, disintegrating before his eyes and he was about to panic because he was ceasing to exist. His body, his social identity gone—when a voice inside said "But who's minding the store?"

Thinking about it he realized that there is a point of awareness which has no temporal or physical coordinates. Once he experienced his point of consciousness he realized that there was no need to be paranoid, because "you can take away my body, but I as opposed to me is awareness.

Alpert interrupted his lecture at this point and stated: "Let me say that I do not advocate the overthrow of the U.S. government, or the use of LSD, but if you decide to use it anyway, these are some of the safeguards you should use:

- Think about it for a long time. You're young, you have lots of time. You'll be ready when you feel ready.
- Trust your internal gut responses. Listen to your internal voice.
- Find a traveling companion. You need one other human being that you trust, preferably someone who's traveled before. The "us" feeling is important.
- Find a nice quiet, place for the session. Remember that one rustle can lead to a paranoid trip. The place must "feel really good". Nothing unexpected should happen. Don't expect too much—let yourself go. The first trip should be an exploring session.

Why do people take LSD?

Curiosity, kicks, mystery...Alpert stressed that the reason why one decides to take it will determine where and with whom he takes it, which will in turn determine, at least in part, the nature of the experience.

LSD is the key to a lock, and the directional pattern which it will take comes from the set and the setting.

"LSD may be a crutch," he said, "in the sense that it doesn't take you to enlightenment, it merely shows the way. It's not what you do when you're on drugs that's important, but how you use it in daily life.

"A problem is created when one comes back from a trip and finds himself back in his old habit patterns, but the difference is that now he Sees things differently."

The possibilities that are opened up for one during a trip may be gradually built upon in subsequent trips, if one does not allow himself to get trapped by the environment he must necessarily return to after a psychedelic experience.

Dr. Alpert refers to this as part of an operation to "get yourself straight."

In speaking of his attempt to get some sort of government recognition or support of LSD, Alpert said: "I have asked for the right for me to explore my own consciousness." Alpert is currently working with his associate Dr. Timothy Leary for limited licensing of LSD, whereby supervised centers would be set up where a member of society may go to have a psychedelic experience for whatever purpose they wish.

Dr. Alpert also spoke for a short while about pot, which he says has become a multimillion dollar industry in this country.

He says it is impossible to stop the tremendous flow of marijuana. Consequently, he says, "If I were this country, I would figure out how to work with it, or at least think about it," because when laws are not in compliance with the feelings of the people, the people loose respect for the laws.

Alpert spoke of the generation gap, saying that it is more significant now than it has ever been. The youth of our country need to evaluate themselves and their goals, but this is made impossible by the fact that our society is lock-stepped.

He suggests that in the future the period from 15-18 be a period of moratorium in which youth drop out, look at themselves and at society, think, and decide what they want to do.

His concluding remarks were to the effect that we should stop measuring life in coffee spoons and start measuring it in experiences.

Tuition Proposal May End Unstable Calm At Berkeley

by PAT FLAHERTY
Staff Reporter

Recent calm on the Berkeley campus has been rather conspicuous, and its reputation for controversy has been temporarily abandoned. Has the student body become apathetic? No; but due to the lack of a unifying issue, student groups have dispersed to return to the normalcy of school work.

An unstable peace now reigns with the aftermath of President Kerr's dismissal by the Board of Regents which cooperated with Governor Reagan's proposal to that end. Both students and faculty alike cooperated in protesting this move.

Under President Kerr the university had, despite some volatile incidents, progressed rapidly in the educational field. President Kerr was also experienced in dealing with students; but according to the governor, he was not strong enough in his dealings with student demonstrations.

The demonstrations and massive class boycotts that added to the vibrant quality of life at Berkeley are absent now. But few people who are "with it" can forget the impact of the Free Speech Movement (1964), which fought to allow student political activity on the campus.

It was only last December when campus demonstrations protested the university rule that no non-students, except government sponsored, could use the student union facilities. Club swinging police were required to disperse the students. This issue, like the others, reflected an inherent distrust of the administration by the students.

Now another dark cloud looms over the campus and threatens to destroy the precarious peace and galvanize student action. Governor Reagan's proposals for a budget-cut and tuition for the university have created much ill will.

The issue remains unsettled but soon the Board of Regents will discuss it for the 1968-69 academic year. When serious consideration is given to a tuition, student opinion will undoubtedly rise to the occasion.

Why, when other governors like Rockefeller and Scranton to name a few, are increasing expenditures for education, does Governor Reagan want a budget cut for this quality university? This is still unclear. According to Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, the governor refuses to compromise with the Board of Regents on this issue.

The purpose of the tuition proposal seems to be two-fold in the governor's mind: 1) it would provide more revenue for the state, and 2) it would eliminate some leftists considered undesirable. Yet, as Speaker Unruh has pointed out, this measure amounts to a punishment for student activists and is unfair for all students to suffer for the "real and imagined infractions of a small minority."

As witnessed by demonstrations at Stanford against Vice President Humphrey's visit there, tuition is not likely to affect "the determined student agitator."

What many find most distressing about the governor's program is his lack of specific plans for needed scholarships for low-income students. Thus many deserving students stand to be deprived of the advantage of an education at this university due to lack of finances. Combined with the proposed budget cut, this would decrease future enrollment.

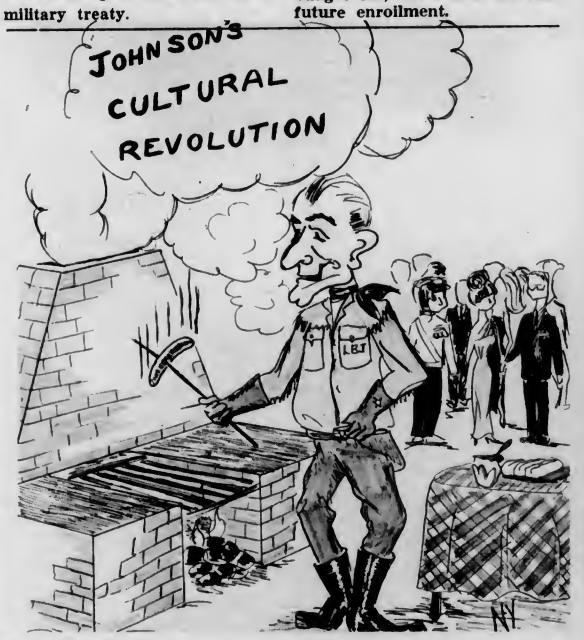
Great Decisions

Salvidori Discusses NATO

by LYNDA BLANCHARD
Staff Reporter

In the final session of "Great Decisions" in Webster ounge Monday night, Professor Massimo Salvidori lead the discussion on "NATO in Crisis."

Feeling that the "Preamble to the North Atlantic Treaty, which clearly states a purpose of defending democracy, the open-minded search for Truth, and individual liberty, signed 18 years ago, does not conform to the reality of today, "Professor Salvidori cited four main political forces which have developed since the 1949 signing of the NATO treaty.



Furthest right is Authoritarian Conservatism, inspired by zealous nationalism which overshadows any concern for individualism or parliamentary democracy. Moving from the right, next is Christian Democracy, a group which he said "would have no concern for tolerance or an objective search for Truth."

Third is the British Conservatist who, conscious that Great Britain is not what it used to be, will not try to save what is already lost. Lastly, left center is Democratic Socialism, termed "liberalism" in Europe.

These political forces according to Prof. Salvidori, are more interested in reconciling socialist factions, including Communism, than in defending the principles of the NATO agreement.

Prof. Salvidori cites two major problem areas which have changed considerably since 1949. One is that, since the death of Stalin, the Soviet Union has been unable to find a satisfactory successor and thus does not pose the threat to the European nations which it once did. Now, with the threat of Russia reduced these nations are able to turn to different problems.

The second major problem area is in the European point of view regarding American involvement in Asia. Tired of conflict since 1914, Europeans fear that American dynamism may lead to a major clash and world involvement in war. Another factor weakening the NATO alliance is the unforseen economic expansion which puts less value on a military treaty.

Nominations For

METAWAMPE AWARD

STUDENT UNION LOBBY

All This Week 9a.m. - 5p.m.

Any member of the University Community may nominate a faculty member whom they want to be considered for this unique honor.

MEN's and WOMEN's

CLOSED RETREATS

APRIL 7-9

FRIDAY NIGHT - SUNDAY AFTERNOON

PASSIONIST and CENACLE RETREAT HOUSES

DONATION — $15

Transportation Provided

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

Vietnam

WASHINGTON — Pres. Johnson says he will persist in seeking peace with North Vietnam despite "regrettable rebuffs." But officials say Hanoi's release of the letter exchange is a bad sign.

* * *

Sen. J. W. Fulbright says Pres. Johnson should take a chance that a halt in North Vietnam bombing will produce peace talks. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy criticizes Johnson's rebuffed peace proposal.

* * *

A U.S. Army chaplain follows the 25th Division's "tunnel rats" into a Viet Cong underground complex to hold services.

National

CHICAGO — The milk price war enters its seventh day after a week of violence but no apparent increase in prices in a 25-state area.

* * *

NEW YORK—Harlem is going to join the points of interest tourists can see on bus tours when they visit Manhattan.

* * *

NEW YORK—"I just pray to God we have this child back," says Nunzio Marchese, 60, a New Yorker seeking in court to regain a 4-year-old foster child he and his wife raised since the girl was two weeks old.

* * *

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Tom King quits his high school coaching job to enter the babysitting business. His baby-sitting daughter Debbie, 13, complains of "illegal procedure."

International

SIERRA LEONE — The military takes over in Sierra Leone, apparently to nullify the election outcome in the African nation.

* * *

LAND'S END, Eng.,—New attempts are made to salvage the blast - wrecked tanker "Torrey Canyon" despite a warning the ship may explode at any time.

* * *

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP)—Sonny Liston, the former world heavyweight champion who lost his title to Cassius Clay, arrived Tuesday night to prepare for his March 30 fight here against Dave Bailey.

Washington

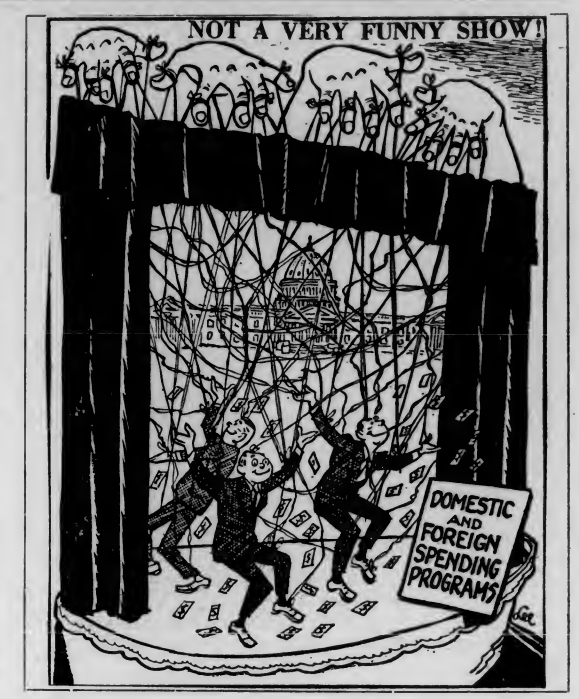
"Thank goodness for graduated withholding," says the internal revenue commissioner. It helps him get an income tax refund this year.

* * *

WASHINGTON — Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., says a proposal to sell U.S. Treasury Bonds to West Germany to offset balance-of-payment deficits is an "administration gimmickry."

"In effect," Cotton said, "we will be borrowing money from West Germany — money which will have to be paid back—to enable us to keep American troops in West Germany."

Sports



SEMIFINALS—Cincinnati 120, Philadelphia 116, Cincinnati leads best-of-5 series 1-0.

Boston 140, New York 110. Boston leads best-of-5 series 1-0.

* * *

SEMIFINALS—San Francisco 124, Los Angeles 108,, San Francisco leads best-of-5 series 1-0.

St. Louis 114, Chicago 100, St. Louis leads best-of-5 series 1-0.

Communist Regiment Shattered in Battle

SAIGON (AP) — The Communist regiment which was shattered Tuesday in one of the Vietnam war's sharpest pitched battles lost at leat 596 dead, and many more bodies were dragged from the battlefield, the U. S. Command said today.

The 2,500 - man Communist force smashed into American positions in the jungles of Tay Ninh Province Tuesday. Air and artillery were still hitting their escape routes today, and U. S. troops were collecting bodies and weapons from the battlefield.

The fighting cost 31 American dead and 109 wounded. Among the dead were the pilot of an artillery spotter plane and his replacement, who was flying with him on an orientation flight when their tiny craft was shot down.

Two other Americans were killed and 10 were wounded when two U. S. Air Force F100 jets accidentally bombed U. S. positions in the area. The U. S. Command said it was investigating.

The Tay Ninh battle climaxed 48 hours of the Vietnam war's sharpest fighting this year, with actions up and down the country but notably in the center and just below the demilitarized zone separating North and South Vietnam. These actions subsided today.

The heavy ground fighting included an artillery duel Monday in which the Communists used big artillery pieces for the first time in the war. Among them were 152mm guns, the biggest weapons the Reds have used so far.

Bond Advocates Third-Party Politics

PROVIDENCE, R.I., (AP)—Julian Bond, a Negro who took his seat in the Georgia Legislature after a U.S. Supreme Court ruling, says third-party political work activity is not only possible but is "the sort of thing decent people ought to be doing."

Bond, 27, spoke Tuesday at a political rally for the Rev. Albert Q. Perry, the independent candidate in a special congressional election March 28.

"I want to tell you not only how important it is to vote, but also how important it is to have the ability to cast a vote for someone who offers an alternative," Bond said.

Bond was twice denied a seat in the Georgia General Assembly before the case went to the Supreme Court.

Perry is a candidate for the seat vacated by the death early this year of Democratic Rep. John E. Fogarty.

Peace Letters Swapped By LBJ, Ho Chi Minh

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says he will persist in efforts to seek peace with North Vietnam despite "regrettable rebuffs." But administration officials see Hanoi's rejection and its release of a personal Johnson proposal for peace talks as a bad sign.

Johnson returned Tuesday night from a two-day Vietnam war conference in Guam. En route home he learned of Hanoi's publication Tuesday of a secret exchange of letters he had with President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam six weeks ago.

"We shall persevere in our efforts to find an honorable peace," Johnson said in a brief arrival statement at Andrews Air Force Base, Md. "Until that is achieved, we shall, of course, continue to do our duty in Vietnam."

Officials said the North Vietnamese government has been informed that Johnson's proposal for talks — and for steps to de-escalate the war — is still open. But they saw no prospect of its acceptance anytime soon.

In coming months the President is expected to increase further the military pressure on Communist forces in South Vietnam while stepping up the pounding of North Vietnam.

That hope has now been sharply deflated, by Ho's rejection of Johnson's bid, and by Ho's making public the exchange of letters. Officials said they were baffled by the publication.

Johnson initiated his exchange of letters in early February at the time of a Vietnamese Lunar New Year cease-fire which included a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam. The President's letter was delivered by a U. S. diplomat in Moscow to a North Vietnamese diplomat Feb. 8.

Johnson asked for secret peace talks between his and Ho's representatives in Moscow, Burma or some other place Ho might prefer. He rejected Ho's publicly stated condition that bombing of the North must be stopped unconditionally before talks could start. Instead he proposed a halt to the bombing and a freeze of the present U. S. troop level in South Vietnam if the North Vietnamese president would stop all infiltration into South Vietnam.

For some days in mid-February, the President and his advisors wondered whether Ho would reply at all. Johnson's letter was reported to have reached Hanoi two days after its delivery in Moscow.

Salvage Effort On U. S. Ship

LAND'S END, ENGLAND (AP) —New attempts were planned today to salvage the blast-wracked American supertanker Torrey Canyon despite an official warning that the $15-million ship could blow up any time.

Undeterred by an engine-room explosion that killed a Dutch salvage expert Tuesday, salvage tugmen stood by to reboard the 61,263-ton ship lying across the notorious Seven Stones Reef.

Eight thousand soldiers and sailors were thrown into the battle to keep Britain's southern beaches from being ruined by the millions of gallons of crude oil oozing from the tanker's split holds.

The explosion Tuesday came as 18 salvage men pumped compressed air below decks in an attempt to make the tanker buoyant enough to lift her off the reef on a high tide.

Matthew Thompson, vice-president of the Union Oil Company of California, owners of the Torrey Canyon, said salvage operations would go on.

Top Tax Collector Files Own Income Tax Return

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Thank goodness for graduated withholding."

With that, Sheldon S. Cohen put his 1966 income tax return into an envelope Tuesday, sealed it and mailed in his claim for a $43 refund.

As commissioner of internal revenue, Cohen is the government's top tax collector. But, like everyone else, he must file an income tax return.

Under this year's new graduated withholding, a person in higher income brackets has a higher percentage of his pay withheld for tax than a person earning less money. Withholding rates ranging from 14 to 30 per cent went into effect last May 1.

Cohen said the change resulted in his claimed refund. He had to pay an additional $71.05 in tax last year with his return, he added.

Cohen made one final check of his return before sending it to IRS' Philadelphia regional office where it will be processed by computer along with millions of other returns.

Like any return, Cohen's is subject to audit. He said they've been audited three of the last four years, including once after he became commissioner in January 1965. But no mistakes were found.

The commissioner prepared his own return, claimed six exemptions—for himself, his wife and their four children—itemized deductions, listed his salary at $28,496 and gave his occupation as "government official."

Cohen said he used that job description rather than IRS commissioner so his return will receive the same attention as anybody else's and won't get preferential treatment because of his office.

For taxpayers still struggling with their returns, Cohen offered this advice: "Sit down quietly some weekend and work it out. Returns prepared under pressure close to the deadline are the one which contain the most mistakes."

April 17 is this year's deadline for filing tax returns.

Collegian Wire News Staff

EDITOR: Richard S. Kline 2
STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Roupenian
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini

Drop in Voting Age Dem. Leaders Urge

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts' top Democratic leaders say a proposed constitutional amendment to lower the state's legal voting age from 21 to 18 has their support and will have top priority when the legislature holds a joint session in a few weeks.

Senate President Maurice A. Donahue of Holyoke, House Speaker John F. X. Davoren of Milford and State Chairman Lester Hyman gave their support to the measure at a news conference Tuesday.

Donahue said lowering the voting age would bring "high minded idealism, selfless dedication and active interest" to politics.

The legislature will meet in joint session sometime before May 3. If the measure is approved by a majority, it will be submitted to the 1969-70 legislature.

If approved again, it will go to the voters in 1970 as a proposed constitutional amendment. If it wins voter support, the age limit would be lowered in time for the elections of 1972.

Similar proposals have been submitted during the past 20 years, but they have failed to win the required approval from two successive legislatures.

Only four states have voting ages lower than 21 — Georgia and Kentucky 18, Alaska 19 and Hawaii 20.

Draft Deferments Take Strange Twist

WASHINGTON (AP) — Half of the 250,000 draft-age men holding occupational deferments "are neither in essential activities nor in critical occupations," Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz says.

Presented by Wirtz Tuesday at a Senate hearing on draft policies, the figure was termed "an amazing statistic" by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Wirtz indicated that requests for Labor Department approval to classify occupations as critical can be fascinating. One he had to spike, he said, would have given such protection to pretzel makers.

Editorial Section — Campus Comment

Action for Art

There is a desperate and growing need on this campus for expanded and improved facilities for the presentation of concerts, art exhibitions, and other fine arts events. At present, the University of Massachusetts does not possess any single fine arts facility that is capable of providing the seating capacity or the acoustical quality that is a basic necessity for a campus this size. In addition there is no area provided for art exhibitions to be shown, outside of public corridors and waiting rooms throughout the campus.

Coming up in the near future are two proposals that could go far in alleviating this situation. A sub-committee of the Board of Trustees will soon consider a proposal to endorse the expenditure of over $20,000 for the establishment of a separate dome-shaped building to be used for art exhibitions and nothing else. If the Trustees see fit to take this course of action, it will be a major step in improving the basic fine art facilities of the campus.

The second proposal is concerned with the Fine Arts Center, a building that has been in planning for over four years. In late spring of this year the University will present its request to the State House for Capital outlay funds used for building construction among other things. Number two priority in this request will be $160,000 to finally complete the plans for the Fine Arts Center. Passage of this request would equal a final and definite commitment to the Center.

We urge the members of the University community from the students on up to actively support the passage of both these proposals. We have been ranked as amateurs in the field of Fine Arts long enough.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

Ladies, We Salute You!

by STEVE FINER, Editorial Staff

In an institution as large as this University, a variety of people working in different capacities is expedient in order to have the university operate efficiently. Such capacities run the gamut from administrators and professors to the maintenance crew, the janitors, and even to our classmates.

Excluding the last category of workers, student complaints are directed against almost every person whose job students come in contact with. We, as students, seem to be prone to criticize far more than we are wont to compliment the people in question. We might do well to bestow kudos on at least one group of people working in service for us.

The ladies in the Dining Commons serving food from the other side of the counter deserve some praise for a number of reasons. In spite of ubiquitous faces sneering over the food, they smile and laugh as if to say to us our sneers aren't really sincere. They tolerate, as best they can, our spate of oral pejorisms against the quality of food served.

With a few exceptions, they are among a minority of people on the campus who always seem to be jovial (which attribute, for some of us, might be a compensation for all we don't like about the Commons). And, finally, unlike the unplowed paths of snow and the empty vending machines, fair weather or foul, their appearance three times a day is one of the few things on the campus we can be sure of: they will always be there to serve us in one capacity or another.

No Attendance

by THOM ARRISON, Editorial Staff

Have you ever been caught in a class which you thought was useless merely because attendance was taken?

Often these classes are boring and the professor takes his class lectures directly out of the book. There are many students who can comprehend material from a book without a professor's reiterating it. However, these students are required to attend class although it is of no use to them.

A professor rationalizes required attendance by saying a student needs the class instruction. This is not in keeping with the University policy of student responsibility. Without compulsory attendance the students who need more interpretation would attend class, while the students who know the material could cut without punishment.

If a professor dug deeper into his motivations he might realize that compulsory attendance serves to allay his fears of being useless. Attendance for many is an ego defensive mechanism.

The University has abolished women's curfews as an indication of their respect of the student. It should also abolish mandatory attendance.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Associate News Editor ..... Richard Kline '70
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Wednesday's Day Editors: News—Janet Caroprese '68; Sports—Harvey Elman '68; Photo—Neil Rennie '70 Editorial—P. R. Hallock '69

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

No Hitches at Harvard

To the Editor:

There is an old Italian proverb which says in bad translation, "The translator is a traitor." Traitors to the Hebrew language, for understandable reasons, took it from Greek to Latin and from Latin to English. For twenty centuries the translations have meant nothing but grief and near-destruction for the people who gave the world the original text, and ironically enough, its chief interpreter Paul (nee Saul).

Now that the world is looking back over the years of the holocaust with guilt and self-incrimination, it might not be a bad idea for survival if it were more generally known that it all began with an exercise in distorted translation.

Is our Mr. Gould naive enough to think we study French or Spanish to speak it? Why then the non-sequitir about Hebrew. I studied French to read Racine and Fleg in the original. I studied Spanish to read Cervantes and Ibn Ezra Gabirol in their native tongue without benefit or detriment of traitorous translating.

We find the Book of Psalms and the Book of Ecclesiastes inspiring in English. Rabbis, Jesuits, and Protestant ministerial scholars know the real joy of having read these works in the original.

There is no embarrassment at Yale and Harvard where Hebrew ranks with Latin and Greek as one of the three classical languages. One hopes UMass, and its students (some of them) will also grow up.

Dr. Bert S. Gerard
Temple Administrator
Westchester Temple
Scarsdale, N. Y.

Clearer Editorials

To the Editor:

Re: The editorial "On Freshman Curfews" in Friday, March 17th's Collegian.

I would like to complain about the three statements in bold print:

"The fears were unwarranted."

"No evils have come about."

"And the trust of the University administration in the UMass student body has been rewarded."

These three glib statements are unsupported by any accompanying evidence.

You say that "No evils have come about" as a result of abolishing curfews for upperclass women.

I ask, "Who says so"—have the people living near the Drake been asked if they are having less trouble with drunken students? Have motel owners been quizzed as to possible increases in patronage by suspicious looking couples? Have the Campus and Amherst police been asked about possible increases in statutory violations, all-night parties, drunk and rowdy students, etc.? If not, why not? If they were asked, why weren't the results printed in the article?

As it stands, all we have are the unsupported opinions of editorial writers.

The editorial also states "And the trust of the University administration in the UMass student body has been rewarded." I would like to know just how the trust of the University administration has been rewarded. Would someone explain in a coherent manner with evidence 3, 4 or 5 ways in which the trust of the University administration has been rewarded as claimed.

You have been making bold slogan-like statements with no pretense of supporting evidence. This is irresponsible journalism.

Something that has been helpful to me and I highly recommend it to everyone is Chapter 25 in Warriner's English Grammar and Composition—Complete Course, Copyright 1951, 1957 by Harcourt, Brace, and Co., Inc. This is entitled "Clear Thinking — Learn to Avoid Pitfalls in Reasoning", and discusses common errors such as hasty generalizations, slogans, the unproved assertion, generalizing from insufficient evidence and the band wagon.

Name Withheld

And Droves of Dirty Ankles

To the Editor:

I believe in having a relaxed atmosphere at meal time, but what has been going on at the North dining commons is going a little too far. I refer to the assemblage of girls (?) that saunters through the lines at meal times.

Pants I can see, yes—for you'd freeze your knees off in this weather without them, but gym clothes? You find them in droves at lunch, complete with bruises above the knees and third-week dirty ankle socks. Appetizing!! And hair rollers! Girls look so hideous in rollers that they shouldn't breathe out of their rooms in them, much less come to dinner. Yet they do, invariably with an absurd little scarf tied adroitly over the front three curlers. So lovely—and feminine!

The other day, though, I found the prize—a girl sitting (not alone) eating, wearing her nightgown.

The point to all of this is, of course, that I am concerned with the attire worn to meals at the commons. I think it is about time somebody in a position of reasonable authority said something about it. Somewhere in the deep dark recesses of a long lost file there is a rule on dress —no (I mean no) university is without one. I recommend heartily that it be hauled out and rigidly enforced.

Patricia Groth '68

Mud, Snow and Ponds

To the Editor:

Many problems have arisen in the newly created Southwest Residential College that are nonexistent in the established houses on the main campus. One of these, lack of dependable study space, can be deadly to a student's college achievement. A long, fifteen-to-twenty minute trek through mud, snow, and unintentional ponds along an ill-lighted path is too high a price to pay for a possible seat in an over-crowded library.

Concentration in the dormitory is impossible due to the blare of record-players and the noise in the corridors. What can a resident of Southwest College do when dissatisfied with the present inadequate study arrangements? Voice any complaints to the Academic Committee of the Southwest College Council.

The Academic Committee is interested in study problems peculiar to Residential College life and wants the opinions of students concerning them. It is now working with the Managers of the University Dining Service through the Master's Office to establish a Sunday-through-Friday night study area in one of the Southwest commons

The problems of supervision, noisy study times, and lighting will then be solved, and a letter which has been submitted as a proposal by the Committee is now under the consideration of the Service.

The results of this investigation will be made known to all residents of Southwest College through the Southwest College Council.

Bruce Kobritz '69
Chairman, Academic Committee,
Southwest College Council

CHORALE TO BEGIN SPRING TOUR

The University of Massachusetts Chorale will begin a spring tour that will include six performances throughout Massachusetts.

The 50-voice group will present a varied program of a capella music, sacred and secular, present and past. Composers represented include Scarlatti, Thompson, Bach, Monhardt, Copland, and Lotti. The lighter music includes a modern piece based on nursery rhymes and an adaption of a "shake-down song" of Spain and Portugal. There will also be a selection of folk tunes by the Chamber Singers, a select group made up of members of the Chorale.

I SPY

Characters Make Successful Series

by DANIEL MADDEN

Take a sincere, hyper-educated black secret agent with a flair for comedy; give him an Emmy, and team him with an equally sincere, tennis-playing white secret agent and you'll have the basis for a most successful series. You also have I Spy.

Sheldon Leonard, who's responsible for this arrangement, has brought off that most difficult of television formulae: The Character Series.

I Spy is precisely what its characters are, and the characters are magnificent. The under-the-cover duo of a tennis-bum and his trainer, Kelly Robinson (Robert Culp) and Alexander Scott (Bill Cosby) have more reality between them than any thing seen since Playhouse 90, before the last Ice Age.

The role of Scott is a difficult one. He is a black agent in a white business; a sophisticated man who still gets letters from his mother to eat his greens; a daytime ball shacker, a night-timekiller. He accepts this dicotomy not with resignation but with a well-honed sense of the Absurd. He's television's only existentialist hero.

Bill Cosby has long ago ceased to simply play the role; he has absorbed it. You could turn Cosby loose, unrehearsed and without lines, and he would say exactly what Scott does in the script.

Robert Culp's Kelly Robinson is more straight foreward. Robinson is a less complex figure, a typical man of action, hard loving, hard fighting. But even he is caught in the bind between the agent's world and reality. Culp's usual response to this is to over-emote at the slightest provocation, or, if emoting seems out of place, philosophize with homey metaphors. But this weakness is only an occasional occurrence and overshadowed by his otherwise sound performance.

In general, I Spy comes across better as a broad satire than a

(Continued on page 6)

Student Comments:

Is UMass Really Dead On Weekends?

by NANCY CLARK
Staff Reporter

As one walks by Machmer on Friday afternoons, you cannot help but notice the students with suitcases waiting for the bus. Where's everybody going?

UMass students complain that "this campus is dead on weekends" and comments support this truth.

Is it lack of student interest or lack of appealing social activities? Why do students vacate UMass on weekends?

Many UMies replied that they study hard during the week and going home offers an opportunity to take a break from the pressure of the college atmosphere.

Freshman Chris Force comments that "you get sick of being here and you need a change." Others say they go home to be with their family, see old friends, and have a good time.

Another popular reason for getting off-campus on weekends is that there is nothing to do but the same activities weekend after weekend.

"There's a dance and movie every Friday and Saturday at the Union but who wants to go to those every weekend? That gets boring, too, you know," says Audrey Sheffer '70.

One girl commented that the dances at the Union are "really awful because the guys come loaded only to pick up a girl and the same is true of the Hatch on Saturday nights—guys ploughed looking for pick-ups."

George Saridakis '67, says "I'd like to take a girl to a real nice place on a weekend—you know, quiet dinner and good dancing music but there aren't any places around."

Sunday afternoons are especially dead, except on the big weekends. But, complains freshman Carol Waldman, "even on weekends, like Winter Canrl, there are never enough tickets to go around when something worthwhile and big—an entertainer or concert — does come up."

Ken Dahl '68, remarks that "there is not enough intellectual atmosphere here for upperclassmen on weekends. Freshmen and sophomores have mixers, etc., but I feel that more plays, movies, concerts are needed." Ken goes to Boston for good times where he can enjoy a "variety of cultural and social activities."

Going home affords a car say the fellows. UMass males especially freshmen and sophomores, complain that transportation is a big problem especially in cold weather when hoofing it or thumbing with a date are inconvenient and uncomfortable.

Many girls date boys from home and vice versa. One girl commented that her boyfriend came up this past weekend and "there was nothing to do; we resorted to the libe. If we'd been at his college (Harvard), there are thousands of different places to go and see."

Priscilla Drake '67, says "there are not enough places on campus where you can be alone with a date and talk quietly together."

The fraternities and sororities hold exchanges among themselves and parties are weekly at the fraternities. Members can enjoy an active social life.

However, many independents do not find their dorms so organized in social events. "Open houses have proved a great success here in the Southwest," comments John Putnam '68, of Tower 1.

But from the women's traditional and older men's residences comes the cry of "there's nothing doing in the dorm again this weekend!"

Students desire intradorm activities such as bridge, chess, cards, volleyball, etc., and some social committees are trying to initiate these programs between the men and women.

Part of the answer to the problem of dead weekends lies within the dorm. Students interviewed feel that to make a mass effort to put over an activity often fails, but initiation within the dorms on a smaller scale will at least encourage more individual participation on campus. If the social affairs work in the dorm, the students will be more likely to support mass UMass efforts in social and cultural affairs on weekends.

Perhaps, a solution on the mass scale would be to "provide transportation to social and cultural events with the 4-College area on the weekend nights or a bus to the Cinema in Springfield" suggests a senior.

Some general comments on the lack of varied social functions, offered by students included:

Peggy Olson, transfer from New York: "Last semester was very boring. The Fellini films at Amherst College saved me!"

Girl in the class of '68: "If you're not in a fraternity or sorority, it's awful."

A freshman: "Some weeks, every day of the weekend is filled, but others may have nothing to offer. We definitely need more plays and concerts and even lecture-coffee hours on the weekends because kids seem to have more free time then and would be more willing to attend. It seems that they crowd everything in to the week and leave the weekends bare."

Jeanne Mercier '68, remarks: "That the campus isn't leaping on weekends—its that the opposite conception from what incoming freshmen are told?"

Among many students the opinion is that UMass needs a boost in planning more stimulating, appealing, and varied social and cultural activities on the weekends. Then maybe the buses wont be so crowded!

Freshmen To Sponsor Four-College Dance

Smithies come to UMass?? Would you believe Mt. Holyoke and Amherst???Saturday, April 8, the UMass Class of '70 will sponsor a "psychedelic example of four-college cooperation." Buses are being hired to transport the Smith and Mt. Holyoke girls to the Student Union.

Of course we're not forgetting the UMie coeds; the Amherst Jeffs will also be on hand.

For the first time students from the four schools will be united on one dance floor for what will be an environmental dance to remember. Providing the musical medium will be UMass' Boss Tweeds and Amherst's Leaves of Grass.

Tickets are now being sold at the other three campuses. Anticipating a rush for tickets, they are now on sale at the University Ticket Office.

WOMEN'S JUDICIARY

Those people who took out Women's Judiciary nomination papers:

1. Contact Sue Tracy (Senate Office)
2. Interviews, 6:30 Wednesday night, Student Union

OPPORTUNITIES IN SELLING

Free to Univ. of Mass. Students 25¢ to others

A new booklet, published by a non-profit educational foundation, tells which career field lets you make the best use of all your college training, including liberal-arts courses—which career field offers 100,000 new jobs every year—which career field produces more corporation presidents than any other—what starting salary you can expect. Just send this ad with your name and address. This 24-page, career-guide booklet, "Opportunities in Selling," will be mailed to you. No cost or obligation. Address: Council on Opportunities, 550 Fifth Ave., New York 36, N. Y.,

Metawampee Award Nominations To Close Friday Afternoon

Nominations for Senior Class Metawampee Award will end on Friday, March 24. There will be a table in the Student Union Lobby where all nominations can be left. All members of the University community are eligible to make nominations.

The award is presented to an outstanding Faculty Member on Student Leaders Night, April 18, and consists of $1,000. The recipient is chosen by an all student committee made up of seniors and representatives of the other three classes.

The recipient is chosen on behalf of outstanding classroom and extra-curricular activities. It differs from the Distinguished Award in that the Metawampee Award stresses work done outside the classroom.

Chairman Bob Fleischman '67 and his committee of ten will be hoping for a good response in order that all worthy candidates may be considered

YAHOO
On Thursday, at 7:35 P.M. in the Yahoo Office, S.U., there will be a round-up meeting and elections. Refreshments.

SCIENCE FICTION CLUB
On Wed., March 22, at 8:30 P.M. in Worcester A there will be a Pro-Comm. meeting. All members must attend.

RSO PRESIDENTS
All RSO presidents please leave your names and addresses in the Public Relations Committee message box in the Senate office, by Thurs., March 23.

BIOCHEMISTRY SEMINAR
On Thurs., March 23, at 8:00 P.M. in Peters Aud., Dr. David Fukushima, of Albert Einstein College of Medicine will speak of "Creasterone: A Novel Nitrogen Containing Steroid".

MOVIE
On Thurs., March 23, the movie Oklahoma will be shown at the S.U. Admission is 25¢.

NOTICES

SPORT PARACEUTE CLUB
On March 23, at 7:00 P.M. in Middlesex Room, there will be an important meeting concerning an Intercollegiate meet.

PRE-LAW ASSOCIATION
All students interested in participating in the trip to Boston College Law School on April 10 should sign up in Ken Suud's office on or before Friday, March 24. The trip will include dinner, addresses from several law school professors, and attendance at an actual law school class.

UNIVERSITY CHRISTIAN WORSHIP
On March 22, at 11:30 P.M. in SBA 116, there will be a gathering. Freshman girls' curfew extend to one-half hour after end of activity.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY
There will be a meeting on Wednesday, March 22, at 7:00 P.M. in Room 201, French Hall. Dr. F. W. Southwick, head of Dept. of Plant and Soil Sciences, will speak on "The Curriculum of the Dept. and its relation to post-graduate opportunities." All are invited.

SPEED READING LAST SESSION
Last session will be held from April 3, to May 2, on Monday and Tuesdays from 7-8 P.M. in Room 125 of the Education building.

UMOC
In April, UMOC does not stand for UMass Outing Club.

WAA
Voting for the 1967-68 Executive Board of WAA will be held at WoPe during Wednesday, March 22, 9-12, 1-2, and 3-4. On Thursday, March 23, from 9-4 P.M. All those participating in WAA activities this year are encouraged to vote.

NAIADS
UMass Naiads will perform on April 6, 7, and 8 at the Women's Physical Education Building. Although admission is free, tickets must be secured for the events. They are available April 3, 4, and 5 at the S.U. Ticket Booth.

STUDENT SENATE
The Student Senate will meet this evening in the Student Union Council Chambers at 7 P.M. Students, faculty and other members of the University community are invited to attend.

APO LOST AND FOUND
If you have lost a notebook, text, glasses or other items, go to the Campus Lost and Found Booth located at the bus-ticket window and see if it has been brought in.

LOST
Brown wallet, lost Wed., March 1. Had draft card, license, I.D.'s, etc. Please return to Student Union Lost & Found.

Identification booklet, if found please return to Myron Cash, 216 Baker, 546-6056. Reward.

John Romain Pocketbook containing glasses, ID wallet, checkbook. Contact Connie, at 256-6887. Lost at Mikes. Reward.

One pair black glasses in plain black case, lost in hill vicinity. Phone Brian, 546-9396.

Tan notebook for Exceptional Child Course, lost in SBA Girls Room. Contact Karen Schmidt, 316 Johnson if found. Reward.

Man's plain wedding band, inscribed "C.V. to J.M., July 24, 1966". Lost March 14, in vicinity of WoPe. Reward. Call 527-4019.

An Air Force Association watch in Morrill Science; Silver colored with a 24 hour face. Please call 546-8886 if found.

Women's size 8 Petite London Fog. Please contact Patti, Kane, KKG.

FOUND
Woman's size 12 regular London Fog.

PINNINGS
Kathleen Morris, class of '69, Emmanuel College, to Roy Irvine, class of '70, J.F.K. Lower.

Sharon Karp, class of '70, Emerson, to William Traum, class of '69, ZBT Bowling Green University (Ohio).

I SPY . . .

(Continued from page 5)

straight, no-nonsense espionage tale. Cosby and Culp project a casual semi-slapstick humor of a highly contagious variety.

The Key to the series' success has been its consistent ability to balance its separate parts into a harmonious whole. Reality and fantasy, suspense and release, light and heavy, Cosby and Culp.

CORRECTION!

REVELERS Applications

(Available in R.S.O.)

Due Wednesday

March 22 at 5:00 p.m.

in R.S.O.

SOPHOMORE MEN:

Want to be a leader and double your chances for success in life? You can, by earning both a degree and an Army officer's commission at the same time . . . even though you may not have taken ROTC training in your first two years!

Through a new program, you can be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant after taking two years of Army ROTC training while you complete your studies for a college degree. You can qualify for this program by attending a special six-week summer training camp after your sophomore year and then completing the ROTC Advanced Course in your junior and senior years of college.

Here's what ROTC training and an officer's commission will do for you:

- It will qualify you to fulfill your military obligation as an officer.
- You will learn to organize, motivate, and lead others.
- You will develop leadership qualities that many college men miss—self-discipline, physical stamina, poise, bearing, the acceptance of responsibility and other qualities that contribute to success in either a civilian or military career.
- You will receive $40 per month during your junior and senior years, plus pay and mileage for summer training.

The training and experience you will receive through Army ROTC will pay off for the rest of your life. A decision to take advantage of this new program could be one of the most important you will ever make.

You owe it to yourself to investigate this new important opportunity.

For complete information on the new Two-Year Army ROTC Program see the Professor of Military Science on campus.

ARMY ROTC

IF YOU ARE GOOD ENOUGH TO BE A LEADER, DON'T SETTLE FOR LESS!

Go South, U Collegians

That's where the fun is happening - on the beaches! And you'll want to be there in this marvelous 2-piece swim suit in black and white for just $16. Sizes 5 to 13. Lot's more, too!

Swingin' Selection of Pierced Earrings
All $2.00 P.T.

Get Acquainted

Cricket Shop

181 N. Pleasant, Amherst

Open a charge or just lay it away.

Visiting Lectures To Discuss Rise Of Totalitanianism

The Student Union Arts and Music Committee will present the second program of the Faculty Lecture Series at 8:00 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge tonight.

Mr. Tamas Aczel, Visiting Lecturer of the English Department will speak on "The Origin and Rise of Modern Totalitarian Fanaticism."

Mr. Aczel was born in Hungary in 1921, and educated at the University of Budapest. His own account of his life in wartime and postwar Hungary is like a summing up of the terrors and horrors of a lost generation in Central Europe.

Mr. Aczel is the author of many poems, essays, books, and translations, including Vigilance and Faith, a book of poems which won the Kossuth Prize; In the Shadow of Liberty, which won the Stalin Prize; The Revolt of the Mind, A Case History of the Intellectual Resistance Behind the Iron Curtain; Ten Years After: Hungarian Revolution in Perspective, an international symposium and The Ice Age, a novel.

In 1956, he left Hungary and lived in London for nine years editing, writing and lecturing in England, Denmark, and Sweden. He came to the University of Massachusetts in the summer of 1966.

Tonight he will be discussing the nature of the attractive force of communism in particular and Fanaticism in general to European and American intellectuals and how this force is reflected in literature from Rousseau to Sarter.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kornfield

University of Massachusetts debate teams captured four trophies in intercollegiate competition this past week. Pictured above on the left is John Putnam ('68) from Southwick and Susan Zwilling ('70) from Ludlow. John and Sue won the third place plaque in varsity debating at Albertus Magnus College in New Haven, Conn. They won 4 debates and lost only 2 against competition from New England and NewYork schools.

On the right are freshmen Steve Daggett, Wellesley, and James Taylor, Shrewsbury, who won the first place trophy in novice debating at Morgan State College in Baltimore. Competing against teams from all over the East coast, Steve and James won 6 out of their 8 debates. In addition to being the top team in the tournament, Steve received a trophy as the second place speaker and James received a placque as the fourth place speaker in their competition against thirty other students. This is the best record of the season for UMass. debate teams.

Coaches for the teams are Professor Ronald J. Matlon and Miss Sandra E. Purnell, Speech Department. The resolution debated at all intercollegiate tournaments this year is Resolved: That the United States should substantially reduce its foreign policy commitments. In April, the debate teams will be travelling to Detroit, New York, and Chicago for further competition.

"Whatsit" Contest Winner Resident of Tower 6

The first "Whatsit" contest was won by Robert Cleary of T-6. Mr. Cleary correctly identified the picture, a locking mechanism used on some dormitory doors. For his efforts, he will receive a free black and white portrait taken by a Collegian photographer.

Some rather interesting incorrect answers showed great ingenuity by the campus community. A cupcake tin, two plates through glass, two ice cubes, and the middle holes of a bowling ball were some of the incorrect answers. The best, though, was submitted by a T-5 man. He guessed, "Birth control pills in daily dispenser."

The "Whatsit" contest will be featured every Wednesday. The deadline for each contest will be the following Tuesday at noon. Guesses should be written on the picture and the winner will be drawn from all correct answers.

"Hot Line" 545-2550

Houn To Speak April 3 On Communist China Policy

On April 3 at 8:00 p.m. in the Student Union, Dr. Houn will speak on the Communist China Foreign Policy in Perspective. Dr. Houn was born in China and received his Ph.D. at the University of Wisconsin. He has published three books, Control Government China, To Change a Nation, and Chinese Political Traditions.

Currently, Dr. Houn is working on a book entitled, History of Communist China Party, which is based on research work done at Stanford University. He has appeared on nationwide educational television stations and has addressed numerous civic groups across the nation.

The Student Union Arts & Music Committee is presenting Dr. Houn. After his lecture there will be a question and answer period.

DellaGrotte Speaks Tonite On Educational Crisis

The UMass community will have the opportunity to hear Professor Joseph A. DellaGrotte of the history department speak on "Crisis in our Education," tonight, in the Governor's Lounge.

Professor DellaGrotte, who received his PhD from Syracuse University in 1963, later studied at the Univtrsity of Venice in Italy as a Fulbright scholar before joining the UMass faculty.

"Contemporary education", Prof. DellaGrotte feels, "is in crisis."

While we formally subscribe to a basically humanistic credo, he says education is the promotion of the full development of the individual, in practice we subvert it.

Education is put to the service of uncritical acceptance of the going social, political, and economic order, he believes.

"Procedural doublethink" is the term Prof. DellaGrotte uses, which is adopted as a style to maintain this quality and incompatibility of values and purposes, without resolving it.

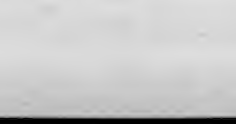
Professor DellaGrotte is leaving UMass after this semester. When he was asked the reason for his departure he replied the "university has not approved his appointment for the next year"

PROF. J. DELLA GROTTE

Prof. DellaGrotte is known for his liberal and innovative ideas. All are invited to the lecture and the coffee hour which starts at 5:30 p.m., sponsored by the International Club.

AMHERST COMES TO UMASS

APRIL 8



CAN YOU UNSCRAMBLE THIS MYSTERY WORD?

OCUM

ONLY MINUTES FROM YOU ON RIVERDALE RD., RT. 5, W. SPRINGFIELD
Phone 733-5131
CINEMA 1&2
ROCKING CHAIR RECLINING SEATS ACRES OF FREE PARKING
ART GALLERY.
PLAN A THEATRE PARTY TODAY CALL 733-5131
LIFE A SPLASHY, SURF-SOAKED SLEEPER.
BREATHTAKING! IMAGINATIVE!
SPECIAL GROUP RATES
The Endless Summer
CONTINUOUS: 1:00 - 3:30 - 5:30 - 7:30 - 9:40
NOMINATED FOR 7 ACADEMY AWARDS
Julie ANDREWS
HAWAII
TICKETS AT BOX OFFICE OR SEARS OR MELODY CORNER
MATS. 2 P.M. WED. - SAT. - SUN.
ALL EVES 8 P.M.

AMHERST Cinema
NOW SHOWING
On Screen 6:50-8:55
PARAMOUNT PICTURES presents A HARRY SALTZMAN Production
MICHAEL CAINE IN Funeral in Berlin
TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION® A PARAMOUNT PICTURE
IT'S HARRY PALMER—THAT "IPCRESS FILE" MAN!
'BLOW-UP' March 29th Thru April 11th

COMPLETE SERVICE
SAFE MOVING
DEPENDABLE STORAGE
EXPERT PACKING

Call GLEASON MAYFLOWER
Pearl St., Northampton
584-6413—for estimate

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS

The North American Yachting Association is soliciting summer job applications. Due to the results of a recent survey of sail and power vessel owners on the East coast, West coast, Gulf area and the Great Lakes, applications from college students or graduates are being accepted (no full time employment). Employment for experienced as well as inexperienced young men and women of good character is available. Facility in cooking or child care is particularly helpful. Crewing affords the opportunity to acquire or sharpen boating skills, and visit new places while earning reasonable income in pleasant outdoor surroundings.

TO APPLY: Send NAYA a resume using the form below and your application will be reproduced and forwarded to over 3,000 owners of large craft.

NOTE: Our reproduction system requires that all resumes be clearly typed with black ribbon (or hand printed with dark black ink) on a white 3" x 5" card using the exact format outlined below including each item with appropriate number (i.e. [1] John Doe [2] 1704 Main St.)

[1] Name [2] Address [3] Phone no. [4] Age [5] School [6] Available from . . . to . . . in (state general area(s)) [7] Previous relevant experience [8] Two Personal references [9] Preference (sailing or crusing, etc.) [10] Other pertinent facts [11] Two or more applicants wishing to work together, state this preference.

Send with $6.00 processing fee to:
North American Yachting Asso.
1427 Walnut St.
Phila., Pa. 19102

MASS. CLASSIFIED

FOR RENT

Furnished room with kitchen privileges, 3 miles from University. Call 253-9424.

LOST

56" Scott Ski pole on W.C. Haystack Ski Trip. Found another similar pole in its place—If you have lost a pole & found the Scott. Call J. Humber, 549-0185.

PERSONAL

FLAMING A's GROW UP!

AUTOMOBILES

1958 MGA — new top, side curtains & tires—excellent condition call 253-9540 after 4.

1960 MGA 1600 engine overhauled in February excellent condition—inside and out. $800 or best offer. Contact: Joel Brebbia, 210 Baker, 546-6950.

FOR SALE

Soleor Spyder Bluebirds with Nevada bindings & thongs half price $115.00 Ski boots—half price $20. 546-7551.

UNIQUE
PAID EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY FOR MALE CAMP COUNSELORS

One of the nation's oldest and most respected philanthropies seeks college students whose career goals are aimed at improving the lives of disadvantaged children.

Participate in a pioneering outdoor education program for New York City youngsters at the Herald Tribune Fresh Air Fund's 3000 acre Sharpe Reservation Camping Center near East Fishkill, N. Y.

For information write to:
Larry Mickolic, Associate Director
Herald Tribune Fresh Air Fund
214 West 41 Street, New York N Y. 10036
or telephone (212) 565-2500

DEAN'S LIST CLASS OF '69

Class of '69 Semester Average 3.8-4.0

Akerman Nathaniel H	Govt
Ball Carolyn E	Educ
Belliveau Thomas J	Ch E
Berry Susan L	Zool
Bogdan Barbara A	S Ba
Burnham Barbara J	Engl
Condon Kathleen M	Hist
Day Richard B	Psych
Doggart Linda L	An Sci
Edwards Jonathan C	Hist
Gould Elkin L	Psych
Green Nancy E	Math
Greenblatt Michael B	JS Eng
Kowalski Sonia M	Chem
Livermore Jeffrey S	Govt
Logan Julie A	Wo Pe
Meyer Arthur G	Math
Moe Eleanor N	Econ
Nuccio Richard A	Govt
Palermo Jay M	Sociol
Pomeroy Linda	Geol
Richards Robert F	Men Pe
Sand Susan	Botany
Sharac Joanne S	Psych
Spataro Robert F	Zool
Sponburgh Alan K	Acctg
Stewart Priscilla L	Art
Toyama Pieper J	Psych
Vail Richards S	Geol
White Carolyn J	H Ec
Whiteman Paula M	Engl

Class of '69 Semester Average 3.4-3.7

Amdrosi Richard J	Engl
Anderson Mary L	Educ
Arcouette Susan S	French
Belben Carole A	Engl
Benwood Bruce R	E E
Berg Linda L	Engl
Berman Leonard N	Math
Bernstein Barry E	M E
Besser Vivian A	S Ba
Bolduc Murial A	Nurse
Bradbury Catherine E	Hist
Bump Richard G	Engl
Bund Barbara J	Hist
Byron Thomas W	Govt
Cacciapuoti Anthony	Microbio
Chinappi Anthony L.	Men Pe
Cigal Gregory A	Ch E
Curran Susan M	French
Daniels Michael R	Engl
Delano George K	S Ba
Denis Elaine R	Sociol
Dillard Peter H S	Astron
Doyle Joseph F	S Ba
Duckworth Wayne H	Math
Englander Frederick	S Ba
Faherty John M	S Ba
Faustine Jacqueline	Educ
Finer Steven	Engl
Fisher Nancy J	Engl
Fitt Andrea J	Psych
Fontana Phillip S	Microbio
Frizado Irene R	Math
Galer Linda M	Engl
Gallenstein Barbara	Zool
George Marilyn J	H Ec
Gero Dennis C	Ch E
Gibb Mary E	JS Eng
Glassman Ann T	Physic
Goff Robert W	Zool
Goodwin Mary	Engl
Gwozda James R	Englin
Halbach Paul P	Acctg
Haynes Nancy J	Nurse
Hellyar Kenneth G	Ch E
Hendrickson Barbara	Math
Herbert James C	Zool
Hertz George K	Govt
Hinckley Diane C	Engl
Hoffman Thomas G	Math
Jenkins Laura C	Sociol
Johnson Bradford H	Hist
Johnston Carol J	Zool
Kasmer Rheta J	Hist
Katz Alan M	Engl
Katz Phillip S	Anth
Keurulainen James E	S Ba
Kopkind William G	Math
Krol John S	French
Labelle Joseph C Jr	Geol
Laberis Stephen J	Englin
Laliberte Jeanne M	Engl
Leach Judith A	Educ
Lefebvre Thomas L	S Ba
Lemkin Joyce A	Physic
Levine Elaine A	S Ba
Lifton Leslie J	Math
Lofchie Roslyn R	Math
Lyttle Martha J	Zool
Maher Maureen A	Nurse
Marcus Laurence R	Govt
Maroney Janice M	Engl
Martin Alice N	Zool
Marx Esther F	Educ
Mason Bradford	E E
McCallum Joan	Econ
McCarthy Michael A	Govt
McCartney Cheryl A	Hist
McGinn Richard F	Sociol
Meiuleni Erwin V	Psych
Moran James K	Govt
Moriarty Claire M	Engl
Nadler Michael R	Econ
Nutter Cathy D	Medtec
Pavao Antonio R	Music
Perkins Roberta A	Wo Pe
Pesando Frank J	Engl
Peterson David C	C E
Poretsky Ira B	Govt
Preziosi Joseph M	Hist
Randolph Janice D	Chem
Rhodes William D	Psych
Rosenfield Cynthia L	Psych
Rousseau Gerald D	S Ba
Savage Eric D	Englin
Scheinfeldt Betty A	Sociol
Sears William B	S Ba
Sheehan William J	S Ba
Sheppard Glen S	Physic
Silva Pedro M	Speech
Sissenwine Michael P	Physic
Smith James C	Econ

Class of '69 Semester Average 3.0-3.3

Soroka Patricia J	Engl
Sterni Markon R	Educ
Stevens Lynda C	Nurse
Swanson Ann	Engl
Swardlick Joan B	H Ec
Symancyk Daniel F	Math
Szostak Daniel J	E E
Taddia Paula E	Educ
Theus Russell A	Ch E
Thomas Edwin L	I E
Thompson Nancy C	Speech
Wallenstein Arnold R	Govt
Watts Catherine M	Speech
Weir John E	Physic
Whitman Howard A	I E
Willey Richard L	Econ
Wills Diane L	Nurse
Woods Thomas L	Zool
Wright Paul F	Hist
Young Howard A	Microbio
Yunik Gladys	Psych
Abrahamson Steven L	M E
Aldrich Susan J	Nurse
Alizzeo Peter J	Zool
Anapol Michael I	E E
Antine Marc E	Govt
Arguimbau Daniel H	Forest
Ashley Joan	Wildlif
Assaff Sandra	Psych
Badgley Barbara S	Nurse
Balzarini Lester P	Physic
Band Robert	S Ba
Barbaglia Ouida V	Nurse
Batacchi Cheryl S	Wo Pe
Battista Lydia C	H Ec
Bauder James W	Forest
Beccia Philip J	French
Benson Karen L	French
Bergs Maija	H Ec
Bernat James L	Math
Berry Gail	Psych
Bianchi Lorrey J	Hist
Biela Michael S	S Ba
Bilsey Zelda B	Psych
Blades Don L	Wildlif
Blaisdell Douglas A	Sociol
Blake Lary A	Russ
Blake Madalyn A	Educ
Blanchette Lynn	Art
Bonier Lawrence R	Psych
Bonvouloir David A	A&F Ec
Botta Carlene J	German
Bouba Janice L	Govt
Boyd Charlotte A	H Ec
Brand Steven G	S Ba
Brazauskas Peter J	S Ba
Bredberg Lois A	Engl
Brenner Ilene J	Russ
Britha Mary L	Educ
Broderick Nancy J	Math
Bruckert Edward A	E E
Brunning Wendy	Nurse
Bucuvalas Virginia	H Ec
Callahan John P	Acctg
Campbell Robert E	I E
Carey Susan G	German
Carlson David J	An Sci
Carlson Kathryn E	Art
Carpenter Jean	Educ
Capers Phyllis Carr	Nurse
Carson Robert K	Astron
Casagrandi Roberta M	Govt
Cheney Richard W	Chem
Christensen Alan B	I E
Clark Betty J	Nurse
Clark Virginia G	Medtec
Cleary Margaret M	Span
Clement Paula M	Educ
Cohen Dennis N	Chem
Corsi Paul J	GB Fin
Coyle Richard W	Physic
Criticos Jane E	Engl
Curran Patricia E	French
Curtin Linda E	Medtec
Czekanski Christine	Span
Dabrowski June A	Educ
Dalyrymple Carol E	Sociol
Daly Barbara J	Nurse
Daly John D	Forest
Dambrov Robert L	Govt
Dasilva Robert F	Sociol
Deane Betty E	Educ
Decoet Linda J	Engl
Dellapaolera Mary J	Speech
Demeo Mary F	Art
Dempsey Lindalou	Engl
Dennison Larry R	Forest
Dewallace Jill A	Engl
Dik Diane L	H Ec
Dittfach Gretchen A	Govt
Dolan Leo C	S Ba
Domurat John F Jr	Men Pe
Donnelly Linda	Educ
Donohue Joseph A	S Ba
Dorfman Barry A	Zool
Doyle Mary J	Speech
Doyle Niall K	Engl
Drake Elizabeth A	Nurse
Dubin Paula R	French
Dumont Raymond A	Engl
Dwyer Maurice J	Zool
Edmonds Lynn R	Hist
Elgart Allen N	Econ
Elliott Norman A	S Ba
Ennaco Andrew J	M E
Entes Roberta M	Math
Erwin Mary B	Educ
Evans Gail B	H Ec
Fantl Eugene	Math
Finn Brenda	Engl
Fitzgerald Bradley C	French
Flaherty Nancy A	Educ
Flanagan Patricia	French
Fogg Nancy E	H Ec
Fox James H	Nurse
Foy Joan E	Educ
Fredericks Richard J	Econ
Fredette James E	I E
Freedman Karen	Engl
Frost Wendell A	Math
Fulton Carol L	Engl
Gajewski John L	E E
Gayne Lorraine M	Art
Gerow Florence M	LD Arc
Gifford John A	Geol
Gocłowski Marcia A	Engl
Goeldner Susan E	Engl
Gorecki John A	Physic
Grassie Lanier	French
Greenberg Cynthia L	Educ
Greenberg Gary R	Govt
Griffith Susan R	Russ
Grover Susan B	H Ec
Grow Julie A	Engl
Gusciora Kenneth H	Ch E
Halliday Robert J	Hist
Harney William G	Engl
Harrington Janet E	Educ
Hatfield Patricia C	French
Hayden Candis C	Engl
Holmes Judith A	Engl
Holmes Sybil G	Nurse
Hood Deborah	Educ
Izatt Katherine M	Engl
Jekanowski Leonard C	Geol
Johansson Peter C	German
Johnson Pamela L	Educ
Johnson Robert H	An Sci
Jones Linda M	Medtec
Kamienski Paula W	Ch E
Kamsis David A	C E
Kenney Martin M	Art
Keerin Nina R	Anth
Koska John S	C E
Kostka Stanley A	S Ba
LaFleur William R	Zool
Lanchansky Paula J	Educ
Lang Charles M	Math
LaPointe Cari P	Educ
Lautzenhiser Renee E	Hist
Leach Robert T	S Ba
Leary Edward J	Sociol
Leggee Donna G	H Ec
Leibman Linda M	French
Leonard Jeanne F	Engl
Levine Jeffrey A	Govt
Lheurfux Roy W	S Ba
Lister Jeffrey E	Engl
Loda Carolyn M	French
Lombardo Pio S	Ch E
Ludlow Jane A	Govt
MacDonald Jannette	S Ba
Malinowski James W	Zool
Malis Sheila L	Sociol
Manero Donna L	Engl
Mangan Deborah E	Wo Pe
Mangan Kenneth F	Zool
Marcinczyk Rose A	Educ
Martin Linda L	H Ec
Maskell Jack H	S Ba
McCabe Wilfred G	S Ba
McCarthy Judith H	Engl
McCormick Cheryl L	Math
McGreehan James R	Math
McLaughlin Anne P	Speech
Michael Mary M	Anth
Midura Paul S	Math
Moore Robert B	Govt
Morris Mary E	Engl
Mourey Patricia A	H Ec
Murphy Philip B	Geol
Musco Thomas G	Art
Nawrot Richard E	Econ
Needle Elinor T	Zool
Neigher William D	Psych
Nelson Carol J	Educ
Nelson Karin M	Nurse
Nesvet Jeffrey L	Govt
Newberry Richard D	M E
Newman Adele M	Math
Nutter Suzanne M	Educ
Nyberg Stanley E	Psych
O'Hare Christine L	H Ec
Olinsky Bonnie F	Wo Pe
Ostrander Susan H	Engl
Parker Richard A	Govt
Patch Susan E	Hist
Pellegri Edward R	I E
Perullo Ferma J	Engl
Phillips Convy G	Sociol
Pickering Leslie W	E E
Plaza Maria K	Math
Poole David L	Econ
Pottern Leslie J	Econ
Prenner Allen I	Engl
Procak Mary F	Govt
Pryor Pamela	Math
Reider Robert H	Wildlif
Renaud Philip A	M E
Riiska Karen A	Educ
Robbins Kathleen E	Educ
Rodenstein Laurence	Hist
Rose Leslie K	Art
Rosen Jeffrey D	Microbio
Rosen Robert J	Govt
Rosenburg Lesley A	Govt
Rosenfeld Sheila L	Educ
Rossi Linda L	H Ec
Rubin Edward A	S Ba
Rutkowski Linda J	Educ
Rutkowski Nancy J	S Ba
Ryan Allan M	E E
Rys John A	Chem
Sanders Robert W	Hist
Sanford Barbara L	H Ec
Scarfo Robert A	Ld Arc
Schiffman Stephan J	Chem
Schreiber Carole S	Art
Schultz Bonnie J	French
Schwartz Martha S	Educ
Sellars Carol E	Art
Sena Douglas G	Hist
Sheehan Nancy W	H Ec
Shirn Claudia V	Educ
Shiverick Susan M	Anth
Shmulsky Cheryl M	Engl
Sills Susan L	Engl
Silva Gail J	Psych
Skillman Judith R	Art
Slack David A	Psych
Smith Jeanne P	H Ec
Souza Ellen J	Educ
Spector Sandra L	Psych
Spekman Robert E	Zool
Stackhouse Pamela D	Hist
Steever Joan C --	Educ
Stone Joel L	Wildlif
Stone Paul G	Chem
Stott Paul E	Chem
Sullivan Elaine K	JS Eng
Sullivan Thomas E	Zool
Swartz Toby D	Nurse
Sweeney James S	Engl
Swiniarsky Mary F	Chem
Tagliaferro Mary A	Math
Taylor Barbara E	Hist
Taylor Joyce R	Hist
Taylor Malcolm R	Zool
Taylor Raymond W	Math
Thornton Everett E	Psych
Thrash Ericka M	Engl
Toomey Ann M	H Ec
Topham Ruth E	H Ec
Torrey Allen S	Hist
Treistman Alice R	French
Trementozzi Miriam E	French
Tuttle Dorothy M	Govt
Unger Nancy L	Wo Pe
Valenti Jean E	S Ba
Valorose Charlotte L	Engl
Veratti Thomas E	Ch E
Vincent Kathleen M	Zool
Walters Michael E	Govt
Waugh Dan H	Chem
Weagle Donald S	A&F Ec
Weisberg Charlene K	Art
Wheeler Pamelia E	Zool
Whidden Rosemary A	Educ
Whitman Neal A	Hist
Willis Joanne M	Nurse
Wilson Gary A	Men Pe
Windemiller Duane A	S Ba
Wirtanen Edward R	Govt
Witek Annette J	Zool
Witowski Elizabeth J	Math
Wood Pamela J	Math
Woods David W	Phil
Wotring Rita S	Nurse
Wrynn Margaret M	Hist
Yomka Donald A	Ld Arc
Zierenina Richard P	S Ba
Levy Reesa S	French
McHugh Richard D	Htlmgt

Stockbridge Announces Honor Students

CLASS OF 1967

(3.4 or higher for 3 semesters)

Edward Horton	Turf
Karen Simpter	Restaurant and Hotel
Francis Welcome	Animal Science
Steven Montgomery	Food Distribution
Jarl Anderson	Arboriculture and Park
Gregory Burke	Landscape Operations
Alice Tognini	Floriculture
Gregory Gimblette	Turf
Raymond Kervian, Jr.	Turf
Terry Kennedy	Arboriculture and Park
David Haines, III	Arboriculture & Park
Danny Hogan	Restaurant and Hotel
Frank Powers, Jr.	Fruit and Vegetable Crops
William Cote	Arboriculture and Park
Paul White	Turf
Ronald Cordonnier	Landscape Oper.
Carl Hawk	Restaurant and Park
Harry Mohia, Jr.	Arboriculture and Park
Wayne Ottani	Arboriculture and Park
Larry French	Animal Science
Alan Provost	Arboriculture and Park
William Teece, Jr.	Turf
Claude Benoit	Arboriculture and Park
Delbert Garlepy	Arboriculture and Park

(Twenty-eighth annual election by Stockbridge Faculty Advisory Committee to encourage and recognize high scholastic ability and sound practical training. Average grade must be 3.4 quality points or better to qualify. Names placed in order of rank.)

CLASS OF 1967

Following is a list of senior students whose average grade for three semesters is 3.0 through 3.3 quality points. Names are placed in order of rank.

David Hine	Floriculture
Maxine Glickman	Floriculture
Peter Houle	Turf
Brice Thomas	Food Distribution
Daniel Alexander	Landscape Operations
James Fitzroy	Turf
David Dunlavey	Turf
Carol Stentiford	Floriculture
Michael Kasavana	Restaurant and Hotel
John Coughlin	Wood Utilization
Myron Cook	Animal Science
Vincent DiPietro	Arboriculture and Park
Oliver Leach	Turf
George Sherman	Restaurant and Hotel
Charles Vidoli	Restaurant and Hotel
Ernest Meligren	Arboriculture and Park
Robert Gorman	Wood Utilization
Arthur Clapp	Animal Science
Paul Wojtkowski	Wood Utilization
Ronald Lurie	Floriculture
Alan Downey	Dairy Technology
Susan Kinner	Floriculture
Francis Mikulis, Jr.	Arboriculture and Park
David Francis	Arboriculture and Park
James Harrington	Wood Utilization
Richard Welch	Arboriculture and Park
Richard Ahern	Arboriculture and Park
David Beli	Restaurant and Hotel
Robert Clark	Turf
James von Berg	Arboriculture and Park
Arthur Stuart, Jr.	Wood Utilization

The following have completed two semesters.

Norman Bartlett	Turf
Joseph Newman	Wood Utilization
Raymond Motha	Agriculture and Bus. Mgt.
Brian Douillette	Arboriculture and Park

CLASS OF 1968

Following is a list of freshman students whose average grade for one semester is 3.0 or better quality points. Names are placed in order of rank.

Lynn Ball	Wood Utilization
Ingrid Berg	Animal Science
Thomas Bernier	Floriculture
Brian Parker	Fruit and Vegetable Crops
Arthur Hall	Turf
Forrest Symmes, III	Restaurant and Hotel
Donald Brainerd	Turf
Robert Allen	Turf
William Griggs	Floriculture
Leigh Roak	Floriculture
Stephen Schilier	Arboriculture and Park
Richard Anderson	Animal Science
Paul Wagner	Animal Science
John Clement	Arboriculture and Park
Dana Street	Animal Science
John Harcovitz	Animal Science
Frank Cadillac, Jr.	Landscape Oper.
John Parquette, Jr.	Arboriculture and Park
Peter Jakubowicz	Animal Science
Peter Joy	Wood Utilization
David Wiewel	Animal Science
Christopher Gredler	Animal Science
Robert Hamond	Arboriculture and Park
Edward Shaw	Animal Science
Paul Slomski	Restaurant and Hotel
Joseph Strzemienski	Animal Science
David Weaver	Animal Science
Edwin R. Gould	Animal Science
Thomas Grace	Animal Science
George Hathaway	Landscape Oper.
Glenn Beiloli	Arboriculture and Park
Howard Fife, Jr.	Arboriculture and Park
David Sears	Arboriculture and Park
Gerald Ahern	Food Distribution
Robert Minor	Wood Utilization
David Freiday	Landscape Operations
James Mytkowicz	Arboriculture & Park
Daniel Furmanik	Fruit and Vegetable Crops
Edward Silvia	Fruit and Vegetable Crops
Peter Adams	Dairy Technology
Peter McErlain	Animal Science
Gary Hosley	Animal Science
William Mitkoff	Landscape Operations
James Casselman	Landscape Operations
Charles Lane	Turf
Louis Tacy	Turf
Frank Van Mourik	Food Distribution
Frank Buczek	Fruit and Vegetable Crops
Robert Fenneli	Arboriculture and Park
Robert Baj	Turf
Thomas Caputi	Turf
Mark Shapiro	Restaurant and Hotel
David Goranson	Arboriculture and Park
Margaret Reardon	Restaurant and Hotel
Philip Brown	Animal Science
David Muszynski	Floriculture
James Webster	Landscape Operations
Richard Woodger	Animal Science
Thomas Lavoie	Arboriculture and Park
Daniel Donaldson	Restaurant and Hotel
Francis Kempisty	Restaurant and Hotel
John Peterson	Restaurant and Hotel
Richard Warriner, Jr.	Landscape Oper.
Scott Thomson	Restaurant and Hotel
Richard Byam	Animal Science
James Damian	Turf
Patrick Green	Fruit and Vegetable Crops
Richard Kirby	Arboriculture and Park
Joseph Mondor	Turf
Franklin Murphy, III	Animal Science
Edward Robie	Wood Utilization
Peter Schofield	Fruit and Vegetable Crops

One of the most widely-read novelists of our time, author of The Man and The Prize and the forthcoming The Plot now writes of 21 MOMENTS OF TRUTH, among them:

The Man Who Hated Hemingway

Don't Call Her Madam

The Man Who Swindled Goering

all in the pages of

THE SUNDAY GENTLEMAN

BY IRVING WALLACE

"...Wallace writing at his best." Library Journal

"...a feeling for mood and character; a responsive eye; a recording ear; an individuality..." Los Angeles Times

"Amusing and expert..." London Times

"...well-written, altogether human and absorbing..." New York Post

"...consistently interesting..." Chicago Tribune

$5.95 original edition now only 75¢

Published by POCKET BOOKS First in Paperbacks

The Brothers of

TAU KAPPA EPSILON

invite freshmen and upperclassmen

to an

OPEN SMOKER

INFORMAL

TKE

10:00 P.M.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22

SWING-SHIFT FRESHMEN

NOW ACCEPTING APPLICATIONS

FOR CLASS OF '70

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

APPLY R.S.O. OFFICE

Mareno, Vyce Only Sure Starters in UMass Outfield

Fence To Be Built by Opening Day

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Last year the UMass baseball field had no fences, so an outfielder could range back to intercontinental distances and still make a catch.

Last year one outfielder nearly fell into a ditch chasing down a ball in deep center field, and a homer was hit over a wire fence into a cow pasture 468 feet away.

This year a fence will be put up around the outfield before the season opens April 14th. The hitters will be happier, and so will the outfielders, who won't be forced to run out of earshot of the infield.

The Redmen outfield that will be cavorting in this pro-type milieu will greatly miss graduated centerfielder Terry Swanson. Swanson batted .358 and could cover ground as well as any outfielder in New England.

UMass rookie coach Dick Bergquist nevertheless has two returnees to play left and center. Right field is still a question mark as Bergquist tries to figure a way to fill Swanson's shoes in the outfield.

The leftfielder will be Co-Captain Ted Mareno, a senior who was platooned by Earl Lorden in right last spring. Mareno saw a lot of action towards the end of the season, and wound up with an impressive .333 BA.

Mareno is a strong swinger. "He really attacks the ball," said Bergquist. Mareno still needs work defensively, according to the coach, but he has a strong arm, which combined with his bat should make him one of the standouts on the squad.

The centerfielder, junior Alex Vyce, will be one of Bergquist's more seasoned ball players. A picture of versatility who can also play first and pitch, Vyce batted .340 a year ago.

He can occasionally hit the long ball, and on a team without much power hitting, he'll be one of the more potent homer threats. Defensively, Alex has a fairly good arm. Without a doubt, he will form the backbone of the outfield.

There is only one other listed outfielder on the squad, junior Dick Hale. A soccer player who didn't play baseball last spring, Hale is a hard-working, all-around player. He is one of the fastest men on the team and he has a strong arm.

Bergquist can be expected to juggle his outfield in the early stages to find the right combination. Some of the more prominent possibilities are infielders Don Ferron and Elliott Klein and even pitchers Carl Boteze and John Canty, both of whom can hit.

Catching is probably the biggest question mark of them all. With the graduation of Jim Kuczynski, who played every game behind the plate last year, there is a four-way battle going on at that position. All four appear to have an equal chance.

One of them is senior Bill Breen, a two-year veteran who has seen very little action in the shadow of Kuczynski. Breen is a fine defensive backstop with a good arm. If his hitting improves, he may find himself in the lineup.

Football player Ernie Smith, a junior, is giving it a try after playing linebacker for Vic Fusia. Bergquist describes him as a hustler, but since it is Smith's first time out, the coach can't really pass judgment on him yet.

Two sophomores are also trying out. Tony Chinappi, an outfielder on last year's frosh team, is a long ball threat with a good glove. The other potential catcher is Ed Lagoy, the biggest backstop on the team but one who needs experience.

Since no one has genuine varsity experience, it should be a toss-up between these four.

ALEX VYCE

TED MARENO

Spring Soccer

There will be a meeting for all those interested in spring soccer on Tuesday, April 4th at 6:30 p.m. All freshmen and sophomore candidates are urged to attend as spring practice is held specifically for their benefit. Also any junior who plans to play next fall is invited. If anyone has questions contact co-captains Dick Hale 546-6110, Gerry Cellilli 546-7119.

Nine Depart For Dixie Fri.

The team will depart on their annual Southern trip on Friday, with three games slated at Clemson on the 27th, 28th and 29th, two at Erskine College in South Carolina on the 30th and 31st, and one at North Carolina's Pembroke State on April 1.

Clemson figures to be one of the best teams in the Atlantic Conference. The Tigers are also known for their notoriously short fences.

Bergquist is looking forward to the trip and says "it will be great for the kids." Although the games will count, he will try to do a little experimentation with his lineups. Of course, none of the pitchers will be able to go the distance so early in the season.

Summing up the outlook for the entire season, Bergquist said, "I'm enthusiastic about it. We have a good nucleus. There are just a few question marks right now, but we have wonderful team spirit and we're all looking forward to the season."

For Skiers Only

by KITTY and KELLY

Ever notice personalities on the ski slope?

First you have Jean-Claude Lampberg, the coolest person on the slope. He has buster brown ski boots with wool socks rolled neatly over the top. His faded blue jeans (which he lovingly calls dung-erees, after his Vermont grandfather) are next and they are held up by bright red suspenders. The upper attire might have anything from a pea-coat to a painter jacket.

Next comes "Little Miss Muffit". Her attire is right out of Vogue. Of course she didn't bring skis, but then that would ruin all her fun. Her place is in front of the fire, drinking beer and lending moral support to the injured racer.

The injured racer is none other than "Tick Kodowski" who hurt his knee taking his beer out of the cooler. Well, he didn't want to race anyway, the six-year-olds had it won. He'd call a foul but they might reconsider and make him race...Can't snow the women when you actually have to compete.

He'd rather "sop suds" with "Muffit".

The greatest and most adept looking individual on the slopes of New England is the Umie co-ed. She is gracious, gorgeous and gifted. Her sole purpose is to spend as little money as possible, have the most fun and drink all there is to drink. She comes equipped with church-key, wax (for derriere-sliding parties), colored longjohns (for ski school initiations), tight-fitting black sweaters (for hitchhiking) and a pseudo-foreign accent.

The Umie male doesn't dare take to the slopes. He thinks his appearance would not be in keeping with the University's policy of apathy towards outdoor sports. Besides the "sheing" is better at the Drake.

On the local scene, the Cosby Avenue boys may have lost during the Winter Carnival toboggan races, but they made up for it during the St. Pattie's drink-and-ski party. "Fouds" won the green beer slalom while the rest of the "Ave" took the combined.

Remember, during spring vacation the "Emmits" and the "Fraids" are your host. Treat them as such. Ski heil.....

OPEN LETTER TO THE CLASS OF 1969

For the past year I have noted with dismay the ineffectual administration of the affairs of our class. Numerous petty personality conflicts and internal struggles have seriously hampered the effective operation of class business.

Mismanagement at the executive level, coupled with lack of direction, has merely added to the confusion. Only through the efforts of the Executive Council has the class government avoided complete paralysis.

I intend to substantiate these allegations in the very near future. With the hope that I will be given the chance to do better I am announcing my candidacy for the Presidency of the Class of 1969.

Sincerely,
ROBERT J. JOYCE

'PLAYBOY NITE'®
TICKETS
are now available to
ALL CLASSES
today thru friday
$5.00 per couple $2.50 single
☆ PLAYBOY CLUB® ENTERTAINMENT
☆ FREE PLAYBOY CLUB® LIGHTERS
☆ PLAYMATES®
☆ COMPLETE BUFFET DINNER
☆ DOOR PRIZES – free subscriptions
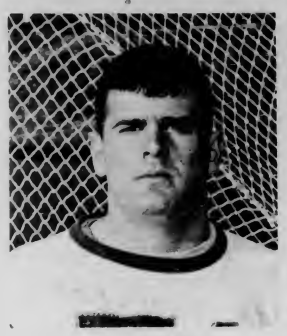
Table reservations in S.U. Lobby
SEMI - FORMAL
Sponsored by the Class of '69
MAKE RESERVATIONS BY THURSDAY

WHEN : MARCH 22, 1967
7:30-9:00 P.M.
WHERE: GOVERNOR'S LOUNGE
UPSTAIRS AT THE STUDENT UNION
WHAT : SMOKER
WHO : PHI SIGMA KAPPA
WHY : BE A LEADER AND NOT A FOLLOWER

Spirit, Stick-handling Lift Lacrosse Prospectus

by JOE DUFFY
Staff Reporter



Lacrosse coach Dick Garber enters his 13th season this spring, and unless he hits a streak of bad luck, this should be one of his more productive teams.

Led by senior tri-captains Howie Goffman, Bob Murphy and Kevin O'Brien, this year's team will be trying to improve on last season's 7-5 record.

Garber thinks the key factor this year will be "the great amount of spirit and enthusiasm in this squad." It will also be the best stick-handling unit he has had in a dozen years.

The spirit and the stick-handling will bring the crowds, Garber hopes.

The goalie situation is the best in years. The coach faces the pleasant problem of choosing between two adept candidates. Junior Bill Sinclair, who moved from attack to the goal as a freshman

FRED FOLEY

BILL SINCLAIR

KEVIN O'BRIEN

and was effective in the varsity nets last year, appears to have the inside track this year. His rival is soph Mark Schlossberg, the goalie from last season's undefeated frosh team.

On the defense, it appears that seniors Fred Foley and Bob Goglck along with junior Walt Alessi will fill the starting roles, with Ira Yavner also seeing plenty of action. Sophs Tom Tufts, Jim Pye and Kevin Collins are keeping the rest of the defensemen on their toes, and any one of them could move into a starting position during the season.

Since the Redmen have only two returning attackmen, a wide open battle is being waged up front. Senior Goffman, the diminutive creaseman, who started every game for the Redmen last year, is back. Speedy Peter Aiken, who missed last year because of a broken wrist, should become a major asset this season.

The balance of the attack will probably be chosen from four highly-touted sophomores—Kevin O'Connor, Gary Vassar, Brad Herling and Don Agnoli.

More Sports
Page 9

In lacrosse, the goal, defense and attack positions usually remain unchanged in the course of a game, but the midfield lines are shuffled often, since they roam about the entire field.

Coach Garber is planning on two units that he can use interchangeably. The first group will probably be composed of seniors O'Brien and Murphy, with junior Marty Kalikow. On the other middle line will be hefty senior Don Rana, soph Steve Connolly, and junior Gary Palardy.

Also slated for considerable action are George Zebrowski, Bill De Rosa, Rick Molander and a large crop of sophomores.

The team has been at work for over a month, and the fruits of their enthusiastic labors are scheduled to be put to the test a week from Thursday when the Redmen host Oberlin in the season opener. The game, of course, stands a good chance of being postponed because of the weather, but the players will be staying on campus over the vacation to prepare for the season.

The Redmen played an indoor "box lacrosse" game at Rutgers last week, a high-scoring duel that Rutgers came from behind to win, 17-13. Coach Garber felt the Redmen worked exceptionally well together for the amount of time they had practiced.

If the spirit of this talented club continues, Garber thinks, it could be one of the best Redmen lacrosse teams in years.

The New England Lacrosse League in which UMass participates looks to be well-balanced this year. First place appears to be a tossup.

Coach Garber noted the consistent rise in the quality and balance of the N.E. League. Garber credits the improvement to an upsurge in the popularity of lacrosse in secondary schools. He feels that a recent move by the Massachusetts Principals Association banning spring football across the state should make lacrosse increasingly popular.

On April 1, the team travels to Harvard to compete in a round-robin lacrosse tournament with Harvard, Tufts and the Boston Lacrosse Club.

Two new opponents have been added to this year's schedule—Trinity and Australia (that's right). The Australian national team, en route to Canada, for an international lacrosse tournament, will stop in Amherst May 11 to battle the Redmen. The team is optimistic about scheduling a return match next year —away.

* * *

Lacrosse fans are reminded of the annual North-South All-Star Game which will be played June 10 at Alumni Stadium. The contest, for which only seniors will be eligible, is sure to enhance the status of lacrosse at UMass and in the New England area. The Redmen's strongest contenders should be Howie Goffman, Kevin O'Brien and Fred Foley.

Coach Chosen For North-South Lacrosse Game

Marshall S. Turner, president of the U.S. Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association, has announced the naming of George L. Mitchell as South Head Coach for the Star game.

The annual lacrosse spectacular, pitting the 48 best players in the country against each other, will take place Saturday, June 10, at UMass' Alumni Stadium.

Schedule

March	30	Oberlin	H
April	8	M.I.T.	H
	12	Wesleyan	H
	19	Middlebury	A
	22	Tufts	A
	25	Holy Cross	A
	29	Dartmouth	H
May	3	Amherst	H
	6	Connecticut	H
	10	New Hampshire	H
	11	Australia	H
	13	Trinity	A
	18	W.P.I.	H
Exhibition Games
April	14	Boston L.C.	H
	15	Back Bay L.C.	H
May	19	Conn. Valley L.C.	H

INTRAMURALS

KS Reigns Again

Kappa Sig captured the fraternity and campus crown for the second year in a row Monday night in the intramural wrestling championships before 250 in Boyden Auxiliary Gym. In the IFC, BKP finished runner-up with SPE third.

The Adams Flaming A's grabbed the dorm title with Chadbourne Maroons in second spot and Wheeler Trojans third.

Bob Beck (Mills) decisioned Tom Bates (BKP) by a 4-2 count in the 128-lb. class. Frank Reynolds (PSD) decisioned Dick DelGallo (Baker), 8-3, in the 137-lb. class. A 4-0 decision was recorded in the 147-lb class by Bill Borowik (Adams) over Ron Marsh (BKP), the defending champion.

Football standout Bob Detore (KS) outgrappled Grayson's Gary Burns by a 3-2 tune in the 157-lb. class.

In the 167-lb. class, Brian Domina (KS) decisioned Kent Hubbard of Grayson, 3-0. Another Kappa Sig, Fred Fitzpatrick, pinned Bob Proudman of Adams in the 177-lb. class.

ATG's Tom Rose pinned Scott Stover of Wheeler in 187-lb. competition. Ernie Smith (197 lb.) of KS pinned Joe Desisto of the Toads.

In the unlimited class, Bill Dailey (TEP) pinned Eric White of Chadbourne's Maroons.

CLAY . . .

(Continued from page 12)

pion filed two motions Tuesday in the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in an effort to prevent Clay from being inducted into the armed services at Louisville, Ky., on April 11.

One of the motions asked for a temporary restraining order to prevent Clay's induction because this would cause him "irreparable injury." The other motion sought permission to appeal a District Court decision that denied Clay such an injunction. The champion also has lost a number of draft board appeals.

The Fifth Column

by STEVE ROSS

The much - maligned Boston Stadium received a shot in the arm last week when it was announced that a $55 million domed stadium was proposed for Weston. The site, 12 miles west of the city, is at the intersection of the Massachusetts Turnpike and Route 128.

The commission also suggested that the Mass. Turnpike Authority build and operate the stadium. The stadium will hold 52,000, have 12,000 parking spaces, and be financed by up to $3 million yearly by unclaimed gas tax rebates due motorists who use the Turnpike. The state legislature must empower the Turnpike Authority to float a bond issue to build and control the stadium.

The facility, to be open year round, would have two chief tenants, the baseball Red Sox and the football Patriots. Two soccer teams slated to start play next year could also occupy the stadium as well as major college football games, political conventions, and other major events.

* * *

The Boston Stadium has been kicked about like a soccer ball since 1962. Since then, 10 other cities have constructed stadiums for their teams. Some have been privately financed, others have been financed by the state, but all have been built. They offer the fans a clear view of the field, adequate parking, and have assured their loyal following that their charges wouldn't be whisked off to another city.

Boston fans, the most loyal in the country, have suffered with Fenway Park. For baseball, the good seats are limited, although the stands are close to the action. Parking space is inadequate. For football, it is a nightmare. A small percentage of the 36,000 seats are between the goal lines. Most fans refuse to pay $5.00 for seats behind the end zone.

The Weston stadium, proposed for completion by the 1970 football season, is far more realistic than the original $98 million garage-stadium planned for the center of the Hub two years ago. The new stadium should insure an NFL franchise. The NFL rules specify that teams must play in stadiums with a minimal seating capacity of 50,000.

* * *

The Red Sox have been unable to build a strong pitching staff. One reason is because of the infamous left-field wall. Lazy fly balls, caught in all other parks, sail over or hit the wall for extra bases. A symmetrical park would eliminate this situation.

The only dissenters against the new proposal thus far have been the residents of Weston. They claim that a stadium would bring an overflow of traffic to the town and ruin one of the few rural communities in the Greater Boston area.

The plan is realistic. It is unfortunate that the community doesn't want the stadium, but it is doubtful if any suburban town would favor being the focal point for thousands of cars and mammouth traffic tie-ups.

There wouldn't be any trouble getting the land because the state has control over some of it. With costs rising consistently, the stadium should be built now.

He: Hortense . . . they're playing our song!

She: Yes, Edgar, it brings back those wonderful days when we first met in the lobby of the Sheraton-Atlantic Hotel . . . seven years ago.

He: Seven wonderful years . . . and every college vacation since then we've been coming back to New York and the Sheraton-Atlantic. For Thanksgiving, Christmas, Mid-years, Spring vacations . . .

She: And the Sheraton-Atlantic has such convenience to theatres, museums, libraries, Lincoln Center, Fifth Avenue shops, and with such swinging restaurants right in the Hotel and dancing nightly and such low prices . . . no wonder we students always make out best at the Sheraton-Atlantic.

He: You were always such a romantic, darling.

STUDENT RATES:*

Single . . . . . $8.00 per person
Twin . . . . . 6.00 per person
Triple . . . . . 4.50 per person
Quad . . . . . 4.00 per person

Faculty rates are low too:
Single . . . $8 • Twin . . . $12

For reservations contact your Sheraton Student Representative or in Boston dial (617) HU 2-2004 for immediate confirmation of student rates.

*Student rates do not apply March 17-18, 1967.

SHERATON-ATLANTIC HOTEL Broadway and 34th St., N.Y., N.Y. 10001 (212) PE 6-5700
Ralph Hitz Jr., V. P. & Gen. Mgr.

Folks "in the know" know where to go!

Customers who have learned by experience or who have been told about the way we treat folks come in "just to look" or to buy. But always . . . we are proud to serve. Here are the very newest and finest in diamond rings offered to reflect utmost value.

Fine diamond in one of our loveliest rings.

$100.00

Easy payments

WINN Jewelers

253-3986

THE SEASON THAT WAS . . .

Just Go for the Big One, the Track Coach Said

by TERRY CARPENTER

UMass varsity track coach Bill Footrick has said that it is infinitely better to lose all dual meets and win the Conference meet than to win all dual meets and lose the marbles.

This year the indoor track team almost followed the philosophy to the letter. The team won only one of three dual meets but cleaned house in the Yankee Conference Championships at Durham, N. H. The amiable coach thereby added another Conference title to the list which now includes four consecutive crowns and eight in the past five years.

The team first faced Northeastern, a squad that had been undefeated in track for more than 20 meets, extending back several years. The outcome was predictable, a win for the Huskies.

Bright spots in the meet for the Redmen were the victories by Art Larvey and Terry Carpenter in the broad jump and mile, respectively.

The next meet was against U-Conn and it was generally conceded that the success of the brief dual season hinged on the match's outcome.

UMass fell behind in the field events, as expected, but was unable to make up lost ground in the track events. The most exciting events were the distance runs. Bill Young of the Huskies nipped Greg Bowman of UMass in the last yard of the mile. In the two-mile, Redmen Paul Hoss thundered past Young on the last lap to defeat him soundly.

The runners came up with sweeps in all the other events and took the relay, but fell seven points short of catching up. The win for UConn marked the Huskies as favorites in the Conference meet.

The team's final dual meet at New Hampshire turned out to be a rout for the Redmen. Count Bassett started off the program with an upset win in the 35-lb. weight, putting the shot 49 feet.

The trend continued as John Arianson won the high jump; Carpenter and Bowman swept the mile; Hoss, Steve St. Clair and Charley Lang took the two-mile and Diego Gonzales, Carpenter and Bowman swept the 1000.

The Redmen's domination of track events here was a preview of what was to happen later in the Conference meet.

In the Yan Con Championships, UConn's expected domination of the field events never materialized. The Huskies failed to place anyone on the pole vault, traditionally one of their strongest events.

Art Larvey nipped the UConn long jumper by less than an inch for the event. Bill Tindall upset defender Matson with a record leap in the high jump. Despite these performances, the Redmen trailed after the field events, but by less a margin than had been anticipated.

In the running events the Redmen outscored the rest of the Conference combined. Grabbing three places in each of the 60-yard dash, 600-yard run and the two-mile, UMass sprinted away from the other schools with a display of depth seldom seen in recent Yan Con competition.

Steve Burrell, Larvey and Art Hasselbaum scored in the dash; John Anderson, Gonzales and Bill Thoms did the damage in the 600 and Hoss and St. Clair took 1-2 in the two-mile with Long grabbing fourth spot.

The duel between Young of UConn and Carpenter of UMass never came about. Young came up with the flu and failed to perform up to par. Carpenter and Bowman easily took 1-2 in the event.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Fred Mackler

POOL-SIDE PARLEY—Swim captain Dick Lennon talks things over with Coach Joe Rogers after swimmers had compiled a 4-6 record during the past season.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kevin Gilbride

AND STILL CHAMPION—Members of the UMass track team are (first row, from left) Paul Hoss, Bob Hasselbaum, Marc Gelinas, (second row) Bill Thoms, Greg Bowman, Steve Burrell, Charley Lang, (third row) Asst. Coach Ken O'Brien, Peter Moryl, Steve St. Clair, Bill Wilen, Coach Bill Footrick, (fourth row) Diego Gonzales, Art Larvey, Mike Sheeley, Terry Carpenter, Manager Bob Sawyer.

The season's windup turned out to be anti-climactic for the trackmen. At the UConn Relays, UMass broke two records, but wound up with only two second place finishes.

In the distance medley, the team of Anderson (:49-440), Gonzales (1:56-880), Hoss (3:08-1320) and Carpenter (4:20-mile) broke an old record by three seconds at 10:14, but finished second to Central Connecticut.

The sprint medley team of Anderson (:50-440), Burrell (:23-220), Larvey (:23-220) and Bowman (1:55-880) also broke an existing record but was only good for second behind Boston College.

The other team to grab a place during the relays was the 2-mile relay squad. Carpenter did the half-mile in 2:00, Thoms in 2:00, Gonzales in 1:58 and Hoss in 2:01. The total time was good enough for third place.

New school record set by the indoor track team this season were plentiful. Burrell ripped off a 6.2 in the 60-yard dash for a school and Conference mark. Anderson ran a 1:12.6 600-yard run to break his own record by 1.1 seconds.

Bowman broke Assistant Coach Ken O'Brien's record of 2:15.0 in the 1000 with a time of 2:14.7. Carpenter broke Bob Brouillet's school and Conference marks in the mile with a clocking of 4:14.1. And Tindall smashed both the school and Conference records in the high jump by clearing 6'6".

The Report on the Pros

Toner Signs with Boston Patriots

How is UMass faring with regard to pro football?

There were no UMass football players chosen in the recent pro draft, but . . .

Of the current senior class, the two players who were drafted as futures last year have both signed. Two-time All-Yankee Conference tackle Ed Toner signed with the Boston Patriots Monday morning.

Toner had been drafted by both the Pats and the Baltimore Colts after the 1965 season, and although both teams made similar offers, the Lynn native decided on Boston because of the prospect of playing close to home.

Toner's teammate Bob Ellis signed as a potential defensive back with the Cleveland Browns last December 27. The tight end on the same team, of course, is Milt Morin '66.

Three of Morin's ex-classmates are still involved with the pros. End Bob Meers, who was cut by Minnesota last year, is reported to be heading for the San Diego Chargers.

Green Bay's Phil Vandersea, who picked up a Super Bowl check last season, was picked by the expansion New Orleans club in last month's player pool.

And linebacker Bernie Dallas has another year left on his contract with the Philadelphia Bulldogs of the Continental Football League, but he is uncertain about his future football career.

WHELCHEL

DALLAS

MEERS

Who will hit the big time?

Quarterback John McCormick '62 is still with the Denver Broncos. Another former UMass signal-caller, Jerry Welchel, now under a San Diego contract, is reportedly headed for the Patriots.

Besides Ellis and Toner, other members of last fall's squad with pro leanings are Rod Brooks, Dick Qualey and Dave Giarla, all of whom will probably be trying out as free agents.

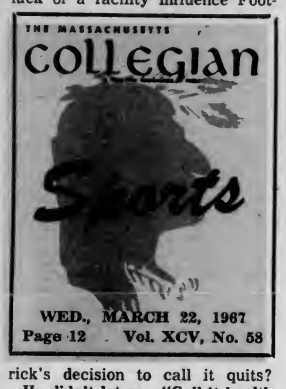
Final Intramural Volleyball Standings

DORMITORY — NORTH
Butterfield Lemons	5-0
Grayson Flaming A	4-1
Brett Chestnuts	2-3
Butterfield Limes	2-3
Grayson Aces	2-3
Grayson Phillies	0-5
SOUTH
James Colt 45's	5-1
Kennedy Patriots	5-1
Kennedy Panthers	4-2
James Comanchees	3-3
Kennedy Jaguars	2-4
Kennedy Cougars	0-6
Kennedy Colonials	0-6
EAST
Chadbourne Maroons	7-0
Greenough Grants	5-2
Baker Buffaloes	4-3
Chadbourne Eagles	4-3
Greenough Giants	4-3
Washington Bulldozers	2-5
Baker Bruins	1-6
Washington Senators	0-7
WEST
Wheeler Trojans	5-0
Hills So. Hicks	3-2
Hills So. Hi-lo's	2-3
Gorman Maples	1-4
Hills No. Hoovers	1-4
Gorman Elms	0-5

TOWER
Adams Orig. Flaming A	7-0
Thatcher Redwoods	6-1
Adams Academics	3-4
Adams Spartans	3-4
Thatcher Hemlocks	3-4
Adams Appies	2-5
Adams Smashers	2-5
Adams Seagram 6	1-6
FRATERNITY — ATHENIAN
BKP	6-1
TC	6-1
SAM	5-2
TEP	4-3
SPE	3-4
APO	2-5
QTV	2-5
ZN	0-7
SPARTANS
AEPi	7-0
LCA	6-1
PSD	5-2
KS	4-3
PMD	3-4
TKE	2-5
ASP	1-6
ATG	0-7

INDEPENDENT—GRAD-FAC
Chem Club	5-0
Lucky 13's	3-2
Seiohsaas	3-2
Dufarbs	2-3
"A" Typs	1-4
Sched-Eds	0-5
AMERICAN
Upper Imps	4-1
Oddballs	4-1
Toads	3-2
Roman Numerals	2-3
Moots	1-4
Bismarks	0-5
NATIONAL
James Jaspers	5-0
Blueballs	4-1
Adams Forbidden Fruits	2-3
Wheeler Orgies	2-3
Phantoms	1-4
Tony's Tigers	0-5
INTERNATIONAL
Camoflague So.	5-0
Smitty's Day Camp	4-1
Lassie's Losers	3-2
Boilermakers	1-4
Forestry Club	1-4
Camoflague No.	0-5

Footrick Eyes The Finish Line



by TOM FITZGERALD
Sports Editor

"I've no heart in this thing anymore" was the saddest thing Bill Footrick said Monday as he announced his planned retirement as UMass track and cross-country coach.

His 13th season will be his last.

The guy who for the past two years has driven his teams over to the Amherst College track for practice said he didn't want to quit with a bitter taste in his mouth.

The University may have the tallest buildings in the commonwealth west of Boston. It still doesn't have a track. Did the lack of a facility influence Footrick's decision to call it quits?

He didn't let on. "Call it health or personal reasons," he said, in an almost joking manner.

"I've been teaching and coaching for 35 years, and I'm hitting 59, you know. I'm no young chicken," he laughed.

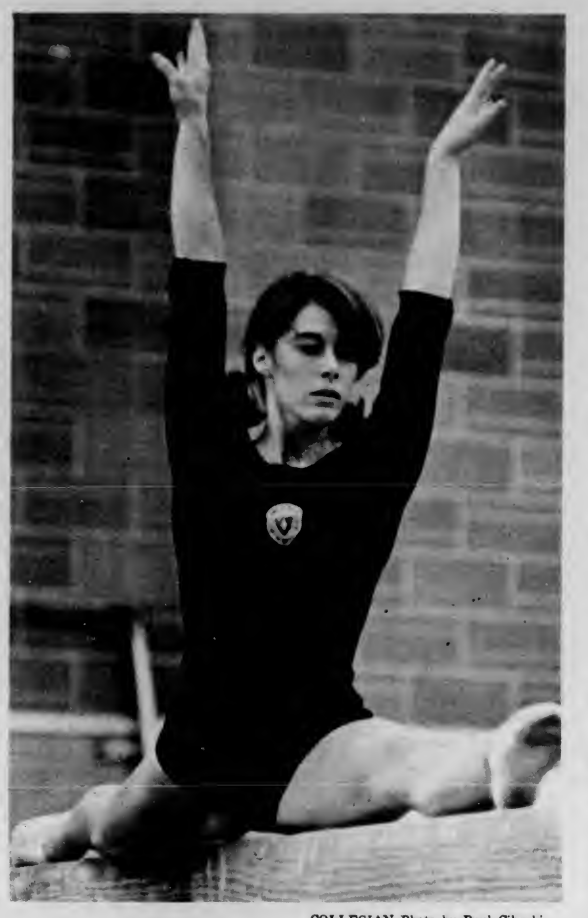
Footrick still plans to continue as a physical education instructor.

"I'm no young man and I want to quit at the top of the ladder," he said. In terms of Yankee Conference Championships in track and cross-country, Footrick is the most successful coach at UMass.

The trim, white-haired coach picked up his Bachelor's and Master's degrees from Springfield College in the '30s and coached all sports at Gardner High School until 1954, when he came to UMass.

The man who never missed a track practice at UMass, even when he was on crutches in '62 with a pulled tendon, said that he has "lost my enthusiasm. Most of the kids that I was concerned about are leaving this year. I haven't done any recruiting in three years."

He noted the strong contribution of his assistant, Ken O'Brien.



"The kids love him," Footrick said "They'd never know I was gone if I left now."

In the hubbub over the delay in the track construction, Footrick has remained the silent party "I've never been consulted on the track. And I have no idea where it's going to go or anything.. But I do know the money was there when the stadium was built."

When Alumni Stadium was being planned, it was Footrick who proposed to the Athletic Council that a track be incorporated in the structure, with Harvard Stadium as a model. His idea, of course, was never carried out.

Since then he has tried to stay aloof from the matter. "I just wanted to win championships here and that's it," he said, smiling.

For Track Review
See Page 11

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

ON THE BEAM — Sophomore Sue Clancy, pictured during her routine on the balancing beam, will be in action tonight at 7 p.m. when the women's gymnastics team meets Southern Illinois State College and the Southern Connecticut Gymnastics Club in the Boyden Auxiliary Gym.

Women Gymnasts Host Olympians In 3-Team Meet

The UMass women's gymnastics team undertakes its most ambitious task of the season tonight at 7 p.m. in the Boyden Auxiliary Gym when it plays host to two teams laden with the nation's finest female gymnastics talent.

Southern Illinois State College has been national collegiate champion for the past four years and boasts a strong all-around performer in Donna Schanze, a member of the U. S. national gymnastics team.

Miss Schanze competed in the world championships last fall in Dortmundt, Germany.

Southern Connecticut Gymnastics Club, a private organization, lists two former Olympic performers. One, Doris Brausie Fuchs, is currently ninth in the world in the uneven parallels. It is doubtful that she will compete here, however, because of her training schedule.

Her absence will be made up for by the presence of Carolyn Hacker, another former Olympian.

The task of the Redwomen is further complicated by recent injuries to Marianne Daves and Linda Benney, two of Miss Kitty Kjeldsen's top performers. Both are out with knee injuries.

T.F.M.

Just a Note...

The Back Page Majority extends to all its readers best wishes for the laziest of spring vacations.

Remember — the "Hot Line" area code is 413.

Also, with the spring sports coming up, we'll need all the help we can get. So if you've got the time, come on in when you get back . . .

Glatz to Take Prep School Post

Fred Glatz, end coach of the UMass football team for the last seven years, will move into the position of head football coach and head of physical education at St. John's Prep of Danvers, it was announced yesterday at a press conference in that city.

Glatz, a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh who came to UMass with Head Coach Vic Fusia, will assume his new post in August. St. John's was last year's Class B co-champion in football.

His departure will be the second coaching loss for the Redmen since last season ended. Ted Schmitt left football to take over the UMass intramural office last December.

After graduating in 1956 from Pitt, where he won grid letters during his junior and senior years, Glatz played with the Pittsburgh Steelers for a year before entering the service.

Glatz returned to Pitt after his discharge to work on his master's degree.

In 1959 he served as end coach on the Massachusetts staff under Coach Charlie O'Rourke and the following year he was end coach at Boston College before returning to the University.

Clay Seeks Reversal Of Draft Decision

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cassius Clay, who seems to have no worry about his opponent in tonight's title fight, is asking a Federal Court to overrule his draft board's earlier decision against him.

An attorney for the 25-year-old heavyweight boxing cham-

(Continued on page 10)

NBA Picks

The Back Page Majority is at it again, the game of calculating the future. (There are those who feel the group has trouble enough with the past.) The following list of predictions on the National Basketball Association playoff champion is entitled "A Simple Desultory Philippic against Wilt Chamberlain (or How I was Bill Russelled into Submission)."

Tom FitzGerald — Celts
Harvey Elman — Celts
Steve Lotterman — Celts
Glenn Briere — 76ers
Tim Murphy — Celts
Rocky Jarnes — Celts
Mike Gould — Celts
Mike Curran — Hawks
Joe Duffy — Celts
Steve Ross — Celts
Roger Kipp — Royals
Tom Conuel — Celts
Tim Kelleher — Celts
John Kelly — Celts
Kitty Wells — Celts
Sam Spark — Red Sox
Lois — 76ers
Metawampe — Bulls

A Goalie with Saving Qualities

ON THE GO — UMass hockey goalie Ed Sanborn is shown in two characteristic poses. Sanborn, a senior, made 79 saves in a single game this season. What he did on the roads is his own business.

by NEIL RENNIE
Staff Reporter

A goalie who makes 79 saves in one week must be doing something right. Would you believe one game? UMass varsity netminder Ed Sanborn kicked the puck out that many times in his team's 8-0 whitewash at the hands of New Hampshire.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Neil Rennie

Sanborn was one of the main cogs on this year's team, which finished 8-10-1 only after losing its last five games.

During the season, Sanborn turned in many exceptional performances, including 59 saves against AIC, 44 against Bowdoin, and 43 in the first UNH game.

Sanborn, an economics major, will graduate in June. While fulfilling his military obligations, he hopes to continue playing hockey with the special forces team.

The 6'1", 180-lb. netminder was not very optimistic about the squad's chance for success early in the season. But he now comments that only the numerous injuries to key skaters kept the team from being "one of the best in UMass history."

Sanborn added that UMass was not a hockey-minded school and gave little support to the game. He feels, however, that interest will be revived with a new rink.

"The squad greatly admires and appreciates the assistance and coaching of Coach Kosakowski and Assistant Coach Dave Snyder," he said.

When You See
News In the Making
Dial the
"COLLEGIAN HOTLINE"
545-2550

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

WONDERFUL
TOWN
Page 7

VOL. XCV, NO. 59 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5, 1967

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki

Fire gutted the roof and caused extensive damage to the third floor of Alpha Epsilon Pi on 136 Sunset Ave. Monday afternoon. Loss was estimated at $9,000.

AEPi Gutted By $9,000 Fire

By TED FANTL
Staff Reporter

Fire gutted the roof and caused extensive damage to the third floor of Alpha Epsilon Pi on 136 Sunset Ave. Monday afternoon. Loss was estimated at $9,000.

The fire was discovered at 1:17 by fraternity brothers Richard Charloff and Larry Davidson. Amherst Fire Chief John T. Doherty said that the prompt action of these two students probably averted a more serious situation.

Charloff and Davidson saw smoke pouring from the house on returning from classes and alerted those in the house. Students called the University switchboard, and the call was relayed to the Amherst Fire Station.

Doherty said that an automatic alarm system did not work as the fire was in the wiring of the house.

While fire equipment was responding, house occupants fought the blaze with portable extinguishers.

Chief Doherty had praise for 16 volunteer UMass firefighters who aided the Amherst Fire department.

Doherty said that the definite cause and origin of the fire was in the second floor wiring. He added that wind was a "vexing factor" and made the firefighting operations difficult.

The fire was brought under control by 2:30 P.M. Extensive fire damage was found in the third floor walls and roof along with a large amount of water damage. The brothers of the house are presently occu-

(Continued on page 2)

Dining Commons Questionnaire Answered By 1900 Students

By PAT PETOW
Senior Reporter

Results of the recent Food Services Committee questionnaire were made public at the March 22 Student Senate meeting. The topics covered were "legal" transferability, breakfast hours, and public relations for the committee.

The committee was established by three senators last semester who asked the Food Service administration and the Dean of Students to meet with them on a regular basis.

Among the goals at the start were transferability of meal tickets, seconds, and a permanent, viable means of student administration exchange.

An unlimited seconds policy was implemented for this semester as the committee requested. On the questionnaire, 1727 students replied they were basically satisfied with the seconds policy. In presenting the figures, Lew Smith (James) said he was made very happy by this response.

The senator interpreted the 158 "no" answers as caused by the obvious instances of freeloaders making use of a clean plate.

In its campaign for legal transferability, the committee has been given one main rea-

(Continued on page 2)

Nomination papers are available in
R.S.O. office papers due
APRIL 14 BY 5:30
Primary—April 20
Student Union, 9:00-5:30
Final—April 27
Student Union, 9:00-5:30
Elections for class officers from the classes of 1968, 1969 and 1970.

Emerson Residents Protest Proposal of Eviction from Dorm

By RICK STAPLES
Staff Reporter

On Monday, April 3, the women of Ralph Waldo Emerson House, a low-rise of the Southwest Residential College, were informed that their house is to be made a men's dorm next year. The directive, from Area Co-ordinator Alice Sargent and the Southwest Master's Office brought a swift and angry reaction from Emerson residents.

The inhabitants hope to win reconsideration of their case by the Master's Office. By Monday night, a petition was in circulation requesting that the Emerson women be allowed to retain their home. As one resident put it, "We haven't done anything wrong, there is no damage or noise here. We are being tried and sentenced, without a chance to defend ourselves, simply because we exist."

As of press time this morning, it seems probable that the matter will be brought before the Southwest College Council at their weekly open meeting next Monday. The Sargent plan is expected to face strong opposition there.

Defending the proposal, Assistant Master John Hunt stated that at present there are three women's and one men's

(Continued on page 2)

Fraternity - Sorority Park in the Making

by MIKE CROWE
Staff Reporter

The Directors of Fraternity - Sorority Park, Inc. have announced plans for the development of a building program which will assist in meeting the special purpose housing needs of the University of Massachusetts.

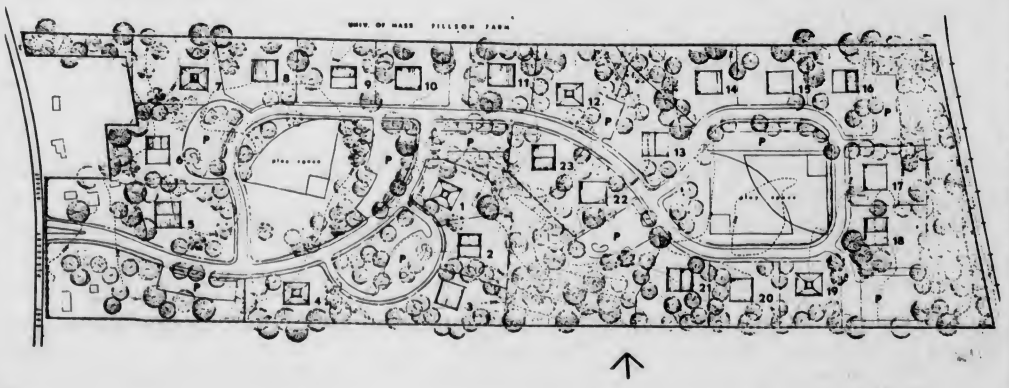
Mr. Robert Gaily, President of the Corporation, stated that the plans include the development of the Fraternity-Sorority Park on East Pleasant Street, which would provide adequate housing for the fraternities and sororities at the University and the construction of an apartment complex to replace the old fraternity and sorority houses on North Pleasant Street.

The newer fraternities and sororities will hopefully be converted to special purpose buildings for certain groups associated with the University.

Gailey said, "We feel that this organization can accomplish this project because we already own or control the land next to the University. We can keep the rentals at a lower figure with better construction because we can become eligible for 40 year 3% federal financing.

We have the cooperation of the Town and University Administration because we have the answer to several major problems facing each group. First, the cleaning up of one of the major entrances to the University, and second, if the complex is built, the property remains taxable for the Town of Amherst."

He went on to say that there were several advantages to the fraternities and sororities by this corporation taking on such a project. It would mean better financing for the individual fraternity and sorority houses as well as giving those houses moving into the park a buyer for their old houses.



"A private investor just couldn't afford to purchase and control the property as our corporation can because in reality the present or future stockholders already own the property," Gailey said.

Gailey, George Rogers, and other fraternity and sorority advisors are members of a group that has been negotiating with developers, investors, and major builders in the past few months. The project does not seem to have any major obstacles that cannot be overcome with the cooperation of the University and the town of Amherst.

There will be a meeting today in the S.B.A. building. National and campus representatives from fraternities and sororities will be present. Mr. Gailey will also discuss a comprehensive 60-page report which was recently distributed.

"When the project is completed, it should mean well over $10 million worth of taxable property for the town of Amherst," Gailey said. The di-

(Continued on page 2)

COLLEGIAN Photo by Robert Finley

SPRING IS COMING! Compare this view of campus, taken just before vacation, with the bright sun and warm grass which greeted returning UMies last Sunday.

TAX CREDITS MAY SPARK INCREASED TUITION RATES

By ERIC GOLDMAN
Staff Reporter

California Governor Reagan's proposed tuition increase for state colleges and universities has sparked heated debate on the subject in state institutions in Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Oregon and Texas. The issue confronting the legislatures is that of taxation versus tuition in the search for operating revenues.

Alarm has been created as result of a proposal in Congress that calls for a federal income tax credit for educational expenses, The National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges and the Association of State Colleges and Universities have jointly announced that the only way colleges could benefit from tax credits would be by hiking tuition, which would increase the burden of college costs that many families now bear.

Under the new proposal, relatively high-income families paying tuition of $1500 or more could deduct as much as $325 from their tax bills, whereas low income families paying little or no federal taxes would receive no benefits at all under the plan.

This tax credit approach would cost the U. S. Treasury at least 1 billion dollars during the first year alone. As a result, other federal aid programs to state institutions may very well suffer. Under these conditions, college trustees would be unable to avoid imposing higher tuition fees to offset federal cutbacks.

The associations feel that there are a number of affirmative ways by which federal funds can be used to prevent the rising cost of higher education to the individual. Increased support of existing national programs and new programs of institutional support offer sounder ways of providing assistance than tax credit.

It is their impression that through the wise use of the billion dollars that tax credit legislation would cost the Treasury each year, "many dramatic and worthwhile accomplishments" could be achieved for public and private education.

DINING COMMONS . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

son why the policy cannot be effected: it would cost more.

One member of the Food Services Committee called the figure of $22 an "unrealistic" estimate of increase in food costs if transferability were adopted. "But," continued Pat Petow, "the administration has a right to 'cover itself.' Unfortunately, it is not possible to debate the extent to which the $22 is made up of non-economic reasoning."

A clear "nyet" was sounded by students on favoring transferability with a price tag of $22: 1,729 opposed and 165 in favor. About 1,900 of the questionnaires were completed of a total 6,500 distributed.

The possibility is a good one that any amount of increase along with transferability or any "extra" would have been vetoed by the students.

The feeler on breakfast serving hours included in the survey asked whether students would make use of a 15 minute extension of the "hot breakfast" serving time.

On the survey, 1333 students said they ate breakfast between 7:00 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. Such an extension of the "hot breakfast" as proposed would not affect 1,209 students according to replies.

Some relation can be drawn, however, between the 682 students who eat breakfast between 8:30 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. and the 677 who would take advantage of an extension to 8:45.

Another question, lifted from the previous dining commons survey, asked, "Where do you usually eat on weekends?" The Senate was told only that the committee will be working on the weekend food situation.

In an attempt to assert its existence, the Food Services Committee asked students whether they had heard of it or its subordinate committees for each commons. About 230 students replied that they had had personal contact with the members of the Food Services Committee and another 230 had contact with the dining commons committee.

In a separate question, nearly 500 students said they were aware of the existence of committees for the commons.

Faculty Members Interviewed Concerning Student Compensation

By PAT FLAHERTY
Staff Reporter

To gain a better insight into the feasibility of paying students for participation in extracurricular activities, several members of the UMass faculty were interviewed on the question.

The faculty members drew from the experience of their past and also added their own suggestions in responding to the query. "Do you favor payment of students for participation in extracurricular activities?" The following are excerpts from their answers:

As an ex-collegiate copy-editor, Mrs. Nancy Gordon of the History Dept. does not favor monetary rewards for extracurricular activity participation. She says, "If students want freedom, they should not expect to be paid," payment would result in "obligations with limitations." Rewards should be kept off a materialistic plane, because she believes students should be free from obligation.

Dr. Samuel Himmelfarb of the Psychology Dept. feels that the valuable experience a student gains working for the paper should suffice for compensation. Reflecting upon his undergraduate days at UCLA, he remembered that the editor of their school newspaper received a small salary, but no one else to his knowledge benefited financially from student activities.

Salary for Collegian editors, while excluding other activities is favored by Professor O. L. Wilkinson of the Sociology Dept. His reasoning is that the newspaper involves more changeability in work schedule and responsibility for the staff on the editor's part, than any other student activity. This "demanding job" of the editor is also very time consuming; the editor, may be in need of financial aid, could be earning a salary elsewhere instead of devoting himself to the service of the campus.

The question is seen by Mr. William Brandon of the English Dept. as reflecting on the "dollar syndrome" in which our society is entangled. He speculates on a chain-reaction obligation; "if a Collegian reporter is paid, then a basketball player should be paid, then everyone who opens a book should be paid."

"If the activity requires more than a normal amount of time, and if it does not enable the student to carry a full academic load, then some kind of a salary would be in order." This view was posed by Professor Robert Elam, Instructor of History. With these qualifications in mind, he went on to warn that steps should be taken to prevent administrative control, "an undesirable condition" if salaries are paid.

He continued to endorse his response by emphatically favoring the same wages for students as for non-students in similar services rendered.

Using an example at Michigan State radio station WHAR to illustrate his view, Dr. Richard Harper of the Speech Dept. says their student announcers were paid 85¢ an hour. The students agreed that the financial remuneration did not affect performance; the idea of paying student announcers "puts a rank amateur into a semi-professional occupation."

Dr. Harper suggested two ways in which to run student activities: (1) Let students be as autonomous as possible, or (2) Have a resident manager, a professional with a salary, helped by volunteer student workers.

Dr. John Hunt of the English Dept. approves of payments on a selective basis. His criteria for payment involves the amount of time which the activity requires or the degree of "disagreeableness" of the job. For instance, Dr. Hunt advocates salaried positions for such students as editors, stage managers, and the managers of athletic teams, while he would not pay reporters, actors, or players themselves. In his judgment such payment would not lead to any administrative attempt to control participants or activities.

Interest, according to Mr. Van Steenberg of the History Dept., should motivate participation in activities. To emphasize his point and show that he practices what he preaches, Van Steenberg stated that he participates in many activities at the Southwest Residential college out of interest and enjoyment, not for money. He is not paid for these activities and does not feel that he should be.

The idea of salaries for activities intended for diversion and benefit has "mercenary overtones" in his mind. He considers that realization of such a plan would be "a sad comment on ourselves."

Payment of students for participation on the Collegian staff under present conditions is opposed by Dr. Robert W. French of the English Dept., because it is an extra-curricular activity dependent upon student funds. He also concludes that payment to participants would become a form of control.

But he adds, when newspapers operate as a "private business" as the student newspaper of Dartmouth, where he received his B.A., its participants should be paid from the profits received from sold subscriptions and coipes and advertisements.

EMERSON . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

low-rise in that corner of Southwest, and claimed that the objective is to balance the sexes among these dorms. Hunt pointed out that Emerson residents would have first choice of rooms in Mackimmie House, one of the new Sunset Avenue low-rises now under construction. The present Head of Residence of Emerson, Mrs. Leavitt, would be transferred to Mackimmie.

In a Collegian interview, Area Co-ordinator Alice Sargent explained that since Mackimmie is a larger house (238 residents, as opposed to 160 in Emerson), it was felt that it should be used for women, due to the problems of conduct and damage expected in a large men's dorm.

This rationale failed to mollify the embattled Emerson women, however. They object to being moved into a new and larger building, with attendant problems of "breaking it in." The women point out that Mackimmie House is in a far less pleasant location than Emerson, surrounded by Towers 4 and 5, with construction and mud all around. They feel that as present residents of a Southwest House, they should be entitled to keep their home.

Other Southwest residents have expressed indignation over the "arbitrary manner" of the directive. Student members of the Southwest Housing Policies Committee, a sub-committee of the Southwest College Council and Master's Office, claimed that they have been neither consulted nor informed about the move.

The committee has in the past recommended that Southwest as a whole be balanced as to sex, but had emphasized that no one should be evicted from their dorms to accomplish this. It was pointed out that the overall balancing could be as well accomplished by making Mackimmie House a new male dorm.

In a related development, Emerson's brother dorm, John F. Kennedy Middle House, is considering a petition of their own in support of their beleagered "sisters."

Emerson House is the smallest house in the area, and also one of the original "pioneer" Southwest dorms. Last year it was known as "Dorm D," and has had twice as long to develop as the other houses in the College. It was pointed out by some that the Emerson women were in Southwest before the Master's Staff! The residents state that they went through all the construction, mud, and so on last year, and don't want to put up with it all over again to "satisfy the whims of a balancing plan." They also emphasized the strong house spirit and smoothly running house government which they have built up over the last two years, and which would be disrupted by the move.

FIRE . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

pying the third floor of Berkshire House.

On the scene were State Fire Marshall Ralph Garrett and members of his staff. Garrett was in Amherst to confer with Doherty concerning fire protection facilities at UMass, and cooperation between the Town of Amherst and University officials.

FRATERNITY PARK . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

rectors of the project feel that the first stage of development should begin within two years and the final stage should be under way within five years to help meet the growing needs of our expanding University.

When completed Fraternity - Sorority Park will represent one of the admirable achievements of the University, an achievement by and for the students of UM.

ATTENTION: ALL WOMEN STUDENTS
Primaries for WOMEN'S JUDICIARY
Elections will be THURS., APRIL 6.
Get out and vote.

COMPLETE SERVICE
SAFE MOVING
DEPENDABLE STORAGE
EXPERT PACKING

Call GLEASON
MAYFLOWER
Pearl St., Northampton
584-6413—for estimate

AMHERST Cinema
NOW SHOWING at 6:50 - 9:00
Michelangelo Antonioni's first English language film starring
Vanessa Redgrave
BLOW-UP
co-starring
David Hemmings
Sarah Miles
NEXT • "A MAN AND A WOMAN"
SOON • "THE ENDLESS SUMMER"
SOON • "DOCTOR ZHIVAGO"

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

Bulletin

ITHACA, N. Y.—Ten persons, all believed to be students at Cornell Univ., were killed early today when fire swept through a residence hall near the campus, sheriff's deputies said.

The fire erupted in the Residence Club, a wood-frame building that housed members of a fraternity.

Vietnam

Terrorism to sabotage the transition to civilian government is increasing in South Vietnam.

* * *

South Korean patrols kill 41 Viet Cong. Bad weather over North Vietnam curtails U. S. air strikes.

* * *

Dr. Martin Luther King plans teach-ins, preach-ins and other demonstrations against the Vietnam war.

National

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—A St. Louis scientist reports a possible "exciting break - through" toward learning whether at least some human cancers are caused by viruses.

* * *

NEW YORK — The probable reason for Johnny Carson's announcement that he is quitting the Tonight show is a desire to renegotiate his $500,000 yearly contract with NBC while the AFTRA strike continues.

* * *

PEORIA, Ill—Witnesses testify Richard Speck, armed with gun and knife, was in a nearby tavern less than two hours before the eight nurses were murdered.

* * *

NAPLES, Fla. — A crumpled sheet of yellow paper serves Dr. Carl Coppolino as a scorecard on the efforts to seat 12 jurors in his second murder trial.

* * *

CUBA—An American who remained in Cuba after fighting in the Spanish - American War wants his U.S. citizenship back. He'd like it as a gift on his 100th birthday next week.

* * *

MIAMI, Fla. — Havana radio said today the Havana-based Latin-American Student Continental Organization—OCLAE—will call a student strike all over Latin America April 12 to protest the Inter-American summit conference opening on that date.

Washington

President Johnson and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy clashed again—this time over the White House-backed presidential election campaign financing law.

* * *

A federal judge says he will decide by Friday whether the courts can tell Congress to seat Adam Clayton Powell.

* * *

The Post Office Department has fined nine railroads since Jan. 1 on charges of delaying the mails.

Collegian Wire News Staff

EDITOR: Richard S. Kline
STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Roupenian
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini

Spanish War Veteran Seeks Citizenship Back

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An American who remained in Cuba after fighting the Spanish - American War is trying to get his U.S. citizenship back. He would like it as a gift on his 100th birthday next week.

"This is my country, and I want to die as an American," said Charles L. Leuthold.

Leuthold's daughter, Frances, who cares for him, asked Pres. Johnson to speed his citizenship. Ordinarily it takes five years to become a citizen.

Miss Leuthold wrote the President Tuesday: "Since he is old and feeble, I would like to ask you if citizenship could be restored in time for his 100th birthday, April 14. That would make him very happy."

Leuthold declared: "I'd go to Cuba again to help free the country a second time. I think the United States should send soldiers again. That man Castro and communism must go."

Leuthold and his daughter left Cuba five years ago. Recently he was permitted to change his status from refugee to resident in three days. The process normally takes four months.

"There is no freedom in Cuba, that is why I left," said the slender white-haired man. "I'd like to go back, but not under communism."

"I liked Cuba, the people, the climate, everything," he explained. "So I remained."

Leuthold married a Cuban and opened a photo studio in Cardenas, Matanzas. He became a Cuban citizen. His wife, Deiores, died in 1958, a year before Fidel Castro's takeover.

King Proposes Program Against Vietnam War

NEW YORK (AP)—Civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. has unfolded a major new program of teach-ins, preach-ins and mass demonstrations in an effort to gain from the government an admission "that we have been wrong from the beginning of our adventure in Vietnam."

The winner of the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize pictured the United States Tuesday as so dedicated to its worldwide money and material investments that it has become "the greatest purveyor of violence in the world today," and is on the wrong side of a world revolution for human rights.

"Now they languish under our bombs," he said of the South Vietnamese, "and consider us—not their fellow Vietnamese—the real enemy. They move sadly and apathetically as we herd them off the land of their fathers into concentration camps where minimal social needs are rarely met. So far we may have killed a million of them, mostly children."

King's first recommendation, delivered at a news conference, was for "those who are prepared to do it, who see the great dangers ahead for mankind," to become conscientious objectors.

In the evening, before more than 3,000 persons in the Riverside church, he called for clergymen to give up their draft-exemption as clergy and become conscientious objectors. He also suggested a five-point program designed to "begin the long and difficult process of extricating ourselves from this nightmarish conflict:"

—Declare a unilateral ceasefire "in the hope that such action will create the atmosphere for negotiation."

—Curtail U.S. military buildups in Thailand and Laos.

—Accept a role for the National Liberation Front — Viet Cong—in negotiations and in any future government, because it "has substantial suport in South Vietnam."

—Set a date for removing all foreign troops in accord with the 1954 Geneva.

Witness' Testify Speck Seen with Knife, Gun

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — The timetable of events surrounding the murder of eight nurses is becoming more dramatic as the prosecution strives to close the bridge between Richard Speck and the strangling of Pamela Wilkening, the first girl to die.

State witnesses testified Tuesday that the defendant was seen in a tavern with a gun and knife less than three hours before the slayings began. The tavern is two miles from the townhouse on Chicago's South Side where the victims lived.

A poignant scene in the 31-day-old trial was enacted when relatives of six of the victims were called as witnesses.

Philip Jordan, whose daughter, Mary Ann, was found stabbed in the head and chest, spoke in a wavering voice as he told of seeing his daughter alive July 13.

"When did you next see her?" the prosecution asked.

"She was dead in her casket," Jordan replied.

Patrick Walsh, a laborer, told the jury of seven men and five women that he saw Speck flash a gun in a tavern about 8 p.m. July 13.

Walsh said he was seated in a booth of the Shipyard Inn when he noticed a man staring at him.

"I started to get out of the booth and he reached into his shirt and put something between his legs. I seen it was a gun," he said.

The witness said Speck apologized and invited him to have a drink which Walsh accepted. Walsh said he telephoned his fiance to join him and when she arrived he introduced her to Speck.

"They left the inn about 10 p.m., Walsh said. Speck accompanied them outside, Walsh added, and said, "I'm sorry again about pulling the gun." Walsh introduced Speck to another friend, Army Sgt. Richard Oliva, home on leave.

Oliva testified that he was shooting pool in the tavern when Speck entered and took a position at the center of the bar. Oliva said he heard a noise from the direction where Speck was standing.

"I turned and saw him pick up a pocket knife and put it in his left-hand pocket," the soldier said. The knife was closed and Oliva estimated it to be three or four inches long.

Oliva said Speck asked him to shoot a game of pool but he said he declined and left the bar at about 10 p.m. The state contends Miss Wilkening was killed between 12:15 a.m. and 12:35 a.m. July 14. The state also charges that Speck entered the girls' dormitory at 11 p.m.

U.S. Command Reports Heavy March Losses

SAIGON, Vietnam (AP)—The defectors in March included 3,552 military men. In addition, the U.S. command has reported 9,085 of the enemy killed during the last three days of February and the first 25 days of March, bringing enemy losses reported so far for March to 12,637.

Despite these losses, which reflect the intensified tempo of the war, the U.S. estimate of the enemy force in South Vietnam increased 5,000 during the month from 282,000 to 287,000.

In the air war against the North, U. S. pilots flew only 70 combat missions Tuesday after flying 175 on Monday. Initial reports indicated the weather was poor again today over North Vietnam and that strikes once more were limited.

The persistent bad weather is expected to clear any day now, and it is generally expected the U.S. raids will be intensified.

Tuesday U.S. pilots struck at storage areas, roads, bridges, trucks, and railroad facilities in the southern panhandle and southeast and southwest of Haiphong. No raids were reported in the immediate areas of Hanoi or Haiphong, however.

In Seoul, capital of South Korea, visiting Premier Thanom Kittikachorn of Thailand and South Korean Premier Chung Ilkwon issued a joint communique pledging to intensify their military effort in South Vietnam until Communist aggression is ended.

Total Cash Loss $93,000

QUINCY, Mass. (AP)—The total cash loss from an armored truck hijacked Saturday at a shopping center has been set at $93,000.

The truck carried about $440,000 in checks and $110,000 in cash, John D. Connell, president of Skelly Detective Service Inc., said Tuesday. Four bags recovered in woods near the shopping center yielded $17,000 of the cash, however, Capt. Paul LaHive of the Quincy detective force said there were indications the robbery originally was planned for March 25 when pre-Easter shopping might have produced a larger haul. The truck, owned by Skelly firm, broke down in New Hampshire and failed to finish its run that night, however.

LBJ, RFK Clash In Election Law

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Johnson and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy again are clashing — this time over the White House - backed presidential election campaign financing law.

Kennedy called Tuesday for repeal of the law enacted by Congress last year, saying it would give "massive amounts of funds in a dangerous and unrestricted way to the national leadership of the two major political parties."

Although the New York Democrat named no names, his remarks seemed directed at least partially at Johnson — particularly since Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said Tuesday the White House "was calling all over the United States during the Easter recess" seeking votes to prevent repeal of the plan. Johnson had endorsed the plan last year.

The current law would provide up to $30 million to each major political party in 1968, with the money coming from income tax payments. It allows each taxpayer specifically to allot $1 of his income levy to a fund to be split between the parties.

HARRY BELAFONTE came, HOW?

Do you know who brought

W. H. AUDEN to campus?

Answer P. 6

Editorial Section — Campus Comment

Campus Chest

It's easy to spend money.

Watch closely tomorrow and see where it all goes. Perhaps you buy the morning paper. Or maybe you need a cup of coffee between classes.

Of course there's always the University Store. There aren't many who can walk out without buying something. And the afternoon will probably find you in the Hatch having a Coke.

Next week the campus will have an opportunity to spend some of its loose change sensibly. The goal for Campus Chest Week 1967 is $6900—approximately 50¢ per person. This money will aid such charities as the March of Dimes, Muscular Distrophy, and the Cancer Foundation.

This is without a doubt the largest charity drive to be undertaken at UMass. It is our opportunity to show that college students are vitally concerned with the welfare of those not so fortunate as they.

And all you have to do is sacrifice one Coke a day . . .

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

Monstrum Horrendum

by PAUL ROBERT HALLOCK

Nearly every day, as we go to buy our chocolate milk, we are reminded of the fallibility of machine age products. The freshly mimeographed "out of order" sign appears, innocently scotch-taped on, say, six of the eight machines in our dormitory sometime during the day.

We do not doubt the ability of the men who fastidiously manipulate the innards of our machines, patiently and perpetually; rather we think that the delicacy of the initial construction of parts tends to lend itself to a fragile equilibrium, one that can be thrown out of balance at the drop of a dime or the click of a quarter. and frequently is.

We find it ironic that the hours during the day when we most need our lemonade or chocolate milk are the hours at which we find that square-cut, purple sign staring at us, affixed by some poor soul or raving maniac who has lost his dime. In the morning when our throats are parched by the stale night air of our room, and late at night, when our stomachs are empty and gurgling, we are lucky to find a cup of hot chocolate or two hard-boiled eggs and a pickle, victims wasting behind glass doors of broken machines. Further, when the men come to load (and repair) the machines, we have most likely left our dormitory for the day, to return, somewhat dejected, to the inaccessibility of the stacked cartons and soggy sandwiches left in the machines.

We can understand why the "correct change only" light flashes so soon after the machines are filled—dimes are rare in dormitories and so in machines—but sometimes we fail to relish the breakability of our machines.

It seems to us that the errability is significant. Machines are made by man. Machines, which mass-produce, are mass-produced themselves. The assembly lines, moving in their slow, droning monotony, will not wait for man. Hence, we come to anticipate not exactly a poor, but certainly unstable-at-the-least, product—one which, by the mere law of probability, will break down.

We conclude that, although the machine age came on with the push of a button, and, although thirst may force us to the water-cooler, it will be a long time before we are shoved out of our offices by a thumping steel Caliban. We will be content and pleased to wait.

Fearless Billy

Special to the Collegian from the Collegiate Press Service

Evangelist Billy Graham was interviewed recently in San Francisco. With indomitable courage, Graham spoke out on several controversial issues:

On capital punishment: "I take no position."

On therapeutic abortion: "That's a complicated question. I'm not going to get involved."

On whether he approves of a bill to restrict the teaching of evolution in California public schools: "I'd have to see the bill."

On whether the Southern Baptist Convention should join the National Council of Churches: "I'll leave that to the Southern Baptists."

On Vietnam: "We ought to leave this to our leaders—they know the facts."

Obviously, Graham is not afraid that his public statements might offend anyone. Nosiree, not fearless Billy. As he said in the same interview, the real problem in America today is that the nation's leaders are "not meeting (youth's) moral needs. . ."

(The above article is an editorial from the Minnesota Daily.)

THE MASSACHUSETTS
collegian

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Associate News Editor ..... Richard Kline '70
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Wednesday's Day Editors: News—Janet Caropreso '68; Sports—Steve Lotterman '68; Photo—Neil Rennie '70; Editorial—P. R. Hallock '69

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Exam Problem April 7

A departmental Spanish exam is to be given Friday night, April 7. Once again the people who gave the Sabbath to the Christian world are to have their own holiest day desecrated. The Jew is told that he cannot worship his God without taking a necessary unequal makeup examination.

This recurrent situation calls for a logical examination of two important points.

Firstly, should the Jewish minority of 15% expect their Sabbath to be recognized. And secondly, is it possible for this Sabbath to be worshiped as the Jew sees fit? The answers to there two questions are clearly positive.

We are living, not in a Christian society where all minority groups must conform to the majority culture, but in a land where every religious group is equally recognized. Obviously there are situations such as the case in point where such an ideal cannot be attained. The University cannot close Thursday nights to exams because it would interfere with the Moslem Sabbath or Monday night because that would interfere with the rites of a moon worshiping cult.

A line must be drawn somewhere. I know that Friday night can be as exempt from exam giving as is Sunday morning. While not every minority can be similarly accommodated, certainly all those possible should. Since Jews comprise by far the largest religious minority on campus, their Sabbath should be left free of exams if the scheduling office can handle the exam load without Friday nights.

This leads us to the second point. This semester only 3 examinations were scheduled at this unfortunate time. Mr. Balsley of the Office of Academic Space stated that it is feasible to eliminate the night in question for all exams.

Why have University officials neglected thus far to establish this as policy?

Jon Gierard '69

Ask and Ye Shall Receive

To the Editor:

We are glad to see that the students on this campus are becoming interested in art and enthusiastic about the work of up-and-coming young painters.

However, would the collector who had the good taste to borrow four works of art from two of the promising undergraduates in Clark Hall please get in touch with the artists involved to arrange a loan exhibition after the paintings have been handed in for the semester? ? ? ! ! !

If you prefer, quietly return the paintings and no questions will be asked. They represent a great deal of hard work.

Thank you.

Marjorie Cotton '68
Carol Mandel '68

T, J, and AW

To the Editor:

Since we have troops in Vietnam, it is perfectly logical to assume that they are there for a purpose, as our government's actions are, for the most part, not purposeless. Military troops are used to engage in police actions to liberate horribly oppressed people with the God-given tool of democrack, usually administered in the form of an enema. Now since we know that the average enema is intended to be successful, it must be true that United States military forces are in Vietnam in order to attain victory in the police action there—and they are there because the country is constipated.

From very recent news reports, it seems that our country's methodology is all wrong. Despite the fact that we possess the newest, most efficient instruments of destruction, we can only dispatch thirty to thirty-five Viet Cong at a time—an extremely inefficient method of waging a police action. Even our Great Leader's attempts at performing escalatio have been practically fruitless. It is plain that we need something to kill more Viet Cong and make them enjoy it less.

First of all, we must eliminate every element of mercy previously shown the Viet Cong. Nobody ever won a police action by being nice to his opponents. (Unfortunately, atomic warfare is out: due to the recent drought, there has been a shortage of atoms in the United States.) Once the inhuman quality of human kindness has been done away with, the next step will be quite easy. All Vietnamese children up to and including five years will be instructed in the ways of Democracy, whereupon they will immediately recognize it as a Golden Ideal and Eternal Truth and forsake Evil Ways, upon pain of death, of course. Since there are a great number of people over five years of age who may prove dangerous by not exposing their offspring to our Way of Life, it will be safest to de-sex them, thus doing away with possible threats of proliferation.

However, this action will serve only to solve political problems. Once this has been accomplished, the country may be improved economically by being made the fifty-first state (excluding Puerto Rico, Guam, the Philippines and South America). In this way, the Vietnamese people can be made equal like the Negroes in the United States, and thus qualified to receive public welfare money. Surely this is the best method for the furthering of Truth, Justice, and the American Way.

Name Withheld

Frosh (?) Picnic?

To the Editor:

Even though its sixty-odd members are freshmen, the Freshman Executive Council remains remarkably detached from the needs and wants of the Class of 1970.

In the past six months the Council has functioned rather well in serving the Freshman Class. It seemed quite evident, though, that at the latest meeting its members have forgotten their responsibility to the Umie freshman.

The meeting centered itself around the coming Freshman Class Picnic to be held on April 22 in the pond area. For this event, the class is spending a significant portion of the $5,000 now in the treasury for a folk-rock group.

There will be no admission charge, and obviously by necessity, the event must be open to the entire campus community.

Now the issue arises. It was proposed that food be sold to everyone at a general, reduced rate. Plainly, there is a dire need for a close look at the proposed format for the picnic.

The freshmen will be treated to a picnic, open to the entire community, having free entertainment and food at a greatly reduced price for all those attending. It will not be a true Frosh Picnic for there is no sense of class unity in the least. The Freshman Class is spending several thousand dollars of the money raised by the class tax against the freshmen for an event having no benefits whatsoever for those paying for it.

In opposition to this proposal, a system was presented at that meeting whereby each freshman would receive coupons entitling him to free food and refreshments. That motion was quite soundly defeated, but never-the-less, it was the only proposal on the floor giving the freshmen any compensation for the money and work they have put into the class.

Jim Slavas

PsYcHaDeLiC is the word and this Saturday night the freshman class will sponsor a four college psychadelic dance. The Class of '70 is going all out to provide an environment which will turn the Student Union Ballroom into an imitation of a Dr. Timothy Leary experiment.

To add to the mass confusion an added attraction of 3 Go-Go Girls will be featured along with the rockin' sounds of the Boss Tweeds and the Leaves of Grass.

The manager of the Leaves of Grass said that this group is the best at Amherst and they hope to give the Tweeds the challenge that they've been looking for.

Busses have been arranged to transport the girls from Smith and Mt. Holyoke. For the pleasure-seeking coeds, the Amherst lads will also be on hand. According to members of the Four College Freshman Council, where the idea originated, the interest at the various schools is growing rapidly.

Tickets are now on sale at the S.U. Ticket Office and will also be available at the door. Those who attend the dance Saturday night will witness "The Most Spectacular Psychadelic Example of Four College Cooperation."

Campus Chest Week 1967 To Begin This Monday

On Monday, April 10, The Class of 1969 will begin its drive to raise $6900 for charity. Campus Chest Week, running until April 15, will be a different approach to the tradition of raising money for the Campus Chest.

This year the Sophomore class is sponsoring a fun-filled week to raise money for various charities. The proceeds of the entire week, hopefully $6900, will be distributed to charities including the American Cancer Society, the Jimmy Fund (Children's Cancer), Muscular Dystrophy, the United Cerebral Palsy, and the Leukemia Society.

The highlight of the week will be the Wrestling Match to be held on Wednesday, April 12, at 8:30, in Curry Hicks Gymnasium. It will consist of four bouts between top name wrestlers.

The first bout will be the Russian Savage vs. Paul Shusas. The second bout features two women, Sylvia Torres vs. The Red Devil. Sweety Daddy Watts and Chris Belkas clash in the third bout. The special event of the evening is the fourth and final bout which is the U.S. Heavy Weight Championship. In this match Frank Scarpa and Bull Montana vie for the title.

On April 13, a fashion show will be held at Dining Commons #7. Thru the efforts of the ninth floor, J. Q. Adams-Middle is sponsoring this "Spring Fling" to aid the class of "69". Thirty-six outfits donated by Peck & Peck, Ann August, John Everett, and College Town, all of Northampton, will be modeled in the showing of the latest spring styles.

A dance will be held on Saturday, April 15 at the Student Union. It is entitled "Hurricane Warnings", with the Ill Winds" and the "Tidal Waves" providing the music. In addition there will be a door prize given of the gigantic banner which will be on display all week in the S.U. lobby.

Preceding and during the entire week tickets will be on sale for all these events at the Student Union ticket office. There will also be "69" buttons and posters on sale in front of the Bookstore. In the lobby of the S.U. there will be Beer Barrels for contributions from members of each class and the faculty and staff.

As you can see, this will be a fun-filled week with all proceeds going to a worthy cause. The Class of "69" hopes to make this the biggest and best Campus Chest drive ever to hit U.Mass., and with YOUR help it will be.

Graduate Piano Recital Tonight

The UMass Department of Music will sponsor a graduate recital tonight at 8 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

Carol Van Nostrand, a graduate student in the department of music, will play piano pieces by Bartok, Schubert, Rachmaninoff, and Bach.

Miss Van Nostrand received her B.A. from the University of Iowa and now has an assistantship in the music department. This recital is a requirement in her graduate program of music performance.

SOPHOMORE MEN:

Want to be a leader and double your chances for success in life? You can, by earning both a degree and an Army officer's commission at the same time . . . even though you may not have taken ROTC training in your first two years!

Through a new program, you can be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant after taking two years of Army ROTC training while you complete your studies for a college degree. You can qualify for this program by attending a special six-week summer training camp after your sophomore year and then completing the ROTC Advanced Course in your junior and senior years of college.

Here's what ROTC training and an officer's commission will do for you:

- It will qualify you to fulfill your military obligation as an officer.
- You will learn to organize, motivate, and lead others.
- You will develop leadership qualities that many college men miss—self-discipline, physical stamina, poise, bearing, the acceptance of responsibility and other qualities that contribute to success in either a civilian or military career.
- You will receive $40 per month during your junior and senior years, plus pay and mileage for summer training.

The training and experience you will receive through Army ROTC will pay off for the rest of your life. A decision to take advantage of this new program could be one of the most important you will ever make.

You owe it to yourself to investigate this new important opportunity.

For complete information on the new Two-Year Army ROTC Program see the Professor of Military Science on campus.

ARMY ROTC

IF YOU ARE GOOD ENOUGH TO BE A LEADER, DON'T SETTLE FOR LESS!

For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write: Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States

Home Office: 1285 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019
An Equal Opportunity Employer, M/F © Equitable 1967

RAY CHARLES — the genius of "soul" music will be featured in the HER weekend concert, Saturday, May 6th, 9:00 p.m. Cage sponsored by the S.U. Arts & Music Committee.

THE STUDENT UNION PROGRAM
COUNCIL

Applications Available in R.S.O.

SMITH, MOUNT HOLYOKE, and AMHERST COME TO UMASS
SAT., APRIL 8

SOPHOMORES

Applications for Executive Council and Winter Carni Committees for '67-'68 are now available in RSO or from present council members

DATE DUE: APRIL 14

FINE ARTS

Antonioni's Blow-Up

by N. C. SCANLAN
Staff Reviewer

"It doesn't mean anything to me when I do them. But later I find something to hang on to. Like finding a clue to a detective story. Like that foot," he says pointing to a mass of dots.

"It's that way with photography too, when you really blow things up, they all look like one of those speckled paintings. That's when you have to find the meaning, something to hang on to."

Michelangelo Antonioni's Blow-up centers around a photographer who believes he sees something in some park greenery photos. "I saw a man killed this morning," he tells Sarah Miles who either is or isn't his sweetheart or his wife. "How did it happen?" she replies. "I don't know, I didn't see," he answers. Confusing?

He has seen through the eyes of his camera just as we see him through the eyes of Antonioni's camera. Only what we are seeing never really happened. It's an allusion, whereas what David Hemmings saw . . . well, we'll come back to that.

All this takes place in Antonioni's London, a wild young place full of blocks of bright red buildings, blue buses, yellow trucks, and one neon-red incoherent sign. Blow-Up's director has turned wild, painting buildings, parks and erecting signs. He even hired some medieval clowns for a rather well played game of tennis. (You did see the ball, didn't you?)

This is a London of today's youth. A living London high on pot, subdued by a strong beat, excited by placards and rock'n roll relics. A loving London of teeny-mommas getting their big break, peacockney models swimming like sturgeons and marys, and one Shrimpton-like creature writhing in ecstasy. All for the love of the camera.

This is the world of our fantastic photographer who drives a Bentley and has no name. As he says, "What's the use of a name?" An illusion-peddler who sells images of life.

Blow-Up is a beautiful film. Antonioni has painted his film in the brightest colors. Almost everything has been painted, even some of the park. Juxtaposed against these living colors are the graphic black and whites of Hemmings' studio — blending with the colorless photos that tell so much of the story.

Hemmings is very good. He is on the screen almost all the time. He's one of the few photographers that has made it as an actor. Vanessa Redgrave does some wonderful nervous acting with her hands, mouth and eyes. She is a mystery in herself, complete with no background, no name, and a false phone number.

Sarah Miles is the best. She also has little to do as Hemmings' and|or the artist's sweetheart. But her distant thoughts, her absurd disinterests in the murder are the most important in the film. When Hemmings shows her the blown up "proof" of the murder, she comments: "It looks like one of those paintings." Preoccupied with her own, more important problems, she asks him, "Will you help me?"

This is it. Not that no one will believe him. This is unimportant. No one cares. That's the scene. But someone must, thinks David. His publisher, his fellow illusion-peddler, will care. Finding him at a pot party, Hemmings tries to rouse him. "We've got to get a shot of the body," he tells him.

The publisher is not interested. So much so that it makes no impression at all. "What did you see in the park?" And so Hemmings hangs it up. "Nothing."

Antonioni has directed and photographed a beautiful poetic happening about a murder that was or wasn't committed, about a photographer that did or didn't see it. The only thing certain is the airplane propeller which Hemmings purchased from a young antique shop-owner who warned him: "That will teach you to fall in love with heavy things on Saturday mornings."

Blow-Up, the National Film Critics "Film of the Year" will be at the Amherst Cinema until next Tuesday.

In Remembrance of Dick

Richard Homan, senior government major from Allston and senator from Baker House, died of a brain abcess on March 23, in the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. His sudden death came as a great shock to all who knew and worked with him.

Noted for his conscientiousness, Dick was one of the few returning senators this year. As a junior, he was greatly responsible for the "Save Baker" movement which resulted in the integration of Stockbridge students into the University.

This year he was chairman of the Student Activities Committee and was actively involved with RSO and dormitory constitutions.

Dick's condition was discovered after a week in Wesson Memorial Hospital. He was then transferred to Peter Bent Brigham where he was immediately placed on the critical list. He died Thursday in a coma. His funeral last Monday was attended by over 150 bereaved friends and associates.

When you can't afford to be dull

sharpen your wits with NoDoz

NoDoz keep alert tablets or new chewable mints, safe as coffee, help bring you back to your mental best . . . help you become more alert to the people and conditions around you. Non-habit forming.

While studying, or after hours, sharpen your wits with NoDoz.

Tablets or new Chewable Mints

Arts Music Committee
presents
Faculty Lecture Series
Keith Hollingworth
Art Dept.
Quotations: a lecture
COLONIAL LOUNGE
Refreshments
Thurs., Apr. 6—8:00 p.m.

NURSES
COOK COUNTY HOSPITAL

An active social, cultural, and professional life awaits you, only 10 minutes from Chicago's loop. A position of your choice is waiting in our 2,747 bed hospital. Instructor, head nurse, and staff nurse salaries range from $545 to $855 Lovely rooms with maid service available at minimal cost

For more information write:
Cook County School of Nursing
1900 W. Polk
Chicago, Ill. 60612

Name .....
Address .....
City .....

Wonderful Town - A Wonderful Show

Wonderful Town, the high - spirited musical comedy that New York found a wonderful show for 70 weeks, will open in Bowker Auditorium on Friday evening at 8:15.

The show will be presented by the UMass Operetta Guild as its final production this year. It is the story of two young sisters from Ohio whose quest for stardom leads them through many hilarious situations in the streets of Greenwich Village.

The leading lady, Karen Connelly, is a sophomore who has been seen as Payday Pauline in No, No Nanette and as the Incomparable Rosalie in last semester's presentation of Carnival. Karen is an enthusiastic Guild member who spends her off-rehearsal time painting scenery, distributing posters, and lifting spirits with her cheerful antics.

Her younger sister Eileen will be played by Heddi Zirin from Smith College.

Robert Emerson will play the young newspaper editor who almost falls in love with the wrong sister. He is a senior and has played Nester in Irma La Douce last summer and many other theater roles.

Frank Lippencott will be played by Peter Schofield and roving reporter Chick Clark will be played by Stephen Schnetzer.

Left to right: Stephen Schnitzer, Anne Umana, Corrinne Trabucco, Sandy Rispler, Joan Gamble, Rich Eber, Betty Scheinfeldt, Jon Hutton.

The cast also includes a number of Village characters. Appopolous, the girl's landlord-painter, will be played by Michael Prusky; Violet, the local street-walker, will be played by Sandra Rispler, who is also assistant choreographer.

The 'Wreck' and his 'wife' Helen will be played by Ray Poole and Joan Gamble. Stage manager Larry Benedict will play the role of 'Speedy' Valenti, owner of that swingin' spot, the Village Vortex.

Director William Gile said he is very pleased to be working with his third Leonard Bernstein musical. He enjoys working with Bernstein music because of its use of harmony and dissonance to convey the sounds of the city. He feels that Wonderful Town is especially suited for a college audience because it is the story of young people trying to establish themselves as individuals. Gile also directed the Operetta Guild production of Carnival last semester.

Wonderful Town will be presented on April 7, 8, 13, 14, 15. Tickets are on sale in the Student Union Ticket office and may be purchased at the door.

Left to right: Sharon Williams, David Polansky, Ron Fratto, Linda MacCutcheon, Rich Eber, Jim Postick.

Below, left to right: Larry Benedict, Heddi Zirin, Anne Umana, Corrinne Trabucco, Michael Prusky.

Science Fiction Editor To Speak Monday Nite

by JOE ROSS
Staff Reporter

Science Fiction author and editor Frederik Pohl will speak at the University this Monday, April 10, at 8:00 p.m. in the Student Union Council Chambers, under the sponsorship of the Science-Fiction Club. The title of his talk will be "Science Fiction: The Game-Playing Literature."

The Science-Fiction Club will dine together with Mr. Pohl before his lecture at 6:00 p.m. in Southwest Commons. Members who intend to come are asked to contact President Jane Cochran in advance.

Mr. Pohl has published approximately fifty books, including science fiction anthologies, short story collections, and over fifteen novels written alone or in collaboration. He has also written miscellaneous non-fiction books and several contemporary novels.

Pohl's work has been translated into 22 languages, including several in Iron Curtain countries. His stories have been adapted for radio and television in the U.S., Canada, England, Finland, Italy, and Switzerland. Two are now being adapted for motion pictures.

At present, Mr. Pohl is the editor of two of the World's leading science fiction magazines, Galaxy and IF, a job which he has held since 1960.

Under Pohl's editorship, Galaxy and IF have published delightful thought - provoking stories, as well as absorbing adventure stories. Pohl has made science fiction fun to read again.

Pohl has also received the "Invisible Little Man" trophy for his editorship at the 1964 World Convention, and the first annual "E. E. Smith Memorial Award" last year in Boston.

While editing Galaxy and IF Pohl has found time to continue his writing and has recently contributed to such publications as TV Age, Library Journal, Rogue, and Playboy.

He has appeared on radio and television with Johnny Carson, Arthur Godfrey, NBC's Monitor, and others, including all English-language radio and TV networks. He has spoken at M.I.T., U. of Toronto, Columbia, Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, N. Y. U., and many professional, civic, and religious groups.

FREDERICK POHL

The New York Times has said of him, "Mr. Pohl is not afraid of emotion, so his stories have a drive and power enviable in any writer, especially in one whose main outlet is science fiction."

European Studies Program To Begin This June

Five undergraduate programs in Europe—an intensive summer language session in France and fall-semester programs in Austria, France, Germany and Spain —will be inaugurated this year by the Institute of European Studies, Chicago-based educational institution for study abroad.

The six-week summer program will begin June 19 in Nantes, France. An Institute spokesman said it has been designed primarily for students who need accelerated instruction in French before participation in academic-year programs at the Institute's Nantes and Paris centers.

The fall-semester programs will be offered at the Institute's centers in Paris; Madrid; Freiburg, West Germany, and Vienna. They will be devoted to liberal arts, social science studies and intensive language instruction.

Participation in the Vienna fall-semester program is restricted to students from the 21 colleges belonging to the institute's Council of Affiliated Institutions. All other fall-semester programs are open to qualified sophomores and juniors registered in U. S. four-year liberal arts colleges.

The Institute, a private, non-profit educational institution, also conducts full-year and spring-semester programs at its five European centers in Frieburg, Madrid, Nantes, France, Paris and Vienna.

Studies in Religion

Buddhism in Thailand

by ELAINE KAGAN
Staff Reporter

In his lecture Monday night on "Buddhism in a Modernizing Society" Professor Bruce Morgan of the Amherst College Department of Religion explained how Buddhism has adjusted itself to the modern, self-sustaining society of Thailand.

The fact that Thailand is committed to both Buddhism and a progressive, developing way of life is a paradox which Prof. Morgan untangled. The Western stereotype of Buddhism as advocating world rejection and an undynamic way of life is inadequate in the understanding of how Buddhism relates to Thai culture according to Prof. Morgan.

The main body of Prof. Morgan's lecture concerned four major cultural themes of Thai society and how they related to Buddhism and to the changes of modernization. The first of these themes is that of individualism.

This fits with religious teachings which say: "by one self the evil is done . . . by one self one is purified". Buddhism is a highly individualized religion which is dependent on self-sufficiency for the fulfillment of its goal.

This theme does not cause conflict in a modernizing society, because the Thai man does not experience the same feeling of "anomie" or alienation in the big city which characterizes other people of the world. This allows for an unusually high labor mobility which is necessary for a modernizing society.

In explaining the second theme —the theme of blessedness or happiness, Prof. Morgan said that the "Thai are better equipped to enjoy a high standard of living than the Western Protestant World." The Thai is an advocate of "sanug", the fun, joy, or playful aspect of life.

This cultural theme can adjust to a modern society if Thai preference for leisure is substituted for a preference for consumer's items. However, there is an ambivalence between the Buddhist belief in contentment with things as they are and the emphasis in a modernizing society on an ever-rising standard of living.

Modernizing society will perhaps have to battle with the third theme—the strong sense of hierarchy and status. The concept of status is related to the Buddhist concept of "karma" which determines the "self" one is at the present by evaluating past existencies.

The fourth cultural theme, the theme of karma is being easily assimilated into a modernizing Thailand. Karma is now being extended into the modern, business world, and good karma is being equated with success in business, the founding of new enterprises, etc. According to Prof. Morgan this is an "effort to legitimize by re-interpreting the karma options of behavior."

As religions have done in the past, Thai Buddhism is responding to modern changes—"whether it will be effective is anybody's guess."

◗ Stop the Bombing of North Vietnam
◗ De-escalate the War in the South
◗ Negotiate with the National Liberation Front
◗ Return to the Geneva Agreement of 1954

We, the undersigned, urge that our government initiate the above steps toward the immediate end to the war in Vietnam. To bring our position to the public, we support, and urge you to support, the campus activities to be held during the National Vietnam Week, April 10-15, and we invite your participation in the Spring Mobilization Demonstration to be held in New York April 15.

May Abbud
June Abdelmaseh
Prof. Doris E. Abramson
Robert M. Agard
Prof. Dean Albertson
Prof. Harry T. Allan
Dean A. Allen
Martha Alpert
Elizabeth M. Allen
Prof. Tom Aninger
Carol Arber
David Aronow
Frederick Douglass Aronow
Victor Aronow
David Aronson
Gary Astrachan
Joseph A. Augusta
Karilon Babbit
Prof. Robert L. Bancroft
Prof. Leon Barron
Rollas Batten
William Beardsley
Michael Belanger
Prof. Joyce Berkman
James Better
Virginia Bicnick
Charles Bonfanti
Prof. William Brandon
Prof. Gerard Braunthal
Brad Brayton
Sandra Brayton
Carole Brown
Malcolm Call
Robert Carlsen
Prof. Thomas Cassirer
Carol Chandler
Roger F. Clapp
Margaret C. Clark
Prof. David R. Clark
Prof. Albert Chevan
John Brown Childs
Prof. Miriam Chrisman
Prof. Charles Close
Arthur Cohen
Marcia Cohen
Prof. W. W. Comfort
Paul Connors
Richard Converse
Andrew Costello
Susan Costello
Prof. Philip B. Coulter
Margaret Rita Crosby
Eileen Davidson
Gordon A. Davidson
Stephen M. Davis
Philip Day
Richard DellaFave
Prof. Joseph A. DellaGrotte
Fredric Dicker
MaryAnn DePietro
Prof. Edwin D. Driver
Richard Dumont
Prof. Arthur Elkins
Prof. Frederick H. Edwards
Pamela K. Edwards
Prof. Robert Elam
Gregory G. Fahlund
Loren Farmer
Wren Farren
Deborah Felker
Judy Feldman
Prof. Andrew Feiler
Robert Finlay
Paul Fischer
Prof. W. B. Fleischmann
Bruce Fletcher
Prof. John H. Foster
Prof. Thomas M. Fraser JR.
Prof. Roberts W. French
George D. Fuller
Prof. Ernest Gallo
Joan Garnet
Ken Gately
Prof. Marvin Gelfand
Prof. John W. George
Janet Gezork
Prof. Glen Gordon
Sally Gordon
Samuel R. Gordon
Jeffrey Gowing
Martin C. Graham
Dan Green
Robert Greving
Gary Griess
Ann Grindstaff
Carl F. Grindstaff
Elizabeth Gryzberg
Charles Guyotte
Peter Haebler
Andrew D. Haigh
Thomas Hancock
Kenneth Hardy
Prof Rodney E. Harris
Prof. H. Richard Hartzler
Donald W. Hastings
Josephine Haven
Prof. Richard Haven
Joseph Havens
Naomi Herstein
Diane M. Hewitt
Prof. John Hicks
Prof. Keith W. Hollingsworth
Ray Homstead
Caroline Horrocks
Prof. Franklin Houn
Prof. Angelika Huber
Donna Hurwitz
Peter Interland
Dr. Julian F. Janowitz
Susan Jenkins
Don Johnson
Prof. Donald Junkins
Prof. Eugene E. Kacsmarek
Karen Kane
Arnold Stern Kaplan
Prof. Sidney Kaplan
James Karathanasis
Pauline G. Kasslotis
John C. Kennedy
Prof. Arnold Kenseth
Prof. Robert Kern
Richard W. Kovan
Eric Kramer
Daniel Krause Jr.
Steve Krinsky
David Kuschner
Prof. Joseph W. Langford
Prof. Sally Lawall
Robert Layfield
William Levine
Prof. Carl P. Lewis
Gail A. Lindstrom
Jeffrey Lister
Marc A. Macqueen
Peter Maguire
Pamela Mancuso
Prof. John Manfredi
Prof. Paul A. Mankin
Jeffrey Margolis
Laurence Mazel
Prof. Charles McDonald
Prof. Gerald McFarland
Richard F. McGinn
Meta McLaughlin
Diana Melody
Robert Mendelsohn
Michel Meunier
George T. Miles
Prof. Gabriela Mora
Claire Moriarty
Kenneth R. Mosakowski
Gloria A. Mylyk
James F. Nagle
Matthew J. Needle
Alan C. Nichols
Prof. Richard W. Noland
Jeffrey S. Ogilvie
Prof. John F. O'Rourke
Dani Ostrow
Carolyn Owens
Prof. Alex Page
William Pagell
Prof. Peter Rank
Jerald L. Pugh
Prof. Wolfgang Paulsen
Arnold Palmer
Claire Pickat
Prof. Eugene B. Piedmont
Ethan A. Pollack
David Polonsky
Prof. Howard Quint
Carolyn K. Rayner
Janice Rayner
Daphne S. Reed
Darryl L. Robertson
Prof. Trevor Robinson
Richard D. Roeder
Jane Roland
Leslie Rose
Prof. Irving P. Rothberg
Robert N. Rothenmeyer
Robert Rotstein
William H. Rouleau
Robert Ruchames
Evelyn H. Russell
Prof. Sargent Russell
Chris Ryan
Victor Saks
Eric Sandel
Prof. Paul S. Sanders
Prof. Betty Savereid
Prof. Jay Savereid
Neil Schecter
Prof. Andrew Scheffey
Brian Scherzer
Prof. Eva Schiffer
Juergen H. Schwermer
Howard Shainheit
Janet Shainheit
Joyce Shortt
Richard A. Shortt
Susan Shwartz
Elaine Sideri
Sonja Sidloski
Prof. Arnold Silver
Prof. Isidore Silven
Alan Sirota
Prof. Harold L. Smith
Michael P. Smith
Sandra M. Sobek
Daniel Solo
James Spellman
Sarah J. Stage
James Sullivan
Michael Sweetnam
Prof. Anwar Syed
Prof. Robert E. Taylor
Eileen Tedesco
Ruth Topham
Prof. Robert G. Tucker
Prof. Everett E. Turner Jr.
Phyllis Tyler
Prof. Egon Vorheyen
Katherine Watt
Prof. John R. Wendel
Joan Weston
Prof. John C. Weston
Prof. Thomas O. Wilkinson
William H. Wilkinson
Allan Kenneth Wilson
Prof. William J. Wilson
Jacqueline L. Wisneski
Prof. Horst Wittman
Prof. David Wyman
Prof. David Yaukey

Campus activities will include plays, movies, lectures, a peace vigil, and an outdoor teach-in!

Chartered busses will be leaving for the New York Demonstration on Saturday, April 15, at 7:00 A.M., in front of the Student Union. The demonstration will begin in Central Park (Sheep Meadow) at noon, proceeding to the United Nations where a rally will be held at 3:00 P.M. Participants in the simultaneous demonstrations in New York and San Francisco will include Martin Luther King, Dave Dellinger, Stokely Carmichael, Howard Zinn, Floyd McKissick, Mario Savio, Harry Belafonte, James Farmer, Kay Boyle, Jules Feiffer, Paul Goodman, and Benjamin Spock. Keynote speakers will be Dr. Benjamin Spock and Dr. Martin Luther King.

To reserve a seat on the chartered bus, fill out and send to

SPRING MOBILIZATION
P.O. Box 161
Hadley, Mass.

A receipt and ticket will be sent you by return mail

Price: $5 for students, $7 for faculty

☐ Please reserve a seat for me
☐ I cannot go, but I am enclosing a contribution
☐ I am going by car and will meet the University group in New York

Please Print NAME .....
ADDRESS .....
TOWN .....

Please make checks payable to SPRING MOBILIZATION (SPA)

Sponsored by: Faculty Committee on War and Peace
Students for Political Action SDS

VIETNAM WEEK
SPRING MOBILIZATION—
DEMONSTRATION TO END THE WAR IN VIETNAM

Pre-Vacation Senate Meeting Highlighted by Poll Reports

by PAT PETOW
Staff Reporter

Before leaving the campus for Spring Vacation, the Student Senate passed the Yahoo budget, took initial action on installing Centrex telephones around campus for the commuters, and released the results of its recent questionnaires.

The Yahoo budget passed but not until the Finance Committee appropriation had been changed to a loan. According to the wording of the loan agreement, introduced by Guenter Loeser (John Adams Middle), the $2,065 shall be repaid only "if Yahoo becomes financially self-supporting." The Student Communications Board had originally recommended a revolving loan fund of $5,000.

As it was explained on the floor, the humor magazine plans to charge UMass students (and as many other buyers it can find) for an issue published this semester; but in the future, Yahoo hopes not to have to ask for student activities tax money at all.

The vote for passage of the budget was 38 in favor, 10 opposed, and one abstention.

Seven of the eight commuter senators sponsored the bill to add, as they are needed by commuters, up to 11 telephones around the campus. The phones are to be placed by the recommendations of the commuter senators in committee. According to resolution, "there . . . are no Centrex phones alloted to the Commuters."

However, the formula for allocation of the "inter-dorm" phones has been n+1, "n" being the number of senators in each constituency. A recent Senate act, if accepted by the administration, makes the formula n+3.

Among the Senate polls released were the Food Services questionnaire (see separate article), an athletic policies survey completed by 26 colleges, and the Services Committee's Library and hitchhiking questions.

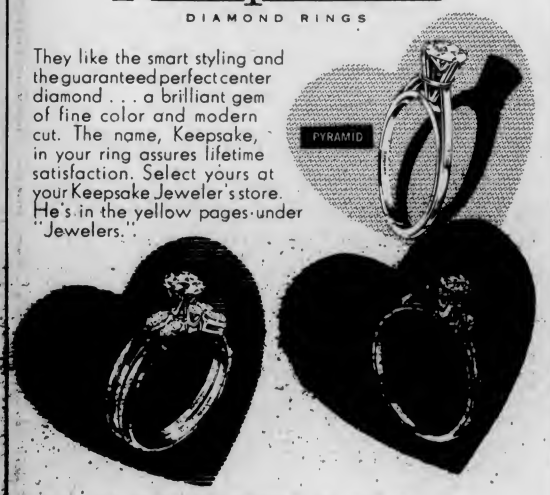
The Athletic Study Committee report listed only four colleges with a mandatory athletics fee, although six gave no answer to the question; 16 colleges stated they did not have a mandatory fee.

The 16 were: U. of Mo., Cornell, U. of Conn., Springfield College, U. of Calif. at Berkeley, U. of N. H., Boston U., Princeton, U. of Okla., Military Academy (West Point), Harvard, Dartmouth, Boston College, U. of La., U. of Wash., and Michigan State.

Of the seven schools with a Crew Team only one reported a mandatory athletic fee. Students pay a mandatory fee of $30 per year; but its Crew has been given only nominal support by the athletic administration.

From the annual student activities fee of $21, the Student Senate has been supporting the Crew.

A majority of respondents to the Services Committee's library questions asserted they would make use of study opportunitiesuntil the wee hours during Finals. Sixty-three percent of the sampling of about 340 replied "yes" to studying until 4 a.m. and 50.5 percent would study all night.



The information is going to be presented to the student members of the Faculty Senate Library Committee.

First Choice Of The Engageables

REGISTERED
Keepsake®
DIAMOND RINGS

They like the smart styling and the guaranteed perfect center diamond . . . a brilliant gem of fine color and modern cut. The name, Keepsake, in your ring assures lifetime satisfaction. Select yours at your Keepsake Jeweler's store. He's in the yellow pages under "Jewelers."

PRICES FROM $100. TO $5000. RINGS ENLARGED TO SHOW BEAUTY OF DETAIL. ® TRADE-MARK REG. A. H. POND COMPANY, INC., ESTABLISHED 1892.

HOW TO PLAN YOUR ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING

Please send new 20-page booklet, "How To Plan Your Engagement and Wedding" and new 12-page full color folder, both for only 25c. Also, send special offer of beautiful 44-page Bride's Book.

Name_____
Address_____
City_____
State_____ Zip_____
KEEPSAKE DIAMOND RINGS, BOX 90, SYRACUSE, N. Y. 13202

Nugents

OPEN DAILY
10 a.m. to 9 p.m.
Saturday til 6

Campus Plaza Shopping Center
Rte. 9 at Amherst-Hadley Town Line
(Opposite the Amherst Motel)

25% OFF
ENTIRE STOCK!
Brand New Spring
COATS and SUITS

Nothing held back . . . Everything Goes!

You get 25% deducted from prices that were low to begin with . . . take your selection to your cashiers . . . they will deduct the extra 25%. Hundreds of coats and suits to choose from . . . all superbly styled! Every magnificent silhouette . . . every luxurious fabric . . . every exciting fashion color. Sizes for all. Petites, Juniors and Misses.

Charge or budget to suit your convenience

Redmen End March Through Dixie with 3-3 Mark

(Continued from page 12)

backed by a 14-hit attack as the Redmen made their record 3-2 with a 9-4 win over Erskine.

Erskine is a nice, little 750-student coed college founded by the Associated Reformed Presbyterians. Located in the wee community of Due West, which would be more aptly titled "Nowhere's-Ville" the college has a friendliness that is synonymous with the legend of the "Deep South."

The Flying Fleet, as they call the Erskine team, was a little mystified by 5:15 p.m. as the aroused Redmen rudely rifled base-hits and piled up runs for the second straight day. The Flying Fleet fizzled as Katz bewildered them with pinpoint control and a nifty assortment of curve-ball and off-speed pitches.

It was more like Grant taking Richmond as UMass turned on the artillery for a four-run first inning.

DiSarcina, who hit a single, double and triple in that order after his opening-inning walk, dazzled the crowd in the second inning. He singled to right, sped to second when the ball was momentarily juggled, stole third and scored on Boteze's second line-drive single.

CARL BOTEZE

Sophomore John Mitsakos got into the long-ball act in the fifth by clouting the longest Redmen homer of the week, a 380' blast over the left-center field fence.

Katz worked seven innings, gave up six hits and one walk. All four Erskine runs were unearned as the offensive-minded Redmen committed six errors.

* * *

Pembroke, N.C., April 1—The Redmen ran into April Fool's Day problems as they dropped a 7-0 frustrating decision to red-hot Pembroke State College.

Pembroke State, 11-1 for the season and 51-10 over the past three years, stymied UMass in every possible manner.

Ace Carl Boteze made his second start and absorbed his second loss, although he raised his batting average to a neat .615. His knuckle-balling opponent Howie Nunn allowed just five hits, walked one, struck out nine and stranded nine Redmen runners while winning his fifth straight decision.

Pembroke tallied in each of the first four innings before Rappoli and Elliott combined to one-hit the hosts over the final four frames.

Nunn got stronger as the game progressed and held off the Redmen even though his infielders committed three errors. He even proved DiSarcina was human as he struck Joe out on three pitches in the seventh inning. It was the only time he whiffed all week.

Freshmen Golf

Candidates for the freshman golf team will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Plymouth Room of the Student Union.

Sports Staff Meeting
Thursday at 6
Bring a friend.

TENNIS, ANYONE?

The UMass women's tennis team began practice Monday. Interested players, on either the intermediate or advanced level, should contact Miss Nancy Rupp at the Women's Physical Education Building or Miss Sue Tracy and Miss Beverly Mentes in Hamlin.

Players should be available Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

UMass will be competing against such teams at Mt. Holyoke, Jackson and New Hampshire.

MASS. CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

Must sell $225 worth of stereo tape recording equipment with 2 microphones, extra reels. Practically new. Asking $100. Call 546-6377.

OPPORTUNITIES

1967 SUMMER JOB CATALOG—Start your career this summer with a major US corporation. Excellent salaries. Catalog lists over 10,000 openings available THIS SUMMER for men and women students. Send $2 today to: Amer. Assn. of College Students, 30 North LaSalle, Chicago, Illinois 60602.

FOR SALE

RCA 21-inch color TV in good condition. Will take best offer. Call 256-6846.

AUTOMOBILES

1961 Volkswagen, good condition, radio. Must sell $400. Call 253-5677.

1966 Fiat 1100 station wagon, blue, white walls, luggage rack. $1197.42. Call 545-1400 9-5 p.m.

1965 VW for sale. Excellent condition, clean, radio & heater. Must sell. Call 545-2314 between 8:20 & 5 Monday thru Fri.

DON'T MISS THE

Four-College MIXER

And PSYCHEDELIC LIGHT SHOW

By Hollingworth & Boliver

FRIDAY APRIL 7 - 8 P.M.
U.M. S.U. BALLROOM

With the SOUL PURPOSE from Boston

—Smoker—

The brothers of
Phi Sigma Kappa invite YOU to an
Open Smoker

WHEN: Wed., April 5, 7:30-9:00

WHERE: Governors' Lounge, S.U.

Greek Week Concert

TICKETS
NOW ON SALE IN TICKET OFFICE

THE TEMPTATIONS

and

JACKIE LEONARD

SUNDAY, APRIL 23 — 2:30 P.M.

$2.50

CURRY HICKS CAGE

Tickets . . . Buttons

Fashion Show
Hurricane Dance
Start today
Opposite Hatch
Wrestling Match
CAMPUS CHEST WEEK 6-9

GIVE . . . during

CAMPUS CHEST WEEK

APRIL 9 - 15

Sponsored by the CLASS OF 1969

Goal: $6900

We need YOUR help!!

(Ad Compliments of the Collegian)

THINKING OF GETTING ENGAGED

Student Diamond

BUYING SERVICE

(WITH SPECIAL PRICE CONSIDERATION)

by

HERB COHEN

in association with his father

NATHAN COHEN
Jeweler & Diamond Merchant
"In the Bowler Building"
Room 206 - Second Floor
1618 MAIN STREET, SPRINGFIELD 3, MASS.
Established 1912 Phone RE 2-5244

Dear Student,

"A diamond engagement ring--one of the most personal and important purchases in an individual's life--is often one of the most difficult.

"I believe that young adults in general, and university students in particular, would welcome a straight-forward unembellished presentation of the facts by someone qualified by training and experience, who is sincerely interested in assisting them in making an intelligent and informed selection."

Qualifications:

N.Y.U.—B.S. Marketing

G.I.A. (Gemological Institute of America)—Specialized Diamond Training

THE SEASON THAT WAS...

A Lack of Firepower . . . a Losing Record

by TOM FITZGERALD
Sports Editor

Except for a snow-blessed carnival, the winter wasn't a season to be jolly for the University of Massachusetts.

One prof made what was called the biggest historical find of the 20th century by discovering a pair of Leonardo da Vinci manuscripts in Madrid, but quicker than you can say "Mona Lisa" the Spanish said the manuscripts were never lost.

The University Theatre headquarters became a mass of flaming greasepaint one Sunday afternoon, but the event did break the monotony of UM news in the papers. People were getting tired of reading about the shootings and other crimes on campus.

The bad fortune didn't quite pervade the alumni. One grad, William Manchester, was the subject of the century's most enduring literary controversy. He will collect a tidy sum as a result.

The worst aspect of the winter, of course, was the basketball team's losing record. For that matter, the only winter team to win more than it lost was the ski team.

Recordwise, the hoop team finished 11-14 against some of the roughest competition this side of Alcindor. After winning its first five Yankee Conference games, UM ended at 7-3, for third place behind Connecticut and URI.

As the statistics show, the Redmen outshot their foes from the floor and held a wide rebounding edge. On the other hand, UM committed over a hundred more personal fouls than the opposition and consequently lost nearly a hundred points at the foul line.

The head press agent, strategist, drill instructor and cheerleader of this aggressive aggregation was an energetic first-year man with a flat-top haircut. Eight years ago Jack Leaman was the captain of a B.U. powerhouse. Six years ago Coach Matt Zunic brought him to UM to coach the frosh. And last year he labored as Orr's assistant.

When Orr resigned to go into the insurance business in the Midwest, Leaman had his chance. On the bench, the rookie coach reflected the volatility of Zunic more than the sobriety of Orr. He shuffled his players with the alacrity of a bass guitarist testing new combinations in the middle of a rock number.

Leaman put hustle at a premium. Sweating blood from 4-6:30 every day was the sure-fire way for a player to see action Saturday at 8.

While Leaman was fingering the strings of his varsity marionettes, his old teammate at B.U., Pete Broaca, was doing likewise with the freshmen. Broaca's boys were rolling along with a 6-2 record until the whistle sounded on the first semester. At the start of the second half, six highly regarded players were missing, and the team won only one of its last seven games.

If Broaca's job was complicated in February, Leaman's job was downright tough when practice began, early in the fall. Two sure starters, Jim Babyak and Mike Bernard, had become two-time losers to the books. And soph Ron Nowakowski was out of school for the first semester. Then soph John Shockro came up with a broken jaw.

(Part II in next issue)

1966-67 UMass basketball team: (front row, from left) Peter Gayeska, Gary Gasperack, Tim Edwards, Captain Frank Stewart, Bob Murphy, Billy Tindall, (second row) Assistant Coach Peter Broaca, John Dreyer, Lonnie Lehrer, Coach Jack Leaman, Greg Rand, Jim Girotti, Assistant Coach Alan Wilson, (third row) Joe DiSarcina, John Lisack, Alan Fisher, Rick Perkins, Mick Gemel, John Shockro, Mike Meola.

Reflections of a Rookie

'The Coach Learned a Lot, Too'

A young man who only eight years ago was playing college basketball himself was reflecting on his first season as a head coach recently.

It's been a quick rise for Cambridge Latin's Jackie Leaman, who in 1958-59 captained Boston University to a 20-7 record. The Terriors reached the finals of the Eastern NCAA Regionals that year before losing to Jerry West and West Virginia, 86-82.

He came to UMass in September of 1961 as freshman coach. His four frosh teams totalled a 43-14 record. And meanwhile he served as assistant to Matt Zunic and Johnny Orr.

But this year Leaman hit the coaching big time. His team had a losing record, 11-14, which wasn't surprising. UMass plays one of the toughest schedules in the East.

"I was disappointed in the fact that we lost so many close games," the rookie said.

He said his boys "played as close to their potential as any team I've ever coached."

"Our biggest disappointment was losing a chance to tie for the conference by one point." He referred to the 60-59 loss to Connecticut on Feb. 18 at the Cage.

The coach singled out his players:

—Bill Tindall—"probably the finest all-around player in Massachusetts . . . a great talent . . . a boy who gave everything . . . probably the finest defensive player on the team."

—Tim Edwards—"did something not every athlete can do: he came back after missing a year . . . It took him six or seven games to get back to playing speed, but when he did he was tremendous . . . He'll be almost impossible to replace next year . . . he seemed to play his best against the best teams."

—Joe DiSarcina—"was the spark of both our offense and our defense . . . a tremendously courageous performer . . . He often plays till exhaustion . . . Very often he played the toughest man on defense . . . I predict that he will be one of the best guards in New England . . . Probably the most amazing fact about him was that he was the third leading rebounder on the team even though he's only 5'10."

JACK LEAMAN

—Bob Murphy—"He told me early in the year that he would be ready early when we needed him if the sophomores didn't come around. But once he was in there it was impossible to dislodge him . . . After his ankle injury against Texas, he never really regained his form, and that was one of the reasons we faded down the stretch . . . sacrificed personal glory for the good of the team . . . a tremendous influence on the sophomores."

—Frank Stewart—"a fine leader . . . Probably got more out of his physical make-up than any player in the United States . . . He played tremendous basketball for the first semester, but then he ran out of gas . . . He played awfully well for as long as he could."

—John Lisack—"an exceptional shooter . . . had great moments and dull moments, but I don't think we'll ever forget his performance in the Providence game, when he hit 14 for 21 from downtown . . . He was the one dependable outside shooter that we had."

—Mike Meola—"contributed much to the team with his attitude . . . worked long and hard with DiSarcina to improve Joey's game, knowing that if Joey played well he might not get to play."

—Greg Rand—"was really coming until he injured his leg in the Fairfield game . . . I'm looking forward to a big contribution from him next year."

—Pete Gayeski—"played well and played poorly, as a soph should . . . There's no doubt in my mind that he will be the most significant person on next year's team. Right now he has to replace Edwards, and how close he comes to fulfilling this task will indicate how good we're going to be."

—Ron Nowakowski—"came back second semester and never regained the form he showed as a freshman . . . He showed that he is an outstanding shooter, but a lack of conditioning made his play erratic."

TGF

Final Hoop Statistics

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
1966-67 Basketball Statistics
Won 11 Lost 14 YanCon W 7 L 3

	G	Fg	Fga	Pct	Ft	Fta	Pct	Reb	Ave	Pf	Ast	Pts	Ave
Tindall	25	172	382	.450	86	128	.672	273	10.9	87	61	430	17.2
Edwards	25	155	326	.475	67	108	.620	342	13.7	88	60	377	15.1
Lisack	25	97	208	.466	38	47	.809	47	1.9	47	25	232	9.3
DiSarcina	25	68	163	.417	64	96	.667	98	3.9	89	154	200	8.0
Murphy	24	62	141	.440	35	45	.778	22	0.8	40	46	159	6.6
Nowakowski	8	23	60	.383	5	10	.500	29	3.6	19	14	51	6.3
Stewart	25	49	116	.422	28	36	.778	82	3.3	50	34	126	5.0
Rand	18	24	53	.453	19	33	.576	45	2.5	30	7	67	3.7
Gemel	5	6	20	.300	6	9	.667	8	1.6	12	4	18	3.6
Gayeska	18	12	37	.324	10	19	.526	37	2.0	31	11	34	1.9
Gasperack	18	13	31	.419	4	9	.444	36	2.0	10	9	30	1.7
Girotti	13	8	25	.320	3	7	.429	18	1.4	11	4	19	1.5
Perkins	10	5	10	.500	2	3	.667	6	0.6	10	1	12	1.2
Meola	8	1	8	.125	0	3	.000	2	0.2	5	2	2	0.2
Dreyer	2	0	2	.000	0	0		1	0.5	0	0	0	0.0
Team								139
UMASS Totals	25	695	1582	.439	367	553	.664	1186	47.4	529	412	1757	70.3
Opposition	25	654	1532	.427	460	672	.684	978	39.1	415		1768	70.7

Sports Week in Review

The Pro Shop

by STEVE ROSS

BASKETBALL—The NBA Playoffs have gotten into full swing, and it appears it is D-Day for Boston. The Celtics have fallen behind 2-0 to the 76'ers and must win tonight's encounter at Convention Hall. The key to the game is Sam Jones. If "Slippery" can shake off the two-game slump he is in the 76'ers may find themselves in trouble.

San Francisco has taken a quick lead over St. Louis in the West. Unless the Hawks can solve Rick Barry & Co. they're finished. Barry has been scoring almost al will, and his teammates have been scoring about as easily.

HOCKEY—The NHL Stanley Cup Playoffs start tomorrow night. In Series A, Chicago hosts Toronto. The Black Hawks have looked strong all season, and if Bobby Hull can play, must be favored. Toronto has a habit of playing lackluster hockey during the season and shining during the playoffs.

In Series B, defending champion Montreal meets New York. The Rangers faded badly during the second half of the season, and could be blown off the ice by the high-flying Frenchmen. Unless the Rangers can regain their habit of overpowering the smaller Canadians, they will be in deep trouble.

Stan Mikita won the scoring title with a record tying 97 points. A 98th point was disputed and Sunday's films showed Mikita didn't earn what would have been the record breaking point.

FOOTBALL—The Green Bay Packers have announced an affiliation with the Lowell Giants of the Atlantic Coast Football League. This affiliation means that Lowell will receive Green Bay cuts and be coached by the Packer's staff. In essence, Lowell is a Green Bay farm club.

Bob Meers, former UMass end, signed with the San Diego Chargers of the AFL. Meers had been the 6th pick of the NFL's Minnesota Vikings, but was cut after sustaining a training camp injury last summer. A '65 grad, Meers will probably be tried at tight end. At 6'4", 240 lbs, he may make it.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
Collegian
Sports
WEDNESDAY, APR. 5, 1967
Page 12 Vol. XCV, No. 60

Nine Ends 3-3 in Land of Cotton

Over the spring vacation, the UMass varsity baseball team wound up 3-3 on their southern tour. They encountered games with Clemson, Erskine College, and Pembroke State.

Clemson, Mar. 27 — The Redmen opened their 81st year of inter-collegiate varsity baseball with a near-perfect performance that resulted in a 4-1 win over Clemson on sun-drenched Memorial Field.

Junior lefty John Canty and senior righty Carl Boteze teamed up for a slick one-hit pitching exhibition. Clemson, 20-7-2 in 1966 and the nation's second best hitting team with a .321 mark, was unable to cope with the fast-ball antics of Canty and Boteze.

UMass took the lead when junior third baseman Elliot Klein hit a long home run over the left field fence in the second inning. Watson then stymied the Redmen until the sixth.

With one out in the sixth, junior centerfielder Alex Vyce singled to center and scored on senior second baseman Frank Stewart's triple to right center. Stewart then scored on a wild pitch. The Redmen got their fourth run in the seventh when with two out soph shortstop Joe DiSarcina lined a single to left, stole second and raced home on Vyce's double down the right field line.

Canty, meanwhile, pitched five hitless innings striking out five and walking two. Of the 17 batters he faced only four got the ball out of the infield. Boteze hurled the final four innings to preserve the victory.

Losing pitcher Watson broke up the no-hit bid in the eighth. With one out Boteze hit catcher Ed Barbary and Watson followed with a hard ground single to right sending Barbary to third. Barbary scored as second team All-America second baseman Rusty Adkins hit into a force out.

The Redmen ended the game in dramatic fashion. Senior first baseman Roy Lasky opened the ninth by backhanding a hard smash behind first to get Jack McCall. Boteze walked Laval Johnson but DiSarcina gobbled up Howie Sharman's grounder and started a nifty game-ending double play.

* * *

Clemson, S. C., Mar. 28 — A sudden rainstorm washed out UMass' attempt for its second win over Clemson. The Redmen twice battled back to gain 1-1 and 4-4 ties before the Tigers struck for three runs and a 7-4 lead in the fourth.

The rain started to fall in the top of the fifth but Clemson was unable to get the Redmen out before time was halted. The Tigers' number two pitcher Bill Parmer needed three quick outs but the Redmen refused to play dead and the game was called with two men on and one out in the inning.

* * *

Clemson, S. C., Mar. 29 — Clemson shut out the Redmen, 4-0, and then took advantage of pitching wildness for a 9-4 curfew-curtailed game and a double-header sweep before 1500 rabid fans.

Righty Pete Myers stymied the Redmen in the opener although UMass sophomores Rich Rappoli and Norm Elliott deserved a better fate. Myers struck out seven and walked just one as the Redmen stranded seven runners.

The UMass defense, so outstanding Monday, broke down for two unearned runs. Rappoli pitched six innings, gave up three hits and four walks. Elliott pitched the seventh and eighth allowing one hit, one walk and one unearned run.

Howie Sharman gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead with their only untarnished run by whacking an opposite field home run over the left field fence in the second inning.

With one out in the sixth and the score 2-0 Rappoli walked Rusty Adkins, who stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. Jack McCall then walked and they worked a double steal as Charlie Watson struck out. Clemson added another in the seventh off of Elliott.

DAVE KATZ
Spotless ERA

Wildness by Boteze kept the Redmen in trouble in the seven inning second game.

After tallying twice in the first Clemson made it 4-0 in the second on two walks and a Texas-league double to right center by Gary Helms.

The Redmen tied the game in the fourth with a four-run, five-hit explosion. Klein doubled to left center and Ferron ripped a one-hop single to left. Ted Mareno looped a double to right to score Klein and Bill Breen singled to left to bring home Ferron. Boteze greeted reliever Bill James with a single to left to score Mareno and DiSarcina's sacrifice fly to center brought home Breen with the tying run.

With one out in the sixth Boteze walked McCall and Helms, threw a wild pitch, and walked Buster Smith intentionally to load the bases. Keith Waters then slashed the first pitch to center for a two-run single and a 6-4 lead.

Boteze, who walked 12 in six innings, was relieved by Elliott. But Elliott ran into control problems also and Lasky had to finish the inning. The Tigers got three runs on two hits, two walks and a hit batsman. The umpires called the game at 6:32 in accordance with a previously decided upon 6:30 curfew.

JOE De SARCINA
12 for 24 with stick

Due West, S. C., Mar. 30 — The Redmen wasted little time getting back on the winning track as they backed John Canty's one-hit pitching with a blistering 19-hit onslaught and a 16-5 victory over Erskine College.

Canty hurled seven no-hit innings running his two-game streak to 12 before Hamp Campbell opened the eighth with a solid single to center. The UMass lefty struck out 10 and walked eight and four Redmen errors accounted for four unearned runs.

Boteze ripped three doubles and a single and drove home three runs while shortstop Joe DiSarcina turned in a top performance by slashing four hits, reaching base five times, scoring four runs and driving in two and coming up with three great fielding plays.

UMass erupted for five runs on five hits in the second inning with two-run doubles by Canty and Boteze the key hits. Frank Stewart's three-run 340' homer over the right field fence added three more in the sixth.

A six-run explosion in the ninth wrapped things up. Lasky's two-run double was the big hit of the inning.

* * *

Due West, S.C., Mar. 31—Junior lefty Dave Katz turned in a solid pitching effort and was

(Continued on page 10)

Vacation Wins Boost Redmen Lacrosse Hopes

by TIM KELIHER
Staff Reporter

Dick Garber's 14th year as UMass lacrosse coach promises to be another good season. Over the vacation the Redmen played a total of seven scrimmages and games. They lost only one.

Hampered by snow, the team practiced in the Cage most of the week. With limited outdoor practice, the Redmen were at a definite disadvantage but showed remarkable aplomb under such circumstances.

The only loss suffered by the Redmen was to Oberlin College of Ohio by a score of 8—3. UMass outshot Oberlin, 64—22, and outplayed the Ohians in every aspect of the game but the most important one.

The Redmen soundly whipped RPI, 9—5, last Friday. Saturday, the squad beat two strong schools in scrimmages, Tufts and Harvard, by 6—2 and 8—5, respectively.

Other UMass victories were scrimmages against Connecticut Valley Lacrosse Club, Boston Lacrosse Club and Nassau Community College.

The Redmen will face MIT here Saturday at 3 p.m.

TOP HITTERS IN DIXIE

	g	ab	r	h	2b	3b	hr	sb	sc	sf	hp	bb	so	rbi	ave
Boteze	5	13	2	8	3	0	0	0	1	0	0	1	0	5	.615
DiSarcina	6	24	8	12	2	1	0	2	0	1	0	2	1	3	.500
Craig	1	2	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	.500
Mitsakos	4	8	2	3	1	0	1	0	0	0	0	2	1	3	.375
Stewart	6	20	2	7	1	1	1	2	0	2	1	2	2	7	.350
Ferron	6	24	4	8	0	0	1	1	0	0	0	1	3	2	.333
Mareno	6	24	2	7	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	1	4	1	.292

THE SEASON THAT WAS...

Sophs Rescue UMass Ski Team

Excellent prospects for an outstanding 1966 ski season existed after the UMass slat sliders finished the 1965 season in second place. Then things began to get unpasted. Glen Langley, an outstanding UMass freshman in 1965 and one of the top junior ski racers in the nation, had an unsuccessful knee operation during the summer which side-lined him from ski racing forever and caused him to drop out of school.

The next trouble came to the "wise old racer," Tom Pittendreigh, the number three man behind Langley and Collin Garstang. Tom, elected co-captain with Collin, was in his sixth year in college during the 1966 season. The NCAA rejected his petition to waive the 5-year rule because of time spent in the service and time spent on two college campuses sampling most of the majors offered. The commission decided that he was both too wise and too old for inter-college ski racing.

Tom spent considerable time during the season imparting his wisdom to the teams sophomores. The next blow fell when Dick McHugh, number six, took his team physical. He was found to have mononucieosis, which kept him at the Infirmary for two weeks and forced him to stay off skis for the winter.

Mid semester took its toll and Fred Foster, number four, flunked out. With 1, 3, 4 and 6 gone on a six man team before the season even started, it looked like a grim winter building a team around the nucleous of Garstang '68, John Hurd, '68 and Mike Zanolli, '69. Hurd and Zanolli had only two outings each in competition during the '65 season.

Two one-week training camps at Killington developed the talent of Dave Kamilla, '69, Wilkie Ward, '69 and John Williams, '68 The doctors "unleashed" Dick McHugh who had been ski racing on his own on the day before the first racing weekend.

At Dartmouth, on a long three race weekend, UMass discovered it had a good scrambling team to support Garstang who was always a threat to win every race. The real competition in the 8-college A division of the league was found close at hand in Amherst College, which won all three races while UMass finished 2nd, 3rd, and 4th in the three events for a second place standing in the league.

With Garstang skiing first and Hurd skiing a safe last and the uncertain sophomores in between, UMass seemed to have a successful formula for a good, if not outstanding, season.

On the next weekend at Stratton Mountain, in an extremely long and difficult 120 second slalom more appropriate for international ski racing than for collegiate competition, the UMass team proved that it had legs by winning the race while many of its competitors ran out of gas in the middle of the course.

Garstang and Zanolli had the best performances while McHugh and Ward joined them on the bandwagon. On Sunday, after only one week of working out with the team, Ned Kelley, '69 a Class A racer five years ago, had a good performance, finishing 22 out of 68 collegians on the mountain.

Garstang and Zanolli again had the best performance while Kamilla and Kelley rounded out the UMass four to count. The team finished fourth but was only 4.3 seconds out of first place with a total of 317 seconds. The weekend entrenched the team in an almost certain second place for the season and placed them within reach of first place Amherst College.

MAGNIFICENT SEVEN—The UMass ski team after slalom victory at Stratton Mountain, Vt., includes (from left) Coach Bill MacConnell, John Williams, Dave Kamila, Capt. Collin Garstang, Mike Zanolli, Wilkie Ward and John Hurd. Missing are Dick McHugh and Ned Kelley.

The next week, in ten below temperatures and high winds, the team raced two slaloms at Mad River Glen. On Saturday UMass bowed to AIC but plowed Amherst College by 45 seconds team time. UMass finished four men in the top eleven with Kelley fourth, Garstang seventh, Zanolli 10th and Kamilla 11th. On Sunday, the team skied nearly as well again, with four men in the top 13; Garstang fifth, Kelley sixth, Zanolli 11th, and McHugh 13th, but Amherst was faster and UMass finished second out of eight colleges on the hill.

In the New England Intercollege Ski Conference Championships at Mt. Whittier with 25 colleges competing from the three divisions in the league, UMass finished second in the race and second for the year. The team started to go all out to catch Amherst, and Garstang fell over 300 feet through three gates in his effort. Kelley, Kamilla, Zanolli, and McHugh all sophomores, put the team in a safe second place again behind Amherst.

It was a good year and the outlook should be a better one next year since the entire team will be back, barring bad luck with doctors, educators, inter-collegiate rules, and wives who won't let their husbands race.

A cheerleader called the Phantom . . . a pep band without uniforms . . . the Court of the Last Resort . . . the best rebounder and the best playmaker ever at UMass . . . a match for Jimmy Walker . . . Oklahoma . . .

The basketball team finished 11-14 but there was a lot more to the story. See page 11.

When You See
News In the Making
Dial the
"COLLEGIAN HOTLINE"
545-2550

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

PHI
BETA KAPPA
Page 5

VOL. XCV, NO. 60 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, APRIL 7, 1967

Med School Progresses; First Class in Fall of '70

by RON La BRECQUE
Staff Reporter

Dr. Lamar Soutter, Dean of the UMass Medical School, graciously took time from his full schedule to report to the Collegian on the school's progress shortly before vacation.

Dr. Soutter began by giving an overall picture of what has happened in the past six years. To begin with, he stated, a Dean must be selected, followed by a site for the school, and finally the architects. Dr. Soutter said that nothing happened in the first two years of 1961-62.

After Dr. Soutter was appointed Dean, the major problem became the site. Worcester was chosen because the school was able to obtain enough land to allow for expansion in future years.

He said that when it becomes necessary for UMass to expand to another campus, "although it may be 20 years," the land will be there.

Two years have to be allowed for the architects and two years for construction. In April of 1966 the architects completed the plans, which, Dr. Soutter stated, were ahead of schedule.

Federal funds will be allotted in June of this year and construction will begin in July of 1968, with the school opening in the fall of 1970.

Dr. Soutter plans to have a class of 16 students in the Fall of 1970. He stated the reason for the low number of students in the first year is in anticipation of any problems that may arise in construction.

If the school should not be completed by the fall of 1970 they will be able to accommodate the 16 students in a smaller building presently located on the site. The adjoining hospital will be completed in 1971.

Mrs. C. L. Philpett, Librarian, according to Dr. Soutter, has already obtained a large number of volumes. He said that two libraries have been purchased by the school. A bid was placed and won on the Pittsburgh Academy of Medicine Library.

Also, a scientifically oriented library of 5,000 volumes in Amsterdam, Holland was recently purchased. The library will have 100,000 volumes to start, in addition to approximately 500 bound periodicals

(Continued on page 9)

ROBERT M. HUTCHINS

Mario Savio Discusses Amherst Parietal Rules

by ELIZABETH WHITE
Staff Reporter

Mario Savio appeared April 6 before a crowded Converse Hall at Amherst College for a panel discussion with Professor Henry Yost, Mr. Gordon Levin, Professor Theodore Greene, and Professor George Kateb, all members of the Amherst faculty.

The panel topic was the problem of the social hours. Savio said that the social hour rules for allowing women in the dormitories were probably violated by over one fourth of the students and that they encouraged petty immorality.

Some of the other panel members favored the social hours rules, but the students generally sided with Savio's position that some definite action be taken.

Several students claimed that the enforcement of the rules was highly inefficient in that someone might break the rules once and be drastically punished while other constant rule-breakers never get caught. Savio said that there must be some justification in doing something about social hours if there is such overwhelming opposition.

He said, "It is too easy to fail to see how deeply this kind of thing affects us. The hurt goes deep. Social hours are only the tail end of what has been going on for years."

The discussion shifted to educational systems, particularly those at Berkeley. Savio said that they are sometimes more able to see problems than the administration and faculty. He

(Continued on page 8)

Savio Lecture Attended By 250 at Amherst College

by STEPHEN FOSTER
Amherst STUDENT Reporter

"Men have a great desire to believe certain kinds of lies — especially those kinds that support authority." It was this point that Mario Savio emphasized in two speeches given last evening in Johnson Chapel by reflecting on the student revolt at Berkeley and the political philosophy which he espoused as a leader of the Berkeley Free Speech Movement.

A small, intense audience numbering around 250 attended the 8 o'clock address and listened to a relaxed and effective Savio. "The nation's leading student activist" began his talk with an explanation of the protests, sit-ins, and strikes of 1964 by outlining the development of the Free Speech Movement at Berkeley, the groups which supportd it, and its role in highlighting the status and grievances of the American student.

He used the Berkeley campus as an example of the ghetto conditions in which radical change may be fostered.

This view of the best means for developing radical consciousness reflected the brand of New Leftism which the experience of Berkeley impressed upon him. He labels it the "ghetto theory" of social reform.

"It is much easier to see how other people have been oppressed then to see how you yourself have been oppressed." The creation of a radical consciousness comes through the realization of one's own oppression. "The ghetto," as Savio defined it, "is a local community with a high degree of internal communication. There is an intensification of one's own ills when they can be seen in others close to you."

That was in part the experience of Berkeley, whose student community constituted a kind of ghetto. Even the hippies as an example of "the ghetto theory" can stimulate for social change. "The hip-

(Continued on page 9)

Hutchins To Make Three-Day Appearance

Former University of Chicago President Robert M. Hutchins and his long-time associate in the "Great Books" program, Mortimer J. Adler, will visit the University of Massachusetts April 12, 13 and 14 for a lecture and discussion series.

Mr. Hutchins is now president of the Fund for the Republic, Inc., and president of the Fund's Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions in Santa Barbara, Cal. He was president at Chicago from 1929 to 1945 and chancellor there from 1945 to 1951. Dr. Adler, author of "How to Read a Book," is director of the Institute of Philosophical Research in Chicago.

Wednesday, April 12, at 8 p.m. in the Student Ballroom, Mr. Hutchins will give a lecture titled "The University of the Moon," under the auspices of the UMass Distinguished Visitors Program, open to the public without charge.

Thursday, April 13, at 8 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium, Hr. Hutchins, with Prof. Milton Mayer of the UMass English department as co-leader, will lead a 12-member panel of UMass students in a demonstration discussion of the Socratic method of Great Books teaching originated by Mr. Hutchins and Dr. Adler at Chicago. The texts will be Plato's Apology and Crito.

Friday, April 14, at 8 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium, Dr. Adler and Prof. Mayer will lead another student panel in a second demonstration discussion with the Declaration of Independence and the Communist Manifesto as texts.

The panelists, two different groups of 12 sophomores each, have been selected by the English faculty and represent a variety of majors and departments.

The two discussions, open to the public without charge, are presented under the joint auspices of the UMass English, history and philosophy departments.

Robert Maynard Hutchins is a Yale University graduate who became dean of the Yale Law School in 1928, three years after he was graduated magna cum laude from that school.

Chancellor at Chicago

Under Mr. Hutchins' 22 years of leadership, the University of

MORTIMER ADLER

Chicago became one of the country's leading institutions of higher education. One of his innovations at Chicago was the initiation of the Socratic discussion technique to teach the Great Books course.

Mr. Hutchins was subsequently the first board chairman of the Great Books Foundation, which began using the Great Books method in teaching adults and has since extended it to high school and junior high level. He was editor of the 54-volume "Great Books of the Western World" set.

He is a former associate director of the Ford Foundation, and is chairman of the Board of Editors for Encyclopedia Britannica, a director of that firm and of its film division. Mr. Hutchins is the author of several books on education and related subjects.

Milton Mayer, author lecturer and UMass professor of English, is a Fellow of the Center for the

(Continued on page 2)

"A Completely Unique Experience"

Playboy Night '67

by RON La BRECQUE
Staff Reporter

It could as easily have been 54 Park Squire, Boston, but instead it was the transformed Student Union Ballroom. Amidst bunny balloons, posters, and other assorted bunny decorations, including eighteen of the live feminine variety, Sophomore class President Wayne Thomas and his staff presented a most enjoyable Sophomore Banquet.

It was Playboy Night '67 at UMass. Highlighted by the crowning of the Playmate of the year, Jane Ludlow, and a special appearance of "Ed Sullivan's favorite comedian," Jackie Mason, the event was complete to the last detail including a Playboy Bar and a Playboy gift shop.

The banquet staff was headed by Peter Lewenberg and Debbie Nichols, and in the words of Thomas "one of whom is here tonight and one who is not." A round of applause

(Continued from page 7)

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Chocki

Comedian Jackie Mason's appearance was the surprise of the evening.

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

A surprised Jane Ludlow was crowned sophomore "Playmate of the Year" Wednesday night by class president Wayne Thomas.

APPLY NOW

Openings in the Collegian are available for the following positions:

3 News Reporters
1 Sports Reporter
2 Layout and Copywriting Staffers

A training program, beginning April 12th, will be provided for interested applicants. Staffers will be chosen now for next year's crew.

Emerson Eviction Notice Refuted

by Jim Foudy

The girls in Emerson dorm raised the battle cry this week when it was announced Monday by the Master's Staff of South West complex that the girls were to be moved from their "home" to make room for male residents.

The protests of the residents, many of whom have been in Emerson for two years, culminated in a petition signed by approximately 125 girls.

At a meeting with Dr. Noffsinger, Associate Dean or Students, of the dorm with five other residents of Emerson, explained their position and ennumerated the position of the Master's Staff as it had been explained to them.

Miss Procak explained that there were three basic reasons given for moving the house:

1. To strike a balance between men's and women's dorms in the low rise area.

2. To prevent damage to a new dorm by men, which were the results expected by the Master's Staff. The Staff felt it was preferable to give an older dorm (Emerson) to the men.

3. Emerson is also a small dorm of only 160 residents and the Staff felt that men would be easier to control in a small dorm.

Miss Procak also said that the girls had been told that at least thirty per cent of the dorm would have to leave in order to make room for freshmen. The theory behind this is an attempt to strike a balance between freshmen and upperclassmen, Miss Procak explained.

Miss Procak commented that the girls considered the decision "arbitrary" and lacked "consideration of the student interests involved."

She explained that many of the girls like living in the smaller dorm, that a well organized and efficient house government has been established, and that the dorm proposed to the girls is in a bad location and with a bad view.

She also pointed out that because the new low rise has not yet been turned over to the University, the girls will have no chance to see the dorm before room choosing on April 15.

Miss Procak in counteracting the arguments of the Master's Staff said that a male-female balance has already been achieved since Emerson has a brother house in one of the men's towers. Both of the other arguments with regards to damage she dismissed as "flimsy".

The girls appealed to Noffsinger yesterday in an attempt to find out what steps could be taken to change the Master's Staff.

Noffsinger expressed concern for the problem of the girls. He said that there are a number of alternatives to the situation, which he promised to discuss this weekend with Mrs. Sargent, Area Co-ordinator for the Southwest complex.

A meeting will be held between Dr. Noffsinger and the girls Monday afternoon at which time he hopes to have some final decision to announce.

Noffinsinger did point out that if the final decision did not satisfy the girls there is the possibility of appeal to the Dean of Students, the President, and the Trustees.

HUTCHINS . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

Study of Democratic Institutions and has served as academic director for the Great Books Foundation. He has been a visiting lecturer or faculty member at universities and other institutions in the U. S., Gemany, Czechoslovakia and Switzerland.

His books include "They Thought They Were Free: the Germans, 1933-45" (with Mortimer J. Adler), "Humanistic Education and Western Civilization." and "What Can Man Do?" He is the author of numerous articles in national magazines and has received the George Polk Memorial Award and the Benjamin Franklin Citation in Journalism, both in 1955.

Dr. Adler, who received his Ph.D. from Columbia University, has been a faculty member at that institution, at the People's Institute of New York City, and at Chicago, where he was professor of philosophy of law until 1952, when he assumed his present post.

SOLVED even for those who perspire heavily

Mitchum ANTI-PERSPIRANT

A new antiperspirant that really works! Solves underarm problems for many who had despaired of effective help. MITCHUM ANTI-PERSPIRANT keeps underarms absolutely dry for thousands of grateful users. Positive action coupled with complete gentleness to normal skin and clothing is made possible by new type of formula produced by a trustworthy 54-year-old laboratory. 90-day supply $3.00. At leading drug and toiletry counters, with patented nylon applicator. Or for sample, send 25¢ to The Mitchum Co., Dept. AP-3 Paris, Tenn. Remember—it stops excessive perspiration—for many users keeps underarms absolutely dry.

The Freshman Class
4-COLLEGE DANCE will be held
SATURDAY NIGHT

Senate Election Coverage on WMUA

TUESDAY, APRIL 11, 8:00-9:00
Action "67" . . . Host Pete Ward Will Interview Student Senate Officer Candidates.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12, 7:30 —
Live coverage of the Senate elections in the Senate Chambers with Pete Ward.
Speeches, interviews, and results.

Keep up with the campus with WMUA–91.1 FM

SUMMER JOB
under the
Work-Study Program

Numerous types of summer jobs are available all over the state of Massachusetts with the Commonwealth Service Corps under the College Work-Study Program. Job descriptions are listed in the Placement Office.

On-campus interviews will be held on Tuesday, April 25. If interested, sign up for an interview in the Placement Office, Machmer Hall.

Students must first check with Mr. Siegrist in the Placement Office to see if they qualify for the College Work-Study Program. Eligibility is based upon financial need.

Fire Academy Proposed For UMass Campuses

A state fire academy with training programs at several levels for all regulars, call firemen and volunteers in Massachusetts has been proposed to a Special State Commission by the University of Massachusetts at a hearing this week in Boston.

The UMass plan proposes a fire academy with headquarters at the UM-Amherst campus, regional centers at UMass campuses in Boston and Worcester, and short courses and other training sessions held through a field operations division.

A director and staff would be appointed by the University, which would also establish a state Advisory Council.

The academy program, according to the UM proposal, would include short courses or other training programs in three major areas:

- Basic and refresher training in fire fighting techniques and fire department organization and administration,
- Preparation for specialist ratings—a series of three to six courses leading to a rating certificate,
- Conferences and institutes on such special developments as effective work with schools by local fire departments and federal-state assistance in fire protection programs.

The University also has proposed development of academic programs to aid in preparing candidates for the profession or for career advancement. First attention, according to the UMass proposal, would be given to development of an associate or two-year degree program in the field, if warranted.

Longer range study would examine a concentration field in fire protection within the UM School of Engineering, with the possibility of a four-year degree program in this area.

Also suggested by the UMass proposal is development of the fire academy as a laboratory and information center for all fire departments in the state.

In suggesting the Amherst campus as the site for the academy, the University proposal cited its research, conference, library and engineering facilities, variety of buildings available for training purposes, and availability of isolated land nearby for special training.

Presence of the academy would also contribute to improved fire protection for the growing University and the town of Amherst, the proposal noted.

Fire Proves Brotherhood Abounds at UMass

by ROBERT BIEDERMAN

In the aftermath of the disastrous fire at AEPi, the Greeks have shown the true spirit of fraternalism. As the fire was still blazing, offers of help from TEP, SAM, and KS were gratefully received by the now homeless brothers.

That evening, offers of help poured in from many of the other houses on campus.

The university also aided the brothers by providing blankets and linens at the Berkshire dorm in the County Circle. Emergency loans of up to $200 were made available to brothers in order to immediately replace books and other necessities.

Upon further investigation, the original $9000 loss figure was found to be incorrect. The AEPi house is beyond repair, unlivable, and considered a total loss.

The house was covered by a $40,000 insurance policy. The amount to be collected has not yet been determined.

The personal property losses of the brotherhood exceeds $20,000. Many of the brothers housed on the third floor of the house lost everything they owned.

Richard Bloom, the Garber Travel Representative on campus, lived in the room damaged the most. Although he lost close to $2,500 worth of personal property, he was able to salvage close to $1,500 in checks received for trips to Bermuda, Nassau, and Europe.

Housemanager Neil Strauss said that the fire was definitely caused by faulty wiring on the second floor. The fire spread through the walls and ceiling for approximately four hours before it was discovered.

Fraternity President Robert Cohen expresses his thanks to KS, IGU, SAM, and TEP for providing meals Tuesday night for the victims of the fire.

He also thanks all the other houses on campus who unselfishly offered assistance to the brothers of AEPi.

Meeting Held to Spark Interest in Greek Park

A meeting sponsored by the Fraternity-Sorority Park Corporation was held last Wednesday night at 8:00 P.M. in the School of Business Administration Building. The purpose was to bring the Greek system on campus up to date on current efforts to construct a fraternity-sorority park on a 55 acre site in the northeastern section of campus.

In attendance were representatives from all but two sororities and all fraternities. Both national and local officials of the groups attended.

Others in attendance were Mr. George Rogers, Director of Fraternities at UM, Dean William Field, Attorney William Dwyer of Dwyer and Cross, Mr. Herbert J. Sims, Project Consultant and Financial Agent, Mr. Robert Lindquist, Vice-President of the Fraternity-Sorority Park Corporation, Mr. Robert Peters, Executive Director, Fraternity - Sorority Park, Inc., and Mr. Per Nylen, Landscape Architect for the corporation.

Mr. Robert Gailey began the meeting by discussing a 60 page report of the progress of the project. During this discussion, Gailey, the president of the corporation, emphasized the purpose, past history, and future goals of the fraternity-sorority park.

Gailey reported that, because of inadequate housing, lack of potential expansion area, and lack of unity in the Greek system as a whole, the fraternity system at the University of Massachusetts was becoming static. These reasons prompted the formation, by a group of fraternity advisors, of a nonprofit corporation to advance the best interests of the Greek system.

For one and a half years the corporation has been working on certain goals, of which most have been realized. They have managed to buy enough land for the expansion of the system, obtain ownership of certain sites in the North-Pleasant St. area, and begin to organize potential financial backing for the project.

The goals that remain now are to get an initial number of houses on campus to become interested enough so that money may be raised in order to begin construction of utilities and roads for the park. This would hopefully begin by September. The houses would move into the park as their financial situations allowed until, hopefully within five years, most of the houses presently on campus

(Continued on page 8)

The Brothers of
PI LAMBDA PHI
extend an invitation to freshmen and upperclassmen to attend an open smoker
MONDAY, APRIL 10th
Formal Bristol Room
8-10 p.m.

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

National

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bobby Baker, former secretary to the Senate Democrats, hears his sentence for income tax evasion, theft and conspiracy.

* * *

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—Former Alabama Gov. George Wallace said he is considering running in the 1968 New Hampshire presidential primary but did not indicate whether he was thinking of entering as a Democrat.

International

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. planes bomb missile sites around Haiphong, North Vietnam's big port.

* * *

PARIS — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey arrived in Paris today and after an ineffectual Communist demonstration at the airport hurried into talks with President Charles de-Gaulle that were expected to bring no major improvement in French-American relations. Beer glasses and flour were thrown at him in Berlin but were missed.

* * *

ADEN — A U.N. mission charges the British with a lack of cooperation and breaks off its visit to Aden.

Voters, Judges Think Powell

WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter which way a court ruling in the Adam Clayton Powell House seating case goes, attorneys say it will be appealed.

U. S. Dist. Judge George L. Hart Jr. announces today whether the courts can intertere with House action which denied Powell his congressional seat.

When Powell was denied March 1 his seat in the House, he brought suit in U. S. District Court to regain it.

The House excluded Powell on grounds he misused Education and Labor Committee funds, defied New York State courts in a defamation suit and was contumacious toward House committees that investigated him. He contends the House wrongfully established qualifications not required by the Constitution.

The law authorizes a district judge to establish such a panel when an act of Congress is challenged. The House contends its resolution is not an act of Congress.

Powell, who will try to regain his seat in a special election Tuesday, also asked Hart for an injunction ordering the House to seat him immediately. Thursday in Albany, New York's highest court ruled Powell could run for the 18th Congressional District seat.

Powell faces two other Negroes for the Harlem seat, Republican Lucille Williams and conservative Ervin Yearling.

CAMPUS CHEST WEEK APRIL 9-15

PROPOSES HIS JOB BE ABOLISHED—Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien has proposad that his job be abolished, and that a nonprofit government corporation be set up to handle the mail. O'Brien termed his recommendation "the most extensive proposal ever made in the history of the American postal service." — (AP WIREPHOTO)

Cong Charge Border Capital

SAIGON (AP) — Thursday, the Communists followed up the crossing of the Ben Hai bridge with a series of attacks on Quang Tri City, which is about 10 miles below the zone on the main north - south highway. These attacks hit a regimental command post at Quang Tri City, other South Vietnamese posts and a number of American installations in the city. Ten U.S. military advisers were killed and nine wounded.

The Red force penetrated within the city and was there for much of the day. They opened the gates of the city prison and freed about 250 prisoners of war.

The U.S. military advisers' compound and a nearby compound housing U.S. aid personnel were among the American centers hit.

South Vietnamese military headquarters said the attacks were made by four battalions of Red troops, or about 2,000 men. The headquarters said 156 Communist soldiers were killed in the fighting. South Vietnamese casualties were not announced but were serious in some units.

Bomb Hanoi?

South Vietnam's chief of state threatened today to bomb Hanoi or invade North Vietnam if the North Vietnamese don't stop attacking the South Vietnamese half of the demilitarized zone.

The threat by Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu came in the wake of the Communist attack on the provincial capital of Quang Tri.

In the air war against North Vietnam, U.S. planes attacked Communist missile sites Thursday within the defense ring surrounding Hanoi and Haiphong, North Vietnam's major port.

Thieu said Communist attacks in the South Vietnamese half of the six-mile-wide demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam are a deliberate violation of the 1954 Geneva agreement, and South Vietnam "reserves the right to retaliate in any form to protect itself."

Asked what form the retaliation might take, Thieu said Hanoi might be bombed or South Vietnamese troops could be sent into the North.

Senate Textbook Loans Aid 112 UMass Students

Loans for the purchase of textbooks were taken out by 112 students over the period including Registration Day and the nine week days following at the start of this semester. Drawn on the Student Senate Book Loan Fund, amounts not exceeding $25 could be borrowed.

The Fund was the result of over a year's research and development during which time nine different plans were considered. The Senate approved the policy last March 9 in a unanimous vote and gave additional endorsement this fall.

The average amount borrowed was $19.18. A total of $2,148.68 was used although the Senate made $5,000 available with $2,000 backing.

The student requesting a loan was informed after 24 hours of the decision of the Senate Loan Committee, chaired by Mike Garjian (J.F.K. Upper).

No co-endorser was required for the loans, and loans returns were due 30 days later.

By the middle of March 75 percent of the loans had been repaid. Warning notices are being sent out at present by the committee to those with loans outstanding.

WAR!

WASHINGTON — Today the President issued a proclamation of a declaration of war following a Senate vote of 82-6 and a House vote of 373 - 50 — fifty years ago.

Woodrow Wilson, former Princeton professor, urged Americans to their duty to "take immediate steps not only to put the country in a more thorough state of defense but also to exert all power and employ to bring the German Empire to terms and to end the war."

There was 13 hours of debate in the Senate, led by Progressive Sen. Robert LaFollette of Wisconsin. The House, in continuous session April 6 at 3 a.m., went through 6 ½ hours of 100 speeches.

Forces from America would be in Europe the next month, a drop that became a flood and which would result in the unconditional surrender of Germany 1½ years later, November, 1918.

Tour Continues

Bomb Arrests Do Not Scare HHH

BERLIN (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's visit to West Berlin went ahead yesterday despite the arrest of 11 young persons accused of plotting against his "life or health." Authorities said those arrested were members of "a very small, extreme radical group within politically interested student groups."

Police said they seized the plotters Wednesday night as they were preparing explosive bombs and plastic bags filled with chemicals for an assault on the vice president.

One source said the materials seized by police were to have been thrown along Humphrey's route and into the City Hall during his speech there.

This, the first serious incident since Humphrey arrived in Germany Wednesday, did not change the vice president's plans to reaffirm the U.S. position in Communist - surrounded West Berlin.

Mayor Albertz called on West Berlin to give a traditional welcome to the vice president.

Volpe Speaks on Centralized State

AUGUSTA, Me. (AP) — Gov. John A. Volpe of Massachusetts claims massive federal spending programs may mean "the end of state and local government in this country as we now know it."

"Federal money is calling the tune," the Republican governor told a GOP-sponsored "Man of the Year" dinner for former Gov. John Reed Thursday night.

"States, cities, counties, towns and school districts," he said, "have learned in recent years that they are no longer completely masters of their own affairs."

Volpe said federal aid now totals $15 billion yearly, "and Pres. Johnson is talking about the quadrupling of this federal aid within the next five years."

Collegian Wire News Staff

EDITOR: Richard S. Kline
STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Roupenian
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini

B. C. Pills Are Taken at B. U.

BOSTON (AP) — Wiliam Baird, 34, who identified himself as director of a New York-based organization called Parents Aid Society, addressed some 2,500 students, many of them girls, Thursday at Boston University. He described various birth control devices and gave instructions for their use.

He was arrested after the speech when he began handing out packages which he said contained contraceptives. They were taken by about a dozen girls who came from the audience.

Baird said his action was designed to force a court test of state birth control laws.

State law allows only physicians and druggists to dispense contraceptive devices, and then only to married persons.

Baird said he was invited to speak at the university by Raymond Mungo, editor of the Boston University News, the student newspaper.

EXTRA!!

Student Dies

BOSTON AP — George Rollins, 23, of Belmont, died today in Massachusetts General Hospital of–burns suffered March 23 in an Amherst apartment.

A senior at University of Massachusetts, Rollins had been beaten before the fire broke out, police said.

Stephen H. Murphy, 22, of Lexington, roommate of Rollins, was charged with arson and was ordered committed to Bridgewater State Hospital for 35 days mental observation.

Murphy stood mute on arraignment March 25 in Northampton District Court and Judge Luke Ryan ordered an innocent plea entered.

10,000 Cong Are All Ky's Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is hiring former Communist soldiers to help American troops locate Viet Cong guerrillas and their hideouts in South Vietnam, Pentagon sources report.

This new intelligence program was launched early this year in extreme northern areas of the country near the demilitarized zone. The repatriated enemy troops are called Kit Carson scouts.

They lead Marine patrols into the countryside to identify Communist guerrillas—usually indistinguishable from the friendly populace among whom they live — and locate enemy tunnels, arms and ammunition.

For their hazardous turncoat assignment sixty scouts draw $40 a month, more than a South Vietnamese private gets. Because they are prime targets for assassination, the scouts live with the Marines.

Officers say that from a security standpoint the scouts have proved satisfactory. None has betrayed his new employers. One has been killed. "We hope to get authority for more," an officer said.

At the recent Guam conference, South Vietnam's Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky reported that 10,000 of 50,000 former Viet Cong who returned to government allegiance are now serving in the South Vietnamese forces.

Editorial Section

On Editorial Incentive

The question concerning remuneration or incentives for student editors is indeed complicated. While it is true that a publication is considered to be an extra-curricular activity, the amount of time which is required to coordinate a newspaper the size of the Collegian, and the tremendous responsibility of the editors to the student body places it in a category separate from other leisure organizations. This responsibility is greatest in two areas: in the administration of the largest budget of any RSO, and in the field of journalistic professionalism itself.

The experience gained from holding an editorial position is definitely invaluable, but at times the holder of such a position may feel that it's more of an "experience" than any full-time student is able to, or should have to, put up with. This can be particularly true on a campus such as ours where the majority of students do not want to participate, and do not really appreciate the time and effort being spent mainly in their behalf. The argument that editors enjoy what they're doing can be stretched just so far. Enjoyment, experience, and other such intangibles are often not enough to compensate for the mental and physical energy expended in the line of duty.

Let's compare a student editor to an athletic coach. Both manage personnel, make plans, decide policy, etc. However, unlike the coach, the editor has no "substitutes"—many times his policy must be "if you want something done, do it yourself." Unlike the coach, the editor does not have an excess number of students trying to "make the team." In fact, personnel on student publications is notorious for its fast turnover. And there are no scholarships with which he may lure journalistic talent to his office. Also unlike the coach, the editor receives no tangible remuneration.

It may seem mercenary to some, but a newspaper this size is a business. Even the editor of the Boston University News, only a weekly paper, receives $1500 yearly. When it is no longer a small paper in a small school it of necessity ceases to be merely an extra-curricular activity on the editorial level—it is a public service as well.

The possibility that incentives might result in a loss of editorial freedom is of course a serious one. However, payment of salaries from student tax money would result in only slightly more outside control than is now exerted by the Student Senate in its budget appropriations. The granting of academic credits might possibly lead to intervention by the administration in some schools, but this seems rather unlikely here.

Whatever form the compensation might take, we feel that it is definitely needed and should be given some serious thought in the near future if our growing communications media is going to serve our growing campus adequately.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

How the West Was Lost

GUENTER H. LOESER

Two of the major problems in the Southwest Residential College are closely related. One is that of the disproportionate number of freshmen. This year in many houses, notably the towers, almost half the residents are freshmen. In one house there are more freshmen than upperclassmen.

It is this imbalance that is the cause of much of the noise and destruction for which Southwest has become notorious. The effervescence of the freshmen is not properly tempered by t h e experience gained by upperclassmen.

The second problem is that of meal tickets. Southwest is the only campus area where these are compulsory for all residents. For the rest of the campus exemptions are given to seniors, students over 21, and Greek affiliates.

Until these exemptions are also put into effect in Southwest, upperclassmen will not be willing to leave the traditional dorms, which is necessary to properly balance the class make-up of Southwest.

With pre-registration for room assignments only a short time away, the administration will have to act now. If the proposed third Southwest dining commons is not built, there will be more than enough students to fill the other two.

This would make it financially feasible to grant meal ticket exemptions, making Southwest more attractive to seniors, at a saving for both the students and the University.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68

MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Associate News Editor ..... Richard Kline '70
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69
Circulation Manager ..... Bob Godwin '68

Friday's Day Editors—News: Margie Fanders '69, Sports: Harvey Elman '68, Editorial: Nancy Bourgoin '69. Photo: Neil Rennie '70

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Sam Spark Speaks Out

Cool Call- Inz Calms Calamity

President Greenquist: The first order of business on tonight's agenda will be committee reports. Senator Wimpydoo, would you please tell us what has been happening in Men's Affairs.

Senator Wimpydoo: Last week Men's Affairs passed a motion to thank R.S.O. for appropriating money to buy a blackboard for our committee.

President Greenquist: I'll have to rule you out of order Wimpydoo. That motion is much too controversial for the Senate to handle.

Senator Wimpydoo: I protest Mr. Chairman. This is a flagrant disregard of the rights of the individual with liberty and justice for all.

Senator Freeman: Point of personal privilege. The Senate has taken enough impudence from Wimpydoo. I move that the Senate strip Wimpydoo of his Senate seat of the people, by the people, and for the people.

President Greenquist: I must caution the Senators not to act too hastily on this motion which is undoubtedly the most significant motion we've ever considered.

Senator Garage: President Greenquist is right. So I make a motion we table Senator Freeman's motion for six years.

Greenquist peered around the chambers to see if any Senators wanted to debate on Garage's motion. Finally he spotted Senator Good-Day frantically waving his INDEX finger. "Senator Good-Day, you may speak on Garage's motion" said Greenquist.

Senator Good-Day: I make a motion to table Senator Garage's motion to table Senator Freeman's motion for six years in order to form a more perfect union.

Senator Garage: Well if you don't like that motion, I'll withdraw it and replace it with a darkhorse motion.

In the commotion, Senator Wimpydoo slipped out of the Senate Chambers and boarded a plane for Bimini to bask in the tropical sunshine while awaiting the decision of his peers.

Meanwhile back at the Senate, the concise, clearheaded debate of the Student Senators continued.

The entire Senate had been waiting anxiously to have its debate climaxed by the cool Senator Call-Inz. At first, it appeared that the cool Senator Call-Inz wan't going to speak, but at the last possible second he coolly cast his hand aloft. Pres. Greenquist: Yes, Senator Call-Inz. You may debate on whether or not to strip Senator Wimpydoo of his seat.

Call-Inz nonchalantly arose and haughtily grunted. At this, a few female senators in the back of the room fainted, their hearts aflutter. Call-Inz cooly smiled in their direction and then pompously puffed a ring of smoke from his puckered lips.

Next, he suavely struck a match and matter-of-factly relit his pipe. And with a blasé sneer on his chiseled visage, he arrogantly tugged at his ascot. A chorus of female sighs permeated the chambers.

There he stood for two or three minutes without saying a word, and doing nothing except thinking, looking and generally acting cool. Finally, he glared seethingly in the direction of Wimpydoo's vacant seat, and with upper lip curled and menacingly pointing a finger in that direction, in a burst of defiance he contemptuously sneered, "Swine!", and magestically regained his seat.

The entire Senate erupted in an uncontrollable mass of thunderous applause and reverential swoons. Call-Inz had done it again! And after cool Call-Inz' cogent debate, the vote to unseat Wimpydoo was a mere formality. In fact, Call-Inz was virtually unopposed.

Campus Comment

Stop Thinking....

To the Editor:

Just over a month ago, the Collegian took up the battle cry of "Think Snow!" in accord with the wishes of the Class of '68 and the many worried upperclassmen who remembered our last three snowless Winter Carnivals. One can debate the relative merits of this slogan, but it is more important to note that it actually did snow!

This is most surprising when one recalls that this is UMass and that UMass weather is invariably the exact opposite of that which is desired. It also made some of us suspicious as to how this was accomplished. We debated such things as "pacts with the devil" and "selling out spring for a few days of snow."

Our suspicions grew as the snow continued to fall...and fall...and fall. We began to formulate a plan by which we would assassinate the Junior class W. C. Committee members and lock the WMUA weather staff in the Chapel belfry until we got either Spring or "Spring Day" back, neither of which we had last year.

But during vacation a miracle occurred —it became warm again! The sun reappeared and 10,000 incredulous Umies bolted for parks, beaches, etc., etc. Our suspicions were gone...temporarily.

Now we are back at beautiful UMass, the Massachusetts version of Paradise Lost, and it seems that "The Plot To Sell Out Spring" isn't a figment of the imagination. Our suspicions are confirmed! Not even at UMass could the temperature drop from 73 to 31 degrees in twelve hours and then finish with more SNOW —unless, of course, there's been some foul play!

This is our final warning! Unless those responsible for selling out spring come forward, we will be forced to put our somewhat drastic plan into effect. And, for the sake of all that spring means, STOP "THINKING SNOW" ! ! ! !

William Halainen '69
Ron Courchesne '69
Steve Lyons '70
George Washington Upper

All letters submitted to the editor must not exceed 50 typewritten lines at 60 spaces per line, double-spaced.

With Gratitude

An open letter to many:

The events connected with the recent loss at Alpha Epsilon Pi have caused the fraternity to rapidly acquire a debt of gratitude. Therefore, we would like to publicly thank the following:

the combined forces of the Amherst Fire Department and the campus volunteers. Particularly noteworthy was the covering of many house furnishings and much personal property so that water damage was greatly minimized;

the campus police and Amherst police for their guarding what property remains at 136 Sunset Avenue;

the University administration for their rapid and thorough arrangements for temporary housing and meeting facilities;

Mr. George Rodgers and the other staff of the Fraternity Manager's office for their invaluable aid in almost every aspect regarding our present situation; the fraternities and sororities for their kind and quick offers of temporary housing and meal service;

the many people who helped us in moving to our quarters in Berkshire;

Gordon Linen Service for the speedy delivery of linen to Berkshire;

the many others we have inadvertantly overlooked that should be included above.

With thanks to all of you, we are

Sincerely yours,
The Brothers and House Father of Alpha Epsilon Pi

$5,000 Award Offered By Cambridge Foundation

by ELIZABETH WHITE
Staff Reporter

A $5000 award, open to anyone anywhere, is offered by the Edward L. Bernays Foundation of Cambridge, Mass. for a comprehensive program to increase knowledge of the American and British people of each other by dissipating stereotypes, cliches, generalities, myths and half truths that many Britons and Americans cling to.

Entries must not exceed 5000 words and are to be mailed not later than June 30, 1967 midnight to 7 Lowell Street, Cambridge, Mass. 02138. The winning program will be published and distributed on both sides of the Atlantic.

Six distinguished Americans and Britishers make up the jury of award.

"Regardless of the decision the British people make as to their economic alignment, it is vital that close relationships between them and Americans be maintained, to strengthen, in the world, human values for which both countries stand," said Edward L. Bernays, president of the Foundation.

Mr. Bernays, author of many books on public opinion, began the Foundation with his wife in 1946 for the purpose of furthering intergroup relations of varied kinds.

In their letter to the Collegian, the foundation explained the thoughts behind the competition

"Americans describe the British as degenerate, arrogant, lazy, unprogressive, snobbish, tradition bound and the British describe Americans as trigger happy, crude brash, vulgar, non-intellectual, sex-mad and dollar crazy, credulous and neurotic. Obviously pat generalizations applied to hundreds of millions are false."

"Tourists to both countries come and leave with their preconceived notions intensified. Nor do British and Americans understand each other's political structure."

"It is hoped the competition will uncover suggestions and ideas that can be used to further the goal of better mutual understanding between the two peoples and thus to strengthen the relationship."

Anyone interested in the competition may obtain complete information at the news desk in the Collegian office.

Phi Beta Kappa Announces Spring List of Students

The following is a list of undergraduates elected to Phi Beta Kappa, Spring 1967, UMass. The first three names on the list are those of juniors.

Joanne R. Crooker	Math
John F. Moseley	Math
Carolyn G. Smith	English
*Priscilla Abrahamson	English
David L. Adams	Chemistry
Martha A. Alpert	English
Claire P. Amiot	Premed
Denis R. Baillargeon	Microbio
John B. Bailleul	Math
Lawrence A. Brockman	Premed
*Joel F. Caron	Economics
*James R. Chandler	Anthro
James T. Connelly	English
Gerald S. Creem	Economics
Alan S. Davis	History
Paul C. Desmarais	Math
Barbara A. Devens	French
*Richard C. Dils	Russian
Barry I. Freedman	English
Eugene M. Getchell	History
Bruce S. Gordon	Government
John D. Gutz	Math
Kenneth A. Hardy	Sociology
Kenneth H. Hurvitz	Premed
Kathleen M. Hynk	Psych
Chester R. Jabionski	Chemistry
Marilyn C. Johnson	Math
Richard J. Kent	Math
Kenneth K. Kuske	History
Julia Krusz	Russian
Elizabeth Z. Lachman	German
Robert E. Langan	History
Frederic S. Mackler	Predent
Donald A. Majercik	Premed
Wallace J. Matthews	Premed
Judith S. Novack	French
Patrick M. O'Malley	Psych
Cynthia W. Pease	History
Margaret M. Plumridge	Sociology
Carolyn K. Rayner	Sociology
Natalie E. Rhodes	Geology
Patricia J. Salice	Chemistry
Lorna J. Sass	English
George M. Sears	English
Daniel S. Sheehan	Microbio
Deirdre L. Smith	English
Stephen W. Smith	History
Louise R. Starzyk	Math
Thaddeus J. Strzempko	Physics
Gene C. Studlien	Math
Jeanne H. Williams	Zoology

*Received UMass degree in 1966 at end of summer session.

COMPLETE SERVICE
SAFE
MOVING
DEPENDABLE
STORAGE
EXPERT PACKING

Call
GLEASON
MAYFLOWER
Pearl St., Northampton
584-6413—for estimate

YAHOO IS ALIVE!

. . . But it must be fed . . .

The Yahoo staff welcomes and needs contributions.

Deadline is Monday, April 10.

African Students Sponsor Drive For New School

The nine students from Malawi, Africa, now enrolled at UMass are conducting a book drive in the 4-college area for the newly-established University of Malawi.

This drive is sponsored by the Malawi Students' Association of New England.

There is an urgent need in Africa for college-level books of all kinds and professional journals in all disciplines.

Donations should be sent to University of Malawi, c/o International Training Program, 212A Stockbridge Hall, University of Massachusetts. Arrangements can be made to pick up any large amounts of books contributed. Please contact Gilbert E. Mottla, 545-2716 or 545-2697.

Cultural Olympic Games

Possible Peace Solution

by CAROLYN FOLUND
Staff Reporter

"Since the wishes and efforts of Baron Pierre de Coubertin, who refounded the Olympic Games, have not achieved the desired success. . .it seemed imperative that the flame of the Olympic Games be rekindled," said George Lacroix, Secretary of the Cultural Olympic Games, the organization that has resulted

The Games serve as a possible solution to the problem — Will there ever be peace on earth? Lacroix admits that it is difficult to establish a connection between peace and the Cultural Games. He does not promise a world without conflicts. This would be "pure Utopian fantasy." The prime ambition is to prepare a climate that will be favorable for settling future conflicts.

Hope for peace is based on the belief that it is man's mind and his ability to reason that distinguishes him from animals. Humans are able to resolve their conflicts by reason, thus omitting the necessity to resort to force.

"A peace-seeking attitude, like all good things, is the product of an enlightened education." according to Lacroix. He regards the school as important for it is here that the child first comes in contact with human competition.

After completing school, the student either becomes a laborer or he continues with his schooling. Here, ideally, the similarity ends. There will be no prejudice harbored against the worker. The laborer and the student will continue to be in contact with each other. Thus, the ties between men are strengthened.

In the Games, through competitive cultural events and mutual trust, the youth can gradually learn to consider different opinions intelligently.

The goal of the Cultural Games may be summed up as follows: "Its essential aim is to offer the young generations of all nations a place. . .where they can gradually learn to consider different opinions objectively and separate the pros and cons intelligently on the human level. . . .It is self-evident that if man at last is capable of finding a happy solution by use of reason, violence is no longer needed to solve conflicts. Under these circumstances peace will derive quite naturally from the Cultural Olympic Games."

MARSHAL YOUR SENSES!

"Damn Yankees" will massage them like no TV show ever has. The music from this all-time Broadway smash has been completely rescored, arranged for a great new sound. The visual techniques take the step beyond "pop" and "op." It's the kind of innovation you associate with GE and that's why we're part of it. That's why we're putting "Damn Yankees" on the air. Don't miss it.

General Electric Theater
NBC TV 9-11 PM. EST • Sat., April 8

Progress Is Our Most Important Product
GENERAL ELECTRIC

NOTICES

SCIENCE FICTION CLUB
On Monday, April 10, at 8:00 P.M. in Council Chambers, S.U., the Science Fiction Club will present guest speaker Frederick Pohl, to speak on "Science Fiction: The Game-Playing Literature."

YOUNG DEMOCRATS
On Monday, April 10, at 3:30 P.M. in Council Chambers, S.U. Congressman Edward Boland will speak on Vietnam. Coffee will be served.

THE 7:17 HOUR
Campus Crusade for Christ will sponsor a gathering of college Christians open to all. This will be at Dr. Loescher's home in Amherst. Meet at Nantucket Room, S.U. or T-6 for ride. It will take place Friday, April 7, at 7:00 P.M. There will be a student speaker and discussion period.

UNIVERSITY CHRISTIAN WORSHIP
There is a worship every Sunday morning at 11:00 A.M. in Mahar Auditorium.

HILLEL
On Friday, April 7, at 7 P.M. in Worcester Room, S.U. Dr. Larry Kerpelman of the Psych Dept. will speak on "Open Mind, Closed Minds" at Friday evening services.

PRE-LAW ASSOCIATION
Buses will leave from the Student Union at 3:00 P.M. Monday, April 10, for the trip to Boston College Law School. The visit will include dinner, an address by the Dean of the Law School, and attendance at law school classes.

GERMAN FILM "DON CARLOS"
The Vienna Burgtheater film of Schiller's "Don Carlos" will be presented at UMass Monday, April 10, at 8:30 P.M. in Room 20 Hasbrouck. The film is in German, with no subtitles. No charge.

SPEED READING
The last session of the Speed Reading course will be given Monday and Tuesdays from 7-8 P.M. from April 3 thru May 2, in Education Bldg., Room 125.

STUDENT RELIGIOUS LIBERALS
On Sunday, April 9, at 6:00 P.M. at the Unitarian Society of Amherst, there will be a cost supper. Jeffrey Cambell will be present.

EMERSON HOUSE
There will be a dance with the "Group Therapy" on Saturday, April 8, from 8-12 P.M. Admission is free, and open to the Southwest Complex.

NEWMAN CLUB
There will be a bus for the girls' retreat leaving from the Student Union at 4:00 P.M. and from the Newman Center at 4:15 P.M. on Friday, April 7.

APO LOST AND FOUND
Will the person who took a wallet recently please return it to the lost and found at the S.U. No questions asked.

If you have lost a notebook, text, glasses, or other valuables, go to Campus Lost & Found booth at the bus ticket window.

PINNINGS:
Eileen Gallivan, class of '68, T-4, to Alan L. White, class of '67, Alpha Sigma Phi.

Patricia Mapps, class of '70, Pi Phi, to John Ekegren, class of '70, U.S.M.A., West Point, N.Y.

Linda Provost, class of '70 Johnson, to Mark DelSesto, class of '69, Phi Sigma Delta.

"Unsafe at Any Speed"

Author to Speak on Auto Hazards

Ralph Nader, author of the best seller, "Unsafe At Any Speed," will speak this afternoon at 4 p.m. in the S.U. ballroom.

Nader, whose book on the auto industry and traffic safety unleashed a barrage of investigations, controversies, and Congressional legislation, and led ultimately to important automobile modifications, will speak on "The Social Responsibilities of Business" in a talk sponsored by the UMass's School of Business Administration Colloquia. His talk is open to the public without charge.

Nader says he became interested in the study of auto hazards by the "needless death and maiming of hundreds of thousands of people annually" on the nation's highways. His book has been called "a ringing indictment of the (auto) industry".

A native of Winsted, Conn., the 33 year old lawyer is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Princeton University, and received his law degree from Harvard Law School in 1958.

RALPH NADER

Hillel Announces Passover Meals

Hillel is now planning the Passover seders and meals for season beginning April 24 and ending May 2. All meals will be home cooked by a professional caterer with luncheons and dinners served throughout the holidays.

The traditional seders will be held on the first two nights. Meals will be served in Line One of the North Dining Commons which has been reserved for Hillel's use during Passover.

Meals may be purchased in any combination. The price for the seders will be $2.85; luncheons, $1.60; and regular dinners, $2.10. Because of limited facilities, the numbers of meal takers may have to be limited and therefore students are urged to make reservations as soon as possible. The final deadline for reservations is April 14.

Hillel's meal program is arranged with the financial assistance and cooperation of the Department of Religious Programs for College Youth of the Associated Synagogues of Massachusetts.

Reservations for the meals may be made between 9:30 and 5:00 in the Hillel office.

"We are now in the first week of the Spring motor vehicle inspection which runs through May 15," Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin said today. "Well over two million motor vehicles must be inspected in the next five weeks in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in order to comply with our compulsory law. We have certified 3100 stations to inspect these vehicles but we urge drivers to present their cars as soon as possible to avoid crowded conditions."

Examiners will check the following equipment on passenger and other types of motor vehicles including trucks, trailers, motorcycles, motorscooters and motorbikes, school buses, and vehicles with farm, dealer, repair and owner-repair plates:

1. brakes
2. headlamps
3. tail lamps (and rear plate light)
4. stop lights
5. number plates (no plastic or other coverings allowed)
6. horn
7. tires
8. rear windows (no clouding on convertibles)
9. steering gear (and ball joints)
10. marker lights on commercial vehicles
11. muffler and exhaust system
12. bumpers, fenders, and external sheet metal
13. windshield and windshield wipers
14. safety chains (on trailers)
15. front and rear floor boards

An orange sticker printed in black will be placed on the lower right-hand corner of the windshield of vehicles passing inspection. An oval white sticker with a red band across the middle will be placed on windshields of those failing to pass. This rejection sticker must remain on the windshield until necessary repair work is completed. If it is still on the windshield on May 16, the vehicle will be removed from the highway and fines and court action will result.

"With the advent of pleasant driving weather, those who have their vehicles inspected early will have the advantage of knowing that they are operating a motor vehicle in safe driving condition," said Registrar McLaughlin.

COMPU-DATE

COMPU-DATE is the new and modern exciting way to date, now operating exclusively in the Western Massachusetts area.

Open the door to a new experience. Let the modern 360 computer find the relationship you have been looking for.

Each applicant will receive the names and addresses of three to seven COMPU-DATES. Deadline May 8, 1967.

Applications will be available on campus or by writing:

COMPU-DATE
Box 1952
Springfield, Mass.

"Meet your mate with Compu-date"

Don't laugh at Charles Van der Hoff's big ears. He can hear a party a mile away, thanks to Sprite.

Social-life majors, take a look at Charles Van der Hoff. He can't play the guitar. Never directed an underground movie. And then look at his ears! A bit much? Yes! But--Charles Van der Hoff can hear a bottle of tart, tingling Sprite being opened in the girls' dormitory from across the campus!

What does it matter, you say? Hah! Do you realize that Charles Van der Hoff has never missed a party in four years? When he hears those bottles of Sprite being uncapped--the roars--the fizzes--the bubbles--he runs! So before you can say anti-existentialism, he's getting in on that tart, tingling, slightly tickling taste of Sprite. And delicious refreshment --as well as a good time--is his.

Of course, you don't have to have ears as big as Charles Van der Hoff's to enjoy the swinging taste of Sprite. You may just have to resign yourself to a little less social life.

SPRITE, SO TART AND TINGLING, WE JUST COULDN'T KEEP IT QUIET.

SPRITE IS A REGISTERED TRADE MARK OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY

SOPHOMORE MEN:

Want to be a leader and double your chances for success in life? You can, by earning both a degree and an Army officer's commission at the same time . . . even though you may not have taken ROTC training in your first two years!

Through a new program, you can be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant after taking two years of Army ROTC training while you complete your studies for a college degree. You can qualify for this program by attending a special six-week summer training camp after your sophomore year and then completing the ROTC Advanced Course in your junior and senior years of college.

Here's what ROTC training and an officer's commission will do for you:

- It will qualify you to fulfill your military obligation as an officer.
- You will learn to organize, motivate, and lead others.
- You will develop leadership qualities that many college men miss—self-discipline, physical stamina, poise, bearing, the acceptance of responsibility and other qualities that contribute to success in either a civilian or military career.
- You will receive $40 per month during your junior and senior years, plus pay and mileage for summer training.

The training and experience you will receive through Army ROTC will pay off for the rest of your life. A decision to take advantage of this new program could be one of the most important you will ever make.

You owe it to yourself to investigate this new important opportunity.

For complete information on the new Two-Year Army ROTC Program see the Professor of Military Science on campus.

ARMY ROTC

IF YOU ARE GOOD ENOUGH TO BE A LEADER, DON'T SETTLE FOR LESS!

From Ballroom to Nightclub

(Continued from Page 1)

was given in appreciation to Debbie Nichols who is now in Weymouth Hospital as a result of a car-train crash which occurred shortly before Spring Vacation.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki
Music was provided by Dick Madison and his 7-piece Tiajuana Band.

Those attending the banquet were greeted at the door by one of the eighteen bunnies, and the mood of the evening was set by Dick Madison and his seven-piece Tijuana Band.

A buffet style dinner by candlelight offered a pleasant change of pace from commons dining. Prior to the evening's entertainment, ample opportunity was given to purchase Playboy-styled gifts or to have a colored Polaroid picture taken by bunny Ellen Keenen.

The crowning of the Playmate was especially exciting as she had been chosen by Playboy Magazine Editor Hugh Heffner. Pictures of the eight contestants were sent to Heffner who was aided in his selection by Brice Draper, head of the Playboy College Bureau. Announcement of the winner was given in a unique manner.

A taped, long distance telephone conversation between Thomas and Draper was played which named Miss Ludlow the winner, whereupon Thomas crowned her with the traditional Playboy rabbit ears.

Entertainment began with Caviechio Duo, talented xylophonists who have recently appeared on the Lawrence Welk Show. They were followed by Jana Louise, who has just finished a series of appearances at Blinstrub's in Boston, pleasing the audience with selections of what she called "old standards," including an enjoyable medley of Dixieland tunes.

The surprise of the evening was the appearance of nationally-known comedian, Jackie Mason. His delightful 45 minute monologue seemed to leave no stone of controversial humor unturned. A large amount of his joking was aimed at problems of the day and national personalities, but he was able to direct a few pointed remarks at students and a certain University Dean seated near the stage.

Mason has an unusual talent for humorous sarcasm, whether it be aimed at President Johnson, a particular Sunday night television variety show host, or something as personal as his own religious convictions —or anyone else's for that matter.

The evening's entertainment ended with the music of Madison and his band who returned to play for anyone wishing to dance.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki
Sophomore bunny Chris Carey is pictured here selling cigarettes to Gail Houghton and Bill Tennant at Wednesday night's Playboy Banquet.

And yesterday the following release came over the Collegian Associated Press Wire: Boston (AP) —Harvard's chief psychiatrist says he detects a "definite beginning on the part of college students to accept the 'playboy philosophy' much more than before."

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki
Sophomore executive council member Jack Mills displays his talents at the "Cocktail Bar".

"Playboy Club of Amherst"

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Chocki
Comedian Jackie Mason had the audience in hysterics with his imitation of Ed Sullivan.

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly
Sophomore Jane Ludlow was crowned "Playmate of the Year" by class president Wayne Thomas.

The FOUR COLLEGE MIXER
and Psychedelic Light Show
by Hollingworth & Bolivar is TONIGHT Friday, April 7, 8:00 p.m.
with Boston's Soul Purpose
U.M. Student Union Ballroom – 75c - All Will Be Here
THERE WILL BE A SECOND FOUR COLLEGE DANCE ON SATURDAY NIGHT.
DON'T MISS IT!
DON'T MISS IT!

Shoes for all campus activities from dressy heels & sling-backs – to the new block heels & squared-toes – to the barest barefoot sandals – to the perennial hand-sewn loafer.
BROWSE IN THE BOOT & SANDAL SHOP
Bolles Shoe Store

SAVE YOUR DIMES and DOLLARS
for
CAMPUS CHEST WEEK
APRIL 9 - 15
Sponsored by the CLASS of 1969
GOAL: $6,900

Keyed-up students unwind at Sheraton... and save money

Save with weekend discounts! Send for your free Sheraton ID card today! It entitles you to room discounts at nearly all Sheraton Hotels and Motor Inns. Good on Thanksgiving and Christmas, holidays, weekends, all year round! Airline youth fare ID cards also honored at Sheraton.
SEND FOR YOUR FREE ID CARD!

COLLEGE RELATIONS DIRECTOR
c/o Sheraton-Park Hotel, Washington, D.C. 20008
Please rush me a free Sheraton Student ID Card (or a free Faculty Guest Card). I understand it entitles me to generous discounts all year long at most Sheraton Hotels and Motor Inns.
Name_____
Address_____
_____ Student ☐ Teacher ☐
Sheraton Hotels & Motor Inns

S.U. Experiences Growing Pains of Expanding Campus

Photo by Rennie

Renovations now in progress to remedy crowded conditions in the Hatch.

New accommodations for University Store give more room for browsing.

Photo by Rennie

Photo by Rennie

"Pool sharks" make use of new billiards parlor.

Photo by Rennie

"Studies in Religion in '67"

Religion and the New Morality

The Reverend Deane Ferm, who has been the Chaplain at Mount Holyoke College since 1959, will deliver the 5th lecture in the series entitled, "Studies in Religion-67". Ferm will lecture on "Religion and the New Morality".

During the academic year 1965-66 Reverend Ferm was on sabbatical leave in Uppsala, Sweden. He studied the relationship between the Churches of Sweden and the developing moral and social standards of modern Swedish society.

Rev. Ferm is a graduate of Yale University where he received his B.D., M.A. and Ph.D. for study of religion in higher education. He is an ordained minister of the United Presbyterian Church.

The lecture series is sponsored by the Academic Affairs Committee of the Student Senate.

The Committee has been engaged in a project to determine the feasibility and desirability of a department of religious studies at the University of Massachusetts. All the lectures are open to all interested persons.

AMHERST PARIETALS . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

pies," he stated, "in their own outrageous fashion, challenge very deeply the social norm."

Ghetto Theory

"What are the possibilities for radical and rapid change in America? Negroes are," Savio suggested, "the appropriate minority to change American society and—with a split in the ranks of labor—to create a third party of leftist opposition."

GREEK PARK . . .

(Continued from page 2)

could begin construction of new houses in the park.

These ideas and the project itself was backed by Dean Field when he remarked that in his opinion the fraternities and sororities on campus should, "do intensive analysis of their current status."

Dean Field explained that in 1960 he felt some houses couldn't last 2 years in there standing condition. At that time the administration began a push for renovation and reconstruction but, because of a shortage of expansion areas, allowed houses to continue with a minimum of improvements.

Now the situation has changed and the opportunity is available. His remark was, "I don't think this project can wait." He commented that, "It is the responsibility of each fraternity and sorority to return to their houses and (in cooperation with their Alumni Corporations and their National Organizations) start planning for the future.

Dean Field's final statement was "that we (the administration) are now in a position, because of the available land, to say that any house that doesn't take the steps necessary to improve their housing conditions (will be judged as failing to meet their obligations to their membership and the University" "This implies that houses in poor condition who don't begin (sound planning and initiate early action for) improvement may be closed.

At this lawyer Dwyer remarked that fraternities and sororities must act now in order to have park facilities by September.

The emphasis of Wednesday night's meeting seemed to be on Greek action. The corporation has been working hard for one and one half years and has been planning much longer than that, and as Mr. Gailey put it, "we have reached the point where the initiative has to come from the Greeks themselves."

THE MEN'S JUDICIARY BOARD WILL HOLD SELECTIONS

For Class of 1970

Saturday, April 8, Council Chambers

For Class of 1969

Sunday, April 9, Council Chambers

Applications may be picked up and returned to the R.S.O. Office, S.U.

AMHERST Cinema

NOW SHOWING 2ND WEEK

"BEST FILM OF 1966!" National Society of Film Critics

A Carlo Ponti Production
Antonioni's
BLOW-UP
Vanessa Redgrave
David Hemmings · Sarah Miles
COLOR
RECOMMENDED FOR MATURE AUDIENCES
A Premier Productions Co., Inc. Release
Daily 6:50-9:00
Sat. - Sun.
2-4:30-6:45-8:55

NEXT ● "MAN AND A WOMAN"
SOON ● "THE ENDLESS SUMMER"
"DOCTOR ZHIVAGO"

Greek Week Concert

TICKETS
NOW ON SALE IN TICKET OFFICE

THE TEMPTATIONS

and

JACKIE LEONARD

SUNDAY, APRIL 23 — 2:30 P.M.

$2.50

CURRY HICKS CAGE

MASS. CLASSIFIED

HELP WANTED

Man wanted to work a few afternoons raking leaves, fertilizing lawns, etc. Call 253-9462 evenings.

FOR RENT

Pleasant rooms to rent. Furnished. Mile to campus. Near foot of Triangle at 502 Main. Immediate occupancy. Call Bob Dempsey (Northampton) 584-9690.

FOR SALE

RCA 21-inch color TV in good condition. Will take best offer. Call 256-6846.

Must sell $226 worth of stereo tape recording equipment with 2 microphones, extra reels. Practically new. Asking $100. Call 546-6377.

OPPORTUNITIES

1967 SUMMER JOB CATALOG—Start your career this summer with a major US corporation. Excellent salaries. Catalog lists over 10,000 openings available THIS SUMMER for men and women students. Send $2 today to: Amer. Assn. of College Students, 20 North LaSalle, Chicago, Illinois 60602.

WANTED

Male or female student wanted to share an apartment in Paris, France, for the months of June, July, and August. Call Bob Wilson, 546-7865.

AUTOMOBILES

'56 Chev, new carb, new muffler, good tires. $50. Call 413-467-7437.

1961 Volkswagen, good condition, radio. Must sell $400. Call 253-5677.

1966 Fiat 1100 station wagon, blue, white walls, luggage rack. $1197.42. Call 545-1400 9-5 p.m.

1965 VW for sale. Excellent condition, clean, radio & heater. Must sell. Call 545-2314 between 8:30 & 5 Monday thru Fri.

1965 MG-B light blue. Springtime special. Excellent condition. Never driven hard. Priced by mutual agreement. Call 586-1487. Ask for Carlene.

1962 Rambler American station wagon. Good running condition. Must sell. Radio, heater, 5 tires, new rebuilt engine, windshield wipers. Call Sam, 546-9126. Best offer.

OPPORTUNITIES IN SELLING

Free to Univ. of Mass. Students 25¢ to others

A new booklet, published by a non-profit educational foundation, tells which career field lets you make the best use of all your college training, including liberal-arts courses—which career field offers 100,000 new jobs every year—which career field produces more corporation presidents than any other—what starting salary you can expect. Just send this ad with your name and address. This 24-page, career-guide booklet, "Opportunities in Selling," will be mailed to you. No cost or obligation. Address: Council on Opportunities, 550 Fifth Ave., New York 36, N. Y.,

UMass Greeks Fraternize With Fraternities at Syracuse

by PAMELA METAXAS
Staff Reporter

As part of a new program to exchange fraternity ideas, the UMass IFC executive board traveled to Syracuse Thursday night for a two-day conference. It is the first time such a conference has been held between the two universities.

According to Frank Guidara (Phi Mu Delta), IFC President, there are several purposes to the conference. One is "to exchange rushing policies," he said. Another purpose will be to explore the field of disciplinary problems and scholarship problems that have arisen.

Guidara emphasized that one of the more basic issues that will be discussed will be the "social aspects of the fraternities" at Syracuse. In other words, the reasons why Syracuse is a "dry" campus when the drinking age in New York state is 18 years of age.

One of the more interesting aspects of the UMass fraternity system that Syracuse will be anxious to explore is the fact that UMass possesses one of the few Fraternity Managers Associations in the country. It is a successful system that includes a co-op plan for buying fraternity goods such as fuel and food in bulk at a lower price. The Association "collects all the bills for the fraternities" through a unique system of banking that is highly effective. The FMA also "serves as a liason between the deans and the fraternities," Guidara said.

The planned fraternity-sorority park is another topic that will be discussed at Syracuse. UMass is also one of the few schools to build such a park.

The following members of the IFC executive board that will be attending the conference are: Frank Guidara (Phi Mu), Pres.; Hank Lombardelli (Theta Chi), Exec. VP; Phil Duby (QTV), Rush Chairman and Bruce Cochrane (Kappa Sigma), representing the rushing functions of IFC; Dave Clarkston (Sigma Phi Epsilon), fraternity and sorority park; William King (BKP), Treasurer. Two other officers, Dick Delaney (Alpha Sig), Secretary and Gary Barnett (TEP), Administrative VP will not be attending.

Guidara stated he and the other members of the group planned to learn about the Greek system at Syracuse to improve on the UMass one. He cited that Syracuse has been very successful in rushing because of a "rushing booklet" that is published for the occasion.

Military Ball Is Coming

Lt. Colonel Roy D. Simmons, Jr., Professor of Air Science, is shown purchasing the first ticket to the Annual Air Force and Army ROTC Military Ball. Cadet John Bergs, ticket chairman does the honors. The ball will celebrate the 100th anniversary of ROTC on the University of Massachusetts campus.

The Military Ball will be held Saturday evening, May 13, 1967 at 8:30 P.M. in the Student Union Ballroom. Music for the evening will be furnished by the Eighth Air Force Dance Band from Westover Air Force Base.

The Military Ball is a traditional function on the University of Massachusetts campus, dating back to 1928. The Ball is planned and run by a combined staff of cadets from both corps, and sponsored by the Division of Military and Air Science.

Tickets are $4.00 per couple and the event is open to everyone on the University of Massachusetts campus. Tickets may be purchased at Dickinson Hall.

The New York Woodwind Quintet, one of the most outstanding groups in the field of chamber music, will present a concert at the University on Tuesday, April 11. In addition to flute, oboe, clarinet, bassoon and horn, Herbert Lebow of the UMass music department will perform as a guest artist on piano.
The works to be played include pieces by Franz Danzi, Philip Bezanson, Mozart, Elliott Carter and H. Villa-Lobos. Bezanson, whose work Sextet for Piano and Woodwind Quintet is on Tuesday's program, is also a member of the University music department.
The concert by the New York Woodwind Quintet, sponsored by the Concert Association, will be presented at 8 p.m. in the Student Union ballroom.

MED SCHOOL . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

per month.

In his detailed description of the architects' floor plans, Dr. Soutter explained the improved functional aspects of the U-Mass Medical school as compared with somewhat older Medical schools.

One of the major improvements is concerned with faculty and student study and office space. Each student will have a large dormitory room and a lab in the school building. In addition, there are 306 lockable carrels surrounding the library where a student may keep a limited amount of materials.

Faculty offices will be 1000 sq. ft. whereas schools built as late as 1960 offer only 400 sq. ft. In addition to this, each department will have a conference room and a department library.

Dr. Soutter stated that the various departments in both the school and adjoining hospital have been placed on floors in association with other departments. He cited the example of the radiology and pathology departments which work together, being put on the same floor to improve organization.

Dr. Soutter also spoke extensively on the various costs involved. He stated that it costs almost $1 per sq. ft. more to build in Massachusetts than in Connecticut. He also cited statistics concerning the University of Kentucky Medical School. The Kentucky school was built in 1961 at the cost of $30 per sq. ft. whereas the cost of the UMass school will be $55 per sq. ft. The reason for this is labor wage scales.

When asked about the Dental School, he said that Dr. Nagle, retiring this year as dean at N.Y.U., will make a study on the dental needs in Massachusetts. Space has been allotted to add on a school of dentistry.

SAVIO LECTURE . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

said that Berkeley claims the ratio between students and teacher is 18-1, but in reality that was the ratio for the graduate students while freshmen and sophomores who really need much closer association with the teachers are in a ratio of 60-1.

Savio said that the present grading system is highly inadequate and recommended a portfolio type of grade where work and written evaluation by the teachers would represent the student's achievement.

He also said that today's comparisons between students have no meaning and proposed a system where a student could receive credit for analyzing his own experiences.

Number of UMass Applicants Reaches Fantastic Heights

UMass has received more than 17,000 applications for admission to next year's freshman class of 3,000 students, Dr. William D. Tunis, Dean of Admissions, said today.

The record number of applications is an increase of nearly 3,000 from last year when 14,300 were received and an increase of more than 5,000 from 11,708 in 1965. Dean Tunis said that the University will accept more than 6,000 of the applicants in order to obtain a class of 3,000. Of the 11,000 who will be turned away, he estimates that between 4,000 and 5,000 students are qualified to do the work at UMass.

According to Dean Tunis, "Applicants to UMass are in an increasingly competitive situation. Better and better students are applying each year. This makes it rough on the good solid students who should have an opportunity to attend their state university."

To demonstrate the new levels of competition, Dean Tunis selected at random 50 graduates from the Class of 1964 who have gone on to secure good jobs. Applying the criteria used to admit them against the standards used when the Class of 1968 was admitted, Dean Tunis found that 28 of the 50 graduates wouldn't have been admitted four years later!

The majority of decisions on the 17,000 applications will be made during the next few weeks, and letters will be going out to all applicants during the next month.

For students who are qualified, but for whom there is no room, the University will continue to offer its summer "swing-shift" program on an expanded basis for 300 students. Under this plan, students will take their first semester freshman year during the two summer sessions, leave during the fall semester, and return in February at the beginning of the second semester to rejoin their class. They will take the places of February graduates and those who leave during the fall semester.

This program, initiated in 1964 by UMass, has been adopted by many other universities with heavy enrollment pressures. "It provides a partial solution to the enrollment crush," says Dean Tunis, "as we move toward a full year-round operation." Many students find it an advantage to get started during the summer when there are not quite so many activities under way at the University. They then have a longer period to work in the fall to accumulate funds to continue their education.

The number of entering freshmen is being held to the 3,000 level of last year, says Dean Tunis, because of the pressure coming from transfers at the junior class level from community colleges and other schools. When all the requests for admission have been included from these transfer applicants, UMass at Amherst will have heard from more than 20,000 students.

The situation at UMass-Boston, where there will be a total of 1,000 openings, is not quite so critical. To date. however, there have been approximately 3,000 applications and more are expected.

"Now," says Dean Tunis, "comes the real tough part where we make final decisions for the few openings that are left. It's tough to turn away a qualified student."

WMUA Top 20

No. 10—Weekending 4/14/67

last week	this week	title	artist and label
2	 1.	Little Bit Me Little Bit You/ The Girl I Knew Somewhere	Monkees (Colgems)
1	2.	Something Stupid	Frank & Nancy Sinatra (Reprise)
12	 3.	No Good To Cry	Wildweeds (Cadet)
8	4.	Don't You Care	Buckinghams (Columbia)
4	* 5.	Happy Together	Turtles (White Whale)
3	* 6.	This Is My Song	Petula Clark (W.B.)
11	7.	Can't Get Enough Of You Baby	? & The Mysterians (Cameo)
5	8.	Dedicated To The One I Love	Mamas & Papas (Dunhill)
15	9.	I Never Loved A Man The Way I Love You	Aretha Franklin (Atlantic)
13	10.	Beggin'	Four Seasons (Philips)
25	11.	The Happening	Supremes (Motown)
18	12.	Sweet Soul Music	Arthur Conley (Atco)
17	13.	At The Zoo	Simon & Garfunkle (Columbia)
24	14.	With This Ring	Platters (Musicor)
6	15.	Western Union	Five Americans (Abnak)
21	16.	Love Eyes	Nancy Sinatra (Reprise)
26	17.	Close Your Eyes	Peaches & Herb (Date)
23	18.	No A Carousel	Hollies (Imperial)
27	*19.	I'm A Man	Spencer Davis Group (U.A.)
7	*20.	Yellow Balloon	Yellow Balloon/Jan & Dean

*Former Pick Hit Former Sureshot (expected top 10 rating)

MOUNTAIN PARK RTE. 5, HOLYOKE
EVERY SAT. 8 P.M.
COLLEGE MIXER
2 Bands-Monty & Specialties
TUES., APRIL 18 – IN PERSON
YOUNG RASCALS

FACTORY OUTLET
25 Market Street, Northampton
Sweaters for the Entire Family

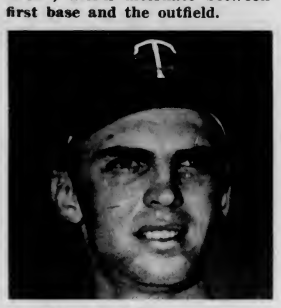
Pullovers $6 to $11	values to $18
Ladies Cardigans $4.95	values to $7.95
Ladies Pullovers $3.95	values to $6.95
Cashmeres $11.95-$17.50	values to $30

MON. THRU SAT. — 10 AM.-5 P.M.
THURS. EVENING TIL 9:00 P.M.
Market St. is across from Jack August

SOPHOMORES
Applications for Executive Council and Winter Carni Committees for '67-'68 are now available in RSO or from present council members
DATE DUE: APRIL 14

Baltimore - Minnesota Donnybrook Looms in Junior Circuit

Yanks, Senators Open Tuesday



by MIKE CURRAN
Staff Reporter

The American League season opens Monday when the down-and-out New York Yankees invade D.C. Stadium to do battle with the perennial second-division Senators. The pennant race opens Tuesday afternoon when the 1965 American League champion Minnesota Twins take on the current World Championship Baltimore Orioles. Most experts see these two teams fighting it out on a plateau above the other entries, but anything can happen.

Below these two teams is a level containing Detroit, Chicago, and Cleveland. Each of these teams could take the flag if key individuals respond. Bunched together in the lower division are California, Kansas City, Washington, Boston and New York, in order of last year's finish.

BALTIMORE — The Orioles have the personnel to run away with the pennant again. Triple-Crown winner Frank Robinson, Brooks Robinson, and Boog Powell, the top three vote-getters for the M.V.P., lead their hitting attack. Add to this the more experienced Curt Blefary, Paul Blair, Dave Johnson, and Andy Etchebarren coupled with Luis Aparicio's all-around abilities, and you have the big reason for a possible second flag for the Birds.

Jim Palmer, Dave McNally, Wally Bunker, and Stu Miller head the mound corp. Throw in the fact that the Orioles have the best defensive team in the majors and it looks mighty rough for their American League rivals. The best rookie could be Mike Epstein, a gigantic Jew from the Bronx, who'll alternate between first base and the outfield.

Minnesota's Dean Chance

MINNESOTA — The Twins, contrary to their usual power strategy, are building their hopes around three of the best pitchers in baseball: Jim Kaat, Dean Chance, and Jim Grant. Add to this strikeout artist Dave Boswell, veterans Jim Perry, Al Worthington, and Ron Kline and you have perhaps the best hurling staff in the big leagues. The infield has Harmon Killebrew, Cesar Tovar, Zoilo Versalles, and Rich Rollins, all solid with the stick but poor with the glove. The outfield contains Bob Allison, Ted Uhlaender, and Tony Oliva ,another good hit, no field combination. Jim Ollom, a 20-game winner in the PCL last year, is the only rookie who figures prominently in the Northerner's plans as the top freshman.

Minnesota's 'Mudcat' Grant

DETROIT — Former Super-Scout Mayo Smith takes over the Tigers' reins this year and with the help of pitching coach Johnny Sain hopes to deliver to the Motor City fans their first pennant in many years. Denny McLain is expected to win 20 games again. Other starters will be Earl Wilson, Dave Wickersham, and Mickey Lolich and Joe Sparma, two of the biggest disappointments of last season. Bill Freehan will do the bulk of the work behind the plate. The infield has Norm Cash at first, Dick McAuliffe, at second, Ray Oyler at shortstop, and Don Wert at third. The pickets will be Al Kaline, Willie Horton, and Jim Northrup. George Korince, a big righthander from Canada, may be the only first-yearman to make the squad.

CHICAGO—The solid pitching of Tommy John, Gary Peters, Joel Horton, Bob Locker, Bruce Howard, and 43-year old Hoyt Wilhelm is the basis for Windy City chances. Almost every infield bid is up for grabs with only Don Buford sure of a berth. Outfield is sparked by Rookie-of-the-Year, 1966, Tommie Agee, a classy batter and fielder. Ken Berry, another great fielder will also be starting. Walter "No-Neck" Williams, the leading hitter in the PCL last year, is one of few rookies who was handed a job when he walked into camp.

CLEVELAND—If the Tribe's good, young mound corp gets better offensive and defensive support this year, the Indians could be right in the thick of the pennant fight. Steve Hargan, Sam McDowell, Sonny Siebert, and Luis Tiant, and Gary Bell average 25 years of age. Joe Azcue has become one of the better catchers in baseball. It's not all bright spots for Manager Joe Adcock, however. Out of the other seven positions, only Max Alvis and Chuck Hinton are sure of playing regularly. Rocky Colavito and Leon Wagner may be platooned at one post. Jose Vadal, a power-hitting outfielder from the Dominican Republic, will probably see more action than any of the other frosh.

CALIFORNIA — Addition of Jimmy Hall and Don Mincher over the winter at cost of Dean Chance makes this a completely different team. The boys from Anaheim are depending on the hitting of the aforementioned Jose Cardenal, Rich Reichardt, and Jim Fregosi to move them up in the standings. The pitching staff is the thinnest the Angels have had since their inception. Veterans George Brunet, Lou Burdette, and Jack Sanford and youngsters, Marcelino Lopex and Minnie Rojas will carry the major burden. California has a genuine candidate for Rookie-of-the-year in Jorge Rubio, a 6'3", 200 lb. Mexican, the hard-throwing righty who mixes up his deliveries well for a 22-year old.

Cleveland's Rocky Colavito

KANSAS CITY— Jim Nash, Jack Aker, Lew Krausse, Jim Hunter, and Blue-Moon Odom, these are the key names in the Athletics' future, perhaps the brightest future of any major league team. Manager Alvin Dark is counting on the hurling of the above and the hitting of fellows like Bert Campaneris, Dan Cater, and Mike Hershberger to lead the Finleymen out of the second division. An improved defense should help the young pitchers. Ramon Webster, a speedy power-hitting Panamanian, will alternate between first and the outfield.

WASHINGTON—The Senators escaped the cellar last year, but they may not be so fortunate again. The infield is set with Ken Harrelson, Bernie Allen, Ed Brinkman, and Ken McMullen and outfield will have Frank Howard and Fred Valentine chasing flies. Paul Casanova, one of the better rookies last year, will be catching the likes of Pete Richert, Phil Ortega, Camilo Pascual, Donald Knowles, and Bob Humphries. Gil Hodges has his work cut for him, but if Harrelson lives up to his potential and Pascual returns to form, the Senators could move up three or four notches. Hank Allen, Ritchie Allen's older brother, will be one of the strong candidates for top freshman honors in the Junior Loop.

BOSTON — When your best pitchers couldn't make the starting rotation on most of the other clubs, you're hurting. Jim Lonberg, Jose Santiago, Dennis Bennett, Darrell Brandon, and John Wyatt will do the bulk of the hurling. On paper and on the field, they have one of the worst pitching staffs ever assembled. Don't despair, however, they still could make the first division with some clutch hitting. Lonborg and Bennett may become first-rate hurlers if control and arm troubles are cleared up respectively. Carl Yastremski, Tony Conigliaro, George Scott, and Joe Foy provide solid punch. The catcher's position is, for the tenth straight year, still up for grabs. Top rookie is Reggie "The Rifle" Smith, who will put his powerful arm at second base, according to the latest reports. Reggie led the International League in hitting last year,

NEW YORK—The senior New York club was too good a team a year ago to finish last. This year a measure of that perennial Yankee goodness is conspicuous by its absence, due mainly to the dissipation through retirement and trade of Bobby Richardson and Clete Boyer, respectively.

A patch-work infield unrivaled in its mediocracy in recent memory will boast John Kennedy, who is rapidly approaching Bobo Newsome's long-standing record of diverse employment (eight teams played for in 22 years), at short,

Boston's Carl Yastrzemski

Horace Clark at second and probably ex-Met Charley Smith at third.

A bright spot should be first baseman Mickey Mantle sporting a new $44 mit. The Mick could hit near .300 and usually is a newsmaker at the plate. A reasonable prediction would be 35 homeruns and 90 RBI's.

The outfield will have Tom Tresh in left, Joe Pepitone in center and highly-regarded Bill Robinson in right. Steve Whitaker, who has clouted six round-trippers in exhibitions, may crack the lineup.

Catching will be fair with Elston Howard and improved Jake Gibbs handling such chuckers as Mel Stottlemyre, Whitey Ford, Jim Bouton, Fred Talbot, Fritz Peterson and newcomer Steve Bahnson.

LOST:

Tan suede glove in back of a gray Rambler by a hitchhiker on her way to the Drake. Please call Candy Gottsche, Lewis 311.

One pair of black glasses in case, on Hill area. Call Brian, 546-9396.

UMass Class Ring 1968—Initials are JLS-BSMe. If found, please contact Jim Scott, 407 Thatcher. Reward.

English 126 notebook. Reward contact Joannie Vanderbogart, 312 Emerson, 6-7293.

Large silever ring and two silver bangle bracelets, in 1st floor ladies room of Bartlett. Lost on Monday, March 20, between 1:00 and 3:00 P.M. Great sentimental value. Reward. Call 618483.

Greenish brwn suede jacket on North Pleasant Street between Fraternity Row and Leach House. Please contact Gerald Creen, 545-2778.

Finest
BLUE-WHITE DIAMONDS
at Moderate Price
WINN Jewelers
31 S. Pleasant St.

MARY LYON HOUSE
INVITES THE U. M. CAMPUS to a
MIXER
Featuring THE GRIM REAPERS
FRIDAY, APRIL 7
from 8-12 in our Rec Room Admission 25¢

!TICKETS!
While they last
at the ticket window
"U. S."
HEAVYWEIGHT
WRESTLING
April 12, 8:15, Cage
Proceeds to Charity
CAMPUS CHEST COMM.

COME HEAR THE FRATERNITY SING
MONDAY, APRIL 17, AT 8:00 P.M.
in the
S.U. BALLROOM
Free Admission
Special Entertainment

UMASS CLASS OF '70
Sponsors the original
FOUR COLLEGE DANCE
featuring
BOSS TWEEDS
and
LEAVES OF GRASS
Sat., April 8 8-12 S.U. Ballroom
Admission 75c
SPECIAL — GO-GO GIRLS

THE SEASON THAT WAS . . .

At Least Number 54 Was Back in Town

by TOM FITZGERALD
Sports Editor
Part II

As usual, the Redmen lacked overwhelming height. The only player over 6'5 was a persevering 6'9 soph named Pete Gayeska, who had only picked up the game in high school and who had miles to go. UMass could have used something else from time to time — a gunner in the Clarence Hill mold.

Individually, of course, there were the bright spots. Lithe junior Bill Tindall averaged 17-2 points per game, best on the team, and was named to the Look Magazine all District I team and the New England Basketball Writers first team, the first junior ever to do so. When the Redmen traveled to Oklahoma at Christmastime, he looked like an All American.

Sophomore Joe DiSarcina was every bit the field general Leaman had hoped he'd be. DiSarcina, who broke by one the UM season assist record of 153 set by George (Trigger) Burke in 1956, may well have been New England's most underrated player.

Senior John Lisack guarded his man and dribbled the ball as if he expected both to explode. But the fellow who bet against his outside jumpshot should have stuck to roulette.

But the shoulders on whom the Redmen's hopes rested belonged to husky number 54, Tim Edwards, who had been out of school for a year and was rusty in the early going. Whenever he was beaten or outnumbered on the boards, the Redmen would lose.

Cast in other main roles were seniors Frank Stewart and Bob Murphy, lanky junior Greg Rand, soph Ron Nowakowski and W. Springfield's old Whiz Kids, Gary Gasperack and Jim Girotti.

But when the Redmen took the court for the home opener against Boston College, all eyes were on husky number 54. Tim Edwards was back in town.

Edwards had missed a year of school and would need a number of games to get back to playing form. But all season long, UMass' fortunes would rise and fall with him. Whenever he was beaten or outnumbered on the boards, the Redmen would lose.

Besides Edwards, other welcome additions to the scenery were a masked cheerleader with leotards and guts, called the Phantom, and a spirited instrumental combo that gave quite a lift to the atmosphere. The musicians deserved uniforms.

Under the light of the Cage, UMass' Court of the Last Resort, the only school color is a mellow yellow. And when the Redmen appeared in their abbreviated sweat suits, the yellow ones, they had all the flash of a one o'clock volleyball class.

As for the game, New England's Coach of the Year, Bob Cousy, had two potential Jesuits on the floor, Steve Adelman and Billy Evans, who with shooting and ball-handling, respectively, led the mighty Eagles to an 86-63 victory over the Redmen in Coach Jack Leaman's debut.

B.C. was without 6'8" center Willie Wolters, who had a fever. His absence certainly wasn't tragic for the visitors. The Redmen however, suffered from DiSarcina's bad ankle. With Joey limping, the Redmen played like the Tijuana Brass with Herb Alpert nursing a split lip.

But thanks to the hustling play of Murphy and the shooting of sophomore Mike Gemei, UMass trailed by only 11 with five minutes left, when B.C. opened it up.

The Eagles, who were destined for the finals of the NCAA Eastern Regionals, won it off the boards and at the foul line. They held a 54-43 rebounding edge and shot a torrid 32 for 36 at the line.

The Redmen licked their wounds for a few days, then took on conference-contender Rhode Island. Cage fans had a little extra spirit that night. They forgot about the B.C. game, even about that tough scrimmage the week before in which the Redmen finally had to struggle to beat the frosh, 49-43.

Everything somehow went right against the Rams. DiSarcina was back, leading the fast break. Tindall was scoring and rebounding strongly. Lisack was hitting. But Edwards scored 17 points and held All Conference center Art Stephenson to one field goal and three free throws. And that was the main reason Jack Leaman took his first victory as head coach.

The final score was 79-71 but the Redmen led by 15, 72-57, with three minutes left. Larry Johnson gave it a game try with some hot shooting, but when the horn sounded, it was number one for a jubilant young UM coach.

Except perhaps for the two wins in Oklahoma City, and the Manhattan game in Boston, he wouldn't taste a sweeter victory all year.

(Continued Next Issue)

All-Conference First Squad Includes UM's Tindall, Edwards

Wes Bialosuknia of UConn was the only unanimous choice for the annual All-Yankee Conference team. The team was selected by a vote of the coaches of the six New England State universities.

Runnersup to the high scoring senior were Art Stephenson and Larry Johnson of the University of Rhode Island and Bill Tindall of the University of Massachusetts, each of whom received five votes. Finishing in a tie for fifth place were Bill Corley of Connecticut and Tim Edwards of Massachusetts.

The second team comprises Terry Carr of Maine, Denny Hodgdon and Tuffy Clark of New Hampshire, John Lisack of Massachusetts and Don Kaull of Rhode Island. Honorable mention was given —to Bill Holowaty of Connecticut, Jim Stephenson of Maine, Dave Lapointe of Vermont and Joe DiSarcina of UMass.

Bialosuknia, who shattered practically all Yankee Conference scoring records during the past campaign, easily won the conference individual scoring title. He held a 12-point per game lead over his nearest competitor, Stephenson of Maine.

In addition to his record-scoring 340 points, Bialosuknia, from Poughkeepsie, N.Y., also posted the highest average, 34 points per game; and most field goals, 131. Stephenson of Maine scored 222 points for an average of 22 points per game.

The top 10 scorers follow:

	FG	FT	Pts.	Avg.
Bialosuknia, Conn.	131	78	340	34.0
Stephenson, Me.	86	50	222	22.2
Stephenson, R.I.	66	67	199	19.9
Johnson, R.I.	77	28	182	18.2
Clark, N.H.	62	52	176	17.6
Tindall, Mass.	68	36	172	17.2
Edwards, Mass.	73	20	166	16.6
Hodgdon, N.H.	67	20	154	15.4
Hoyle, R.I.	58	36	152	15.2
Corley, Conn.	45	44	134	13.4

"69"

The class of "69" has started selling "69" buttons and posters preceding the official start of Campus Chest Week. They may be purchased in front of the S.U. Bookstore for 25 cents each. Give your support to the class by wearing a button and displaying a poster.

Separate Beer Barrels will be on display all week in the Student Union lobby for each class and the faculty and administration. At the end of the week the contributions will be tallied and the barrel containing the largest amount will be announced.

All campus organizations have been contacted and requested to give their support as groups to Campus Chest Week. Alpha Phi Omega is sponsoring the Ugly Man Contest. Nominations are being accepted for your choice of the "Ugliest Man" on campus. Only with the success of this project and others like it will the goal of $6900 be reached, but YOUR help is needed.

69

BUTTONS
&
POSTERS

ON SALE NOW IN FRONT OF THE HATCH

TICKETS

for: WRESTLING MATCH ON APRIL 12 at CURRY HICKS GYMNASIUM

DANCE ON APRIL 14 at S.U.

"HURRICANE WARNINGS" with the
"ILL WINDS" & "TIDAL WAVES"

ON SALE NOW AT THE S. U. TICKET OFFICE

THE MASSACHUSETTS
collegian
Sports
FRIDAY, APRIL 7, 1967
Page 12 Vol. XCV, No. 61

Garber Optimistic

Lacrossemen Chase First Victory Against M. I. T. at Home Tomorrow

by TIM KELLEHER
Staff Reporter

With an exceptional exhibition showing over the vacation, Coach Garber's lacrosse team will be looking for its first victory of the season tomorrow when it faces off against MIT at 2 p.m. at the lacrosse field behind the Cage.

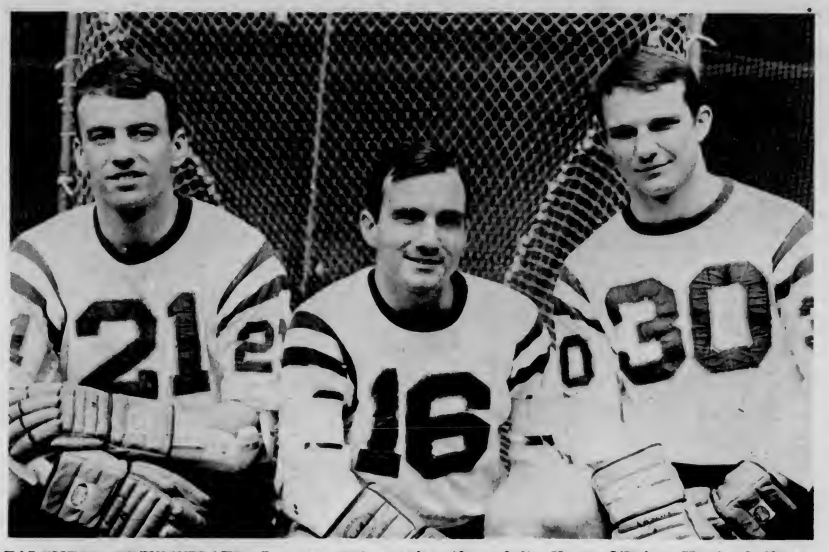
The lone Redmen game so far was the 8-3 loss to Oberlin during the vacation.

The series between UMass and MIT stands at 6-6 with the Redmen winning last year, 6-1.

The Engineers already have four games under their belts with wins registered against Loyola and previously undefeated Hofstra of Long Island. They meet Holy Cross today at Worcester.

The loss of nine lettermen who represented over half of MIT's offense poses a serious threat to Tech's chances of a winning season. Along with All-New England Pete Kirkwood (66 goals, 37 assists for three years), attackman Terry Venderwerff and defenseman Bill Kasinar have graduated.

Players expected to give the Redmen some headaches will be seniors Steve Shroeder, and Art VonWaldburg at midfield and sophs Walt Maling and Ken Schwartz on attack. With the exception of Garland Taylor, who holds down the goalie position, the rest of the starting lineup is still up for grabs.



Coach Dick Garber plans to stick with the lines that played so well over the vacation. The three defense spots will alternate among seniors Ed Foley and Ira Yavner, junior Walt Alessi and sophs Tom Tufts and Kevin Collins.

On the attack for UMass will be tri-captain Howie Goffman and sophs Kevin O'Connor and Brad Herling. Backing them up will be senior Peter Aiken and sophs Garry Vassar and Don Agnoli.

As for the midfielders, workhorses of the team, tri-captains Kevin O'Brien and Bob Murphy along with junior Marty Kalikow will start with senior Don Rana, and sophs Steve Connolly and Paul Mushovic as the second line.

An all-soph third line is consisted of Tom Voisin and Steve Anderson. Senior Rick Molander and junior Greg Norton will probably also see action against the Engineers.

Junior Bill Sinclair will probably be in the goal. With plenty of reserve talent and the team in top condition, Coach Garber is optimistic about tomorrow's game. Game time is 2 p.m., not 3, as was previously reported.

TALENTED TRIUMVIRATE—Lacrosse Tri-captains (from left) Kevin O'Brien, Howie Goffman and Bob Murphy pose during a recent practice session. Seasons gets underway tomorrow here at home against M. I. T.

BOOK EXHIBIT
An exhibit of "Books of Valley Authors from the University of Massachusetts Press" began April 1, at the Jones Library in Amherst. It will continue through April.

UMOC
In April, UMOC does not stand for UMass Outing Club.

RSO PRESIDENTS
All RSO presidents please leave your names and addresses in the Public Relations Committee message box in the Student Senate office. This information is necessary for a current PR project.

Pennant Picks Of the B. P. M.

While the 76ers seem about to make a hazy shade of our winter, the Back Page Majority quietly shifts its gaze to the national pasttime–gambling–as we stake our journalistic reputations on something that happens every spring. Besides grassing.

Out of a half-dozen experts last year, only Glenn Briere and Tim Murphy correctly chose Baltimore in the American League. As is the case this year nobody picked the Dodgers.

FitzGerald; AL-Detroit, NL-Philadelphia. Elman; AL-Baltimore, NL-Pittsburgh. Lotterman; AL-Minnesota, NL-Pittsburgh. Briere; AL-Baltimore, NL-San Francisco. Murphy; AL-Baltimore, NL-San Francisco.

Jarnes; AL-Baltimore, NL-Pittsburgh. Curran; AL-Detroit, NL-St. Louis. Duffy; AL-Minnesota, NL-San Francisco. Ross; AL-Baltimore, NL-Pittsburgh. Kipp; AL-Minnesota, NL-San Francisco. Conuel; AL-Detroit, NL-St. Louis.

Kelleher; AL-Baltimore, NL-Cincinnati. Gould; AL-Minnesota, NL-Philadelphia. Kelly; AL-Boston, NL-New York. Spark; AL-Boston, NL-Boston. Metawampe; AL-Washington, NL-Holy Cross.

Redmen on the Warpath

LACROSSE—vs. M.I.T. (Home), Saturday, 2 p.m.

Nothing Could Be Finer than to Be in Carolina

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

"I think we had a very successful Southern trip. The only trouble is we didn't win all our games."

These were the words of UMass baseball coach Dick Bergquist yesterday as he reflected upon his team's performance south of the Mason-Dixon line last week.

Despite a 3-3 record, there's plenty of cause for optimism. With last year's four top sluggers departed, it was thought that this year the Redmen would have trouble bat-wise.

Nevertheless, the team batted a solid .288 for the first six games, led by pitcher-outfielder Carl Boteze (.615) and sophomore shortstop Joe DiSarcina (.500). Second sacker Frank Stewart hit at a .350 clip.

Bergquist was elated over the performance of his double-play combination. Not only did DiSarcina and Stewart pound the ball in championship fashion, but they formed a slick-fielding combo around second. They say a good DP combination forms the backbone of a team, and this should hold true for UMass.

For UMass Batters, Anyway

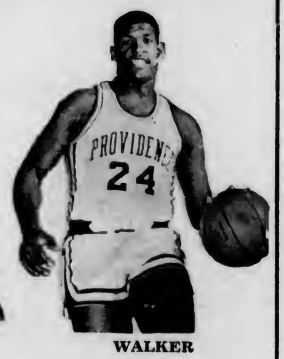
Bergquist was pleased with the rest of the team's showing, especially in view of the fact that it's tough to emerge from the musty confines of the Cage and dive right into the schedule.

Pitching, expected to be a definite strength for the Redmen, was good and bad in spots. Boteze, the ace of the mound corps, experienced a lot of control trouble, but he is expected to return to his '65-'66 form once the season resumes.

Fireballer John Canty has finally become the kind of pitcher he has been expected to be for two years. On the basis of his performances against Clemson and Erskine, the junior should be outstanding this spring.

Dave Katz, a junior southpaw, did not allow an earned run in a total of nine innings pitched.

The northern schedule starts Monday at Springfield against A.I.C. Former Yankee Art Ditmar's Yellow Jackets should be fairly strong, even though Moose Stronczek only plays basketball.



UMass' home season starts a week from today at the newly-fenced-in diamond. It is the first of two big weekend games against Maine, and figures to be crucial to the Redmen's Yankee Conference hopes.

Bergquist was quick to express his hope that the students will support the team. A large, enthusiastic crowd can make a difference.

Redmen Have Their Say: Walker, Dove Top Foes

DOVE

WALKER

All-Americans Jimmy Walker of Providence and Sonny Dove of St. John's were the only unanimous choices on the UMass All-Opponent squad. The Redmen players cast their ballots at last night's team banquet at the Student Union.

Walker, who scored 29 points against the Redmen at Providence this year, was voted to the team for the third time. Dove and Vaughan Harper of Syracuse were other repeaters from last year.

Holy Cross forward Ed Siudut, who scored a two-game total of 58 points against the Redmen this season, and Oklahoma City's Gary Gray, whose 29 points helped beat UMass in the All-College Tournament, rounded out the first team.

On the second team were guards Wes Bialosuknia of Connecticut and Billy Evans of Boston College, center Bill Corley of Connecticut, and forwards Ruby Bogad of St. John's and Bill Shutsky of Army.

Stockbridge Rifle Squad Best in History

This year's Stockbridge rifle team, under the leadership of Coach John Marchant and Capt. Don Enselek of Northampton, shot their way to the most successful season in the history of the Stockbridge rifle marksmanship program, both in the number of matches won and in team scoring.

The squad's 8-2 mark was blemished only by setbacks to the Northeastern University freshmen and the U Mass varsity —both by close margins.

Next year's squad, to be led by Captain-elect Ron Clough of Waltham, will try to reverse those two losses.

Current lettermen are Bob Andrews, Ron Clough, Don Enselek, Dave Grinkis, Ken Lever, Bill Lindeman, John Miller, Paul Sanborn, Dave Sears, and Fran Welcome.

The season summary:

UMass ROTC	1100	Stock. 1222
W.N.E.C. Varsity	1244	Stock. 1366*
Northeastern Frosh	1203	Stock. 1197
Harvard Frosh	1254	Stock. 1365*
Yale Frosh	1319	Stock. 1365*
UMass Varsity	1324	Stock. 1211
MIT Frosh	1076	Stock. 1345
Yale Frosh	1130	Stock. 1324
Dartmouth Frosh	1122	Stock. 1249
BC Frosh	Forfeit	Stock. 1241

*Asterisk indicates match was fired on A-17 (American) targets. All other matches fired on A-36 (International) targets.

INTRAMURALS

LaBrecque Goal Beats Toads; Ties Abound

by TOM CONUEL
Staff Reporter

The intramural soccer season began Wednesday night with a flurry of tie games.

Out of eight games played, four ended in ties. And in two of the ties, not a single goal was scored by either side. The Leopards and Comanchees played a scoreless tie as did the Cougars and Jaguars.

In the other two tie ballgames, it was the Patriots 1, the Colt 45's 1. Black scored for the patriots, Etna scored for the Colts. The Spartans tied the original Flaming A's in another 1-1 ball game. For the A's Burke scored while Edgar tallied for the Spartans.

In other action, the Aces led by John Thomas, who booted home three goals, topped the Hi Los by a score of 4-2. The Flaming A's downed the Grants, 3-0, as Daly scored all three goals for the A's.

Turning to the Independents, it was the Diplomats stopping the Pumpmen, 3-0. Dinga of the Diplomats kicked two goals, and the Numerals edging the Toads, 1-0, on Ron LaBrecque's goal.

When You See
News In the Making
Dial the
"COLLEGIAN HOTLINE"
545-2550

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

SPECIAL
CAMPUS
CHEST
ISSUE

VOL. XCV, NO. 61 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, APRIL 10, 1967

One of these five attractive finalists will be crowned Greek Week Queen on April 22. From left to right they are: Jane Ludlow, class of '69, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Pat Dirsa, class of '70, Chi Omega; Lynn Wells, class of '70, Alpha Chi Omega; Deedee Deleeuw, class of '68, Sigma Kappa; and Kathy Sullivan, class of '69, Kappa Kappa Gamma. The queen and her court will reign at the ceremonies following.

Senate Offers Reg Changes; Dorm Autonomy Urged

by PAT PETOW
Senate News Editor

There was a subdued moment of silence as the Student Senate met last Tuesday. In place of the usual prayer, the student government paid tribute to the late Dick Homan, senator from Baker. He died March 23 after being hospitalized since March 1.

In the highlights of the meeting, the Senate accepted the separate reports of the Men's and Women's Affairs Committees on rule changes, gave approval to the Massachusetts Student Association constitution, and made a major financial policy change. Concern was expressed for housing needs in Amherst.

The Men's Affairs report was highlighted by the belief, "We feel that a policy of students passing judgement on fellow students with respect to rules that students had no part in formulating its philosophically unjustified."

It recommended that "each residence hall government be allowed to determine its own unique policy on the frequency, duration, social conduct and door policy with respect to open houses."

The wording was the same as a recommendation last April 29 of the Student Life Committee.

The report also urged a "realistic" reexamination of campus liquor regulations, made other proposals on judiciaries and disciplinary action, and residence governments.

Amendments were offered by the Men's Affairs report to the Security Department's instructional directive to night receptionists. They urged striking the section suggesting a coat and tie for men on duty, and the sections forbidding card playing and urging the dispersion of people congregating in the area.

The Women's Affairs Committee report recommended freshman curfew changes. Retaining the Sunday through Friday pres-

(Continued on page 2)

UMASS Mobilizes

Peace Week Planned

by JANE ROLAND

"Good Times, Wonderful Times"; balloons and lollipops; an all-day outdoor Happening/Teach-In; panels, discussions, speeches, and a super-vigil: this week, all week is Spring Mobilization for Peace around the whole country, with specific activities planned every day at UMass.

Friday, April 14, from 4:00 on, there will be a Happening/Teach-In on the South Patio of the Student Union. The idea for it has been partially generated by the Be-Ins, originated by poet Allan Ginsberg—a chance for every UMass student and anyone else to come to the duck pond and, in the words of one participant in the first Be-In in San Francisco, "Assert your humanity."

Everyone is welcome to join in—listen to the bands and speakers and poetry readings, and eat and lie on the grass and enjoy life in general.

A panel Monday night April 10 will focus on "Art, Science, and the War." Panelists are Prof. Benson of the Art department, and Profs. Soltysik and Meisner of the Physics department. Discussion will center on the problems of the individual artist and scientist in the face of his position and conscience regarding the war. The Middlesex Room at 8:30 p.m. will be the place.

Tuesday night "The Spanish Earth" will be presented—a film on the Spanish Civil War made with clips taken by the Republican army. Admission will be 35¢, 8:00 in Hasbrouck 20.

Tuesday afternoon will be open for everyone of any political position and any opinion on the war to voice his ideas on the soapbox in front of the S.U. The area will be turned into a UM-Hyde Park, where everyone is welcome to get up and speak.

Scheduled for Wednesday is a Super-vigil, to be held in front of the S.U., part of the continuous weekly vigil every Wednesday from 11:30-1:00.

The movie "Good Times, Wonderful Times" will be shown Thursday night at 8:00 and 9:30 p.m. in Hasbrouck 20 (50¢ admission charge.) According to Newsday magazine, this movie "is a soul-sickening horror film that uses the irony of intercutting between a jaded London cocktail party and war atrocity scenes of World War II to make its

(Continued on page 2)

Lederle Receives Praise

State Representative Belden Bly, Jr., of Saugus, in a press release has stated that "The Trustees of the University of Massachusetts must make every effort to retain the services of President John W. Lederle."

Rep. Bly went on to say that "persistent rumors that Dr. Lederle is leaving the University to accept an assignment in greener pastures" lead him to call for this action.

There is a great need, Bly continued, to keep "the highly educated, highly skilled administrator of our great University from getting away . . . he has done a marvelous job . . . and is a tribute to the University."

When asked in a Collegian interview if he knew that Robin Fleming, of UWisconsin, had been appointed President of the University of Michigan, after Pres. Lederle was rumored to be a likely candidate—the Representative stated that he was not aware of this.

Rep. Bly said that he would take legislative action to meet monetary and other rewards offered by other Universities in order to keep Pres. Lederle.

Nadar Questions Ethics Of Large Corporations

by RICHARD KLINE
AP Wire Editor

Ralph Nader, whose renowned book, Unsafe at Any Speed, prompted Congressional investigation and legislation in the auto industry just a short time ago, lashed out criticisms in another field last Friday in a School of Business Administration Colloquium.

Nader accused not only the auto industry but all large corporations of unfair and unethical practices.

Nader pointed out that 25% of the nation's profits in 1964 were by 7 corporations and that "the forces streaming out of our industries are . . . changing the government."

"Social cost of private, closed industries and surface transportation are a standing insult to a rational economy," Nadar stated.

The lawyer-author said "Large corporations have deliberately kept secret statements on drugs, and not informed the public of defects in automobiles . . . "

Nader accused the Pentagon of preferential treatment for large corporations. He said, "The Defense Department has a black list . . . for some reason, the large companies are never on it."

"The security division at G.M. is so good," Nader claimed, "I think that the CIA could learn something from it, especially in view of recent disclosures."

"Unless the challenge of corporate reform is taken," stated the speaker, "the state will be heading, and is heading now, to the choice between a social state or a corporate state. Present conditions point to the victory of the corporate state."

On the Move

Site Cleared for Machmer Tower

by MICHAEL CIAMPA

If you see two buildings driving past you on campus, don't abandon hope. They will be the two 4-H lodges formerly located behind Machmer Hall, which are being relocated to provide room for a ten story office building and large lecture hall building, a new extension of Machmer.

Connected to the present Machmer building by tunnel, the new complex will include three large lecture halls: two of 320 and one of 280 capacity. It will be ready for occupancy by September of next year, according to Mr. William Lambers, landscape architect for the University. The new addition will provide more classroom space, an increasing problem on campus in recent years due to the great rise in enrollment applications.

Once positioned, both buildings will be remodeled and provided with full cellars. Plans may include cellar walkouts, with both buildings surrounded by beech trees, according to Mr. Lambert. As they will be encompassed by the woods, the buildings will not be an eyesore.

These buildings were originally constructed by the state 4-H Club in 1936 by a Greenfield architect. Until recently, 4-H classes were held there along with other functions by the state and national levels of the group. In the summertime 4-H functions are performed there, and during the normal school year different campus organizations hold various functions.

Plans to destroy both buildings and replace them with more modern structures were disapproved because of their past history. Provided for by private club funds, they have sentimental value and provide a link with the past.

UMass is moving forward and so are its buildings. Bowditch Lodge, once behind Machmer, will find a new resting place west of the football stadium. Bowditch and another 4-H lodge are being moved to provide room for the Machmer Tower, providing more classroom space. Because of their age and sentimental value, the buildings were not destroyed.

Quintet Here Tuesday

An internationally-known chamber group, the New York Woodwind Quintet, will present a concert at the University of Massachusetts Tuesday, April 11, at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom, sponsored by the UMass Concert Association.
The program will include the Sextet for Piano and Woodwind Quinet composed by Dr. Philip T. Bezanson, head of the UMass music department. The pianist will be Howard Lebow, UMass assistant professor of music and chairman of piano instruction. Also on the program: Franz Danzi's Quintet in B Flat Major, Opus 56, No. 1; Mozart's Fantasy in F Minor, K 594 (originally for mechanical organ, transcribed by W. Meyer); Elliott Carter's Quintet (1948); and Villa-Lobos' Quintette en forme de Choros.
Tickets for the April 11 concert at UMass are available at the Student Union ticket office or at the performance.

STUDENT SENATE . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

ent schedule, an extension to 2 a.m. for Saturday night was proposed.

In addition, the Senate gave approval to two exceptions. "Any women 20 years or older will be exempted" and "Any woman who has attained 11 credits or more will be exempted."

In other Senate business, an attempt was rejected by a vote of 20-17 to consider future financial bills as necessarily encumbering reserve funds. At present Senate spending h a s created a deficit of about $4,500.

Most of the Senate, however, apparently felt that there would be enough money returned to the general fund from amounts appropriated to organizations but unspent by them.

Last year $13,550 was returned. No one in the Senate was able to offer definite figures on the amount to be returned this year.

The Senate then found itself considering the issue of appropriations to Valley Center, the four-college program for extra-independent study.

After the General Court decision which stopped a Senate appropriation to the Valley Center because the organization did not have RSO standing as required in the Financial Policy Book, a revision was proposed to allow grants to non-RSO.

The passage of the bill now permits the Valley Center appropriation to be continued.

The Senate also endorsed a letter to be sent to Paul Procopio of the Amherst Planning Board carrying the student government's approval for certain new housing proposals, including those for the Fraternity Park.

PEACE WEEK . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

activist point: men start wars and men can avert them."

Later Thursday night, at 9:30 in the Norfolk Room, will be a discussion on "The war and the Individual–what Must Be Done." Panelists are Rick Margolies, a non-cooperator with the draft, and grad student Victor Aranow and Dick Shortt, one of the Univ. of Michigan students whose draft classification was changed after sitting-in at the local draft board.

Saturday is the large Mobilization in New York City; busses will be leaving the Amherst area at 7 a.m., and returning that night. But tickets, $5 round trip, can be purchesed by inquiring at the Students for Political Action literature table which will be set up in the S.U. Lobby all this week. SPA is the major sponsor of this Spring Mobilization for Peace week at the University.

Sunday News Staff
DAY EDITOR: Jim Foudy
ASSOCIATE DAY EDITOR: Judy Leonard

OPPORTUNITIES IN SELLING

Free to Univ. of Mass. Students 25¢ to others

A new booklet, published by a non-profit educational foundation, tells which career field lets you make the best use of all your college training, including liberal-arts courses—which career field offers 100,000 new jobs every year—which career field produces more corporation presidents than any other—what starting salary you can expect. Just send this ad with your name and address. This 24-page, career-guide booklet, "Opportunities in Selling," will be mailed to you. No cost or obligation. Address: Council on Opportunities, 550 Fifth Ave., New York 36, N. Y.,

DRAKE Maintains Historic Role As Rathskeller Draws Crowds

by TOM DONOVAN
Staff Reporter

"Yeah. Just go into the center of town and take a right on Amity Street. It's on the right, just after the first street you come to. It's called the Drake. Real name's the Drake's Village Inn. They rent rooms or something there. But the rathskeller is downstairs in the cellar. That's what you want."

So it goes for the thirsty college student in Amherst. Serving an estimated four to five thousand students weekly, the Drake is a universal drinking spot for area students and it claims the greatest retail beer sales in Western Massachusetts.

Built at the turn of the century as a wayfarer's inn, the Drake originally was a three-story clapboard hotel named by the retired owners after the then-famed Drake Hotel in New York. Later, a fourth floor was added and the building was stuccoed to remain unchanged.

In 1962, after having been owned by Kamins Real Estate for years, the Drake was purchased by Bradford Parker. .

But the Drake is more than a beer cellar. It can host both the hungry businessman in the Open Hearth restaurant and the overnight guest, the student on his study break in the Rathskeller and the world-weary graduate in search of a quiet drink in the new V. I. P. bar and lounge.

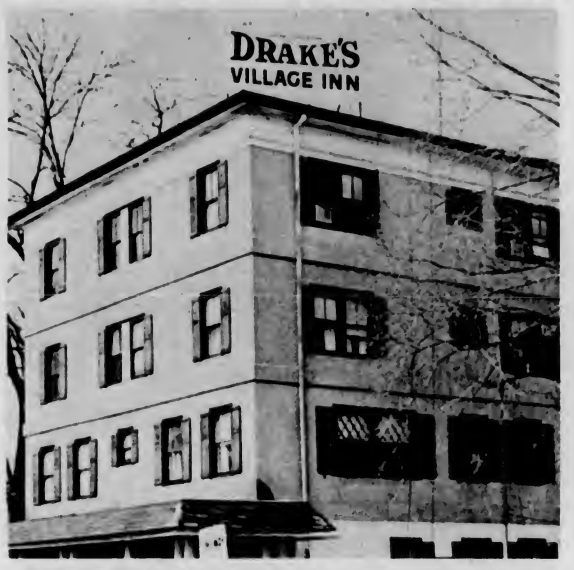
The Drake primarily remains a hotel and, with more than fifty rooms, can accommodate well over 60 guests. The majority of tenants are students, taking advantage of the single, double and triple effiency apartments in the Drake.

Located within walking distance of classrooms and next door to all the in-town establishments, the Drake is considered by many students to be ideal off-campus housing.

Below ground level, the Rathskeller continues to be one of the most effective drawing cards of the Drake. The only beer cellar this side of Springfield, the Rathskeller doesn't boast of any of the refinements of the Open Hearth or the VIP Room.

Instead, it consists of the two rooms with cement floors and walls, individual jukeboxes at each booth and a dance area in the back room.

Two of the more important aspects of this area are Willie Whitfield, the bartender, and the never-ending supply of beer.



The ubiquitous Willie has commanded such good will and fame among area college students that the student yearbook, Index, devoted a few pages to him in 1964 and the Collegian centered an entire issue around him on April 1, 1965.

In the beer department, the Drake has a capacity of 600 cases of refrigerated beer, not to mention hard liquor for mixed drinks. In terms of draught beers, this equals about 10,000 cups of good cheer. With Wednesday ("peanut Night") and Friday night both drawing capacity crowds from 5 to midnight 1,000 draughts go quickly.

In addition to the present advantages in the Rathskeller, Parker is increasing the floor space by half and installing a coin-operated pool table for campus hustlers. In the future, he plans to add a room-full of coin-operated washers and dryers as well as a conversation pit—a sunken carpeted pit with sitting pillows available on deposit. He hopes to provide facilities for everyone from pool sharks to yogi enthusiasts.

The VIP Room completes the picture of today's Drake. Featuring a stereo in the corner playing soft music, mahogany paneling and a fireplace in the alcove, the VIP is dedicated to those who want to relax with a drink and nothing more strenous than conversation.

As one student-resident of the Drake puts it, "It's like a self-contained community. Everything's here. I have to leave only for an occasional class or two."

While the HoJo's may be the home for hungry Americans, the Drake is the home for thirsty college students. The "self-contained community", located near the center of town on Amity street, is a combination hotel, restaurant and Rathskeller and features such specialties as draft beer, "Peanut Night", and author Donovan.

APPLY NOW

Openings in the Collegian are available for the following positions:

3 News Reporters
1 Sports Reporter
2 Layout and Copywriting Staffers

A training program, beginning April 12th, will be provided for interested applicants. Staffers will be chosen now for next year's crew.

Music Prof. To Perform Two Recitals

Dr. John R. King, Professor of Music at UMass, will present a program of Modern French Organ Music, Wednesday, April 12, at 8:15 p.m. in the Helen Hills Hills Chapel, Smith College. This is the second in a pair of recitals given by Dr. King, the subject of the first, organ music in the Germanic tradition.

King, who has been a UMass professor since 1956, has given recitals at the Four Colleges, the Worcester Art Museum, MIT, and tours abroad. This summer will find him again crossing the Atlantic, including Oxford University as a stop.

For UMass students, free bus service will be provided, leaving the campus at 7:45 p.m., for the one hour concert. To insure a seat, names can be left with the Music Dept. office in Mobile Unit 1-B, or call 545-2227.

The ART CLUB Presents
"ANOTHER ONE"
Color - sound - mind-bender
with
THE DRED
and
BOX
Sundday, April 16 - 7:45
Memorial Hall Auditorium
PUBLIC INVITED

Born ironed . . . stays ironed . . . stays fresh all day.
DECTON PERMA-IRON
by ARROW

See our collection of these handsome shirts. A wide variety of collar styles in classic white or colors and fashion stripes to choose from. "Sanforized Plus" fabric . . . 65% Dacron® polyester, 35% cotton . . . machine washable . . . tumble dries to perfection.

Glen collar
Long sleeves
$7.00

THOMPSON'S
CLOTHING STORE

The Brothers of
PI LAMBDA PHI
extend an invitation to freshmen and upperclassmen to attend an open smoker
MONDAY, APRIL 10th
Formal
Bristol Room
8-10 p.m.

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

International

VICE PRESIDENT Hubert H. Humphrey ends his Western European tour, reportedly feeling the trip was more successful than he expected it to be.

AFTER A REPORTED 6-5 vote for Mao Tse-tung in the Chinese Communist Politburo, the downfall of President Liu Shao-chi is expected shortly.

THE HEMISPHERE foreign ministers agree to measures intended to lead to a common market for Latin America.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON flies to South America tonight for a conference unlikely to bear solid fruit until the 1970s.

Vietnam

THE FIRST THREE B52s arrive in Thailand for raids on Vietnam. More are to follow.

National

THE APOLLO FIRE review board finds "many deficiencies in design and engineering, manufacture and quality control." It recommends a major overhaul of Apollo spacecraft.

A SHUTDOWN of nationwide trucking operations spreads as firms counter selective walkouts by Teamster Union members.

GUNSHOTS, FIRES and looting mark the second night of rioting in the Negro college section of Nashville.

A POSSIBLE BREAKTHROUGH is reported in developing oral drugs to eliminate blood clots which cause heart attacks.

HOLLYWOOD NAMES its Academy Award winners tonight, with "A Man for All Seasons" and "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" the favorites.

Washington

ANY DEVELOPMENT or decision that would take President Johnson out of the 1968 presidential contest would find Sen. Robert F. Kennedy with widespread but unorganized strength as a contender, a survey shows.

SENATE DEMOCRATIC leaders renew their fight for President Johnson's bill giving business a tax break.

Massachusetts

A STATE public health official blames new birth control methods and narcotics for an increasing rate of venereal disease in Massachusetts.

* * *

THE STATE COMMISSIONER of correction says the idea of conjugal visits for prisioners from members of the opposite sex is worth study.

* * *

FORMER AMBASSADOR Joseph P. Kennedy has returned to his Cape Cod home after spending most of the winter in Palm Beach, Fla.

Negro Students Riot and Loot

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Sporadic violence continued early today in the Negro college section of Nashville where gunshots, fires and looting marked the second straight night of racial trouble and left one student seriously wounded.

Police charged two Negroes with inciting a riot. One of them told police he was with "black power" advocate Stokely Carmichael here Saturday. Stephens said he was a worker for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, headed by Carmichael.

ANOTHER BIG HEADACHE

Johnson to S. America Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson flies to South America tonight for a hemispheric summit meeting that, in the view of American officials, can't possibly bear much solid fruit until the 1970s.

The main purpose of the 19-nation talks at Punta del Este, Uruguay, is to line up broad support for south-of-the-border development schemes that would require at least several years of planning before their impact would be felt.

Johnson thus has made it clear in advance that he expects neither surprises nor spectacular developments at this first meeting of hemispheric presidents in 11 years.

Formal meetings begin Wednesday and wind up Friday when, if everything goes according to the well - orchestrated advance script, the 19 presidents will sign a "Declaration of Punta del Este."

If the national leaders agree, the declaration will feature a pledge to work toward a Latin American common market that would evolve gradually between 1970 and 1985.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and foreign ministers from the other participating countries met at Punta del Este over the weekend to smooth out the conference agenda.

Other items that will rate considerable attention from the presidents include proposed policy statements aimed at increased food production, better education and health standards, improved communications and highways among South American nations, and, possibly, some agreement to dampen the traditional enthusiasm among Latin military men for spending butter money on guns.

Johnson was pictured by his associates as being prepared to do a lot of listening, then come home and figure out what the United States can do to help achieve the ambitious goals envisioned.

The President is on record as favoring an increase of $1.5 billion over a five-year period in U.S. aid to the Latins, now running at about $1 billion a year.

Although the Senate balked at passing an administration resolution to back Johnson's idea, the White House officials said his position on Latin aid has not changed.

Teamster Union Vows No Trucks to Move

CHICAGO (AP) — Hundreds of the nation's trucking firms, embroiled in a labor dispute with the Teamsters Union, vowed not to let a single crosscountry truck on the road today. Some predicted dire effects on the economy.

Some union men agreed the truck tie-up would hurt the economy.

Nobody involved knew just when the effects would show up. Many said it might take a week or more.

National talks with the Teamsters ended at 4 a.m. Sunday in Washington. Later in the day, Trucking Employers, Inc., a federation accounting for 65 per cent of the U.S. long-distance trucking, called on its 1,500 member firms to lock out their drivers. The federation later termed the order 100 per cent effective.

The tie-up came amid sporadic drivers' strikes, which began several days ago as negotiations headed toward an impasse. The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service said it would meet today with the trucking employers in an effort to get talks moving again.

Truckers' wages range from $3.25 to $5 an hour. They are asking a 7 per cent wage boost, which would raise the range to from $3.74 to $5.35 an hour. The carriers offered a 5 per cent increase.

Unofficial reports held that the employers and union were less than 10 cents an hour apart on wages but much further apart on fringe benefits.

Explosive Barrels Found

BOSTON (AP) — Barrels which may contain a highly unstable sodium substance washed ashore Sunday from Gloucester to Cape Cod.

The 55-gallon steel drums were reported at Norman's Woe Cove in Gloucester, Yellow Beach in Winthrop and at Bourne on Cape Cod.

They are similar to six barrels which exploded on a rocky ledge off Gun Rock Beach in Hull Friday, injuring two persons.

Two other drums were removed from North Scituate Beach and Cohasset's Black Rock Beach Saturday.

A Coast Guard spokesman said it has "no idea" where the barrels came from.

The drums found at Scituate and Cohasset are believed to contain the same substance, which reacts violently on contact with water. A check on the contents of the barrels recovered Sunday should be completed today.

Performers' Strike Tentatively Settled

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators bargaining through the night reached a tentative settlement in the 13-day-old performers' strike against the three radio and television networks.

Representatives of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and ABC, CBS and NBC announced the agreement after a session with federal mediators that began at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Terms of the agreement were not disclosed pending a union vote.

Mediators declined to answer newsmen's questions and would not say if the accord meant that AFTRA's celebrity-studded picket lines would be withdrawn from network headquarters where they have been a fixture since the strike—the first of its kind in the nation—began March 29.

Ralph C. Patterson of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service issued this statement as the parties left their suites in the Barclay hotel:

"Following almost 24 hours of bargaining, the parties have reached tentative agreement subject to ratification by the national board of AFTRA."

No decision was made as to when a ratification vote would be held, Donald F. Conaway, AFTRA's executive director, said. He answered no further questions.

The 18,000 - member union's strike, supported by some technicians and writers, has forced the networks to use supervisory personnel in getting their programs on the air.

HHH Diplomatic Success

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey flew home from Europe today reportedly feeling he achieved diplomatic successes despite the protests against the Vietnam war which captured much of his headlines.

Humphrey feels his two-week, seven-nation tour reassured European leaders that the United States is not turning its back on Europe despite its concerns in Asia.

Shouting demonstrators threw things at him in Brussels, Rome, Florence, West Berlin and Paris but never hit him. The demonstrating groups were generally small.

Apollo Mishap Not Sabotage

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's man - to - the - moon program faced further delay today to allow time to overcome workmanship and management deficiencies revealed in a blue-ribbon board's final report on the spacecraft fire that killed three U. S. astronauts.

The eight-man board which spent seven weeks in an exhaustive investigation of the Apollo 1 tragedy said it uncovered "many deficiencies in design and engineering, manufacture and quality control."

The report recommended a major overhaul of Apollo spacecraft, including a quick-escape hatch, fewer combustible items inside the moonship, and a review of components in Apollo electrical, communications and life-support systems.

The Apollo 1 board-of-review said in its final report released Sunday that a bruised or broken wire most likely sparked the blaze that killed Air Force Lt. Cols. Virgil I. Grissom and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee in a launch pad test Jan. 27. The board, headed by Dr. Floyd L. Thompson of NASA's Langley Research Center, said it found numerous examples of space craft wiring which had been poorly designed and installed in Apollo 1.

"Deficiencies in design, manufacture, installation, rework and quality control existed in the electrical wiring," the board said.

Conditions cited by the board which contributed to the fire included a sealed cabin pressurized with 100 per cent oxygen, extensive distribution of combustible materials, vulnerable wiring carrying spacecraft power, and vulnerable plumbing carrying a combustible and corrosive coolant.

The board also cited inadequate provisions for the crew to escape, and inadequate provisions for the crew to escape, and inadequate provisions for rescue or medical assistance on the launch pad.

Operetta Guild
WONDERFUL TOWN
April 13, 14, 15
Tickets on sale at S.U. box office

Editorial Section

Editors: The following article appeared as the lead editorial a year ago this month by the then Editorial Chairman Chet Weinerman. Because of the tremendous number of comments heard when it was first published and because of several requests to see it again, we are herein reprinting this editorial. The regular COLLEGIAN policy editorial will return on Wednesday.

A Time To Be Born

by CHET WEINERMAN

It's April.

It's beautiful.

Life offers so much in April. And life is for a college student. It will never be the same after college. Never quite the same perspective; never quite the same freedom from society's restrictions; never the chance to drift as much.

Go out on the grass and lie down. Look into the water; try to see a glimmering reflection. Look up at the sky; seek to find the highest ideal. Look at the grass; see God. Think of a friend and feel trust. Think of all the people you know, all the books you've read. Talk to Conscience — have a long conversation. Think what might have been, what one second the other way might have done to make it all so very different for you, for your brother, for peace.

Forget classes for the day. Don't think about a cume or alcohol or cigarettes or sex or money.

Introspect. Evaluate. Count blessings and scorn apathy. Thank the dreamers and curse the pushers and the Hatchers. Give to yourself, instead of constantly grabbing and pulling and taking. Then you will be giving to all mankind, because you are mankind. And what is Life's purpose? It's thinking about and interacting with mankind—constructively, positively.

Think every day, because, I Mankind, need help. So desparately.

Please?

☆ ☆

Loosing With Stacked Cards

by DICK WOLFSIE
The Collegiate Press Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS) — Last month I had nothing to do so I stormed into the library, approached the desk, and yelled, "I hate this place, and I want to blow up the whole building."

The librarian was calm and collected. "You'll have to fill out a card," she said.

This experience has caused me to question the sanity not only of the library, but the entire University. Yesterday I went to the circulation desk and filled out a card for the "Holy Bible." For the author, I combined humor with exactness and wrote down, "GOD."

The librarian quickly returned the card with an appropriate scowl and said, "Whatya think this is, a game? You forgot the first name and middle initial."

Sometimes, in a moment of weakness, I use the Xerox machine (The "X" stands for—excuse me, I'm broken again). One day, after printing three thousand copies of "EAT AT THE VARSITY INN," and two thousand 1965 calendars, I decided to try my luck, once more, at the circulation desk.

You will find, if you go the the library often enough, that a book you are looking for is not "out." More often it will be in the bindery, lost, in the reserve room, or just playing it cute.

Last week, I tried to take out a book, and the librarian gave me a card that said, "BOOK LOST, WILL TRACE." I never knew what that meant, until I accidentally stumbled into the head librarian's office and saw him sitting on the floor with ten rolls of tissue paper — tracing a book.

Yesterday I went to the periodical room. "Have you got Time?" I asked.

"Pick me up at seven," responded the librarian.

"I don't think you understand," I explained. "How about Life?"

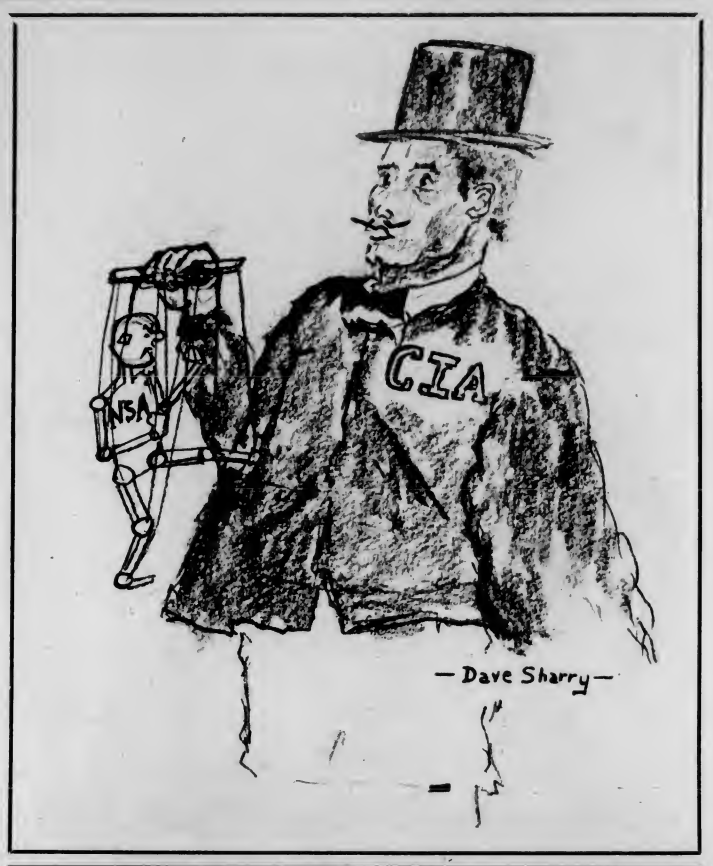
"O.K.," she giggled, "I'll be ready at six."

Someday when I'm old and gray and my three-year-old son asks me about my school library, I'll show him a picture of our grand super-structure reaching high into the sky. He'll carefully count the number of floors and say, "Gee, Daddy, your library had five stories."

"Yes son," I'll admit, "and a whole book of poems."

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Chester S. Weinerman '68



MANAGING EDITOR
John H. Dean, Jr., '69

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Smith '69

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

Monday's Day Editors: News—Jim Foudy '68; Photo—Stan Furman '67

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.
Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Campus Comment

'69 Buttons "Off-Color"

Letter A Page 4
To the Editor:

I would like to call attention to the Campus Chest sale of buttons and posters, inscribed with the numerals "69", now going on outside the Student Union bookstore.

It is extraordinary that no word of protest has been voiced regarding the barbarous insensitivity of this display, in view of the uproar raised over the Close exhibit. That uproar indicated, at the very least, that certain standards of decency were being trespassed, and at that time appropriate action was taken to preserve them: the exhibit was removed.

These standards, one must conclude, are being trespassed again by this campaign, but no remedial action has been forthcoming. There are few who are unaware that the symbol "69" on these buttons, in addition to representing a graduating class year, also represents the act of simultaneous cunnilingus and fellatio. This meaning may be quite clear in the present instance, the designer has constructed the "9" as a recognizable symbol for "the male", by placing an arrow on the tail of the nine.

I do not mean to say that the numerals "69" should never be written down or mentioned; it is obviously necessary that they be used when referring to this graduating class. In some small part this is the present use, since the Class of 1969 is conducting the campaign. It should be observed, however, that the present intent is to raise money for the Campus Chest. In theory, the buttons represent nothing more than that the bearer has contributed to the drive. In fact, however, the emphasis here is on the sale of a symbol whose meaning is recognized as off-color, and the buyer is more aware of, and intent upon, purchasing this symbol than of contributing to a worthwhile cause. My first criticism, therefore, is that disreputable means are being used to further a supposed noble end.

The more important criticism, however, is that the standards which discovered blatant bad taste and offense to public morality in the Close exhibit, reveal the same bad taste and offense when applied to this Campus Chest display. I suggest that the University either remove this part of the Campus Chest campaign, or return the Close exhibit to the S.U. Either step would implement the ideal of an equal application of standards.

Jeffrey S. Ogilvie '67
Robert S. Greving '67

Conscientious Objectors

To the Editor:

Students who are considering becoming conscientious objectors should be aware that successful CO claims may be based on a variety of grounds. By recent Supreme Court decisions, you do not have to be a conventionally "religious" person in order to qualify. Anyone desiring free information and counseling on the tricky laws and procedures involved in applying for CO can contact me at 253-2505.

Bob Sather
Amherst College '69

VIETNAM
will be our topic on Wednesday
* *
Both sides, pro and con,
will be presented along with the Collegian Policy Editorial

There is no noble love but that which recognizes itself to be both short-lived and exceptional.

—Albert Camus

CAMPUS CHEST WEEK

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

APRIL 12 — Championship Wrestling Match
U. S. HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE BOUT
Curry Hicks Cage

APRIL 14 — Charity Dance Featuring The ILL WIND & TIDAL WAVES
Student Union Ballroom
and the
PRESENTATION OF '69 BANNER

Throughout The Entire Week
TRADITIONAL UGLY MAN CONTEST
GUEST STARS IN STUDENT UNION LOBBY
BEER BARRELS IN STUDENT UNION LOBBY
BUTTON SALE AT STUDENT UNION

Help the Class of '69 raise $6900 by having a good time!
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

BUTTONS AND POSTERS

"69" buttons and posters are on sale in the Student Union to help raise funds for Campus Chest. Although they are being sold by the sophomore class, members of all classes should wear one of these eye-catching buttons. Also, everyone should purchase a "69" poster to decorate his room — each at only 25c.

CAMPUS CHES

Sunday, April 9th was the kick-off d sponsored by the Class of 1969. The fu events scheduled to help raise the $690 livan and Ralph Stoddard.

Beer barrels, one for each class an staff, will be in the SU Lobby for donatio these barrels, the goal will be achieved.

The money collected from these bar given to such non-profit charity funds a my Fund (Children's Cancer), Muscula and the Leukemia Society.

FRANK SCARPA

SYLVIA TORRES

FASHION SHOW

On April 13, at 8:00 P.M. a fashion show will be held at Southwest's Dining Commons #7. Through the efforts of the ninth floor, J.Q. Adams-Middle is sponsoring this "Spring Fling" to aid the Class of 1969. Thirty-six outfits donated by Peck & Peck, Ann August, John Everitt and College Towne, all of Northampton, will be modeled in the showing of the latest spring styles.

Proceeds will go to:

* Jimmy Fund
* Cancer Foundation
* Muscular Distrophy
* Leukemia Society
* Multiple Sclerosis
* March of Dimes

and others....

WRESTLING

Be sure to get your ringsi weight Wrestling Championship Bull Montana in the decisive m at 8:30 P.M. in Curry Hicks Cag

Also featured are Russian Sweety Daddy Watts vs. Chris is the bout between two women the Red Devil. Tickets are on sal help support this event; the pr $6900 goal of Campus Chest 19

T WEEK 1967

y for the 1967 Campus Chest Week, -filled week includes many activities and) set as the goal by co-chairmen Pat Sull one for the faculty, administration, and ns. If every student will donate 50c in els and all of the special events will be the American Cancer Society, the Jim- Dystrophy, the United Cerebral Palsy,

A dance will be held Friday, April 14 at the Student Union. "Hurricane Warnings" will begin at 8:00 P.M. in the Ballroom with both the "Ill Winds" and the "Tidal Waves" providing the music. That evening, the gigantic "69" banner, on display in the SU lobby this week, will be given away. The dance is open to all college students, with I.D.'s. Tickets may be purchased during the week at the S.U.

BIG DADDY WATTS

CHRIS BELKAS

SCROLL'S SHOE SHINE

The Scrolls, a sophomore girls' honorary service organization, is sponsoring a "Shoe Shine" on Friday, April 14, in the Student Union lobby. For just a quarter—have your shoes polished by a cute girl! Proceeds go to the Campus Chest.

COOKIE SALE

The ninety girls of Alpha Chi Omega baked cookies Friday evening to sell for the benefit of Campus Chest. The girls sold the delicious chocolate chip cookies in every dormitory on Saturday, April 8. Good work!

Four - Page Layout
by Sally Dolgin
and
Jack Dean

MATCH

le seats for the U.S. Heavy- bout! Frank Scarpa will meet tch on Wednesday, April 12, e.

Savage vs. Paul Shusas and Belkas. The added attraction wrestlers—Sylvia Torres and e in the Student Union. Please oceeds will contribute to the 67.

Student Senate Forms Softball Team; Challenges Faculty Senate to Game

Senators Sue Tracy and Harvy Stone have been appointed to direct the Student Senate's efforts to form a soft ball team this spring. Senator Tracy will be the playing coach, and Stone will be the playing manager.

The idea for the soft ball team originated somewhat spontaneously in the Senate office one day in a conversation involving some of the Senators. In order that the Senate might make some gesture in support of Campus Chest, there came a suggestion that the Student Senate challenge the Faculty Senate to a game. Whatever proceeds might be derived from this exchange would be given to Campus Chest.

A formal statement has been issued to the Faculty Senate outlining the challenge. As of the present there has been no response. The Student Senate had its first practice session yesterday afternoon at the WOPE practice field.

UMOC

RICK SADOWSKI, photo editor of INDEX, the Collegian's contestant in the UMOC contest.

ROBIN SANDERS

UGLY MAN ON CAMPUS

As the Campus Chest season rolls around once more, it again becomes time for the students of UMass to band together and choose a representative of its image to present to the world. Competition is hot and heavy; the candidates are at each others' throats. But, in the final analysis, the decision is yours. IT IS UP TO YOU TO CHOOSE THE UMOC!

During this week photographs of all the candidates will be set up in the Union. Beneath each picture will be a jar, and every penny dropped in the jar will count as one vote for that candidate. All proceeds go to the Campus Chest, so vote as often and with as much as you can.

And so, my fellow UMies, it becomes your choice. Who is truly the Ugliest Man on Campus will be decided this week. Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their Houses. Every Men's Dorm and Fraternity was asked to submit a candidate.

The winner will receive (are you listening, America?) an all-expense-paid night on the Big Town (Amherst, that is) with Robin Sanders, the 1966 Homecoming Queen.

Men, vote for the candidate of your House. Ladies, vote for everyone but your boyfriend. Yes, it is true, as the Poet (Elmer Poet) said, "In the Spring a UMie's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of UMOC." Remember our jingle:

Who is the UMOC?
He could be you,
A man who is ugly
And makes people nauscious.

Rhyme isn't everything. And in conclusion, let me remind you that you have nothing to lose but your beauty. APO urges you to get out and vote. Vote for the candidate of your choice, but VOTE!

The preceeding was sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega and the UMass for a Democratic UMOC Committee.

This four-page special was produced jointly by the Collegian and the Campus Chest Committee for Campus Chest Week.

GIVE . . . during
CAMPUS CHEST WEEK
Sponsored by the CLASS OF 1969
GOAL: $6,900
We need YOUR help!!

$100 Scholarship To Be Awarded By Sophmores

On Student Leaders Night, April 18, Sophomore Class President Wayne Thomas will present a one hundred dollar scholarship to a deserving sophomore on behalf of the Executive Council. The presentation is the continuation of an old tradition by which Campus Chest annually provides a scholarship.

Stated Thomas, "We are asking co-operation from the University Placement Office in order to assure the best use of the scholarship."

Pulitzer Prize Winner Finds Cold War Still Chilly, Despite Many Illusions

EDITORS NOTE:

In another hard-hitting dispatch which he could NOT have filed from Moscow, Pulitzer Prize winner Fred Sparks, just back from Russia, separates fact from fancy in America's view of the Soviets. It will jolt the complacency of some readers, lulled by recent reports of a "thaw" in Russo-American relations. — NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

By FRED SPARKS

NEW YORK — (NEA)—Since returning from Moscow I have been shocked to find that, concerning the Soviet Union, many Americans apparently are once again naive, gullible and trusting.

Hopeful speculation about "improved relations" has made some people believe that the Soviets have changed their basis plans for world domination by communism.

I heard a radio commentator say flatly, "The cold war is over!"

This would have a hollow ring to American GIs in Vietnam being shelled by Russian-built mortars. Certainly, no one I met in Moscow's foreign diplomatic circles believes it.

In a rambling, czarist mansion alongside the ice-choked Moscow River, a British embassy spokesman told me: "The Soviet Union finds its conquered East Europeans increasingly defiant and its Red Chinese protege a terrifying Frankenstein's monster, so it seeks a cold war armistice. Perhaps such an armistice might serve the West.

"But, good Lord, don't assume the Kremlin has suddenly come to confession, that it admits past evils or has changed its determination to bury us."

That's one comment on illusion in America vs. fact in Russia. Here are others:

ILLUSION: On a Sunday panel I heard a Chicago educator state: "Seeking better relations, the Soviets are softening anti-American propaganda."

FACT: Nightly Soviet television pictures American GIs as barbarians, making war primarily on Vietnamese civilians, the aged and sick.

I discussed this discouraging reportage (through an interpreter) with Perfiliev Svyatoslav, deputy editor-in-chief of Moscow Central TV. "American television," I said, "shows our soldiers' misconduct as well as their humanity. And our television carries Premier Kosygin's speeches denouncing our Vietnam policy.

"Russian TV doesn't even acknowledge our soldiers to be human. And President Johnson's explanations of why we're in Vietnam haven't been seen in Russia. How ca we obtain fairer coverage?"

"By getting out of Vietnam!" snapped Svyatoslav.

ILLUSION: At a Manhattan buffet with eggheads, I heard one "expert" pontificate: "Every Russian now knows what's going on in the world."

FACT: Soviet editors print what they know the government wants. A Russian editor who criticized the Kosygin-Brezhnev dictatorship might not get the Siberian deep-freeze treatment, as in Stalin's day. But he'd be unemployed.

Spot news is delayed while editors decide whether it lives or dies. While I was in Moscow the momentous flash that Peking mobs had desieged the Russian embassy WAS printed—48 hours late.

The only foreign publications sold in Moscow are Communist sheets like New York's "Worker" or London's "Star," both as newsy as the message on chewing gum wrappers. The Soviets even ban the Ladies Home Journal, perhaps fearful that canned tomato soup ads might disenchant Soviet housewives with home-cooked borscht.

ILLUSION: A reader wrote the the editor of Art News "The visit of Russian poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko proves art is free in the Soviet Union.

FACT: Yevtushenko wouldn't have made America if he deviated one rhyme from the party line. The smash movie. "Dr. Zhivago." from Boris Pasternak's book, is forbidden in Moscow. Why? Before he died, Muscovite Pasternak implied that Russian had a fat Establishment that did the Pork and Barrel Rock as merrily as Tammany heelers.

One recent evening several pioneering artists opened the first exhibition of Russian pop art, even though brave souls, they knew officially pop art is OUT. Three hours later the cops closed the showing, seized the pictures. In Russia the likes of Andy Warhol would probably be painting NO SMOKING signs.

ILLUSION: Plugging cultural exchanges, Sen. Fulbright said: "We send one student to Russia, they send one here . . . it's reciprocal . . ."

FACT: Soviet students in the United States live where they please, see whom they want, travel anyplace. American students in Moscow are assigned lodgings, need permission to receive visitors, can't travel over 30 miles away.

I asked to visit ex-Harvard student Paul Cocks, now at Moscow U. and photograph him with his Russian dormitory mates.

"It would be rough getting you inside," sighed Paul; "and as for photographs—forget it! Russians are leery of being photographed with Americans's."

The Soviet attitude is: A fair exchange is no bargain. Russian ballets, poets and dancing bears come freely to the United States, but the Soviet, at the last minute, cancelled Mary Martin's Russian tour. They also cancelled concerts Earl Hines and his swinging jazz band were to give in Moscow and Leningrad—you'd think "St. Louis Blues" was a secret weapon!

"Perhaps this was a Vietnam protest," shrugged an attache at the American embassy. "The Russians didn't even say: "Sorry about that!"

CONCLUSION: All Russia remains a prison without walls. All Russians, excepting party members, are faceless and speechless. Even through white-collared Premier Kosygin doesn't have the oriental bloodiness of a Stalin, or a shoe-thumping rudeness of a Khrushchev, his, with slight modernization, is a continuation of their tyranny.

A tyranny that trafficked with the Nazi Hitler . . . a tyranny that peopled the world with exiles . . . a tryanny that turned Budapest into an abbatoir . . . a tryanny that encouraged the invasion of South Vietnam . . . a tryanny that has degraded and IS degrading, with whip and rifle butt, the dignity of man.

The Soviets currently seek an accommodation, and if our government cares to chance it, very well. But let's not blind ourselves with illusions as to why the Soviets want it.

Lederle's Return From Two Week Italian Vacation

by J. MOULTHROP

President and Mrs. John W. Lederle returned to campus recently from a two week vacation in Italy.

After landing in Rome on Saturday, March 18th, the Lederles visited the Vatican, Cistine Chapel, Colosseum, Forum and other major points of interest. Following four days in Rome, they travelled through Naples, Pompeii, Sorrento, Capri, Paestum, and Venice.

In Florence there was much evidence of the recent flood, said President Lederle on Friday. Water lines marked walls, restorative work on damaged artifacts was under way. Despite the tragedy, most public buildings are now open.

During the second week of their trip, the Lederles also visited Bologna, where the University summer program is held. C. Grove Haines, director of the program, conferred with President Lederle and toured grounds and facilities with him.

Returning to the States on April 1, President Lederle was called to Washington to Chair a two day conference of the Joint Committee of the Department of Agriculture and the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges. This Joint Committee on Education for Government Service discussed the problems of attracting and directing youth for government service.

SENIOR WEEK 1967

WED., MAY 31 -- Mixer at the "Q" Club.

THURS., JUNE 1 -- An Evening at the Hatfield Barn.

With folksinger ANITA SHEER and the comedy team of BURNS AND SCHREIBER, a clambake, smorgasbord, drinking and dancing.

FRI., JUNE 2 - - - - A Fun Filled Day at the White House Inn.

(Bowling, swimming & drinking) followed by the senior banquet, class night and dancing.

SAT., JUNE 3 - - - A Relaxing Day at Forest Lake.

With swimming, food, games, dancing with a band and plenty other surprises. In the evening a barnfire and concert with JUDY COLLINS. Plenty of free popular beverages will be served.

SUN., JUNE 4 - - - Commencement.

Reservations and deposit must be made at the ticket window in the Student Union by Friday, April 21.

REMEMBER . . . All senior week activities are free for seniors,

But your reservations MUST BE MADE or you will not be able to attend.

The deposit is 2:00

University of Massachusetts Stockbridge School "Professor of the Year for 1967" is Norman G. Cournoyer, left, assistant professor in the restaurant and hotel management program of the department of food science and technology. Presentation is being made by Stockbridge School senior Peter B. Houle of Andover, Conn. of the Stockbridge School honorary society. Prof. Cournoyer joined the UMass faculty in 1956. He holds an L.L.B. degree from American University and an M.B.A. degree from UMass. His specialty is law in relation to the restaurant, hotel and food service industries.

Review

"Wonderful Town" - A Laugh Treat

This musical comedy at the Bowker Auditorium is written by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov and adapted from the play My Sister Eileen. It is an amusing romp for the Operetta Guild cast and the audience.

The most disappointing element of the show is Leonard Bernstein's music. The only tune you come out humming is "It's Love"; the rest is very forgettable. The clever amusing lyrics by Betty Comden and Adolph Green, the only thing that saves some of the songs, are especially clever in the patter songs "100 Easy Ways to Lose a Man" and "What a Waste."

Casting is the best thing about the production. This show is filled with 2 dimensional characters, but the principles perform their roles with such zest and energy the audience cannot help but accept them.

Ruth Sherwood is played by Karen Connolly with a good sense of comedy and personality plus—two indispensable qualities for a musical comedy performer. Karen knows how to handle a punch line and belt out a song in a surprisingly strong voice. Karen Connolly is a high spot in the show.

Heddi Zirin makes a perfect Eileen and sings with professional polish. She is a delight in a light, delightful role.

Robert Emerson makes Robert Baker most believable by his natural, understated manner that is perfectly appropriate for the role. Robert makes his solo "Quiet Girl" a nice musical moment.

Raymond Poole is perfectly cast as Wreck, the football player. Raymond takes "Pass That Football," a forgettable song, and really brings it to life.

The only inadequate spot in the acting was in the role of Appopolous played by Michael Prusky. Michael made this two dimensional character unbelievable and preposterous. His burlesque style of acting became quite irritating after a time. The blame for this should not rest on the actor's shoulders, but on the director's. The director could easily have toned down the actor's performance in rehearsals.

William Gile, as director, never allowed the show to lag. Mr. Gile's pantomime sequences were very clever and effective. At times, Mr. Gile has the tendency to use a rather heavy hand as he leans toward exaggerated bits of business when a bit of subtlety and restraint might be funnier. Examples: He occasionally allowed actors to mugg and clown rather than work for a truth interpretation of the role. And is it really necessary to bring the lights up fuller at the end of every scene to stimulate applause? Obvious things like these hit the audience over the head with all the subtlety of a club and mar Mr. Gile's work.

But for the audience, the show should be a laugh treat. Wonderful Town performs at the Bowker Auditorium April 13th, 14th, and 15th with curtain time at 8:15.

French Corridor Seeks Students

Have you wondered why some of your classmates speak better French than you and invariably do better on French exams?

Odds have it that they are members of the French Corridors located in Noah Webster and Eugene Field dormitories. Now you also can learn and speak French in a pleasant and informal atmosphere.

As of next semester, due to graduation, etc., there will be several vacancies on both corridors. You too can be part of this dynamic group that present plays, sponsors films, and enjoys such activities as masked balls "a la francais".

For further information and to entertain questions there will be an informal gathering (with refreshments) Monday, April 10 at 8:00 P.M. in the Hampshire Room, Student Union. This is an excellent opportunity to meet the present members of the corridors and get an undergraduate's opinion of their activities.

If you are unable to attend Monday and would like to join, contact Professor Paul Mankin, Bartlett 263 or Professor Harold Smith, Bartlett 261 before April 15.

← Bronson P. Clark will speak on April 10 on the Quaker relief programs in Saigon and Quang Ngai, Vietnam, and also the possibilities of increased service opportunities in all parts of the world for conscientious objectors. The open meeting will be at the Friends Meeting House at 8:00, Amherst.

J.F.K. LIBRARY MEETING

There will be a meeting of the J. F. Kennedy Memorial Library Committee on Tuesday, April 11, at 11:15 in the Colonial Lounge. All interested students are urged to attend.

Senate Election Coverage on WMUA

TUESDAY, APRIL 11, 8:00-9:00
Action "67" . . . Host Pete Ward Will Interview Student Senate Officer Candidates.
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12, 7:30 —
Live coverage of the Senate elections in the Senate Chambers with Pete Ward. Speeches, interviews, and results.

Keep up with the campus with WMUA–91.1 FM

SANDER B. ROSS, class of 1970 announces his candidacy for president of the class

Place your cross next to Ross

SANDER "Sandy" ROSS for '70 PRESIDENT

NOTICES

MATHEMATICS CLUB
On Tues., April 11, at 7:00 P.M. in W-25 Machmer, a movie "What is an Integral"? will be shown. All are welcome.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
There will be a general business meeting, on April 11, at 6:30 P.M. in Council Chambers, S.U.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST
On April 11, at 6:25, in 12th floor lounge of T-5, the Weekly Bible study group will meet.

SCIENCE FICTION CLUB
On Monday, April 10, at 8:00 P.M. in Council Chambers, the club will present guest speaker Frederik Pihl to speak on "Science Fiction: The Game-Playing Literature".

OUTING CLUB
There will be a meeting of the club and a slide show in Cave Conservation on Monday the 10th at 6:30 P.M. in the Middlesex Room, S.U.

SPEED READING
The last session of the Speed Reading course will be given in Education bldg, 125 on Monday and Tuesdays, 7-8 P.M. from April 3-May 2.

ART CLUB
On April 16, at 7:45 P.M. in Memorial Hall Aud., an art club meeting and "another one"—an unexpected night will take place.

GOLF MEETING-VARSITY
There will be a meeting for all candidates for varsity golf on Monday, April 10, at 7:00 in Suffolk Room, S.U.

CHEMISTRY LECTURE
On Thurs., April 13, at 4:30 P.M. in Goessmann 152, Dr. H. G. Langer, of the Dow Chemical Co., will speak of "Mass Spectrometric Thermal Analysis".

EQUESTRIAN CLUB
Meeting on April 12, Wednesday, at 7:30 P.M. in Plymouth Room, S.U. Film on polo and the annual election of officers will be held. All members are urged to attend. New members welcome.

PSYCHOLOGY COLLOQUIUM
Karl H. Pribram, research professor in Psychiatry and Psychology at Stanford University, will present "Orienting Response and its Habituation", on Tuesday, April 11, at 4:00 P.M. in SBA 116.

STUDENTS FOR POLITICAL ACTION
SPA will sponsor a panel discussion on "Art, Science, and the War" on April 10, in Middlesex. The panelists will be Prof. Benson of the Art Department and Profs. Soltysik and Meisner of the Physics Department.
Tuesday afternoon there will be soapboxes open for anyone's use to speak his position on anything. This is sponsord by SPA in front of the Student Union.

LOST
A pair of brown glasses, on campus. Can be identified by small chip in plastic frame near lens. If found, please contact Al Boissy, 411 Baker.
1965 Turners High Class ring, initials FGS. Reward. Please contact Pat Milkey, 220 Lewis.

PINNINGS:
Barbara Bell, class of '70, Eugene Field, to Curt Adams, class of '69, James.

MARRIAGE:
Sharron Nauman, class of '68, Tower II, to Lt. C. Jeffrey Haunton, class of '66, DKE, Bowdoin.

MASS. CLASSIFIED

HELP WANTED

Man wanted to work a few afternoons raking leaves, fertilizing lawns, etc. Call 253-9462 evenings.

Math major with strong interest in the subject. Fascinating opportunity to work as analyst reporting to top executive. G & M Employment Service, 145 State Street, Springfield, Mass. 739-1133.

Management trainees with interest in manufacturing. Excellent opportunity for young men looking to the future. G & M Employment Service, 145 State Street, Springfield. 739-1133.

FOR RENT

Pleasant rooms to rent. Furnished. Mile to campus. Near foot of Triangle at 502 Main. Immediate occupancy. Call Bob Dempsey (Northampton) 584-9690.

Summer rental — partly furnished 3 room apartment, next to campus. $95— utilities inc. Call 549-1245 between 7-9 p.m.

AUTOMOBILES

'56 Chev, new carb, new muffler, good tires. $50. Call 413-467-7437.

1966 Fiat 1100 station wagon, blue, white walls, luggage rack. $1197.42. Call 545-1400 9-5 p.m.

1965 VW for sale. Excellent condition, clean, radio & heater. Must sell. Call 545-2314 between 8:30 & 5 Monday thru Fri.

1965 MG-B light blue. Springtime special. Excellent condition. Never driven hard. Priced by mutual agreement. Call 586-1487. Ask for Carlene.

1962 Rambler American station wagon. Good running condition. Must sell. Radio, heater, 5 tires, new rebuilt engine, windshield wipers. Call Sam, 546-9125. Best offer.

OPPORTUNITIES

1967 SUMMER JOB CATALOG—Start your career this summer with a major US corporation. Excellent salaries. Catalog lists over 10,000 openings available THIS SUMMER for men and women students. Send $2 today to: Amer. Assn. of College Students, 30 North LaSalle, Chicago, Illinois 60602.

The U.N. has five official languages, U.N.E.S.C.O. has eight, the neutral international language abolishes this chaos. Join the Esperanto Club Wednesdays 8:30 Student Union.

Trainee—young man with good scholastic record to learn all functions of a leading industry. Training for a supervisory position. G & M Employment Service, 145 State Street, Springfield, Mass. 739-1133.

FOR SALE

1963 Vespa 125 cc 3 speed—only 6500 original miles, excellent condition one owner. Contact: Larry Martin, 253-3984.

Attn. A.F.R.O.T.C. winter & summer uniform, winter overcoat. Size 39L. Call 253-5969.

RCA 21-inch color TV in good condition. Will take best offer. Call 256-6846.

Must sell $225 worth of stereo tape recording equipment with 2 microphones, extra reels. Practically new. Asking $100. Call 546-6377.

WANTED

Male or female student wanted to share an apartment in Paris, France, for the months of June, July, and August. Call Bob Wilson, 546-7865.

Male student is looking for partner for summer job cutting lawns in Amherst area. About $3 per hour. Call Bob, 665-3187 after 6:30.

AMHERST Cinema

NOW Ends Tues.
2nd WEEK
ON SCREEN
at 6:50 - 9:00
Plus
Select Shorts

"BEST FILM OF 1966!" National Society of Film Critics
A Carlo Ponti Production
Antonioni's
BLOW-UP
Vanessa Redgrave
COLOR
Recommended for mature audiences

WED. • "A MAN AND A WOMAN" RETURNS —

The Brothers of ΣAM
Want You!

Come to our OPEN SMOKER
(Formal)
MONDAY, APRIL 10, at 7:30 P.M.
Sigma Alpha Mu 387 N.-Pleasant Street

Bucs Favored to Succeed L. A. as National League Kingpins

by MIKE CURRAN
Senior Reporter

The Los Angeles Dodgers, minus Sandy Koufax, Maury Wills and Tommy Davis, open their defense of the National League flag when they take on the Cincinnatti Reds this afternoon at Crosley Field.

Just about everyone feels they will be unsuccessful however, and that either the Pittsburgh Pirates or the San Francisco Giants will take all the marbles. Atlanta, St. Louis, Philadelphia, and Cincinnati are the other clubs with a decent shot at the pennant, while Houston, New York, and Chicago should bring up the rear.

LOS ANGELES — Despite grievous losses, you can't count a club like this out. Pitching is still a strong point with Don Drysdale, Claude Osteen, Don Sutton, and Bob Miller starting, and Phil Regan, Ron Peranoski, and ex-Angel Bob Lee in the bullpen. Johnny Roseboro is solid behind the plate, and the infield of Wes Parker, Ron Hunt, rookie Gene Michael and Jim LeFebvre is more than adequate. Outfield will have Lou Johnson, Willie Davis, Bob Bailey, Ron Fairly and Jim Hickman playing musical chairs. Michael should be the top freshman but Bill Singer, a big righthander up from the P.C.L., could be a key man as the fifth starter.

SAN FRANCISCO — The Giants are hoping for another great year by perhaps the greatest player of all time, Willie Mays, to lead them to the money. The key to Giant chances, however, could be southpaw Mike McCormick, who was once a young pitching phenom with the old New York Giants, and is now expected to be starting along with Juan Marichal, Gaylord Perry, and Bob Bolin. Willie McCovey, Jim Hart, Tom Haller and Ollie Brown will dent the fences. Rookie Cesar Gutterrey from Venezuela will fill in at short-

Atlanta's Mack Jones

St. Louis' Larry Jaster

stop for the injured Tito Fuentes.

PITTSBURGH — With unbelievable hitting and a much-improved pitching staff, the Bucs are definitely the team to beat. Roberto Clemente, Willie Stargell, Matty Alou, Manny Mota, Donn Clendenon and Gene Alley all hit .292 or over. Throw in Bill Mazeroski, the best second baseman in baseball, and Maury Wills, the greatest basestealer, and you've got quite a unit. Dennis Ribant and Juan Pizarro should chalk up a few wins along with Bob Veale, Vern Law, Woody Fryman, Steve Blass and Tommie Sisk. Portsider Jim Shellenback has a good chance to make the team after a good spring down in florida.

PHILADELPHIA—An injury to Bill White, the late-signing Ritchie Allen and the increasing age of a pitching staff that averages 31 years old have all but eliminated Gene Mauch's cr w from a chance at the pennant. John Callison, Tony Gonzalez and Johnny Briggs will patrol the outfield, and the infield has Allen, Dick Groat, Tony Taylor and anybody's-guess at first. Clay Dalrymple will work behind the plate, catching the likes of Jim Bunning, Chris Short, Larry Jackson and Dick Ellsworth. Top newcomer in camp was Grant Jackson.

ATLANTA—The Braves will again lead the majors in solo homers but unless their pitching improves tremendously, they can't win. Hank Aaron, Joe Torre, Felipe Alou, Rico Carty, Mack Jones and Dennis Menke will be trotting around the bases from tomorrow till October, but pitching is 85 per cent of the game. Tony Cloninger, another good hitter, heads the mound corp which also includes Pat Jarvis, Bob Bruce, Clay Carroll and Dennie Lemaster. Rookie Ramon Hernandez is counted on as a short man in the bullpen.

ST. LOUIS—Could have the best staff in the National League, with fellers like Bob Gibson, Larry Jaster, Al Jackson, Ray Washburn, Joe Hoerner, Nelson Briles, and the highly-touted Steve Carlton. Hitting should be improved with Orlando Cepeda, Lou Brock, and Curt Flood, Roger Maris and Tim McCarver. The Cardinals have two legitimate candidates for rookie-of-the-year in pitchers Dick Hughes and Jim Cosman.

CINCINNATI—Reds fell all the way down to seventh place last year after challenging for the pennant for seven seasons. The road back up is a lot harder than the tumble. The hurling of Jim Maloney, Milt Pappas, Sammy Ellis, and Billy McCool is a start, but there's not much depth to the pitching staff. Pete Rose, Vada Pinson, Leo Cardenas, Tommy Helms and Deron Johnson will provide the batting punch.

HOUSTON — A better-than-average infield and an adequate pitching staff grives Astro fans hope for improvement this year. Infield has Chuck Harrison, Joe Morgan, Sonny Jackson, and Bob Aspromonte. Outfield is shaky because of injury to Jimmy Wynn, and only veteran bonus-baby Rusty Staub is sure of starting. Mike Cuellar, Larry Kierker, Dave Guisti and Chris Zachary will be the starting pitchers, while Claude Painter, a rookie, is expected to fill Wynn's shoes in the outfield.

NEW YORK — Mets could go either way because of an untested pitching staff. Start rs Bob Shaw, Jack Fisher, and Don Cardwell are sound but the rest of the hurling is one big question mark. There is only one southpaw on the staff, but if you could have only one lefthander, wouldn't it be Don Shaw. Tommy Davis, Cleon Jones, Ken Boyer and Ron Swoboda lead the hitting attack. The Mets infield sounds just as a Met infield should: Swoboda, Buckek, Harrelson and Boyer.

CHICAGO — Atrocious pitching will make it very hard for Leo Durocher's Cubs to get out of the cellar. Ron Santo, Billy Williams and Ernie Banks give the Windy City fans something to cheer about, but thanks to owner Wrigley, this club is second division—at best. Youngsters Randy Hundley, Byron Browne and Adolfo Phillips should improve with age. Top hurler is Ken Holtzman, the bonus-baby college student.

Sports Week in Review

The Pro Shop

by STEVE ROSS

BASKETBALL — Spurred on by the chant "We're not dead! We're not dead!" the Celtics kept their slim playoff hopes alive with a 121-117 win over the 76ers. Clutch shooting by Sam Jones and John Havlicek brought the Celtics back from a 110-107 deficit in the final two-and-a-half minutes.

The next game is tomorrow in Philadelphia. If Boston wins, they will return to Boston, Wednesday.

Should the Celtics take both games, it will all be decided Friday night in Philly.

In the Western Division, St. Louis has solved their defensive problem and taken San Francisco twice to even the series at 2-2. The series shifts back to the west coast for tonight's fifth game. The sixth game will be in St. Louis Wednesday, with the "if" game on Friday in the city by the bay.

HOCKEY — The Stanley Cup semifinals have produced no surprises. Montreal has jumped into a 2-0 edge over New York, while Chicago leads Toronto.

MAURY WILLS
What to wear?

In Thursday's encounter at Montreal, the Rangers had a 4-1 advantage in the third period only to have les Habitants explode for five goals. Shorty Ralph Backstrom lit the lamp twice, including the winner near the 15-minute mark. Captain Jean Beliveau wrapped up the game at 18:07.

The second game was won by John Ferguson, who broke a 1-1 tie in the third period. The goal was set up by little Yvon Cournoyer, who deflected a clearing pass to rough John, who was unattended to the right of Ed Giacomin. Ferguson whipped in a backhander to the opposite corner. Backstrom iced the win and his third goal of the series at the 13:25 mark.

Chicago used the same formula to win the first game as it did to win the regular season title: sound goal-tending, Pierre Pilote, Bobby Hull, and the Scooters. Paced by surprise net-minder Dennis DeJordy's 42-save performance, the Hawks burned the Leafs, 5-2. Pilote and Hull each got a goal while the Scooter Line — Mikita, Mohns and Wharram — contributed a pair.

BASEBALL—The season opens today. In the American League, Baltimore, the defending champ, is the team to beat. Minnesota and Detroit are the chief contenders with Cleveland and Chicago the playable long shots.

In the senior circuit, Pittsburgh is the favorite. The Bucs have the soundest infield in baseball along with a great outfield. The only weakness is pitching, and that isn't too weak. San Francisco, Atlanta and Philadelphia are the chief threats to the Pirates. Defending champion Los Angeles (sans Sandy), St. Louis and Cincinnati comprise the best of the dark horses.

Maury Wills, new Pirate third baseman, has accepted the edict of National League President Warren Giles, who ordered him to stop wearing long track-type spikes. Wills, top base burgler of the last five years, claims that shoe is legal. He points at the kangaroo skin shoes worn by the K.C. Athletics and reasons that his shoes are just as legal.

SPARK . . .

(Continued from page 8)

he left us, and Demeter is our fifth outfielder. You figure it out.

Q: Oh, there's Tony. Tony, come on over.

A: Drop dead, man.

Q: Tony, countless stories have appeared calling you a wild teenager, cocky, surly. . .

A: Drop dead. I only talk to reporters when they're gonna plug my new record.

Q: . .yes, but rumors have it that you've matured, that now you're a team man.

A: That's close, I might ever be a team man on this team, man. I'm the only star. My homeruns and good looks bring people to the ballpark, not Rico Whatsisname's fielding.

Q: But I understand Ted Williams worked with you this spring.

A: And what does he know, anyway? That fat fisherman!

Q: Dick, if you had to peg the team's deficiencies right now, don't you agree they'd be in strong armed pitching and a good solid catching.

A: No, I'd say the whole team stinks. They've even got nerve to step out onto a diamond, let alone play against opposition. Why, in my day, a batter could never have hung on with such limited capabilities. This team shapes up as one of the largest, groups of incompetents in years.

WRESTLING . . .

(Continued from page 8)

looked good on occasion, and with two more years ahead of them, their prospects are bright. In fact, Duckworth's pin was the key in the win over BC. Tom Lefebvre is another sophomore front-liner who could go places.

By next season, Coach Barr should get some of that needed help in the heavyweight divisions. This is where the Redmen fared poorly, often losing the lead they had filed up in the early going. Bob Spousta, Bob Gnatek and Bruce Fulton are good big men from a fine freshmen team.

Next year, with more experience under their belts, the Redmen will probably break even.

TRYOUTS FOR PRECISIONETTES begin
Monday, April 10
7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.
Main Gymnasium, Boyden

COME
to an informal reception with the present French Corrider members and learn about the French Corrider.
Several vacancies for next year.
TONIGHT—8:00 HAMPSHIRE ROOM, S.U.
Refreshments Served

American Foresight Inc.
SUMMER JOBS
GUARANTEED INCOME
EARN . . .
$1000 to $2500
No previous experience necessary
QUALIFICATIONS:
1. YOU MUST HAVE A CAR
2. YOU MUST LIVE WITHIN THESE AREAS

NEW ENGLAND		MID-ATLANTIC
Massachusetts	Rhode Island	New Jersey	Delaware
Connecticut	So. New Hampshire	Eastern Pa.	Maryland
		Brooklyn, Bronx, Long Island, N.Y.

OR WITHIN 50 MILES OF ONE OF OUR EIGHT REGIONAL OFFICES:

NEW ENGLAND		MID-ATLANTIC
Springfield, Mass.	Lowell, Mass.	Newark, N.J.	Philadelphia, Pa.
Boston, Mass.	Providence, R.I.	Long Island, N.Y.	Baltimore, Md.

INTERVIEW:
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12th
AT 1:15 P.M., 2:30 P.M. & 4:00 P.M.
WORCESTER ROOM
STUDENT UNION

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN
Sports
MONDAY, APRIL 10, 1967
Page 8 Vol. XCV, No. 62

Nine Makes Northern Debut at AIC

Revenge Motive for UMass

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Hoping to revenge American International's upset of UMass in basketball, the Redmen baseball team opens its northern season against Art Ditmar's Yellow Jackets this afternoon at A.I.C. Park in Springfield.

Ditmar, a former standout pitcher with the Kansas City Athletics and the New York Yankees, is optimistic about his third season as AIC diamond coach. Only four players have been lost from last year's 8-11 squad, and the team looked impressive in southern exhibitions.

Larry Freed, the 6'4 Florida Flash, who led the Moosemen to their basketball win over the Redmen, will probably be the starting pitcher today. Freed saw some action on the mound last year and was impressive in spots, although his control left something to be desired.

Freed gave up only one hit in five innings against Westfield State last week and on that basis won the starting role. He is also a competent batter, as evidenced by his .308 batting average last spring.

Backing up Freed on the mound staff is senior Bob Golden and junior Jim McClelland. Golden batted .357 in 28 at bats last year to lead the Yellow Jackets in hitting.

Senior second baseman Norm Burgess is one of the most solid batters on the squad, with a .302 BA last year. His brother, Jeff, is an outstanding sophomore prospect at first base.

Junior outfielder Paul Procopio batted .291 last year and is another outstanding returnee.

Sophomores Frank Capuano and Sonny Hansley play short and third respectively, but at this time the rest of the positions are unsettled.

Last year UMass beat AIC, 10-6, in an atrocity of a baseball game. Junior southpaw John Canty, just off an outstanding southern trip, will start for UMass so today's game should see better pitching.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL — vs. A.I.C. (at Springfield), today, 3 p.m.

TENNIS—vs. Fairfield (at Fairfield, Conn.), today, 1:30 p.m.

Field Too Wet

Last Saturday's scheduled lacrosse game with M.I.T. was postponed because of the soggy condition of the field. A new date for the game has not been set.

Koz's 19th Tennis Squad Opens Today at Fairfield

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

When you finish second there is only one thing to do try harder. Last year the UMass tennis team finished as bridesmaid in the Yankee Conference. This year the Redmen are shooting for the top. And it looks as if the trophy could be in the Boyden trophy case next month.

Led by Co-captains Harvey Mednicov and Gerry Johnson, Coach Steve Kosakowski's 19th team will open the season today at Fairfield.

The roster includes a half dozen lettermen, and five sophomores. The biggest battle is for the sixth, and final, singles spot. Kosakowski will open the season with senior John Gutt there. Gutt's competition includes sophs Ed Goltz and Wilke Ward as well as grid star Bob Detore.

The three doubles combinations are Mednicov and Andy Meagher, Johnson and Glenn Sheppard, and Gutt and Carl Clemm. They supply a potent punch, and each team features at least one seasoned senior.

The Redmen's big task of the season will come on Patriot's Day, when they face MIT in a home match. The Engineers were the only team to beat UMass in duel competition last season, a feat they accomplished by a single point.

The main objective is winning the conference. The championship will be held here on May 5 and 6. Kosakowski, dean of conference coaches, feels, "We are the team to beat." In evaluating the rest of the schools, he says that defending champion Vermont would provide the sternest opposition, with Connecticut and Rhode Island as the dark horses.

Same Old Song for Red Sox? Not This Year!

Sam Spark Speaks Out

The whiff of third strikes and the moans of sore armed hurlers are once again in the air as the Boston Red Sox limber up for another baseball season. As evidenced by some of the comments I received at a recent Red Sox press conference, this year promises to be no different than the past few. The players used the same trite expressions in answer to the same trite questions.

For once I'd like to hear some honest answers to the queries posed to some of the cocky young juvenile delinquents that Sport magazine has passed off as motherhood's finest disciples. Let's listen in on a candid Red Sox press conference.

Q: Tell me, Dick, as manager how do you think the Red Sox are going to do this year?

A: There's just no possible way that we can finish out of the cellar this year. I mean really, if your hottest ballplayer was Jose Tartabull, you wouldn't be too optimistic either.

Q: Let's move over to Sal, Maglie. Sal sore arms have plagued this team now for a couple of years. Do you think you'll be able to alleviate the difficulties this spring?

RICO PETROCELLI
What is name.

TONY CONIGLIARO
The team, man.

A: Are you kidding? These guys need a chiropracter, not a pitching coach. I ask for pitchers and they give me Bob Sadowski. He has a good move to every base except home.

Q: What about the other fine young pitchers?

A: What pitchers? Osinski Bennet? Cisco? and Stephenson? With arms like theirs, they should be wearing slings, not gloves. We have a second-hand pitching machine from Revere Beach that has more stuff than any of them.

Q: Let's move over to Carl Yastrzemski. Carl, do you think Williams will make it here as a manager?

A: Him? I'll fix him just like I got Pesky and Herman. Pesky was the same kind as Williams: you know, enthusiastic and all that kiddy stuff.

Q: Carl, you were having a little trouble seeing the ball toward the end of the year.

A: Yes, that's true.

Q: What, in a word, was the problem?

A: Alcoholism, basically. I was taking a shot or two before every game. You know, kind of loosen up.

Q: Carl, are the rumors true about club house dissention?

A: You bet your life they are. Right now, me and Bobby Doerr are cooking up a few good ones about Williams. We figure to spring them at strategic moments like when the club blows a ball game.

Q: How many of these incidents do you figure to use?

A: Oh about a hundred and fifty.

Q: Dick, getting back to you, the big trade last year was the deal that got hard-hitting Don Demeter for Red Sox castoff Earl Wilson. Do you think this trade helped both clubs?

A: The hell it did! Wilson won about thirteen ball games after

(Continued on page 7)

THE SEASON THAT WAS . . .

A Sport with New Flavor

by ROGER KIPP
Staff Reporter

Navy football coach Wayne Hardin was being congratulated a few years back on the success his team had enjoyed during the season, when he made a comment pertinent to all athletics on any collegiate level: "Good teams are no coincidence."

Good athletes are hard to come by and admittedly, the competition is fierce. Lew Alcindor did not choose UCLA because he liked the English department; he rode in on a full boat.

UMass wrestling coach Homer Barr, in his first season, is a crackerjack and if given the opportunity could make UMass a respected power in the sport in this section of the country. He personally believes that a crowd of two thousand for a wrestling meet is a possibility in the near future.

Of course, fans like a winner. Barr's recruiting system has developed rapidly, but he knows full well that money does most of the talking.

This year's record was 2 - 8, with the only wins coming over Boston and Rhode Island, but Coach Barr never expressed any dissatisfaction with the performance of his team.

Top wrestlers were Art Keown, a senior and captain of the team who wrestled with skill in either the 145 or 152 lb. class, and Gene Paltrineri, a former Massachusetts state high school champ, who must already rank as one of the greatest ever at UM. Paltrineri, though only a sophomore, had a 9-1 record individually and placed fourth in New England in his 137 lb. class. He came close to going all the way.

A 2 - 8 record failed to raise many eyebrows, but in the light of the team's scanty experience, it was a good one. Keown was the only returning member from the 1965-66 team, which posted a 5-5 slate. With so many newcomers filling in, the Redmen did well to win any meets at all.

Marc Ryerson and Wayne Duckworth, two more members of Barr's "kiddie corps," both

(Continued on page 7)

HOPE FOR THE FUTURE—Members of the 1966-67 wrestling team are (front row, from left) Wayne Duckworth, Eugene Paltrineri, Marc Ryerson, Chet Lefebvre, (second row) Art Keown, Bob Yurkus, Coach Homer Barr, Chet Lubelczyk, Greg Thornton.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

CANDIDATES FOR CLASS OFFICE

The Collegian will devote space to a Candidates' Forum on April 19. All statements must be typed at 60 spaces, double-spaced, and may not exceed 16 lines in length. Deadline is 1:00 P.M. Sunday, April 16.

SPECIAL VIETNAM ISSUE

See Pages 6 & 7

VOL. XCV, NO. 62 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12, 1967

On-Campus Parking Soon to Be Reduced

by EILEEN VORSE

On-campus parking will begin to be reduced this summer according to Jack Littlefield of the University planning office. This is the first step in a long range plan to establish a pedestrian campus. The move to eliminate central campus parking is necessitated by the construction of new buildings.

Among the first lots to be effected will be the Curry Hicks lot, which will be eliminated by the construction of Bartlett East, the Student Union lot by the Campus Center, and parking behind South College by the Machmer Tower.

To compensate for this loss of space, the North lot is presently being expanded, and it is hoped that appropriations can be made to develop more parking areas behind the Orchard Hill complex and on the far side of Boyden. By the fall of 1968, a parking garage for 800-1000 cars should be completed along with the Machmer Tower.

Mr. Littlefield emphasized the development of a tight academic area in which student convenience will be maximized by the proximity of classroom buildings to each other. Towards this end some campus roads will be closed this summer.

Mr. Littlefield feels that for the safety of pedestrians, the University must begin to cut off roads without waiting for appropriations to build new ones.

The eventual plan for the campus, which it is hoped will be completed within three years, will close off all roads running directly through the campus and provide mainly peripheral parking. North Pleasant Street from the Newman Center to Women's Phys. Ed. will be cut off, diverting traffic up to East Pleasant Street and back down Eastman Lane. To establish this circulatory traffic pattern, new roads will be constructed by-passing

(Continued on page 4)

Open Soapbox Debate Spirited

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

A student emphasizes his point with a rolled-up magazine. The event was an open soapbox debate in front of the S.U. yesterday.

by JANE ROLAND
Staff Reporter

A student wearing an army surplus overcoat stepped up onto a soapbox and became the first speaker at the open soapbox debate in front of the Student Union yesterday.

"The government as a bureaucracy and the university administration as a bureaucracy... have the potential to squeich us as individuals." ....

The speaker, a graduate student in Sociology, argued his position against the war in Vietnam. Came a voice from the crowd, "If you're so opposed to the United States Army— why do you and your friends wear their clothes all the time?"

"They're cheaper and best made for the money. But what's that got to do with the question of the war? It seems pretty irrelevant," came an answer from behind him.

Others asked questions more directly concerning the war and US involvement in Vietnam. At first the debating was more formal, with students, mostly anti-war, taking their turns to stand on the soapbox and deliver impromptu speeches.

Later the talking became more informal, as large groups gathered in front of the Union to listen to debated between proponents of different positions.

Discussion Centers on War

This informal atmosphere was preferable, according to Richard Shortt, a graduate student in Labor Relations and co-chairman of Students for Political Action (SPA), the campus organization that sponsored the Soapbox.

The Soapbox was successful, said Shortt, who added that its purpose was to "Open debate to everyone, to give everyone interested a chance to speak his beliefs and try to defend them, as well as challenge others on their opinions."

Although the Soapbox had been planned originally as an open forum on anything, discussion centered on the war.

Most students, when question-

(Continued on page 9)

"Art, Science, and War" Panel Discusses Morality, Vietnam

by Pat Flaherty
Staff Reporter

The panel discussion sponsored Monday night by the Students for Political Action on "Art, Science, and the War" dealt with the responsibilities and relationships of scientists and artists to government and the choices that individuals must make in asserting their quality of being human.

Ultimately the question revolved around morality; what a person considers "right"; this should be the criteria according to the panelists for personal involvement in a war in which their country is involved.

The three panelists of the UMass faculty were Prof. Benson, who teaches History of Art, and Profs. Soltysik and Meisner of the Physics Dept.

The discussion was begun by Prof. Benson who investigated the role of the artist in society. Historically, he sees the artist as being concerned with the values of human beings. He is especially concerned "where man has the opportunity to overcome his aggressive instincts."

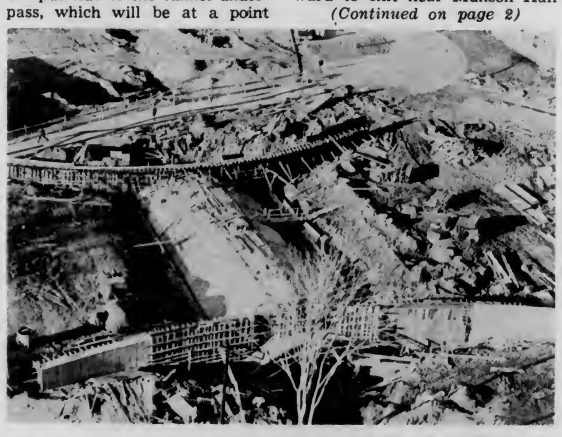
Art in the past has served to reflect the fundamentals about higher moral spheres; in exploring rhythm and symmetry, art simultaneously explores the psychological and spiritual realities.

Seeing life as an "interrelated unity", history to Prof. Benson

(Continued on page 9)

Southwest Tunnel Well Under Way

by ROBERT DETORE



This coming September, the students of the Southwest complex will find a delightful change from the unpleasant situation they have endured since the start of the Boulevard project. The design of the project calls for a central wall corridor and tunnel underpass, whose main function is the safe passage of Southwest students to and from central campus.

The corridor walls and walk begin near the center of the Southwest Mall and slops downward until one reaches the tunnel underpass of the Boulevard. The tunnel itself is a hinged arch, which results in a curved ceiling and whose walls meet the sidewalk at a width of 20 feet.

To avoid the closed-in feeling one gets when entering a tunnel, the walls, due to the arch design, are forty feet wide, while the walk is twenty ft. wide. This gives the student a feeling of freedom within the tunnel, because the side walls are extended out from the sidewalk. The tunnel's side walls will have the same brick-a-brack effect that one immediately thinks of when Southwest is mentioned.

When the student reaches the campus side of the tunnel underpass, which will be at a point southeast of the present police station, he may either go left to connect with the walks that lead to Boyden Gym or continue upward to exit near Munson Hall

(Continued on page 2)

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Chbocki

A familiar sight to Southwest residents is the underpass which will soon be the complex's only access route to the main campus.

Student Senate to Elect Officers Tonight

by PAT PETOW
Senate News Editor

A good many students probably couldn't tell you what the Student Senate is or who represents them there. Most students wouldn't be able to tell you that there is going to be an election of officers tonight in the Council Chambers of the Student Union.

But the members of the Senate know, and have known that there's going to be an election. While they may know who will be president and treasurer—for there is no opposition — some are still wondering whether there will be a "dark horse" for the top office.

Interest was intense a week ago Tuesday when one of the principle contenders for president remained silent as tentative candidacies were de-

"I felt pretty secure in the knowledge that the other candidate in my mind would do an excellent job," Burt Freedman said after withdrawing from the race for president. Freedman described his decision as being primarily based on personal reasons.

Not seeking reelection as treasurer, he is making a complete break with finances to work in other aspects of the Senate. But a main point he is keeping in mind is that he will still be a part of the body and will still have an influence.

A number of senators have expressed to this reporter an increased respect for making the stand. "You get the feeling very strongly," said another candidate for office, "that Freedman believes he has made the right decision."

COLLINS

Following are resumes of those senators who have declared their candidacy for tonight's elections.

PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE:

JAMES G. COLLINS: Class of 1968, Major — Government, Address — Constituency — 2016 John Adams Upper.

"I think we are going to have to change the Senate," asserted Finance Committee Chairman Jim Collins — the unopposed candidate for president.

(Continued from page 2)

Draftcard Burning Is 'Free Speech'

BOSTON (AP) — Draft card burning is "a demonstration of free speech," the 1st U.S. Court of Appeals has ruled, and the amendment to the Selective Service Law prohibiting it is unconstitutional.

The ruling came Monday in the case of David Paul O'Brien, 21, of Framingham, who was sentenced to six years in prison after publicly burning his draft card.

Chief Judge Bailey Aldrich upheld the conviction, however, because O'Brien had violated another section of the law by not having the card in his possession. The judge suggested this as the proper way to deal with future cases of draft card destruction.

Aldrich sent the case back to U.S. District Court with instructions to vocate the six-year sentence and impose a new one. He said he feared the original term had been imposed because of the public burning.

STUDENT SENATE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

The third year senator spoke of his own abilities as being able to find problems and the manpower within the Senate to deal with them. To accomplish his goals, Collins intends to expand the executive initiative. For example, he favors the introduction of bills by the Senate President. John Greenquist '67, the present student government head, has not made introducing bills a regular practice.

Another modification proposed by Collins is making the Public Relations Committee more like the now defunct University Reform Committee. The URC came into being, Collins said, because the Senate was not functioning well enough. He advocates a greater "forum" role for the PR Committee—holding coffee hours in the residential areas and generally increasing Senate contact.

In an effort to make the Senate more "efficient," Collins looks forward to improved researching of bills and a system of constituency check on senators who are not working.

During this legislative year, Collins has introduced bills to allow the number of open houses to be determined by the respective residence hall governments and to have the University pay for all mandatory traveling for academic courses.

VICE PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE:

Candidates: Francis K. Boronski and Laurence R. Marcus.

FRANCES K. BORONSKI: Class of 1968, Major — Government, Address - Constituency — 414 Leach.

Fran Boronski may be stepping down as secretary, but she hopes to continue to serve as an officer of the Senate in running for vice-president in her second Senate term.

BORONSKI

As chairman of the Public Relations Committee last year, Boronski saw the fruition of efforts to hold the first state-supported colleges conference on this campus and afterwards prepared a 36-page pamphlet reviewing the two days of discussion. The goal of continuing similar conferences was realized by this month's formation of the Massachusetts Student Association.

"This continuity will assure us of a perpetual opportunity for much-needed contact with our fellow state-supported colleges, community colleges and universities," Boronski wrote.

The vice-presidential candidate has served as Senate appointee on the DVP Committee and presently sits on the University College Committee and the Class of 1968 Executive Council. Boronski participated in the formation of the Fin Arts Council and is working on a committee on committees to make recommendations for appointments to Senate and other committees.

LAURENCE MARCUS

Class of 1969, Major — Government, Address — 375 Hills South, Constituency — the Class of 1969.

"Larry Marcus has probably introduced more bills — largely worthy ones—than any other senator this year," said one former colleague.

Now in his second year as senator, Marcus was the chairman of the Student Government Association Committee and took charge of the fall elections this year. He has been the chairman of the Public Relations Committee and a member of its state-wide conference subcommittee since the fall.

Marcus is a member of the Services Committee and is its liason with the Housing Office, a member of the Alcoholic Beverages Committee, chairman of the Athletic Study Committee, a member of judiciary selections committees, a member of the Senate Executive Committee.

In class affairs, Marcus has served on the Executive Council for two years. Again for a two-year period, he has been a member of the Homecoming Committee—this year the chairman of publicity.

In the latter role, the senator cited valuable exp rience in contact with the RSO office and alumni. "From my broad experience I think I am well qualified to coordinate the various aspects of student government."

To help bring the class officers more in touch with the Senate, to help coordinate the work of the various University and Senate committees, to work for closer contact between the Student and Faculty Senates were other goals he cited.

One proposal he has made as a candidate is to do away with the compulsory once-a-week meetings of Senate committees.

TREASURER OF THE SENATE:

FRANK VEROCK: Class of 1969, Major — Civil Engineering, Address — 40 Webster Ct., Amherst, Constituency — Commuters.

The present financial policy booklet is a "patchwork," declared the unopposed candidate for Senate treasurer.

In seeking office, Frank Verock recommends a financial policy which does not have loopholes and which, consequently, will last for years.

Verock is currently a member of the Finance subcommittee which formulates financial policy. After Senate approval, the recommendations of the subcommittee become a part of the Policy Booklet.

If elected treasurer, Verock plans to revert to the bookkeeping practice of last year's treasurer, Gary Bombardier. He intends to make daily entrees on money spent by the Senate against its own operating budget and entrees against whatever funds remain in the general fund. By the practice, the Senate can know how much of the student activities tax remains at any time.

The Senate candidate has been chairman of the Budgets Committee this year and is a member of the Ways and Means Committee.

SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

Candidates: Theresa A. Banfield, Linda S. Shriber, Audrey S. Wyke.

THERESA A. BANFIELD: Class of 1970, Major—Mathmatics, Address - Constituency — 316 John Q. Adams Lower.

Terri Banfield is seeking the office of secretary after having spent this year working with the present secretary as an assistant.

She told this reporter that she has also worked all year with the Senate's full-time secretary, Mrs. Eunice Konieczy—she is the only candidate for secretary with the experience.

While observing that the office of secretary "doesn't have to be just clerical work, it can also be public relations—meeting people," the candidate referred to her summer job as executive secretary as qualifying her in the clerical aspects.

Explaining the public rela- Miss Banfield described the offices of president and vice president as somewhat awe-inspiring to new senators. Given that the treasurer is mainly concerned with financial matters, she concluded that, of the officers, the secretary is in the best position to get to know new senators and put them at ease in their first moments.

LINDA S. SHRIBER: Class of 1969, Major — Education, Address - Constituency — 516 Dickinson.

One of the three candidates for secretary, Linda Shriber has also assisted the secretary.

In considering her year of experience as a factor in running for secretary, she said she has been able to learn her own shortcomings and capabilities.

Among the secretary's responsibilities, there are two "office" aspects according to Senator Shriber: (1) public relations within the Senate and with students who might want to use the office facilities and (2) making everything in the way of files accessible.

Other parts of the role—which she described as essentially "a job of tightening up and informing"—include orientating new senators and acting as a referring or source person.

"Strict internal organization" was a phrase emphasized by Miss Shriber in reference to the paperwork and record-keeping of the student government. In this respect she reported that she can type 50 wpm and uses speedwriting.

She pointed out an ever-present public relations responsibility for an officer. As a senator and member of the Class Executive Council, working on Campus Chest and the Sophomore Banquet, she described her contacts beyond the University and talking with people as one of the more pleasant parts of Senate work.

AUDREY S. WYKE: Class of 1968, Major—Home Economics, Address Constituency — 425 Field.

Commenting on the role of all Senate officers, Audrey Wyke called for greater communication within the Senate and across campus. Increased communication with Faculty Senate committees was given by the senator as one University-wide example.

WYKE

SHRIBER

Referring to her committee work, Miss Wyke philosophized that it was "important to know what has to be done because so much has to be done."

Her specific committee work has been with Budgets, Finance, Ways and Means, Food Services, and Women's Affairs. At present Senator Wyke is chairman of the Food Services subsidiary committee for the North Dining Commons.

For the financial committees, she recently wrot a summary of the Financial Policy Booklet to be used by RSO treasurers.

TUNNEL . . .

(Continued from page 1)

and the new Administration Building. The entire project will be three hundred feet long.

The project will be completely landscaped with mass shrub and tree planting. The tunnel underpass and corridors will be extremely well-lighted for students use at night.

CORRECTION

The recommendation that "each residence hall government be allowed to determine its own unique policy on . . . open houses" was made only by the Student Senate and not by the Student Life Committee.

Tonite at 7:00, WMUA

covers the

STUDENT SENATE ELECTIONS

Live with Pete Ward & Howard Sherman

91.1 FM

AMHERST Cinema

NOW SHOWING

on screen 7:00-9:10

NEXT • THE ENDLESS SUMMER

SOON • DOCTOR ZHIVAGO - Color

Operetta Guild

WONDERFUL TOWN

April 13, 14, 15

Tickets on sale at S.U. box office

ELECT

BOB TOBIN

PRESIDENT

CLASS OF' 68

The ART CLUB Presents

"ANOTHER ONE"

Color - sound - mind-bender

with

THE DRED

and

BOX

Sundday, April 16 - 7:45

Memorial Hall Auditorium

PUBLIC INVITED

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

Labor Scene

The Teamsters Union and the trucking industry announce a tentative contract settlement.

* * *

The auto industry maps plans to call back thousands of workers laid off because of parts shortages blamed on the trucking shutdown.

* * *

Pres. Johnson urges railroad management and unions to make maximum use of a 20-day cooling off period to avoid a nationwide strike

* * *

The new Department of Transportation has a future, but it was born too late to get involved in the truck and railroad disputes.

* * *

"This is Walter Cronkite, sitting in for Arnold Zenker. It's good to be back." The light touch marks the return of TV's regulars after the 13-day AFTRA strike.

Vietnam

Three U. S. pilots are reprimanded and lose pay for the worst mistake bombing of the Vietnam war.

* * *

U.S. B52s make their first raid from Thailand. Communist mortars hit the Chu Lai airstrip.

U.S.-Latin Amer.

The summit conference appears to be making some progress as the presidents prepare to open debate on Latin America's economic future and the U.S. role.

* * *

Pres. Johnson emphasizes private man-to-man meetings with other presidents at Punta-del-Este.

Washington

As many as 60 congressmen plan to attend the Paris air show next month as expense-paid observers.

* * *

The House approves the first general overhaul since 1909 of the nation's copyright laws.

* * *

The space agency rejects—after tests—suggestions that astronaut Virgil I. Grissom might have accidentally touched off the Apollo fire.

National

Adam Clayton Powell wins easily in the special congressional election in Harlem, facing the House with another decision on seating him.

* * *

State Department says it is making no attempt to contact a group of Quakers who defied government warnings and sailed a yacht to North Vietnam to deliver medical supplies.

* * *

Richard M. Nixon, who had his own troubles with foreign demonstrators while he was vice-president, said today that Vice-Pres. Hubert H. Humphrey conducted himself with dignity and good humor in the face of European demonstrators last week.

* * *

The prosecution, after seven days of presenting testimony, plans to rest its case against Richard Speck, the tattooed wanderer charged with killing eight student nurses.

'What if He's Still Here a Year From November?'

Springfield Union

U. S. Makes Bombing Error

SAIGON (AP) The U. S. Air Force has reprimanded three of its pilots, docked their pay and temporarily grounded them for the worst bombing mistake of the Vietnam war.

A 7th Air Force board of inquiry cleared a fourth pilot who flew the two-plane strike on March 2. The strike killed 105 Montagnards — mountain tribesmen — and wounded 250 in the village of Lang Vei, in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

The board of inquiry said the bombing mistake was "inadvertent and the result of navigation errors." It ordered the disciplinary measures against the flight leader and the two copilots who were responsible for navigation. The other pilot was cleared.

The names of the pilots were not immediately available. The Air Force also refused to disclose the amount of pay lost and details of the reprimand—which normally would affect promotion and future assignment of the officers—until expiration of an appeal period.

The Air Force said the three grounded pilots, who are based in Thailand, would go before a flying evaluation board in the next week for another review of the incident.

This was the first report of disciplinary action taken against U.S. personnel responsible for a bombing mistake in the Vietnam war. About a dozen such incidents have been reported, with about 500 casualties.

Both the two-seater F4C Phantoms dropped antipersonnel cluster bombs which missed the camp and fell into the nearby village. U.S. Special Forces men and Montagnard irregulars in the camp fired on the two jets, assuming they were Communist, but one of the camp's machine guns jammed.

An Air Force spokesman said the target on which the fliers had been briefed had almost identical terrain features as the Lang Vei area. He said steps had been taken to prevent recurrence of such an accident but declined to say what these were, explaining they were classified.

UThant Receives International Award

NEW DELHI (AP)—U.N. Secretary-General U Thant received the first Jawaharlal Nehru award for international understanding today from Indian leaders who praised his efforts for peace in Vietnam.

"I welcome you as the dedicated champion of the world," said Nehru's daughter, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, at the ceremony attended by Indian political and business leaders. "Much of what the U.N. is and can become depends on the secretary-general."

International

A new oil slick was spotted about a mile off the Brittany coast today as French authorities hastily stepped up their attack against the "black tide."

Powell Wins Harlem Election In Absentia

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second time in four months, the House of Representatives faces the sticky problem of what to do with Adam Clayton Powell, who won a lopsided election victory in absentia in his Harlem constituency Tuesday.

While the free-wheeling congressman fished in Gulf Stream waters off his Bimini island retreat, 32,000 Harlem voters gave him an 86 per cent margin over his closest opponent, Lucille Pickett Williams, a Republican.

"We've kept the faith, Adam," read pennants flying from the walls of Harlem's Democratic clubs, where votes were tallied.

Unofficial returns gave Powell 27,900 votes to 4,091 for Mrs. Williams and 427 for the third candidate, the Rev. Ervin F. Yearling, a Conservative. The 22-year House veteran, who may be forced to come back as a freshman, lost only 11 of 214 election districts, and those were in a predominantly white corner of his 18th Congressional District.

There was little surprise at the long predicted outcome in Harlem, where community leaders have agreed that the House decision to exclude Powell from the 90th Congress on March 1 was a racially motivated slap which ignored Harlem's wishes.

Debates on Economics Latin America Summit

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—The inter-American summit conference appeared to be making some headway today as President Johnson and Latin-American chiefs of state prepared to open debate on the economic future of Central and South America and the role the United States will play in it.

In advance of the conference's first formal session late this afternoon, the foreign ministers reached preliminary agreement on a preamble to the final conference declaration calling for economic integration of Latin America and creation of a common market. The preamble also expressed U.S. endorsement and a pledge to support it.

Even this draft—a synthesis of Brazilian and U.S. proposals plus several dozen amendments—was heading into shoals. Representatives of a number of nations said they wanted another look at it before giving their final approval.

Despite four days of preliminary discussion, the foreign ministers were obliged for lack of agreement to leave the touchiest issues for their chiefs to deal with. President Johnson was faced by Latin-American demands which he has to resist because he lacks blanket approval from the U.S. Congress to increase U.S. commitments to the southern part of the hemisphere.

The United States, while strongly supporting the move for gradual creation of a common market, also is pushing the idea that if Latin America is to emerge into the 20th century free of violent revolution, it must be largely a do-it-yourself proposition.

A number of Latin-American nations have been demanding that the United States give preferential treatment to their goods in the U.S. market and that Washington permit the use of Alliance for Progress dollars in the world market, rather than restrict them to purchases in the United States. With its unfavorable balance of payments problem, the United States cannot bow to these demands.

A U.S. government source has said that Johnson's individual talks with the Latin-American presidents will probably be more important than the formal summit sessions. The U.S. President spent a busy day Tuesday.

NAACP Votes Against Proposal

NEW YORK (AP) — Directors of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People have voted unanimously against Dr. Martin Luther King's proposal to merge the civil rights and peace movements.

The NAACP's 60-member board called the plan put forward by King a week ago "a serious tactical mistake" and said fusing the two movements "will serve the cause neither of civil rights nor of peace."

In the resolution adopted at its quarterly meeting Monday the board said "civil rights battles will have to be fought and won on their own merits, irrespective of the state of war or peace in the world."

King, in a speech here last Friday, urged that the United States withdraw from the Vietnam war and urged Negroes and "all whites of goodwill" who object to the American position to become conscientious objectors.

20-Day Cool-Off Urged for Rails

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson urges railroad management and shopcraft union negotiators to make maximum use of a 20-day cooling-off period to avoid "the terrible consequences" of a nationwide rail strike.

The President, attending a hemispheric summit meeting in Punta del Este, Uruguay, was expected today to sign a Congress — approved resolution authorizing extension for 20 days of Thursday's 12:01 a.m. strike deadline.

The 20-day breather would extend a current 60-day truce that has blocked a strike by six railroad shopcraft unions which would hamstring railroads which account for 95 per cent of the nation's rail freight.

Johnson, asking Congress for the extension, had warned of the catastrophic effect of a prolonged rail strike on the nation's economy.

He said it could boost unemployment as high as 15 per cent, force nearly immediate layoffs of 40,000 coal miners and cripple attempts to supply U. S. fighting forces in Vietnam.

Members of the six unions average about $2.50 an hour, with skilled machinists receiving up to $3.04. The unions are asking a 7 per cent pay boost. The railroads are offering 5 per cent.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said meeting the union demands would "bankrupt some of the railroads."

Collegian Wire News Staff

EDITOR: Richard S. Kline
STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Roupenian
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini

"Something for Everyone"

The Brothers of

ΣAM

Cordially invite you

to an

INFORMAL OPEN SMOKER

Thursday, 7:30 p.m.

Photography Expert's Works On View in SU This Week

The work of Andre Kertesz, Budapest-born pioneer of modern photography, is on view at S.U. Art Corridor until April 16. Sponsored by the Arts and Music Committee, this retrospective exhibition, selected by John Szarkowski, Director of the Photography Department of The Museum of Modern Art, New York, includes works from the three major periods in the photographer's life: Budapest, 1912-25; Paris, 1925-35; New York, 1936-64.

Originally shown at the Museun in the winter of 1963 - 65, the exhibition was prepared for circulation by the Department of Circulating Exhibitions of The Museum of Modern Art. It contains 52 works.

With a career spanning over five decades, Kertesz is still at work and many of his recent works are included in the exhibition. "These most recent pictures," says Mr. Szarkowski, "seems in their freshness to be the work of a greatly gifted beginner discovering for the first time the beauty of photography. But, in their economy and ease, in their abandonment to the uncomplicated pleasure of seeing, they are the work of a master."

Mr. Szarkowski concludes, "The photographic world has begun to realize again that in much of what it values, it is the heir of Andre Kertesz."

Kertesz bought his first camera in 1912, while he was working as a clerk in the Budapest stock exchange, and one of his earliest photographs, "Boy Sleeping" (1912), is among those included in the show. This early work reveals the qualities which still distinguish Kertesz photographs: his response to the moment, his acceptance of and interest in all aspects of life, his childlike candor.

In 1925, Kertesz went to Paris, convinced that he would become a professional photographer. He arrived at the moment when the picture magazine and the illustrated newspaper were beginning to receive widespread attention, and he soon became one of the leading innovators of the new photo-journalism. Many of the photographs from the Paris period originally appeared in the leading Paris newspapers and such outstanding publications as Vu, Art et Medecine, Uhu, Varietes, and Bifur.

Kertesz had his first one-man show in Paris in 1927 and his works were included in the First Independent Salon of Photography the following year.

In Paris, Kertesz had been successful, prosperous, admired; when he came to the United States in 1936 the times and the conditions were not propitious. He had agreed to make a two-year visit; before the two years were up the approach of war made his return impossible and the visit became permanent.

In the 25 years which followed he was enguifed by the commercial market, which he could neither escape nor master. The photographer who might have bent the market to his own desire or used it for his own ends would have been one capable of repeating and refining his successes. "Kertesz is a different kind of man. His very versatility, the variety of experience which has charmed him, his unquestioning acceptance of life, have produced an art which is centrifugal, unpredictable, and romantic."

New Twists and Format To Highlight Senior Week

by LINDA BLANCHARD
Staff Reporter

Relaxation, entertainment, and a last chance to kick off your shoes and let yourself go before Commencement await the Class of 67 during this years' senior week.

According to coordinating chairman Jerry Benezra, the traditional program has been given new twists including new talent and a rearranged format.

Senior week is traditionally not a dating affair. The object is for all seniors to have a good time, to relax and enjoy themselves.

The events will begin Wednesdey evening, May 31, with a mixer at the familiar "Q" Club. Thursday evening at the Hatfield Barn, famous for their smorgasbord, will feature a nightclub act with fresh, new performers.

Folk singer Anita Sheer, as yet relatively unknown, promises to be a big success. She has received high acclaim for recent college appearances in New York and is said to have a voice comparable to Joan Baez.

Burns and Schreiber have appeared on the Ed Sullivan and Tonight shows and are noted for their controversial subject matter. They carry on an amazing dialogue between a Brooklyn They are vociferous advocates of Jewish cabdriver and a Boston bigot. They are vociferous advocates of the "Kill a Communist for Christ" movement. Obviously attuned to a college audience, they will remain for the clambake and other activities.

All day Friday will be spent at the White House Inn bowling, swimming, and drinking. The senior banquet will be held that evening. Class night activities and dancing will round off the day.

By holding class night on Friday instead of the usual Saturday, the evening can last long after midnight for those who wish to prolong the good spirits.

The day before commencement will be spent as a casual tension reliever at Forest Lake. Swimming, food, games, and a band for dancing will provide plenty of activity. The heat of the June day will be relieved by a great quantity of free "popular beverages."

That evening, rather than the formality of class night; seniors will be able to relax around a bonfire and listen to folk singer Judy Collins.

Senior Week activities are free to all seniors. A large budget and the imagination of a hard-working program committee promise a fun-filled week, a great finish to undergraduate years at UMass.

In order to meet administrative demands on money matters, seniors who wish to participate must make reservations and a $2 deposit (which will be refunded to all who attend) at the Student Union ticket window by Friday, April 21. Remember, dates are not necessary for Senior Week—so plan now to go and don't miss the fun!

Summer School Enrollment To Increase Fifteen Percent

by LESLIE LEVINE

The University of Massachusetts expects 6,000 students to attend its 1967 summer school sessions. This figure is an increase of 15% over last summer. Of this expected number, 300 students will be swing-shift freshmen.

At a recent meeting, Mr. Kenneth Suid, coordinator of special programs, announced the start of three trial courses of study to be offered in June.

The first two of these courses will provide intensive training in the Russian and Chinese languages.

The third program will offer field training in archæology to qualified students. It will take place this year in Ohio.

The basic structure of the summer school program will be the same as in former years. Anyone desiring further information is advised either to obtain a copy of the U Mass summer school bulletin, available in the Registrar's office in South College, or to contact Mr. Suid, also in South College.

To: Class of 1969

Re: Elections

It has become apparent to me while working on the executive council of our class, for the past two years, that the office of the Vice President should be filled with a person able to handle the responsibility of that office. The Vice President, as a member and co-ordinator of all class activities and sub-committees, must have a will of his own as well as the ability to work with others. Through my work on the various class of 1969 activities I feel I have that ability as well as the ambition to be your Vice President. It is for this reason that I am announcing my candidacy for Vice President of the class of 1969.

Peter Lewenberg
144 Gorman House
546-6436

Thursday 13th Movie:
"Good times, Wonderful Times" Hasbrouck 20
8:00 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. adm. 50¢

Panel Discussion:
"The War and the Individual—
What Must Be Done?
with: Rick Margolels, non cooperator with the draft Victor Aronow and Richard Shortt, co-chairmen of
Students for Political Action
Norfolk Room — 9:30 p.m.

Friday 14th Teach - In South Patio of Student Union or S.B.A. 120
Speakers! Poetry Reading! Rock 'n Roll band!
A happening! 4 p.m. until . . .

Saturday 15th: DEMONSTRATION IN NEW YORK
Bus tickets on sale in Union Lobby

Sponsored by
Students for Political Action

WEEK

PARKING . . .

(Continued from page 1)

the central campus.

Traffic on Ellis Drive and other campus roads will be retricted, open to general traffic only for special occasions. In the final plan, no vehicles except service vehicles will be allowed lege and Boyden.

At this time, plans are not expected to affect dormitory parking, and parking for visitors will be provided in an administration parking lot.

The reduction in parking space and change in the campus design will probably mean changes in parking priorities and vehicle-ownership regulations, but no specific information is available, as plans for regulations have not yet been formulated.

TONIGHT

U. S. Heavyweight Championship Bout

Frank Scarpa vs. Bull Montana

$2.00 — TICKETS AVAILABLE AT DOOR — $2.00

Proceeds to benefit Campus Chest

CURRY HICKS CAGE 8:30 P. M.

ROBERT M. HUTCHINS LECTURE
at
D.U.P. CORRECTION
8:00 P.M.
WED., APRIL 12

"Keito of Amherst"
Now Cooks at
The Florence Inn
17 North Maple St.
Northampton (Florence)
Italian-American Food
Pizza-Grinders
Open 'til Midnight
1:00 a.m. Fridays

Despa Press Soon to Publish Work of Former UMass Student

by JANE ROLAND
Staff Reporter

Mendy Mendowitz died trying to make up his mind what ice cream flavor to buy. His story has been told by Joseph Krausman, a former UMass student, in the play The Ice Cream Parlor, soon to be published in a book called The Ice Cream Parlor and Other Mechanical Plays.

The book is to be published by a newly organized, local group calling itself "Despa' Press." It is the first publication of the Press which has been formed, according to Secretary Judith Mostek, "For the purpose of publishing local authors for the local audience.

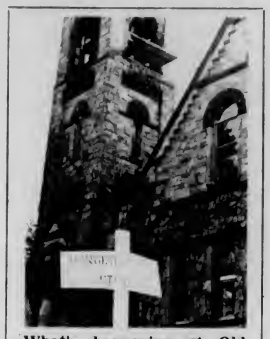
"We want to put quality printed works of Valley authors into the hands of the Valley audience to whom these authors have proved popular. Our Object is not profit, but helping local, un-published writers get a start."

Krausman, the author of the plays, calls them mechanical because each features some mechanical device around which the action takes place.

Krausman was born in Brooklyn where he attended the local schools. After two years in the army, he went to Brooklyn College, majoring in Chemistry and History.

After teaching history for a number of years Krausman did odd jobs: employment interviewer, Yiddish teacher, toy salesman, pepper-jar filler, etc.

In June, 1964 he came to UMass, studying Philosophy and fiction, and has since studied at Mt. Holyoke, the Valley Film Center, and Smith College, where he was MCA Fellow in Playwriting.



Krausman's plays have been staged at UMass, Smith, and the Colony Club, and he has published in the Anthology of American College Poetry and various little magazines.

Krausman, of 29 Belmont Avenue, Northampton, is currently writing a movie script, completing a musical—and unemployed.

The Despa' Press is located at 11 Michelman Avenue in Northampton. Publication of the plays is set for mid-April for a limited edition of 500 copies selling at $1.75 apiece.

WMUA to Begin News in Depth

Tonight WMUA will inaugurate a new concept in radio reporting. The 6:30 report will feature an in depth summary of the news of the day. In addition, each night there will be a number of feature stories looking behind the headlines at the why's and wherefores of the day's news.

What's happening at Old Chapel? See Friday's paper for full details.

The 6:30 report will also feature a greatly expanded coverage of Campus events gathered by staff correspondents of WMUA.

In keeping with the in depth concept of their show, there will be interviews each night with the people who are making the news on campus and throughout the state.

Hosts of the half hour Monday through Friday report are Charlie Lawrence and Bill Bastable, two of the most experienced members of the WMUA staff.

Charlie, a Springfield native, has been chief announcer and program director of WMUA. He has worked professionally as a disc jockey at WSPR under the name of Bob Lawrence and at WTXL. He has also done educational work at WFCR. Charlie hopes to go on to work in the field of TV news.

Bill Bastable is also currently the host of the "Swinging Saturday" on WMUA. He too works professionally at WFCR. He is from the Amherst area and plans eventually to go into film production work.

"Hot Line"
545-2550

Sophmores to Help Conduct Model Socratic Discussions

Robert M. Hutchins, Mortimer Adler, and Milton Mayer will conduct model Socratic discussions with 24 UMass Sophomores on April 13 and April 14 in Mahar Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Hutchins, Adler, and Mayer have been associated with the Great Books Foundation. Mr. Hutchins, former president and ex-chancellor at the University of Chicago, and Dr. Adler, director of the Institute of Philosophical Research in Chicago, instituted the Socratic method of Great Books teaching at Chicago.

Milton Mayer, who arranged the program, teaches Masterpieces of Western Literature, a required Sophomore course at UMass.

The development of a point by the question-and-answer device characterizes the Socratic method. Socrates believed man learns best what he recognizes for himself.

Thursday, April 13, the first 12-member panel will discuss Plato's Apology and Crito with Mr. Hutchins and Milton Mayer. Panelists are Rainey Beck, Jane Tracey, Linda Pomeroy, Paula Dubin, Michael Greenblat, Joseph Kuzdzal, Carol Herzberg, Jane Criticos, James Bauder, Shepard Golub, Richard F. Ray, and Michael Smith, Jr.

Discussing the Declaration of Independence and the Communist Manifesto on Friday, April 14, will be Sophomores Anthony Roubound, Priscilla Stewart, Guenter Loeser, Stephen Shechy, Carol Johnston, Douglas Walker, Ann Glassman, George Moser, Donald Hunsberger, Michael McGrath, Joan Ashley, and Eileen O'Sullivan.

The students, who were recommended by their Sophomore English instructors, met briefly with Milton Mayer last month to divide into the two panels and answer procedural questions. Mr. Mayer told the students their only obligation was a thoughtful reading of the two short pieces.

Metawampe Award Votes Now Being Tabulated

by DON EATON

Nominations for the fifth annual Metawampe Award are in the process of being tabulated, it was announced today by Bob Fleischman, '67, Chairman of the Metawampe Award Committee.

Over 100 nominations were received during the voting which took place the week of March 20th, in the Student Union lobby. The task of the committee, which is comprised of the Presidents of the four classes and six distinguished seniors, is to evaluate the results and select the recipient from those nominated by the students.

The Metawampe Award, which was first established by the Class of 1963, is a $1,000 gift ($250 from each class) presented to a member of the faculty based on his outstanding classroom teaching plus his extra-curricular activities.

This award differs from the Distinguished Teacher Award in that the Distinguished Teacher Award is for outstanding work INSIDE the classroom.

Past winners of the Award were: Dr. John H. Mitchell in 1966, Professor Joseph S. Marcus in 1965, Dr. Henry L. Varley in 1964, and the late Professor Albert Maderia, the first recipient in 1963.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS

There will be a bus Sat., April 8, going to Belchertown State School for all those who are interested in working with the mentally retarded. The bus leaves the North Commons parking lot at 1:20 and stops at the Newman Center at 1:25. New Volunteers needed and welcome.

BOB JOYCE
for
PRESIDENT '69
Experienced—
Sophomore Exec Council
Winter Carni Committee
An Idea Man!

THE NEW BREED

A new frontier imposes a natural process of selection. You can meet the people that you would see on top of a high ski run which had no chair left, and you can do it without the effort of climbing.....just let gravity take its course: it's all downhill at the PARACHUTES' INCORPORATED CENTERS.

The Centers are staffed and equipped to put you out on your first jump immediately following a time-tested four hour period of instruction. ($35 for everything involved in making the jump.) Safety is insured through the use of automatically opening main parachutes, FAA approved ten-place jump aircraft (your entire class jumps together), radio communication to the student, all-sand drop zones, and constant, overall supervision by professional instructors both in the aircraft and on the ground. (92,600 jumps to date, over 9,200 of which were first jump students)

For further details, write:

ORANGE SPORT PARACHUTING CENTER
POST OFFICE BOX 96
ORANGE, MASSACHUSETTS 01364

Tel. 617-544-6911

LAKEWOOD SPORT PARACHUTING CENTER
POST OFFICE BOX 258
LAKEWOOD, NEW JERSEY 08701

Tel. 201-363-4900

PI

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Collegian Policy Statement

Vietnam

We believe that the United States should not have set foot on the soil of Vietnam. Those who use the rationale which states that we are containing communism by "stopping it cold" in Vietnam are either blinding themselves to or are ignorant of the ways and progress of Communism. The manic fear that we must prevent Russia and/or China from infecting the entire world with Communism is as ridiculous as is the contention that a free democracy, U.S. style, is what is truly right for every nation.

For this country to think of pursuing the policy of world protector for every nation whose future ideology is in question is both imperialistic dictation and national suicide. It is also equally ridiculous to assume that the loss of Vietnam represents a threat to our own national security.

However, it unfortunately is an undeniable fact that this country has committed its manpower, honor, prestige and world influence to keeping South Vietnam "free." Because of this vast and lengthy commitment, the United States cannot, in the light of all its pledges and propaganda, walk out of Saigon tonight and hope that Ho Chi Minh will be reciprocally magnanimous and stay to the North of the established borders. We do not feel that this is realistic, but we do feel that such a crude thing as war should not be continued unless all paths to peace have been exhausted. To perpetuate a war because of prestige or fear of world embarrassment is egomanical.

The one-time precious gift of life should not be stolen for something as unnecessary as this war. And every day spent in formulating pat political prestige policies wastes the lives of young American and Vietnamese soldiers who have been denied the opportunity to fulfill a normal life span.

We therefore urge President Johnson to implement an immediate halt to all hostilities in Vietnam for an extended period of time. We further urge him to make full use of the advice and service of U Thant and the United Nations General Assembly. Thant has spoken of personal guarantees from Ho Chi Minh, the exact details of which few Americans are aware. It is unlikely that Thant would lie. The Secretary-General has also been quoted indirectly as saying that President Johnson bears some responsibility for frustrating serious peace movements.

* *

With thousands dying every week for a cause whose validity is highly dubious, we implore President Johnson to follow the above steps —steps which may lead to a settlement. Certainly omnipresent is the possibility that, while we halt hostilities and attempt negotiations, North Vietnam will be rebuilding, attacking, and making strong military gains. Our first sincere peace effort may indeed be thwarted. At least we will have made the sincere effort.

Should the effort fail, it is unlikely that the ceasefire would significantly jeopardize our superior forces, and it might enhance the possibility of increased aid from other parts of the world.

But now, let us try the untried. Thant and most of the world believe an extended halt in U.S. hostilities would lead us to an honorable peace. We believe, in the eyes of humanity, this is the truly sane course this great nation must pursue.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP
CPS
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS AP

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

Wednesday's Day Editors: News—Janet Caroprese '68; Photo—Paul Cihelka; Sports—Steve Lotterman '70

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.
Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Dissenting Opinions Are

America, Practice What You Preach

by GORDON A. DAVIDSON, Senior Reporter

The war in Vietnam is a colossal lie being presented to the American public by a government using democratic ideals to justify a totalitarian foreign policy. The mass media has been instrumental in glorification of the war by serving as the mouthpiece for the administration's mouthings on our heroes fighting for "democracy" against "foreign agression."

The Washington administration seems to have evolved from an organ of, by, and for the people to a Big Brother power able to manipulate information, public opinion and the people of this country into situations where we are at war by executive order.

But there are those Americans who have not been mesmerized by the mass media into thinking they are informed and have taken time to dig into the facts of the war. These are the people who are speaking, writing and demonstrating against a war which so outrageously violates the ideals of democracy and freedom. What are some of the facts of the war?

Election Interference

The "freedom" of the South Vietnamese people to determine their own form of government by vote was promised in the Geneva Accords of 1954. Because these people would have willingly chosen communism, they never got a chance to vote. Instead the U.S. supported an anti-communist totalitarian (Diem) who denied the people elections for nearly nine years, because he would have been defeated in an honest vote. When the elections were finally held in September 1966, only pro-U.S. candidates were allowed to run, excluding even neutralists! Is this the democracy we are fighting for?

The "foreign agressors" Washington claims we are fighting the people who have been fighting against supression for over 30 years, first against French colonialism, and now against American "democracy". The basic problem is that the U.S. suffers from the chronic inability to recognize the legitimacy of national revolutionary movements. The great tragedy of American foreign policy is that the U.S. administration cannot escape the myth that those in the National Liberation Front are robots being manipulated from North Vietnam and or/Communist China.

Our Anti-communist Policy

Once the idealistic propaganda has been eliminated, the real reasons for our involvement can be discussed. The U.S. is engaged in a foreign policy based blindly and relentlessly on anti-Communism. There need be no other justification for subversion, murder, lies and deceit of the public other than it is for the purpose of stopping communism. But in this fight for our system and values, we are destroying what we are defending by our methods more thoroughly than any communist threat.

Our allies view us with fear and distrust, not blinded to the monstrous gap between our ideals and our actions, as are most Americans. They see the hypocrisy of our "peace offensives" followed by wholesale escalation of the war. They are not deaf to the screams of children roasted by napalm, echoing our promises of a life free from oppression and hunger. They are not blind to our rigged elections, and our support of any corrupt and totalitarian regime as long as it is anti-communist.

But are our actions justified by the threat of communism? Is it that great a threat? William Zinn, a government professor at Boston University in his forthcoming book, Vietnam: The Logic of Withdrawal, states that communism is not so terrible a threat, and that we need a basic change is our foreign policy. He feels that communist nations are as nationalistic as democratic ones and resist domination by any nation, capitalistic or communist. As an example he mentions North Korea which recently announced its independence from both China and Russia, even though it is hemmed in on both sides by those nations.

Zinn feels a strong united communist Vietnam would be more able to resist the attempts of China to build influence there, than a weak, militarily supported democratic government.

The U.S. must do something to close the reality gap between the ideals which are mouthed to its own people and the world, and the actuality of what is happening in Vietnam. The U.S. must formulate a foreign policy based on the ideals of freedom, democracy, and self-determination, not on anti-communism. The U.S. must make a complete withdrawal from Vietnam, or change its hypocritical posture and state its true goal of building an anti-communist empire. It is time for America to put down the "democratic man's burden" of giving democracy to everyone whether they want it or not, and to take up the burden of freedom and self-determination in practice.

It is up to the students of today to honestly examine basic American foreign policy and take up the burden of changing it to conform to the ideals which we profess, or change the ideals which we express to conform to reality.

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

A UMie eagerly speaks his mind into the microphone at yesterday's Open Soapbox Debate in front of the Student Union.

UMass Grad Returns from Vietnam; Explains Views on Military Journalism

by TOM DONOVAN
Senior Reporter

"The whole war at times seems a farce." So says Richard Haynes, former military correspondent for the Army's Stars and Stripes newspaper.

After six months in Vietnam attached to the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, Haynes had some definite feelings about military journalists, the Army and the War.

The former UMass student claimed that while a military journalist's primary duty is "to present the Army in its most favorable light", the cooperation between the Army Public Information Office and the civilian press corps is exemplified by the Army's motto: "Maximum disclosure, minimum delay".

Haynes also noted, "They [military reporters] are not responsible to the public . . . they are responsible to the Army. It is just like public relations work for any other business."

To train soldier-reporters, Haynes related, the Army maintains an eight-week Defense Information School in Benjamin Harris, Indiana.

The school, running nine hours daily, includes such courses as international relations, radio-television production, oral research and communication, applied journalism, and policy and planning.

Regarding policy and planning courses, Haynes held that the Army uses them to "influence" the trainee. Here is where the Army trains a military journalist to present the Army in its best light, he stated.

Lastly, Haynes attempted to evaluate his feelings toward the war itself.

"There is no middle in Vietnam. It is all one way or it's all the other," he qualified.

However, he does have a definite viewpoint: "I am in favor of the war. It is good for the economy. The American taxpayer is getting his money's worth from our men in Vietnam."

Numerous and Varied

No Other Alternative

by JACK DEAN, Managing Editor

On a train ride to a collegiate press convention in Philadelphia last fall, Prof. Patrick Dreegan of the London School of Economics made an interesting observation during a discussion about the youth of America: "They see everything as being either all black or all white, ignoring the possibility that shades of gray might even exist." This statement seems well-suited to the small but vociferous YI-SDS-SPA on campus, and indeed to all the "liberal" or "new left" groups across the nation who are dominating the country's political action.

For the most part, the liberals have labeled the war "immoral and unnecessary" and the conservatives see it as "moral and necessary." The possibility that the war is "immoral but necessary" has practically been ignored.

The problem of the war's morality is perhaps the simplest to deal with, for no war has ever been nor ever will be moral. The Crusades were not, and our two World Wars were not, even though the cause may have been "just" in the eyes of the participants. The charge of immorality is weak indeed, and is a good example of some of the poor arguments being used particularly by those who are merely jumping on the protest bandwagon. However, while it is ridiculous to argue the obvious, it is even more so for anyone to defend the war by claiming it is moral—that our main purpose is to free the South Vietnamese from oppression so that they may govern themselves democratically.

This is an argument that the liberals tear to pieces at every possible opportunity. How, they ask, do we know that the South Vietnamese wouldn't rather live under communism?

In reality, our main objective in South Vietnam is to block the spread of communism in widening circles throughout Southeast Asia and beyond. Our first concern, in keeping with our foreign policy, is the active containment of communism. This has been called "neo-colonialism" by some.

The political welfare of the South Vietnamese must, sadly enough, be relegated to second place. And it's definitely time we ignored world opinion and started to look out for our own interests.

Faulty Compassion

Another topic of the morality argument is, naturally, the bombing in the demilitarized zone and in North Vietnam itself. While there seems to be no justification for the use of napalm, it is ridiculous to argue for the cessation of bombing military supply routes on humanitarian grounds. There is little question of its necessity if we are to protect our own position in the South. And it is a sad fact of war that the civilian populace often has to suffer.

A recent article by NEA's Washington Correspondent Bruce Biossat pointed out the ambiguity in the liberal's concern for the North Vietnamese civilians: "Their compassion seems to be divisible. They appear to say that the kinds of death they find emotionally abhorrent (by bombing or napalm) are somehow worse than other kinds. Yet the guns and knives of the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong manage to kill tens of thousands of free men just as thoroughly."

According to U.S. News and World Report (Jan. '67), the number of civilians killed by attacks of the National Liberation Front (NLF) and the North Vietnamese regulars operating in the South since 1957 has amounted to 11,000 counted, and many more thousands uncounted. Thousands have been maimed in deliberate terrorist forays and more than 40,000 people have been kidnapped, some never to be seen again.

It is also interesting to note that these so-called "liberators" are concentrating their efforts particularly on village civic and political leaders. Thousands of teachers, village headsmen, elders, nuns and priests have been murdered in order to destroy the possibility of building effective civil government. These lives are not any less important than those being lost accidentally in the North by our bombing.

Stop Bombing

In the few days that the U.S. halted bombing during the lunar new year, aerial photos were taken of mass movements of men and supplies from the North. Any cessation of bombing now would only provide the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong another breathing period in which to prepare more offensives against the South. But perhaps we should give it a try if for no other reason than to prove once and for all that such an arrangement will result in nothing more than an increased flow of men and supplies into the South.

Is it any wonder that even the leaders of the West find it hard to understand that, being without morals (Lenin: "We say that our morality is wholly to the interest of the class struggle of the proletariat."), communists act on the assumption that it is not only their right, but their duty to lie, kill, cheat, break agreements, be conciliatory or harsh, threaten or plead, promise or retract to gain their objectives? (Frank L. Kluckholn, The Naked Rise of Communism)

The NLF, by the way, is not the simple group of South Vietnamese patriots that some would have us believe. This organization was, according to former USIA official Douglas Pike, sprung full-bloom upon the South Vietnamese countryside—a masterpiece of organizational skills far beyond the talents of untutored but complaining southern villagers.

In his book, Viet Cong, he cites a memorandum of Hanoi's Lao Dong (Communist) party, proposing an NLF for the south — and itself as an organizing member. Grievances did not produce the NLF. The NLF exploited and organized grievances.

W W II Parallel

There is an amazing parallel between the events that led to WWII and the present conflict in Vietnam. The dictators are different, and the setting has shifted from Europe to Asia. But once again we are battling aggressors whose main purpose is to destroy the Free World.

Chamberlain learned the hard lesson that dictators' appetites merely grow with appeasement. To insist that the U. S. should stop bombing North Vietnam even before Hanoi has agreed to peace negotiations is no better than Chamberlain's tactics. There is no logical reason to assume that Hanoi and Peking no longer wish to "bury" us. Communist ideology has not changed so radically from the days of the rise of Mao Tse Tung as some would have us believe; and as we have seen in the past, "peaceful coexistence" is in effect only as long as it is to the advantage of the communist bloc.

How we got in Vietnam, and whether or not we should be there, are questions that can be kicked around endlessly. The big question right now, however, is what we are going to do about our present situation.

We have no other alternative but to continue on our present course, i.e., to try to bring Hanoi to the bargaining table by wielding force in one hand and offering an olive branch in the other. We must demonstrate to Hanoi and Peking that our commitment is solid, and that we will not withdraw simply because the guerilla tactics they are employing tend to give the impression that the war will never end. We must demonstrate that the U. S. is dedicated enough to persevere, or we shall have to begin retreating on all perimeters before a steady advance of communism.

Pacifists ask how long we can maintain ourselves in Vietnam. But in the face of overwhelming military force, how long can North Vietnam maintain itself in the South?

HELICHOPPER HURRICANE—Troops seek shelter from sniper bullets as well as dust and debris stirred up by helicopters landing additional members of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division in a dry canal some eight miles west of Saigon. The soldiers searched for guerrilla units that have capacity for bombarding Saigon with six-mile-range 140mm rockets. (AP Wirephoto)

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kelly

A student at the rear of the crowd raises an objection during yesterday's open soapbox debates in front of the Student Union.

Kinds of Draft Resistance

by JOHN C. WESTON, Associate Professor of English

I do not wish in these remarks to urge any student to resist the draft. I wish to make it quite clear right away that I am not recommending draft resistance, for I think it awkward if not unseemly to urge upon draft-age youth a course of action which requires considerable courage when by being beyond draft age I could not follow my own counsel if I were to give it. But I find no objection to stimulating debate and thought by presenting theories and facts about draft. I would like to list and discuss briefly all the grounds which seem to me legitimate for refusing to serve in the military today even though not all of them are recognized by the courts as legal grounds for deferment.

First there are the pacifists; those who, in the spirit of, say, Christ or Socrates, oppose organized violence, those who believe that all wars are immoral.

1. THE RELIGIOUS PACIFISTS. This group has for a long time been allowed by the government to avoid military service, although in times of great peril and distrust their lives have often been made miserable. This group believes that God's law forbids participation in any war whatsoever.

2. THE NON-RELIGIOUS PACIFISTS. These think about war in the same way as the previous group, but their reasons for doing so are different. Here man's moral law is substituted for God's law. A non-theist, an agnostic, a humanist can belong to this group. Religion, this group believes, is not the only justification for pacifism. The human moral law as clearly as God's forbids war of any kind, so this group believes. The courts are now beginning to interpret "religious" broadly enough to allow deferment for those who do not base their pacifism on religious affiliation or conviction or even belief in a deity. Indeed, a requirement of belief in a deity is in the thought of many clearly unconstitutional.

Next there are two groups who, while not opposing all wars, oppose unjust wars and refuse to serve in them. There are two kinds, although there must be an overlap here. They both agree that a war is unjust if the end is immoral (for instance, the protection of a small and oppressive landowning class) or if the means are immoral (for instance, bombing civilians with napalm) even though in the service of a moral end.

3. NON-PACIFIST RELIGIOUS OBJECTORS TO UNJUST WARS. There is a long religious tradition of making a distinction between just wars and unjust wars. The Roman Catholic Church particularly makes this distinction, but so have many Protestant theologians in various times. A Roman Catholic might well take Pope Paul's repeated calls for an end to this particular war in Vietnam (in spite of the more conservative views of the American hierarchy) as an implied view that this war in unjust. The repeated similar declarations of the World Council of Churches (even though it does not claim to represent anyone but itself) might well speak to a Protestant in the same way. A Jew might receive the same message from the many declarations of societies of rabbis.

4. NON-PACIFIST, NON-RELIGIOUS OBJECTORS TO UNJUST WARS. To the left of this group are those who sympathize with the objectives of the National Liberation Front and who do not believe the assertions of the present Administration. They argue that the war which the N.L.F. is fighting is a civil war in which we have no right to intervene militarily. Also in this group are those who believe not only in the legality but the general moral truth of the Nuremburg Charter, which in trying Nazi war criminals after World War II established that individuals are guilty of crimes in war even if they are acting under official orders. War in this view does not do away with moral culpability. These people believe that the U.S. is committing inhuman crimes in Vietnam and that they neither want the moral guilt of participation in them nor the prospect of being tried after the war by an international tribunal for such crimes.

7. Emotional Objectors. This group merely disagrees with the efficacy of U.S. foreign policy. not accomplish what it intends tends is not in the best interests They believe that the war will to accomplish or that what it in- of the United States.

5. Pragmatic Objectors. This This group is perhaps divided between (a) those who, while not objecting to a voluntary military establishment, believe that the Government has no constitutional right to force people to become soldiers under any circumstances and (b) those who feel that since this war is illegal (undeclared and unauthorized by Congress or in violation of the U. N. Charter) the draft that serves it is also illegal.

6. Constitutional Objectors. group has no moral, religious, pragmatic, or legal objection to the draft. People in this group are untheoretical. They simply have a repugnance to killing and being killed, a kind of simple horror of murdering and being murdered. They don't even necessarily think that killing or dying is morally bad. They just don't like it. This group might conquer its fear and distastes if they could be convinced that the situation threatened themselves and their families. In the present state of affairs, they see no threat offered to their homes by the many varieties of Asian communism, socialism or nationalism.

8. Patriotic Objectors. Those in this group base their stand on their understanding of the American heritage. They claim that the present war violates the most central tenets of American tradition by being a war of aggression, by being directed against a movement of national liberation in contradiction to the principles of our Revolution, and by brutalizing American values of humanity.

These categories are not meant to be exclusive, for most objectors find themselves in a number of these groups. But I think this list covers the reasons for objecting to the draft at present.

Greek Evangelical Church Founder to Speak Friday

On Friday evening Mr. Michael Kantartjis, of Thessalonica, Greece, who is now studying in this country, will speak on the topic, "A Sovereign God on the University Campus?".

Mr. Kantartjis graduated from Gordon College and is now attending Gordon Divinity School. In June, he will return to Greece under the Overseas Crusades. He will be involved in missions work in Macedonia, in the northern part of Greece.

Having been in California recently on deputation, Mr. Kantartjis is now touring the East Coast. Four years ago he founded the Greek Evangelical Church in Boston. It has since grown to be the largest Greek Evangelical Church outside Greece.

(Continued on page 10)

NOTICES

CHEMISTRY SEMINAR
Dr. H. G. Langer, of Dow Chemical Co., will speak on "Mass Spectrometic Thermal Analysis" on Thurs., April 13, at 4:30 P.M. in Goessman 152.

AMHERST STAMP CLUB
The Annual Dinner meeting will be held on Thurs., April 13, at the S.U. Club exhibit will be in Middlesex Room, at 8 P.M., Lt. Comm. Henry M. Dater, U.S.N.R. will talk and show slides of Antarctica. Interested visitors are welcome.

MANAGEMENT CLUB
On Thurs., April 13, from 7-9 P.M. in SBA 104 all freshmen, sophomores and juniors are invited to attend a student-faculty meeting. An informal discussion with management faculty will follow and refreshments will be served.

HILLEL
On April 16 at 2:00 P.M. in Council Chambers B, all those planning to take part in the Morgan Memorial Project must attend the meeting or contact John Robinson, 6-6543.

The showing of the movie Exodus originally scheduled for tonight has been unavoidably cancelled.

HILLEL-PASSOVER MEALS
Forms and payment for Passover meals must be brought to the Hillel office by April 14. Anyone who has not received a notice may get one there.

On Friday, April 14, at 7 P.M. in Worcester Room, Dr. Larry Kerpelman of the Psychology Dept. will speak on "Open Minds, Closed Minds," at the regular Friday evening service.

STUDENT SENATE
The Student Senate will meet this evening in the S.U. Council Chambers at 7 P.M. Students, faculty and other members of the University community are invited to attend.

ART CLUB
On April 16, at 7:45 P.M. in Memorial Hall Aud., there will be an art club meeting and "another one", an unexpected night.

ASTRONOMY CLUB
On April 13 at 8:15 P.M. in Hasbrouck Lab, there will be a general meeting to discuss activities for the spring.

SPEED READING
The last session of the speed reading course will be offered on Monday and Tuesday from 7-8 P.M. from April 3rd thru May 2nd, in Room 125, Education Building.

SPA
Monday-Friday, all day at S.U. Lobby there is a literature table, plus information on how to get round-trip tickets to New York for $5 to attend the Mobilization for Peace in N.Y.

On Thurs., April 13 at 8:30 P.M. i
Norfolk Room there will be a discussio on "The War and the Individual—Wha must be done". Panellists are Rick Mar golies, Victor Aranow, and Dick Short.

On Thurs., April 13 at 8:00 & 9:3
P.M. in Hasbrouck 20 the film "Goo Times, Wonderful Times" will be shown
Admission is 50¢.

On Friday, April 14, from 4:00 on a
South Patio, S.U. there will be a hug
Happening-Teach-In on the edge of th
Duck Pond, with political speakers poetry readings and live bands, plu many surprises.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
On April 12 at 7:30 P.M. in Wope
it is the for fun and frolic and all sort of things, along with some dancing. Al welcome.

LOST:
Large silver ring and two bangl bracelets lost in first floor ladies roo in Bartlett on Mon., March 20. Senti mental value; call 6-8483. Reward.

Would the person who picked up m
Spanish book, math book (College alge bra) and notebook, please return them to me. Call 6-8438.

FOUND:
Medical alert medallion, allergic t
penicillin. No. 155769. Contact S.U. Lost & Found.

PINNINGS:
Helen A. Rosser, class of '70, Towe
4, to M. Joseph DeCosta, class of '69,
Tower 5.

Marti Sheffield, class of '69, Dwight, to Andy Michaud, class of '68, Baker.

Karen D. Peterson, class of '70, Van Meter South, to Edward J. Kerwin, class of '70, Grayson.

Diane M. Laxar, class of '67, Tri Sigma, to Thomas F. Houston, class of '67, Stockbridge.

Joyce Brooks, class of '69, Field, to Steven Files, class of '68, Webster.

Nancy Fisher, class of '69, Alpha Chi Omega, to Hank Lombardelli, class of
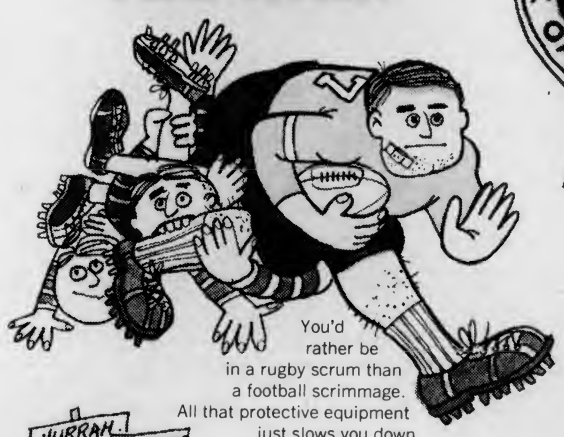
'68, Theta Chi.



Leali James, class of '68, Alpha Chi
Omega, to Peter Welanetz, class of '68,
LCA, Bucknell University.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Joanne Vaughan, class of '68, Dickinson, to Ted Pease, class of '68, APO.

The Inter-Fraternity Sing Concert will be held on Monday,
April 17 at 8:00 p.m.
in the S.U. Ballroom
FREE ADMISSION
also
Entertainment by the ZUMBYES of Amherst College

STUDENT SENATE ELECTIONS
LIVE on WMUA from 7:00 on
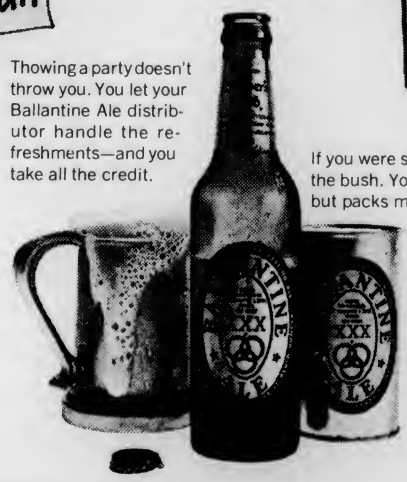
91.1 FM

How to tell if you're an Ale Man



You'd rather be in a rugby scrum than a football scrimmage. All that protective equipment just slows you down.

You discovered the Tolkien books ages before they were published in paperbacks. Frodo lives!

Thowing a party doesn't throw you. You let your Ballantine Ale distributor handle the refreshments—and you take all the credit.

If you were selling Ballantine Ale you wouldn't beat around the bush. You'd tell people that it's light like beer—but packs more taste. You'd give them a whiff of that tangy aroma—and let them sell themselves on that clean, dry, tangy taste. You'd have them graduating from beer in no time. More power to you!

Dedicated to the sensible proposition that the only way to tell if you're an Ale Man is to try our Ale. P. Ballantine & Sons, Newark, N. J.

You aren't dreaming about taking a student tour of Europe next summer. You're being paid to lead one.

You think good grades are for the birds. The birds who get ahead.

As far as you're concerned, the button fad has gone too far. The only buttons you wear are the kind that come with your suit.

Fifth Lecture In Religion Series

by NANCY BOURGOIN
Staff Reporter

Chaplain Dean Ferm spoke on "Religion & the New Morality" last Monday evening in the fifth lecture of a series presented by the Student Senate Affairs committee. Dr. Ferm's main theme stressed the neither black nor white policy of contemporary society, that is, the overwhelming greyness in decision-making.

This is the age of "vanishing absoluteness" in which modern youth profess a pragmatic attitude. He also mentioned that sex is not the only aspect involved in this revolutionary change. Chaplain Ferm expressed particular enthusiasm for the renewal of spirit prevalent in today's religion, artfully begun by Pope John in Roman Catholicism.

His opinion of this generation was hardly negativistic and he applauded such commendable youth efforts as the Peace Corps, and the poverty campaign.

He also contrasted American social trends with the culture of Sweden, speaking from his experience in spending a recent year there.

PANEL DISCUSSION
On Wednesday, April 12, at 6:30 P.M. in the Governor's Lounge, the International Club will sponsor a panel discussion entitled "Developing Countries and U.S. Foreign Policy", in which students will discuss U.S. foreign policy. Professor Gerald Braunthal, of the Government Dept., will be the moderator. The program is open to the public. Coffee hour will precede the discussion at 5:30 P.M.

NOTICE
Favors for
Playboy Night '67
will be exchanged for ticket stubs at the Student Union Ticket Office today through Monday.

PANEL DISCUSSION . . .

(Continued from page 1)

is a unified cultural process. The artists, who have had practical experience, are "conscious of the potentialities of human nature and go beyond the utilitarian purposes of the human body."

The world must not lose grasp of the past's artistic genius. At this point Prof. Benson noted the moral degeneration of American culture which has made the Vietnam crisis possible. This degeneration he expressed in terms of man's overconcern with physical reality.

People have become too dependent on science to solve their problems. He noted the spiritual barrenness of our times and the war in Vietnam as a manifestation of it.

During World War I deliberate lies were begun to deceive the public and obtain its support. Integrity was destroyed. Then Prof. Benson cited the credibility gap of President Johnson. This condition is typical of totalitarian state and is "reflected in commercial advertising.

Government policy in Vietnam is "incomprehensible morally" and efforts by intellectuals to remain neutral have "proved disastrous." There cannot "be two different levels of morality in politics and art."

The dependence on bombs to solve the problem is in accord with ignoring the spirit of the act. The enemy in the war has become dehumanized to sanction mass killing. Prof. Benson believes the "enemy must be trusted as human beings."

In his opinion prospects for improvement will not be possible until man turns inward and works on his moral nature as much as he seeks to subdue the world. Quoting from Plato Prof. Benson concluded, "The unexamined life is not worth living."

The next to speak was Prof. Soltysik who investigated the role of the scientist in war. He sees that the ability of the scientists to destroy and create puts them in a position to make choices: "Shall we use the atom bomb? napalm? "Man is godlike if he makes choices," but he noted when man is fearful, he is unable to aspire to be godlike.

In the discussion period Prof. Soltysik remarked that "People's fears of God have been replaced by fear of government." Value judgments must be made or one is not acting human.

When a project involves a potent chemical to be used for war, the scientist has the choice to use his talents. Yet it is not always obvious that he should not. During World War II scientists felt morally obligated to create the atom bomb, because they thought the Germans were in this process.

The problem is where power does not lie with individuals, but in big government, like in the ICBM program. Yet talent must still be recruited and the criteria for the decision to participate should be based on one's concept of what is "right".

The professor quoted Albert Einstein on the need for "national vanity" for war support. He asked "What would be your attitude, if your father asked you to kill someone?", in regard to Vietnam. Again in closing he stressed the necessity that "choice must not be imposed, it must be of own mind."

Prof. Soltysik was followed by Prof. Meisner who continued the discussion of the scientist's role in war. He finds that the scientist is no different from the businessman or artist; everything is up to the individual. Unfortunately he is placed in a position where his actions have great consequences, and it is typical not to question morality of working on certain government projects.

Science on basic form is divorced from government policy on lower levels. On higher echelons for those who must ask for funds congressmen demand "loyalty" (Does one blindly follow dictates of government?" He cited cases like that of Linus Pauling, Nobel Peace Prize winner, in which scientists are investigated by HUAC for disagreeing with U. S. governmental policy in Vietnam.

Thus scientists must be careful, or risk losing the financing of their personal research. The government gives money in return for favors of research; but "when people feel they are bastardizing science, they will choose not to subvert talents to government."

Prof. Meisner conjectures that the increase of scientists in politics "may have beneficial effects for morality in government policy," but the regeneration required must result from "the overthrow of our economic and social systems.

SOAP BOX DEBATE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

ed, liked the idea of the outdoor forum. In the words of one coed, "I think it's a good ieda. I'm all for free speech and this shows a lot of interest on campus. But campus SPA.

it won't really prove anything."

According to another student, "It makes me feel apathetic — though I don't believe I am — when I hear the speakers talking. I want to do something about the situation in Vietnam, but I don't know what."

A chemical engineering major added that the group shouldn't condemn Dow chemical Corporation because if Dow didn't make napalm, someone else would.

"They should condemn the government, not the company. However, protest won't get anyone anywhere. The government won't change. It's a waste of time—they should study instead."

Another student replied that Soapbox wasn't for the purpose of changing the situation so much as encouraging debate on it. "I'm sort of scared that the idea of this informal discussion isn't taken more seriously by the students here.

"Many of them think it is corny or un-cool to participate in it. It frightens me that most of a generation should take a comical view of a situation in which free speech is made so obvious."

The Soapbox was planned as Tuesday's activity during this week — Spring Mobilization for Peace Week — sponsored by

THE BOTHER'S OF
LAMBDA CHI ALPHA CORDIALLY INVITE FRESHMEN & UPPERCLASSMEN TO OPEN SMOKERS ON WEDNESDAY 12th at 10:00
THURSDAY 13th at 8:00

if she doesn't give it to you . . .
—get it yourself!
JADE EAST®

Cologne, 6 oz., $4.50
After Shave, 6 oz., $3.50
Deodorant Stick, $1.75
Buddha Cologne Gift Package, 12 oz., $8.50
Spray Cologne, $3.50
Buddha Soap Gift Set, $4.00
Cologne, 4 oz., $3.00
After Shave, 4 oz., $2.50
SWANK, NEW YORK – SOLE DISTRIBUTOR

"Touch my face, Veronica.
Feel how my new Norelco Tripleheader with 18 amazing rotary blades,
3 floating Microgroove heads, sideburn trimmer, coil-cord, and on/off switch gave me a shave so close, you can match it with a blade."
"Ooooh, George. Do I dare?"
The Tripleheader 35T — fastest shaver on wheels

Here's the Norelco Rechargeable Speedshaver® 40C. Works with or without a plug. A single charge delivers twice as many shaves as any other rechargeable on the market. Shaves so close, we dare to match it with a razor blade. Pop-up trimmer. More features than any other shaver.
The Norelco Cordless 'Flip-Top' 20B (not shown) shaves anywhere on just 4 penlight batteries. Now with convenient battery ejector. Microgroove heads. Rotary blades. Snap-open wallet with mirror.
Norelco®—the close, fast, comfortable electric shave
©1967 North American Philips Company, Inc., 100 East 42nd Street, New York, New York

MASS. CLASSIFIED

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED—Insertions will be accepted by the following deadlines: for Monday paper—12 noon, Friday; for Wednesday paper—12 noon, Monday; for Friday paper—12 noon Wednesday. Cost $1.50 per 3 insertions under 25 words. (Other prices on request.)

HELP WANTED

Man wanted to work a few afternoons raking leaves, fertilizing lawns, etc. Call 253-9462 evenings.

Math major with strong interest in the subject. Fascinating opportunity to work as analyst reporting to top executive. G & M Employment Service, 145 State Street, Springfield, Mass. 739-1133.

Management trainees with interest in manufacturing. Excellent opportunity for young men looking to the future. G & M Employment Service, 145 State Street, Springfield. 739-1133.

FOR RENT

Pleasant rooms to rent. Furnished. Mile to campus. Near foot of Triangle at 502 Main. Immediate occupancy. Call Bob Dempsey (Northampton) 584-9690.

Summer rental — partly furnished 3 room apartment, next to campus. $95—utilities inc. Call 549-1245 between 7-9 p.m.

AUTOMOBILES

'56 Chev, new carb, new muffler, good tires. $50. Call 413-467-7437.

1965 MG-B light blue. Springtime special. Excellent condition. Never driven hard. Priced by mutual agreement. Call 586-1487. Ask for Carlene.

1962 Rambler American station wagon. Good running condition. Must sell. Radio, heater, 5 tires, new rebuilt engine, windshield wipers. Call Sam, 546-9125. Best offer.

OPPORTUNITIES

The U.N. has five official languages, U.N.E.S.C.O. has eight, the neutral international language abolishes this chaos. Join the Esperanto Club Wednesdays 8:30 Student Union.

Trainee—young man with good scholastic record to learn all functions of a leading industry. Training for a supervisory position. G & M Employment Service, 145 State Street, Springfield, Mass. 739-1133.

FOR SALE

1963 Vespa 125 cc 3 speed—only 6500 original miles, excellent condition one owner. Contact: Larry Martin, 253-3984.

Attn. A.F.R.O.T.C. winter & summer uniform, winter overcoat. Size 39L. Call 253-5969.

RCA 21-inch color TV in good condition. Will take best offer. Call 256-6846.

WANTED

Male or female student wanted to share an apartment in Paris, France, for the months of June, July, and August. Call Bob Wilson, 546-7865.

Male student is looking for partner for summer job cutting lawns in Amherst area. About $3 per hour. Call Bob, 665-3187 after 6:30.

UT Presents" Feiffer"

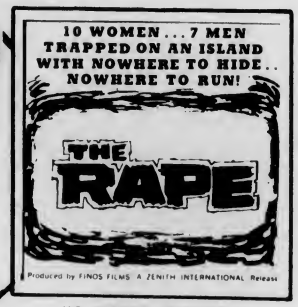
The University Theatre will present "Feiffer", an original Readers Theatre production based on the cartoons of Jules Feiffer, on April 13, 14, and 15 in Bartlett Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. There will be no admission charge.

Selections will include such popular favorites as Munro—the story of a four year old who gets drafted, Superman, and a review of the Bible.

The production style will be in keeping with the thoroughly modern, two-dimensional quality of the subject matter. Men will be dressed in black suits and women in white while character costumes, like superman's cape, will be suggested.

The setting will consist of stools arranged in front of a backdrop on which will be painted typical Feiffer caricatures. Further expression in terms of the modern idiom will be achieved through the medium of interpretive dance set to bongos.

The director, Jerry DeSpain of the Speech Dept., has staged similar productions at Denver Col. He feels that the rather simple means of Readers Theatre best capture and express the flavor of Feiffer's cartoons and that the production will hopefully achieve what all good theatre strives for—worthwhile and distinctively theatrical entertainment with a message.



This photo was taken at a rehearsal of "Feiffer" which will be presented free of charge by UT on April 13, 14, 15 in Bartlett Auditorium at 8:15 p.m.

S.U. Arts & Music Comm.
presents 4th program
FACULTY LECTURE SERIES
DORIS ABRAMSON
Speech Dept.
Negro plays Negro Problems

April 13	Thurs.
Colonial Lounge	8:00 p.m.
Refreshments

Onion Bagels, Pompernickel Bagels
Bagels of all sorts at the Hillel Bagel & Lox Brunch
Sunday, April 16 - 11 a.m.
Commonwealth Room
Hillel Members 35¢
Non Members 75¢

AMHERST Cinema
LATE SHOW
FRI. 11:30 P.M.
Not Part of Regular Show
All Seats $1.25

"A GREEK IMPORT"

Looking For Part-time Work

Pioneer Valley Cablevision is interested in talking to young men and women with initiative: preferably men with some electronics background and women with experience in office or telephone work. Not essential, however, as we will train. Pleasant working conditions and chance to participate in the development of a highly popular community service. Call 256-8348 for an appointment.

International Club Sponsors UN Tour

The University International Club will sponsor a trip to the U.N. Building in New York on Wed., April 19th. There are no classes that day due to the holiday.

Free transportation will be provided leaving from the S.U. Students will be required to pay the admission charge to the U.N. and for their dinner at the Delegates' Dining Room in the U.N. Restaurant, the cost of which will be $3.25 per person.

Reservations must be made before Fri., April 14th by calling either Minhaj Kirmani at 545-2508 up to 5 p.m. or 253-9664 after 5 p.m. or call Mary Daly at 1-665-2473.

The reservation can also be made by coming to weekly coffee hours of the International Club in the Governor's Lounge on Wed., April 12, between 5:30 and 7 p.m.

GREEK CHURCH . . .

(Continued from page 8)

Mr. Kantartjis will speak at 7:15 p.m. on Friday, April 14 in the Middlesex Room of the Student Union, at a meeting sponsored by Intervarsity Christian Fellowship.

TRAINEE OPENINGS

with

SUPERMARKETS GENERAL CORPORATION

Traineeships open for majors in Food Distribution, Marketing, Econ, BA, etc. Program covers supermarket and warehouse operation including hi-volume merchandising, store planning, management techniques and product distribution.

The SGC Trainee Program is specifically for the man who wants a strong head start, an excellent background and rapid advance to exec. mgmt. Two programs offered! Co-op Traineeships for students in co-op work-study programs. Associate Traineeships for on-job training during school vacation.

SGC operates 65 hi-volume Shop-Rite Supermarkets and Drug Stores in Conn, N.Y., N.J., Penn. and Del. Company known for dynamic merchandising and growth; needs mature, imaginative and aggressive college men looking for the best way up!

SEE CAMPUS PLACEMENT COUNSELOR FOR APPOINTMENT OR INFORMATION

Recruitment Representatives will be ON CAMPUS APRIL 18.

SENIOR WEEK 1967

WED., MAY 31 — Mixer at the "Q" Club.

THURS., JUNE 1 — An Evening at the Hatfield Barn.

With folksinger ANITA SHEER and the comedy team of BURNS AND SCHREIBER, a clambake, smorgasbord, drinking and dancing.

FRI., JUNE 2 — A Fun Filled Day at the White House Inn.

(Bowling, swimming & drinking) followed by the senior banquet, class night and dancing.

SAT., JUNE 3 — A Relaxing Day at Forest Lake.

With swimming, food, games, dancing with a band and plenty of other surprises. In the evening a bonfire and concert with JUDY COLLINS. Plenty of free popular beverages will be served.

SUN., JUNE 4 — Commencement.

Reservations and deposit must be made at the ticket window in the Student Union by Friday, April 21.

REMEMBER—All senior week activities are free for seniors,
But your reservations MUST BE MADE or you will not be able to attend.

THE DEPOSIT IS $2.00

The Fifth Column

by STEVE ROSS

That 162-game farce called the baseball season opened this week. Wowie. One hundred sixty-two games to add up to a pennant for one team per league. It's the figure, 162, that ruins baseball, an occasionally exciting sport, at best. For the most part, however, it is passive.

Steve Ross

One Celtic-Philly playoff bash has more excitement than a season of American League baseball.

The solution—cut the schedule to about 54 games. At least a game will mean something, not another evening of fun and games. Fans would be able to see the teams play from Memorial Day to Labor Day. Each team would meet six times, three at home and three on the road.

It is quite obvious that hockey and basketball are in their climactic stages while baseball starts its season. More Bostonians care about the Celtics than the Red Sox, as proved by a playoff and opening game last season in Boston. On Easter Sunday the Celtics met the 76'ers in game four. The attendance was around 18,000, listed at 13,909. Two days later the Sox met the pennant-bound Orioles on a beautiful spring day in front of 12,000 spectators.

If baseball teams conditioned themselves as is done in other sports, games would be better. Baseball players are the worst - conditioned athletes of any sport, and they play the least strenuous sport. If teams drifted southward around April 15 they'd be in good shape for the Memorial Day opening.

The majority of baseball clubs are located in northern cities. Yesterday's freeze-out of the Bosox opener was an example of the too early start of the season. The Sox (as well as a lot of other clubs) risk the ruining of pitching wings in the frigid elements of April and May.

During the season play should be held on Friday and Saturday nights, doubleheaders on Sunday, holidays, and holiday evenings. With TV in the midst of rerun season, meaningful baseball games during prime time would be easy to sell to the sponsors. It is interesting to note that more than twice as many fans watched the Super Bowl (65,000,000) than watched the last Oriole-Dodger World Series game (28,000,000).

The All-Star Game should be played on a weekday night so that the working fan could have the opportunity to watch the classic. The current practice has the game viewed by night watchmen, schoolkids, and housewives, hardly the fan who lines the owners' pockets. But that's baseball and baseball doesn't follow logic, just tradition.

Finally the World Series should start the Saturday after Labor Day, followed by a Sunday battle, Tuesday, Wednesday, and, if necessary, Thursday night games could follow with another Saturday-Sunday set if necessary. In that way the football season, although under way, wouldn't steal all the headlines.

That would put some life into what someone once had the audacity to call our "national pasttime."

THE SEASON THAT WAS...

Redmen Needed Bows and Arrows in Wild West

by TOM FITZGERALD
Sports Editor

After the Rhody game, the Redmen looked like definite conference contenders. But they did not enhance their image with the next conference game, against Vermont.

There were only 2,200 fans at the Cage that night and it was probably a good thing, because the Vermont offense was as sharp as maple syrup and the Redmen shot as if they were aiming for the backboard. But the U M defense was superb, and when the fog had cleared, the Redmen had somehow won by 20, 71-51, for their second win in the conference.

UM picked up number three against Maine, but even though the Redmen shot 55.4 percent, they had their hands full with the shooting of Terry Carr and Jim Stephenson. A full - court press finally broke it open in the fourth quarter and the Redmen won, 87-68.

HOMELESS WONDERS—AEP campus volleyball champions: (1st row) George Hurwitz, Steve Cohen, Lenny Glick, (2nd row) coach Al White, Pete Griff, Lonnie Leher, Glenn Lewis, Mike Greenblatt, Steve Calishman.

In the midst of their best conference start in years, the Redmen hit the turnpike for the Boston Garden Holiday Tournament. The first collegiate hoop affair at the Garden in 10 years opened with a singular lack of yuletide spirit. At the promotion luncheon the week before, Coaches Cousy of Boston College, Lewis of Syracuse and Norton of Manhattan—and of course—the ever selfless garden officials — thought it might be a swell idea for all concerned if UM would play Syracuse instead of Manhattan in the first round.

That way, they all agreed, B.C. and Syracuse would probably meet in the finals, and all would go home satisfied that the tourney was an artistic success. And yes there would be more money in it.

Jack Leaman's treble dissent was something to the effect that UM would suffer Boston's next gangland slaying, and the proposal was dropped like a rotten egg on the Garden floor.

Manhattan had a soft-shooting six-foot guard named Bill Goodfellow and another one disguised as a 6'7 center named Bob Chlupsa. The Jaspers didn't have much else in the tournament's curtain-raiser, but those two were enough to take early command of the ball game from UMass.

Behind the shooting of a UMass sub who thought his name was Havlicek instead of Lisack, the Redmen began to make their march on Manhattan—not with the power of King Kong on the Empire State Building, mind you, but with enough to pull ahead, 40-39, at halftime on Bill Tindall's fast-break basket at the buzzer.

Joe DiSarcina, Tim Edwards, Lisack and Tindall shared the offense as UMass went ahead, 68-57, with eight minutes left to play, and Bob Murphy shot 11 for 11 from the foul line down the stretch (With a name like that how could he miss in Boston) to clinch an 86-76 victory.

Lisack's shooting eye brought favorable reaction from one of Boston's founding fathers. When John came off the bench the next night in the final against Boston College, Red Auerbach motioned with his cigar and said to a friend, "Watch this kid. He came off the bench and got about 20."

Lisack had only nine against B.C., however, and only Edwards and Tindall reached double figures for the Redmen, who fell once again to their NCAA-bound rival, 75-67. The Eagle front line was too big, and little Billy Evans was too good.

Edwards was excellent, getting 15 rebounds with his 16 points, but Tindall fouled out with 15 minutes left. That hurt.

So the Redmen took their runner-up trophy in tow and headed for the Wild West, Oklahoma City that is, for the eight-team All-College Basketball Tournament.

Against the host, Oklahoma City, it was a case of too many Chiefs and not enough Redmen. And the scalp-artists from Massachusetts finally met their one-man match. Of course, it had to be a full-blooded Indian named Gary Gray, who couldn't have been any more fearsome if he had worn warpaint.

(Continued next issue)

INTRAMURALS

Kennedy's LaRose Spins No-Hit Gem

by ROGER KIPP
Staff Reporter

Softball gets under way and soccer continues to roll. From now until finals the intramural fields will full of action.

Tony LaRose's no-hitter featured the opening night of softball action. LaRose, pitching for the Kennedy Panthers of the East-West league, spun the beauty against the Buffaloes. The final score was 6-0.

The Chadbourne Maroons started off on the right foot as they got by the Maples, 6-5. In the other East-West game, the Hi-Los, behind the hitting of Joe Pedro and Frank Holcomb, bombed the Giants, 14-3.

In North-South league action, the Rams dunked the Cherries, 6 - 1; Mills Birches ripped the Webster Panthers, 6-1; the Aces bested the Lemons, 4-0; and the Flaming A's (with a 10-run first inning) outlasted the Hawks, 11-10.

Two games started off the IFC softball season. QTV rolled over PLP, 18-7, plating 12 runs in the second inning and totaling 19 hits in the game. SAM bested ATG, 11-9, with Damon, Brilliant, and Waltzman getting two hits apiece.

Turning to the Independents, the Foundrymen used a six-run third to just get by the Toads, 9-8, while in the Graduate-Faculty division, the Old - Timers nudged the Bytes, 3-2, and Selohssas won their first over the Lucky 13's, 13-7.

Ties again were the order of the day in soccer. The only two games played in the Southwest league were ties. The Cougars and the Patriots faced off to a scoreless tie, and the Commanches and the Colts did likewise.

The Flaming A's and the Rams of the North League also played to a scoreless tie.

The Original Flaming A's won their game over the Seagrams, 4-2, while Marty Pikul's goal was the decider in the Smasher's victory over the Spartans, 1-0. The only game in the Independent circuit was a 1-0 win by the Lucky 13's over the Condors.

The Brothers of

PI LAMBDA PHI

extend an invitation to Freshman and Upperclassmen to attend an open smoker

WEDNESDAY, April 12th

Formal Bristol Room

8-10 P.M.

Volkswagen In Europe

We'll deliver your new Karmann Ghia in France, Italy, Great Britain, Germany, Switzerland, Belgium, Ireland, Denmark, Netherlands. (And save you hundreds of dollars when you bring it back home.)

Free: Please send illustrated brochure and price list.
Dealer Name
Address, Telephone Number
AUTHORIZED DEALER
Name
Address
City Zone State

Northampton Motors, Inc.

Your Authorized Volkswagen Headquarters

Rt. #5, Northampton
Tel. JU 4-8620

Open 9 to 9 Weekdays
Till 5 P.M. on Saturday

Redmen Foil A.I.C. Rally To Win 3-2; Canty Fans 15

by TOM FITZGERALD
Sports Editor

SPRINGFIELD—American International College batters spent seven innings trying to keep warm by fanning at UMass left-hander John Canty's fastballs. But in the end it was soph reliefer Norm Elliott who cooled off an A.I.C. uprising and saved a 3-2 win for the Redmen Monday at A.I.C. Park.

Strong winds and frigid temperatures made both teams wish they'd stayed South, but for UMass rookie coach Dick Bergquist, it was his first victory north of the Mason-Dixon line. The win gave the Redmen a 4-3 record going into this afternoon's encounter at Amherst College.

UMass led, 3-1, in the ninth, but Elliott, in his second inning of relief, surrendered a lead-off single to Norm Burgess and a prodigious double to center by Ron Smith, scoring a run. Elliott, however, got Chuck Paglierani on a grounder to second with pinch runner Mario Pagnoni moving to third and Jeff Burgess on a bouncer back to the mound.

With a 3-2 count on right-hand batter Frank Capuano, who had struck out four times against Canty, A.I.C. coach and former Yankee Art Ditmar elected to pinch-hit lefty Jake Lovier against the right-handed pitcher. Lovier took a swing like Mighty Casey on Elliott's last offering and the victorious Redmen headed back for Amherst.

Canty, now 3-0, fed the Yellow Jackets a steady diet of fastballs and struck out 15 in his seven-inning portion of the three-hour, 14-minute marathon. He allowed six hits and six walks but was extra-tough when he had to be. In the fifth, base hits by Norm Burgess and Smith and a walk to Paglierani loaded the bases with nobody out. But Canty put some mustard on the ball and fanned Jeff Burgess, Capuano and Ken Leja in order.

The Redmen picked up their first run in the fourth on A.I.C. starter Larry Freed when Don Ferron drew a base on balls, Ted Mareno was hit by a pitch, Elliot Klein sacrificed, and soph catcher Tony Chinappi banged a single to right to plate Ferron.

A.I.C. tied the score in the bottom half of the inning on a double to right by Leja and a base hit by Sonny Hansley.

UMass' Tony C. delivered again in the sixth by singling to center after Klein had belted a two-baser to right. Klein scored the go-ahead run.

The winning run for the Redmen, as it would turn out, resulted from A.I.C. fielding lapses. Al Vyce opened the seventh by reaching on a low throw to first by A.I.C. reliever Jim McClelland. Then Frank Stewart's hit, his third of the game, got away from right fielder Paul Procopio, with the runners moving up. Roy Lasky's long sacrifice fly brought in Vyce, and Stewart almost made it too on Ferron's short fly to left. He was out at the plate on a close play.

JOHN CANTY
Strike-out whiz.

UMASS	ab	r	h	bi
DiSarcina s	5	0	0	0
Vyce cf-rf	3	1	0	0
Stewart 2	4	0	3	0
Lasky 1	3	0	0	1
Ferron rf	3	1	0	0
Elliott p	0	0	0	0
Mareno lf	3	0	0	0
Klein 3	4	1	2	0
Chinappi c	4	0	2	2
Canty p	3	0	0	0
Hale cf	1	0	0	0
Totals	33	3	7	3

AIC	ab	r	h	bi
N. Burgess 2	3	1	2	0
Smith 3	4	0	2	1
Pagnoni pr	0	0	0	0
Paglierani cf	4	0	1	0
J. Burgess c	4	0	0	0
Capuano s	4	0	0	0
Lovier ph	1	0	0	0
Leja 1	4	1	1	0
Hansley lf	3	0	1	1
Procopio rf	4	0	1	0
Freed p	2	0	0	0
Nolan ph	1	0	0	0
McClelland p	1	0	0	0
Totals	35	2	8	2

Time Switch

Saturday's baseball game against Maine at Amherst will start at 1 p.m. instead of at 2. Friday's game will begin at 3 as scheduled.

Raqueteers Post Easy Win In Windy Opener at Fairfield

by DAVE HANSON
Staff Reporter

The varsity tennis squad posted an impressive win over a strong Fairfield team Tuesday at Fairfield. The Redmen, hampered by wind gusts of up to fifty miles per hour in their first match of the season, looked in midseason form as they won the first four singles and swept the doubles.

Harvey Mednicov, a senior, playing at number one dropped the first set 2-6 but roared back to drop Fairfielder Steve Smith 6-2, 6-2 in the final two sets. Andy Meagher, playing at number two, had probably the toughest match of the afternoon as he hung on to win over Bill Fitzgerald 6-1, 1-6, 11-9.

Jerry Johnson, three time campus cross-country champion playing number three, easily defeated Jack McKenna of Fairfield, 6-0, 6-1, and Carl Clem, sidelined last year because of injury came from behind to defeat Ben Hill 4-6, 7-5, 6-4 at the number four spot. The five and six spots, however, both went to Fairfield as sophomore Scott Sheppard and senior John Gutt both fell in two sets.

The doubles competition, always a strong point for the UMass Team saw Mednicov and Meagher battle Smith and Hill of Fairfield for a 4-6, 8-6, 6-2 win to clinch the match for the Redmen. Johnson and Sheppard easily defeated Gary Cochrane and John Matt in the number two doubles by scores of 6-4, 6-2 and Clem and basketball star John Lisack trounced McKenna and Hartigan at number three by identical sets of 6-1, 6-1 to wrap it up.

Following the match, Coach Steve Kosakowski said, "I hated to send the boys out there today, the wind made conditions so bad." Fortunately, the team responded to the challenge and now stands 1-0 with a long season confronting them.

Wesleyan: Rough Rival For UMass Crosse Team

by TIM KELLEHER
Staff Reporter

The UMass revenge-minded lacrosse team face Wesleyan University today, one of the toughest games the Redman will play this year, at 3:00 behind the Cage.

Having lost the last two years to the Cardinals, the Redmen are out to win this one. In the 11 years that the two teams have met, UMass has won eight.

Both teams will be in their first New England Conference game of the year with Wesleyan playing their first game of the season, while UM lost its opener to Oberlin. Last Saturday's rained out game with MIT has been rescheduled for May 5.

Under their new coach, Ron Harrington, the Cardinals prospects for a winning season are high with 11 returing letter men and an outstanding group of sophomores.

Wesleyan has a well balanced team with the exception of the goalie slot, a critical area since the graduation of All-American Joe Pickard. Strong areas for the Cardinals are co - captain Bob Dyer on the attack and senior John Arnault at defense.

MARTY KALIKOW
Shifty midfielder.

With big men and good stick work, Wesleyan will be a good test for an equally strong UM team.

UMass Trackmen Await Opening Of Spring Slate

by TOM CONUEL
Staff Reporter

The UMass track team will open the spring season Saturday with a three-way meet at the University of Rhode Island against U.R.I. and Northeastern.

The Redmen appear to have another strong team. In the 100-yard dash UMass has senior Art Larvey, last year's Yankee Conference Champ, and junior Steve Burrell.

Larvey and Burrell also run the 220 yard race to provide the Redmen with a good double punch.

In the 440, John Anderson is the man to watch. Anderson, a senior, finished 12th in the U.S. Indoor Championship meet last year, and on the strength of that performance he should be the favorite at U.R.I.

For the 880-yard race the Redmen have last year's Yankee Conference, champ Greg Bowman back and ready for action. Greg's time last year in the 880 was 1:54.6. The all time Yankee Conference record is 1:52.7 held by UMass track assistant coach Kenneth O'Brien. He set the standard in 1962.

UM's Terry Carpenter is last year's Yankee Conference champ in the mile with a rapid time of 4:15.1. He is backed by Bowman, who also runs a quick mile.

Carpenter is also the Conference champ for the indoor two mile run, Charlie Lang backs Carpenter in the two mile trial.

In the high hurdles John Hall has recovered from an early injury and will be ready for Saturday. In the 440-yard intermediate hurdles UMass will use Anderson, potentially the best hurdler in the Yankee Conference.

Basketball star Bill Tindall dominates the high jump. Bill has gone six feet six inches for the Conference indoor title.

Courtney Basset, the Conference champ in the 16-pound hammer throw is back again and will also compete in the discus.

Dave Schlatka, who set the freshmen record for the discus last year, is back and should be a strong competitor.

In the javelin event Footrick has Steve Litchfield, who has heaved the spear 190 feet.

Overall capabilities portend another excellent UMass track team. It should go places—like to the Yankee Conference title.

BASEBALL — vs. Amherst (at Amherst), today, 3:30 p.m.
LACROSSE — vs. Wesleyan (Home), today, 3 p.m.
BASEBALL—vs. Main (Home), Friday, 3 p.m.

Redmen Travel Crosstown to Meet Lord Jeffs

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Until last Monday's baseball game at AIC, there was a four way battle going on the UMass team for starting catcher. Now there is not and UMass coach Dick Bergquist is delighted.

Sophomore Tony Chinappi, behind an outstanding performance Monday, has nailed down the berth and will be one of the men to watch this afternoon as the Redmen travel crosstown to play long-time rival Amherst at 3:30 at the Lord Jeffs' diamond.

Chinappi knocked in two of UMass' three runs against AIC, and just missed an extra base hit as a line drive was snagged by the Yellow Jacket left fielder.

It was a good day all around for the Redmen battery as John Canty and sophomore Norm Elliott both shone on the mound. Senior Carl Boteze figures to start today, hoping he has overcome the control problems that plagued him down south.

Amherst coach Bill Thurston faces a building year this spring, with four sophomores in the starting lineup. This will be the Jeffs' first regular season game, after a 3-6 mark in southern exhibitions. Their scheduled opener at Tufts Saturday was snowed out.

Senior John Biliesdon is expected to start for the Lord Jeffs. He pitched well in Florida although he did not receive much support in the field. Bob Hemley and Bob Taggart will be available in the bullpen.

The four starting sophomores make up three-quarters of the infield and one outfielder, Jay Sendzik won the first baseman's job on the strength of a .364 batting average in exhibition.

TONY CHINAPPI
Clutch stick at A.I.C.

The shorstop is Duncan Lewis, who led the team in RBIs with 10 and batted .313. Tom Kelly was one of the better defensive players at third, and right fielder Bill Foye showed a lot of promise both in the field and at the plate.

Senior Buzz Tivnan, the left fielder, is expected to pick up after a spring slump. Senior Wayne Donner, a fair hitter, will handle the chores behind the plate.

Rounding out the starting lineup are juniors Jim Brent and Jim Lynn in center field and at second base respectively. Both have good range on defense and are quick on the basepaths.

UMass' home season opens Friday against Maine at the varsity field which is adjacent to the Boyden Intramural fields. Game time will be three o'clock, with another big contest against the Black Bears slated for Saturday at one.

Redmen on the Warpath

Frosh Golf

Freshmen wishing to qualify for the frosh golf team should be ready to leave Boyden Building at 12:30 daily during the week of April 17-21 in order to compete in the qualifying rounds.

CANDIDATES FOR CLASS OFFICE

The Collegian will devote space to a Candidates' Forum on April 19. All statements must be typed at 60 spaces, double-spaced, and may not exceed 16 lines in length. Deadline is 1:00 P.M. Sunday, April 16.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

SPECIAL FIRE SAFETY ISSUE

VOL. XCV, NO. 63 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, APRIL 14, 1967

COLLEGIAN Photo by Furman

After her election, Vice President Fran Boronski told WMUA interviewer Pete Ward, she felt "great!" She went on to say "When the Senate voted tonight, it endorsed more than a candidate . . . a role," and stressed, "We cannot overemphasize the idea of personal contact in the Senate."

Senate Election Results

Collins, Boronski, Verock, Wyke

by PAT PETOW

It ended with kind words and praise for the retiring officers and an announcement of the Apr. 22 softball game with the Faculty Senate. It was broadcast live over WMUA for the benefit of the student body.

But the Student Senate elections were not entirely an exercise in pleasantry nor a game. For one thing it took five and a half hours. For another the final vote, after three ballots in the case of secretary, was close for the two contested offices.

The members made their decision: Fran Boronski became the new vice president of the Senate, Wednesday, and Audrey Wyke its new secretary.

In less than 11 minutes, the unopposed candidates for president and treasurer were nominated, elected, and sworn in. "The challenge is critical and not any easy one," and the new president, Jim Collins in a brief speech. Getting right to work, he set an Executive Committee meeting for the next night.

He had emphasized executive leadership in his campaign.

All four officers-the treasurer is Frank Verock, elevated from Budgets Committee chairman—take over their duties at once although not technically until May.

Sen. Boronski, who retires this month after a year as secretary, won election over the sophomore senator-at-large, Larry Marcus. The defeated candidate moved that the Senate record its vote as unanimous.

"I don't feel that every senator is doing his utmost to make students aware" was the challenge Miss Boronski offered. To attack internal weaknesses, to utilize resources more is a "leadership" responsibility of the vice president, she declared in her candidate's speech.

The incumbent secretary stressed the internal duties of the office, but also expressed relations with the Faculty Senate as a focus of her present external interests. Other senators speaking for her emphasized her role as an originator of the Mass. Student Assoc. and the author of the pamphlet on the 1965 student government conference.

The new vice president said, "We have something good in the Senate" in two senses. In representing students and in an opportunity to work, learn, and grow in the Senate.

Momentum for the Secretarial contest was somewhat lacking, as senators resumed private conversations after the first decision of the evening and a short recess.

But the candidates themselves—Audrey Wyke, Terri Banfield, and Linda Shriber—regained nearly their undivided attention.

The first two ballots taken, it became apparent, were to eliminate one of the three and not select a winner. Before the third vote-taking, according to the procedure adopted, the candidate with a few less of the nearly-equally distributed votes, Linda Shriber, was dropped.

Audrey Wyke, given Sen. Shriber's endorsement, retained her lead to win by a margin of 32-22.

In nominating the new secretary, Sen. Harvey Stone emphasized the qualities of leadership needed for the office. She has become an important and perhaps necessary member to each of her committees, he told the Senate. The secretary must convey a sense of leadership, the nominator declared.

Sen. Wyke was supported in her efforts by her fellow senator from Eugene Field House, Elinor Needle.

Collins' constituency is John Adams Upper, Verock's the commuters, and Miss Boronski, Leach House. All four officers will not have to run for reelection in the fall, but a new senator will be elected then to represent their constituencies.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Furman

The new Senate treasurer, Frank Verock, has two years of Senate experience of the Budgets Committee and spent the last year as chairman. He was also a member of the 1966 Summer Student Executive Council.

Preregistration Gives Students Responsibility

by PAT NAGLE
Staff Reporter

Registrar William C. Starkweather announced in a Collegian interview Thursday that "there will be somewhat of a change in the policy of UMass concerning pre-registration and counseling."

Starkweather stated that the main changes in pre-registration policy are: (1) pre-registration cards will be mailed directly to the student, (2) schedule booklets will be mailed to the student's campus address and will not have to be obtained from the advisors, (3) many departments will not require approval signatures on the pre-registration card.

The new emphasis of UMass is to allow the student to be responsible for selection of his own program. By changing the policy of pre-registration approval, more trust will be placed in the student leaving him to his own discrimination in choosing courses.

Starkweather said that some departments will go along with the change although some may not. He said, "the College of Arts and Sciences stimulated the change through a recent examination of its advisory policies" but the Colleges of Business administration, Agriculture, Home Economics and Nursing still require the approval of advisors.

By mailing the pre-registration cards to local addresses, Starkweather said that "some clerical aspects of pre-registration will be weeded out." This will leave time for students to consult their advisors.

The Registrar also expressed his wish that students who have changed or know of a mistake in their campus address should contact housing. For a mistake or change in home address the Registrar's office should be contacted.

He said that such notification should be made because not only will pre-registration cards be mailed out, but this year in a new policy the Senior's diplomas are being mailed to their home addresses.

He added that more and more of the University's business is going to be carried out through the mails; therefore the students' correct addresses are needed.

Educational Innovator Builds Future "University at the Moon"

by PAM METAXAS
Staff Reporter

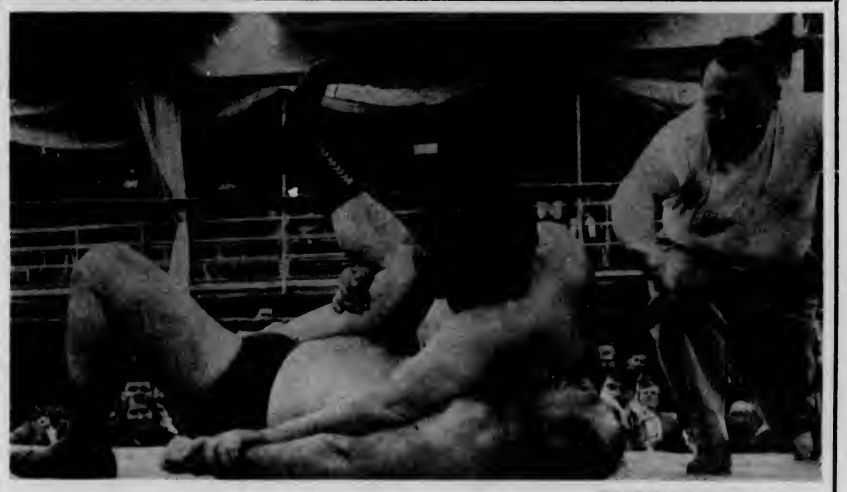
One of America's leading educational innovators and a past President and Chancellor of the University of Chicago, Robert Maynard Hutchins, spoke on education and the university in the SU Ballroom Wednesday night.

Hutchins began by describing the beliefs concerning education many years ago. "Education was an activity carried on in relative privacy then," he said. He added that education was "considered a waste of time" and that research did not hold the high position it does today. "Research had to be sold" whereas now education is on every tongue. He went on to say that "the great drama of education is the disproportion between the effort and the result."

Most educational programs, he said, "take time" to achieve their plans. The "minimal amount of time" required is 20 years after "the program has been formulated, accepted and put into effect."

"A good education system seeks to reform and improve the culture," he continued, since "any education is culturally derived." And "I do believe that education can help us," he added.

After discussing the shorter work week and the increase in leisure time, Hutchins answered the question of what Americans will do with their increasing leisure time. He suggested that people can "become human beings." One of the ways would be through education.



The DVP speaker emphasized that the "University of the Moon" (the future) would be built on "life, liberty and learning." He believed the present view of a university is a "nerve center of knowledge industry dedicated to national power." The questions to be asked, he said, are: "Is the university a mirror or a beacon, and is intellectual probing possible in an age of specialization?" Most recently, universities of 50,000 have "opened in many parts of the world," he stated. And "the pursuit of knowledge for its own sake is actually not a description of what is going on in universities today."

The conception of a university should be an intellectual

(Continued on page 9)

ROBERT HUTCHINS

COLLEGIAN Photo by Sirota

A grimacing Frank Scarpa is held down by Bull Montana in Wednesday night's championship wrestling match held at the cage as part of Campus Chest Week activities. Scarpa went on to defend the title.

Fine Arts

A Man and a Woman Returns

A Man and a Woman came back to the Amherst Cinema Wednesday decorated with more awards, but just as soft as ever. The story, which won the Academy Award for best screenplay, seems at first to be a simple love story but Claude Lelouch has tinted it with significance.

Somewhat like Dear John, the film begins as a puzzle to be put together. Anouk Aimee is seen in the salt-sea fog telling the story of The Three Bears to her little one. Then a succession of rapidly changing scenes clears the fog and the story is underway.

Lelouch has done some interesting things in his story. When Anouk must recount the story of her late husband (Pierre Barouh), it is done by simply splicing in the film of her past. The same is done later with Jean-Louis' tragic story of his wife's death. Lelouch chooses not to flashback but to bring the past to the present, making it more immediate and molding to his purpose. With this approach, he shows how closely Anouk is linked to her past; it is for her a vivid, colorful memory. For Jean-Louis it is a sadder black-and white past.

Lelouch also separates sound and sight, a technique that lets him bring us Jean-Louis' race at Monte Carlo while Anouk dances through a day in Paris. Several times there is a dialogue not heard, or a song far from the present scene.

He also has an excellent sense of timing. Lelouch builds up his slow, soft story and makes everyone wait for a sleepy gas-station attendant, not-at-home people, and slow train to Paris.

Another Academy Award was captured by Lelouch for direction, which shows itself in the superb acting of Anouk Aimee. Anouk seems to do everything with a grace, a smoothness. She can radiate the warmth of a mother or turn her expression stone-cold at Jean-Louis' first advance. Jean-Louis Trintignant is good. He is given a few excellent "thought" monologues which are straight from life. He is not, however, as colorful a figure as Pierre Barouh, Anouk's late husband, who is a "work of art."

Jean-Louis' little boy gives a spontaneous talk on his ambitions to be a fireman that is very cute. The entire restaurant scene seems spontaneous, entirely natural—only hurt by a few comments on directors.

Possibly the best performance is a brief grief-scene of watching, waiting, walking done by Jean-Louis' late wife.

A Man and a Woman is in color for its most important scenes, tinted for the lesser, and black-and-white in others. The variety emphasizes the medium and is another way in which Lelouch adds dimension to the art of the film.

The colored film is art; the black-and-white is life. The beauty of her ex-husband seems more real, more attractive than the drab reality of the black and the white. But as Anouk says of Giacometti—"in a choice between art and life, life is more important."

A Man and a Woman is more than a love story. It is a lesson in life. It is beautifully told in its warm, silent colors. It will be in Amherst until Wednesday.

—N. C. Scanlan

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kornfield

Got any extra wall space in your room? Here is your chance to fill it. Buy a raffle ticket for fifteen cents at the dance Friday night, and this banner might be your's.

Campus Chest '69 Ends With S.U. Dance

Campus Chest Week will close tonight with the "Hurricane of Sound" in the Student Union ballroom. Entertainment will be provided by the Ill Wind and the Tidal Wave.

This is the final event in a week-long fund raising campaign sponsored by the sophomore class. Among the other events of the week was the U.S. national heavyweight wrestling championship, in which Frank Scarpa successfully defended his crown against Bull Montana and was carried from the ring on the shoulders of his fans. Frank fought back after losing the first fall and took the deciding two, in quick succession.

The proceeds from the wrestling match will be joined with money raised by W.M.U.A., through record auctions, and dedications and requests broadcast from the S.U. lobby and for which a small fee was charged, through the sale of buttons and posters, the money from the voting in the Ugly Man contest, and donations.

Come to the Hurricane of Sound tonight. The goal of $6900 is not yet reached. Help us put it over, and at the same time have a great time.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Goseninski

"Feifer" will also be presented in Southwest and Orchahd Hill on Sunday and Monday nights, respectively.

"Feifer" Features Comment On Contemporary U.S. Scene

"Feiffer," a readers theatre production based on Jules Feiffer's cartons, will be presented by the University of Massachusets Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 13, 14 and 15 at 8:15 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

A cast of eight student readers will present a series of 18 episodes, most of them involving two characters, a man and a woman, placed in a situation that is a comment, often satirical, on the contemporary U.S. scene.

The production, open to the public without charge, is devised, designed and directed by Jerry L. DeSpain, UMass instructor of speech.

The four main episodes involve familiar Feiffer characters — Passionella, the chimney sweep-movie star; Munro, four-year-old who gets drafted; Harold Swerg, olympic champion who equals but can't break records; and Superman, who rescues a distressed maiden who psychoanalyzes him.

Other figures include a bongo player and a dancer, tramp, a Jewish mother, Prince Charming and a reviewer of the Bible.

The production style follows the sparse, two-dimensional character of the Feiffer cartoon panels, with minimum properties and costumes. Characters read their parts on stools before a simple backdrop.

News Workshop Survey Reveals That Papers Relay All the News

by SNO-WHITE
Staff Reporter

Do newspapers now print articles which they realize could possibly harm one of their potential advertisers?

New York University's News Workshop took a survey of 27 metropolitan newspapers, and the published results support this idea. Papers relay all the news, although some hedge on the facts.

Last August Dr. George E. Modre, director of a New York cancer research center, released findings which he claims "destroy the myth that all filters are helping to protect the smoker against the deadly effects of cigarette smoking."

He had tested nine filtered cigarettes and three of their unfiltered mates. Pall Mall passed more tar and nicotine through its filtered cigarette than through its unfiltered ones. Discovered also was that True cigarettes were the most effective against the entrance of these substances.

The way this story was handled by the press illustrates the intriguing variety of values of importance in journalism.

While the United Press International and the Associated Press ran the story on August 29, some newspapers hesitated to print it until as late as September 8.

Some papers included a list which went from the worst cigarettes to the best while others thought it more important to begin with True and decline to the most ineffective. The Des Moines Tribune never mentioned that Lucky Strike admitted the same tar and nicotine with its filter, or without it.

UPI failed to describe the tar and nicotine contents, but it did list the brand names in order of effectiveness, AP, however, cautiously printed a list of tar and nicotine figures but declined to give the related brand names.

The survey found that all the newspapers differed in the amount of space devoted to this story. The New York Times permitted it 28 inches while another paper thought that it deserved only six inches.

Although the cigarette manufacturers complained loudly about Dr. Modre's statement, twice as many papers omitted the responses as printed them.

The Workshop survey thus seems to conclude that journalists today do vary considerably in what they consider of importance in the news. Shouldn't one therefore try to read more than one newspaper in order to get more information?

AMHERST CREAMERY
SNACK BAR
12" Pizza 99c
Ice Cream Sandwiches
Steaks
Take Out 253-5350

MOUNTAIN PARK
RTE. 5, HOLYOKE—GO WHERE THE ACTION IS
SAT. 8 P.M. IN PERSON
The BARBARIANS
with MOULTY MOLTON
PLUS MONTY
TUES. 8 P.M.
IN PERSON
YOUNG RASCALS
TICKETS AT ALL
DEL PADRE STORES

Operetta Guild
WONDERFUL TOWN
April 13, 14, 15
Tickets on sale at S.U. box office

AMHERST Cinema
NOW SHOWING
ON SCREEN
Daily 7:00-9:10
SAT. and SUN.
2:00-4:40-6:50-9:00
PLUS SHORTS
Grand Prize Winner
A MAN AND A WOMAN
NEXT · Endless Summer

tuition worries?
Hood
End them all by selling Ice Cream this summer from a profit-proven mobile ice cream truck. You're on your own with a complete money-making program.
For further information or a descriptive brochure, call or write:
MANLEY COLONIAL
A Subsidiary of H. P. Hood and Sons
499 Rutherford Ave. (rear),
Boston, Mass. 02129
(617) 242-3300

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

Vietnam

Gen. William C. Westmoreland believes the end of the Vietnam war is not yet in sight despite allied victories and Communist desertions.

* * *

South Vietnamese troops run into hard fighting in the Mekong Delta but report at least 173 Viet Cong killed.

Washington

Senate sources indicate that evidence gathered against Sen. Thomas J. Dodd is being reviewed in reponse to a request for new hearings.

* * *

The House creates an ethics committee as its leaders seek a formula to seat Adam Clayton Powell.

* * *

The Senate votes to repeal the presidential election campaign financing law backed by President Johnson.

* * *

The attitude of Supreme Court justices suggests the death knell may sound soon for legalized eavesdropping.

* * *

The University of Massachusetts Labor Relations and Research Center has received a $287,766 grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity for a community leadership training project in New England.

The project will be conducted jointly with the AFL-CIO.

Sargent Shriver, director of the OEO, said Wednesday the center will provide training for 150 trade unionists in development of local community action programs, with emphasis on urban poverty problems.

International

President Johnson is reported fairly well pleased with the results of the inter-American summit conference.

* * *

London voters end 33 years of Labor party rule in the British capital.

National

Plant shutdowns increase, violence occurs and reports of impending drug shortages arise as the truck strike-lockout continues in the Chicago area..

* * *

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)— Dr. Ralph Bunche expressed satisfaction today with a statement from Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., denying that King advocated a fusion of the civil rights movement with opponents of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

* * *

PORTLAND, Ore. — Larry Smith is campaigning for student body president at Portland State College on a love slate.

"Other candidates' slates are running on platforms of integrity, student voice, responsibility," Smith said. "We think the students are more interested in love —all kinds of it—and will show this when they vote."

At a campaign rally Wednesday, there was kissing and hugging. Supporters handed out campaign buttons that said "We love you."

He is running against five other candidates.

AP WIRE STAFF
EDITOR: Richard S. Kline
STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Roupenian
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini

How to Succeed in Politics Without Really Trying

Springfield Union

Ma Szu-tsung Defects to U. S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Chinese sources say that Ma Szu-tsung, a cultural leader and master violinist, fled his Communist China homeland last January in a small tugboat later found abandoned near Hong Kong.

The musician, whose escape was revealed Wednesday after he and his family were granted asylum in the United States, refused to comment on the report. He is now living in a Manhattan apartment with his brother.

The Hong Kong sources with Nationalist Chinese contacts said today Ma was one of 12 escapees aboard the Communist tug and added they believed his son, Julon, 20, was with his father.

Ma's wife and their daughter Celia, 23, were understood to have taken a different route to freedom, according to the sources which refused to be quoted by name or position.

Ma told newsmen Wednesday he fled after spending "103 days in a dreadful hideout for devils and demons" and undergoing "what is too painful to describe" at the hands of young Red Guard terrorists.

"There is no hope for people like me in China," said the 54-year-old musician.

He refused to talk about how he escaped, saying the safety of too many persons in Red China would be jeopardized.

Concentration Camps

"I was treated very badly," he said in a tired voice. "I feared for my life. Right now I am unable to perform because my health has been ruined by several months of hard labor."

Ma was president of Peking's Central Conservatory of Music and vice chairman of the Union of Chinese Musicians. He said that last June he was rounded up with more than 500 other persons and "kept in a sort of concentration camp to undergo thought reform."

Declared Ma: "It is not a cultural revolution, it is a political revolution. They burn all the books and all prominent persons in the cultural field are being persecuted. I am very fortunate. Many prominent writers, have committed suicide."

Although he originally had welcomed the Communist revolution in China, he said he became disillusioned when Red Guards came into ascendancy.

Viet Peace Talks Held in Katmandu

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant arrived in Katmandu today on his five-nation South Asian tour with a stern warning that continuation of the Vietnam war could endanger Asia.

"We are faced with a very serious problem of peace in Asia," he said during an arrival ceremony led by Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Kritinidhi Bista. "But we will carry on our effort to secure a peaceful solution to this problem."

A government spokesman said Nepal strongly supports Thant's Vietnam peace plan, calling for a general cease-fire. Nepal also favors cessation of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam as a first step toward ending hostilities, he added.

Thant arrived from New Delhi, where he touched off a flurry of diplomatic activity shortly before his departure. The Indian consul general in Hanoi, A. S. Shawan, returned to Delhi Wednesday and informed sources said the main purpose of his trip was to get a briefing on talks Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and Foreign Minister M. C. Chagla had with Thant on Vietnam.

Brainwash Victim Was Quincy Man

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — An American pilot captured by the North Vietnamese and depicted in Life magazine as a possible victim of brainwashing has been identified as a Quincy resident by two Quincy teachers.

The Navy pilot was identified in the article as Lt. Cmdr. Richard A. Stratton, but no home address was given.

John Walsh, principal, and Mrs. Wilma Schields, a science teacher at North Quincy High School, said Wednesday they were certain the pilot was their former pupil.

Also, an official at the Oblate Seminary in Newburgh, N.Y., where Stratton studied for the priesthood after he left North Quincy High School, said many of Stratton's former classmates recognized his picture.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., has urged expansion of the Water and Sewer Grant and Load Act to permit further modernization of water and sewer facilities in agricultural communities.

Aiken urged the expansion Thursday with Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont. The two senators sponsored the act in 1956.

Teen Voting Likely Constitution Change

BOSTON (AP)—The legislature's Joint Committee on Constitutional Law has endorsed 31 amendments to Massachusetts' 189-year-old constitution.

Among the recommendations contained in the legislative bulletin are proposals to:

—Reduce the size of the House from 240 to 160 members.

—Lower the voting age in Massachusetts to 18.

—Abolish the Executive Council.

—Authorize the legislature to impose a graduated income tax based on the federal system.

—Limit sessions of the legislature to eight months.

—Abolish House districts with more than one representative.

The measures will be considered by the legislature in a joint constitutional convention early in May.

Constitutional amendments must be passed by two successive legislatures and approved in a statewide election.

The controversial amendments have stirred leaders of both parties to unite. Among them is the eighteen-year-old voting amendment, the most widely debated of the thirty-one, which Republican and Democratic caucuses have endorsed.

Negro Summit

Powell Powow Next Week in Bahamas

BIMINI, the Bahamas (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell has invited Dr. Martin Luther King and other Negro leaders to come to Bimini for a meeting next week, says an aide of the Harlem Democrat.

Black power leader Stokely Carmichael was scheduled to be in neighboring Florida, and could join the group. King, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and NAACP heads have been missing in a parade of Negro leaders who have been conferring with Powell on this British possession.

If the meeting materializes, it probably would mean that Powell will not be in Washington Tuesday, when his election certificate is scheduled to be presented to Congress, which excluded him March 1. The preacher-politician has reserved a tennis court at the Bimini Hotel for an indefinite number of Sunday sermons.

Powell, inaccessible to newsmen, was reported more interested in winning a suit against Congress, and thus preserving his seniority, than in rushing back to his seat after his re-election.

Carmichael and Floyd McKissick, director of the Congress of Racial Equality, are among Negro leaders who have flown here for conferences.

Korean Gunfight Kills Four; Artillery Used

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — About 100 North and South Korean soldiers exchanged fire for two hours before dawn yesterday in the biggest border clash since the 1953 Korean armistice, Three North Koreans and one South Korean were reported killed.

It was the third clash in the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea in two weeks. At least 12 Koreans have been killed, 11 of them from the North.

The South Korean government charged the Communists with trying to cause unrest to affect the South Korean presidential election May 3.

Patrol Ambush

The United Nations command said the gunfight today started when a 12-man South Korean patrol spotted three North Korean intruders about 425 yards south of the armistice line dividing the demilitarized zone.

It said that when the patrol attacked the intruders, it was fired on by a reinforced North Korean platoon of 40 to 60 men.

Two South Korean officers and 34 enlisted men moved up to help the outnumbered patrol, the command said, and the South Koreans began firing artillery— the first reported use of artillery since the armistice.

The U. N. command called for the joint observer team to conduct an on-the-spot investigation of the incident later today and demanded a meeting of the Joint Military Armistice Commission Friday to protest the Communist action.

Cornell Fire Preventable

BOSTON (AP) — The National Fire Protection Association blames "inadequate and substandard" escape facilities for the deaths of nine persons in a Cornell University dormitory fire.

A preliminary report issued today also said the absence of a building fire alarm may have contributed to the death toll in the April 5 fire.

The stairway from the basement, where the fire started in the predawn hours, lacked approved fire doors and enclosures in the basement and on the first floor level, and a second floor door had been removed for alteration, the Boston-based organization said.

Twelve students living in the basement area escaped through a door at the end of the corridor.

The report said the two exits from the building were closer together than the requirements of the NFPA safety code allowed, and one of the exits was useless because it was filled with hot gas and smoke.

"Heroic rescue efforts by Professor John A. Finch, who entered the burning building several times to bring students to safety at the cost of his own life," and rescue operations by fire fighters "undoubtedly cut the loss of life," the report said.

Finch was the only faculty member to be killed in the fire.

The report concluded that the installation of fire sprinklers— which had been planned — would have quickly extinguished the fire.

TOUR OF INSPECTION

Two Faces of Memorial Hall

Editor's note: The following is the first of a series of articles written by the students of Journalism CTC on seldom written about but often mentioned places.

Coffee and cigarettes . . . Two flags — Old Glory, Old Massachusetts . . . Dante and Weber . . . new faces, old faces . . . .

This is the world of Memorial Hall which belongs to the past, but also remains a stronghold of the present.

"We will keep faith with you who lie asleep."

The epitaph stretches across the front of Memorial Hall, a building next to Old Chapel. The building is truly a memorial, dedicated to University of Massachusetts students and alumni who served during World War II.

Along a corridor of the memorial a bronze plaque, set in a yellowed marble and framed in mahogany, tells the story of a soldier-student, Walter Mason Dickenson, whose college friends erected the building in his honor. The words of the past are not silent.

But the present is very much alive. A sign in bold maroon and black letters, "Welcome Alumni," marks a room often filled with students. This is familiar ground to students, as it has been for years. A constant reminder of this heritage is a spotty-brown leather chair which is marked by the fading, inked-in fraternity letters of a student long ago graduated.

The relics of other classes spot the spacious tan walls and mahogany shelves of the room. Regal black chairs, trimmed with the UMass gold seal, face each other across study tables. The same seal, now in maroon, is reflected through clear glass ashtrays.

Upon one wall are pasted the Varsity "M" Club regulations and news. And an alumnus, with briefcase and brogues, hurrying across the marble-patterned tile floor. Perhaps he's Mr. Johnston, executive director of Memorial Hall and also an alumnus.

Most important, however, scattered about the room in hushed study, are the reminders of the continued existence of the student body—the future alumni of the university. Pensively chewing his pen and at times sipping from a half-full Coke bottle, a sophomore sits casually slumped over neatly piled stacks of books. Another student, with bare feet, stretches her legs over a brown leather chair, slowly turning the pages of an English anthology.

A custodian dressed in green cover-alls comes into the room to straighten up the chairs and to dust the furniture. With a soft, white cloth he removes dust from the base of a tarnished gold trophy, presented by the Class of 1914 to the alumni class with the largest percentage of attendance at an annual commencement of Massachusetts State College. The custodian's footsteps mingle with the other noises of the building, student noises: the irregular hum of the soft drink machine, the snapping of chewing gum which accompanies a turning of pages, a phone ringing in the alumni office—perhaps a student in need of financial aid from alumni sources.

Memorial Hall is a building with two faces. By night, the strains of the University Chorale resound in an upstairs hall or slides of Spain are shown at a Spanish convocation. By day, the still-life atmosphere of concentration is unbroken by noise except, perhaps, whispers over a paper-laden table.

As one student confides, "I study here often. It's more casual than the Libe and quieter than the Union reading room. Although Mem Hall is only open until 4:45, I can spend my extra day-time hours studying in a pleasant, centrally located spot on campus."

The solitude of Memorial Hall is a welcome refuge for many students seeking day-time study facilities.

"FANTASTICKS"

WMUA (91.1 FM) will present a tape of "The Fantasticks," on Sunday, April 16, at 1 p.m. The show was done by the University Theatre in July, 1965, and will be part of Sunday's "Showcase" program.

Class of 1967 Presents

STUDENT LEADERS' NIGHT

Tappings for Scrolls, Adelphia, Keys,

Revelers, Arcon, Mortor Board

Also: Metawampe Award and

Scholarship Announcements

CURRY HICKS CAGE 7:00 P.M.

APRIL 18th

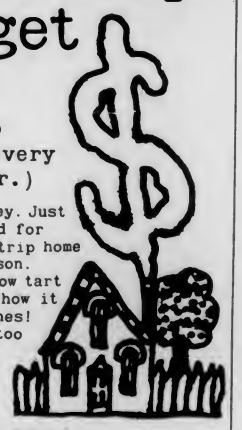
IFC PRESENTS:

1967 GREEK WEEK CONCERT

The Temptations

—and—

Jack E. Leonard



Sunday, April 23, 1967 $2.50

2:30 p. m. Curry Hicks Cage

Win a free trip home to get money!

(Or enough Sprite to throw a loud party every night for a semester.)

Don't write home to get money. Just write a college newspaper ad for Sprite. You may win a free trip home to ask for the money in person.

What should your ad say? How tart and tingling Sprite is. And how it roars! Fizzes! Bubbles! Gushes! And tastes! (And how!) Not too sweet. Not too innocent.

PRIZES

1st PRIZE $500 IN TRAVELERS CHECKS or 5,000 BOTTLES OF SPRITE

100 PRIZES OF $25 IN DIMES

...so if you can't go home in person, you can use the telephone to make your point.

RULES

Write your ad the way you think would interest college newspaper readers.

Give it a contemporary, sophisticated flavor. (A few swigs of Sprite will give you the idea --though you don't have to buy anything to enter.)

Neatness counts a little. Cleverness counts a lot.

Your ad can be any length--if it fits this space. (But remember you're not writing a term paper.)

Send each ad you submit to Ads for Sprite, P.O. Box 55, New York, New York 10046.

All entries become the property of The Coca-Cola Company. None will be returned. Judges' decision final. Entries must be received by May 2, 1967. Be sure to include name and address. Winners will be notified by May 24, 1967.

SPRITE, SO TART AND TINGLING WE JUST COULDN'T KEEP IT QUIET.

SPRITE IS A REGISTERED TRADE MARK OF THE COCA COLA COMPANY

S.U. Concert Features Popular Vocal Music

On Sunday, April 16th, the Student Union Arts and Music Committee will present the modern vocal stylings of Diane Tierney in concert with the Jack Tierney Trio. The concert will begin at 2:30 P.M. in the Commonwealth Room at the Student Union.

The concert will feature the best in popular vocal music over the past forty years. The program will include such old favorites as "The Nearness of You" and "You're Nobody Till Somebody Loves You" and such modern hits as "People," "Who Can I Turn To," The Beatles' "Yesterday" and "Once in a Lifetime."

Diane Tierney has been singing semi-professionally since her senior year of High School. Under the name of Diane Gadway, she performed brilliantly as Jennifer in Holyoke's production of Paint Your Wagon and became the vocalist with the Paul Roberts Orchestra.

In 1965 she became the featured vocalist with the Jack Tierney Trio. In August 1966 Diane Gadway became Diane Tierney and began what looks to be a long and fruitful musical and marital partnership with her boss, Jack Tierney.

Diane is now a special student here at the University of Massachusetts. She has her eye on a B. of Music sometime in the future but she says, "My husband Jack, and my future family will always come first."

We are all looking forward to what looks to be an exciting concert with Diane Tierney and the Jack Tierney Trio.

Grenadiers Compete in Drill Meet

On Sat., April 8th the Army ROTC drill team, the Grenadiers, travelled to Commonwealth Armory in Boston to compete in the Beanpot Invitational Drill Meet.

The team consisted of 18 men, and was commanded by Cadet Lt. Col. W. Douglas Vannah.

Major schools represented at the meet were, Seton Hall Univ., Penn Military College, and the Flying Redmen of UMass.

Future activities will include appearances at Providence, R. I., on May 29, and the Spring Military Review here at the University.

If You See
News in the Making
Dial
"Hot Line"
545-2550

NOTICES

PRE-MED CLUB
On Wednesday, April 19, in Morrill 203, Alan Bulatsky, a medical student at U Vermont Medical School will speak to UMass students on medical school admissions.

BAND MEETING
On April 18, at 7:30 p.m. in Old Chapel Auditorium, there will be the Annual University Bands Meeting.

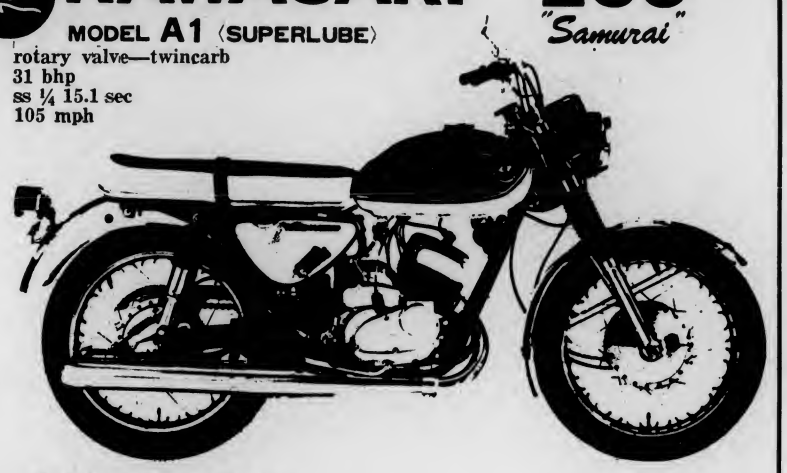
SPEED READING
The last session of speed reading will be given from April 3 - May 2 on Mon. and Tues. nights, from 7 - 8 p.m., in the Education Bldg., Rm. 125.

SCUBA CLUB
There will be a beginner's check-out dive on Wed., April 19. It will leave the Cage at 1 p.m. Bring your own (or borrowed) wet suit, the club will supply the rest. If you plan to get certified, you must come. Call Steve Garanin or Steve Plies to be signed up.

COED CAR WASH
A cool coed car wash will be held in front of the SU tomorrow morning between 9 and 2. Lovely ladies will be present and all are invited to cleanse their car for the nominal cost of $.99. It is sponsored by the Seaboard and Blade, and promises to be a good scene.

EDUCATION CLUB
On Tues., April 18 at 7:45 P.M. there will be a debate and open discussion between representatives of the American Federation of Teachers and the National Education Association, in the School of Ed. Auditorium. All are welcome. Refreshments will be served.

UNIVERSITY CHRISTIAN WORSHIP
On April 16, at 11:00 a.m. in Mahar Aud., services will be held. Theme is "The Detached American."



SPA
On Sat., at 7:00 a.m. the busses will be leaving in front of the S.U. for the Spring Mobilization in New York City. Some tickets still left-on-sale Friday in S.U. lobby.
Friday, all day, on the South Terrace of the S.U. there will be an all-day teach-in happening. Speakers include former UMass History Prof. David Leonard—plus poetry readings and lollipops.

ART CLUB
On April 16, at 7:45 p.m. in Memorial Hall Aud., there will be an art club meeting and another unexpected night.

LOST:
1965 Turners Falls high school ring, Initials FGS. Has sentimental value. Reward. Please contact Pat Milkey, 220 Lewis.
Brown notebook for "English Novel from Scott through Hardy." Please contact Betsy Mihovan, 228 Van Meter.

ENGAGEMENT:
Susan Kiernan, class of '69, Pi Beta Phi, to Richard Scogland, class of '68, Sigma Phi Epsilon.

KAWASAKI 250 "Samurai"
MODEL A1 (SUPERLUBE)
rotary valve—twincarb
31 bhp
ss ¼ 15.1 sec
105 mph

Models from 85 cc to 650 cc
SERVICE AND REPAIRS ON ALL MAKES
Parts — Accessories

USED BIKES:
'60 Indian 700 ..... $625
'65 Honda 305 Hawk ... 500
'65 BSA 350 395
'56 Matchless 500 325

HOURS: MON.-FRI. NOON-8 P.M.
SATURDAY 9 A.M.-8 P.M.
T T Shop, inc 51 S. Prospect St. 253-3285

TOBIN
President Class of '68

- past president maroon keys
- past student senator
- homecoming committee
- co-chairman winter carni queens committee
- university guide service
- freshmen orientation committee

He Can Do More!

FIRST AREA SHOWING
Deerfield Drive-In Theatre
Route 5 & 10
South Deerfield, Mass.
Tel. 665-8746
FRI. • SAT. • SUN.
PETER O'TOOLE — OMAR SHARIF
in
COLUMBIA PICTURES presents THE SAM SPIEGEL / ARNOLD LITVAK Production of
THE NIGHT OF THE GENERALS
FILMED IN PANAVISION® • TECHNICOLOR®
—also—
GLENN FORD — STELLA STEVENS
in
THE RAGE
SHOWTIME 7:30
Sun: Generals 7:30

SENIOR WEEK 1967

WED., MAY 31 — Mixer at the "Q" Club.

THURS., JUNE 1 — An Evening at the Hatfield Barn.
With folksinger ANITA SHEER and the comedy team of BURNS AND SCHREIBER, a clambake, smorgasbord, drinking and dancing.

FRI., JUNE 2 — A Fun Filled Day at the White House Inn.
(Bowling, swimming & drinking) followed by the senior banquet, class night and dancing.

SAT., JUNE 3 — A Relaxing Day at Forest Lake.
With swimming, food, games, dancing with a band and plenty of other surprises. In the evening a bonfire and concert with JUDY COLLINS. Plenty of free popular beverages will be served.

SUN., JUNE 4 — Commencement.

Reservations and deposit must be made at the ticket window in the Student Union by Friday, April 21.

REMEMBER—All senior week activities are free for seniors,
But your reservations MUST BE MADE or you will not be able to attend.

THE DEPOSIT IS $2.00

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Fire Safety

The recent charges of inadequate campus fire protection made by Amherst Fire Chief John Doherty were not as "recent" as the state's newspapers implied. The fire safety issue actually developed in October, at which time the Collegian urged that immediate corrective action be taken.

It is unfortunate that Chief Doherty's comments were over-emphasized by the press and that the Administration's reply was so hasty and strong. The result was a distorted picture of the entire situation.

Doherty's claim was that the administration was not cooperating with him. We disagree. Efforts in this area have been made, though hindered somewhat, as usual, by the bureaucracy which is characteristic of a large University.

- In Southwest, the short fire hoses have been replaced by full-length ones, and fire cabinets are now left unlocked.
- A direct line now connects the University operation to the Amherst Fire Department.
- The addition of a chemical storage building should prevent any danger from improper chemical storage.
- The Administration has proposed to present a new fire engine to the Amherst department.
- The establishment of a fire aacdemy on campus is now in the planning stage.

Unfortunately, many problems still remain.

Doherty contends that University construction complies with only the minimum building codes, a situation which is probably a result of the stress which has been placed on rapid expansion in the past few years. Fire exits are adequate, but Cornell University's recent tragic fire points out the need for sprinkler systems and proper evaluation procedures. Because of the high cost of such sprinkler systems, standpipes (interior water pipes for fire hoses) are often substituted; but no buildings on campus outside of the Southwest Complex have either standpipes or sprinklers. And while alarm systems are satisfactory, actual dorm evacuation procedures leave much to be desired.

It appears that the University is expanding with the expectation that the Amherst Fire Department will meet all emergencies. Yet in the past the department has been oriented mainly toward fighting brush and forest fires, and our latest addition of five high-rise dorms has placed Doherty and his crew in need of immediate upgrading. Perhaps a fire academy on campus will help to answer this need.

We strongly urge both the University and the Amherst Fire Department to admit their deficiencies, and to unite in an effort to improve fire protection at UMass.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

Friday's Day Editors: News Marjie Flannery, Edit. Nancy McBonig, Sports Brendon Beeham, Photo.

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Amherst Fire Chief Doherty: The campus situation reflects the inadequacies of the fire codes. "A fire resistant building is not fire proof, rather more like an oven of heat and smoke."

UMass Fire Marsha are in excellent sha will do what we hav protection for the lem."

Campus Fire Con

Town Officials Blast UMass Fire Conditions

by RICHARD LANE, Staff Reporter

"The overall situation is serious." "Fire safety at the University is a major problem." And, "some things could stand correcting."

These were some of the words used by John Doherty, Alan Torrey, and Ralph Garrett to describe fire safety at the University of Massachusetts campus, in recent separate interviews with the Collegian.

Doherty, local Amherst fire chief and most recent critic of UMass fire precaution methods, brought the entire campus in general under comment, including buildings, students, and even the state fire codes.

The latter point, the Commonwealth building codes, have been a major bone of contention with the Amherst fire leader in their relation to UMass structures.

All codes, according to Doherty, are the result of "past tragedies." And the general situation at this campus generally reflects the inadequacy of these codes, so says the chief.

Specifically cited by the fire fighter was the Orchard Hill complex.

These dorms have been charged of being "deficient" in their lack of standpipes and hoses, as well as lack of hose lines.

This situation results, in fact, because Commonwealth building codes do not require standpipes, with or without hoses (at least when the three year old set of buildings was built) as a "legal" requirement.

But lack of such hoses, lines and pipes, "hampers the Fire Dept. operation in these dorms," whether legal or otherwise.

In a letter to Univ. Fire and Safety Officer Edmund Goetze, June 9, 1966, the Chief remarked (of the Orchard), (fire protection is) "rudimentary, consisting only of a manually operated local alarm system without locating panel and portable extinguishers."

The fire leader was quick to point to Amherst fire codes which would require fire lines and standpipes for all buildings, regardless of floor number. But the chief went on that the town of Amherst has no charge of enforcement of UM fire codes.

Mr. Doherty (said) that it was not only the Orchard Hill dorms, but other dorms and buildings on the campus such as Butterfield, Van Meter, Southwest Towers, Quadrangle and S.U. which also were inadequate in one way or the other.

Many of these buildings are "well designed" and "first class," but that, "a fire resistant building is not fire proof, rather more like an oven of heat and smoke. Superior construction and adequate means of egress in no way provide complete fire safety for the student population of these buildings.

Furthermore, according to Doherty, one must, "evaluate other fire protection aspects than concrete construction." By this he means fire prevention aspects (non-combustible furniture, fire drills, etc.) and fire control aspects (sprinkler systems, hoses, standpipes, etc.).

The local fire leader labeled more than inadequate state building codes as the reason for sub par fire conditions on this campus.

One of these reasons is that the University is under great pressure to build as fast and as good and as inexpensive as possible. And as a result it is receiving a minimum of minimum fire safety.

Coupled with this is an apathetic and overconfident attitude that UMies in general have regarding the situation. The chief stated that one must not be of a "Titanic" mind and that fire can, in fact, happen here (Abigail Adams House four years ago).

In general, then, remaining specifics on various campus conditions ran as follows: (by the chief)

- Butterfield and Van Meter (as well as other dorms on the hill) are in worse shape than the Orchard. The parking lot to But-

(Continued on page 9)

Editor's Note: It has bee legian first began reporting o pus. Since that time the deb Officials and Amherst fire UMass' fire security is still

Here we have attempted troversy, bringing the opposi wish to add fuel to the fire. University and Amherst auth an adequate solution before further prolongment only incr

Conservation building isn't ground, destroying University work of two art graduate stu

Cornel

by GORDON A. DAVIDSON
Senior Reporter

The lack of a sprinkler syst and a heat controlled fire ala were two of the factors in Cornell fire which killed persons by asphyxiation, acco ing to the Cornell Daily Sun, student newspaper.

There were no exits in building except through a c tral door, and those who escap jumped from windows on the fi and second floors. Many of windows on the second and th floor were too small for stude to escape through. Univers officials stated that a sprink system "had been ordered".

There are no standpipes in of the dorms, none of which ceed six stories, according the Sun. There is also no vol teer fire department on the ca pus. Sun editors are concern over the lack of proper exits sprinkler systems in other dor

The cause of the fire is being investigated, and the St Senate subcommittee has laun ed a probe of fire safety pro sions at colleges throughout state.

Eight Cornell University s dents and an associate profes died in the fire Wednesday.

l Goetzl: "I think we pe. If we're guilty we e to do. Supplying fire high-rise is no prob-

State Fire Marshall Garrett: Any failure is on the part of the architects. There is "no unusual fire hazard that might develope rapidly on such a blooming campus."

troversy Still Rages

n over six months since the Col- the issue of fire safety on cam- te has raged between Universit authorities and the question of unsolved.
to present both sides of the con- ng views face to face. We dod't Rather we hope to compell both orities to work together towards the academic year ends. Any ases the danger to UM students.)

uite conserved as it burns to the theatre equipment and two years' lents.

DuBarro Says Buildings Completely Fire Safe

by DON EPSTEIN, Staff Reporter

"Those buildings are in A-1 condition. I wouldn't certify them unless they were completely safe." So said Dominic DuBarro, State Building Inspector, in an interview from his Springfield office. It is Mr. DuBarro's responsibility to approve each new building on campus before it is occupied.

DuBarro feels that there is no major problem of fire saftety on the UMass campus. Asked to comment on Amherst Fire Chief John Doherty's charges, DuBarro remarked that while Doherty has been in Amherst for only one year, he as State Building Inspector, has been working on the UMass campus for over six years. DuBarro also noted that Amherst "didn't even have a Building Inspector until a year ago."

An Amherst Town Law requires that buildings over five stories have standpipes. The new 22 story Southwest Towers do have standpipes. However, the seven story Orchard Hill dormitory complex does not. Massachusetts state law does not require standpipes in buildings of that height. However, DuBarro told the Collegian that "99% of all buildings over five stories have standpipes." Concerning student safety in the Orchard dormitories, he said, "I don't care whether there are standpipes or not, these buildings are safe."

DuBarro said that UMass students don't live according to the minimum safety standards. He said "Massachusetts is way ahead of other states in building codes."

The Collegian also questioned the University Fire Marshall, Edmund Goetzel, concerning student safety. Goetzel said that Doherty's charge that no fire drills are held on campus is "ridiculous and untrue." According to Goetzel, fire drills are held in each dorm at the beginning of each semester.

Goetzel reports that the University has a complete fire drill program which includes familiarizing the students with the sound of the fire alarm as well as a special training programing, (for counselors, heads of residences, and night watchmen. He also noted that most New England colleges don't have any fire drill program.

Goetzel told the Collegian that he didn't think Chief Doherty's charge that some fires haven't been rported to him was true. He said, "When there is a fire, it goes to Chief Doherty."

Goetzel also said that he didn't think there was a problem for fire trucks to reach campus buildings. He said that, "if delivery trucks can reach these buildings every day, fire trucks can reach them in an emergency."

He concluded by saying, " Charges have been made, the State Fire Marshall came. If we're guilty of any violations we'll take care of them."

CANDIDATES FOR CLASS OFFICE

The Collegian will devote space to a Candidates' Forum on April 19. All statements must be typed at 60 spaces, double - spaced, and may not exceed 16 lines in length. Deadline 1 p.m. Sun., Apr. 16.

ll Blaze Linked to Inadequacies em rm he ne rd- he

he en- ed st he rd nts ty ler ny ex- to in- m- ed nd ns. till ate ch- vi- he tu- sor

Eleven other persons, eight of them girl students, suffered from smoke inhalation but none was considered in serious condition.

Among the dead students were three who were taking part in a six-year experimental course for top-ranked freshmen seeking doctorate degrees.

A university spokesman said the two-story, cinder-block building on the edge of the city near the campus housed 71 persons, including 43 in the experimental program.

The bodies were discovered in hallways, rooms and in the lobby.

Sheets dangling from modern horizontal paned windows indicated an escape route used by more than a score of the students.

A policeman among the first on the scene told a newsman there was no fire visible from the outside of the building but "people were hanging out of all the windows."

Tufts University, according to a fire official there, has recently completed an updated water supply system, following the State Building Code. The Official stated that the key to fire-fighting is adequate water pressure, hydrants, building detection, building safety, education of personnel, evacuation and checkoff system for occupants.

Other important factors are the sophistication of the fire system, and the immediate notification of the fire department by the student or faculty in case of fire, the official noted. The position of the UMass campus concerning old buildings is not unique the official noted. It is a question of whether old buildings should be taken down and remodeled. It is also important to coordinate security officials (police) and the fire department.

Fires are not immune to this campus. Just four years ago Abigail Adams, recently razed, was gutted by a fire in which many students lost their belongings. Recently, AEPi was destroyed by flames.

UMass Volunteers' Role Increases with Expansion

by DAVID REID
Staff Reporter

An integral part of the Amherst Fire Department is the sixteen man U Mass Volunteer Fire Department. First organized in 1956, the Volunteers play a role of increasing importance with the rapid expansion of the University.

Activities of the force fall into two general areas of responsibility. The first lies with a mutual response to fire alarms with the Permanent and Call Forces of the Amherst Fire Department, under Chief John Doherty. The second area consists of fire prevention "details" on campus, under Edmund Goetzel, University Fire Marshall.

Fire prevention details consist of a recommended number of Volunteers assigned to cover events of campus where the size of an audience creates a hazard to life. The most common events covered are athletic events, plays, and concerts.

Volunteers are compensated by the University for Details on campus, but receive no compensation for responses to the Town of Amherst.

An RSO-sponsored group, these Volunteers receive a small budget. Money for equipment comes from University funds as of this year, and expenditures to date for such items as uniforms, protective gear, portable communication systems, and breathing apparatus, total approximately $7000.

Chief Doherty is presently in favor of expanding the force to 20 members with a subsequent addition of some new officers. Goetzel is desirous of having the Volunteers inspect campus buildings for present and potential fire hazards on a regular basis.

Doherty conducts drills and training sessions for the Volunteers to assure they are knowledgeable in the complexities of the fighting. Volunteer Chief John Proudman and other members of the force pass on to new members valuable techniques and practices, learned by experience under the Amherst Fire Department.

Membership in the Volunteer force is open to all UMass and Stockbridge students with approximately six positions open in September.

Amherst Town Officials Request More From UMass

Town meeting members of Amherst last month voted to have $12,173 from their budget cut, thereby telling UMass to cut its own operating budget if it wanted increased fire protection. The sum was needed to pay eight fulltime firemen for the last portion of 1967.

UMass officials have said that they can make no promises about monetary contributions for the town's fire department operating budget because such appropriations must go through state legislative channels.

However, the University announced that it will immediately begin to recruit 21 male employees who will join the staff on the understanding that they will also be "call" firemen for the Amherst fire department. In addition, the University has hired an expert to represent it in hearings before a joint legislative committee for the establishment of a state fire academy on campus.

UMass is doing everything it possibly can do to promote further cooperation between its fire unit and that of the town. It has offered Amherst permanent loan of a 1,000 gallon fire truck pumper costing $30,000. But as far as contributing to the operating budget of the Amherst Fire Department is concerned, it must await word from the legislature in Boston.

Fire Protection:

How will the need be filled?

by NEIL GIROUX
Staff Reporter

Fires are the concern of all public administrators. The recent tragic fire at Cornell University has brought this fact forward in the minds of the administration here at UMass.

Fire danger and the lack of fire protection available here at the University have not yet reached a critical level, but there are many potential dangers in existence.

Morrii Science Center has no storage facilities for combustable or volitile liquids — yet these things are being stored in the building. Orchard Hiil does not have the water pressure at the fire plugs to meet the standards of the National Fire Protection Association.

There is only one accessable hydrant near Thatcher House and during the winter the use of this is doubtful. In the Butterfield-Van Meter area there are only two hydrants and one is on the dead end of a line and thus the pressure could well be below the amount to fill a 2½ inch fire department hose. There is not a fire hydrant in close proximity to Morrill and the building has no sprinklers.

The Orchard Hill complex does not have standpipes (built in vertical pipes to carry high pressure water to each floor) and the Amherst fire department doesn't have a ladder capable of reaching the top floors of these structures.

Amherst Fire Chief John Doherty recently pointed to these and other problems at the University. Occasionally, water is shut off temporarily and roads in construction areas are re-routed without his knowledge. He has pointed out in recent public statements that this poses a severe threat to the fire safety of the University. On one occasion, his men had to stop their trucks and remove a road barricade while on a fire run. Most of these problems, Chief Doherty feels, have resulted in a lack of review by the building authority and a breakdown in communication between the University and the Fire Department.

On the subject of Morrill, Doherty has recommended that steps be taken to provide a secure storage place for the volatile chemicals and provide a means to control any fires or explosions that might be caused by them. A closed carbon dioxide system would provide the means of control. To emphasize his contention that there is a serious lack of review, he points out that the stove hoods in the dining commons are equipped with closed systems.

University officials acknowledge that dangers do exist and indicate a strong willingness to work toward solving these difficulties.

Trustee George Pomerford, Chairman of the UMass Building Authority, states that the Au-

(Continued on page 9)

Campus Comment

12345678

To the Editor:

I find myself in fearful agreement with Ogilvie and Greving on the amount of obscenity on campus. Those 69 buttons are surely obscene! And I have heard even cruder words used in normal speech! O and G went pretty far but they did not go all the way and I do not know why. The most odious smut, all the more dangerous because of its subtlety, is the obscene title of the events — I refer to "CAMPUS CHEST WEEK"!

There are few on campus unaware of the obvious implications. Soon, that is all you think about. You see beer barrels. You make Freudian slips. You slip pennies in the slots (no puns, please). Then the events are loaded with libido—semi-nude wrestling matches with champs of both ,(well, you know) and dances of the writhing modern kind between both (well, you know). Plus a fashion show, cookie sales, shoe shines—staffed by sensual U-Mie females. Need I suggest more?

Mr. Editor, another DAY of Charles Close would have produced TWO campus chest weeks! Please start a petition to have a committee draw up a list of approved names for events, a list of suitable events, and a list of suitable button credoes. Another annual chest week and we will be morally bankrupt.

Wayne Soini
ID #1234578

P.S.—But this year let's go financially bankrupt for Jimmy Fund, Cancer Foundation, Muscular Distrophy, Leukemia Society, Multiple Sclerosis, March of Dimes. Charity covers a multitude of sins.

Don't Be a Sheep

To the Editor:

"There are, besides, eternal truths, such as Freedom, Justice, etc., that are common to all States of society. But Communism abolishes eternal truths, it abolishes all religion and all morality, instead of constituting them on a new basis; it therefore acts in contradiction to all past historical experience."

The foregoing is a quote from the Communist Manifesto, it gives only the briefest insight into the communist doctrine, but says enough so that anyone who values such things as Freedom, Justice, Religion and Morality will want no part of it.

I am sure that the vast majority of readers do not support Communism, so I ask then, why support the April 8-15 "Vietnam Week" which is supported, in part, by the Communist Party of the United States?

One would also do well to take a closer look at the "Students for Political Action" and the "Faculty Committee on War and Peace" to find out just why they support a demonstration which the Communist Party of the United States is helping to support.

Don't become one of the "sheep" assembling in Sheep Meadow; instead, you might find it more valuable to do some independent research on Vietnam so as to be able to express Your own views on the situation—not those of a few demonstrators.

Jeffery B. Black
James D. Salter

In Appreciation

To the Editor:

On behalf of the New England Branch of the Malawi Students' Association in the Americas, I thank you very much for helping to publicize our "University of Malawi Book Drive" through your medium of communication.

We shall long treasure and remember your kindness and cooperation.

S. M. K. Mughogho
Secretary|Treasurer

Vietnam Statistics

To the Editor:

In his editorial, "No Other Alternative" Mr. Dean cites the often cited figure of "11,000 counted and many more uncounted" as "the number of civilians killed by attacks of the National Liberation Front." According to the Department of State pamphlet "Viet-Nam in Brief", "an estimated 25,000" civilians and officials have been killed by the Viet Cong since 1960."

Bernard B. Fall, in "The Statistics of War" tells us that "Hugh Campbell, a former Canadian member of the International Control Commission in Viet-Nam, estimated that the total number of civilians killed in Viet-Nam between 1961 and 1964 at about 160,000. From these figures one can estimate that about 135,000 civilians have been killed in Viet-Nam by persons other than the Viet Cong or National Liberation Front.

Jacob L. Adler

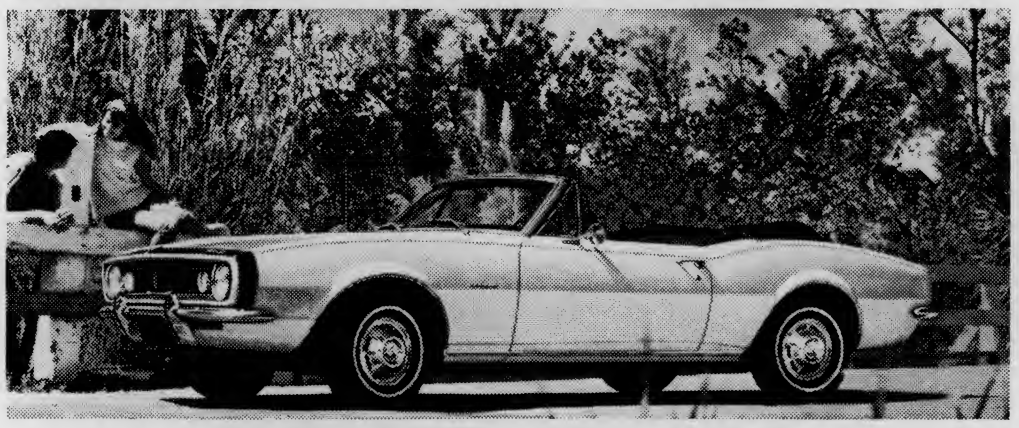
Library Lament

To the Editor:

On January 4 I returned a book to Goodell Library. Although it was due Jan. 2, I did not have to pay a fine because of the "days of grace" given by the library. When I returned the book, the girl behind the desk began to take out the carbon slip. Unfortunately, I had misplaced it and there was no slip.

Nevertheless, she took the book from me, assuring me that she would take care of it even though the slip was missing. I thought about getting a receipt for the book, but shrugged off that thought and left. Ten days later I received a notice from Goodell informing me that I owed $2.50 in fines for this book. I went the next day to explain the situation, and they said they would search for it again.

Their searches were futile, they did not find the book and sent me another notice. I made another trip to explain the situation again, but they hardly believed me. I refused to pay for a book which I know I returned and which is probably misshelved. I received two more notices including a bill for the price of the book ($5.00) plus $2.50 in fines.



To pay for it would be almost admitting I never returned it, but I have no proof except that I know somewhere in the halls of the library lies this forsaken book, which is going to cost me $7.50.

Perhaps it is only the mistake of one member of the library staff, but this error shows a lack of an organized system. It seems their greatest efficiency lies in sending out bills. If a student returns a book to the library, the staff should be able to return it to its rightful location. I'd like to search for it myself.

Marilyn R. Smith '68

Now! CAMARO PACESETTER SALE!

Camaro's lower, wider, heavier, roomier than any other car at its price. And starting today, there's another reason to buy right away: specially equipped Camaros at special savings. You get all this: the big 155-hp Six, de luxe steering wheel and extra interior trim, wheel covers, whitewalls, bumper guards, front and rear, wheel opening moldings and body side striping.

NO EXTRA COST!

Now, during the sale, the special hood stripe and floor-mounted shift for the 3-speed transmission are available at no extra cost! See your Chevrolet dealer now and save!

CAMARO CHOSEN 1967 INDIANAPOLIS 500 PACE CAR

CHEVROLET GM

COMPLETE SERVICE
SAFE
MOVING
DEPENDABLE
STORAGE
EXPERT PACKING

Call
GLEASON
MAYFLOWER
Pearl St., Northampton
584-6413—for estimate

Student Union . . .

Trustees Vote S.U. Tax Increase

by PAT PETOW
Senate Reporter

A $10 increase in the Student Union fee, to $30 annually, was voted on March 16 by the Board of Trustees.

The fee will be used to pay for the new Campus Center, which is a self-liquidating project of the UMass Building Authority. The Campus Center is an addition to the Student Union to serve the needs of both expanded student activities and the campus conference program.

The second facility has been planned by the University over the last several years. After the Center came under the jurisdiction of the Building Authority on June 6, 1966, its progress has moved along quickly. It is expected to be completed by mid-October 1968. Since next year's seniors won't be able to take advantage of the Center, they will not be charged for it. This exemption was in keeping with a Student Senate resolution of May 21, 1963 supporting "the idea that a new addition be added to the present Student Union."

An undergraduate garage will also be a part of the Center, but it will be financed through the parking fees.

Th Center will feature overnight accommodations for conference participants. One hundred double rooms will compliement the various dining facilities and meeting rooms.

Asked to report on the course of Rep. James Nolan's bill to prohibit public authorities from operating motels and hotels, Dean of Administration Leo F. Redfern said Thursday that the bill is still in committee. But Redfern, the chairman of the Campus Center Building Committee, told the Collegian that it is Nolan's interpretation that the bill does not apply to the UMass plans.

While a test case could be brought by a taxpayer, he expressed the belief that the University action in going ahead would be sustained.

The rationale for taxing students to finance what is partially housing for conferences is that the conferences are expected to provide the student building with operation funds, Haroid Watts, Assistant Director of the Student Union, explained.

No part of the building will be limited to faculty and staff use only.

Building facilities will include:

• At the second level below ground a large ballroom with a stage, overlooked by a balcony. Also, expandable conference rooms, student activity offices, receiving and building service, storage and supply areas.

• At the level just below ground a browsing and listening room, huge lounge, cafeteria, snack bar, large university store, and other facilities including a post office.

• On the plaza level an outdoor soda fountain for warm weather use on the terrace and inside the building hotel and conference registration desk and offices.

• On floors two through five 100 double guest rooms and four efficiency apartments, providing accommodations for 200 guests at a time. Two of the floors will have typical hotel rooms and the other two will have studio furniture so that they can be used as living rooms during the day and converted to sleeping quarters at night.

• On floors six and seven conference rooms and offices to serve them.

• On floor eight a high quality cafeteria and smaller private dining room.

• On floor nine a formal restaurant that will seat 150 people. A terrace will provide outdoor dining during the warm weather.

On the top floor machinery, including air conditioning equipment that will service the entire building.

Marcel Breuer and associate Herbert Beckhard designed the building so that four more floors can be added later.

The Student Union tax increase was announced at the April 4 meeting of the Student Senate by E. T. Mellor, who is responsible for reading Board of Trustees documents and reporting on them to the Senate.

FIRE PROTECTION . . .

(Continued from page 7)

thority has been very meticulous in meeting the standards of the Massachusetts Building Codes. He recalled that the Trustees have worked closely in the past with Chief Doherty in solving fire problems and have attempted to follow his recommendations. As an example, the Trustees purchased additional lengths of hose for the Towers so that the hoses on each corridor would reach the last room on each floor.

Mr. Pomerford feels that the Trustees cannot "sweep Chief Doherty's latest claims under the rug", and that the Trustees will probably take up the fire issues at the next meeting of the Board.

In recent months, the University has agreed to buy a fire truck for the Town and to authorize the addition of twenty part-time firemen at the University's expense.

From the University's point of view, however, everything is not cut and dried. One Administration official, who declined to be quoted stated that there are differing opinions among the experts as to the needs of UMass. Some feel that prevention should be the paramount consideration; others claim that protection is the first order. Another outstanding problem is—money. Appropriations through the State bureaucracy are at best slow. There is no reason to believe that the case of immediate fire protection will expedite matters.

Political considerations are also a factor. If the State makes outright grants to the town of Amherst for fire protection aid, this could set a precedent for other towns with equally valid reasons to request State aid. The State does not seem able to accept this burden. A possible solution is for the University to render aid in the form of grants for specific use, as is being done at present.

Regardless of what steps are taken in the area of providing increased and adequate fire protection for the University, there will never be enough. A fire cannot be predicted. It appears. It seems, however, that the fire officials of Amherst and the UMass administration are fully aware that critical situations do exist and are expending every possible effort to make the Campus fire safe.

HUTCHINS . . .

(Continued from page 1)

community, Hutchins emphasized. Those in the community should think together. "Everything in the university is to be seen in the light of everything else," he added.

In the ancient ideal of the university, he explained, "research and teaching are identical." The "students are capable of independent intellectual work." The university in an intellectual community can restore this ancient ideal.

In the American tradition the university is a mirror, not a beacon, Hutchins said.

A university depends "on human contacts and the President has to be chosen by the intellectual community," he noted. However, there are tendencies all over the world that lead to speculation that the university will "cease to be the center of independent thought and will become a vast industry." "If this prospect is realized the loss to humanity will be severe," he stated. Because of this change from intellectual study in universities to the growth of vast institutions of industry and knowledge, Hutchins was led to conclude that "the University of the Moon is far-off."

Town Officials Protest . . .

(Continued from page 6)

terfield is usually blocked by cars and the fire hydrants for Van Meter are on a dead end road. And Baker dorm has neither standpipes nor sprinkler, as most low rise dorms.

• Morrill Science Center has no hydrants and the Quadrangle has its located in the back, almost inaccessible to the fire department.

• The S.U., grad center and Goodell Library also need revision.

• In Marshall Hall and other science buildings volatile chemicals have been stored carelessly under stairways, with enough potential to completely destroy the structure and its occupants. (The University has been building a storage center to alleviate this danger, however).

• Water supply is adequate here in general, but (as in the Quad., and Van Meter) placement, availability, and spacings of hydrants is poor.

• University control of water mains is substandard. They have been completely shut off without notification of the fire dept.

• Roads and access (as in Butterfield) are under fire by the chief, both being poor due to improper parking by students, faculty and others.

• Evacuation policies and procedures (generally suffering from poor student response, as in Southwest), need review, as well as student activities such as burning trash can contents, bulletin boards and doors, and hotplates in rooms, etc.

In summation the chief stated that: "our major problem is to put the fire out. We cannot evacuate these buildings. It woul take five to ten times the amount of men. Fires are a functic of people. The more people you pack into limited buildings the more probalilities (of a fire) increase."

Amherst Town Manager Alan Torrey also commented on his view of general fire conditions on the campus. Along with Doherty he agreed that the problem was a major one, and that there was, "room for improvement everywhere."

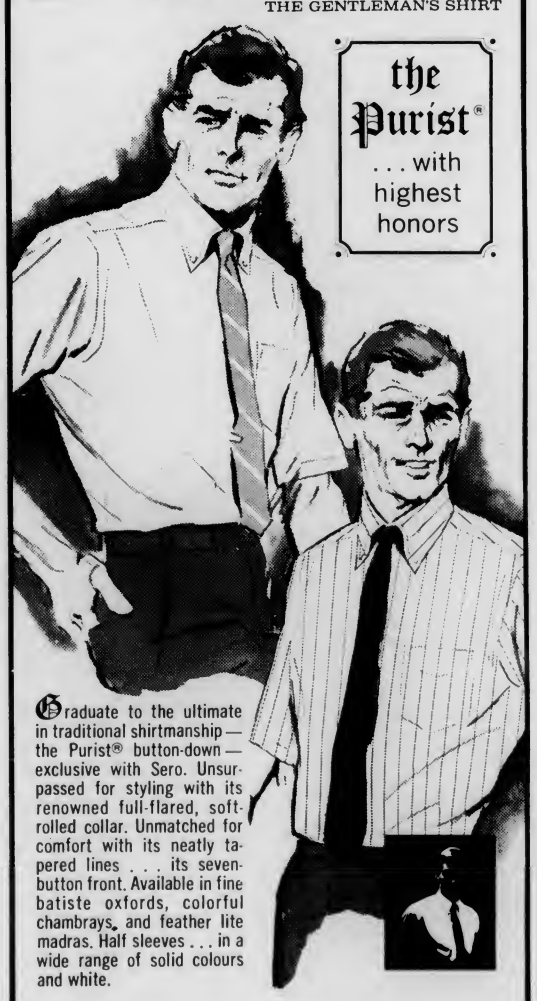
In a telephone interview with the Collegian, State Fire Marshall Ralph Garrett stated his office is presently working on an investigation and report on conditions at the campus to be reported to Massachusetts Gov. John Volpe.

Although he believed that some points did need correction at the campus, the state official stated that there was no "unusual fire hazard that might develop rapidly in such a blooming campus."

As to their views on Doherty himself, Torrey stated that the town of Amherst was satisfied with his work, and believes the chief to be, dedicated and conscientious. We support him in his work."

Garrett said that through personal observation and discussion with the local fire leader, he believes the man to be "a competent fellow," who would, "do what is right. He's very responsible."

PREMIERE OPENING NEW CINEMA 3 . . . .
"THE BIBLE" . . . WED. APRIL 19th 8 P.M.!
Reserved Seats at Boxoffice or by Mail!



20th Century-Fox presents
THE DINO DE LAURENTIIS Production of
THE BIBLE ...In The Beginning
Filmed in D-I-50 Color by De Luxe

TICKETS AT ALL SEARS STORES OR
Mats. 2:15, Wed., Sat., Sun.
All Eves. at 8:15
Melody Corner
Northampton - Amherst
CALL 733-5131
CINEMA 3
RIVERDALE RD., WEST SPRINGFIELD

BAGELS and LOX
BRUNCH
11 A.M. SUNDAY, APRIL 16
COMMONWEALTH ROOM
at 12 Noon Mr. Fred Andelman of B'nai B'rith
Anti Defamation League will speak
HILLEL MEMBERS . . . . . .35¢
NON-MEMBERS . . . . . .75¢

Sero
THE GENTLEMAN'S SHIRT

the Purist® . . . with highest honors

Graduate to the ultimate in traditional shirtmanship — the Purist® button-down — exclusive with Sero. Unsurpassed for styling with its renowned full-flared, soft-rolled collar. Unmatched for comfort with its neatly tapered lines . . . its seven-button front. Available in fine batiste oxfords, colorful chambrays, and feather lite madras. Half sleeves . . . in a wide range of solid colours and white.

AVAILABLE AT
House of Walsh, Inc.
MAIN STREET
AMHERST, MASS.

Indoor Practice Hampers Frosh Nine; Opener Sat.

by ROGER KIPP
Staff Reporter

"It's going to be hard to tell until we play," says freshmen baseball coach Arlan Barber of this year's squad. Rain, wet grounds and cold weather have kept the Little Redmen indoors so far, but they hope to be ready for their first encounter against American International at Springfield tomorrow at 2 p.m.

With the only display of their talent being the limited hitting, fielding and throwing drills inside the Cage, it is difficult for Coach Barber to predict who's going to do what, but it appears as though he has come up with a good team.

There is plenty of talent on the mound. John Kitchen heads the staff and will get the starting nod against A.I.C. Kitchen was impressive as a high school hurler at Chicopee Comprehensive. Jerry Dobek, a lefty hailing from North Brookfield is another good starter. Rounding out the staff are Barry Newborn, Ed Coonan, Mike Sadlowski and Tom Sinnamon, a hard throwing righthander from Bedford.

The infield is headed up by first sacker Bob Hansen and shortstop Jack Medeiros. Medeiros is the type of guy who can do it all, using a good bat to go with his slick fielding.

Hansen knows how to swing too. The big guy smacked the ball at a fantastic .510 clip last year at Boston Latin High, the highest average in the state, and then proceeded to hit well in Boston's Park League and the Cape Cod league. Hansen has been rated right along with another Boston area great: Bob Guindon, whom the Red Sox thought enough of to give $125,000.

Third base has been nailed down by Tim Berringer, while the battle for second continues between two solid ball players, Charlie Espanet and Steve Stamford.

The outfield picture is muddied. Coach Barber declined to name his starters, saying only that Ron Swiatiowski of Palmer has picked up one of the three berths.

Chuck Newell of East Longmeadow will handle most of the catching duties. His back-up is Jeff Pikun.

Pitching is the key. While the hitting will be better than last year, Coach Barber must get some competent performances from the hill to make his first season a successful one.

WATER WIZARDS — First place finishers in 1967 intramural swimming championships were (front row, from left) Tierney, Toyama, Veale, Belanger, all of the Grayson Aces 200-yard medley relay team. Ted Hoague (KS), 50-yard freestyle and diving champ, (back row) Joyce, Senior, Glackin, Kamila, all of the ASP 200-yard freestyle relay team.

INTRAMURALS

ZN Nips TC; KS Rips QTV

by TOM CONUEL
Staff Reporter

A full slate of softball games was played Wednesday night on the intramural fields. In fraternity action ZN edged TC, 5-4, with Spry getting two hits for ZN.

KS buried QTV, 13-7, as Vacarro led the KS attack with two hits. Sam smashed PSD, 9-2 thanks to a sterling performance by pitcher Browstein.

In the dorm league the Lemons, led by Pratt and Pedelton, downed the Rams, 8-2. Phippard of the Panthers pitched well in leading his team over the Hawks, 5-1.

The Grayson Flaming A's unleashed a 15-hit attack as they bombed the Cherries, 12-7. McCarran collected three hits in leading the Aces to a 7-2 victory over the Birches.

Rounding out the dorm action the Hi-Los topped the Grants, 11-1, the Maroons clubbed the Hoovers, 9-1, and the Maples behind the shutout pitching of Dreyer blanked the Panthers, 4-0.

In the independents, the Chem Club blasted the Selohsas, 11-8, the Bytes overwhelming the Pumpmen, 10-3, and the CIA ripping the Old Timers, 16-1.

In the final independent game the Trojans bested the Bismarks, 14-3, as Bob "Windmill" Perry hurled a one-hitter.

In one of the best soccer games of the night, the Smashers tied the Seagrams, 1-1, on Martin Pikul's late goal. The Colts and Jaguars tied, 0-0, as did the Leopards and Cougars.

The Rams topped the Aces, 2-1, the Chestnuts edged the Grants, 1-0, and the Flaming A's and Hi-Los played a scoreless tie.

The Independent League had two games. Harry's Heroes rolled over the Puffs, 4-0, while the Diplomats and Chem Club tied in a scoreless contest.

Watch for the final segment of 'The Season That Was . . .' in Monday's Collegian

Spring Football Opens Monday

Head Football Coach Vic Fusia will welcome 59 candidates Monday for the opening day of spring practice sessions. Practices will continue until May 6, the day of the annual intra-squad game and a clinic for high school coaches, the largest of its kind in New England.

Fusia, who will enter his eighth UMass season next fall, says, "We'll use this spring practice to develop our offensive and defensive thinking and to discipline the freshmen. We can't let a minute go by wasted."

In the coming season, the Redmen will play Dartmouth, Rhode Island, Vermont and Rutgers at home and Boston University, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Maine and Boston College away. The Holy Cross series wil be resumed in 1968, giving UMass a 10-game slate.

The Fifth Column

by STEVE ROSS

They started Apr. 9, 1959, in Minneapolis, and ended Apr. ll, 1967, in Philadelphia. They were the greatest team in sports. They were the Boston Celtics.

During those eight consecutive title years, it became evermore apparent that the Celtics were more than a team; they were a way of life. They were molded by the best coach sports has ever seen, Red Auerbach, fused by a few superathletes, Russell, Cousey and Sherman, Ramsey, Heinsohn, Sam Jones and Havlicek, nurtured on pride and held together by adhesive tape.

Steve Ross

The 76ers didn't beat the Celtics alone, they had the best helper in the world (and I don't mean the refs), Father Time, who turned the lethal five-minute explosive offense into a run-and-hope type game. He took some of the spring from the legs of the aging stars. The foundation on which the team was built, Cousy, Sherman, Heinsohn, and Ramsey were numbers handing from the rafters, not guys on the court. Worst of all he took Red Auerbach off the bench.

* * *

In Auerbach the Celtics had a great one. He knew when to chew out his charges, when to console them, how to fire them up, and most of all, when to substitute. He manipulated his men like Heifitz playing his violin. Blaming the downfall on Russell's coaching is ridiculous. No one will hit a baseball as well as Ted Williams, and no one will coach basket ball like Red Auerbach.

In a world of impossible schedules, rabid fans, inferior officials, and unbelievable physical abuse the Celtics ruled. In football players are given 18 lbs. of armor-like equipment for protection. In basketball, players are given two sneakers, two socks, an athletic support and some monogrammed underwear. Yet both sports have violent collisions. The Celtics absorbed the punishment, dealt it out, and won.

* * *

No team could have more pride than the Celts. They could have quit so many times: in 1959, when they were 16 points down in the seventh game against Syracuse, in 1962, when they were 10 points behind Wilt's Warriors, again in '62, when L.A. had them down 3-2 and had a last-second shot hit the rim to force an overtime, in '66, when they were down, 2-1, to the Royals during the Eastern Semis before winning it. No one who was in earshot of Johnny Most will ever forget when "Havlicek stole the ball!" He stole the title. They never quit.

* * *

Let Philadelphia savor their victory. They deserve it because they were better. Not by much, but by enough. Next year will bring new hope, and new dedication. Perhaps Gen. Mgr. Arnold Auerbach will uncover a new gem like Sam Jones, grab another Johnny Havlicek, or pull off a trade like the one that brought Bailey Howell to start a new reign. The era has ended; it will never be matched.

AMHERST Cinema
LATE SHOW TONIGHT 11:30 P.M.
Not part of Regular Show
All Seats $1.25

THE RAPE
"A GREEK IMPORT"

Vote For JIM BERK
Vice-President
Class of 1970

The ART CLUB presents
"ANOTHER ONE"
Color — sound — mind-bender
with THE DRED and BOX
Sunday, April 16 — 7:45
Memorial Hall Auditorium
PUBLIC INVITED

-ARROW-
FENWAY CLUB
...the spin dry cotton shirt
Completely machine washable. Spin-dries to a wrinkle-free finish. Fashioned from the finest Dura-Neat® spin-dry cotton. Here's the luxury of 100% cotton with the convenience of wash and wear. "Sanforized Plus" fabric

Convertible cuffs in Chase collar or Tabber Snap
$5.00
THOMPSON'S
CLOTHING STORE

"Ralph Stoddard Knows the right people"

★ Elect ★
RALPH STODDARD
Vice Pres.
Class of '69

Wrestling Coach Barr: A Penchant For Winning--and a Bold Prediction

by TOM FITZGERALD
Sports Editor

Homer Barr didn't lose a wrestling match in high school. In his weight class he was the best in Pennsylvania.

At Penn State he won Eastern Intercollegiate Championships in the unlimited division during his sophomore and junior years, and only mononucleosis kept him from a third title as a senior. He ranked fourth, third and second in the nation during his collegiate years.

As a high school wrestling coach, he produced six unbeaten teams and none with a losing record in 15 seasons. During one stretch his teams won 64 straight dual meets, and that was in Pennsylvania's toughest wrestling district.

Barr hit his first loser this year, his first as UMass mat coach. His Redmen won only two of 10 dual matches.

The broad-shouldered fellow wears a smile, though, as he reviews the season and outlines his hopes for UMass' future wrestling efforts.

"In eight out of the 10 meets," he points out, "we were ahead of or tied with the opponent going into the 160-pound class."

HOMER BARR
Not bad for a beginnier.

UMass just lacked strength in the heavier divisions, he says.

But Barr has always been a winner, and he's confident that "Things are going to be looking up."

His words are as strong as his handshake: "The teams we play now are tough for us, but in a few years we're going to have to go to Pennsylvania and New York to play teams strong enough for us."

He has reason to be optimistic: his current recruiting record is six for six in schoolboy stars for next year's freshman class. That's not bad for a beginner.

"Wrestling is growing a little faster in Massachusetts than a lot of people think," he says in considering the sport at the high school level. "In eastern Mass. especially, there's quite a bit of enthusiasm for it."

Bay State wrestling still has a long way to go to rival that of Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey, where, Barr says, "they have to battle to schedule meets in places that will accommodate the crowds.

With not a little confidence, Barr predicts that "In eight to ten years, wrestling will be second only to football in Massachusetts." And the UMass program will benefit from the progress of the high schools, he reasons.

More fans will come, too. The Athletic Department thinks so anyway: it has tentatively scheduled some of the '68-69 meets in the Cage.

Barr feels that the general fan at UMass is "more aggressive than anywhere you go. I'm really interested in seeing what's going to happen in a few years."

NUTS TO YOU — Frank Scarpa successfully defended his United States heavyweight wrestling title by besting Bull Montana Wednesday night before 500 peanut throwing animals at the Cage. The match was the feature of the Campus Chest charity show sponsored by class of '69. A rumor that UMass wrestling coach Homer Barr offered Scarpa a full scholarship has not been verified.

LACROSSE . . .

(Continued from page 12)

played a desperate catch-up game in the fourth quarter but the Cardinals hurt themselves with poor stick-handling and bad passing. UMass took advantage of the situation, and soph Gary Vassar scored at 3:03 on a bouncer with an assist from Kalikow.

The final point for the Cardinals came when Dyer passed from behind the net to Stu Blackburn, who slammed the ball home.

Kalikow put the icing on the cake for UMass at 12:20 on a sensational play as he ducked past two defenders, spun and fired one in from the crease.

UMass outshot Wesleyan, 44-23, which indicates the strength of the Redman defense of Foley, Walt Alessi, Ira Yarmer and Tom Tufts. UMass goalie Bill Sinclair made several impressive saves.

With an even record at 1-1 UMass plays another tough team, Middlebury, next Wednesday in Vermont. Several former All-Americans will be in action in the Redmen's two exhibition games this weekend. Friday night UMass meets the Boston Lacrosse Club under the lights on the intramural field at 7:30 p.m., and Saturday night at 7 the Redmen play the Back Bay Lacrosse Club.

See Monday's COLLEGIAN for last segment of 'UM Hoop '66-'67'

Weird As It Seems, Home Track Meet

Because of the poor shape of the Holy Cross track, The UMass-Holy Cross track meet next Tuesday will take place at Amherst College. It will be the only home meet this year, in fact the only one in the two years since the old track was removed with Alumni Field. The field events will begin at 3 p.m. and the running events will get underway at 4.

It will therefore be the only chance for UMass fans to see most of the stars of the Yankee conference championship teams for the past two years.

Record-holding sprinter Steve Burrell and Conference 100 and 220 champ Art Larvey will be on hand in the dashes. Nationally ranked John Anderson, Diego Gonzales, and Bob Hasselbaum head the field in the quarter-mile, while Conference 880 champ Greg Bowman, Bill Thoms, and Gonzales run in the half-mile.

Conference champ and record-holding miler Terry Carpenter and two-mile title-holder Paul Hoss head the distance events with Steve St. Clair, Mike Sheeley, Charley Lang and Marc Gelinas backing up.

Jay Hall, Pete Moryl, Ted Davis and Don Wackwitz handle the hurdling chores (120-yard highs and 44-yard intermediates).

Bill Tindall, conference champ and record-holder in both the triple jump and high jump, will perform in his specialities, with John Lisack and Larvey backing him up. Court Bassett, Dave Shlatka, Tony Divver and Bill Wilen perform in the weight events.

The track team of course would greatly appreciate some fan support since this will be the only opportunity for many of the athletes to perform before a friendly gallery.

Caruso Nominated for Award

Al Caruso, a reserve quarterback for the UMass football team, was one of four senior college athletes nominated for the DeOrmond "Tuss" McLaughry Scholar-Athlete Award, it was announced yesterday by the Western Massachusetts Chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

Caruso hails from Brooklyn, N.Y., and has been Vic Fusia's backup signal caller for three years. Probably the highlight of his gridiron career was during the New Hampshire game last fall when he came into the game in the second half and sparked the drive that gave UMass a 14-7 win and its third Yankee Conference title in four years.

A Dean's list student, Caruso is a business major and a member of Kappa Sigma. He has also been intramural handball champion on three occasions during his undergraduate career at the University.

All campus "sports" are urged to attend the intercollegiate car wash being sponsored by the Scabbard and Blade tomorrow between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The price is $.99 and a bevy of lovely nubile chickies promises to make it well worth the cost.

FACTORY OUTLET

25 Market Street, Northampton

Sweaters for the Entire Family

Pullovers $6 to $11	values to $18
Ladies Cardigans $4.95	values to $7.95
Ladies Pullovers $3.95	values to $6.95
Cashmeres $11.95-$17.50	values to $30

MON. THRU SAT. — 10 AM.-5 P.M.
THURS. EVENING TIL 9:00 P.M.
Market St. is across from Jack August

MASS. CLASSIFIED

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED—Insertions will be accepted by the following deadlines: for Monday paper—12 noon, Friday; for Wednesday paper—12 noon, Monday; for Friday paper—12 noon Wednesday. Cost $1.50 per 3 insertions under 25 words. (Other prices on request.)

HELP WANTED

Math major with strong interest in the subject. Fascinating opportunity to work as analyst reporting to top executive. G & M Employment Service, 145 State Street, Springfield, Mass. 739-1133.

Management trainees with interest in manufacturing. Excellent opportunity for young men looking to the future. G & M Employment Service, 145 State Street, Springfield. 739-1133.

FOR SALE

1963 Vespa 125 cc 3 speed—only 6500 original miles, excellent condition one owner. Contact: Larry Martin, 253-3984.

Attn. A.F.R.O.T.C. winter & summer uniform, winter overcoat. Size 39L. Call 253-5969.

RCA 21-inch color TV in good condition. Will take best offer. Call 256-6846.

LOST

Glasses in Madras case. Margery Bancroft, c/o Tel. Ext. 5-2887 o 549-1258. Reward.

AUTOMOBILES

1960 Lambreta, new tires & cables engine excellent 150 cc, $90.00 Call William Brucken, 237 Baker, 546-6077.

WANTED

Male student is looking for partner for summer job cutting lawns in Amherst area. About $3 per hour. Call Bob, 665-3187 after 6:5'

OPPORTUNITIES

The U.N. has five official languages, U.N.E.S.C.O. has eight, the neutral international language abolishes this chaos. Join the Esperanto Club Wednesdays 8:30 Student Union.

Trainee—young man with good scholastic record to learn all functions of a leading industry. Training for a supervisory position. G & M Employment Service, 145 State Street, Springfield, Mass. 739-1133.

COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING PAYS

MORE CAN BE DONE...

"Dictators ride to and fro upon tigers which they dare not dismount. And the tigers are getting hungry."

More Can Be Done . . .
to unify the class—presently the officers and Exec. Council make all decisions without consultation. The students they represent are not asked for their opinions—Teddy McDonough will ask them.

More Can Be Done . . .
the Class must actively support the goals of the Student Life Committee which directly affects every one of its members—extension of parietals, student freedoms (personal, academic) — Teddy McDonough will support them.

More Can Be Done . . .
the proposed Winter Carnival is planned to be bigger, but how much better? Who is going to poll the class to see what entertainment and activities it will underwrite? Teddy McDonough will.

More Can Be Done . . .
there is a great impasse between the students and Faculty Senate—they (the students) are neither represented nor fully considered. Example, elimination of the "lame duck" class period after Christmas and lack of reading period. Teddy McDonough will make a positive effort on your behalf.

More Can Be Done . . .
by the class to seek out new areas in which it may effectively serve its members and the Univ. community. Teddy McDonough will seek them out.

More Can Be Done . . .
and Teddy McDonough and the newly united Class of 1969 will do it.

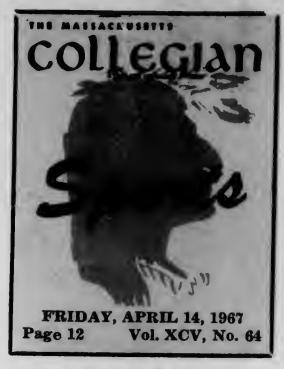
"United, there is little we cannot do in a host of new co-operative ventures. Divided, there is little we can do — for we dare not meet a powerful challenge at odds and split asunder."

Vote McDONOUGH–President '69

Redmen Open Yankee Slate Against Maine

Fence Up for Weekend Double-header

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter



A brand new outfield fence greets the UMass baseball team this afternoon as the Redmen's home season opens with a tough Yankee Conference battle against always-strong Maine at 3 p.m.

The two teams will tangle again tomorrow in the same

Something there is that doesn't love a wall.
Mending Wall* by Robert Frost

surroundings with game time at 1 o'clock. The varsity field is located on the northwest corner of the campus, just north of the Boyden intramural fields.

Maine finished in a three-way tie for the Conference title last year with UMass and UConn. This year the Black Bears are young, but talented, and Maine Coach Jack Butterfield hopes to be in the thick of the Conference race.

The Black Bears have played six games so far, winning four of them. They beat Bowdoin three times, split a pair with York University.

Maine lost a good deal of experience through graduation, especially with the departure of all-Conference shortstop Dick DeVarney, a fine all-around athlete.

George Ferguson, a strong hitter, will fill DeVarney's void at short. Speedy George Keaney, a Dedham native, is the third baseman, and Co-captain Norm Tardiff can play both catcher and outfielder.

Also returning from last year is junior outfielder Darryl Calkins who led the team in batting last spring as a soph.

Pitching promises to be a strong point for the Black Bears with the two top hurlers returning. Senior righthander Terry Ordway, who shares the captain's duties with Tardiff, was 4-4 last year.

Junior Gordon Engstrom posted a 5-3 mark last year with an earned run average of 1.94, sixth best in the nation. He and Ordway will probably be the starting pitchers this weekend.

TERRY ORDWAY

GEORGE FERGUSON

Black Bears here today, tomorow.

First base, second base and one outfield position will be filled by inexperienced players.

The two games will be crucial to the Redmen's hopes in the Yankee Conference. Next week they face their three toughest games, all away. UMass will visit Yan-Con favorite Connecticut Wednesday and then travel up to Vermont for two big weekend games.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL—vs. Maine (Home, Today, 3 p.m., and Saturday, 1 p.m.)

LACROSSE — vs. Boston Lacrosse Club (Home, Tonight, 7:30 p.m.) and Back Bay Lacrosse Club (Home, Saturday, 7 p.m.) (Exhibitions)

TENNIS—vs. A.I.C. (Home, Saturday, 2 p.m.)

TRACK—vs. Northeastern and Rhode Island (at Kingston, R.I., Saturday, 3 p.m.)

BASEBALL (Frosh)—vs. A.I.C. (at Springfield, Saturday, 2 pm.)

TRACK (Frosh)—vs. Northeastern and Rhode Island (at Kingston, R.I., Saturday, 3 p.m.)

O'Brien, Goffman Lead Crossemen by Wesleyan, 7-3

by TIM KELLEHER
Staff Reporter

Before an enthusiastic crowd of a few hundred, the UMass lacrosse team established itself as a New England powerhouse by defeating a strong Wesleyan team, 7-3, here Wednesday afternoon.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Neil Rennie

IRISH INVASION—UMass midfielder Kevin O'Brien's shot is blocked by Wesleyan goalie Len Bergstein in the second period of Wednesday's game. O'Brien had three goals in the game, which the Redmen won, 7-3.

Offensive honors for the impressive victory went to Co-captain Kevin O'Brien who tallied three goals and banged several shots off the bars of the goal. Helping to set up many of O'Brien's shots was soph Kevin O'Connor a mainstay on the Redmen attack.

Other UMass stars were Co-captain Howie Goffman with two goals and Marty Kalikow with a goal and two assists. Also in the scoring column were soph Gary Vassar with one goal and sophs Brad Herling and O'Connor each with an assist.

The big gun for the Cardinals, All New England Bob Dyer was restricted to two assists, thanks to the one-on-one coverage of defenseman Fred Foley. In the first period, the Redmen seemed cautious, testing the strength of the visitors. The teams traded goals with O'Brien scoring unassisted at 6:10 and Cardinal Torey Peterson at 10:01.

During the second quarter, however, UMass dominated the action. Repeated shots by O'Brien were just missing their mark. He finally connected at 10:10 on a pass from O'Connor. Wesleyan rebounded with a score of its own 50 seconds later coming from Mike Terry 10 feet out with an assist from Dyer.

The second half clearly belonged to UMass. Determined to show who's boss, Wesleyan kept the ball for the first three minutes. O'Brien scored, 33 seconds later with a Redman in the penalty box, on a beautiful shot from the left corner, to put UMass up, 3-2. Kalikow provided an assist.

On a break from center field, Goffman fired goal number four past the Wesleyan goalie at 7:02. Herling aided with an assist.

With four seconds to go in the third quarter, O'Connor, "the Fox," shot at the Wesleyan goal only to have the ball hit the pole. But right there to tap it in was the impish Goffman, as UMass led, 5-2.

Down by three goals, Wesleyan

(Continued on page 11)

Amherst Trips Redmen, 3-2, with Run in Ninth

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

A late afternoon sun that plagued the rightfielders played a decisive role as the UMass baseball team dropped a 3-2 heart-breaker to Amherst College at the Lord Jeffs' field Wednesday.

A small, hardy gathering saw Amherst score a tainted run in the bottom of the ninth to win its regular season opener. The crowd also saw some fine pitching under the frigid conditions.

The story of the game was UMass' failure to put together a rally when the opportunity presented itself. Senior pitcher John Billesdon went the route for the Jeffs, giving up two runs but scattering eight hits along the way.

Carl Boteze, the UMass senior who had control problems aplenty down South, was finally able to get his curves across the plate and looked impressive in six innings. Junior lefty Dave Katz relieved him and subsequently took the loss although he too pitched well.

NORM ELLIOTT
Soph Workhorse.

The score was tied, 2-2, in the bottom of the ninth when Jim Brent led off with a single to right for Amherst. Buzz Tivnan hit back to the box, but Katz' throw to second was too late for the force.

Duncan Lewis followed with a sacrifice bunt, and Amherst had runners on second and third with one out.

Sophomore Norm Elliott, who had put the brakes on an AIC rally Monday, then took over for Katz and immediately issued an intentional walk to load the bases. He caught the next batter, Tom Kelly, looking at a curve and the Redmen had two outs.

Catcher Wayne Donner then sent a fly ball to right which Don Ferron, backtracking all the way, momentarily lost in the sun. The ball hit off the top of his glove and the Jeffs scored the winning run.

Under normal circumstances, the fly would have been playable, but it was a tough chance for Ferron and was scored as a hit.

Thus ended a game in which UMass had fought back from a two-run deficit. Amherst scored two off Boteze in the second on singles by Jay Sendzik and Kelly, followed by an infield out, which moved the runners up, and a single up the middle by Jim Lynn to score both runners.

Billesdon kept his shutout for five innings but the Redmen broke through in the sixth. Frank Stewart walked, Tony Chinappi singled and junior third baseman Elliot Klein drove in Stewart with a single to center. After six it was 2-1 in favor of the Jeffs.

The tying run for UMass came in the seventh and it was something of a cheapie. With two outs, Joe DiSarcina sliced a fly ball to right that Bill Foye lost in the sun. The ball dropped to his left and the speedy shortstop raced to second.

Alex Vyce followed with a walk, and Stewart lofted a fly to short left. The Amherst shortstop called off, dropped the ball, allowing DiSarcina to score, making it 2-2.

UMass had a good chance to go ahead in the eighth after singles by Roy Lasky and Ted Mareno, but Katz hit a soft liner to second to end the inning.

The fielding on both sides was good considering the infield looked more like chopped meat. DiSarcina and Stewart pulled off three double plays for the Redmen.

The loss left Coach Dick Bergquist's Redmen at 4-4.

AMHERST	ab	r	h
Brent cf	2	1	1
Tivnan lf	3	0	0
Lewis s	3	0	0
Sendzik 1	2	1	2
T. Kelly 3	3	1	1
Donner c	4	0	1
Lynn 2	3	0	2
Foye rf	3	0	0
Billesdon	3	0	0
Totals	26	3	7

UMASS	ab	r	h
DiSarcina s	5	1	2
Vyce cf	3	0	0
Stewart 2	4	1	0
Chinappi c	4	0	1
Klein 3	4	0	2
Lasky 1	4	0	1
Ferron rf	3	0	0
Mareno lf	4	0	1
Boteze p	3	0	1
Katz p	1	0	0
Elliott p	0	0	0
Totals	35	2	8

Amherst	020	000	001—3
UMass	000	001	100—2

E—Boteze, Billesdon, Lewis. DP — UMass 3, Amherst 1. LOB—UMass 10 Amherst 4.
2B — DiSarcina. S — Brent, Tivnan, Lewis.

	ip	h	r	er	bb	so
Billesdon (W, 1-0)	9	8	2	1	4	6
Boteze	6	5	2	2	1	4
Katz (L, 1-1)	2 1-3	1	1	1	1	0
Elliott	1-3	1	0	0	1	1

Two outs when winning run scored
HBP—Katz (Sendzik). T—2:16.

As a sports exclusive, WMUA (91.1 FM) will broadcast next Wednesday's UMass-Connecticut baseball game direct from Storrs.

Because of the importance of the game and the Patriot's Day holiday, the Yankee Conference clash will be aired back to Amherst. Jim Slattery and Glenn Briere will handle the play-by-play, with air time at 2:50 p.m.

The UMass Crew Club will compete for the Kerr Cup on Philadelphia's Schuykill River tomorrow. The opposition for Coach Dave Clarke's crew will be provided by La Salle, Georgetown, Marist, St. Joe's and Drexel, the host.

KEVIN O'CONNOR
Foxy stick-handler.

4-PAGE HOLIDAY ISSUE ON WEDNESDAY

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

MAROON KEY SOCIETY Page 6

VOL. XCV, NO. 64 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, APRIL 17, 1967

COLLEGIAN Photo by Chockl

Close: "The university should check and get its facts straight."

UMass Faces Artist's Lawsuit

by TOM DONOVAN
Senior Reporter

"It's time somebody followed something through for a change. The University of Massachusetts has consistently adopted a policy of action with no reaction — figuring that things will always just peter out. Someone should make them own up to their own responsibilities."

So says UMass instructor Charles Close after joining forces with the Hampshire County chapter of the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts in a lawsuit to compel the University to reinstate his art exhibit precipitously removed before its scheduled closing date by University officials.

Close and the Civil Liberties Union claim that the removal of Close's art exhibit from the Student Union is in violation of the Equal Protection and Due Process clauses of the 14th Amendment as well as an abridgement of Close's freedom of speech under the 1st Amendment as well as the 14th.

The exhibit, scheduled to be shown in the Student Union from Jan. 5 to Jan. 31, was removed from the exhibition walls without the knowledge or permission of artist Close or of the UM department of art, sometime during the night of Jan. 13.

Close maintains that he was never contacted by the University about the paintings, either before or after they had been taken. To date, Close has not heard from the University about the paintings or the lawsuit.

"All I know about it at this point is what I read in the newspapers Close commented.

(Continued on page 5)

COLLEGIAN Photo by Gerri

Tens of thousands from all over the U.S. assembled for Saturday's peace march.

300 Area Students Attend Anti-War Demonstration in NY

by RICHARD KLINE
AP Wire Editor

NEW YORK—A delegation of approximately 130 from UMass and an additional 170 from Amherst, Mt. Holyoke and Smith joined tens of thousand of anti-war demonstrators in New York Saturday.

Two demonstrations were held simultaneously, one in New York and another in San Francisco. The New York group, estimated by New York police as 125,000 strong and by others as up to 400,000 marched from Sheep Meadow, Central Park to the United Nations, a trek of about two miles.

Led by the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Dr. Benjamin Spock, and Harry Belafonte, as well as several civil rights and religious figures, it was the largest anti-war demonstration since the Vietnam war began.

The marchers, protected by over 3,000 police, the heaviest police protection since the Khrushchev visit in 1960 stretched all the way along the parade route, ending in a mass at the U.N.

Previous to the march, at about 11:00, at least 200 young men burned their draft cards in the park. As each card caught fire, a throng of several thousand persons, many of whom carried or wore daffodils, chanted "flower power."

Scattered violence accompanied the marchers and some were hit with eggs and paint. At least three counter-demonstrators were arrested when they tried to rush a float that depicted the Statue of Liberty.

At one point on the march, several demonstrators were struck by short steel rods that came from a building under construction. Several plastic bags filled with sand narrowly missed another group. There were no serious injuries reported.

Minor scuffling between police and demonstrators broke out on 42nd street, when some demonstrators apparently attempted

(Continued on page 7)

COLLEGIAN Photo by Sirota

The UMass group was well represented at the Spring Mobilization to end the war in Vietnam in New York City Saturday, with approximately 130 participants.

Impressions of Peace March

by GENA COREA
Staff Reporter

New York — A woman in a wheel chair joined the massive number of people who assembled in Central Park on Saturday to demonstrate against th war in Vietnam.

Among the many groups represented in the march were the Film makers for Peace in Vietnam, the Lower Eastside Mobilization for Peace Action, the School of Visual Arts, Cornell Medical College, Harvard Medical School, the Post-graduate Center for Mental Health, the Artists and Writers Protest and Trade Unionists for Peace.

There were groups of lawyers, doctors, nurses, teachers, social workers, journalists and students from as far away as North Carolina, Michigan and Oklahoma. A man, his wife and their three children also marched in the parade carrying the sign, "The Burke family opposes the war in Vietnam."

As an iron soldier, a memorial to the Seventh Regiment of 1881-1885, looked on, the parade formed. One man, dressed in a long, bright yellow robe, held a cross with flowers on it and the word "Love" printed on the horizontal board.

Near him, a group held symbols of burnt trees, which, as one man explained, were made out of "cardboard tubing, black paint and lots of good will." Two people pranced in a hideous animal costume. They were labelled "war."

A group of Puerto Ricans chanted: "Puerto Ricans will not go. Our brothers Vietnamese." Another group sang "God Bless America" and still another sang a Hebrew song of love.

Five teenagers, dressed in black with their faces smeared in red to represent blood, formed a tableau. When the parade was stopped by a red light, one boy would drop to the ground and the others would kneel or stand around him in positions of mourning.

A man with a broken leg stood watching the parade. He had covered his crutches with paper on which was written, "Stop the war."

One on-looker, a man in his

(Continued on page 5)

Campus Chest Dance Provides Change of Pace

by RON LABRECQUE
Staff Reporter

Rarely is a Friday evening dance at the Student Union an event to talk about. It usually consists of a rather apathetic crowd, interested in anything but the groups performing, and a mediocre band, which at times may be somewhat talented, but never presenting music much out of the ordinary.

The Campus Chest Dance last Friday was a refreshing change of pace and afforded a double musical treat for those attending.

The Tidal Waves, who call themselves a "surf group" used a standard rock & roll repetoire to produce an excellent big beat sound. Their talent for running sets, each song being given an all out effort by the group, is one not often heard in the Union.

However, the laurels must go to the group called the Ill Wind. A Boston group of four boys and one girl, their unique musical style and imposing appearance combined to form one of the most exciting rock & roll groups to play at the Union.

They are uncommon, from the moment they run out of the dressing room. Their clothes are the mod look, the boys' hair is long, and three of them sport beards.

At 6'7" bass player Gary Mann is a commanding figure. Richard Griggs, rhythm guitar, wears a cut-off sweatshirt with a Campus Chest '69 button, the other boys wear flowing multi-colored shirts, singer Conny Devanney wears black bell-bottoms and turtleneck.

And they stand before you, seemingly strange youths, two having features which make us picture them in a Biblical setting, speaking the way out talk of "blowing your mind."

But then they play and sing, and their music is captivating, to be sure entirely their own sound, but somewhat reminiscent of Peter, Paul, and Mary and the Byrds. They are probably because their talent is coupled

(Continued on page 2)

Collegian Editor Recounts Details of New York Rally

by RICHARD KLINE
AP Wire Editor

(Editor's Note: The following is a first person account of the Spring Mobilization for Peace march held in New York Saturday by Richard Kline, Collegian AP Wire Editor.)

New York—the sky was black and it was raining. It was seven A.M. and the UMass campus wasn't even awake yet. 130 people were awake though. People who disagree with the United States' involvement and policy in Vietnam.

Two busses appeared in front of the Student Union and were quickly filled with fiery peace marchers, their spirits somewhat dampened by the rain shower. Another twenty or so waited in the rain for another Peter Pan vehicle. Finally one came; all but filled with guys from Amherst College. Some of the people piled on that one and others crowded onto the already packed busses. Some complained and some thought it was rather humorous.

The three busses started out at 7:25, some 25 minutes late. The standers didn't like the situation at all. At Northampton the three vehicles joined three more, with

(Continued on page 7)

PASS-FAIL HEARINGS

The Pass-Fail Subcommittee of the Faculty Senate Committee on Academic Matters will hold public hearings on the advisability of instituting a pass-fail program at the University.

The hearings will be held on Thursday, April 20, from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m., in the Middlesex Room of the Student Union. Interested members of the University community are invited to contribute questions, opinions, information, and wisdom.

UM Symphony Performs Tonight

The University Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Ronald Steele, will present a concert April 17, at Bowker Auditorium.

Music for Orchestra by Elliot Schwartz, a former member of the University Music Faculty will be first on the program. It is basically a lyrical string piece with interruptions by the winds, percussion, and tape recorder, creating a "collision of elements". The tape recorder is thought of in this work as another instrument of the orchestra. This is the first Massachusetts performance of Dr. Schwartz's work.

Clarinet Concerto in A Major by Wolfgang Mozart was composed in 1791 by Wolfgang Mozart. The clarinet was just reaching prominence at this time, but a remarkable understanding of the instrument and its potential colors in the work, the Concerto is a challenge to any performer today. Sherman Friedland a graduate student is the soloist.

The Symphony No. 2 in D Major by Johannes Brahms presents a marked contrast with his first symphony. Symphony No. 2 is inspired with a profound feeling for nature that is reflected even in the instrumentation, which is delicate, translucent, and bright.

Panel Discussion

PLATO, MAYER and HUTCHINS at UMass

For two hours on Thursday night Mahar Auditorium became a Greek gymnasium with Milton Mayer and Robert M. Hutchins alternating in the role of Socrates as they questioned a panel of twelve UMass sophomores.

The purpose of the Socratic method of teaching is to question the answer of the student. By so doing, the student is trained to think, thereby putting into practice Socrates' theory that man learns best what he sees and understands for himself.

The question, based on Plato's Apology and Crito, put to the students asked, "Was Socrates guilty or not guilty?" After the students simply stated their verdicts, Mayer and Hutchins began to probe for the reasons behind their verdicts.

The probing, questioning and demanding "why" made the students explain carefully and soundly the logic behind the verdict. In some instances, the fallacy of a student's logic crumbled under the questioning.

Mayer and Hutchins added comic relief as they performed like a song and dance team. During the period of audience participation, the students were warned by Mayer not to ask Hutchins any questions because "he had not read the book".

It was an interesting exhibition of the way the three hour English classes should be conducted, and for those currently enrolled in a class of this type, it was an enlightening experience.

SUMMER JOBS

Numerous types of summer jobs are available all over the state of Massachusetts with the Commonwealth Service Corps under the College Work-Study Program. Job descriptions are listed in the Placement Office.

On-campus interviews will be held on Tuesday, April 25. If interested, sign up for an interview in the Placement Office, Machmer Hall.

Students must first check with Mr. Siegrist in the Placement Office to see if they qualify for the College Work-Study Program. Eligibility is based upon financial need.

Democratic Platform Committee To Meet with Students at B.U.

On Tuesday, Apr. 11, Boston University was the setting for the first in a series of meetings between the Democratic Party Platform Committee and the student community. The Boston University meeting was held in the auditorium of the School of Public Communications. The series will continue at Holy Cross College on Apr. 13, the American International College on Apr. 14, and will be at the University of Massachusetts on April 24, concludes at the Scutheastern Massachusetts Technological Institute on April 27.

The Party/Student meetings are conducted by Senator Mario Umana, Chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic Party's Platform Committee. The series of meetings stems from the recent announcement of the Democratic Leadership pledging full support to the proposed 18 year old voting age in Massachusetts.

Lester S. Hyman, Chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic State Committee, Maurice Donahue, President of the Senate, and John F. X. Davoren, Speaker of the House said "we firmly believe in the judgement, maturity and dedication to the public interests of the young men and women, 18, 19, and 20 years of age.

The Platform Committee is visiting the campuses not to debate —but to listen. The Committee membership includes Democrats from all walks of life—legislators, educators and business men and women.

As part of the effort to overcome the "generation gap," this series of meetings provides a forum for the student community to air their views to the official Platform Committee of the Massachusetts Democratic Party.

If You See
News in the Making
Dial
"Hot Line"
545-2550

Community Action Program To Aid Migrant Workers

The Community Action Program of the College Young Democrat Clubs of Massachusetts in association with the Commonwealth Service Corps is sponsoring a Summer Program To Aid Migrant Workers of Massachusetts.

Although not widely known, 5,000 migrant workers, earning less than $.85 an hour are employed in Mass. Cultural and legal barriers prevent these people from improving their decrepit standard of living.

The Community Action Program needs college students to help improve the situation of the migrant workers. Students are needed now to aid in setting up the program.

During the summer, the program will need people on all levels from volunteers helping a few hours a week to paid staff members working at a part time basis.

The Community Action Program would like your participation in ending a situation which has lasted far too long.

Those who desire to participate or want further information about the migrant worker problem, contact Anne McLaughlin, Chairman of the Community Action Committee of the Young Democrats, Tel. 546-6558.

CAMPUS CHEST . . .

(Continued from page 1)

best compared with the West Coast sound of Jefferson Airplane.

Ken Frankel displays his virtuosity on the banjo, the enhanting voice of Miss Devanney fills the ballroom, the group puts forth beautiful harmony, and when they finish their song an event peculiar to Friday night dances takes place; people applaud.

After the performance Tom Frankel, the group's manager, handed out pictures of the group and people wanted them. One coed was heard asking Mann for his address so that she "could write to him."

One of their best numbers was a song that they recently recorded called "We Feel."

In a Collegian interview, the group expressed their pleasure with the response of the UMass students.

Ken Frankel, himself from the West Coast, said that the group enjoyed playing much more for the campus community than for the usual "teeny-bopper crowd" that they often play for in Boston.

When asked to describe their music, Frankel said that he would call it "soft rock".

The group as a whole asked that Paul Boliver be commended for his artful work with the lighting effects.

Behind the mod clothes, and the long hair, and the beards are five people, who speak intelligently and seriously about their music, who have a bright future with a deep feeling for what they do.

1968

Elect

AL SAGGESE

Vice-President

GO with GOOSE

INTERNATIONAL CLUB, UMASS

presents

ANNUAL INTERNATIONAL SHOW

featuring

Indian, Chinese, African, Japanese, Arabian, American, and many other lands' exotic dances, folk and classical songs and music, besides big fashion parade of national costumes of different countries.

Sat. Apr. 22, 8:00 P.M. Bartlett Auditorium

All Invited

REFRESHMENTS WILL BE SERVED AFTERWARDS

THE NEW BREED

A new frontier imposes a natural process of selection. You can meet the people that you would see on top of a high ski run which had no chair left, and you can do it without the effort of climbing.....just let gravity take its course: it's all downhill at the PARACHUTES' INCORPORATED CENTERS.

The Centers are staffed and equipped to put you out on your first jump immediately following a time-tested four hour period of instruction. ($35 for everything involved in making the jump.) Safety is insured through the use of automatically opening main parachutes, FAA approved ten-place jump aircraft (your entire class jumps together), radio communication to the student, all-sand drop zones, and constant, overall supervision by professional instructors both in the aircraft and on the ground. (92,600 jumps to date, over 9,200 of which were first jump students)

For further details, write:

ORANGE SPORT PARACHUTING CENTER
POST OFFICE BOX 96
ORANGE, MASSACHUSETTS 01364

Tel. 617-544-6911

LAKEWOOD SPORT PARACHUTING CENTER
POST OFFICE BOX 258
LAKEWOOD, NEW JERSEY 08701

Tel. 201-363-4900

PI

PLEASE
RE-ELECT
REBECCA STEDMAN
SECRETARY
CLASS OF '70

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

National

SURVEYOR 3 is launched on its journey toward a soft-landing on the moon. The spacecraft is equipped with a scoop shovel to dig into the moon's surface.

* * *

RESEARCHERS uncover evidence that specific information can be transmitted from one animal to another by brain extract injections. They say it probably works on humans.

* * *

AMONG THE THRONGS of well-dressed guests at Ga. Gov. Lester Maddox's first open house are four shabbily dressed Negroes—escaped prisoners with a story to tell.

* * *

THE CONVICTION of Richard Speck apparently decides who murdered the eight nurses but other mysterious angles of the case go unanswered.

Vietnam

A WEEKEND of peace demonstrations ends with disputes on their size and political hue. Sec. of State Dean Rusk says they "will not affect the conduct" of the Vietnam war.

* * *

THE U.S. government goes to court in an attempt to end a strike threatening to disrupt production of helicopter engines needed in Vietnam.

* * *

A U.S. JET kills 14 and wounds 25 Vietnamese in the second mistake bombing in two days.

Washington

SEN. J. W. FULBRIGHT says the U.S. should cut its European troop commitments in half because of relaxing East - West tensions.

* * *

IF YOU haven't made out your income tax return, let's go! Tonight's the deadline.

International

POPE PAUL VI may delay his decision on the Roman Catholic Church's birth control policy until after the bishops meet next fall.

* * *

A CUBAN government announcement of a message from Che Guevara may be a stop in the Castro campaign to foment revolution in Latin America.

Baseballl

AMERICAN LEAGUE

	W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
Baltimore	4	2	.667	——
Kan. City	3	2	.600	½
New York	3	2	.600	½
Chicago	3	2	.600	½
California	3	3	.500	1
Detroit	3	3	.500	1
Cleveland	2	2	.500	1
Wash'n.	2	3	.400	1½
Boston	2	3	.400	1½
Minnesota	1	4	.250	2½

NATIONAL LEAGUE

	W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
St. Louis	4	0	1.000	——
Cincinnati	5	1	.833	——
Phila'phia	4	1	.800	½
Chicago	3	2	.600	1½
Houston	3	3	.500	2
Atlanta	3	3	.500	2
Pittsburgh	2	3	.400	2½
New York	1	4	.200	3½
San. Fran.	1	5	.167	4
Los Angeles	0	4	.000	4

AP WIRE STAFF
EDITOR: Richard S. Kline
STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Roupenian
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini

Four Negroes Escape; Complain to Governor

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Among the throngs of well-dressed Georgians at Gov. Lester Maddox's first open house Sunday were four shabbily dressed Negroes—escaped prisoners with a story to tell the governor.

The four said they sawed through bars at a Wilkinson County public works camp at midnight Saturday and walked all night to complain personally to the governor about prison treatment.

They told Maddox of threats on their lives, of being put in solitary confinement for complaining, and of going six to

Clad in faded short shirts and ill-fitting overalls, with prison fitting overalls, with prison garb underneath, the Negroes waited in a line of more than 4,000 Georgians gathered to greet the governor at the mansion.

"They're prisoners, they walked all night," Mrs. Hill said. But the governor already had turned to greet other guests.

After talking about 20 minutes with the men, Maddox said he had ordered the "most thorough investigation ever conducted by the Department of Corrections."

"These men told me they had planned to escape because of cruel treatment, of going six to eight days with only one meal," the governor said at a news conference.

"They had planned two weeks ago to escape. They wanted to surrender to me. They sawed through bars and walked away. I'm convinced there's considerable truth to this.

"These men said they had tried everything else. They had even been put in a hole for complaining. I'm glad they did come," Maddox said.

South Korean Planes Sink Communist Ship

SEOUL, So. Korea (AP) — South Korea said its jet planes sank a small North Korean armed ship when it intruded into southern waters, opened fire after orders to halt, and tried to flee.

The navy said one North Korean died of wounds after being picked up from the water. It said five others were taken to the port of Inchon after the sinking off the west coast.

The full extent of North Korean casualties was not known.

No South Korean casualties were reported. But the air force said one of the 14 planes which set the 50-ton ship afire with napalm bombs came back with a Communist machine-gun bullet hole in the fuselage.

Communist shore batteries sank a 650-ton South Korean naval ship off the east coast Jan. 19, killing 40 South Korean seamen. The U.N. command conceded the ship was several miles north of the demilitarized zone and 3.5-5 miles off the North Korean coast, but said its location did not constitute a violation of the 1953 Korean armistice.

The patrol boats, including a destroyer escort, signaled and radioed the fast North Korean boat to halt, the agency said, but it opened fire and turned north to flee.

Air force planes then were called in. It was the first known occasion that South Koreans used planes to sink a North Korean ship.

The U.N. command, meanwhile, declared that the North Koreans caused three ground armistice line clashes earlier this month in an attempt to create tensions for various reasons known to them.

The statement was in reply to North Korean charges Saturday that "ceaseless military provocations of the U.S. aggressors have increased tension in Korea to a higher pitch and led to an unbearable, grave stage."

A U.N. command spokesman said tension does not exist along the demilitarized zone which divides North and South Korea.

U.S. and South Korean officials say at least 11 North Koreans and one South Korean soldier have been killed in the ground clashes.

The South Korean Central Intelligence Agency said South Korean patrol boats spotted the North Korean ship today well south of the armistice line.

Crude Oil Slick Blackens Beaches

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) — Rangers at the Cape Cod National Seashore began the job today of cleaning up about 40 miles of beach blackened by puddles of crude oil.

The oil came in at high tide about 5 p.m. Sunday along the Cape's eastern shore from Chatham to Provincetown. Rangers said the area around Eastham was hardest hit.

Rangers estimated 2,000 waterfowl — mostly ducks migrating north for the summer—drowned when oil covered their feathers.

Most of the sea gulls and animals in the area were not effected, the rangers said.

A Coast Guard plane spotted "widely scattered oil" floating in to the Cape from the south and east but was unable to determine the source.

The plane hampered by poor visibility said it saw no other oil in the area.

State Civil Defense Director Allan R. Zenowitz said the oil apparently posed no hazard to individuals or boating interests.

Stanley Joseph, superintendent of the national seashore, said, "It will take a few weeks to clean up. It's obviously very serious."

Spfld. Police Probe Slaying

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Four spent .22 caliber bullets are being examined by ballistics experts today for clues to the gunshot slaying of a young couple in their parked car Saturday night.

The bodies of Robert Grover, 20, of West Springfield, and his date, Elizabeth Dunphy, 18, were discovered by a routine police patrol early Sunday morning in a picnic area of Blunt Park.

Police said Grover, a student at Springfield Technical Institute, was shot twice in the head and once in the neck. Miss Dunphy, a student at Westfield State College, had been shot once in the head.

The bullets were fired through the window on the driver's side of the car, police said, smashing the window.

All the doors were shut and police said the contents of the car did not appear to have been disturbed, apparently ruling out robbery as the motive.

Race Riot Erupts in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Young rowdies put extra police to work Sunday night in Cleveland's East Side Negro area with a rash of rock throwing, window smashing and looting that lasted about three hours. There were at least 20 arrests.

"There were no injuries and no fire bombings," said Lt. Wilmer Kutina of the Fifth District. In that district last July rioting started in the slum Hough area and led to four shooting deaths and a half-million dollars property damage, much of it from fire bombs.

Kutina said there were 18 arrests in his district and adjoining districts reported two others as a result of the disturbances. Police said nearly all the arrests were in connection with looting by young Negro men operating in small groups.

One injury not reported to police was minor—a fireman hit by a thrown bottle while on his way to one of a number of false alarms.

The trouble started on the warm spring night at a fight near a carnival on Superior Avenue at about 10:30 p.m. Sunday. It spread to the main thoroughfare to the east, Euclid Avenue, before police got the situation under sufficient control to dismiss 26 night-shift patrolmen who were held beyond their midnight quitting time.

About 20 stores were damaged by vandals, police said. Most of the vandalism was on Superior Avenue, they said, and most of the looting occurred several blocks to the south on Euclid. A rear window of a police cruiser was cracked by a thrown bottle, and two youths were arrested in this incident.

Surveyor Satellite On Good Lunar Pathway

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Packing its own little shovel to plow the moon's soil and crack open lunar rocks, America's Surveyor 3 sailed through space today aiming to soft-land Wednesday at a site chosen for U.S. astronauts.

The 10-foot-tall spacecraft—most complex robot ever tossed toward the moon by the United States—blasted off at 2:05 a.m. EST today aboard an Atlas-Centaur rocket to begin a planned 65-hour, 237,000-mile trip.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said sensors aboard the craft successfully locked onto the sun. The sun and the star Canopus were to guide Surveyor 3 to the moon.

Several hours after launch, project officials said the craft's trajectory to the moon "looks extremely good." A spacecraft motor needs to make only a "very small midcourse correction" to send it on a bullseye course toward Surveyor 3's target zone, officials said.

"It looks like we have an excellent bird," a project spokesman said.

Plans called for the 2,283-pound craft to fire a braking rocket about 7 p.m. Wednesday and gently set its tripod legs on the lunar surface, ready to spend at least two weeks taking pictures and digging into the soil.

Except for the shovel and two additional mirrors to expand the camera's field of view, Surveyor 3 was almost identical to the Surveyor 1 which achieved this nation's first soft landing on the moon last June 2 and returned 11,150 photographs.

Troops Shifted In Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — More American troops have been shifted into new positions in the northern part of South Vietnam to meet increasing Communist pressure in crucial border areas, the U.S. command disclosed today.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Airmobile Division have taken over an operational area in Quang Ngai Province about 350 miles north of Saigon, a spokesman said, and have killed 100 enemy there in action that began April 8.

The move took the air cavalrymen farther north than they have been since their arrival in Vietnam.

On Tuesday, April 18, 1967 graduation will be held for 13 Army ROTC cadets who have completed the Drillmaster Academy course.
The purpose of the Academy is to develop the leadership abilities of selected sophomore cadets in preparation for future command positions in the AROTC Brigade.
Candidates spend nine weeks in training under the supervision of cadet officers and cadet NCO's. Shown presenting the rank is cadet Major Clifford Martin.

Inside the Student Senate:

WHERE IS IT NOW?

by ANGELA CARUSO

The University Student Senate —11 committees and 70 members—has evolved from a small (12 members) group operating under the auspices of the administration.

It is expanding at its greatest rate, changing, in Pres. John Greenquist's words, from "an organization mildly interested in student affairs to one totally committed to them."

The Senate, financed totally by the student body, has 10 separate committees, each with its own chairman, and an executive committee made up of the four officers and the committee chairmen. This executive group makes the policies of the Senate. Every bill on the agenda is reviewed by this group, then tabled for one week so all Senators can consider it. The executive committee also assures the efficiency of the other committees by continually reviewing their activities.

There are three committees concerned with finances in the Student Senate:

- Ways and Means reviews student organizations on campus and their use of the money alloted to them by the Senate.
- Budget Committee plans the budget for the varied organizations each academic year.
- Finance Committee gives appropriations to the organizations throughout the year.

Most of the Senate's $250,000 fund this year was pre-allotted by the Budget Committee. Unassigned funds are often used in the Loan Fund, a Senate Project in which ready cash is made available to any student in the form of a collateral-free loan, provided he pays it back within 30 days. A loan of up to $25 is accessible to the students at the beginning of each semester for the purchase of books and supplies. Pres. Greenquist explained that in one sense this is a "profitable" enterprise of the Senate, in that it receives back-payments at a time when the fiscal year is near its close, providing needed cash.

The Public Relations Committee keeps students informed of other campus affairs and of their student government. The Academic Affairs Committee reviews student complaints concerning courses and exam schedules and is responsible for making recommendations on the Academic calendar. The Student Government Committee is in charge of Senate elections and reviews the Senate constitution annually.

Both men and women students have their respective Affairs Committees within the Senate. These committees are concerned with residence hall and off-campus problems as well as fraternity and sorority affairs. The Services Committee, although it receives all complaints and suggestions of the student body on any affair is mainly concerned with housing problems and conditions.

The Activities Committee is concerned with the constitutions of other student organizations on campus and reviews and makes recommendations for these constitutions.

Any student can become a senator. Elections are early in the fall in residence halls. Usually one senator is chosen from each dormitory. The candidates do their own campaigning. Several commuter senators are also chosen at this time, as well as one married student senator. The fraternity and sorority systems elect two representatives each. In the spring semester, a senator-at-large is elected to represent each undergraduate class at the University.

The new senators are interviewed and initiated into the structure and affairs of the Senate. They are given immediate permission to speak on the floor, "though it usually takes several weeks too many to get them active," smiled Pres. Greenquist. "From here," said Greenquist, "it's a matter of getting out of the Senate what you put into it." The senators who are appointed to committees by the president, are asked to list three choices and usually are given their first choice. "Any student not a senator can join these committees if he is genuinely in its activities," commented Greenquist. These committees meet once a week, separate from the regular Wednesday night meeting of the entire Senate.

In the spring, the executive elections are held. The president is most usually but not always a junior and an experienced senator. Once elected, new officers are relieved of the constituencies of their committee positions since "they won't be able to devote as much time to them as before the elections."

Last year, Woman's Affairs Committee took a poll around campus investigating the University women's attitude toward off-campus living and extension of curfews. It was the Woman's Affairs Committee that initiated and popularized the idea of the "development of the student as an individual aware of self-responsibility."

This year, the Senate is concerned with transcript fees and getting recognition of the crew team in varsity sports. There is a JFK Memorial sub-committee concerned with the plans for an addition to the library in honor of the late President; it is also investigating the possibility of passing a new rule allowing students over 21 to drink and purchase alcoholic beverages on campus.

The University administration is cooperative with the students and rarely rejects a Senate proposal, according to Greenquist.

(Continued on page 9)

PROFESSOR McFARLAND FEELS STUDENT SENATE INADEQUATE

The faculty rarely depends on the Student Senate for information about student feelings according to one professor.

Gerald W. McFarland, a member of the history department and assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences for the class of 1970, expressed this view recently, in speaking of UMass student government. A possible solution or approach to this communications problem was then outlined by the dean.

McFarland, while attending the University of California at Berkeley as an undergraduate, has served as a member of the Executive Committee, a body comparable to the Student Senate. Now here, as a professor, he expressed continuing interest in what the students are doing, especially in academic affairs.

The Senate could devote more time to academic problems and thereby seek to become a major channel of information to the faculty and deans, McFarland indicated. He stated his belief that students should be able to express their opinions through dialogue with the faculty on all aspects of academic life.

At a certain point the faculty, in his view, must make the final determination of academic policy, although many social policies can be determined by the students.

Students should make every effort to express their views on academic issues so that such opinions can be taken seriously as one basis of formulating policy, he urged.

If the Senate wishes to establish itself as a channel of information on Student views, according to McFarland, it must face the fact that most of the faculty does not know what the Senate does. He added that it may be that the Senate can never really fulfill that task and indeed may not need to.

"Speaking personally," McFarland continued, "my main source of information about students comes from the students in my classes. Classes are the chief and most appropriate source of student-faculty exchange on academic problems . . The residential colleges offer somewhat the same opportunities."

Deans and many faculty members are, he asserted, genuinely interested in solving any academic questions considered by the Senate.

The best contact he stated, is that in which members of the Senate seek out faculty, and personally discuss the Senate's work. The assistant deans of the college of Arts and Sciences are easily available, and the Senate should take advantage of this, he made clear.

McFarland observed: "No student senator has stopped to see me. The deans themselves have taken the initiative in calling

(Continued on page 9)

UMASS PROF. AWARDED FULBRIGHT

University of Massachusetts associate professor of education Dr. Robert R. Wellman, has been awarded a Fulbright Grant to teach philosophy of education next year in the United Arab Republic.

He has been granted a visiting lectureship at the Ain Shams University in Cairo for the academic year 1967-1968.

Dr. Wellman, a specialist in ancient and medieval educational thought, will conduct a graduate course and direct doctoral study in the philosophy of education.

The award is made by the U.S. State Department under the auspices of the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961, the Fulbright-Hays Act.

A graduate of Dartmouth University, Dr. Wellman studied at the University of London, received his M.A. degree from Western Reserve University and his Ph.D. from Ohio State University. He was an instructor at Ohio State before joining the UMass faculty.

Dr. Wellman has written several articles on educational theory and ancient and medieval educational thought for professional journals and magazines. He is currently completing a book dealing with the educational theories of Plato.

At the University, Dr. Wellman has served as a preceptor at Eugene Field House. Last year, Dr. and Mrs. Wellman were appointed to the Danforth Associate Program, a national program to promote and encourage good teaching and to assist in personalizing the educational process.

1968 CLASS PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES DEBATE
WED. AT 8:00 ON ACTION "67"
ON
WMUA
KEEP UP WITH THE CAMPUS
WITH WMUA 91.1 F.M.

TOBIN
President Class of '68

- past president maroon keys
- past student senator
- homecoming committee
- co-chairman winter carni queens committee
- university guide service
- freshmen orientation committee

He Can Do More!

SENIORS
Got Something to Say?

For the first time in the history of the University, a graduating student will have the opportunity to speak at commencement. Every member in good standing of the class of 1967 is eligible for this honor.

Are you capable of representing your class at this time? Are you willing to put forth the time and effort to construct a worthwhile address?

Applications and further information are in the RSO office. Topic titles must be submitted by Thursday, April 20.

IMPRESSIONS . . .

(Continued from page 1)

sixties, grinned, ripped open a new package of cigarettes, and held it out, offering the cigarettes to the demonstrators as they walked by him.

But another on-looker was angry and upset. A Cuban, he spoke in broken English. "This is terrible. Maybe they don't realize it, but this is backed by the Communists. I know what communism is. These people here are always blaming the U.S. And this is the country where you find more freedom than anywhere else in the world."

Expressing another opinion, a middle-aged woman said, "I think the demonstration is great. It shows that the people of this nation are against this terrible war. I can't think of any good reason why the U.S. should be in the war."

Various demonstrators explained why they were marching in the parade. A member of the medical group said, "It's a nurse's responsibility to conserve life and alleviate suffering. Because I am a nurse, I felt that I had a responsibility to march in this parade."

With some of her co-workers, she has been distributing leaflets in hospitals to encourage others to join in the protest against the war.

A middle-aged nun marched, carrying a poster stuck on her black umbrella. When asked if her convent opposed her participation in the demonstration, she grinned. "I don't know. I'm a student at Teacher's College and I consider this a part of my student activities."

Another protester, a member of the National Psychological Association for Psychoanalysis, asked, "How can we help patients when they're so worried about war and destruction? We have many college students who worry about having to fight people who never did anything to them."

A member of the W.E.B. DuBois Club explained why his group was in Central Park. "We're struggling against imperialism in America. We can't fight for freedom in Vietnam until we have it here."

When one teacher was asked why she opposed the war, she answered, "I was born during the second world war. I never forgot that."

Another teacher, the head of the foreign language department in a New York high school, said, "We can not operate in 1967 on a political theory that was developed in 1947. Even George Kennan, who originated the containment policy, says it's all wrong today."

Looking like a clean-cut college boy except for his cape and beads, a member of the League for Spiritual Discovery said, "I'm not necessarily against the war. I'm here to generate love in all these goings-on."

A Japanese boy explained, "I'm for the self-determination of my brothers."

One of the New York policemen expressed his reaction to the march. "I'm sorry I'm here. Everything will be an anti-climax after this spectacle of nonsense. This is well-organized and not by Americans. Some well-meaning people have been duped here."

With their various reasons, the marchers marched. They wore buttons and carried posters. Some of the posters read: "Would Jesus carry a draft card?" "How can you explain defoliation to a school-age child?" "'Burn, baby, burn' is just an expression."

"Peace is having no one alive to argue with." "For Christ's sake, stop killing." "The emperor has no clothes." "Are we the cops of the world?" "Big firms get rich—G.I.'s die."

"No one ever died from an overdose of negotiations." "No Vietnamese ever called me Nigger." "War turns me off." "3 million-hr. for Vietnam. How much for education?"

"The operation was a success but the nation died." "Children are not born to burn." "This former Peace Corps volunteer is against the Vietnam war."

"Love Where Hast Thou Gone?"

Into the park. In Central Park, there was a carnival atmosphere. There were pink, orange and blue balloons with "Peace" written on them. Some were tied to the branches of trees.

People were wearing and holding flowers. When asked the significance of his flower, a man answered, "It's a symbol of love and peace. Someone just gave it to me. I didn't expect it."

A group of students held a Peace Maypole. Bright ribbons of crepe paper converged in the center and ended in a yellow flower.

Two girls held big pink and orange crepe paper flowers. Throughout the park, people stood and ate sandwiches and apples and candy bars and ice cream. A few students were kneeling on the ground writing out posters.

A group marched around the park playing bagpipes and children ran along with them. A young woman sat on the ground rocking a sleeping baby. Parents pushed baby carriages. A bunch of yellow balloons floated high up in the air.

A man stood on a platform and read poems against the war. As he read, people set up instruments for the string quartet, one of the groups in the Angry Artists Against the War.

A jazz group played on a truck and near it, on a clump of rocks, some teenagers danced in a circle. Watching them, two boys sat in the tree nearby.

A group of teenagers gathered around a trashcan. One boy, wearing a black corduroy cape, beat on the can with a stick. Others joined in with a tamborine, harmonica and plastic noisemakers. A girl danced.

In another section of the park, people clustered around two demonstrators playing a saxophone and bongos.

Many of these teenagers wore bright colored costumes, extravagant jewelry and painted faces. One girl had painted her face with red, green, purple and blue swirls and gold eye shadow.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kline

The Four College Community contingency gathers for the march to the United Nations from the Central Park starting point. In back of the group from Western Massachusetts is a large group from the University of Connecticut.

When asked the purpose of his painted face, one boy replied, "To bring sunshine into everybody's life."

In the midst of all this, a coed group played an informal game of softball.

Separated from the crowds, a young man was flying a kite. When asked, "Are you demonstrating or are you just flying a kite?", he pulled the kite closer to the earth, so that the peace symbol on it was evident. Peace. Flying a kite in a park in April.

CLOSE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

In addition, Close feels that his position as instructor at the University has very little to do with the basic principles involved in the case.

"The lawsuit represents my grievance through the Civil Liberties Union. I am acting as an individual—a painter—and not as a member of the art department. I am a painter who had an exhibition here. In fact, I could be entirely unconnected with the University and still be acting this way in the lawsuit," he explained.

In other developments, the UM administration has released an answering statement which claims that the University is authorized, through the UM Board of Trustees, "to determine the use an assignment of space within its own physical plant."

The press release also held that there were threats of violence to the exhibit, complaints, that the standards committee approval system was not followed, and that those in the S.U. had had the exhibit imposed on them due to the public nature of the exhibit's location.

Close's only comment was, "The University had better check and get its facts straight."

The statement also said:

"The University, after investigating complaints, felt that the subject matter of Mr. Close's exhibit was inappropriate for display in an open corridor that had to be used by passers-by to get to a public lunchroom and other Student Union facilities."

Robert J. McCartney, Secretary to the President, when contacted, explained that the Close exhibit did not come under the heading of a "general student activity"—a primary purpose of the S.U. according to the statement.

He added, "The Student Union is for reading, lunching, lounging and so forth. It does not contain a formal art gallery."

Although admitting that some individuals had found parts of the exhibition obscene, McCartney declined to voice his opinion of the exhibit:

"I don't know that I would comment on that. It is the idea of the public exhibition which is the question."

Regarding the suit itself, the Secretary noted that the administration currently knew only that a lawsuit had been initiated and that the Hampshire County Chapter of the Civil Liberties Union has issued a statement clarifying their stand.

McCartney noted, "We have had no discussion yet."

Oswald Tippo, University Provost and head of UMass' academic affairs, hung up the receiver when contacted by the Collegian last night. He said only: "I have nothing to say. No comment."

According to UM assistant professor Isidore Silver, Close's attorney and legal counsel to the Civil Liberties Union, both Tippo and University President John W. Lederle will be named co-defendents in the suit when the case actively goes to court.

Once the papers are served upon the defendents, they will be allowed 20 - 30 days to answer the charges.

In Silver's opinion, the issues are substantial. He explained, "The University does not have authority to formulate and change its rules at will, especially when they affect substantial individual rights."

In a later interview, Close made further comments on his exhibition and the lawsuit.

He noted that when the works were shown in private galleries subsequent to their removal from the S.U., the prevailing reaction from visitors was, "Is this what they took down?"

It definitely was not quite as racy as visitors had expected," Close observed.

Close also feels that a lack of communication between the University and himself has lead to part of the controversy.

However, Close is convinced that until the issue is decided one way or the other, his works will be regarded with suspicion.

Asked whether he considers the case is worth the time and effort involved, Close replied, "I don't want to be a martyr to a cause that doesn't exist."

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kline

"Here are some matches. Do any of you have the guts to burn this flag? If you do there's going to be a murder, because you're gonna have to burn me to! yelled the anti-demonstrator above, at the crowd.

Class of 1967 Presents

STUDENT LEADER NIGHT

Tappings for Scrolls, Adelphia, Keys,

Revelers, Arcon, Mortor Board

Also: Metawampe Award and

Scholarship Announcements

CURRY HICKS CAGE 7:00 P.M.

APRIL 18th

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

The Maroon Key Society

If the prestige of the Maroon Key Society is not improved during the coming semesters, the Committee feels that the Society will be relegated to a position of obscurity, with the inaccurate image of being a mere club for "Greeks", a group to which people are selected merely because they know someone, or because they belong to the "right house."

This sentence appeared in a report of the Student Senate Ad Hoc Committee for the Study of Honorary Societies on April 9, 1964. The report commented that "the Maroon Key Society suffers greatly from a lack of prestige as viewed by the campus," and offered various ways of improving a faltering image, besides suggesting some 18 changes in the Society's Constitution. To our knowledge this report and its recommendations were ignored then, and have been ignored ever since. But the statement still holds true.

We feel it is time that the actions of this organization be made public, particularly for the enlightenment of those freshmen men who may view the Society with some form of childlike awe. Flagrant constitutional violations, repeated year after year, cannot continue to be ignored. As an example, we shall refer to the following excerpts from the "By-Laws of the Maroon Key Society":

VI. PROCEDURES FOR ELECTION

Step I.—At the beginning of the Spring Semester a committee appointed by the President shall be responsible for obtaining from the Dean of Men's Office a list of freshmen men who are qualified for admission to the Key Society by having a 2.0 quality point average or better at the end of the first semester.

Step II.—All qualified men would then be notified by letter or post card of their eligibility for Maroon Key. Any interested individual would then pick up an application form from a location in the Student Union.

A.—Each application will have space provided for the nomination of 10 other candidates.

B.—Applications will be numbered and signed for and returned at a specified time.

Step III.—After the applications are returned to the Maroon Key, a list of the candidates shall be published in the Collegain.

Step IV.—At a designated date (also published in Collegain) all non-eligible freshmen will be provided an opportunity for nominating up to 10 freshmen for Maroon Key.

A. Election should be held in the location of the Student Union.

Step VI.—Each Maroon Key will be given two or three prospective members' names, and asked to check completely their freshman year activities. This would also include housemothers, counselors, academic advisors, all organizations listed by the individual, and anyone else who might provide background information on the prospect.

Step VII.—Before Student Leaders Night, the prospective members are to be invited to one smoker to acquaint the member of the Key with all the applicants.

We are curious to know exactly which, if any, of the above selection procedures have been followed. We also question the reasoning behind present closed-door interrogation sessions in which unrelated and sometimes rather personal topics are discussed.

* * *

It may be impressive or "cool" to wear a blazer, but a true student leader needs something more than that if he is to be of any value to the University. As it now stands, the Society exists mainly to provide ready-made status for its members in their own eyes and in the eyes of the freshman class—freshman women in particular. But viewing the organization from an upperclass perspective, one cannot help but feel like the young boy who has grown up only to discover that there is no Santa Claus.

Perhaps this is a good illustration of the truism that one does not become a student leader by filling out an application form.

We believe there is just cause to question the usefulness of the Maroon Key Society. We strongly urge the Activities Committee of the Student Senate to begin an immediate investigation of the selection procedures employed by the Society, as well as its usefulness to the campus community. We further suggest that tomorrow night's tappings be held in abeyance until such an investigation is completed.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

Friday's Day Editors: News Marjie Flannery, Edit. Nancy McBoniq, Sports Brendon Beeham, Photo.

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Drug Use and Student Values

Academic Pressures

(Editor's Note: The following begins a series of articles presented at the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators Drug Education Conference, Nov. 1966.)

by KENNETH KENISTON, Ph. D.

Student drug users are generally treated by the mass media as an alien wart upon the student body of America. The use of drugs to alter phychic states, associated in the public mind with the abuse of narcotics, conjurs up images of moral lepers and Mafia members. These images, in turn, help prevent any real understanding of the actual meanings and function of drug use among a small minority of today's students.

In the comments to follow, I will argue that student drug use is closely related to the dominant pressures on American students, and is but a variant of values that are shared by many and perhaps most American undergraduates today. To be sure, only a small minority turn towards drugs; but the members of this minority group are but first-cousins to the more "normal" college student. In particular, the student drug-user shares with his non-drug-using classmates an active search for meaning through intense personal experience.

In order to understand the values shared by many American college students, we must begin by considering some of the pressures that affect today's students. With regard to drug use, two pressures are particularly important: the pressure toward cognitive professionalism, and the pressure toward psychological numbing.

The past two decades have seen a revolution in our expectations about college students. Rising standards of academic performance in primary and secondary schools, the "baby boom" of the war, the slowness with which major American universities have expanded their size,—all have resulted in increasing selectivity by the admissions offices of the most prestigious American colleges and universities. Furthermore, once a student is admitted to college, higher admission standards have meant that more could be demanded of him; students who a generation ago would have done "A" work now find themselves doing only "C" work with the same effort. The sheer volume of required reading and writing has increased enormously; in addition, the quality of work expected has grown by leaps and bounds. Finally, for a growing number of young Americans, college is but a stepping stone to professional and graduate school after college; and as a result, consistent academic performance in college increasingly becomes a prerequisite for admission to a desirable business school, med school, law school or grad school.

Editor's note: Due to the number of inquiries concerning Wayne Sorni's letter to the editor last Friday, we wish to state the content was purely satirical in nature.

Not only have academic pressures mounted in the past generation, but these pressures have become more and more cognitive. What matters, increasingly, to admissions committees and college graders is the kind of highly intellectual, abstracting, reasoning ability that enables a student to do well on college boards, graduate records and other admissions tests, and—once he is in college or grad school — to turn out consistently high grades that will enable him to overcome the next academic hurdle. And while such intellectual and cognitive talents are highly rewarded, colleges increasingly frown upon emotional, affective, non-intellectual and passionate forms of expression. What is rewarded is the ability to delay, postpone and defer gratification in the interests of higher education tomorrow.

In contrast to these cognitive demands there are extremely few countervailing pressures to become more feeling, morally responsible, courageous, artistically perceptive, emotionally balanced, or interpersonally subtle human beings. On the contrary, the most visible pressures on today's students are, in many ways anti-emotional, impersonal, quantitative and numerical. The tangible rewards of our college world—scholarships, admission to grad school, fellowships and acclaim—go for that rather narrow kind of cognitive functioning involved in writing good final examinations, being good at multiple choice tests, and getting good grades. Furthermore, the tangible rewards of the post-collegiate professional world also demand a similar kind of cognitive functioning, at least in the early years. Thus, it is the outstanding college and grad student who goes on to coveted appointments in desirable hospitals, law firms, businesses, faculties and scientific labs.

This pressure for cognitive professionalism is closely related to the increasing "seriousness" of American college students. Many observers have commented on the gradual decline of student enthusiasm for such traditional American student pasttimes as fraternities, football games, popularity contests and panty raids. At least at the more selective colleges, the reason for this decline is obvious: the pre-professional student has neither time nor motivation for the traditional pranks of his parent's generation.

Increasingly, then, one of the major pressures on American students is a pressure to perform well academically, to postpone and delay emotional satisfactions until they are older, to refine and sharpen continually their cognitive abilities. As a result, students today probably work harder than students in any other previous generation; a bad course or a bad year means to many of them that they will not get into grad school. Taking a year off increasingly means running the danger of getting drafted and being sent to Vietnam.

In describing these pressures, I have used the word "performance" advisedly. A "performance" suggests an activity that is alien, that is done on a stage in order to impress others, that is a role played for an audience's applause. And to many students, of course, this quality of mild "alienness" prevades much of their intellectual and academic activities.

Thus, while the systematic quest for cognitive competence occupies much of the time and effort of the pre-professional student at today's selective colleges, this pursuit does little to inform the student about life's wider purposes. One of the peculiar characteristics of professional competence is that even when competence is attained, all of the other really important questions remain unanswered: what life is all about, what really matters, what to stand for, how much to stand for, what is meaningful, relevant and important, what is meaningless, valueless and false.

Thus, for many students, the pursuit of professional competence must be supplemented by another, more private and less academic quest for the meaning of life. Academic efforts seem, to a large number of students, divorced from the really important "existential" and "ultimate" questions. In this way, the student's private search for meaning, significance and relevance are experienced as unconnected with or opposed to his public exertions for grades, academic success and professional competence. How students search for significance and relevance of course varies enormously from individual to individual; but as I will later suggest, drug use seems—to a small group of students —a pathway to the pursuit of meaning.

In Memory of John Rabideau:
Killed in Action, South Vietnam,
April 13, 1967

He joked about it,
That unknown reality.
An average—
Something to soothe himself;
Something to challenge him,
To let him outlive the numbers.
To show to those people
That the odds are nothing.
But John, oh John;
Behind those numbers
Are men;
Men fighting and dying.
Men living their death
For the life from which they are kept.

—Jim Slavas, Editorial Staff

DEMONSTRATION . . .

(Continued from page 1)

girls from Smith and Mt. Holyoke and just enough room for those standing in the aisles.

The caravan of six busses, nearly three hundred people, from the four college area finally headed for the big city.

We stopped briefly on the Connecticut Turnpike for food and relief and arrived at Sheep Meadow, Central Park at 12:15. UMass was assigned to division K, the New England Contingent, which was scheduled to leave the park at 12 noon. Some were worried that we were late.

Last minute instructions were handed out and all at once everyone swarmed out of the busses. They just disappeared into a gigantic mass of people. The Umies tried to get organized, but only a measly twenty or so could be brought together.

"Hey, we need a sign," someone yelled out. "Get some cardboard." "What are we going to do with 'No Puerto Ricans to Vietnam' signs? "Turn them over." "Hey, yeah." "Does anyone have a magic marker or anything?"

Finally, some makeshift signs were scratched out and the four-college delegation was officially there.

Slowly but surely everyone scattered and separated into groups of two or three. Some stayed behind in division K and some walked ahead through the contingents from universities, colleges, religious groups, socialists and Communists.

Amid the chant of "love, now," the group walked down Madison Avenue, the Mecca of advertising. In front of the Archdiocese of New York some yelled "Draft Spellman." Some were there just to be "in", but by far most seemed sincere. The majority of people seemed under 30, but many were adults.

Few incidents marred the way. A group of Black Nationalists surged into the crowd before the police had called and were pushed back by the men in blue. A "balloon of paint" hit a woman on East 47th St. and she was taken away in an ambulance. Police re-routed the demonstrators and caused somewhat of a squeeze toward the U.N.

Finally, the U.N.

People as far as the eye could see. A line of police hundreds of feet long guarded the speaker's podium.

It was Stokely Carmichael speaking, prompting "We won't go, hell no," from the crowd, by the time that we arrived. Many others didn't get to the U.N. at all.

By now, it was 5 P.M. and a light rain began to fall. People began to leave, a few at a time, still leaving a multitude of demonstrators.

As we left, a middle-aged gentleman, seemingly returning from work, spotted two lone demonstrators. "You're pretty well organized up there, aren't you? Why don't you go to hell!"

But, most of the people were kind, sharing cigarettes, coffee, gum and everything imaginable. We caught the IRT subway to the busses parked at the Old World's Fair grounds by Shea Stadium. Then it was home, with all the demonstrators hoping they did some good. And as one speaker at the U.N. put it, "Maybe they'll hear us in heaven, And maybe they'll even hear us in Washington."

RALLY DETAILS . . .

(Continued from page 1)

to turn off the approved parade route.

Speaking at the United Nations for the sponsoring group, the Spring Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, a loose confederation of leftwing pacifist and modertate anti-war groups, King repeatedly called on the U.S. to "honor its word" and "stop the bombing of North Vietnam."

"I would like to urge students from colleges all over the nation to use this summer and coming summers educating and organizing communities across the nation against war," King told the crowd.

The only New Englander to speak at the protest was Boston University Professor Howard Zinn, who preceded Black power advocate Stokely Carmichael to the podium. An estimated 5,000 people from New England attended the march.

Included in the New England contingent were members of the Progressive Labor Party, Students for a Democratic Society, Socialist Workers Party, Mass. PAX groups from various New England Colleges, and a Black Power from the Roxbury section of Boston.

Photo by Kline

WESTERN SAMOA, the first independent Polynesian nation, has requested up to 300 Peace Corps Volunteers to assist in mounting major health, education and agriculture programs for its 134,000 citizens. Although retaining its Polynesian traditions, such as the Kava ceremony (above), Western Samoans seek to enter the 20th century.

A nation-wide recruiting effort, focusing largely on June college liberal arts graduates, is underway and will continue into May.

Interfraternity Council To Present Song Fest

The Interfraternity Council will present the annual fraternity sing tonight at 8:00 P.M. in the Student Union ballroom to begin the Greek Week activities. Everyone is welcome to come to the concert, and there will be no admission charge.

This year there will be thirteen houses competing for top honors and IFC points. Each house will sing one song a capella and will be judged in eight categories. The fraternities have been practicing for the past few weeks and should provide an interesting and enjoyable evening.

The traditionally strong Beta Phi's will be defending their championship and hope to win first place for the third straight year. However, this year there are more houses competing than last year, and the stronger houses are vying for the number one position.

The selection of songs is quite varied and somewhat unique. For example, the songs range from "Midnight Hour" and "Spanish Harlem" to "The Battle Hymn of the Republic' and "They call the Wind Maria."

While the houses are being judged, the audience will be entertained by the Zumbyes of Amherst College. This talented singing group toured Florida during spring vacation and have made a recording.

LAWTON, Okla. AP—Shirley A. Johnson, 24, says it was all a mistake—she didn't perform a topless dance at a tavern last month—a strap on her go-go costume broke.

But the Special Sessions Court judge, Jack Brock, wasn't sympathetic. He found Mrs. Johnson guilty of outraging public decency and fined her $100 and court costs.

"FUNCTION AT THE JUNCTION"

Sponsored by the Afro-American Students of Univ. of Mass.

WHERE: Belchertown Town House
Route 9 — Belchertown

WHEN: April 22, 1967
7 P.M. — 12 A.M.

WHAT: Entertainment by Incorporated Soul
Semi-formal

WHO: Buy tickets from Paula Diggs

$3 per person
$5 per couple

225 Thoreau — 546-7440

ROOM CHOOSING 1967 - 68

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS HOUSING OFFICE

The following is the official announcement for room choosing for September 1967. Please pay particular attention to the dates and times listed. Copies of this announcement will be placed on residence hall bulletin boards.

The new residence halls in the Southwest formally known as J, K, L, and M have been named, South to North, Charles H. Patterson (J—women), A. Anderson Mackimmie (K—men), Guy C. Crampton (L—women), and Walter E. Prince (M—grad.) respectively. In addition, the Lower House of George Washington Tower will be opened as an undergraduate men's residence hall.

The Graduate House moving to Prince may sign up at the lounge floor of the Graduate House "George Washington 5th floor" at the time scheduled by the Head of Residence, Mrs. Robinson.

Thursday and Friday, April 20-21—Residents of Lewis who wish to sign up for:

Brooks—sign up at Lewis at times to be posted.
Brooks House will be a four-class women's residence hall.
Crampton—sign up at Emerson. Time: 7 to 10 P.M.
Patterson—sign up at Melville. Time: 7 to 10 P.M.

Women whose rooms will be used for Freshmen next fall who wish to sign up for the new residence halls:
Crampton—sign up at Emerson. Time: 7 to 10 P.M.
Patterson—sign up at Melville. Time: 7 to 10 P.M.

Men whose rooms will be used for Freshmen next fall who wish to sign up for the new residence halls:

George Washington Lower—sign up at G. Washington Lower. Time: 7 to 10 P.M.

Mackimmie—sign up at John Q. Adams Lower Time: 7 to 10 P.M.

Monday, April 24—Class of '68 men wanting Mackimmie or George Washington Lower sign up at John Q. Adams Lower and George Washington Lower. Time: 7 to 10 P.M.

Class of '68 women wanting Crampton or Patterson sign up at Emerson and Melville. Time: 7 to 10 P.M.

Tuesday, April 25—Class of '69 men same as above. Time: 7 to 10 P.M.

Class of '69 women same as above. Time: 7 to 10 P.M.

Wednesday, April 26—Class of '70/'71 men same as above .Time: 7 to 10 P.M.

Class of '70/'71 women same as above. Time 7 to 10 P.M.

Thursday, April 27—Those wishing to keep present room sign up with their Head of Residence at times to be posted.

Friday, April 28—Class of '68 men & women) who wish to move to another room in the same residence hall may sign up with their Head of Residence at times to be posted.

Monday, May 1—Class of '69 (men & women) same as above.

Tuesday, May 2—Class of '70/'71 (men & women) same as above.

Wednesday, May 3—Residents of Lewis who do not wish to go to Brooks or the new residence halls and residents whose rooms will be used for Freshmen next fall who do not wish to go to new residence halls may sign up with the Head of Residence at the hall of their choice. Time: 7 to 10 P.M.

Thursday, May 4—Counseling Day.

Friday, May 5—Class of '68 (men & women) who wish to move to another residence hall may sign up at the hall of their choice. Time: 7 to 10 P.M.

Monday, May 8—Class of '69 (men & women) same as above.

Tuesday, May 9—Class of '70/'71 (men & women) same as above.

Wednesday, May 10 — Class of '70/'71 (men & women) same as above.

Any student who now resides off-campus who wishes a residence hall room assignment may make reservation at the Housing Office after May 15th.

WE URGE OUR CLASSMATES TO JOIN US IN RE-ELECTING

WAYNE THOMAS— President Class of '69

Judy Leach, Ralph Stoddard, Peter Lewenberg, Jane Ludlow, Pat Sullivan, Jessie Mallon, Melissa Murphy, Gail Berry, Margie Frey, Debbie Nicholls, Jack King, Paul Johnson, Bob Foley, Jack Doucette, Sandy Kimball, Dave Erickson, Toni Zographos, Lynne Goodman, Diane Di Panfilo, Dottie Silvia, M. Rosenthal, Linda Dempsey, Ellen Galligan, Maryanne Manaring, Joanne Sharac, Jill De Wallis, Nan Fornal, Lora Racicot, Paula Lanchansky, Martha Strandberg, Nancy Richardson, Lynne Tyler, Paula Lizotte, Chris O'Hare, Linda Bowman, Bobbie Pincus, Ann Perone, Pat Davidson, M.sureen Malloy, Joanne Perry, Arlene Poretsky, Kathy Erkkila, Barbara Day, Joanne Minnock, Karen Carlsen, Bernadette Murphy, Mary Denen, Elaine Clak, Libby Gaffney, Sharyn Paris

Joyce Lemkin, Linda Bennett, Ronni Walnestein, Elaine Hastings, Allison Moore, Drusilla Young, Carole Belmen, Barbara Peterson, Jo Beth Cohn, Ginny Clark, Rita Ryan, Bonni B. Bates, Merry Crowe, Kathy Izatt, Ray Deterra, Ken Butler, Karen Benson, Carol Robinson, Cheryl Garrison, Sharyn Kronick, Janet Dowdell, Linda Emerson, Peggy Gregoritch, Karen Hobbs, Dave Laprade, John Gifford, Chip Wildes, Bob Doughty, Jeff Russell, Jim Smith, Denny Moore, Bob Silton, Al McKinnon, Lew Smith, Stuart Silverstein, Jeff Levine, Steve Babcock, Jim Pavoa, Glen Gomes, Rich McDonald, Jim McGee, Ferry Wasserman, Bill Rechter, Dick Minton, Chuck Smith, Bob Rosenmark, Kathy Charlier, Sally Dolgin, Glenn Briere, Jack Dean

Robert Finley, Rich Demski, Gean Brady, Ferrery Simmons, Paul Connors, Helen Newlander, Carole Zeph, Ronald Gould, Thomas Fitzpatrick, Dennis Cohen, Joseph Nishanian, Jane Lentowski, Dick Klemansky, Dennis A. Capitano, Bill Clause, William Andrews, John V. Young, Jr., Steven Camara, Joe Donahue, Bob Hertzel, Robert Goff, Richard Chrabaszcz, John Park, John Durant, Warren Rousseau, Robert Ross, Pam Mason, Beth Farber, Cathy Bilsbury, Gladys Yunik, Sharon Downs, Lisa Dondero, Linda Shriber, Shiela White, Thomas Rankin, Philip Murphy, Miriam Kangas, Martha Swartz, Ed Debien, Paul Fezzie, Robert Collins, Mike Paysan, Howie Whittum, Jack Mills, Tony Covino, Leslie Rosemburg, Rosaland Lofchie, Jane Adams, Marian Lowe, Dick Clough

Bob Malavich, David Perry, Richard Klanzinsky, John Boyle, Ginny Therrien, Lowell Fitch, Mike Kustra, Jud Ostrum, Donna Laconti, Martha O'Neil, Amanda Carlin, Pam Noblet, Roberta Casagrandi, Eileen Hackey, Judith Campbell, Nancy Fogg, Mary Britha, Jackie Brodeur, Carol Edwards, Nancy Doyle, Judith Brody, Susan Silis, Nancy Bergman, Donna Carvotta, Eileen O'Sullivan, Jane Friberg, Linda Rivera, Diane Hagg, Carlene Botta, Marsha Baron, Nancy Glickstein, Phil Heller, Mannie White, Bob Weiss, Kathleene Bryan, Deborah Roycroft, Al Ryan, Preston Cook, Stuart Silverstein, Edward Rubin, Paul McNamara, Pat Hauck, Barbara Berkowitz, Susan Arcovette, Larner Grussie, Kathleen Prior, Sandy Switzer, Eileen Hackey, Priscilla Gunn, Glen Ambra, Richard Paroline

Robert Goff, Dick Lynch, Bill Robbins, Dan Arguimbau, Gary Greenberg, Sam Hillson, Jim McGreehan, Kathy Brady, Sue Gardner, Winston Clark, Mark Sullivan, Robert Band, Pam Dudley, Bob Forbes, Bill Wall, Gene Funtl, Neal Pruchansky, Lou Fontaine, Kathy Benigni, Ralph Bornstein, Al Maziroff, Susie Lillard, Stan Kovaleski, Leo Immonen, Pat Haluck, Pat Godek, Sharon Tower, Bob Ward, Wayne Higney, Howie Whittum, Ron Hebert, Fran Procak, Mildred Salino, Kathleene Bryan, Deborah Roycroft, Al Ryan, Neal Whitman, Ron Johnson, J. Paul Frenier, Mark Cherniach, Joe Trengali, Nick Akerman, Roger Robitaille, Mark Heyda, Marc Antine, Bob Williams, Greg Cigal, Vincent Scalese, Jim Tickle, Ray Welsh, Lawrence Pelkey

Peter Alizzio, Lewis Fontaine, John Ohman, Ellen Gould, Janice Durley, Linda Houghton, Judy Lenzner, Lee Mabie, Al Peakes, Jon Gerard, David Brother, Bob Hallelbaum, James Casanizza, Mimi Conway, Linda Ewiry, Bob Sawyer, Bob Peterson, Bob Eckert, Bill Cirois, Art Jewett, Hank Gedzman, George Duffield, Richard Letourneau, Richard Fredricks, Marjorie Lauer, Nancy B. Bourgoin, Terry Barey, Dawn Dudash, Ruth Ellen Aronson, Lydia Battista, Wendy Barbeau, Christine Eullan, Suzanne Valasunas, Margaret Westwell, Kim Garrison, Barbara Ketchen, Susan Jackson, Pat Davidson, Karen Silverman, Meredith Chisholm, Joan Nartocot, Thomas Adams, Richard Dauphinail, Susan Parkhurst, Patty Curran, Peter Donaldson, Jean Carmell, Maddie Blake, Heddy Lissberger, Janet Tierney

Final Exam Schedule

FINAL EXAMINATION SCHEDULE
Students with DIRECT CONFLICTS (i.e. more than one examination in the same hour) are to report to the Schedule Office, 3rd floor of South College, for resolution of the problem. Deadline for reporting conflicts is Wednesday, April 26. Conflicts reported after this date will NOT be processed by the Schedule Office.
Day Identification
1. Sat. May 20
2. Mon. May 22
3. Tues. May 23
4. Wed. May 24
5. Thu. May 25
6. Fri. May 26
7. Sat. May 27
8. Mon. May 29
Period Identification
A. 8:00 - 10:00 a.m.
B. 10:20 a.m. - 12:20 p.m.
C. 1:10 - 3:10 p.m.
D. 3:30 - 5:30 p.m.
Illustration
ACCTG 110 6D represents examination for Acctg 110 at 3:30 on Fri., May 26.

JUNIOR-SENIOR EXAMINATION SCHEDULE - i. e. for courses numbered "200" and above These courses are examined according to the weekly schedule of the section during the semester. ILLUSTRATION: English 263, section 3, which meets MWF 11:15 will be examined in period 3A.

MWF	8:00	3C	TUTHS	10:10	4C
MWF	9:05	5C	TUTHS	11:15	2D
MWF	10:10	1C	TUTH	12:20	1D
MWF	11:15	3A	TUTH	1:00	6A
MWF	12:20	1D	TUTH	1:25	6A
MWF	1:25	5A	TUTH	2:30	2A
MWF	2:30	2C	TUTH	3:35	7A
MWF	3:35	1A	TUTH	4:00	7A
MWF	4:40	4A	TUTH	4:40	3D
TUTHS	8:00	7C	Any Evening		4D
TUTHS	9:05	6C

FRESHMAN-SOPHOMORE EXAMINATION SCHEDULE - i.e. for courses numbered below "200".

CHANGES AND ADDITIONS TO THE SCHEDULE AS ORIGINALLY PUBLISHED HAVE BEEN UNDERLINED.

ACCTG	125	5D	ENGL	125	3D	M E	146	1D	PHYSIC	116	1C
ACCTG	126	2D	ENGL	126	3D	MATH	011	8B	PLSOIL	100	4D
AIRSCI	112	1B	ENGL	127	4B	MATH	021	5B	PLSOIL	105	1D
AIRSCI	122	1B	ENT	126	5D	MATH	111	5B	POLISH	102	8B
ANTH	103	8B	FOREST	112	4D	MATH	112	5B	PORT	102	6B
ANTH	104	1D	FRENCH	003	1D	MATH	113	5B	PORT	108	3B
ART	115	*	FRENCH	101	7D	MATH	121	5B	PSYCH	101	2B
ASIANS	150	*	FRENCH	102	7D	MATH	123	5B	PSYCH	102	2B
ASTRON	102	6D	FRENCH	107	7D	MATH	124	5B	PSYCH	106	2B
ASTRON	104	3D	FRENCH	108	7D	MATH	135	5B	PUB HL	123	7D
BIOCHM	120	2D	FRENCH	126	1D	MATH	136	5B	REC	131	1D
BOTANY	100	7B	GEOG	135	1D	MATH	151	5B	RUSS	102	8B
BOTANY	101	7B	GEOG	150	6B	MATH	173	5B	RUSS	108	7D
BOTANY	125	2B	GEOL	101	8A	MATH	174	5B	RUSS	110	8B
BOTANY	126	2D	GEOL	102	8A	MATH	185	5B	SOCIOL	101	3B
C E	102	4D	GERMAN	101	7D	MATH	186	5B	SOCIOL	102	3B
C E	140	2D	GERMAN	102	7D	MATH	187	8A	SPAN	101	7D
C E	141	2D	GERMAN	103	*	MEDTEC	101	7B	SPAN	102	7D
CH E	126	6D	GERMAN	107	7D	MEN PE	122	5B	SPAN	107	2D
CHEM	102	6D	GERMAN	108	7D	MEN PE	142	4B	SPAN	108	7D
CHEM	112	6D	GERMAN	110	3B	MICBIO	140	4D	SPAN	110	8A
CHEM	114	6D	GERMAN	112	*	MUSIC	101	*	SPAN	126	2D
CHEM	127	6D	GOVT	100	6B	MUSIC	112	6B	SPEECH	101	2D
CHEM	160	4B	GOVT	150	6B	MUSIC	114	6B	SPEECH	115	2D
CHEM	166	4B	GOVT	161	1D	N F	127	6B	SPEECH	135	2B
COMSCI	121	1B	HIST	100	4D	N F	130	1D	SPEECH	141	6D
COMSCI	131	1B	HIST	101	4D	N F	156	7B	STATIS	121	1B
E E	142	7B	HIST	151	4D	NURSE	100	2B	TCEA	123	1B
ECON	125	8B	HTLMGT	101	5C	NURSE	111	4B	TCEA	124	6D
ECON	126	8B	ITAL	102	7D	PHIL	105	8B	TCEA	128	8B
ENGIN	103	1D	ITAL	108	7D	PHIL	125	1B	TCEA	142	6D
	and	1C	JAPAN	102	4B	PHIL	162	1D	WO PE	106	6D
ENGIN	104	4D	LATIN	102	3D	PHYSIC	102		WO PE	130	2D
	and	4C	LATIN	108	7D	PHYSIC	104	8A	ZOOL	101	5D
ENGIN	105	7D	LD ARC	102	8A	PHYSIC	105	5D	ZOOL	135	5D
	and	7C	LD ARC	124	5B	PHYSIC	106	5D	ZOOL	138	1B
ENGL	111	4B	LD ARC	128	4D	PHYSIC	107	4B	ZOOL	145	5D
ENGL	112	4B	LD ARC	130	4B	PHYSIC	112	6B

* This course will be examined by sections according to the Junior-Senior Examination Schedule - see page 1.

Re-elect
GLENN
MANGURIAN
VICE-PRESIDENT
Class of '70

Amherst Women Booksale

The Amherst League of Women Voters would appreciate receiving contributions of books for its annual booksale to be held May 5th and 6th on the Town Commons.

Books may be left in the trunk outside the door of Rowe's Garage, 37 East Pleasant Street. If assistance is needed in transporting books, call Mrs. Henry Jacob at 549-1228.

Dining Commons Menu Monday - Saturday

MONDAY
Breakfast:
Grape Juice
Oranges
Farina
Omelet
Coffee Cake
Lunch:
Pepper Pot Soup
Bacon, Lettuce, Tomato Sandwich
Potato Chips
Hot Meat Loaf—Gravy
Buttered Potato
Mixed Vegetables
Dinner:
Deep Fried Fish/Tartar Sauce
Pot Roast—Gravy
Whipped Potatoes
Asparagus

TUESDAY
Breakfast:
Orange Juice
Applesauce
Oatmeal
Scrambled Eggs
Banana Muffins
Lunch:
Green Pea Soup
Hamburger/Roll
Bermuda Onion Slices
Fruit Salad Plate
French Fried Potato
Dinner:
Baked Chicken
Veal Pattie
Spaghetti
Green Beans

WEDNESDAY
Breakfast:
Grapefruit Juice—Bananas
Maltex
Pancakes—Syrup
Lunch:
Chicken Veg. Soup
Scalloped Beef and Noodle
Ham Grinder cheese, cole slaw
Potato Chips
Dinner:
Roast Pork—Gravy
Spiced Apples
Salisbury Steak—Gravy
Whipped Potato
Broccoli

THURSDAY
Breakfast:
Apple Juice
Grapefruit Half
Farina
Fried Eggs
Lunch:
Beef Barley Soup
Chow Mein on Rice
Beef Turupuers—Gravy
Green Beans
Dinner:
Baked Ham—Pineapple glaze
Beef Stroganoff—buttered noodles
Augratin Potatoes
Sliced Carrots

FRIDAY
Breakfast:
Grape Juice
Oranges
Oatmeal
Scrambled Eggs
Doughnuts
Lunch:
Clam Chowder
Codfish Cakes—Tomato Sauce
Baked Beans
Hot Beef Sandwich—Gravy
Whipped Potato
Whole Kernel Corn
Dinner:
Fillet of Sole—Tarter Sauce
Meat Loaf with Gravy
Scalloped Potatoes
Whole Beets

SATURDAY
Breakfast:
Pineapple Juice
Plums
Maltex
Lunch:
French Onion Soup
American Chop Suey
Mushroom Omelet
French Fried Potato
Peas
Dinner:
Country Steak
Chicken a la King on biscuit
Mashed Potatoes
Carrot Chunks

UMass Press Wins Award

Six books published by the University of Massachusetts Press have been selected by Choice magazine as outstanding contributions to serious literature in 1966.

Choice, published by the American Association of College and Research Libraries, reviews scholarly titles as a service to faculty members here and abroad.

Of the six selected from the UMass Press, two were by University authors. They were "Dialectics and Nihilism: Essays on Lessing, Nietzsche, Mann and Kafka," by Peter Heller of the UMass department of Germanic languages and literature; and "Jean Giraudoux: Theatre of Victory and Defeat" by Agnes G. Raymond of the UMass department of Romance languages.

Two volumes of poetry from the UMass Press were selected: "Come Out Into the Sun," by Robert Francis and "Between Wars and Other Poems" by Anne Halley. Both are from Amherst.

The other two books selected were "Socialism and the Workers in Massachusetts: 1886-1912" by Henry F. Bedford of Exeter Academy and "The Lyman Letters: New Light on Emily Dickinson and Her Family" by Richard B. Sewall of Yale University.

OPPORTUNITIES IN SELLING

Free to Univ. of Mass. Students
25¢ to others

A new booklet, published by a non-profit educational foundation, tells which career field lets you make the best use of all your college training, including liberal-arts courses—which career field offers 100,000 new jobs every year—which career field produces more corporation presidents than any other—what starting salary you can expect. Just send this ad with your name and address. This 24-page, career-guide booklet, "Opportunities in Selling," will be mailed to you. No cost or obligation. Address: Council on Opportunities, 550 Fifth Ave., New York 36, N. Y.

NOTICES

PRE-MED CLUB
On Wed., April 19, at 7:30 in Morrill 203, Alan Bulotsky, a Medical Student at UVermont will talk to UMass on medical school admissions.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION
Every Tuesday, at 6:45 P.M. in Worcester Room, S.U. there is a gathering. All welcome.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
On Monday, April 17, in Council Chambers there will be a general business meeting.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB
On Tues., April 18 in Essex Room, S.U. there is a general meeting. Non-members also invited.

YAHOO
There is a general staff meeting on Monday, April 17 at 7:00 P.M. in Franklin Room, S.U. There will be planning for Christmas festival.

EDUCATION CLUB
On Tues., April 18 at 7:45 in School of Ed. Aud., there will be a panel discussion between the American Federation of Teachers and the National Education Association. All welcome. Refreshments.

SCUBA CLUB
There will be a beginner's check-out dive on Wed., April 19. It will leave the cage at 1 P.M. Bring your own wet suit, the club supplies the rest. If you plan to get certified you must come. Call Steve Garanin or Steve Files to be signed up.

ANNUAL UNIVERSITY BANDS
There will be a meeting of the University Bands in Old Chapel Auditorium on April 18, at 7:30 P.M.

LOST:
1965 Turners Falls High School ring. Initials FGS. Has sentimental value. Reward. Contact Pat Milkey, 220 Lewis.
Omega Seamaster watch. Call Nowell at 549-1861 after 12 midnite. Handsome reward for its return.

PINNINGS:
Marvin Sargent, class of '69, Lewis, to Don Newton, class of '67, Thatcher.
Ann Roberts, class of '69, Hamlin, to Alan Pierce, class of '69, J.F.K. Upper.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Jane Meagher, class of '67, Lambda Delta Phi, to Joseph Keady, Jr., class of '66.
Barbara Ann Devens, class of '67, Johnson, to Joseph M. Downey, Ass't. Prof. at Temple University.
Kathleen Coulombe, class of '68, Johnson, to Philip J. Bouley, class of '68, UMass.

"Cheer up, No. 51. Anyone can trip over 3rd base. But thanks to your close Norelco shave, you looked marvelous doing it."

"I guess you're right, Miss Swinging Campus Queen. Those 18 amazing rotary blades, 3 floating Microgroove heads, that sideburn trimmer, coil-cord and on/off switch sure saved the day for me!"

The Tripleheader 35T — fastest shaver on wheels.

The Norelco Rechargeable 40C. A single charge delivers twice as many shaves as any other rechargeable. Works with or without a plug. Shaves so close, we dare to match it with a razor blade. Pop-up trimmer, too.
The Norelco Cordless 'Flip-Top' 20B (not shown) shaves anywhere on just 4 penlight batteries. Now with convenient battery ejector. Microgroove heads and rotary blades. Snap-open wallet with mirror.

Norelco® — the close, fast, comfortable electric shave
©1967 North American Philips Company, Inc., 100 East 42nd Street, New York, New York 10017

DRAFT INFORMATION
Counseling on Conscientious Objection
Tuesday, April 18 and May 9
1 - 5 p.m.
For appointment phone: S.U. Ext. 5-2789
Sponsored by
AMERICAN FRIENDS SERVICE COMMITTEE
and
UNITED CHRISTIAN FOUNDATION

Participation Increases Senior Honors Program

by EILEEN HANLEY

The Honors Program at UMass this year has the largest number of students and the most committed students it has had since its formal organization in 1959, according to Dr. Arthur Elkins, director of the Honors Program.

Pleased with the program's progress, Elkins adds: "I get the most satisfaction from the Senior Honors Program because of its growing size. However, I am particularly happy with the Honors Colloquia because although it has fewer members this year, it has developed into a sound program with dedicated students."

Under the Senior Honors Program, each department chooses promising students to do independent research in their senior year. With the guidance of a three-man committee they write a thesis and are given an oral examination on their subject. At the completion of their work they are given a grade and six credits.

Students in Honors Colloquia have also been recommended by their departments. Members of all four classes participate in weekly discussion groups under the direction of professors. At the end of the semester they are given one credit for their work.

The greatest change in the Senior Honors Program has been its growth. Two years ago approximately 90 students accepted invitations to participate. Last year, there were 128. This year 140 seniors have begun research.

Each year some drop the program for various reasons, such as lack of time. However, this number is decreasing, according to Dr. Elkins. "I expect even fewer this year—partly due to the fact that, Honors students now cannot receive a WP after March 1."

Dr. Elkins claims two reasons for the rise in number of Senior Honors participants. One is the increase in total University enrollment, including more students interested in going to graduate school.

The other reason is increased departmental awareness and interest in the program. "You can have many highly qualified students," Dr. Elkins says, "but without interested departments to encourage students you will not have a program. This year we have participants from nearly every University department."

Before, students chose topics once they were assigned to discussion groups. This year, subjects were picked first, and students signed up for the discussion groups they wanted. Dr. Elkins says that this has had the effect of attracting interested students.

Like Senior Honors, departmental interest is necessary for the growth of the Colloquia. "The biggest problem, however," Dr. Elkins comments, "is finding faculty members who are willing and have the time to head these groups. Many are interested, but few are available."

Looking to the future, Dr. Elkins plans to expand the program, both Senior Honors and Honors Colloquia, as much as possible. "With high-quality students and an interested university we will be able to expand, especially in the residential colleges."

Honors Projects Discussed

On Thursday, April 6, Alpha Lambda Delta, the freshmen and sophomore women's honor society, listened to four seniors tell of their honors projects. Dr. Elkins, director of honors, explained that the honors project consists of a six credit independent study program on a subject chosen by the student during the student's senior year.

The seniors agreed that the project was one of the most rewarding and stimulating experiences of their four years at the University.

Rita Dreiblatt, a speech major, spoke on the brain damaged child; Richard Jacobs, a government major, discussed the suppression of obscene literature. Lorna Sass, an English major, presented her comparative study between Jewish and Christian fathers and sons as seen through literature; and Fred Mackler, a Chemistry major, told about the approach and difficulties in pursuing his project. After the four talks, there was an informal discussion over refreshments.

WHERE IS IT NOW? . . .

(Continued from page 4)

The Student Senate can appeal to the Board of Trustees.

Pres. Greenquist sees the Student Senate "as an organization becoming more and more representative of the student body, continuously creating follow-up committees to report on the progress of new laws passed." He sees it headed towards "the extension of student participation in all levels of University life, through which everyone will gain."

PROF. McFARLAND . . .

(Continued from page 4)

meetings of students on subjects such as academic advising in the College of Arts and Sciences.

"The ordinary student often doesn't feel as if he should just drop in on a dean. It is, however, part of a senator's responsibility to represent the students' views to the faculty."

News Brief

PROVIDENCE, R. I. AP — Rhode Island College students, already faced with a $35 fee hike in the fall, will have to pay an additional $15 when the college's new student union building opens, probably by next September.

The Board of Trustees of State Colleges decided on the increase behind closed doors at a meeting last month.

The proposed fee boost is disclosed in the minutes of that meeting.

The two increases will bring the RIC student fees from $245 to $295 in September.

Backstage at Bowker

by THOMAS BENTLEY

Two hours before the curtain rises, the cast, the makeup crew, and the costume crew are grouped along with stools, chairs, trunks, crates, makeup cabinets, and sewing machines into two dressing rooms no larger than an average kitchen. Around the rooms the costumes hang like corpses on the gallows waiting to be resurrected from their lifeless place on the racks.

The faucets at the sinks pour a continuous stream of hot water as the actors wait in line to apply their base makeup. Modesty is unheard of in the cramped space, and the entire scene reminds the onlooker of a fraternity party which has gotten out of hand.

Slips, bras, and shivvies circle everywhere amid the din of the singing faucets and the croaking paper towel dispensers. Through the general babble of the cast can be heard occasional gut-laughs as the somewhat tarnished humor of the dressing room takes effect.

The tension of these minutes before the show creates a need for laughter and music; so, when a few half-dressed males, suggestive of a B.V.D. advertisement, joint together to sing, the rest of the cast joins in. The entire picture is enough to make anyone wonder when the actors will realize there is a show scheduled for 8:30 that evening.

The barbershop quartet standing on the stools caught togther in cracking harmony, a group of laughing people standing about in a haze of powder, and the seamstress madly sewing buttons which have popped from the undersize costumes all lend to the insanity of the pre-performance confusion.

This light hearted feeling is suddenly snapped when the ominous announcement "one hour to curtain" cracks from the intercom. Immediately serious, the cast proceeds to complete the tedious process of growing old or growing young, whichever the case may be. The wigs and richly embroidered gowns transform the painted girls in ragged clothes to courtly ladies of fashion. From the mess and pandemonium one by one, characters appear from another century.

Once the costuming is finished, the natural ham of the actors blossoms. Just as the driver before the big race reves his engine, the individual characters live their part to extreme for a warmup before the show. The men in ruffles, long frock coats, and white silk stockings begin to flirt with the bodiced women in low-cut gowns. Again, to relieve the building tension, a general spirit of revelry makes the atmosphere of an eighteenth century tavern rise from the stools and mirrored walls.

The fatal sounding of the notice that the house has opened halts the frenzy, and from this point on the minutes grow more tense. The mood takes a solemn, professional air as each member of the cast recalls the hours of rehearsal, which have built to this moment. Now, "the play's the thing" and when the asbestos is dropped one can hear each person whispering words of encouragement as they climb the stairs. The show is about to begin.

COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"
545-2550

FIRST ANNUAL
ALL-CAMPUS BARBECUE
SATURDAY, MAY 6 4:30 - 6:30 P.M.
Next to the Student Union by the Pond
Tickets on sale in all dining commons and snack bars $1.00
No charge to weekend meal ticket holders

ELECT
JOE DOUCETTE
Class of '70
VICE
PRESIDENT

WALKIE WARD
for
TREASURER '69

THE SEASON THAT WAS...

'67-'68 Redmen Could Make History

by JOHN GEDSUDSKI
Staff Reporter

(Last part in series)

Oklahoma City coach Abe Lemmons' motto is "When in doubt —shoot." In the quarterfinals of the All-College Basketball Tournament, his Chiefs followed his philosophy to the letter.

Their defense wasn't quite as relentless as their offense, but it didn't have to be. Gary Gray, a full-blooded Indian who did most of his shooting from somewhere near Little Big Horn, had 29 points, and OCU won, 89-82.

Bill Tindall had 27 to begin his three eves of destruction for UMass. Tim Edwards and Joe DiSarcina, however, committed four fouls apiece in the first half and had to shy away on defense.

The next night in the consolation semi-finals against highly-ranked DePaul, Tindall conducted the most devastating one-man show for UMass all season. He shot 14 for 18 from the floor and nine for 11 from the line, and he grabbed a dozen bounds.

DePaul, from Chicago, hadn't been through anything like it since Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over the lantern. Frank Stewart's corner pops and UMass' free throw accuracy in the last two minutes clinched the Redmen's stunning 85-77 upset.

UMass' opponent in the consolation finals was beefy Texas, and the Redmen were once again the dark horses. But Tindall performed a 34-point encore, and the Longhorns hadn't reckoned on a couple of dudes named Mike Meola and Rick Perkins.

The latter two, rushed into service when Bob Murphy twisted his ankle and DiSarcina and John Lisack both fouled out, brought the ball up smoothly against the Texas press. They saved the day for the Redmen, who won an 85-74 game, the consolation trophy, and five days of rest.

UMass resumed its schedule against Providence and probably the best collegiate guard in America, Jimmy Walker. With only two minutes left, the Redmen, led, 58-57, against the N.I.T.-bound Friars, but Walker's All-American finesse reversed the verdict, 62-59.

The main reason the Redmen had gone so far in that one was the electric eye of John Lisack, who shot 14 for 21 from the floor for 29 points. At one point in the first half, he hit on seven straight bombs.

The next games for the Redmen were tough ones—a 77-73 win over New Hampshire and a 65-60 loss to Fairfield. Then UMass declared war on Army and suffered everything but napalm in losing, 68-46, on the Cadet court.

At Burlington the Redmen picked up Conference win number five against Vermont and set up a showdown at Connecticut, a place where they haven't won since Franklin D. Roosevelt's first term. Whatever caused it, the "Torture Chamber" or UConn's most idolized undergrad since Gene Pitney, Wes Bialosuknia's the Redmen lost again, 66-59.

Syracuse's Vaughan Harper had 28 points and Holy Cross' Ed Siudut had 37 to bring UMass' demise in the next two games, and Rhode Island, with revenge on its mind, trapped the Redmen in Keaney Gymnasium. The Rams rolled up the highest total against UMass all year, but the 96-72 score was deceiving: it should have been worse.

The Redmen gave vent to their emotions against New Hampshire at Durham, winning, 84-52. Tim Edwards had 24 rebounds, a season high, and approached the all-time season board record.

He broke it in the next game, a poorly played 64-54 loss to Holy Cross. Before the season ended, Edwards would hold both the season record, 352, and the career record, 903.

The Redmen's slim Conference chances depended on a victory against UConn at the Cage three days later, and the home forces held a 51-43 lead with five minutes left. Bialosuknia and Corley kept their poise while the Redmen didn't, and the Huskies sneaked out of town with a 60-59 win and a Conference title.

Through the last four games, the Redmen couldn't forget that loss. They dropped an 81-76 nightmare to American International, because Frank "Moose" Stronczek and his colleagues were the most psychologically 'up" students to come out of Springfield since Timothy Leary.

Then UMass had to scrape to lick Maine, 83-75, and Boston University, 70-67, before drawing the curtain against St. John's in New York. In this town, the beer people say, either you have it or you don't. The Redmen didn't, Sonny Dove and Rudy Bogad did, and St. John's won, 76-64.

Out of a disappointing season, they say, hope springs eternal for the future. There will be new names — Ellerbrook, Gallagher, Samuelson, Kostygan, DiSarcina and a fellow named Leaman will each have a year under their belts. Nowakowski will play a full season. And the big one, Tindall, will be back for more.

UConn, incidentally, will have only Corley returning. If next year's Redmen do nothing else, one snowy night at Storrs in 1968 they could make history.

PROVIDENCE . . .

(Continued from page 12)

record with an ERA of 2.07. But when UMass beat UConn 7-2 at Amherst a year ago, the Redmen knocked him all over the lot in relief.

The probable pitchers in Wednesday's Patriot's Day game are John Canty for UMass and Baird for the Huskies. That shapes up as quite a strikeout duel. Junior southpaw Dave Katz will start for UMass today against Providence.

On Friday UMass travels up to Burlington for a big weekend series with Vermont. The Catamounts, who dropped two to UConn last weekend, will be trying to get back into the race. Since the Redmen already have a loss in the Conference, they can't afford to lose those games.

By Saturday night, UMass' fate in the Yankee Conference could well be decided.

Sports Week in Review

The Pro Shop

by STEVE ROSS

BASEBALL — The first week's action saw Baltimore and St. Louis breaking fast. In the American League, Baltimore has started like the World Champions they are. Minnesota and Detroit, the O's chief contenders broke poorly and are under .500.

In the National League, undefeated St. Louis broke on top with prime contenders San Francisco and Pittsburgh starting slowly. The Dodgers broke the poorest of all (so far without a win) and it is obvious that without Koufax the defending champs are extremely doubtful repeaters.

Boston Rookie Bill Rohr came within one pitch of hurling a no-hitter against the hitless wonders themselves, the New York Yankees. With two outs in the ninth, Elston Howard tapped a single over second baseman Reggie Smith's head to ruin Rohr's bid.

BILL ROHR
Near miss in debut.

BASKETBALL — The Celtics were eliminated by the 76'ers and the Hawks were eliminated by the Warriors. The Celtics were eliminated Tuesday night 140-116. Boston's torrid shooting cooled off and the 76'ers took command in the second half. All hope vanished when Sam Jones slipped on the remnants of an egg when the Celts had the opportunity to cut the lead to four.

The Warriors ended the hopes of St. Louis when the Hawks ran into stone cold shooting and could never quite untrack. Player-Coach Richie Buerin ended his playing career, losing by six. Nate Thurmond and Rick Barry led the Warriors throughout the series.

Philadelphia grabbed the first game of the final, 141-135, in overtime. Hal Greer, Wally Jones, and Wilt Chamberlain led the 76'ers. Nate Thurmond's attempt to win the game went for naught when Chamberlain blocked his dunk attempt (which can't be done according to the rules). The second game saw Nate Thurmond injured by Billy Cunningham in the first half. San Francisco was ice cold and Philadelphia had little trouble disposing of the Warriors, 126-95.

It is interesting to note that in this year's series, not one series has gone the limit. Last year three went the route, with the Celtics involved in two.

HOCKEY—New York's plunge into Stanley Cup competition was about as short as Liston's second fight with Ali. Montreal knocked out the Rangers in four straight games. The second two games were a bit closer, but the Rangers were outclassed. The Rangers started fast, but by midseason they showed their mediocrity, and by season's end were obviously miscast as a playoff team.

In the other playoff, Chicago saved their arrival late season fold for the playoffs. After splitting the first four games, the Black Hawks gave away the fifth game Saturday.

After taking a 2-1 lead the Hawks' defense folded. Dave Keon set up Frank Mahovolich for the tying marker on a picture play. Third period goals by Stemkowski and Pappin won it for the Leafs. Terry Sawchuck, who replaced Johnny Bower after the first period in the nets for Toronto, was immense. After nearly being decapitated by a Bobby Hull slap shot, Samchuck was revived and shut out the Hawks.

CANTY . . .

(Continued from page 12)

field fence with a towering drive.

UM certainly had its chances to score. In each of the last four innings, the Redmen got a base runner to second but were unable to get the big hit.

With such a tight pitching duel going on, it took a break to determine the winner. Maine got that break in the 10th with two out when Eliot Klein bobbled Cobb's roller to third. Canty walked Ferguson to put two men on. Corbett didn't miss this time as he laced a double to left center.

UMass' last gasp ended on Canty's long fly to right with the tying run on third.

John Canty's strikeout total of 20 represents a new school record, breaking the old record of 18 set in 1957 by Ralph Lumenti, a former Washington Senator pitcher.

After the game home plate umpire Kosloski consoled Canty by saying, "This is just about the best game I've ever seen anyone pitch, and I've been calling 'em for over 30 years."

LACROSSE . . .

(Continued from page 12)

also be missed by the Panthers. Candidates to fill his position are Bill McCollom, starring attackman on last year's varsity and Skip Green, goalie from last year's freshman team.

UMass coach Dick Garber plans to stay with the same lines, which have been very effective. Friday night the Redmen came from behind, to beat the Boston Lacrosse Club, 7-5, in a scrimmage.

ELECT
LEE FORST
'70 TREASURER
"He is more than an adding machine, he is an officer!"

ELECTION COVERAGE
on
WMUA
WED. at 8:00 on ACTION "67"
Host Pete Ward talks with 1968
Class Presidential Candidates
DICK WOOD and BOB TOBIN
KEEP UP WITH THE CAMPUS
WITH WMUA 91.1 F.M.

DAVE TIBERII
for
VICE-PRESIDENT '68
EXPERIENCED — KNOWLEDGEABLE
- Executive Council — 3 years
- Student Senate — 2 years
- House Council — 2 years
- Homecoming Committee

NOW ENDS TUES.
ON SCREEN
7:00 and 9:10
AMHERST Cinema
GRAND PRIZE WINNER 1966 CANNES FILM FESTIVAL
A MAN AND A WOMAN
Next • ENDLESS SUMMER

MASS. CLASSIFIED

HELP WANTED

Tree surgeon. Unusual opportunity with good future, top salary. G & M Employment Service, 145 State St., Springfield, 739-1133.

AUTOMOBILES

1963 Vespa 150 cc spare tire, windshield.
1964 Lambretta 150 cc spare tire, windshield AL 3-7562.

1960 Lambreta, new tires & cables engine excellent 150 cc, $90.00 Call William Brucken, 237 Baker, 546-6077.

COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING PAYS

OPPORTUNITIES

"Esperanto is so easy that after only two hours I could, if not write, at least read the language freely."—Leo Tolstoy. Learn the simple International Language at The Esperanto Club, Student Union, 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays

1967 SUMMER JOB CATALOG—Start your career this summer with a major US corporation. Excellent salaries. Catalog lists over 10,000 openings available THIS SUMMER for men and women students. Send $2 today to: Amer. Assn. of College Students, 30 North LaSalle, Chicago, Illinois 60602.

LOST

Glasses in Madras case. Margery Bancroft, c/o Tel. Ext. 5-2887 o 549-1258. Reward.

Varsity Misses Boat, But...

Junior Varsity, Freshmen Shells Finish Impressively at Philly

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Rowing in the Kerr Cup Regatta, its first major race of the year, the UMass crew team made an impressive showing and exhibited great potential for the future. Coach Dave Clarke's oarsmen raced crews from Georgetown, LaSalle, Drexel, St. Joseph's, and Marist College on the Schuylkill River here Saturday.

Warm weather and only slight headwinds made for excellent rowing conditions on the 15/16 mile Henley course.

The UMass freshmen, rowing fifth in a field of six for the first half of the race, put on a tremendous finish to capture third place behind Georgetown and LaSalle. Georgetown rowed the course in 7 minutes 38.5 seconds. Finishing behind UMass were St. Joseph's, Drexel, and Marist College.

Rowing for the freshmen were: Julian Kuffler (bow), Oscar Desrosiers, Charles Leonard, Bob Natusch, John Farrell, Jeff White, Lou Garbose, Kurt Betchick (stroke), and Paul Healey (coxswain).

The Jayvee crew, like the freshmen, found themselves in a come-from-behind situation and overpowered strong crews from St. Joseph's and LaSalle to finish second behind Georgetown. The order of finish was: Georgetown, UMass, St. Joseph's, LaSalle, Marist and Drexel.

The St. Joe's Jayvees, as well as its freshmen, showed both power and smooth style in winning its races. Seated for the UMass junior varsity were; Wendell Frost (bow), Mike Faherty, Roger O'Donnell, Dave Keating, Dick Cone, Robert Kiley, Ben Oldham, Tim McKenna (stroke), and Bill Crowe (coxswain).

The big disappointment of the afternoon was a mix-up in the start of the final race which cost the UMass varsity a chance to row. Unable to transport its own shell to Philadelphia, UMass had to resort to the use of a shell owned by Drexel. The varsity squad had to wait for the shell, and in the ensuing delay, the race was run without them.

This was a heart-breaking blow to UMass hopes for a good showing in all three races. Still, the freshman and Jayvee crews showed much promise and should finish strong this season. Rowing on the varsity squad this season are: Howie Chapin (bow); Ed Magiera; Ron Stoltz; Barry Beswick; Jack Wolpert; Glenn Chaple; Bob Hansen; Niel Patterson (stroke); and Tom Fraticelli (coxswain).

The UMass crew meets AIC on the Connecticut River Wednesday in a Patriot's Day meet. This is the only home meet of the year for the crew team and those interested in seeing UMass' newest sport are encouraged to drop by the banks of the Connecticut to cheer the Redmen on.

The races start at 4:30 p.m. and will be held on the river just below the Coolidge Bridge on Route 9 in Hadley. The races will finish opposite the UMass boathouse.

UMASS J.V. CREW—(Front to back): Tim McKenna, Ben Oldham, Robert Kiley, Dick Cone, Dave Keating, Roger O'Donnell, Mike Faherty, Wendell Frost.

TRACK NOTICE
Bus to track meet
Sponsored by Class of '67
Leaves Student Union at 3:30
Tues.

BOTEZE...

(Continued from page 12)

strom pitch in the second. Joe will miss today's game against Providence, but he should be ready for the big game at U-Conn Wednesday. Al Craig did a capable job in filling in for him.

UMass is now 5-5 overall, and 1-1 in the Conference. The Black Bears are now 5-3.

Racing Depth Not Enough for Trackmen at Rhody

KINGSTON, R.I.—Lacking scoring power in the field events, the UMass track team fell to powerful Northeastern but nipped Rhode Island in a tri-meet here Saturday. The score was Northeastern 82, UMass 53, and URI 48.

The runners performed well enough to usually win a meet, but got little help from the field events. The Redmen's uncanny depth was evident in the foot races once again. Steve Burrell, Art Larvey and Dave Sullivan took second, third and fourth in the 100-yard dash.

Burrell, Sullivan and Bob Hasselbaum did likewise in the 220. In the 440, John Andersen got cut off at the start and was bumped on the turn but still managed to finish third. Greg Bowman took off from the field with 220 yards to go to post an easy victory in the half-mile, with Diego Gonzales finishing fourth.

Terry Carpenter continued the undefeated string which he started indoors by winning the mile handily. And Paul Hoss wrapped up the two-mile in even easier fashion as Charley Lang grabbed third.

In the high hurdles, Jay Hall was neck and neck with the leader when he fell over the last hurdle. Pete Moryll was right there to grab second place, however, as Hall got up and finished fourth. John Andersen led all the way to win the intermediate hurdles as Moryll was fourth.

In the field events, Dave Schlatka won the discus on his least heave of 141 feet. Art Larvey and Steve Whelan scored second and fourth in the broad jump, and Larvey grabbed third in the triple jump. But that was it. The Redmen were shut out in the hammer, high jump, shot put, javelin and pole vault.

The addition of jumpers Billy Tindall, John Arianson and John Lisack to tomorrow's home meet against Holy Cross should alter the field event outlook. The field events will begin at 3 p.m. on the field across the street from Boyden.

The running events will get underway at 4 p.m. on the Amherst College track. The quickest way to the Amherst track is to go down Lincoln Avenue all the way to its end, and make a right on Route 9. Then take the first left off Route 9. The track is 200 yards down that road.

This will be the only home meet of the year and the only one of some of the Redmen's careers. The team would greatly appreciate as many fans as possible to pay tribute to the four-time Yankee Conference kings.

Spring Practice: Help Wanted At Tackles, Center, LB, HB

Head Football Coach Vic Fusia greeted 60 candidates as the Yankee Conference champions opened spring practice sessions today.

The Redmen, led by Co-Captains Greg Landry and Jim Mitchell have a nucleus of 20 returning lettermen from last fall's 6-3 team. Lettermen include ends Bill Carty, Bruno Debiak, Paul Mlinar, Randy Robinson and Bill Warnock; tackles Doug Faucette and Mitchell; guards Don Glogowski, Roger Prefontaine, Bob Santucci, Ernie Smith and Kent Stevens; center Bruce Gombar; quarterback Landry; halfbacks Tim Driscoll, Don Durkin, Mike Ardle and Paul Vaccaro; and fullbacks Paul Campbell and Bruce Cochrane.

Among some promising freshman candidates are ends Jim Nangle and Steve Parnell; quarterback Tim Adams; halfback Gerry Grasso; fullback Larry Fortunoff; and linebacker Mark Toner.

UMass lost 18 lettermen from its championship squad. Fusia points to depletions at offensive and defensive tackles, offensive center and halfbacks, the defensive secondary, and the linebacker slots. The Redmen mentor hopes that next year's sophomores will mature quickly enough to fill these voids.

Asquith Elected '67 - '68 Swim Captain

Bob Asquith, sophomore standout on UMass' varsity swimming team was named captain-elect of next year's squad at the recent Team Banquet in the Student Union.

by HARVEY ELMAN
Sports Day Editor

"It's a pleasure and an honor to be elected captain of this team. Filling Dick Lennon's shoes will be a very difficult task. Next season we'll have the freestyle depth we've been lacking in Mark Miller and Steve Klubock. Everyone will improve and we're all going to work hard," said the 6'0', 175-lb. freestyler and backstroker.

A former prep school All-America, Asquith holds four varsity records. His new standards are in the 200-yd. backstroke, 200-yd. individual medley, and being a member of the record-shattering 400-yd. medley relay team and the 400-yd. freestyle relay team.

Coach Joe Rogers praised the teams choice and expressed his gratitude to former Captain Dick Lennon for his outstanding contributions to the squad." I've had lots of captains," said Rogers, 'but Lennon has unquestionably been the best.' The coach also praised Assistant Joe Yeskewicz and stressed to the team members the importance of staying in shape year round. "A swimmer has a responsibility to get the best results possible," continued Rogers.

Lettermen for the '66-'67 season were: Dick Lennon. Steve Levy, Ted Severn, Ken Nowak, Norm Lovitch, Bob Asquith, Flip Morton, Tony Cassis, Tom Beck, Dick Donoghue, Fred Anderson, and Dave Larson.

Meers, Brooks Qualey Ink Pacts

Three former University of Massachusetts football standouts have been signed to professional contracts as free agents.

The San Diego Chargers of the American Football League have signed end Bob Meers. Meers, 6'3, 230, from Hudson, was a three-year All Yankee Conference selection in 1963-64-65. He was the seventh choice of the Minnesota Vikings in 1965. After being cut by the Vikings late last summer Meers went on to play with the Lowell Giants of the Atlantic Coast League.

Rod Brooks and Dick Qualey, defensive stalwarts of the 1966 Redmen, have signed with the Detroit Lions of the National Football League. Brooks, 6'1, 215, was CoCaptain at UMass and was All Conference and All New England linebacker. Qualey, 6'2, 240, was an All Conference and All New England defensive tackle choice. Brooks is from Ayer, Mass. and Qualey is from Woburn, Mass.

ZONK
is a
YENTA
The P.C.

AMHERST CREAMERY SNACK BAR
12" Pizza 99c
Ice Cream Sandwiches
Steaks
Take Out 253-5350

Do You Want to Die?
Be on The List of ADRIAN Messenger
Monday, April 17th
8:00 P.M.
50¢ Mahar Auditorium
with Bert Lancaster
Frank Sinatra
Kirk Douglas
Tony Curtis
Larry Urban

VOTE
LEW SMITH
'69 TREASURER
- Senator James House
- Chairman Food Services Comm.
- Services Comm.
- Seconds Policy
- Social Reform

Vote SMITH
EXPERIENCED IN STUDENT GOV'T.

At UConn Wed.

Redmen Entertain Providence Today

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Providence and UConn provide the opposition for Coach Dick Bergquist's Redmen this week, with Providence in town today for a 3 o'clock start and Connecticut hosting UMass on Wednesday for an important Yankee Conference clash.

Last year the Redmen edged the Friars, 4-3, in a thriller at Providence. Carl Boteze and John Canty, the mainstays of this year's Redmen mound staff, combined for the win.

Providence figures to be better this year after a 4-15 season last spring. Six of last year's nine starters have returned, led by Co-captain Dick Giannotti, who plays outfield.

The Redmen face perhaps their roughest task of the year on Wednesday as they travel to Storrs to meet Connecticut, the undisputed favorite to win the Yankee Conference. Game time is 3 p.m., and WMUA will broadcast the game beginning at 2:50.

Last year's edition of the UMass team will never forget what they went through at Storrs last spring. The Huskies unleashed a barrage of hits to win, 18-2. They went on to tie UMass and Maine for the Yankee Conference title, but the Redmen gained revenge at the end of the season by beating UConn, 3-2, to qualify for the NCAA Districts.

The Huskies have most of that team back, however, and have established themselves as the team to beat. Thus far this season, Coach Larry Panciera's squad has compiled a mark of 9-1, including two wins over Yankee Conference foe Vermont, one of the better teams in the league.

George Greer is the best of the returnees, an outfielder who led the Conference in batting last year with a .403 average. Joining him in the outfield will be basketballer Tommy Penders in center and Paul Wislocki. All are lettermen.

Three lettermen make up the infield. Ron Bugbee plays first, Tom Proctor second and Bud Pepin third. The latter batted .314 last spring. Rounding out the infield is Dave Proctor, Tom's twin brother, at shortstop.

The catcher is letterman Bill Flood, who hit .288 with two homers, two triples, five doubles and 16 RBI's last year.

UConn's two best pitchers have returned. Lefty Tom Lawton has a record of 8-2 in two years with ERAs of 0.36 and 1.62 Right-hander Ed Baird struck out 19 in shutting out Vermont last Friday. Last year he posted a 5-1

(Continued on page 10)

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN
Sports
MONDAY, APRIL 17, 1967
Page 12 Vol. XCV, No. 65

CANNY CANTY—Strike-out whiz John Canty (top) pumps a fastball past Maine's George Ferguson during 1-0 loss to Black Bears Friday. At right, Canty shows form en route to record 20 strike-outs.

COLLEGIAN Photos by Glenn Briere

Boteze White-washes Maine, 5-0; Canty K's 20 but Bows

by DAVE JARNES
Staff Reporter

John Canty may never pitch a better ball game than he did against Maine on Friday. And he'll probably never suffer a more heartbreaking loss. Despite a record-breaking 20 strikeout performance, the fireballing southpaw lost, 1-0, on an unearned run in the 10th inning.

Canty's pitching in the early innings was almost unbelievable. He struck out 13 men in the first five innings. After George Ferguson singled with one out in the first, Canty proceeded to whiff seven batters in a row until Alan Cobb walked in the third with two outs.

Ferguson opened the fourth with another hit, but Canty struck out four more men before Bob Young flied out to Alex Vyce for the second out in the fifth. This was the first time in the game a Maine player hit a ball for an out.

During the early innings Canty stuck with his overpowering fastball with an occasional assist from his sharp-breaking curve. Later in the game John stayed almost exclusively with the hard one.

Meanwhile, Maine hurler Terry Ordway was doing a pretty fair job himself, although he wasn't quite as spectacular as Canty. Ordway only struck out seven, but he always seemed to keep the Redmen batters from hitting the ball solidly with his low breaking stuff.

The Black Bears' most serious threat until the 10th inning came in th eighth when huge first baseman Willie Corbett drove Al Vyce back to the center

(Continued on page 10)

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Carl Boteze defied the miserable conditions as well as the Maine batters in pitching and hitting the UMass baseball team to a 5-0 win over the Black Bears at home Saturday, giving the Redmen a split in the weekend series.

Boteze showed for sure that he has recovered from his early spring trouble by pitching a two-hitter and driving in three runs with a third inning single, the telling blow of the game. He struck out nine en route to his first win.

It was rainy and muddy and raw, but the weather got colder as the game progressed. But Boteze got hotter as the thermometer dropped, retiring the last 14 batters.

Four of the five UMass runs were unearned thanks to four Black Bear errors.

The Redmen scored their one earned run in the first after a walk to Frank Stewart and successive singles to right by Tony Chinappi and Elliot Klein. The latter single was one of three by Klein, who had a perfect day at the plate.

Maine mounted its only threat in the second without a base hit, on a walk, a throwing error by third baseman Klein and a missed tag to load the bases.

Pitcher Gordon Engstrom batted next, and Maine put the suicide squeeze on. Engstrom missed the signal, however, failing to protect Bruce Stafford, who was tagged out at the plate.

The Redmen made it 2-0 in the second after a walk to Don Ferron, a bunt single by Ted Mareno, and two throwing errors by catcher Stafford.

With one out in the third, Klein singled, followed by another by Mareno with two down. Ferguson's boot on Alex Vyce's grounder to third loaded the sacks.

Boteze then cleared them with a long single to the base of the wall in right center.

Black Bear relief pitchers shut the door on UMass the rest of the way, limiting them to three hits.

Redmen shortstop Joe DiSarcina sustained a sprained wrist when he was hit by an Eng-

(Continued on page 11)

READY FOR ACTION—The second midfield for the UMass lacrosse team, (from left) Steve Connolly, Don Rana and Paul Mushovic, will be in action Wednesday at Middlebury. The line looked impressive in last Wednesday's 7-3 victory over Wesleyan.

Crossemen to Test Middlebury

by TIM KELLEHER
Staff Reporter

The UMass lacrosse team travels to Middlebury College on Patriot's Day for its second victory of the season.

Middlebury coach Joe Morrone a former UMass soccer and lacrosse star should have the Panthers fired up for the contest against his former coach, Dick Garber. Morrone has been chosen as the North coach in the North-South Lacrosse game which will be held here at Alumni Stadium in June 10.

Last year the Redmen won, 7-5, making the series 9-4 in UMass' favor. About equal in strength to Wesleyan, the Panthers should give the Redmen a tough contest. Fifteen returning lettermen and a flock of promising sophomores from last year's undefeated freshman team pose a serious threat to any opponent.

Fred Beams, All-American last year at his midfield position has graduated. Junior midfielders Pete Kirkpatrick and Jim Allen, second and third in team scoring last year, along with sophomore attackman Tom Harrington, leading scorer for last year's freshmen, will probably provide Middlebury with its scoring punch.

Bayard Russ, last year's goalie who set numerous records will

(Continued on page 10)

COLLEGIAN Photo by Glenn Briere

DISARCINA DELIVERS—UMass' Joey D. lashes a single to left in Friday's game against Maine. Joe sustained a wrist injury Saturday but should be ready for UConn.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL — vs. Providence (Home, 3 p.m., Today)
BASEBALL (Frosh) — vs. Springfield (at Springfield, 3 p.m., Today)
TRACK—vs. Holy Cross (Home, 4 p.m., Tomorrow)
TRACK Frosh)—vs. Holy Cross (Home, 4 p.m., Tomorrow)
BASEBALL—vs. Connecticut (at Storrs, Conn. 3 p.m., Wed.) (WMUA, 91.1 FM—Air time, 2:50 p.m.)
LACROSSE—vs. Middlebury (at Middlebury, Vt., 3:15 p.m., Wed.)
TENNIS—vs. M.I.T. (Home, 2 p.m., Wed)
TENNIS (Frosh)—vs. Mt. Hermon at Northfield, 2 p.m., Wed.)
GOLF—vs. Vermont (Orchards C.C., 1:30 p.m., Thurs.)

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Vol. XCV, No. 65 | University of Massachusetts | Wednesday, April 19, 1967

Benezra Delivers Student Leader's Keynote Address

by SALLY DOLGIN
Staff Reporter

Jerry Benezra '67, presented the keynote address to a tensely expectant audience last night at Student Leaders' Night. He was the first student ever to serve as keynote speaker for the event.

Defining the term "Student Leader", Benezra commented that "student leaders are simply students who are active in the University's affairs." The only real common denomonator is that they are "action oriented". "A student leader does not have to hold a prestigious office. He need only be interested and active."

"The term student leader, when it is used in the sense of some type of aloofness," Benezra commented, "is used for the most part by students who call themselves leaders and then, instead of leading, sit back with their titles and bask in their own mediocrity. Those who qualify as real leaders realize that leadership must be earned continually."

He noted that certain responsibilities are connected with student leadership. "The most important one, he suggested, is to do all that is possible to make this a better place to go to school; for our having been here."

In the past, the Student Leaders represented at Student Leaders Night have failed to accept the wider responsibilities of leadership as far as the University and its problems are concerned." When a major issue, such as the Yahoo affair, arises, Benezra said that these groups should "inform themselves and then take a position and support it."

Former Senate president John Greenquist receives a Distinguished Senior Award from President Lederle at the Cage.

The leaders have responsibilities to the community, Benezra realized, but the community also has certain responsibilities to its leaders. The student leaders are "waging a cold war right on this campus. It is a war against apathy, mediocrity, and the impersonalization of the growing university. It is a struggle for committment. Those groups of students who are waging this war need the help of those of you who have remained neutral, shirking committment."

Benezra stressed that student leadership and the many benefits derived from it are open to any students who are willing to go out for it. "There is no basic difference, no difference at all, between any of you sitting out there and anyone sitting up here or walking around with those jackets on," he said.

"The identity crisis, "he noted," is a stark reality. Most of us are just in attendance here, not really a part of the University. The active student becomes a part—he knows what it is to belong at the University of Massachusetts, and this sense of belonging makes every night a student leaders night for him."

"What about you?" Benezra asked the student body. "When situations concerning the administrations decisions on finals, graduation bills, and other matters arise, and when the question is asked, 'will the real student leaders please stand up?' There is no reason, no reason at all, why every single one of you shoulin't be on your feet being counted. You owe it to your leaders; but what's so very much more important, you owe it to yourselves."

1968 PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES DEBATE
ON ACTION "67"
TONITE AT 8:00 on WMUA 91.1 FM
Host Pete Ward with candidates
Dick Wood and Bob Tobin

IFC PRESENTS:
1967 GREEK WEEK CONCERT
The Temptations
and
Jack E. Leonard
Sunday, April 23, 1967
2:30 p.m.
Curry Hicks Cage—$2.50

Student Leaders Night Meets Mixed Reaction

Special to the Collegian

Amidst screams of joy were also sighs of depression at last night's Student Leader's Night, held at Curry Hicks cage. The gala "who's who" this year seemed to many of the onlookers to me more of a "who's he".

Some true student leaders were honored. Bette Chambers, Ken Hardy, Tim Cunningham, and John Greenquist were among the winners of the Distinguished Senior award. Lew Gurwitz, Pete Ward, and Jim Wilkey were tapped as Adelphians. But conspicuously absent from the honored leaders, in the opinion of many of those present, were Bob Gaudet, Index managing editor; Jim Collins, President of the Student Senate; Chet Weinerman, Editor-in-chief of the Collegian; Dick Wood, President of the class of '68; Norm Ryan, WMUA station manager; Sen. Mike Garjian, Homecoming Committee Chairman of '67; and Burt Freedman, past treasurer of the Student Senate and one of the Senate's most influential members, and many others.

A crowd estimated at 1,000 saw Joseph Della Grotte named winner of the Metawampe award. The award, first given in 1963, is a $1,000 stipend given to the teacher judged most outstanding by a student committee. Some members of the administration and faculty were visibly shaken by the choice. Della Grotte, a popular Assistant professor of History, has been in the limelight for his many vocal ideas on reform and student rights, and has been criticized because of this conspicuousness. Nonetheless, the student reaction to Della Grotte's tapping was overwhelming; he was given a standing ovation.

Della Grotte's speech was charged with emotion. He mentioned the obvious conflict which existed in his being named for the award; he was judged an outstanding teacher and yet his contract was not renewed. Citing a great change in student activeness, Della Grotte praised the new reform spirit.

The cage was cold, it was extremely difficult to hear the platform speakers, and student leaders continually paced the floor of the cage searching for the people they would tap to become the newly honored student leaders.

As each organization sent out its members to tap its newly chosen ones, small and large groups of excited people jumped up in various places throughout the assemblage.

Lists of those chosen for Mortar Board, Arcon, and Maroon Keys were unavailable at press time and will be printed in Friday's Collegian.

Adelphia named four honorary members: Mr. Ernest W. Beals, Mr. Barubee, Mr. Terence Burke, and Mr. Alvin F. Oickle.

Senior members of Adelphia named were: Howard Sydney, Jim Wilkey, Tim Cunningham, Tom Wardrop, and John Greenquist. Junior members named were: Pete Ward, Steve Stefanic, Lew Gurwitz, Al Davis, Rich Sadowski, Bill Bordman.

Distinguished Senior Awards were presented by President John W. Lederle to: Helen Cassoli, Elizabeth Chambers, Timothy Cunningham, Susan Dietch, Jeanne Frieden, Kenneth Hardy, John Greenquist, Eilleen White, Marjorie Zick.

Tapped by Arcon were: Steven Albernaz, Edward Bowe, Thomas Bryon, James Cochrane, Steven Cohen, Paul Donovan, Eric Dienstbach, John Fitzgerald, Stuart Hills, John Johnson, John King, Clifford Kramer, George Plantinga Robert Rosen, Robert Schultz, Howard Shane, James Smith, Ronald Southerland, Thomas Walsh.

Those taped for Revelers were: Phil Dube, James Girotti, Fred Franklin, Martin Jacobson, Christine Mandrucia, Elaine Sullivan, Susan Grover, Mary Alice Brown, Jane Ludlow, Catherine Sullivan, Candy Hayden, Deborah Cowan, Irene Freedman, Robin Sanders, Kathy Willis, Ann Chance, Wendy Young, Phil Kam, Anthony Abbruzzese, Gerry Gorham, Stephen Kramer, Robert Speckman, Arnie Cohen, Bob Foley, Jay Balboni.

Chosen to be Scrolls for 1967-68 were: Gail Alt, Joyce Ananian, Marcie Allard, Joan Bentz, Rhonda Bernstein, Janet Brecker, Susan Brown, Joanne Bucewick, Elaine Canter, Lorraine Caso, Debby Chase, Liz Chunovsky, Joyce Crooker, Gail Dierauf, Noreen Dolan, Judith Ericson, Pam Green, Heidi Hartly, Karen Heiser, Honey Hoague, Carole Hoefener, Thea Johnson, Pamela Johnson, Ann Kertiles, Rayma Kertiles, Beverly Knapik, Marilyn Malin, Norry Mason, Kathy Mitchell, Priscilla Mulier, Lyn Nevins, Teri Newman, Karen Nylund, Cindy Olkin, Barbara Paneblanco, Monica Paquette, Paulette Ponn, Christine Quigly, Linda Royce, Linda Sauve, Patricia Scanlon, Nancy Schneiderman, Marty Shapiro, Nancy Stowell, Sandy Trowbridge, Patricia Walter, Heddy Weiss, Patricia Welch, Betty Wilson.

Letter to the Editor

Prof. DellaGrotte States Reasons for His Departure

"The danger is that it is quite easy to produce a faculty entirely unfit—a faculty of very efficient pedants and dullards. The general public will only detect the difference after the university has stunted the promise of youth for scores of years."
— ALFRED NORTH WHITEHEAD, "Universities and their Function"

"The education of college students . . . tends to become conventional and dogmatic and to leave the student with a body of information, learned by rote and housed in a closed and incurious mind; while research, carried on by professors secure in their tenure and under no obligation to concern themselves with the social significance of learning and teaching, tends to turn into a barren antiquarianism . . . just about as socially useful as crossword puzzles or contract bridge."
— CARL L. BECKER, "Freedom of Learning and Teaching"

With the termination of my teaching contract and thus my imminent departure, I feel it necessary to speak to my experience at the University of Massachusetts, to present to faculty members and students in the spirit of frankness and critical exposition the larger issues which my particular situation may reveal.

In December, 1966, I was officially informed, without reasons, that my teaching contract would not be renewed. At that time, this decision on the part of the History Department was not inconsistent with my own disposition in terms of continuing with the University. Since that time, I have come to realize that my dismissal reflects problems which involve not myself, but the University community at large.

On a number of occasions prior to my dismissal, I was warned of the possible 'consequences' which might result from my outspokenness, whether in actively defending the cause of student freedoms, or in raising critical issues with students in the classroom, specifically in the course which I formerly taught, European Intellectual History.

In one instance, as the result of a petition signed by my students calling for retention of myself as teacher of that course, a petition which was considered by the Dean and the Department head as unjustly critical of the Department of History, I was accused of teaching 'irresponsibility,' as if to say the organizing source of that critical consciousness which the students demonstrated.

Though I am willing to believe that such warnings were intended to be salutary, and were proffered in regard for my future at the University, I cannot dismiss the fact that such warnings reflected somewhere in the hierarchy of the ruling authorities a deep resentment and antagonism towards my activities in the University community. In one concrete instance, two members of the Executive Committee of the History Department reproached me with the rhetorical query: 'What has the content of your course in European Intellectual History have to do with contemporary social and political issues in America, especially with those of students?'

I have yet to know the specific factors which determined the decisions of my dismissal. I have been criticized for my 'civil disobedience' which refers, in part, to my not filling in grade cards with the grade of "F" in cases where I felt I could not justly assign such a grade. I suspect this criticism only masks the deeper issues since I am subsequently informed that other faculty members have done the same without receiving backlash from the Office of the Dean.

It would be unfair not to admit that I have contributed to exacerbating problems of no signal importance that may have been approached through calmer deliberation. Still, it is difficult to understand why a university administration feels threatened by criticism and outspokenness, if not that its own hold on faculty and students rests on insecure and untenable ground.

The response of my students, undergraduate and graduate, has served to support and encourage my approach to teaching which emphasizes critical analysis of the value presuppositions of human knowledge and its implications for life. Nor is my commitment to scholarly research divorced from my function as a teacher. Yet, in spite of official University statements that good teaching is a prime consideration in evaluating faculty members, it appears that teaching not only does not count, but may actually work against you.

More and more, as educators like Robert Hutchins indicate, the contemporary university has become its own 'subversity'. To service the needs of the national economy and to preserve the status quo seem to be its raison d'etre. Thus critical examination and confrontation of social and political issues on the part of students and faculty, though tolerated nominally, is eyed with suspicion and resentment. The humanistic tradition of education is slowly sacrificed to the impersonal bureaucratic operation of the multiversity

Ideology and moral proselytizing provide no answer for there is no utopia, no ideal university. The bureaucratic weaselworkers for the well-ordered world, safe from change and the innovations of men, have long been with us, have burrowed and ferreted their way into the habit of our own inner lives, will perhaps always be with us. The meaning of life's thrust does not necessarily lie in the definitive resolution of life's problems, but in creative participation in the ongoing dialectic of life. The university has been the milieu for this creative experience. The danger in our time is that the process may be stopped.

In my two years at the University of Massachusetts, I have noted as one encouraging sign the growing intellectual and existential awareness on the part of students. If administrators cannot be expected to loosen their control, nor faculty to engage in creative teaching, then with the students rests the burden of preserving the critical spirit of education.

Professor Joseph A. DellaGrotte
Department of History

MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

The 1967 Class Elections

Because Richard Wood has demonstrated positive capabilities in his year as President of the Class of 1968, we feel he deserves our endorsement for re-election.

President Wood, together with his other officers, has re-defined and given new scope to the role of class government. His sincere attempt to have a truly representative executive council is admirable. Class government has finally taken on more meaning than just a "social committee." The Free Press struggle, the establishment of the Godkin Lecture series, and a new spirit of cooperation with the Student Senate are all examples of advances made just in this past year.

The Winter Carnival, perhaps the most difficult single event for any class President to lead, was executed with adroitness and near perfection. It was a unique carnival, and Wood lead it to its successful end.

Unlike many previous class officers, Wood is approachable and cooperative as an individual. He has not alienated those with whom he has had to work, and this too is somewhat unique.

For these reasons, and because of the desirability for experience and continuity, we support Richard Wood and urge his re-election.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

Mr. Close and the Courts

by STEVE FINER
Editorial Staff

The Civil Liberties Union has come to the defense of Charles Close. The CLU claimed that the removal of Mr. Close's paintings was a violation of the 14th Amendment ("No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States"), the privilege in question being Freedom of Speech proved for citizens in the 1st Amendment.

Mr. Close, "will seek a broader judgement declaring limitations on the powers of state officials to abridge fundamental constitutional freedoms under the guise of regulation of internal university affairs." If the CLU does win its case against the administration, several legal difficulties will develop.

First, the Court will be forced to define to what extent University officials (and the Board of Trustees) will be limited in their regulation of internal University affairs. And once the Court does make distinctions in the authority of the Administration, it is almost certain that more distinctions will be pressed. With more distinctions come more difficulties. The end of it all will be that the Administration will cease to have regulatory autonomy.

Secondly, if the exhibit of some bathroom paintings is an expression of the Freedom of Speech, as now is draft card burning, it follows that neither of the two acts can then be unconstitutional; and, pursuing the matter still further, all students in dormitories will therefore have the right to bear arms to protect themselves against, for instance, theft; housemothers, likewise, should be required to possess search warrants in all room inspections. Understandably, the latter two examples are hard to envision. One finds a strict interpretation of the U.S. Constitution almost impossible.

And thirdly, it should be noted that the CLU claimed the removal of the exhibit to be an abridgement of the Freedom of Speech (that same Freedom of Speech presumably allows a man to shout 'Fire!' in a theater where there is no fire, using Justice Holmes' example). What is one to do, though, if the exhibit is offensive to someone who lunches everyday in the Commonwealth Room? Is it then still fitting that Mr. Close's salacious latrines remain on display? One would hope not.

Most of the University community is probably agreed that the removal of Mr. Close's paintings was done in poor taste, and it probably sympathizes with his indignation. Nonetheless, it would be in yet poorer taste if Mr. Close were to press the matter far enough in order that he might reinstate his paintings for the general public's postprandial delectation.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP
CPS
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS AP

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press, Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

President Class of '68

The school year 1966-67 has been a very productive year for the class of 1968. I feel we can take a great deal of pride in OUR Winter Carnival, as well as numerous other activities in the realm of student government.

As a candidate for re-election to Class President I can only offer you the best of my services. My campaign can be based on no platitudes. Simply, my record speaks for itself and must come under your scrutinization.

Whether you feel the class has been ably run or not will be the criterion for judgement, I trust. If you feel to the negative, then please go to the polls and express this decision.

Once again quite simply — PLEASE VOTE ! ! !

Dick Wood

During the past three years I have serve student senator, president of the Maroon co-chairman of the Winter Carni Queens C tee, a member of the exec council, an ann on WMUA and a member of the University Service. I believe that the classes are th important organizations on campus and work for a greater University community. resentative committee of students, adminis and faculty should be formed to explore that the students have and work toward solution.

I would appreciate the opportunity to you further and I would be grateful for yo in tomorrow's election.

Robert

Vice President Class of '68

I will not make any promises as a candidate that I cannot keep as an incumbent. Experience has taught me, via a year's participation in Arcon, two years' with the Executive Council, and service on this year's Winter Carni Committee, that successful student government requires much work and is often frustrating. I am prepared to work. I am also prepared to overcome the frustration which is often a source of procedural lag.

Three years playing varsity basketball has taught me the value of a persistently cooperative effort. All I can promise, then, is that I will do my work honestly and well. If you will give me your votes for Vice-president of the Class of '68, I can and will fulfill this promise as an incumbent.

Jim Girotti

With all the prose that's in the news,
Your eye may catch this ode.
It concerns our class, its work to do,
And a man who can carry the load.
Now time is short, just one more year,
Then into the world we are thrust.
So give SAGGESE your last twelve months;

A vote, some faith, your trust.
If you care at all for UMIE LAND,
And you wish our class the best
Vote tomorrow—the SAGGESE way
And UNITY will be our quest.

I urge your faithful support at the polls tomorrow, and TOGETHER we will work and succeed in 1968.

Al Saggese

By declaring my can for Vice President of th of 1968, I hope that yo approve of my ambition a sire to use my past expe and knowledge to kee class at the forefront o pus activities.

My past activities — Council, 3 years; Studen ate, 2 years; House Cou years; and others—have me a wealth of knowled experience in the realm dent government whi greater than that of any opponents. I sincerely that you will consider th tivities as an asset for me you are making your from among the candidat the office of Vice Presid

If you elect me Vice dent, I will work to the b my ability to fulfill the of that office and to mak senior year the most f yet.

David A.

President Class of '70

Place your cross next to Ross. Perhaps you have seen this slogan on the flyers my friends and I have put up around campus. I have been asking you to vote for me and now the Collegian has given me an opportunity to give you some reasons why.

I'm active in campus affairs and in the affairs of the class. In my dorm, Hills North, I am a member of the House Council. In November the class of 1970 elected me their representative to the Student Union Board. I have since been appointed chairman of the Finance Committee of the Union. The Union is the focal point of student activity and from this position on the Governing Board I see very closely not only the workings of our own class but the others as well. The Board also gives me more than ample opportunity to use my U. Mass. debating experience.

My space only allows me to tell you that my platform emphasizes realistic goals, through programs I can and will carry out. I'm first on the ballot, I hope you make me your first choice.

Sander B. Ross

In order that the University achieve its maximum potential, the class of 1970 must assume an integral role in the affairs of the university, a position that we have not yet assumed.

The president must lead his class in the accomplishment of traditional tasks and show initiative in planning new activities that will thrust the class into the mainstream of the university. Monetary and administrative matters must be handled intelligently. Vote for and elect Bob Twiss to lead the class of 1970.

In the upcoming elections each voter must cast his ballot for the candidate he/she feels will most successfully fulfill his position. I thus base my platform on SUCCESS, SUCCESS in the past—X-Mas Carol Sing, Tobogan Run, Donations to all Worthy Organizations, SUCCESS in the present 4 College Dance, Freshman Picnic, and SUCCESS in the future — J. F. K. Memorial Concert. Winter Homecoming, Sophomore Banquet, and the many other ventures now being planned to make '70 a great SUCCESS.

So on election day remember my record, witness my accomplishments, and think of the future—

Rick McInerney

I have distributed my co platform to nearly every men room on campus. Fo who did not receive a co is a brief outline, if yo any questions PLEASE c at 6-6287.

1. Speaking out and act key issues.
2. Complete reorganiza the selection and role Executive Council.
3. Increased cooperatio the Student Senate.
4. Several Class Meetin
5. Continuation of the F Nite with hopes of m the affair an annual which can be held ei the Fall or during C Week.
6. Enlargement of the s Campus Chest Week ing Winter Carnival.
7. A new approach to th Frosh Picnic maki event into a real pi atmosphere.
8. Finally, the night of Year — the theme for this cided by a major a Class Meeting an ecutive Council.

Bruce Ba

Vice President Class of '70

If elected, I hope to . . .
. . . push for more class unity on all levels.
. . . make the Class of 1970 an intregal part of the university.
. . . work for the entire class, not certain cliques.
. . . plan for more social, athletic, and cultural events.
. . . push academic reform, e.g. more reading days and changes in the marking system.
. . . work wholeheartedly with the Exec. Council on all matters.
. . . urge modification of unpopular university regulations, e.g. alcoholic beverages, open house policy, etc.
. . . strengthen dormitory and area government.
. . . push for reform of outdated policy governing Men's and Women's Judiciary.
and to represent the entire Class of 1970 on all matters and at all times.

Joseph Doucette

Tomorrow you will be faced with an important decision to make—to elect your class officers for the sophomore year. Outside of certain traditions, there are no set norms for the class officers; rather, they mold their roles by the responsibilities that they take upon themselves. In this respect, it is important that the class officers possess a great deal of initiative.

During the past year I have tried to represent the Class of 70, both on and off campus. I am presently a member of the Four College Freshman Council and the '67 Homecoming Committee. The bulk of my efforts has been representing you as your vice president. I have dealt directly in such projects as Christmas Carol Sing, Toboggan Run, Four College Dance, and the up-coming Freshman Picnic. The de is up to you, the voter: s for the individual whom believe will do his utm serve our class in the bes

Glenn Man

The class of 1970 has be cessful in every endeavor undertaken thus far. I am of our class, and as vice dent, would do all possi benefit it from an executiv My qualifications are:

— member of the fre class executive counc
— chairman of the com which built the mos cessful bonfire of the for the Xmas Carol S
— committee for Fre Weekend

On election day, remem "BERK'S LAW";

VOTE JIM BERK
VICE PRESIDE

Vice President Class of '69

In the past two years our class of 1969 has distinguished itself among students and faculty alike as a most organized and energetic class. Our achievements are those of a vigorous and creative class led by strong, aggressive leaders. It is because of a continuing need for vigorous and willing leadership that I am running for Vice President of our class. I have served on both Freshman and Sophomore Executive Councils, chairmaned the Freshman and Sophomore picnics, and was co-chairman of Playboy Night '67 along with Debbie Nicholls.

The Vice President should be a member as well as co-ordinator of all class activities. To fulfill this role, however, he must have a strong will as well as the ability to work well with others. I feel I have exhibited these traits through the activities I have chairmaned and especially Playboy Night '67.

Peter Lewenberg

Winter Carnival is only around the corner and tomorrow you will choose the officers who will lead our class in this multi-thousand dollar production. It is by far the largest endeavor ever to be undertaken by our class and will require the coordination of hundreds of hardworking juniors.

It is the job of the vice-president, I feel, to be a chairman of chairmen in such a production. He is the person who shall be working closest with those people on various committees.

From the experience I have gained as this year's Campus Chest Co-chairmen and from my involvement in all class activities as an exec. council member I feel I have developed the necessary know how to fill this position.

I ask for your consideration at the polls tomorrow.

Ralph Stoddard

Class Elections Tomorrow

CLASS OF 1968

PRESIDENT — Final election
- Dick Wood, incumbent
- Bob Tobin

VICE PRESIDENT
- Jim Girotti
- Ralph M. Dworman
- Jeffrey Humber
- Al Saggese
- David A. Tiberii

SECRETARY — Final election
- Claudia J. Dembski, incumbent

TREASURER — Final election
- Cindy Hunt, incumbent

SENATOR-AT-LARGE — Final election
- E. T. Mellor

CLASS OF 1969

PRESIDENT
- Wayne M. Thomas, incumbent
- Bob Joyce
- Jonathan Edwards
- Teddy McDonough

VICE PRESIDENT — Final election
- Peter Lewenberg
- Ralph Stoddard

SECRETARY — Final election
- Patti Aspinwall, incumbent
- Dave Koltz "Crow"

TREASURER
- Wilkie Ward
- Ed Bowe
- Jill Wolff
- Lew Smith

SENATOR-AT-LARGE — Final election
- Michael Davis
- Larry Marcus, incumbent

CLASS OF 1970

PRESIDENT
- Sander "Sandy" Ross
- Rick McInerney, incumbent
- Bob Twiss
- Bruce Balboni

VICE PRESIDENT
- Belden G. Bly
- Joseph Doucette
- Glenn Manqurian, incumbent
- Jim Berk

SECRETARY
- Gloria A. Forgione
- Rebecca A. Stedman, incumbent
- Marcia Sobiech

TREASURER
- Lee Forst
- Burt Skvirsky
- Steven Weisman, incumbent
- Susie Hutton

SENATOR-AT-LARGE
- Steve Parnell
- Wayne "Batman" Soini
- Bob Keating
- Dave Floreen, Present senator
- Paul Harold

Senator - at - Large '70

BEER IN THE COMMONS! This may seem ridiculous but it is the only campaign promise yet to be used. Such promises are nice but they remain just that, promises. Playing up to but not fulfilling campus ideals has led the students to assume the upcoming election to be of little value. The winner is announced, never to be heard of again until his next campaign.

I will be more than a mimeographed poster splashed across campus. I will be your voice in the senate. Student government is becoming more important in the student's life. In fact in a university this size, it is perhaps his only voice.

Even though each student has been assigned a number by the University, he is unique in himself and should be represented thus. Personalization in student government is my platform . . . personalization is my goal.

Paul Harold

I am the freshman candidate for senator who has already appeared before the senate—as a victim! I wished to run as "Batman" last Fall and, although election rules guaranteed the candidate's right to choose a ballot name, I was illegally disqualified. I had wanted to use the gimmick then to call attention to my record—and there are additions to it now.

In my senior year of high school I was president(s) of Student Council, German Club, American Field Service, Hurwitz Health Club, editor of school newspaper, #30 and valedictorian of my class of 410. This semester I am AP staff editor, Collegian; president, American Conservative Students; badminton tourney-er; and hold 2.95 cume.

If I am elected you will be polled for concensus. First poll tomorrow: if you favor Yahoo, subsidizing crew team, unlimited open house week-ends, favor me, thanks.

Wayne "BATMAN" Soini

While working on the executive council of our class for the past year, I have gained much experience and insight into the issues effecting all of us. One issue in particular is that of having unlimited cuts, which if not obeyed results in the lowering of the violator's grade. A student is adult enough to recognize his own responsibilities of attending his classes, and shouldn't have such limitations. I am in favor of abolishing mandatory attendance to all classes.

I have experience in student government, the ability to see what has to be improved, and more important, the push to do something about it. I am announcing my candidacy for Senator of the Class of 1970.

Steve Parnell

The class of 1970 is presently faced with the task of choosing leaders that shall act in the best interests of our class and the school as a whole. There is a need for a coalition between the student senate and the executive council of the class of 1970.

Many aspects of student life here at the university are in need of reform and review. The class of 1970 cannot function as an efficent unit if no one cares. Vote for someone who cares; vote for and elect Bob Keating Senator at Large.

As a candidate for Senator-at-Large, there are several things that I wish to accomplish, if elected. First, I would establish reports of important Senate issues, pending and past, and distribute them at every class executive council meeting. One of the primary duties of the class senator is to keep the class informed and that I will do.

There are many things that the senate is now working on, and having served on the senate all year, I have had the necessary experience and qualifications that are demanded by this time-consuming job.

My other qualifications include; Class executive council, Collegian reporter, 1967 Homecoming Committee, Senate finance and S.G.A. committees, and above all, the desire to help and serve YOU, the CLASS OF 1970. I need your vote. If you have any questions call me at any time—332 Brett—6-6272. Thank you.

Dave Floreen

President Class of '69

As a present Student Senator and past member of the SW Council and house governments, I am no stranger to student government. I believe that more authority should be given to the Executive Council and that it actively solicit the opinions of the members of our class, in order to assure that the classmembers know what the class intends to do and that they have control over the manner in which their money is spent.

Furthermore, I believe the active support of the class should be given to changes of personal and academic regulations—such as parietals and the scheduling of the academic calendar—in accordance with the desires of the majority of our class-members, for our class should not be only a social organization. Our major task next year as Juniors is Winter Carnival, which will demand much work of all concerned; I assure that I shall work diligently and well, according to the wishes of our class.

Jonathan Edwards

I am a candidate for the Presidency of the Class of '69 because I feel I can do the job better. I hope I will be given the chance to prove it.

My experience in student affairs is extensive and touches on all areas concerning the Presidency. I have been a member of both the Freshman and Sophomore Exec Councils, a delegate to the IFC Workshop and SWAP, a member of the '66 and '67 Homecoming Committees and the '67 Winter Carni Committee. I have also been member of three Student Senate Committees, Athletic Study, Women's Affairs, and Alcoholic Beverages.

I have in recent days outlined "7 Proposals for Progress," among them improvements in the size and function of the Exec Council,

I feel my past experience and my proposals for the future will enable me to improve greatly upon a job which has been inadequately performed in the past. I therefore ask your consideration and your vote.

Bob Joyce

I have known Wayne Thomas nearly all my life. I have seen his abilities i n many offices which he has held throughout high school and junior high. He has always worked hard and tried his best never to let anyone down. This year as treasurer of the class I have continued to be impressed by Wayne's leadership. The amount of time and energy that he has put into being president of our class is amazing. This year he has produced such new events as Playboy Night and Campus Chest Week.

But more important than the events themselves are the many people which he has succeeded in getting more interested and more involved in our class. I think that Wayne has done a terrific job as president this year and deserves to be re-elected.

Judy Leach

(Editor's Note: It was necessary to edit most letters due to space limitations. All letters received were printed.)

Treasurer Class of '69

I am announcing my candidacy for the position of Treasurer of our class. Interest in the class and its affairs, devotion of my time and energies, and my experience, are the three main elements that I would be able to contribute to the all-important role of Treasurer. My experience here at the University has been acquired through two years on the 1969 Executive Council; Homecoming Committee for two years, as invitation committee chairman; Women's Affairs' Committee; Collegian Advertising Staff last year; Dormitory Government; and most recently, as Campus Chest publicity chairman.

When voting this Thursday, please consider JILL WOLFF as a well-qualified candidate for TREASURER and give me your support!

Jill Wolff

Secretary '70

I would like to inform you that I am a candidate for the office of Secretary. Having served as Secretary-Treasurer of Lawrence High for two years, I feel that this former position enables me to understand and fulfill the obligations of Secretary. Also I would like to add that I have served on the Executive Council of our Freshmen Class.

Given the opportunity to serve, I would do so judiciously and with much enthusiasm.

The office of Secretary entails much more than the mere reading of minutes. I believe that it is the Secretary's job to help organize the meeting before it is called. Another of the Secretary's duties is to give Council members adequate notice of meetings. This has not always been the case in the past year.

I feel that if Executive Council meetings were more organized, our class would accomplish a great deal more. For instance, a proposed Christmas party to benefit orphans may have been effectively sponsored by our class. But due to inefficient planning this was never carried out.

I am more than qualified to serve as your Secretary and I eagerly anticipate doing so during our Sophomore year. But in order to do so, I need your vote next to my name on your ballot

Gloria A. Forgione

The purpose of this letter is to inform you of my candidacy for the office of treasurer of the class of 1969. I have been active in the class executive council, the Winter Carnival Activities Committee, the Athletic Study Committee and numerous freshman and varsity sports at the university this year. I am an accounting major and I have a strong interest in this type of work.

The functions of the class treasurer are three-fold: (1) to keep the books up to date, (2) to make a monthly report of the financial status of the class to be submitted to the Senate and (3) to prepare a budget at the beginning of the academic year. With Winter Carnival approaching next year the position will be both a demanding and an interesting experience.

Before going to the polls, Thursday, April 20th, please make an effort to know each candidate and weigh your decision carefully.

Wilkie Ward

Treasurer '70

During the year now ending, I served as Treasurer for the Class of 1970. This job basically entails keeping accurate records and overseeing all expenditures. But I felt and still feel that as an officer my duty extended beyond just the mere execution of these duties. Consequently I took a major part in the planning and then the putting into effect of the Christmas Sing, 4 College Dance, and the upcoming Freshman Picnic. I also served on the 4 College Freshman Council which is trying to make four-college cooperation something more than a tired cliché.

I did my job efficiently and happily because I enjoy the work. I would like the opportunity to continue the work I started this year. With a year's experience as Treasurer, I feel I am qualified to further our class in its future endeavors. I hope that you will re-elect me, Steve Weisman as Treasurer for the Class of 1970.

Steven Weisman

To be the treasurer of a Class, especially a Class which will be sponsoring Winter Carni and a proposed Class trip to New York, takes many qualities; both concrete and abstract. A treasurer must be willing to be a permanent fixture in the R.S.O. office; a treasurer must be responsible; and, a treasurer must be experienced in the workings of the Student Government Association.

This year, I have been involved in student government; in the capacity of Senator of James House, a member of Services Committee, and Chairman of the Senate Food Services Committee. In conjunction with these responsibilities, I have taken part in Class activities; and am now on the ticket committee for the proposed Class trip to New York.

I feel that my experience in student government will make it possible for me to fulfill the job of Class Treasurer; and, to extend it by working on both faculty and Student Committees.

Lew Smith

Secretary '69

With our junior year approaching, we are faced with our most active period. The challenge of Winter Carni is upon us, and only through capable and qualified class officers will we be able to meet this challenge successfully.

The efficiency of an organization as large as the Class of 1969 depends a great deal upon detailed record-keeping. In performing the duties of Secretary for the past year, I believe I have proven myself qualified for this position. I have done my best in keeping accurate records of meetings and class activities. In addition I have attempted, along with the other class officers, to encourage those outside the Executive Council to participate, to take part in, and to feel a responsibility for our class.

I hope that you, members of the Class of 1969, will look upon the past year, consider my experience, and willingness to work, and re-elect me your Class Secretary.

Patti Aspinwall

Senator - at - Large '69

For the past two years I have served you as your Senator-at-Large. I have been active in the Senate and the Class Exec Council. This year I was chairman of the Student Government Affairs Comm., Public Relations Comm., and the Athletic Study Comm. I was also a Chairman on the 1966 Homecoming Comm. As a member of the Services Committee, I have raised such issues as the inadequacy of campus lighting and police protection, the institution of dentists in the Infirmary, the establishment of monetary rebates for all students leaving residence halls during the semester.

Presently I have pending before the Senate a proposal for a Labor Relations Board to protect student labor and an Academic Review Board to protect our scholarly interests. With my appointment as next years Chairman of the Academic Affairs Comm., I plan to move out of the background of academic reform into its leadership.

Laurence R. Marcus

SENIOR WEEK 1967

WEDNESDAY, MAY 31--MIXER at the 'Q' CLUB

THURSDAY, JUNE 1

Comedy Team of BURNS & SCHREIBER

BURNS & SCHREIBER

An Evening at the Hatfield Barn

ANITA SHEER

Folksinger ANITA SHEER

Clambake, Smorgasbord, Drinking, Dancing

FRIDAY, JUNE 2--A Fun-Filled Day at the White House Inn

(Bowling, swimming & drinking) followed by the sen ior banquet, class night and dancing.

SATURDAY, JUNE 3--A Relaxing Day at Forest Lake

Swimming, food, games, dancing with a band
and plenty of other surprises.

Plenty of free popular beverages will be served.

JUDY COLLINS

IN THE EVENING:
BONFIRE

CONCERT
JUDY COLLINS

SUNDAY, JUNE 4--COMMENCEMENT

Reservations and Deposit Must Be Made at the Ticket Window in the Student Union by Friday, April 21

REMEMBER . . . All senior week activities are free for seniors,
But your reservations MUST BE MADE or you will not be able to attend.

The deposit is $2.00

When You See
News In the Making
Dial the
"COLLEGIAN HOTLINE"
545-2550

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

DRUG USE
and
STUDENT VALUES
Page 7

Vol. XCV, No. 66 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | Friday, April 21

ELECTION RESULTS

CLASS OF 1968

PRESIDENT	Final election
Dick Wood, incumbent	455*
Bob Tobin	201
VICE PRESIDENT	Prim. election
Jim Girotti	162*
Ralph M. Dworman	30
Jeffrey Humber	160*
Al Saggese	145
David A. Tiberii	107
SECRETARY	Final election
Claudia J. Dembski, incumbent	555*
W.I.	16
TREASURER	Final election
Cindy Hunt, incumbent	561*
W.I.	14
SENATOR-AT-LARGE	Final election
E. T. Mellor	511*
W.I.	41

CLASS OF 1969

PRESIDENT	Primary election
Wayne M. Thomas, incumbent	628*
Bob Joyce	150*
Jonathan Edwards	23
Teddy McDonough	88
VICE PRESIDENT	Final election
Peter Lewenberg	379
Ralph Stoddard	473*
SECRETARY	Final election
Patti Aspinwall, incumbent	721*
Dave Koitz "Crow"	160
TREASURER	Primary election
Wilkie Ward	257*
Ed Bowe	202
Jill Wolff	232*
Lew Smith	155
W.I.	2
SENATOR-AT-LARGE	Final election
Michael Davis	238
Larry Marcus, incumbent	593*

CLASS OF 1970
THESE ARE ALL PRIMARY ELECTIONS

PRESIDENT—RECOUNT
Sander "Sandy" Ross	169
Rick McInerney, incumbent	197
Bob Twiss	202*
Bruce Balboni	596*
VICE PRESIDENT
Belden G. Bly	93
Joseph Doucette	262*
Glenn Manqurian, incumbent	547*
Jim Berk	224
SECRETARY
Gloria A. Forgione	379*
Rebecca A. Stedman, incumbent	627*
Marcia Sobiech	129
TREASURER
Lee Forst	173
Burt Skvirsky	202*
Steve Weisman, incumbent	587*
Susie Hutton	150
SENATOR-AT-LARGE
Steve Parnell	222
Wayne "Batman" Soini	65
Bob Keating	344*
Dave Floreen, Present senator	218
Paul Harold	270*

Four-College Board Sponsors Sen. Edward M. Kennedy

U. S. Senator Edward M. Kennedy will speak on "New Directions in American Politics" Monday, April 24, at 8 p.m. in Curry Hicks Cage at the University of Massachusetts, sponsored by students at UMass and Amherst, Mount Holyoke and Smith Colleges.

The address, open to the public without charge, is under the auspices of the Four-College Student Coordinating Board. A question and answer period will follow the talk.

The 35-year-old Massachusetts Democrat was elected to the U.S. Senate Nov. 6, 1962, to fill the unexpired term of his brother, the late President John F. Kennedy. He was re-elected to a full term in 1964, the largest vote ever given a statewide candidate in Massachusetts.

He now serves on the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee; the Special Committee on Aging, where he is the chairman of the Subcommittee on Federal, State and Local Services; and on the Judiciary Committee, where he is chairman of the Subcommittee on Refugees and Escapees. He has also chaired hearings of the Subcommittee on Immigration.

Born in Brookline, Senator Kennedy attended Milton Academy and was graduated from Harvard University. He was graduated from International Law School, The Hague, Holland, in 1958 and from the University of Virginia Law School in 1959.

Senator Kennedy was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar in 1959 and was named assistant district attorney of Suffolk County in 1961. He managed John F. Kennedy's 1958 campaign for the Senate in Massachusetts and was coordinator of the western states, Hawaii and Alaska for his brother in the 1960 presidential campaign.

He is a member of the Federal Bar Association, has been admitted to practice before the U. S. Supreme Court, and is a member of the Massachusetts Trial Lawyers Association.

Greek Week Nears Climax With Colorful Pageantry

THE TEMPTATIONS

by SNO WHITE
Staff Reporter

The unique climax of Greek Week 1967 draws near as Zeus and the other gods smile down from Mount Tom. The Interfraternity Council is supervising all the Greek Week events, and member Dave Claxton describes quite an agenda for the coming weekend.

At ten o'clock Saturday morning the residents of the Southwest Complex will witness the colorful pageantry of all the fraternity brothers as they march through in costumes typical of ancient Greek heroes and slaves. Among the wave of shields and spears there will sit judges who will select the winning costumes based on originality and appropriateness.

The procession will wind over to the Athletic Field where the Olympics will take place. The fraternities, divided into teams of four, will eagerly compete for the prized Olympus Cup. The cup will be awarded by the University of Massachusetts Intermural Department to the team with the highest total of points.

Included in the Olympic events will be: 100 and 200 yd. dash, 440 yd. relay, running broad jump, high jump, low hurdle, javelin throw, shot put, and decathlon.

Highlighting the athletic contests is the ruggedest test of endurance and muscle—the chariot race. Each entry in this event must truly possess stamina.

Four Greeks pull brightly painted chariot-like contraptions across a 220 yd. course. While a fifth athlete rides inside. Most of the contestants will have already competed in other events so the outcome should be exciting and the winner deserving.

The sororities will not participate in the Olympics, although next year there may be Panhellenic contests.

JACK E. LEONARD

Between 11 and 12 Saturday during a break in the Olympics there will be announced the Greek Week Queen 1967. The

(Continued on page 2)

Barriers Appear on Campus As Construction Boom Begins

by NEIL GIROUX
Staff Reporter

Long confining chain link fences, cars looking for parking places and the roar of huge construction equipment have helped to usher in the Spring season at UMass. The long promised campus building boom has started, bringing with it new sights, sounds and short tempers.

Barriers have appeared around the campus to keep construction in and pedestrians and vehicles out. These fences, complete with locked gates, skirt the area where Bartlett East is being constructed. For all practical purposes, the use of this road by traffic has ended.

Summer ground breaking for the Campus Center behind the Union will necessitate the closing of Ellis drive to traffic. Fences around this area can be expected as soon as construction starts, adding additional inconvenience to the walking students.

Machmer Tower construction has also begun. The area north of South College has also been closed off to foot traffic as well as eliminating some staff and faculty parking.

Ground was broken this week for Bartlett East, a modern language and humanities facility connecting with the present Bartlett Hall by a tunnel. This building is expected to be ready for use by September '68.

The bids for the new Campus Center will be let out in June and construction is also expected to begin this summer.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Cihocki
"Don't Fence Me In."

Machmer Tower, behind the present Machmer Hall, is expected to be complete in the fall of '68. Additional space for the College of Arts and Sciences will also be gained when the Deans functions are moved to the new Administration building, Whitmore Hall.

The massive building program has eliminated at least 300 parking spaces in the central campus area. More refugee cars will come as the building goes on. Where will these cars be parked? As the University grows to the expected 25,000 by 1975, where will all the staff and faculty find parking places?

William Lambert, UMass Landscape architect is in the middle

(Continued on page 10)

"CASIAC" Established in South College

by JOAN VANDERBOGART
Staff Reporter

Realizing that there are many problems with the present advisory system, the College of Arts and Sciences had developed "CASIAC" (College of Arts and Sciences Information and Advice Center) which will first be used this summer for the Class of 1971 orientation. Following the methods of the now working central advisory departments at the Universities of Michigan, Washington, and Wisconsin, Casiac will be established in South College this fall.

Under the new advisory system, a freshman will not have to declare a major. He will be free to decide for himself. Because an advisor's signature will no longer be required on registration cards, a student will register himself.

A regular staff of faculty

(Continued on page 10)

Pass-Fail System Issues Debated By Academic Matters Committee

by MICHELLE KACZYNSKI
Senate Reporter

Whether the pass-fail system should apply to required courses or to electives was one of the major considerations dealt with during an open hearing Thursday afternoon.

The hearing was held by the Academic Matters Committee of the Faculty Senate, and was chaired by Dr. Mayhew (Faculty Senate), Dean McFarland, and Robert Gaudet (Student Senate).

The discussion revolved around two distinct views on the benefits to be derived from a pass-fail system. One view, that pass-fail should apply to required courses, considered the system mainly as a means to raise a person's overall cum.

Those proposing pass-fail for an elective course thought of the system as enabling a person to widen his range of knowledge by taking courses outside his major, courses which he is interested in but which he would not ordinarily choose because they might lower his cum. Receiving a pass-fail type grade would not necessarily better a person's cum if he were in this position, only maintain it in a more or less stable position.

There were many questions concerning both these proposals.

(Continued on page 9)

Maroon Key Pres. Comments On "Collegian" Editorial

by RON LaBRECQUE
Staff Reporter

What had been planned to be a private interview with George Plantinga, President of the Maroon Keys Society, turned into an open, informal debate in the Collegian office Wednesday afternoon.

Plantinga had been invited to present his views on Monday's policy editorial, concerning the Maroon Keys, with which he disagreed.

Those participating were Plantinga, Jack Dean, Managing Editor of the Collegian, Sen. Mike Garjian, Student Senate ABC chairman, and this reporter.

The editorial questioned the constitutionality of the Keys selection procedures under the By-laws of the Society, including closed door interrogation sessions used for interviewing prospective Keys in which unrelated and sometimes rather personal topics were discussed.

The editorial asked that the Activities Committee of the Student Senate "begin an immediate investigation of the selection procedures used by the Society, as well as its usefullness to the campus community."

Plantinga opened the discussion by citing eight services of the Keys in the past year when the extent of their activities was questioned. Among them were: service at Senior week in the summer; a freshman dance in the fall; only service group present at freshman registration to oversee and help all freshmen; sponsored busses to the Dartmouth football game to encourage student participation; and built bonfires for all the football rallies and Winter

(Continued on page 8)

Here he is ! $65 worth of ugliness. A T G's Steve Smith.

Campus Chest Gains $150 For Ugliest Man on Campus

All the money is in and has been counted! One man has been chosen the Ugliest Man on Campus in a contest that had to be extended an extra two days because of the close results, at the end of last week.

The winner is Steve Smith of ATG. He was thought by you to possess more than $65 worth of ugliness. His prize? A date with Robin Sanders, the 1966 Homecoming Queen and an all-expense-paid night on the town courtesy of Alpha Phi Omega.

And the best news? The contest netted over $225 for the Campus Chest.

The rothers of APO would like to thank all the dorms and fraternities who participated, the Kentfield Dairy which supplied the milk-bottle-ballot boxes free of charge, and especially the Collegian for its all-out efforts in several moments of near-fatal crisis. Oh yes, and all the people who voted with nearly $150 in pennies.

Testing Mass Law

Baird Distributes B.C. Devices

by BOB PERLMAN
Staff Reporter

"History is being made today in Massachusetts." So said William R. Baird recently after he had been arrested for displaying and distributing several birth control devices before an estimated 1500 cheering students at Boston University's Hayden Hall.

Baird, 34, who operates a birth control clinic in New Lork, stated that he had distributed the contraceptive devices in order to test Massachusetts laws, which he termed "the most archaic in the nation."

At B. U., he lectured for more than an hour on the need for reforming the state's laws. He called the laws unconstitutional in that they force "a private morality on the general public." He then displayed several birth control devices, explaining their relative effectiveness, and handed out samples to a number of students, mostly female, from the audience. He also stated the name and address of a Japanese abortionist.

At this point, members of the Boston police vice squad approached Baird and led him from the stage. The following day he was arraigned in Roxbury Fourth District Court and charged with violation of Massachusetts' "Crimes against Chastity" l a w His trial is set for May 8.

In an effort to assist Baird, who is married and the father of four, students and faculty from B. U. and other Boston campuses have organized a fund drive to raise the estimated $20,000 that Baird will need to take his case to the U. S. Supreme Court. Backing the drive, surprisingly, is Boston University chaplain William England.

Meanwhile, not all the sympathy went to Baird. Stating the University's official position on the demonstration, B. U. counsel L. H. Thayer II proclaimed that while the administratioo upholds "the traditional right of freedom of speech," it cannot, "as a responsible institution," condone civil disobedience or defiiance of the law.

At Boston College, where Baird spoke last Monday, those students responsible for his coming were told to appear before the University disciplinary board for punitive action. Baird, himself, faces a possible thirteen year jail sentence.

Protestant Theologian Discusses Acuality Religion in Literature

by LYNDA BLANCHARD

"The modern Protestant theologian seems to spend more time with the modern novel than with the ancient scriptures." Thus Professor David Hamed of the Smith religion department opened his lecture "Religion in Contemporary Literature" Monday night, part of the Studies in Religion series.

Dr. Hamed's discussion seemed to diverge into two distinct aspects—the actuality of religion in literature and its importance in perspective.

Prof. Hamed cited four aspects of religion in contemporary literature. First consideration is that the Gospel is interpreted differently by each individual and that the arts present an opportunity to express any particular interpretation. Secondly, the Gospel is a journey as well as an arrival—each person must relate for himself. Third is the nature of theology. "Theology is not the queen of science, but a peasant among the arts." Every religious aspiration is shaped by the human condition. And fourth is the heightened sense of humanity attained in literature through religious images and Hebrew-Christian themes.

According to Prof. Hamed, the contemporary novel affirms the very aliveness of the Hebrew-Christian tradition. Even such avowed secularism in Cox's "The Secular City" is deemed part of an irreversable trend inspired by the Biblical tradition.

Hamed further explained three categories of the 20th Century novel in which the religious motif is prevalent: Salone's "Bread and Wine" exemplifies the Christian tradition in the political novel. In this work, a committee Marxist renounces his beliefs in acceptance of Christ-like ethics. Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath" is the proletarian or social protest novel in which the Old Testament trek through the wilderness and the New Testament's life of Christ are underlying thematic material. The Utopian novel such as Huxley's "Brave New World" exemplifies the resurgence of Apocalyptic imagery.

"Most important is not the message of the man of letters, said Dr. Hamed, but the very fact of his existance."

Dr. Hamed defended his position through the belief that if God made man as a creative individual, He did not want him to be otherwise and gave man complete liberty in his creative endeavors. Says Dr. Hamed, "Every novel celebrates man and his possibilities."

According to Dr. Hamed, certain crucial assumptions are involved in the novel. First, its existance verifies man's ability to find meaning in life. Second, since the writer's intention is to communicate, it assumes that man is a communal being. And third, the art of the novelist will revivify the language and enable closer communication among men. And, asks Dr. Hamed, "What man in the name of the Biblical tradition can ask for more?" Thus, the nature of the Biblical tradition itself condemns the censorship of literature whether it tends to deprecate Biblical tradition or not.

Senate Approves Ending Weekend Meal Ticket

by PAT PETOW
Senate Reporter

In terms of acts passed the Student Senate didn't do much Wednesday night. The only bill passed under new business was made subject to a student poll.

The bill to do away with weekend meal tickets while offering a cash system was given Senate approval. But the results of the poll to be held next Thursday with the final class elections may influence the Senate to reverse or modify its opinion.

The motion included three additional conditions: "(1) North Commons will be open for all meals on a cash basis only. (2) North & SW snack bars will be open with extended hours during the weekend. (3) The SW snack bar shall make provisions for a type of breakfast meal on the weekend."

The crux of the weekend matter was presented as financial. The Food Service believe, according to Smith, that the present plan of two distinct meal tickets is the most expensive.

One reason against the second meal ticket for the weekend, he said, was that the weeknd operation is subsidized by the five-day ticket holders.

Against the bill, Sen. John Edwards (JFK Middle) suggested that Southwest residents were being shortchanged. Senator Jim Moran (Brett), on the other hand, questioned whether South Commons ought not to be the one open since it appeared to be centrally-located.

The close vote on approval: 20 for, 18 against, and 3 abstaining was followed by Senator Mike Garjian's attempt to place the bill, S125, on the ballot as a referendum.

The final decision was to ask a question instead; Senate President Jim Collins ruled that the results would not be legally binding. The student body will have the opportunity to say "yes" or "no" to: "Would you favor the abolition of weekend meal tickets in which case weekend meals would be available only on a cash basis?"

Further complicating the matter was a motion made by Vice-President Fran Boronski to reconsider the bill which itself was tabled until the next meeting.

The Boronski motion was passed during the debate over the referendum, and despite the poll to be taken next Thursday, the Senate may decide to reconsider the bill next Wednesday. Before voting on the substance of the bill, preliminary approval is necessary on the question of reconsidering.

In other action, the Senate approved preliminary budgets for the Crew Team of $5,285.00 and for a new publication with an old name, Spectrum, of $20,640.00.

The Crew was granted an additional $1,000 by the Athletic Council.

Present for the discussion of the Spectrum budget were three members of the Communications Board, which is considering the new magazine idea and budget.

The question of whether the new publication would replace or compete with Caesura, Yahoo, and Critique was not clearly answered.

GREEK WEEK . . .

(Continued from page 1)

title will go to one of the five finalists: Pat Dirse, Chi Omega, Denise Deleeuw, Sigma Kappa, Jane Ludlow, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Lynn Wells, Alpha Chi Omega, and Kathy Sullivan, Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Also this weekend the fraternities and sororities will be throwing parties, cook outs, buffets, and other varied activities.

All the Greeks will be really moving until they settle back Sunday afternoon at 2 for popular concert entertainment in Curry Hicks Cage. The motown sound of the Temptations will penetrate the whole campus while the topical comedy of Jack E. Leonard with his jibes and jokes should end the week on a humorous note.

CLARK-PONTIAC . . . .
HAS NOW IN STOCK
THE NEW MAGNIFICENT FIVE Firebirds

SALE Now in Progress !!

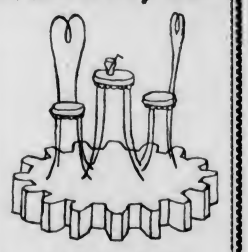
Also GTO's — CATALINAS — BONNEVILLES
GRAND PRIX — LeMANS — EXECUTIVES

ALSO – F'85's – 442's – Delta's
Toronado's – 98's

CLARK- OLDSMOBILE - PONTIAC
32 UNION ST., EASTHAMPTON
Across from Post Office

Car Rentals Daily Basis — Long Term Car Leasing

-ARROW-
DECTON OXFORD
PERMA-IRON



The perfect button-down. The collar is just the right length for that perfect roll. Back pleat, back button. And it's permanently ironed to last the life of the shirt. "Sanforized Plus" 65% Dacron® polyester, 35% cotton

long sleeves $7.00
short sleeves $5.00

THOMPSON'S
CLOTHING STORE

The Ice Cream Parlor and other mechanical plays
by Joseph Krausman
well Known 4-College student

AVAILABLE
AT LOCAL BOOKSTORES
APRIL 22, 1967
or from publishers
DESPA' PRESS
BOX 123 N'HAMP.

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

International

Thailand bid for U.S. surface-to-air missiles amid SEATO warnings that Communist subversion is continuing in Southeast Asia.

* * *

A top defense official acknowledged that North Vietnam's MIGs and anti-aircraft missiles have cut the effectiveness of U.S. bombing.

* * *

Eight men from Communist countries have been ordered out of West European countries in the past six months for spying.

National

Sen. Russell B. Long launched a new Senate bid to revive his presidential election campaign financing law.

* * *

A congressman charged that the Apollo spacecraft builder never corrected problems cited in a report he says space officials are suppressing.

* * *

The life expectancy at birth of the total U.S. population in 1965 was 70.2 years, the same as in 1964, the Public Health Service reported yesterday.

* * *

Although some delegates forecast a strike would be necessary to win major goals already on the table, Walter P. Reuther, United Auto Workers president, has agreed to let his union vote on adding a 35-hour week to 1967 contract demands.

Some 3,000 delegates attending a goals-setting convention of the 1.4 million-member union will vote on the resolution. Reu-

Reuther has pleaded for "flexibility" when he begins bargaining in early July on new agreements with General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

BoSox Make Top Ten List

No. 9 Today!

NATIONAL LEAGUE

	W	L	Pct.	G.B.
St. Louis	6	1	.857	—
Philadelphia	4	2	.667	1½
Cincinnati	5	3	.625	1½
Atlanta	5	3	.625	1½
Chicago	4	3	.571	2
New York	3	4	.429	3
Houston	3	5	.375	3½
Los Angeles	2	4	.333	3½
Pittsburgh	2	4	.333	3½
San Francisco	2	7	.222	5

AMERICAN LEAGUE

	W	L	Pct.	G.B.
New York	4	2	.667	—
Cleveland	4	2	.667	—
Chicago	5	3	.625	—
Detroit	5	3	.625	—
Baltimore	4	3	.571	½
Kansas City	3	4	.429	1½
California	3	5	.375	2
Washington	2	4	.333	2
BOSTON	2	4	.333	2
Minnesota	2	4	.333	2

Thursday's Results

Cleveland 2, Kansas City 0
Detroit 4, California 3
Chicago 8, Washington 4
Baltimore at Minnesota, rain
Only games scheduled

Today's Games

New York at Boston, N
Kansas City at Baltimore, N
Minnesota at Detroit, N
California at Cleveland, N
Chicago at Washington, N

Saturday's Games

New York at Boston
Minnesota at Detroit
California at Cleveland
Chicago at Washington
Kansas City at Baltimore

Death Weapon

Tanks Roll in Greece

ROME (AP) — Young King Constantine of Greece put the army in control of his country today to block leftist opponents of the monarchy.

A source in the Greek Embassy in Rome said the embassy had been advised from Athens that the election of a new Greek Parliament would be held on schedule May 28 despite the military takeover.

"We have been informed," said the source, "that the coup was staged to assure public order and prevent any extr mist revolution during the period preceding the election."

He added that the embassy was told the country was completely calm.

Later in the day, however, Tanjug, the Yugoslav news agency, reported from Athens that shots had been heard in the Greek capital.

U.S. Air Force headquarters Weisbaden, Germany, said conditions were normal at its base in Athens and the commander there "reported there is no apparent threat to any U.S. military installations or personnel."

The Athens army radio announced that the military had taken over the Balkan member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization at midnight Thursday night under a proclamation signed by the 26-year-old king, conservative Premier Panayiotis Cannellopoulos and his Cabinet.

The power move climaxed a 21-month struggle between the king and the two leaders of the powerful leftist Center Union party, 80-year-old former Premier George Papandreou and his son Andreas, 48, a former American citizen.

The Papandreous had been scheduled to open their campaign for the May 28 parliamentary elections on Sunday. The Greek police feared they would touch off widespread demonstrations against the king.

Tanjug reported from Athens that tanks with soldiers in full battle dress were patrolling the streets of the capital and that pedestrians and civilian vehicles were kept off the streets.

The Yugoslav report said schools were closed, telephone service cut, and the civilian radio station was silent. Newspapers were not publishing and police were stationed outside their doors. Tanjug said.

Monkey Law Stays On Tenn. Books

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Tennessee's prohibition against teaching the theory of evolution in tax-supported schools and colleges survived today the most serious challenge in its 42-year existence.

By its 16-to-16 tie vote, the state Senate refused to repeal the so-called "monkey law." The law was the basis of the famous "monkey trial" in 1925 at Dayton, Tenn., where John T. Scopes, a science teacher in the local high school, was convicted of violating it.

The repeal bill, which had been approved by the House in a 58-to-27 vote, was sent back to the Senate's calendar committee. It may be brought up again this year.

The Senate approved and sent to the House an amendment to change the law slightly. It prohibits the teaching of evolution only as a fact, not as theory. There was no indication whether the House will act on the amendment.

The 16-16 tie vote in the Senate on repeal followed an hour and a half of debate that frequently sounded like a religious revival meeting.

Surveyor Will Scratch Surface

PASADENA, CALIF. (AP) — Surveyor 3 extended a shaky, tubular arm today but did not attempt to scratch the moon's pitted hide.

Trenching of the lunar soil may come sometime after 7 p.m. EST today when Jet propulsion Laboratory scientists resume remote control operation of the three-legged spacecraft's scoop.

The scissor-type extension arm with a two-by five-inch shovel on the end began reaching out from the craft at 4:56 a.m. EST in two-second steps, a few inches at a time. The spacecraft's camera, mounted just above the arm, photographed each jerky movement and televised a series of pictures.

The arm was left extended about 50 inches a couple of feet above the moon's surface as controllers halted the operation shortly before 6 a.m. EST when the earth's rotation carried the tracking station at Goldstone, Calif. out of view of the moon.

One of the first movements tonight may be to drop the shovel onto the surface, testing the bearing strength for future manned landings. Scientists also hope Surveyor will dig a trench and for the first time photograph

U.S. Bombs Cong Port of Haiphong

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. Navy fliers today reported "Severe damage", to Haiphong's two power plants in their raids Thursday which put out the lights in North Vietnam's major port. Air Force pilots claimed major destruction to trains, railroads and storage dumps in simultaneous attacks 20 to 40 miles from Hanoi.

U. S. military headquarters made no announcement of any plane losses in the raids Thursday but confirmed a Communist report that two American planes were lost over North Vietnam Wednesday. The headquarters said the three fliers in the two planes were missing. Hanoi had said one was captured.

In the forays against the Hanoi-Haiphong complex Thursday Navy fliers from two aircraft carriers in the Tonkin Gulf concentrated on the two Haiphong power plants, flying through intense antiaircraft and missle fire. The carrier pilots attacked nine antiaircraft sites and 13 missile sites in the Haiphong area, the Navy reported.

One of the power plants attacked was 1.1 miles northwest of the center of Haiphong and within the city limits.. It was the first time in the war that a target inside Haiphong was bombed.

France and Turkey Plant Atomic Bombs

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Military sources say the North Atlantic Treaty Organization has accepted Turkey's proposal to plant nuclear mines that could close mountain passes along Turkey's border with the Soviet Union.

The Turks said they would detonate the mines far underground in case of an invasion threat and there would be no fallout.

The Turkish sources said the proposal was approved in principle at the recent NATO nuclear committee meeting in Washington attended by Turkish Defense Minister Ahmet Topaloglu.

French Bomb

Other places in the world will become atomic bomb-sites also. France says it will explode three small atomic trigger charges in the South Pacific this summer to find the best way to set off the thermonuclear bomb which the French plan to test in 1968.

The Ministry of Information said the explosions will be small. It said both the danger zone and the fleet of observing ships will be much smaller than for last summer's tests of atomic bombs.

Wanna Buy a Basketball Team?

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, dethroned after eight seasons as National Basketball Associated champions, were put up for sale today by their owners of just two years.

Marvin Kratter, the Celtics' board chairman, told a news conference he has had offers from about 20 groups from throughout the Country.

He said firm offers have come from a group headed by Celtics' President Jack Waldron and general manager Red Auerbach and other unidentified parties in Chicago, New York and Texas.

Kratter is board chairman of National Equities, Inc., which purchased the Celtics from the estate of Walter A. Brown and Lou Pieri for a reported $3.5 million two years ago.

The corporation is involved mainly in real estate.

"I personally would like to keep the Celtics," Kratter said. "However, our corporation is public and it doesn't think that basketball is its kind of business."

Kratter did not put any definite price tag in the Celtics. He said that "under no circumstances would the team leave Boston, although it is possible an outside group will purchase the team."

RFK Not to Run in '68

WASHINGTON, April 20 — Senator Robert F. Kennedy's public declarations that he will not seek the Democratic Presidential nomination next year have been fortified by private pledges of a united political front with the Johnson Administration.

Some politicians in both parties have regarded Senator Kennedy's renunciation of Presidential ambition next year as less than the last word, They go on the theory that this is what he would have to say now, as a practical matter, if he did intend to challenge President Johnson.

Senator Kennedy's pledge of political cooperation does not include any truce with the Administration on substantive issues upon which he differs with Mr. Johnson, He was for example, one of the leaders of the recent successful Senate effort to repeal the Administration's campaign financing law.

As part of his effort to make common cause with President Johnson, Senator Kennedy will join him at a pair of major Democratic fund-raising dinners in New York City early in June.

Reflecting the spirit of revived political amity, the proceeds of the affairs will be divided between the New York and national party organizations. Since he moved to New York, Mr. Kennedy has been distressed by the amount of money the President's Club was draining out of the state. The club consists of persons who have contributed $1,000 or more to the President's campaign.

Asperity Increases

For a year or more Mr. Kennedy has been proclaiming his support for both President Johnson and Vice President Humphrey in 1968 and denying, with increasing asperity, that he would contest the nomination or allow his name to be used for such a challenge to the President.

Fine Arts

Grab Your "WOODY" Surf's Up!

by N. C. SCANLAN

It's a real pleasure to come in from the cruel Amherst weather with a blanket and some coppertone and catch the rays of The Endless Summer. It is best described as a beachboy's answer to National Geographic, traveling all around the world, taking pictures of scenes that just have to be beautiful and saying more all the time.

Bruce Brown is billed as producer, director, photographer and editor; the only thing Bruce didn't do was build the set. He starts out with a short indoctrination for inland people, showing good surfing and defining the ingredients of the perfect wave for which Bob August and Mike Henson will soon go on a search.

The first good surprise in the film is Bruce's narration which is very casual, comical, and home-movie-ish. When he takes us to the beach, he makes sure everything is well-defined like: "This is a girl." Thanks, Bruce. Or when he tells us that the sharks "like your body."

After the intro which includes Hawaii and California's finest surf and surfers, the boys take their boards and their beachbeat background and fly to Africa. It is funny to watch the explorers arrive in Ghana with their magic boards.

The reaction of the people is one great enthusiasm. There is a real communication even though Bruce worries, "I don't think even the U. N.'s been here." Just as well because the only diplomatic trouble the boys have is trying to get their magic board away from the chief.

South Africa is the most exciting. By the time they arrive in Capetown, you start to say, "Look at all that sand!" You wonder why you have been fighting your way down to the Cape all these years.

On their way around the Cape of Good Hope, the explorers pick up a very interesting guide named Terrance who tries to feed them to all the friendly animals before taking them to—the perfect wave. The place is called The Cape of Saint Francis with three hundred perfect days a year.

Strangely enough, in Australia where the big ones are, the boys show up in the wrong season but Bruce Brown manages to flash back on some thirty footers.

As was mentioned, all you need is a colored camera to capture nature at its beach. But Brown does a few tricks of his own. Some of the scenes are taken from Bruce's own board. With his long virgin beach shots, he never stops reminding us how much nature is really out there. All of it waiting to be converted to the gospel of the board by the Malibu missionaries.

Bruce Brown's film makes you want to jump in your woodie and go to where the surf's up. And as the sun slowly fades into the orange west, we bid farewell to Mike and Bob and Bruce have seen a perfect wave, having seen a perfectly enjoyable trip, having seen the endless summer.

It will be at the Amherst Cinema through Tuesday.

Thomas' Socialistic Philosophy Viewed at Smith College

by ADRIENNE KASCIUSKO
Staff Reporter

Inveterate campaigner for the Socialists' philosophy, Norman Thomas recalled the New Deal era's spirit for a crowded auditorium at Smith on Wednesday evening. He was the fourth visiting lecturer of a series on "Views of the 1930's" at Smith this spring.

Describing President Roosevelt's New Deal as merely "tainted with socialism," Thomas proposed that neither FDR nor the New Deal ended the Depression. He said the Roosevelt's lightened the nation's problems. "We didn't solve the essential problem, but if Roosevelt had not done what he did, I tremble to think of what might have been."

He found the main fault of the New Deal to be its lack of coherency. Waving his party banner ever, Thomas pointed to the sampling of Keynesian economics. The NRA and the Wagner Act were his examples of this sampling. Shortly after their passage, "the New Deal ran out of measures to build a welfare state and ran out of knowledge of Keynesian theory to go any further."

The socialist's opinion of capitalism, he admitted, underestimated its capacity to carry the nation through such a severe depression. Now, Thomas explained, he believes that "modified capitalism, injected with strong doses of Keynesian theory, can succeed through economic crises."

From socialist theory, he changed the topic rapidly to war, Vietnam and the New Left. Of war, he dedicated Socialist bitterly recalled that our cruel attempts to end militarism has only produced the greatest military states ever. Pertaining to Vietnam, he dispelled the idea of withdrawal and implored action towards peace negotiations, which is the only way to put off a close confrontation with China.

With mixed feelings about the New Left, he described the wing as active, working much harder than the Old Left." It is long on what it doesn't like, very long, nihilistically long on its disapproval of America, and very short on constructive programs."

Norman Thomas was born in Marion, Ohio, November 20, 1884, attended Bucknell University in Lewisburg, Pa., and then entered Princeton University where he graduated in 1905 as valedictorian. He was one of the organizers of the Civil Liberties Bureau which became the American Civil Liberties Union.

He has run for many offices on the Socialist Party ticket and has campaigned for the Presidency of the United States six times.

UMass Chorus Travels

On Sunday, April 23, the University Chorus will make its first off-campus performance in its brief two-year history. The program will be held at the First Lutheran Church in Holyoke at 7:30 in the evening. It will include five selections by the entire Chorus, and selections by the Madrigal Group and the Women's Ensemble.

The following Sunday the combined Chorus and Chorale will present a concert at Bowker Auditorium at 4 p.m. under the direction of Dr. Richard duBois and Mr. Russell Falvey. There is no admission charge for either concert, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

NOTICES

PSYCHOLOGY COLLOQUIUM
On Friday, April 21, at 4:00 P.M. in SBA 116, Dr. John I. Lacey, Chairman of Dept. of Psychophysiology and Neurophysiology at Fels Research Institute will present, "Brain, Behavior and the Heart".

SOCIOLOGY CLUB
On Monday, April 24, at 8:00 P.M. in Colonial Lounge, there will be a coffee hour with social workers. All interested are invited.

HILLEL
Every Tuesday and Thursday in Hillel Office, S.U. from 1:00-4:00 P.M. there is a coffee hour, with Rabbi Reiner from Holyoke. All are welcome.

NEWMAN CLUB
On April 30, from 9:15 A.M. to 11:45 A.M. in North Dining Commons, there will be the annual Communion Breakfast with speaker Rev. Raymond J. Swords, President of Holy Cross College. Donation is 99¢. Tickets at Newman Center.

On April 25, at 7:00 P.M. in Chapel, the White Sisters from Africa will present an African Mass in the Chapel after which they will give a talk about the history of their order and show slides of Africa. There will be folk singing in the Social hall.

MENS JUDICIARY SELECTIONS
From Class of 1970 — 1 Justice 1:00 P.M. Sat., April 29, Dukes Room, S.U.
From Class of 1969—2 Justices, 1:00 P.M. Sun., April 30—Dukes Rm, S.U.
Applications in RSO office.

MOVIE:
"Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" Friday, April 21, at 8:00 P.M. in Mahar. Admission is 50¢. Sponsored by Gamma Sigma Sigma.

AUK:
There will be a meeting of all AUK volunteers Sat., April 22, at 12:30 before leaving for Springfield, in S.U. Lobby New Constitution will be voted on.

ALL CHRISTIAN WORSHIP
Every Sunday at 11:00 A.M. in Mahar Aud.; Theme for April 23 is "The World in Particular". Coffee hour follows service.

MED TECH CLUB
On Wed., April 26, in Public Health Aud., plans or forming the Alpha Delta Aud., plans for forming the Alpha Delta nologists will be discussed. All interested Med. Techs are welcome.

WMUA
On April 24 at 8:00 P.M. there will be a station meeting for all members.

STUDENT RELIGIOUS LIBERALS
On April 23, at 6:00 P.M. at Unitarian Society, Amherst, there will be a cost supper with Jeffrey Campbell Elections will be held.

RECREATION ACTIVITIES COMMITTEE
On Thurs., April 27 at 7:00 P.M. there is a meeting in Dwight House Lounge.

MANAGEMENT CLUB
On Monday, April 23, in SBA 102, elections will be held for the coming year. All sophomores and junior invited.

NAIAD TRYOUTS
Optional practices are Thurs., April 20, at 6:30 P.M. & Monday, April 24, 6:30 P.M.
Tryouts are Tuesday, April 25 at 6:30 P.M. and Wed., April 26, at 6:30 P.M.
Girls of all classes are welcome to come out for Naiads. They will be judged on their ability to swim the crawl, backcrawl, breaststroke and sidestroke to music. All music, to try out at WoPe Pool.

LOST:
Ladies watch, Wittenauer, with fleur-de-lis pattern on band. Lost on Tuesday. Call Cheryl Evans 546-7440.
Urgently needed graduate research papers stolen outside all night wash behind Louis Foods on Monday, April 17. Reward. Contact Robert Lyons, Computer Science EBE 215.
Would the person who accidentally took a CPO shirt with ΑΦΩ letters on it from South Commons coatroom Monday evening please return it to Mrs. Flass in Hills North.

PINNINGS:
Mary Kathy Sacuto, class of '69, Kappa Alpha Theta, to Kevin McKenna, class of '69, Phi Sigma Delta.
Donna White, class of '68, Johnson, to David Borge, class of '69, PSK.
Carol Mandel, class of '68, Johnson to John Foresto, PSK.
Elaine Falangas, class of '68, Mary Lyon, to Ens Paul Andruchow, class of '66, U.S.N.A.
Claire P. Sweeney, class of '69, Van Meter, to James Mulligan, class of '68, Alpha Sigma Phi.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Janie Dunsford, class of '68, Calvin Coolidge, to Doug Anderson, class of '66, Phi Mu Alpha, B.U.
Linda L. Martin, class of '69, Calvin Coolidge, to Russ Bergeron, class of '67, Baker.
Donna Logue, class of '66, Kappa Alpha Theta, to Sandy Wolfe, class of '66, TEP.

Dial the 'Hot Line'
545-2550

BULLETIN No. 24

OVER 5,000 TIRES IN STOCK INCLUDING FOREIGN AND COMPACT SIZES

UMASS FACULTY
STAFF & STUDENTS
MAY PURCHASE
TIRES
At Wholesale Prices
NEW Perfect Quality GOODYEAR

SPRING 1967

UMASS IDENTIFICATION REQUIRED

BATTERIES
FREE INSTALLATION
6 VOLT $6.83 EXCH.
12 VOLT $9.48 EXCH.
FULL Guarantee provides for battery replacement FREE within 90 days

NYLON CORD TUBELESS

		F.E.T.
650/700x13	$12.84	$1.55
775/750x14	$13.86	2.21
825/800x14	$15.52	2.38
855/850x14	$17.96	2.56
775/670x15	$13.86	2.23
815/710x15	$15.52	2.33
845/760x15	$17.96	2.53
900/915/820x15	$21.04	2.86

No Trade-In Required

NATION-WIDE GUARANTEE
NO LIMIT ON MILES • NO LIMIT ON MONTHS

Terms Available
FREE TIRE MOUNTING

AT SAME PRICES WE SELL OUR DEALERS

Northampton Warehouse For DELTA
PREMIUM NYLON TIRES
THE 50,000 MILE TIRE

STATE INSPECTION PERIOD APRIL 1st TO MAY 15th

NEW WHEELS
Genuine Firestone Retreads

BAK TIRE CO.
"Northampton Warehouse Distributors"
55 DAMON ROAD • NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
584-4769
HOURS — 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M.
Saturday 8:00 A.M. to 2:00 P.M.
OVER A HALF CENTURY OF SERVICE

AMPLE PARKING

AMHERST CREAMERY
SNACK BAR
12" Pizza 99c
Ice Cream Sandwiches
Steaks
Take Out 253-5350

Annual Communion Breakfast
9:15—11:45 A.M.
SUNDAY, APRIL 30
NORTH DINING COMMONS
Speaker—Rev. Raymond J. Swords
President of Holy Cross College
DONATION: 99¢
Tickets at the Newman Center

BOOKS AND NOTEBOOKS have been found belonging to commuters. They may be claimed at the Lost and Found located at the bus ticket window in the Student Union.

Superb Scottish Poet To Visit UMass

The University of Massachusetts will be host for a week beginning April 24 for the first visit to the U.S. of the internationally-known Scottish poet Hugh MacDiarmid (pronounced MacDermott).

Considered by many to be one of this era's greatest living poets, the 75-year-old MacDiarmid is given credit for single-handedly sparking a Scottish literary renaissance in this century.

MacDiarmid will take part at UM in a week-long series of discussions, seminars and readings with Norman MacCaig, poet who represented Scotland last year at the Long Island Univ. International Writers Conference. The visit is sponsored by the UM students' Distinguished Visitors Program.

HUGH MacDIARMID

To mark the visit, The Massachusetts Review will feature a special section of new poems by MacDiarmid and MacCaig in its forthcoming issue.

The MacMillan Co. of New York City will mark the visit with the publication of a revised edition of the Scottish poet's Collected Poems, edited by Dr. John C. Weston of the UMass English department.

Hugh MacDiarmid first rose to fame as a lyric poet with the publication in 1925 of Sangschaw, a book of powerful and sardonic lyric poetry that created a stir in British literary circles. The book was a signal for a Scottish literary renaissance, a movement MacDiarmid is credited with almost single-handedly initiating, and which brought Scottish literature to a creative zenith it had not reached since the Robert Burns era of the 18th Century.

T. S. Eliot said of MacDiarmid: "It will eventually be admitted that he has done more... for English poetry by committing some of his finest verse to Scots, than if he had elected to write exclusively in the Southern dialect."

Dylan Thomas said "Every door in every town should be wide open to that great lyric poet Hugh MacDiarmid, a light burning in every window, food and drink on each table..."

Stephen Spender has described MacDiarmid's writings as "poetry of extraordinary power and beauty."

MacDiarmid is famed as a political activist as well as a poet. Much of his life has been spent fighting, in print and on the platform, for the causes of the underdog, notably Scottish nationalism, and the improvement of conditions for the working class through communism.

International Entertainment Presented to Commonwealth

Amherst community and people of the surrounding area will have the most colorful time of the year on Saturday, April 22 at 8 p.m. when they will be exposed to the annual International Show in Bartlett Auditorium.

The evening has been sponsored by the International Club in which foreign students of the campus along with Smith, Mt. Holyoke, and Amherst students from foreign countries will present the exotic dances, songs, and instrumental music of different lands. American folk song and dance will also be on the stage.

Another highlight of the evening will be a fashion parade of the national dresses and costumes of various countries.

"The purpose of this variety show," said Hatem Hussaini, president of the Club," is to develop better international friendship between the people of America and the rest of the world." And this show will serve its purpose well by acquainting Americans with the cultural heritage of other people and resulting in better understanding among the nations of the world," he added.

All are invited. Don't miss your time of the year. Admission fee is $1, and tickets will be sold at the gate.

Refreshments will be served after the show.

Mathematics Graduate or Associate

A job of exceptional promise for the future, and better than average income for the immediate, with top-level advancement.

IS THIS FOR YOU?

G & M

145 State Street
Springfield, Mass.

Call Dr. De Friesse 739-1133
evenings and week-ends: call 253-5779

PANHELLENIC SING

APRIL 22, 1967

4:30 – 6:00 P.M.

S.U. BALLROOM

HURRICANE ISLAND
OUTWARD BOUND SCHOOL

One of twenty-three Outward Bound Schools in the world, Hurricane Island offers young men 16½ to 23 years old, the challenge of genuine adventure:

— Four day expeditions at sea
— Sea Search and Rescue
— Three day solo survival
— Rock-climbing
— Survival swimming

There are still openings in the following courses:

H-6 June 17 to July 13
H-7 July 17 to August 12
H-8 Aug. 16 to Sept. 11

FOR FREE CATALOGUE WRITE:
P.O. Box 160-B
Ayer, Massachusetts 01432

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Counseling Day

Counseling day will soon be upon us. To many students this means confronting an advisor who is not aware of course requirements, or who merely recommends studying seven hours a day, seven days a week.

The advisor's signature, except in the college of Arts and Sciences, is required on all pre-registration cards. If it is true that education is supposed to be entering an era of greater student responsibility, then approval for course selections in the absence of helpful advice is meaningless.

One recourse available to students who are in need of academic advice which they fail to receive from their advisors is the University Counseling and Guidance Center located in the basement of Machmer Hall.

Students would be wise to seek information here, particularly in cases where their advisor's signature is not necessary, thereby boycotting their advisors entirely.

Furthermore, we urge all major departments to make charts of University requirements and specific departmental requirements available to their students.

There is no need for the confusion in counseling and the uncertainty in course selections which presently exists.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

Center of Learning?

by RICHARD H. STAPLES, Editorial Staff

The administration can soon breathe more easily, another month or so and DellaGrotte will be gone. What matter that he was chosen "most outstanding teacher" by a student committee? He was "outspoken", certainly a heinous crime, not to mention controversial, non-conformist, etc., etc, ad nauseum. Definitely a dangerous, or at least disquieting, individual to have at "Mass Aggie". He made people question the accepted, raised "critical issues", and we certainly can't have thousands of UMies going around "questioning", can we?

Well, why can't we? The administration claims on the one hand that their goal is to build a "great university", but one wonders what their concept of greatness must be. Of all places in our society, the University, supposedly dedicated to an enlightened search for the truth, however disquieting that may be, should be a haven for divergent opinions, a place where "radical ideas" and "basic questions" may be set forth to stand or fall on their own merits, not on some aged administrator's conception of the acceptable. Whatever happened to the idea of a University as a center of "learning and free intellect"?

Why is it that another distinguished professor, also planning to leave UMass, states that "The University is interested in a publishing record, along with whatever is stomachable and non-controversial in the classroom."? Why is still another professor, highly regarded by his students as a fascinating teacher, leaving in disgust, explaining that the University is building a beautiful facade of high-rise dorms and giant gymnasiums, but with little to back them up academically? Certainly we have money: we can hire PhD's away from Yale, but a string of "Dr.s" will not make a "great University".

No, we have to do something far more basic than hire "names", far more basic than build buildings. We must overcome, abolish, eradicate for all time the all-pervasive attitude which haunts this campus, which stifles men of the calibre of Joseph DellaGrotte. We must eliminate the philosophy of "not rocking the boat", the attitude of avoiding controversy, the doctrine of quiet acceptance.

Certainly this will not make UMass any easier to administer, nor will it ease our conflicts with a reactionary, provincial, and anti-intellectual legislature. But it must be done. If we fail, then we may as well forget our dreams of building a great University. If we fail, then the University of Massachusetts will continue to be thought of as that "cow-college at Amherst", a "third-rate land-grant college", a place which students attend because they couldn't afford better.

Yes, DellaGrotte will be gone, a martyr of sorts. But he will not be forgotten. In his own words, "If administrators cannot be expected to loosen their control, nor faculty to engage in creative teaching, then with the students rests the burden of preserving the critical spirit of education." Let it be known that the students, some of them at least, do not take this charge lightly. You can fool some of the people some of the time, but you can't fool a Umie forever. The students are watching, and waiting.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP
CPS
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS AP

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Campus Comment

The Maroon Keys Reply

To the Editor:

After reading your editorial on the Maroon Keys Society, I strongly feel that you have overlooked several vital qualities and ideas which the Keys strive to maintain here at UMass. If made a thorough investigation of what the Maroon Keys do and our manner of selection, I'm sure such an inaccurate editorial would not have been printed.

The first item that should be clarified in the Society's manner of selection. True, the by-laws are not exactly clear, but due to the ever increasing enrollment at the University, the applications procedure must be left up to those students interested in becoming members.

The purpose of our application form is to get a capsule summary of the student's activities and background. By giving each qualified, interested individual an interview, we try to give the applicant the "personal touch" which is slowly dying out at the University.

How can you justify calling the Maroon Keys Society a "mere club for Greeks" when you have never thoroughly examined why so many members are fraternity men. When 15 out of approximately 125 applicants are independents and being it that all applicants possess the same general requirements, naturally more Greeks will be chosen.

To further answer your editorial, The Maroon Keys have been very active in University activities. At the end of Spring semester last year, we stayed for an extra week to assist with graduation exercises as well as welcoming swing-shift freshmen to the University.

In order to insure increased contact with the freshmen, each Key was required to live in dorm for the first semester. T Maroon Keys sponsored a c vocation and a President's ception for the Swing-shift fre men which was unnoted in y editorial. It's a shame the C legian Editors were not arou on registration day to see Keys answering questions assisting students as much possible, also unnoted in y editorial.

Who sponsored the bus Dartmouth, and built bonfires order to instill some much ne ed spirit on this campus? Maroon Keys Society. L closely at the rallies and yo see twenty-five blue bla throughout the crowd. At President's Christmas Party h on a Saturday nite, Maroon K were present to provide th service for the festivities. We so provided a direct bus fr Port Authority to assist s dents in their hectic return UM after the Christmas va tion.

Why weren't our valiant forts of service publicized in Collegian ?

The editors seem quite co cerned about our interview p ceedings. Our various types questions are used to get overall impression of the app cant as well as setting the

(Continued on page 7)

DeSalvo Dance Comment

To the Editor:

Although this letter is directed to only one person, or perhaps to a small group of people, I feel that the nature of its inspiration behooves you to print it.

As I entered an elevator in John Adams Tower on Monday morning, April 17, I saw, taped to one of the walls, a very meticulously drawn poster advertising the "Albert DeSalvo Birthday Dance — Nurses, no uniforms please."

I later found similar posters in each of the other two elevators in the tower. One of these was complete with an illustration of a bedroom scene involving one male and a number of females. It was apparently intended to depict a now infamous incident which occurred last July 14 on Chicago's South Side in which eight nurses were murdered.

Naturally, my sense of humor could not resist the appeal of such an amusing display of artistry and I found myself thinking about these wonderful posters for the remainder of the morning.

The name(s) of the artist(s) who designed the poster remains unknown to me. However, I want him to know that his work has not gone unnoticed. I commend him for his singular wit. It is certainly extraordinary, reveals a unique character, and separates the artist from the roll of common men.

David S. Polansky '67

Is Anyone There?

To the people:

I am being denied that part of my education which I value most: personal contact with creative and intelligent faculty members. During the past three years that I have been here, that same number of faculty have left me alone to contend with this place. What made these people interesting is that they were interested in me, not as the fellow trying to get a ticket to unseen success but rather, as the ever-questioning student.

Unfortunately their individuality could not secure them in a place where individuality is discouraged. . .and I am still alone. I am sure that there are a few other interesting faculty members around. (as a timely case I note Prof. DellaGrotte, who I unfortunately do not have the pleasure of knowing). But he is leaving, isn't he? If the boys in the front office continue to dismiss every interesting professor, who will I talk to?

Hello, Hello! Is anyone there?

Thomas Longo

Mr. Close

To the Editor:

Steve, I have just finish reading your article of Wedn day, April 19, in the Colleg entitled "Mr. Close and Courts." I can see that y purpose was to write someth absurd in the hopes of arous student opinion and indignat over the treatment accorded Mr. Close by the Administrati

I share your disgust with well-known apathy of the stud body. However, your approach dangerous at UMass.

There are many students w would write an article like yo about the Close issue in all se ousness.

I am afraid some read thought you belonged to group. They either did not derstand the purpose of the a cle, or they took it seriously. wanted you to know that wouldn't insult you like that.

Norene Bagnall

What Price Safety?

To the Editor:

Last Friday night at 7:45 on Webster's four west balcony, Robert LaCroix, '70, startled scores of Orchard residents when he accidentally plunged through a pane of glass upon reentering the lounge. Those who heard the glass smash to the floor could have made a reasonably accurate guess as to how badly he was hurt.

The injuries sustained were severe lacerations of the right ankle, above the right knee, left shoulder, and forehead. His left hand was injured to the extent of four severed tendons, not to mention the minor cuts all over his body. David Jarnes, a junior Physical Education major, alertly administered first aid in an attempt to subdue the loss of blood which was in excess of a pint. LaCroix was moved back to campus only after treatment at Cooley-Dickinson Hospital in Northampton. He returned to the dorm on Monday.

This is the second such case since the inception of Orchard Hill three years ago when Chester Zabek also became a victim of the balcony windows. Zabek's case should have been warning enough to the housing authorities that more preventative measures had to be taken. Instead, small markings that soon weathered away to the point of invisibility were painted onto all balcony windows.

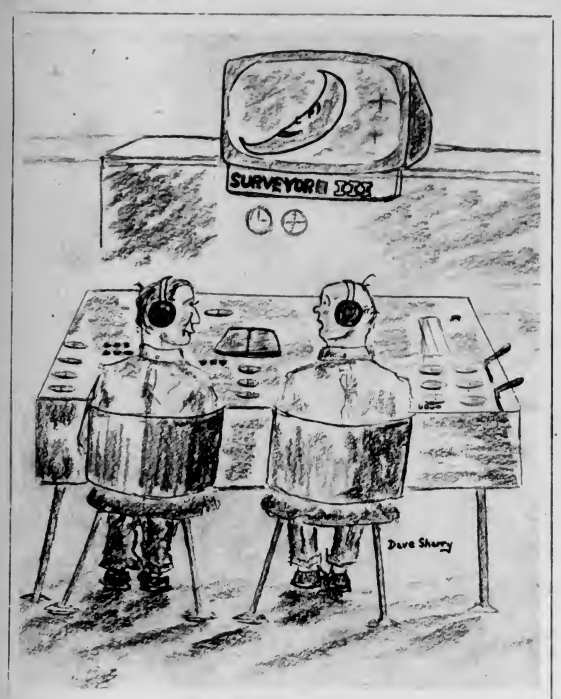
Perhaps Housing did not realize that nighttime renders these markings invisible— if they indeed there! Painting large more permanent markings on the windows would not only f ther endanger the Orchard re dents, but also insult their int ligence. The most obvious a regrettably expensive soluti would be the replacement of t present ordinary glass w wired plexi-glass, not only ma ing the pane more visible, b also reducing injury to a virtu impossibility.

The urgent need for positiv action on the part of the Hou ing Department has been ma self - evident. Unless rectifyin measures are soon taken, a further mishaps of this natu can be attributed to the extren and total negligence of the d partment in behalf of the O chard students.

Save for a few scars, Zabe and LaCroix miraculously e caped permanent physical dis bility; hopefully, it will not r quire the loss of a student's ey sight to effectively provoke i terest in the welfare of U Ma dormitory residents.

Martin M. Kenney '

(Reprinted from the Orchard Hill "HOBBIT")



Revelers Criticized

To the Editor:

Last Thursday night, April 13, the Revelers, allegedly an upperclass service organization, held a meeting in Room 204 at the School of Business Administration. When the meeting ended, the room was in shambles. Cartoons and doodles were drawn in red ink on table tops; the floor was strewn with cigarette butts and ashes; and tables and chairs were disarranged.

They were given permission to use the room only on the condition that they would be responsible for its use. The janitors in our building are busy enough. At least the Revelers could have cleaned up before they left.

Graduate Business Students

"Tell me it isn't true".

Drug Use and Student Values

Search for Meaning

by KENNETH KENISTON, Ph. D.

Among today's self-conscious college students, the statement, "I'm having an identity crisis" has become a kind of verbal badge of honor, a notch in the gun, a scalp at the belt. But although the term "identity crisis" can be easily parodied and misused, it points to fundamental issues of adolescence in all societies that are particularly heightened in our own society. Since academic pursuits, on the whole, tell the student so little about life's ultimate purposes, students are turned back upon their own resources to answer questions like, "What does life mean? What kind of a person am I? Where am I going? Where do I come from? What really matters?"

Obviously, our society does not attempt to provide young Americans ready - made and neatly packaged answers to these questions. Rather, we expect that students will, in general, arrive at individual solutions to the riddles of life, and indeed, we sometimes deliberately design our educational systems so as to provoke and challenge students to profound replies. Yet at the same time, we insist that students occupy themselves with getting good grades and getting ahead in the academic world, pursuits that often seem to have relatively little to do with "ultimate questions. Thus, students often feel obligated to turn away from their academic pursuits toward a private quest for identity or search for meaning.

To understand this search for meaning, we must recall that many of the traditional avenues to meaning and significance have dried up. Traditional religious faith is not, for most sophisticated undergraduates, a means of ascertaining the meaning of life: traditional religions often seem to students to be worn out, insincere, or superficial. Similarly, the great classic political ideologies, whether they be political liberalism, conservatism, marxism, or fascism, arouse relatively little interest among most undergraduates. Nor does the "American Way of Life," as epitomized by 100% Americanism and free enterprise, stir most students to enthusiasm, much less provide them with answers about life's ultimate purposes.

At the same time, many traditional campus activities have lost their centrality as guidelines for rehearsal of life's ultimate purposes. There was a day, when the quest for popularity seemed to a great many undergraduates, a reflection of a broader philosophy on life in which the most important goal was to make friends, to be popular and to influence people. Today, the pursuit of popularity and social success is declining in importance, and even those who pursue friendship and social skills most avidly are likely to recognize their limitations as ultimate values. Upward mobility, another ancient American goal, has also lost much of its savor. More and more students arrive in college already "ahead in the world," from well-situated middle class families, and not particularly worried about status and upward mobility. Nor does the old American dream of giving one's children "a better chance" make great sense of life to a generation that has been born and bred amid affluence, and that rarely imagines a society in which starvation, unemployment, or depression will be major possibilities.

One by one, then, many of the traditional sources of meaning have disappeared, at the very same time that academic life itself, because of its intense pressure and professional specialization, seems to many students increasingly irrelevant to their major existential concerns. Where, then, do students turn? Often it is to drugs.

Sam Spark Speaks Out

Open Your Hearts to Charity

This year, as you all know, July has been designated as "National Acne Distrophy" month. Now we all know why we're here, gathered at this convention amidst the plush settings of the Park Beach Hotel. These plush quarters are to cogently remind us of the largeness of our goal—and that goal is to ring every doorbell in the nation and get every American housewife to pour out her heart and her pockets for the great cause of Muscular Sclerosos of the External Organs.

By the time the teenagers of this great land have completed the noble mission of collecting contributions, we hope to have raised the grand total of $500,000. A half a million dollars — think of it gentlemen; think how much that can advance our cause!

Of course, we know too that all of this half million dollars cannot, unfortunately, go directly to medical research. We must allocate our upcoming annual operations expenditures. Treasurer Graught, could you please inform the assembly of the balance of our treasury.

"The balance reads: $3,709.91."

And what bills are outstanding, Mr. Graught?

"The cost of this convention, Mr. Chairman."

And what is the cost of this organizational weekend?

"3,708.91 for the hotel bill, plus $1.00 for the phone call you . . ."

Thank you Mr. Graught.

There you are, gentlemen. We are starting with a clean slate; no debts, no carryovers, no excess taxes. It will be a challenge, but our cause is primary.

Chairman of Budgets Tschietar, would you please present the proposed 1967 budget to this convention.

"Thank you, Mr. Chairman. The budget is divided into two sections: salaries and operational expenses. First, here are the salary allocations:

Chairman; Honorary compensation	$61,000
Vice Chairman; Honorary compensation	29,000
Treasurer; Honorary compensation	25,000
Secretary; Honorary compensation	20,000
Budgets Chairman; Honorary compensation	50,000
Publicity Agent; Professional services	13,500
Office Director; Honorary compensation	38,000
Poster Child; Charitable Donation	12,000
Sargeant-At-Arms; Honorary compensation	18,000
7 Advisors; Honorary Compensation @$15,000	105,000
100 Office workers; volunteer stipends @$500	50,000
	$421,500.00

Let us vote on accepting just this part of the budget. All in favor say "Aye". The section of the budget dealing with salaries is passed as reported. Mr. Tschietar, would you please continue with the rest of the proposed budget.

"Yes, Mr. Chariman. We have allotted $5,000 for office supplies, $15,000 for national publicity, $9,000 for collection envelopes, $17,500 for sclerosis buttons, $9,000 for sclerosis feathers, $500 for hospital tours and dramatic demonstrations, 790.09 for organizational coffee hours, and $18,000 for unanticipated expenses and miscellaneous. This brings the total year's budget to $496,290.09. I hereby certify that this budget has been cut at every possible corner, gentlemen, so help me."

Oh yes, Mr. Tschieter, we place our full trust in you, so help us. Alright, all in favor of passing the entire budget for 1967—our banner year — please say "AYE.' The budget is passed, and it is done so with the thanks of the entire convention to Chairman Tschieter.

Oh, I see we have a question from Mr. Ornest; yes, volunteer Ornest.

"Some quick mathematics — yields the interesting result that if we do collect $500,000, our net gain for 1967 after salaries and operational costs will be $3,709.-91. Doesn't this seem a bit miniscule?"

On the contrary, Mr. Ornest! When you consider the vastness of our operation, the details that must be worked out, the professional salaries that must be paid, and the devices that must be utilized that get the public to be generous, we are doing quite well to come out in the black.

And not only will we be coming out in the black, but we'll have just enough to meet again next year and plan for another banner year!

No, Mr. Ornest, I think 1967 will be a most profitable year for our organization; and the cause to which we have devoted our lives will indeed be greatly advanced.

This convention is adjourned.

THE MAROON KEYS . . .

(Continued from page 6)

plicant at ease with less pertinant questions.

The Maroon Keys also invited several University officials to be present at our interviews and also to take part in the interviewing.

I hope this letter has clarified our manner of selection, a few of our various activities, and presented an honorable picture which the Maroon Key Society, in reality, is.

Collegian Editors, so that you might be further enlightened as to our proceedings, we cordially invite you to attend our next series of interviews.

Stephen Kramer
Maroon Key

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS

The North American Yachting Association is soliciting summer job applications. Due to the results of a recent survey of sail and power vessel owners on the East coast, West coast, Gulf area and the Great Lakes, applications from college students or graduates are being accepted.

Employment for experienced as well as inexperienced young men and women of good character is available. Facility in cooking or child care is particularly helpful. Crewing affords the opportunity to acquire or sharpen boating skills, and visit new places while earning reasonable income in pleasant outdoor surroundings.

TO APPLY: Send NAYA a resume using the form below and your application will be reproduced and forwarded to over 3,000 owners of large craft.

NOTE: Our reproduction system requires that all resumes be clearly typed or printed using the exact format outlined below including each item with appropriate number (i.e. (1) John Doe (2) 1704 Main St.)

1) Name (2) Address (3) Phone no. (4) Age (5) School (6) Available from . . . to . . . in state general area(s) (7) Previous relevant experience (8) Two personal references (9) Preference (sailing or cruising, etc.) (10) Other pertinent facts (11) Two or more applicants wishing to work together, state this preference.

Send with $6 processing fee to:

North American Yachting Assn.
1427 Walnut St., Philadelphia, Pa. 19102

DEADLINE APRIL 22, 1967

FACTORY OUTLET

25 Market Street, Northampton

Sweaters for the Entire Family

Pullovers $6 to $11	values to $18
Ladies Cardigans $4.95	values to $7.95
Ladies Pullovers $3.95	values to $6.95
Cashmeres $11.95-$17.50	values to $30

MON. THRU SAT. — 10 AM.-5 P.M.
THURS. EVENING TIL 9:00 P.M.
Market St. is across from Jack August

AMHERST Cinema

Now Showing
TONIGHT ON SCREEN 6:50-8:50

SAT. and SUN.
1:15 - 3:15 - 5 - 7 - 9

Plus SELECT SHORTS

The Endless Summer
A BRUCE BROWN FILM IN COLOR

STARTS NEXT WEDNESDAY — APRIL 26

DAVID LEAN'S FILM OF BORIS PASTERNAK'S
DOCTOR ZHIVAGO

MAROON KEYS . . .

(Continued from page 1)

Carnival.

Dean retorted by saying that these services could have been performed by any group of people on campus and were not vital functions meriting the status that supposedly belongs to a member of the Maroon Keys.

The topic of discussion turned to the application procedure. Dean confronted Plantinga with the fact that eligible freshmen were not informed of the eligibility by post card or letter, according to the By-laws of the organization. He added that those applying were predominantly Greeks, having been strongly persuaded, in some cases, by their house brothers to apply. He went on to allege that publicity of application to eligibles, especially independents, was extremely inadequate. He cited the figures of this year's Maroon Keys applications which showed 15 independents out of 125 applicants.

Plantinga replied that the cost of mailing letters to all eligible freshmen was beyond the financial means of the Society, and added that those interested would respond to campus wide publicity. He said that the Society "didn't have time to go after students that weren't interested." He added that with the size of the campus and the limited number of Keys that this task would be impossible.

Dean again quoted the By-laws and said that "if no one on the Collegian editorial board knows what you are doing, there is something wrong." The editorial board is the body that voted approval for the editorial concerning the Maroon Keys.

Plantinga rebutted by saying that much of the work done by the Keys this year went unnoticed by upperclassmen, and that they worked for the freshmen, therefore it wasn't expected or necessary for upperclassmen to be informed on the activities of the organization.

Discussion on the By-laws continued as Dean asked if recommendations were asked for from people (housemothers, counselors, advisors, etc.) knowing applicants. Plantinga said that this was not done as the Keys did not have the time or personnel to carry his procedure out. "Admittedly the By-laws were not followed," Plantinga stated.

On the topic of the closed door interrogation sessions, Plantinga said that extensive detailed interviews were the only feasable means available for selection of qualified applicants. It had been alleged that certain questions used were extremely personal and were concerned with off-color matter. Plantinga stated that the unrelated questioning material was entirely in good taste and was interjected for the purpose of relieving a nervous or tense applicant by putting the interview on a more informal level.

Sen. Garjian confronted Plantinga with the statement that the action of the Maroon Keys with regards to selection procedures "blatantly violated the constitution."

Garjian added that the constitutional problem was brought to the attention of the Keys last year by the Student Senate Activities Committee and asked Plantinga why no action had been taken by the Keys on this matter.

The Maroon Keys President said that with completely new membership, causing doubt on the part of the new Keys with respect to their role in the Society and the added duties that came with Keys living in the dormitories for the first time, there was no time to consider the constitution. He added that he knew "this constitution should be revamped.

When asked if he felt the society was a club for Greeks, Plantinga said "no" adding that of the small number of the freshmen eligible according to the cume restriction many were pledging fraternities causing the high proportion of Greek applicants. He went on to say that he personally did not favor a Greek over an independent but rather favored that person who would make "a good Key."

Plantinga told the group that he was "worried that this article was a bombshell. There could have been repercussions." He said that the proximity of the editorial to the tappings at Student Leader's Night did not offer a chance for rebuttal.

He admitted faults but said "this overall criticism is unjust.' He went on to question the singling out of the Maroon Keys from other honor societies.

Dean replied that the opinions presented in the editorial were a concensus view of the COLLEGIAN editorial board and attempted to mirror campus opinion. He added that in the eyes of the board, the Maroon Keys seemed to be the most conspicuous in violating their constitution and the most nebulous with regards to their usefulness to the campus.

At a meeting of the Student Senate Activities Committee Tuesday night it was agreed to begin an investigation of the Maroon Keys Society, at the request of the COLLEGIAN board of editors.

William F. Field, Dean of Students, commented on the situation by saying that the paper is justified in asking for an investigation if they feel that violations have been made.

Chet Weinerman, Editor-in-chief of the COLLEGIAN said he feels "that the Senate is justified in investigating the Maroon Keys according to the complaints brought forth by the editorial board.

Gordon Davidson, former COLLEGIAN Editor-In-Chief said "the COLLEGIAN has served the proper function of a newspaper in pointing out abuses and situations which require investigation."

"FUNCTION AT THE JUNCTION"

Sponsored by the Afro-American Students of Univ. of Mass.

WHERE: Belchertown Town House
Route 9 — Belchertown

WHEN: April 22, 1967
7 P.M. — 12 A.M.

WHAT: Entertainment by Incorporated Soul
Semi-formal

WHO: Buy tickets from Paula Diggs

$3 per person
$5 per couple

225 Thoreau — 546-7440

MASS. CLASSIFIED

WANTED

Female roommate starting May 1. Pleasant living conditions call 253-9540 between 4:15 and 6:00 ask for Sally.

For Rent

Efficiency Apt.
¼ mile from campus
$95/mo. for summer
married couple
call—546-7368

AUTOMOBILES

1963 Vespa 150 cc spare tire, windshield.
1964 Lambretta 150 cc spare tire, windshield AL 3-7562.

1966 Corvette Coupe, Nassau blue, black int., 4-spd. 350 hp. AM/FM, 12,000 miles, Greenfield, 774-4664.

1960 Lambreta, new tires & cables engine excellent 150 cc, $90.00 Call William Brucken, 237 Baker, 546-6077.

WE GUARANTEE WE WILL — save you money on any new or used car purchased. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton.

'65 OLDS JETSTAR I 2 DOOR HARDTOP COUPE—Console. Bucket seats. Many accessories. Easily financed at Clarke Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from the Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! PRICES REDUCED — '65 PONTIAC Bonneville, 4-door Hardtop, Luxury interior, automatic, easily budgeted. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

FANTASTIC SAVINGS AT CLARK OLDS-PONTIAC—Try this '65 Olds 4-door hardtop. Luxury interior, vinyl seats, full carpeting, power steering and many fine extras. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

'64 CHEVELLE SITTION WAGON — BRONZE EXTERIOR—Luggage rack, V-8 automatic, power steering, standard for economy. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! '64 PONTIAC STATION WAGON — CATALINA on a wide track. Automatic. Priced to sell. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! '64 STARFIRE HOLIDAY HARDTOP Console, buckets, power steering and brakes, power windows. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

LET'S GET TOGETHER! '63 OLDS "98"—Excellent condition. Many extras, fine condition. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

INSPECTION TIME IS NOW HERE! Try this '63 Pontiac Catalina hardtop, excellent economy, fine condition, trade terms. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Opent o 9 p.m.

EVERY CAR IS UNDER WARRANTY! '64 JETSTAR OLDS "88" — Small economy V-8 that burns regular gas; 4-door sedan, low original mileage, name of owner given on request. Stop today at Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton, Open to 9 p.m.

AUTOMOBILE

U OF M SPECIAL! '64 CORVAIR MONZA 4 door hardtop, excellent for the college student, 4 speed on the floor; luxury vinyl interior. Priced right; Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

WIDETRACK CATALINA 4 DOOR HOLIDAY MODEL 8—'64 V-8 engine, radio. Immaculate interior, many fine extras. Priced to sell. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

'62 KOMBI STATION WAGON V.W. Camper, or utility wagon. Priced very reasonable at $795. Why not stop at Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

A FEW MINUTES FROM CITY HALL TO TOWN HALL CAN Save you more than $50. '61 Pontiac 2 door Tempest coupe; automatic, perfected shape for the price we are asking. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

CONVERTIBLE WEATHER IS HERE! '64 Chevrolet with V-8 engine, power steering & brakes; excellent top, Impala Model. Clarke Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

COMPACT CONVERTIBLE BY CHEVROLET—'63 Spider model 4 speed on the floor; excellent condition; bucket for young comfrt. Trade now at Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

'64 RAMBLER STATION WAGON "DELUXE" 700 model, electric rear window, roof rack, immaculate condition. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

$395 TAKES HOME TO FAMILY A GOOD RUNNING '60 Olds Super "88". Clark Motors, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton.

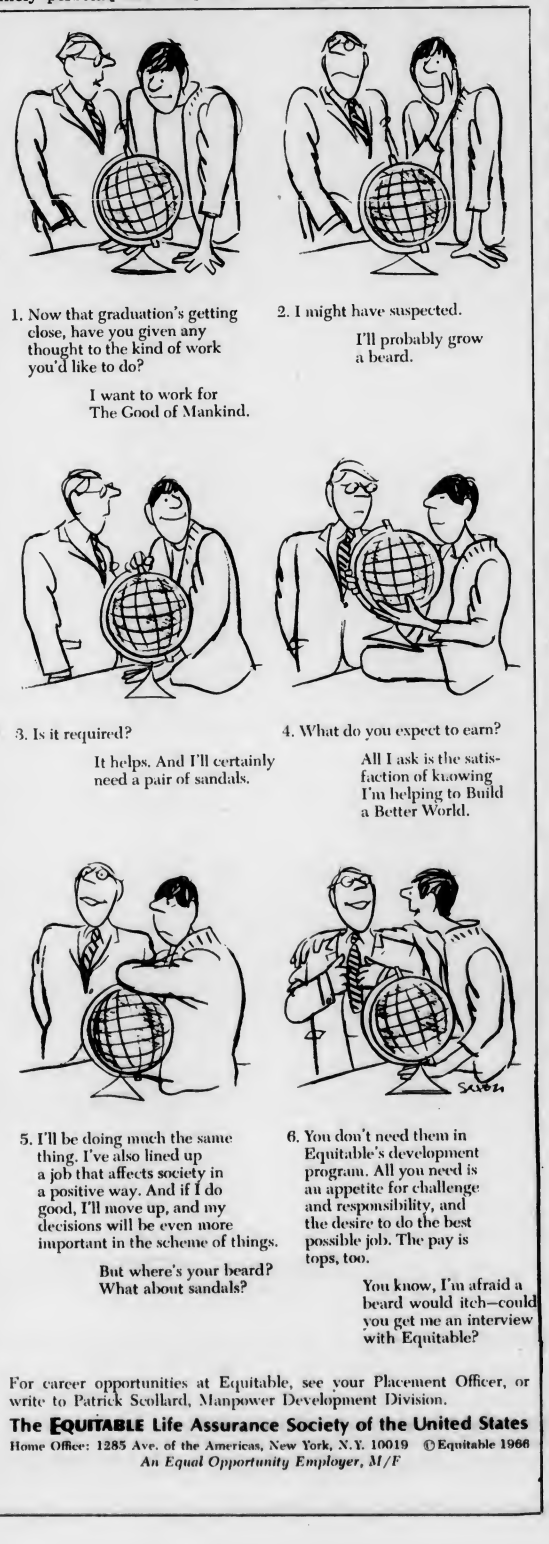
LOST

Glasses in Madras case. Margery Bancroft, c/o Tel. Ext. 5-2887 o 549-1258. Reward.

HELP WANTED

Tree surgeon. Unusual opportunity with good future, top salary. G & M Employment Service, 145 State St., Springfield, 739-1133.

OPPORTUNITIES



CHEMISTS
CHEM. ENGINEERS
GRADS OR IMMINENT

We have 3 jobs waiting

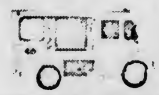
1. Field applications engineer, Chicago area after 6 mos. training.
2. Customer applications engineer, Worcester area.
3. Project Engineer R and D, the works, in the Worcester area—leads to supervisor.

G & M
145 State St., Springfield
Call Dr. DeFriesse, 739-1133

"Esperanto is so easy that after only two hours I could, if not write, at least read the language freely."—Leo Tolstoy. Learn the simple International Language at The Esperanto Club, Student Union, 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays

For career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States



Home Office: 1285 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019 ©Equitable 1966

An Equal Opportunity Employer, M/F

tuition worries?

Hood

End them all by selling Ice Cream this summer from a profit-proven mobile ice cream truck. You're on your own with a complete money-making program.

For further information or a descriptive brochure, call or write

MANLEY COLONIAL
A Subsidiary of H. P. Hood and Sons
492 Rutherford Ave. (rear),
Boston, Mass. 02129
(617) 242-5300

COMPLETE SERVICE
SAFE
MOVING
DEPENDABLE
STORAGE
EXPERT PACKING

Call
GLEASON
MAYFLOWER
Pearl St., Northampton
584-6413—for estimate

New Student Leaders

MORTAR BOARD 1967-1968

Myra Banner, Patricia Beaumont, Elise Bernier, Elizabeth Draper, Cynthia Hunt, Karen Kidder, Janis Farren, Patricia Matous, Sara Molofsky, Leslie Nadeau, Elizabeth Nevfeld, Bonnie Rehborn, Betsy Singer, Donna Yurko, Susan Taylor, Debra Tilden.

UNIVERSITY GUIDE SERVICE 1967-1968

Stephen Albernaz, Theta Chi; Vincent Barry, Beta Kappa Phi; Edward Bowe, Beta Kappa Phi; Thomas W. Byron, Theta Chi; James B. Cochrane, Kappa Sigma; Stephen M. Cohen, Alpha Epsilon Pi; Paul Donovan, Alpha Sigma Phi; Eric Dienstbach, Zeta Nu; John I. Fitzgerald, Zeta Nu; John Hannula, Q.T.V.; Stuart Hills, Phi Sigma Kappa; John Johnson, Phi Mu Delta; John King, Beta Kappa Phi; Clifford Kramer, Tau Epsilon Phi; Jeffery McCormick, Theta Chi; George Plantinga, Sigma Phi Epsilon; Robert Rosen, Sigma Phi Epsilon; Robert Schultz, Zeta Nu; Howard Shane, Tau Epsilon Phi; James Smith, Theta Chi; Ronald Sutherland, Lambda Chi Alpha, Thomas Walsh, Theta Chi.

NEW MAROON KEYS—1967-1968

James Wilkinson, Bob Mahoney, Wayne Eisman, James Riley, Bob Keating, Phil Goldberg, Don Vajcovec, Rick Wynn, Dick Pickett, Peter Murphy, James Audet, Irwin Novack, James Berk, Peter Schofield, John Langworthy, Buzz Masclanica, Bob Lewis, Edward Malmborg, Rick Ahearn, Howard Altman, Charles Ratner, Bill Bannick, Pat McKenna, John Ausikaitis, Bob Remar.

MOUNTAIN PARK
RTE. 5, HOLYOKE — GO WHERE THE ACTION IS
EVERY SAT. 8 P.M.
COLLEGE MIXER
2 BANDS
MONTY & DEL VISCOUNTS
SAT. APRIL 29
ROCKIN' RAMRODS

Spanish Intellectuals Subject of Lecture

Dr. Juan Marichal, Harvard University's noted authority on the literature and political history of Spain, will lecture on "The Role of the Intellectual in Contemporary Spain" Monday, April 24, at 8 p.m. in the University of Massachusetts Student Union Ballroom.

The lecture is presented by the UMass department of Romance languages and is open to the public without charge.

Chairman of the Romance language department at Harvard, Dr. Marichal was born in Spain and received his Ph.D. from Princeton University.

Best known of his publications is "La Voluntad de Estilo," described as a stimulating approach to several major Spanish authors.

PASS-FAIL . . .

(Continued from page 1)

The main problem raised concerning pass-fail as applying to required courses was the definition of "required course" as such. Did it mean courses in the core curriculum, departmental requirements, courses in a person's major field, or introductory courses in general?

The possibility was discussed of having courses where some students would be on a pass-fail system and others on the letter grade basis. What would be the perogative of a professor in allowing pass-fail students into his course? How would a freshman accept the pass-fail system, as he would be the one using it if allowed for required courses?

Dean McFarland commented that the pass-fail system requires a certain measure of maturity on the part of the student, and proposed that at first, the system be restricted to juniors and seniors electing non - required courses outside their major.

The Mayhew Rule was also proposed as a possible incentive to doing at least a minimum of work in a pass-fail course. This rule would mean that a grade of at least a C— would have to be attained in order to receive a pass.

There are many problems in instituting a pass-fail system in a university of this size. The ideas brought out at this meeting will be considered in drawing up a bill to be brought before the Faculty Senate, hopefully before the end of this semester.

SUNDAY CONCERT

The Art Farmer Jazz Quintet, just returned from a European concert tour, comes to Southwest Dining Commons #7 on Sunday, April 23 at 8:00 p.m. Presented by the Southwest Council, this concert is free to all Southwest residents and their guests.

Sutter's Sculpture To be Shown

James S. Sutter candidate for M.F.A. degree, will present his Graduate Thesis Exhibit at Main Lounge of Eugene Field House, April 23-29, with a reception on April 23, 2-5. This exhibit represents two years of work, while here at the University.

Mr. Sutter has received his B.A. degree at the University of Wisconsin, his M.A. degree at the University of Iowa.

This work consists mainly of sculpture (welded steel), Mr. Sutter's major. There will also be drawings and reliefs of bronze and polyester-resin.

Mr. Sutter has received exhibition awards and purchases at local and national shows, including the purchase by the Springfield Museum of Fine Arts, for its permanent collection.

"This is the smoothest I can get my naturally curly hair. Gorgeous, isn't it?"

(This is how Georgeanne Alexander looked before using CURL FREE. And these are her words.) "Girls with straight hair tell me I'm lucky to have natural curl. They just don't know! I leave the house with smooth hair...and get back home looking like curlylocks. In the winter it snows and—instant ringlets. And summer humidity makes my hair frizz up and go wild.

"I saw an ad for CURL FREE in a magazine. It said, 'I was a curly-headed baby, but baby look at me now!' The results looked marvelous. I would like to try it."

"Look what Curl Free did! So sleek—I can't believe it's me!"

"Oh...it's beautiful! I've always wanted straight hair. Now I've got it. And I did it myself with CURL FREE. Gee, I'm just like the ad: 'I was a curly-headed baby, but baby look at me now!'"—GEORGEANNE ALEXANDER.

Comb those natural curls right out of your hair with cool, creamy CURL FREE. Even if your hair is so tight and curly it puts up a real fight—it will surrender to CURL FREE. Just keep on using it and you'll see.

"CASIAC"...

(Continued from page 1)

members and assistant deans from several departments will be available to advise and inform students. A student will, then, not have to worry about finding his particular advisor available during the student's free time—he may walk into South College any time and find someone willing to help him.

Since a student does not have either a specific major, or a special advisor in Casiac, he will be free to discuss his courses and requirements with faculty from several departments. If a student wants information from a particular advisor or department, a co-ordinating secretary will be able to get him a specific appointment, which will eliminate long waiting lines on Counseling Day.

Since CASIAC is primarily interested in helping new students, it is hoped that students will declare a major and receive a particular advisor in his field before the second semester of sophomore year.

Eventually, Casiac may be expanded to give information and advice to upper classmen on such things as graduate schools and foreign study.

On Campus with Max Shulman

(By the author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!", "Dobie Gillis," etc.)

REQUIEM FOR A SQUARE

You, like any other lovable, clean-living, freckle-faced American kid, want to be a BMOC. How can you make it?

Well sir, there are several ways, none of which will work.

You're too puny to be an athlete, too lazy to be a valedictorian, and too hairy to run for Homecoming Queen.

As for becoming a best-dressed man, how are you going to buy clothes with a miser for a father?

Are you licked then? Is there no way to make BMOC?

Yes, there is! And you can do it! Do what? This:

Become a hippie! Get cool! Get alienated! Have an Identity Crisis! Be one of the Others!

How? Well sir, to become a hippie, simply follow these five simple rules:

1. Read all of Tolkien in the original dwarf.
2. Have your Sophomore Slump in the freshman year.
3. Wear buttons that say things like this:
   NATIONALIZE DAIRY QUEEN
   ASTHMATICS, UNITE
   LEGALIZE APPLE BUTTER
   HANDS OFF AIR POLLUTION
4. Go steady with a girl who has long greasy hair, a guitar, enlarged pores, and thermal underwear.
5. Attend Happenings regularly.

This last item may require some explanation, for it is possible that Happenings haven't reached your campus yet. Be assured they will because Happenings are the biggest college craze since mononucleosis.

A Happening, in case you don't know, is the first formless art form. Things just happen. For example, eighty naked men come out and squirt each other with fire hoses containing tinted yogurt. Then eighty more naked men come out and light birthday candles in the navels of the first eighty men. Then one girl, clothed, comes out and pulls three thousand feet of sausage casing through her pierced ear. Then eighty more naked men come out and eat a station wagon.

There is, of course, a musical accompaniment to all these fun things. Usually it is "Begin the Beguine," played by 26 trench mortars, a drop forge, and a rooster.

There used to be, some years ago, still another requirement for becoming a hippie: a man had to have a beard.

But no longer. Beards were worn in the past not so much as a protest, but because shaving was such a painful experience. Then along came Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades.

Today if you don't want to shave, well, that's your hangup, isn't it, baby? I mean when you've got a blade like Personna that tugs not neither does it scrape, what's your copout, man? I mean like get with it; you're living in the past. Shaving used to hurt, used to scratch, used to gouge, used to give you all kinds of static. But not since Personna. It's a gas, man. It's a doozy; it's mom's apple pie. You dig?

I mean, man, you still want a beard? Crazy! But you don't have to turn your face into a slum, do you? Shave around the bush, baby, neatly and nicely with Personna. I mean like Personna comes in double-edge style and Injector style too. I mean like any way you try it, you gotta like like it.

* * *

© 1967, Max Shulman

Hey, man, like how about doubling your shaving cool? Like how about wilting those crasy whiskers with some Burma-Shave? Like regular or menthol? Like have you got a better friend than your kisser? Like treat it right, right? Ye-ye!

Student Senate All-Stars vs Faculty Senate "Softies"

by PAT PETOW
Senate Reporter

"The Student Senate All-Stars wholeheartedly believes that they will out-hit, out-run, out-throw, (out-think) the aging aggregate put forth by the Faculty Senate. We dare them to show."

Such was the challenge thrown-out by Senator Harvey Stone (Gorman), the manager of the newly-formed softball team.

The affable senior hails from Marblehead, Mass.

Speaking for the Faculty Senate, Professor David R. Mayhew assured the Collegian that the faculty would be represented if he has to corral his colleagues in political science.

The game is scheduled for 1 p.m. tomorrow—Saturday, April 22—on the athletic field by Boyden.

Besides the purpose of improving faculty-student contact, the game's originators hope to "pass a hat" to raise money for Campus Chest. Credit for the idea belongs to Senators Sue Tracy (Hamlin) and Tim Cunningham (commuters).

Although not as many representatives from the female constituencies will play in the big game, they have provided tough competition for Stone's starters in the practices. Spirited cheerleading for the students is to be led by Senator Linda Shriber (Dickinson).

The Student Senate line-up: first base, Harvey Stone, Gorman; second base, Dave Hayes, Wheeler; third base, Tim Cunningham, commuters; shortstop, Jim Moran, Brett; shortfield, Frank Verock, commuters; left field, Larry Marcus, '69-at-large; center field, Bob Gaudet, Webster; right field, Mike Garjian, J.F.K. Upper; pitcher, Dick Zletz, commuters; and catcher, Paul Silverman, Hills South.

CONSTRUCTION...

(Continued from page 1)

of a study of this problem. He expects to have a tentative plan within two weeks. Some preliminary plans have been released.

Beginning next fall, all parking within the campus will be controlled. Check points will be set up to allow only authorized cars into the area. Lambert pointed out that at present there are many unauthorized vehicles being parked on campus. He feels this phase of the parking plan will eliminate this problem and reduce the amount of mass towing that is now required to control the parking situation.

The heavy equipment required in building construction generates noise. Students, especially those taking classes in Bartlett and Machmer will be subjected to the constant din.

When asked about this situation, Mr. Paul Meade of the University Planning Office said, "We realize that this problem exists and it will get worse before it gets better. We regret that the situation exists, but if we want to see UMass grow, everyone will just have to live with it".

If you're graduating this June, here's your chance to get a running head start in a successful career.

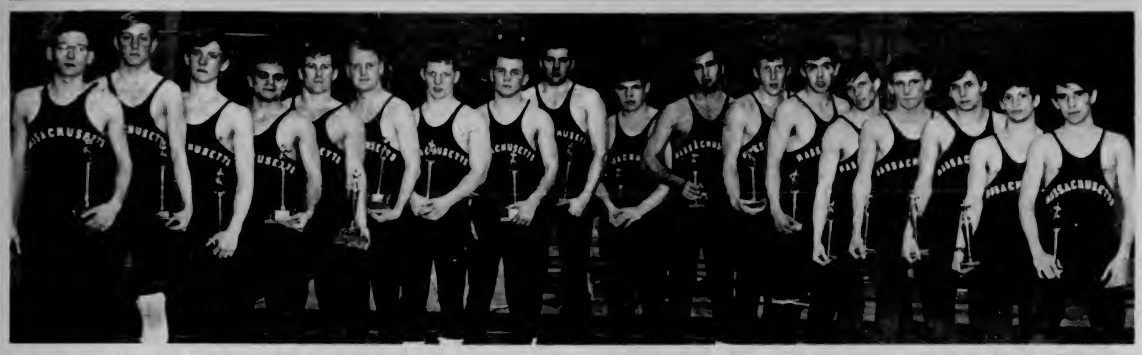
There's only one hitch: it will take eight months of your time.

But measured against results, these eight months could be the most advantageous ones you'll ever spend.

If you have the right qualifications—a B.A. or B.S. degree and a genuine interest in succeeding—you may be one of a select group of young men participating in the new Management Internship Program at Saranac Lake in the Lake Placid area of upstate New York.

This unprecedented program starts in early September and is sponsored by the American Management Association—the world's largest and foremost non-profit educational organization devoted to advancing and sharing the principles of sound management throughout the entire management community. Last year alone some 1,800 separate AMA educational programs were attended by more than 100,000 managers representing such diverse fields as business, education, labor, government, religion, public health, and the communications media.

Everything about the Management Internship Program is unique. The Management Center where you'll live and study is equipped with every recent technical advance in educational methodology. The faculty is drawn from the nation's most gifted and successful practicing managers. And the curriculum is tailor-made to the knowledge every beginning manager needs but few possess—including well-developed leadership skills... a sophisticated understanding of the interrelationships between business and other social and economic organizations... a thorough indoctrination in the various phases of management... and a firm grasp of practical business techniques.



In addition, you will have the invaluable opportunity to associate with the company presidents, labor leaders, government officials and other top-level administrators who participate in AMA's regularly scheduled meetings.

It's unlikely that there is a manager at work today who would not have welcomed a comparable opportunity to get a practical orientation in management before embarking on his demanding career. Can you afford to pass it up?

For further details on the Management Internship Program—including information on scholarships and fellowships—write to:

Dr. Robert I. Brigham

American Management Association, Inc.
The American Management Association Building
135 West 50th Street, New York, N. Y. 10020

INTRAMURAL WRESTLING FINALISTS—From left, campus champs are Bob Beck (128-lb.), Frank Reynolds (137-lb.), Bill Borowik (147-lb.), Bob Detore (157-lb.), Brian Domina (167-lb.), Fred Fitzpatrick (177-lb.), Tom Rose (187-lb.), Bill Dailey (Unlimited). Runnersup are Eric White (Unlimited), Joe DeSisto (197-lb.), Scott Stover (187-lb.), Bob Proudman (177-lb.), Kent Hubbard (167-lb.), Gary Burns (157-lb.), Ronald Marsh (147-lb.), Dick DelGallo (137-lb.), Tom Bates (128-lb.).

April Showers

The UMass golf team's match against Vermont yesterday was cancelled because the Orchards Country Club in Amherst was closed on account of rain.

* * *

Showers postponed the scheduled freshman baseball game at Springfield College Monday.

Tuesday's and Wednesdays Intramural Games were postponed because of rain

MIND OVER MATTER—Prof. Paul Norton, head of the UM Art Dept., is one who realizes the aesthetic quality of a squash court. He reigns as independent champ of this year's intramural squash program.

UMass Crew Earns Victory over A.I.C.

NORTHAMPTON—Before a group of 100 shivering onlookers, the UMass varsity crew breezed to an easy victory over A.I.C. here Wednesday.

A stiff, cold wind made rowing conditions, difficult, but the UMass crew was hardly pushed as it registered a time of 6 minutes 42 seconds over its mile-long course on the Connecticut River.

Rowing at a slow pace of about 30 strokes per minute, UMass gained a quick lead at the start and increased it throughout the race. Freshman and jayvee crews did not race.

Co-captains for the varsity, jayvee, and freshman crews were chosen prior to the A.I.C. meet. They are: varsity, Neil Patterson; junior varsity, Roger O'Donnell; freshmen, Kurt Betchick.

This Saturday, Coach Dave Clarke takes his boys to Middletown, Connecticut for a crucial meet with a powerful Wesleyan crew team. Last year, in the Rusty Callow Regatta, Wesleyan beat the UMass varsity by a scant 3 seconds to take second place behind victorious Amherst College. Needless to say, UMass is out to gain revenge against Wesleyan in what should prove to be a close race.

In its second year of active intercollegiate rowing, UMass has shown a marked improvement. For a crew that has been together only two years UMass is doing remarkably well in races against more experienced crews.

The placings of the freshman and jayvee crews in the Kerr Cup Regatta last Saturday as well as the varsity victory over A.I.C. on Wednesday are proof of the giant step UMass crew has taken in such a short period of time.

The placings of the freshman and jayvee crews in the Kerr Cup Regatta last Saturday as well as the varsity victory over A.I.C. on Wednesday are proof of the giant step UMass crew has taken in such a short period

UM Junior in Boston Marathon

'Heartbreak Hill Was Nothing'

by STEVE ROSS

In a world where football, basketball, hockey, and baseball stars are given sizeable scholarships or lucrative contracts, road-running remains as one of the last strongholds of true amateurism. Such an event is the BAA Marathon which offers little for the participant except self-glory. One such glory seeker was UMass' Sam Berry.

Berry, a junior engineering major from West Boylston ran in the grueling 26-mile, 385-yard classic Wednesday. He finished 149th in 3:00.33. It was his first attempt at the course. That proved to be a distinct disadvantage.

Without prior knowledge of the course, Sam picked a slow, steady pace, a pace he knew he could keep. After the first 17 miles he reached the toughest section of the course, four hills in Newton collectively called "Heartbreak Hill." For many "Heartbreak Hill" has been the end; for Sam it was the beginning. Sam felt, "The Hills were nothing."

He picked up his pace and passed more than a score of runners on his way to the finish at the Prudential Tower. Compared to the hills around here which he runs over quite frequently on his daily 10 mile excursions, "Heartbreak Hill" was relatively simple.

Sam felt that he was at a handicap running alone. Sam feels, "It is much easier running with someone of comparable ability that you know well so that you can set a good pace." Sam didn't have a pace setter.

One of the interesting things which marathon runners do is ask spectators for dates. One contestant invited a young coed to join him at the finish line for dinner. All this is done to fight the boredom and pain a 26-mile can create.

Sam claimed, "The crowd was a great help It encouraged every runner and offered such items as water, oranges and candy." Enthusiastic applause is given to all contestants by the more than 200,000 spectators. His reward at the finish was a beef stew dinner that according to Sam, "was definitely better than the dining commons."

(Continued on page 12)

earRING
in
the
SPRING
with
XANAD'EAR
#2 ALLEY AMHERST

She'd love to receive flowers!

from
Knowles Flower Shop
172 N. Pleasant St.
253 - 3805

THANK YOU
To all who supported
WAYNE THOMAS
in yesterday's election

TICKETS FOR THE
RAY CHARLES
H.E.R. CONCERT
GO ON SALE
MONDAY, APRIL 24
at the SU Ticket Office
$2.00 for students
$5.00 for others
Limit of 2 tickets per student ID

IFC PRESENTS:
1967 GREEK WEEK CONCERT
The Temptations
—and—
Jack E. Leonard

Sunday, April 23, 1967 $2.50
2:30 p.m. Curry Hicks Cage

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN
Sports
FRIDAY, APRIL 21, 1967 — Page 12 Vol. XCV, No. 66

Rested Nine Plays Two in Vermont

Showers Wipe Out Providence, UConn Tussles

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

After nearly a week-long rest thanks to typical New England spring weather, the UMass baseball team will be back in action today and tomorrow for a pair against Vermont in the tropical atmosphere of Burlington, Vt.

About an hour before Monday's scheduled home game against Providence, the skies opened up and washed out the contest. Wednesday's weather was not rainy, but four days of precipitation were enough to flood Connecticut's diamond and postpone that game.

The Providence game will not be rescheduled, so forget the Friars for this spring. The contest against UConn at Storrs has been shifted to May 16.

Vermont is coached by Ralph Lapointe, a former major leaguer whose occasionally unrestrained loquacity does not endear him to the umpires. The colorful coach is a fine baseball man, however, and his Catamount team is given a good shot at the Yankee Conference title.

So far this year, however, the veteran-packed Catamounts have not lived up to pre-season expectations. They were 4-4 on their Southern trip and started off their regular schedule with two losses to Connecticut, one of the teams they had to beat to cultivate their hopes for a trip to Omaha.

Much of UVM's early troubles can be traced to a nearly non-existant batting attack. Down South, the Cats batted a whopping .199 as a team, and further distinguished themselves a week ago by whiffing 19 times to Connecticut's Ed Baird in the Huskies' 5-0 shutout.

But when a team that went 11-6 returns loaded with lettermen, improvement is imminent If a couple of key sophomores come through, UVM will be heard from yet.

Pitching is Vermont's strong point. Len Sheflott has been outstanding so far, and UMass should see him today or tomorrow. John Packard, a senior who splits his duties between the mound and first base, is expected to pick up after a slow start. John McCord, the Cats' top winner last year at 6-2, should also see action.

ELLIOT KLEIN

ROY LASKY

Starters in U Mass infield.

The other two hurlers returning are senior Bruce Bovenizer and junior Don Schneider.

The Vermont batting order sorely misses graduated Bob Cronin, who hit .361 last year. But it still features a good number of veterans who should be hiting, and three talented sophomores who are.

The double-play combination consists of two sophs. Dave Lapointe, the coach's son and a UVM basketball star, plays short while Steve Kunken has surprised by capturing second. Lapointe, a switch hitter, is batting around .260.

Soph Terry O'Leary, a lefty, can pitch, play first and the outfield, and his .263 average led the team on the Southern trip.

Third sacker Billy Leete, a letterman, rounds out the Vermont infield.

In the outfield, letterman Dave Wayne was injured down South and is through for the season. Brad Stevens and Don Fitts, both returnees, fill two positions in the outfield and the third is juggled with the lineup.

Captain Rick Aldrich is the catcher, and Lapointe is depending upon him heavily to come through with the bat. So far he hasn't.

These are two crucial games for both teams. Vermont, 0-2 in the Conference, cannot afford to lose. But neither can the Redmen if they wish to overtake UConn.

UMass will go with its well-rested aces on the mound, John Canty today and Carl Boteze tomorrow. Today's encounter starts at 4 p.m., and tomorrow's game begins at 1.

Track Rained Out

The UM track team, which has all the luck was about to celebrate its first 'home' meet in three years Tuesday against Holy Cross on the Amherst College facility, but rains spoiled the party.

Racqueteers Drop Squeaker To M.I.T., 5-4, on Windy Courts

by STEVE ROSS

The UMass tennis squad was blown off the Boyden tennis courts Wednesday by the combination of the elements and M.I.T. The final score was 5 - 4.

Gust of winds up to 45 mph were too much for some of the competitors to cope with. Victorious for the Redmen were Co-captains Harvey Mednicov (No. 1), and Gerry Johnson (No. 3) and soph Scott Sheppard (No. 5) in the singles.

In the doubles Mednicov teamed with Andy Meagher for a straight-set victory, but UM was unable to pick up the decisive fifth point.

In the longest match of the afternoon, Al (Goose) Grosnick lost a three-hour marathon to M.I.T.'s Colwood Reisz, 7-9, 6-3, 6-3.

The Redmen travel to Durham tomorrow for a dual match with U N H. U Mass' record now reads 1 - 1.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Curt Adams

STELLAR SOUTHPAW—Junior Harvey Mednicov, first-seeded on the UM tennis team, delivers a backhand during his singles victory against M.I.T. Wednesday. UMass lost, 5-4, to even its record at 1 - 1.

Ball Lost in Mud

Redmen Lacrosse Team Upset by Middlebury, 7-5

by TIM KELLEHER
Staff Reporter

MIDDLEBURY,VT. — Playing under harsh field conditions, the UMass lacrosse team was upset by Middlebury College, 7-5, Wednesday afternoon.

Middlebury, which may not win another one all year, had only one goal credited to its attackmen in four previous losses. Against UMass the Panther attackmen had four goals.

In what was expected to be an easy victory, the UMass attack, which relies on speed and exceptional stick-handling, could never materialize on Middlebury's sea of mud. At one point, play had to be stopped while officials searched for a ball lost in the mud.

Under former UMass lacrosse star Joe Morrone the Panthers played a much better game than their record would indicate. Play opened up with a Panther score at 2:45 on a shot by Tom Harrington. Less than a minute later Jim Allen scored the second goal for Middlebury on a bouncer that fell through the UMass defense.

The Redmen were able to bounce back with a score of their own when soph Steve Connolly shot the ball in from the crease at 4:43.

Panther Pete Kirpatrick alluded several UMass defenders and scored at 8:30 on a screen shot from the crease. Dick Verge aided with an assist, and Middlebury led, 3-1.

UMass rebounded again on a shot by high-scoring Kevin O' Brien at 9:39. Goffman set up the play and was credited with an assist.

The Panthers pressed at the attack for the rest of the period but were unable to score, thanks to UMass goalie Bill Sinclair who slowed their momentum with several saves in a row.

Except for another score by Harrington at 0:32 with an assist from Dan Redmond, the Redmen controlled most of the second period. Connolly scored at 4:32 on the exact same play as his first goal to close the gap to 4-3.

Working from behind the Panther net, the Redmen tied the score at 4-4 on a shot by Gary Vassar, who swung in from the corner.

The third period was a stalemate as the mud severely hampered any scoring threats.

Middlebury had its share to score but good defensive work by Fred Foley, Ira Yavner and Walt Alessi kept the Panthers honest.

The final period was Middlebury's all the way. The Panthers opened up with only 58 seconds gone—on a shot by Howie Richmond. Richmond scored again with the same shot at 4:10, and the Vermonters led, 6-4.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Tim Kelleher

WHIRLING HERLING—UM defenseman Brad Herling maneuvers past Middlebury defenseman Bob Mygatt on his way to help set up score by Gary Vassar in the second period. Middlebury upset UMass, 7 - 5.

Middlebury all but killed the Redmen's hopes when Harrington bagged his third goal of the afternoon to produce a three-goal bulge. Howie Goffman fired the final score of the game on an assist from Bob Murphy at 11:31.

UM Crossemen Seek Revenge

After a disappointing loss to Middlebury, the UM lacrosse team travels to Tufts College in Medford hoping to even its record to 2-2.

The Jumbos, who win in overtime last year, 7-6, are out to even the series which stands at 6-5. With a 10-2 record from last year and only three starters gone, Tufts has a crop full of vets to go against the Redmen.

MARATHON . . .

(Continued from page 11)

There are many races Sam will compete in this summer including the New England Marathon at Holyoke but he wants to run in next year's Boston Marathon. If the conditions are right (50-55 degrees, little humidity, and no strong headwind) he would like to break two hours 45 minutes.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL (V)-vs. Vermont (at Burlington, Today, 4 p.m., and Saturday, 1 p.m.)

LACROSSE (V)-vs. Tufts (at Medford, Tomorrow, 2:30 p.m.)

TENNIS (V)-vs. New Hampshire (at Durham, N.H., Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)

TRACK (V) - Boston College Relays (at Chestnut Hill, Tomorrow, 1 p.m.)

BASEBALL (Frosh) - vs. Amherst (Home, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)

LACROSSE (Frosh)-vs. Wesleyan (at Middletown, Conn., Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)

NOW OPEN
DRIVING RANGE
GLACIAL PINES GOLF CENTER
MILL VALLEY ROAD
OFF RTE. 9
HADLEY, MASS.

SOVIET COSMONAUT DIES P. 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

SAM SPARK SPEAKS OUT P. 6

VOL. XCV, NO. 66 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, APRIL 24, 1967

Student Organizations Seek Withdrawal from RSO

SPA Now Operates Off Campus

by ED PARKER
Staff Reporter

Students For Political Action has voted to withdraw from the Recognized Student Organizations office in the wake of a conflict over control of funds, and election of officers.

Dick Shortt, Co-chairman of SPA, explained that RSO requires member organizations to deposit their funds with RSO, a move that his organization refuses to make. He claimed that RSO apparently reserves the right to "freeze" funds if actions of a member become anti-social.

Due to the political nature of SPA, RSO might take action should SPA engage itself in just such activities; and therefore, Shortt explained, the members voted to withdraw the group from RSO at last Thursday night's meeting.

The vote to withdraw followed a letter from Gerald Scanlon, RSO Business Manager, requesting that the Student Union Governing Board and the Student Senate take action against SPA in view of its failure to comply with RSO regulations.

Consequently Neil Whitman, SUG Board Chairman, revoked SPA's right to sell literature in the Student Union. After discussing the problem with Scanlon, Shortt still had no confidence in RSO rules and the organization's vote to withdraw followed.

According to Shortt, Business Manager Scanlon had expressed confidence that the Student Senate and RSO would not exercise its right to "freeze" funds, but that the Treasurer or Administration might direct such action.

In addition to finding RSO's demand to deposit its funds unacceptable, SPA has problems with election of officers.

According to RSO regulations, Shortt, a graduate student, is ineligible to hold office in any RSO organization. SPA holds that this is clearly an infringement on the democratic right of the membership to choose its leaders.

Although this part of the conflict began two months ago, Shortt stated that "no action by the Student Senate appears to have been taken in regard to the graduate student-RSO policy."

Student Senate President Jim Collins has announced a meeting involving Scanlon, the SUG Board, and a Student Senate committee this Thursday to discuss RSO's rules and SPA's problems.

SPA is now running as an off-campus organization. Further problems would arise, however, with SPA ineligible for free use of space within the Student Union building. Shortt argues that numerous other non-RSO organizations have used Student Union space free of charge in the past.

Still another problem is that Shortt, as a graduate student, does not pay a Student Activities fee although he does pay a Student Union fee.

"The withdrawal," Shortt affirmed, "has been made until arangements are made so that SPA can operate freely."

SPA members will be guests on PETE WARD'S Action '67 show on WMUA (91.1 FM) on Thursday, May 2 to discuss their organization and its goals.

Fine Arts Council Acts; Sets Budget at $54,000

by PETE WARD
Staff Reporter

In a recent meeting of the Fine Arts Council, several important steps were taken towards the Council's goal of a professional quality fine arts program at UMass.

By unanimous vote, Council members have agreed to seek a withdrawal of all its subgroups from the present system of Student Senate-constituted Recognized Student Organizations, (RSO). The groups to be affected are the University Bands, Chorale, Art Club, and Concert Association.

The Council intends to reconstitute these groups under itself. The reasons given for this proposed action are several.

Under the Council, these groups will be financed by the new Fine Arts student tax, which is administered separately from the Senate and the R.S.O. office.

In addition, the Council feels that the present RSO constitutions of several of these groups are unrealistic and restrictive.

The council hopes that under the new system, groups like the Bands will be able to operate more efficiently and realistically. To explore the proposed withdrawal, a conference will be held in the near future between the Council, Administration and R.S.O.

In other major action, budgets for '67-'68 for the Bands, Chorale and Concert Association were given final approval. Approximately $54,000 has now been omitted from the expected student tax fund of $69,000.00 to be collected next academic year. The Bands are alloted almost $25,000, the Chorale over $4,000 and the Concert Association $25,000.

All of these groups are open to student membership have Student Governments, and perform free to the University Undergraduates. Still to be considered for funds are the Art Club and "special" or "new" requests.

During the Bands budget consideration, several questions were debated and in one action, the Council decided to continue financing the Bands award system for another year, despite the fact that the Student Senate went on record as opposed to such a system last year.

The question of using student funds to finance picnics was decided in the negative by a 5-4 vote.

The council reported that it has had several responses to its need for a professional Manager and will be conducting interviews in the weeks ahead.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Bill Gleason

Kathy Sullivan of Kappa Kappa Gamma is crowned Queen of Greek Week 1967.

Greek Week Ends With Annual Concert

Comedian Jackie Leonard and the Motown sound of the Temptations were the highlights of the 1967 Greek Week Sunday concert.

After a 15-minute monologue by Leonard, the five-Greek Week Queen candidates were summoned. While finalists Jane Ludlow, KKG, Lynn Wells, ChiO, Deedee Deleeuw, SK, and Pat Dirse, ChiO looked on, Kathy Sullivan, KKG, was crowned queen of the Greeks.

The music of the Temptations, followed by a standing ovation, rounded out the afternoon.

Beginning with a medley highlighted by "Love Makes the World Go 'Round", they continued with such hits as "Beauty is Only Skin Deep", "My Girl", and "Not Too Proud to Beg".

Backed by a 10-piece band, the group sang and danced, bringing a finale to the Greek Week festivities.

Oftime guest on the former Johnny Carson Tonight show, comedian Jackie Leonard defies both Campus Police and the UM Fire regulation while dispensing his unique brand of humor.

At far right (below), the Motown sound of the Temptations is carried by their lead singer. Labelled by some as "out of sight!", the group coaxed a houseful of standing handclappers from the capacity crowd at the Cage.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Bill Gleason

IFC Still In the Black

by ED PARKER
Staff Reporter

In response to a report that the Inter Fraternity Council was bankrupt as a result of poor ticket sales for the Temptations — Jack E. Leonard Concert, an IFC member, Dave Claxton, scoffed at the suggestion that the IFC was in financial difficulty.

He explained that ticket sales were much below expectations. As a result each fraternity was assessed a share by being responsible for a number of tickets according to the number of brothers.

He added that although the IFC would not be able to collect the money until September, the organization is still legally solvent.

IMPORTANT COLLEGIAN STAFF MEETING

Attendance is Mandatory Thursday, April 27, 8:00 P.M. in the COLLEGIAN office

If you are not able to attend, please leave your name at the news desk by Thursday. Anyone wishing to join the COLLEGIAN staff may apply at this meeting.

THE EDITORS

Passover Begins This Evening

The Jewish festival of Passover, commemorating the liberation of the Israelites from Egyptian bondage and oppression, begins this evening at sunset.

The holiday commences with the Seder, a traditional meal highlighted by symbolic foods, prayers and songs.

Matzoh, the "bread of affliction," serves as a reminder of the haste with which the Israelites fled from Egypt. Fleeing, they were compelled to subsist entirely on the flat, unleavened loaves, sunbaked on rocks. Now, it is eaten all week.

The Passover season stands for religious freedom for all peoples.

Hillel will provide special meals for students on campus to celebrate the festival.

"A short surrealist extravaganza . . ." a scene from Brechts' "The Exception and the Rule."

FINE ARTS

Touring Co. Presents Play

A touring New York company will present Bertolt Brecht's "The Exception and the Rule" and "The Elephant Calf" on Tuesday, April 25, at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium at the University of Massachusetts.

Brecht wrote "The Exception and the Rule" in 1930, shortly after completing his "Threepenny Opera". It has been performed widely in Europe and was given its American premiere in the fall of 1965 at the Greenwich News Theatre in New York.

In the touring company that will appear at UMass are most of the nine players who took part in the successful off-Broadway run and who recorded the original cast album for Folkways records.

The touring production is staged by Isaiah Sheffer, producer and director of the off-Broadway play, with a score of nine songs and incidental music by Stefan Wolpe, a leading contemporary composer and an active participant with Brecht in the theatre life of pre-World War II Berlin.

"The Exception and the Rule" tells the story of a race through the desert by rival caravans seeking an oil concession. Alone and lost in the desert, a merchant from one of the caravans and his coolie experience a number of events built by Brecht's comic irony to a terrible and violent climax. It is a play about human relationships, about man's justification for killing other men, and about the difficulty of knowing and asserting the truth.

The companion play's full title is "The Elephant Calf, or The Provability of Every Contention." One drama critic has de-

(Continued on page 4)

PEACE CORPS

The Peace Corps is launching a special recruiting effort for Peace Corps programs in the South Pacific. The Governments of Western Samoa has requested Peace Corps Volunteers and there have been similar indications of interest from other countries in the South Pacific, particularly Polynesia. Brochures about the new programs and Peace Corps applications are available in the Placement Office.

Applicants for Admissions Increase For Incoming Freshmen Classes

by DON EPSTEIN
Staff Reporter

The deadline has passed; the decisions have been made. More than 100,000 high school seniors must now decide what college they will attend. Most seniors won't be attending what was originally the first, second, or third choice college.

The office of Institutional Research in Washington has conducted a quite thorough survey of the admissions dilemma at the 99 State Universities and Land Grant Colleges which currently enroll 30 percent of all college and university students. The survey reports that applications for freshman admissions in 1967 are running an average of 9.4 per cent ahead of last year.

Meanwhile Dr. William D. Tunis, Dean of Admissions at UMass, reported that this year his department has received 17,000 applications for admission as compared to 14,300 last year.

The Report states that the competition for admissions to State Universities is greatest in the Northeast. "The ten reporting Northeastern institutions, which includes UMass, have received 100,212 aplications for 27,950 places, or 3.59 applications per place.

On an average, the state institutions surveyed plan to increase their freshman classes by an average of six percent next fall. UMass officials expect next year's freshman class to be about the same size as this year's freshman class. Dean Tunis said that the number of entering freshmen is being held to the 3,000 level of last year because of the pressure coming from transfers at the junior class level from community colleges and other schools.

The survey also reports that one out of every seven state Universities and Land Grant Colleges expects to reject some qualified in-state applicants. There are still some state universities which accept all graduates of high school in their states. Of the 89 institutions surveyed, 13 expect to refuse admittance to in-state applicants who meet their minimum standards. Of these 13 schools, UMass has refused the most students who appear to be well qualified to do the work at UMass.

Some of the 13 institutions and the number of qualified in-state students they have turned away are:

The University of Connecticut 400
The University of Georgia 150
The University of Illinois 502
The University of Massachusetts 4,000
The University of Missouri 1210
Rutgers University 3,150
Pennsylvania State University 2,250

Dean Tunis said that of the 17,000 applicants, UMass accepted 6,000 in order to obtain a class of 3,000. He estimates that of the 11,000 who have been turned away, between 4,000 and 5,000 students are qualified to do the work at UMass.

Dean Tunis said, "Applicants to UMass are in an increasingly competitive situation. Better and better students are applying each year. This makes it rough on the good solid students who should have an opportunity to attend their state university."

The UMass News Bureau reported in a news release that in order "to demonstrate the new levels of competition, Dean Tunis selected at random 50 graduates from the class of 1964 who have gone on to secure good jobs. Applying the criteria used to admit them against the standards used when the Class of 1968 was admitted, Dean Tunis found that 28 of the 50 graduates wouldn't have been admitted four years later."

The Institutional Research report states that "the competition among out-of-state students seeking to attend state universities is considered extremely rough.

Eight institutions, all of them East of the Mississippi River, received at least six out-of-state applications for every out-of-state freshman they plan to admit. The most 'competitive' in this category is the University of Massachusetts, which received 3,700 out-of-state applications for 200 available places, or 18.5 applications per place.

In comparison the University of Connecticut has received 8.8 out-of-state applications for every available place.

The ratios become smaller but still reflect highly competitive situations for out-of-state students when narrowed down to "qualified" out-of-state applicants compared to available places. UConn has refused 6.25 qualified out-of-state applicants for every one it has accepted. UMass has turned down 5 qualified out-of-state applicants for every one accepted. For the class of 1971, UMass has refused 1000 well qualified out-of-state applicants.

Out of all six New England State Universities UMass has the lowest percentage of out-of-state admittance. The National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges supplies the following percentage of out-of-state freshmen admitted in 1967.

UMass	6.7%
UConn	12.1%
U.R.I.	22.6%
U. Vermont	37.4%
U.N.H.	27.7%
U. Maine	19.8%

The major reason cited for the rejection of such a large number of entering freshmen is housing shortages and classroom shortages.

However the situation isn't all bad. The University of Arizona expects 5,000 freshmen this fall, but had received fewer than 1,000 applications in March. Texas Southern University expects 1,000 freshmen, but had received fewer than 400 applications in March.

Other Colleges

The admissions picture wasn't much brighter for high school seniors applying to Amherst, Mt. Holyoke, and Smith College this year.

Eugene S. Wilson, the Dean of Admission at Amherst College, told the Collegian that his office had received 2138 applications for admission for next year's freshman class. Amherst has accepted 408 students for an entering class of 300.

Amherst has received applications from 41 states and six foreign countries. One-third of next year's freshman class has been awarded financial aid.

Of the 408 men accepted at Amherst, the largest number, 59 come from New York; 54 come from Mass., while 41 come from Conn. Most of those high school seniors accepted at Amherst rank in the top 10% of their senior class. For the past several years the average verbal score on the college boards has been 650 for entering freshmen while the math score is 700.

Two-thirds of those admitted at Amherst come from public schools, the other one-third comes from private schools.

Miss Clara Ludwig, the Director of Admissions at Mt. Holyoke, told the Collegian that out of 2,602 applications which her office has received, 845 girls have been accepted for an expected freshmen class of 490.

Mt. Holyoke reports that about 80% of the girls admitted have ranked in the upper 10% of their

(Continued on page 9)

What's Happening?

by RICH MORAN and "NORMA"

COLLEGIAN
If You See News in the Making Dial
545-2550

CLARK-PONTIAC . . . .
HAS NOW IN STOCK
THE NEW MAGNIFICENT FIVE Firebirds

SALE Now in Progress !!

Also GTO's — CATALINAS — BONNEVILLES
GRAND PRIX — LeMANS — EXECUTIVES

ALSO – F'85's – 442's – Delta's
Toronado's – 98's

CLARK- OLDSMOBILE - PONTIAC
32 UNION ST., EASTHAMPTON
Across from Post Office

Car Rentals Daily Basis — Long Term Car Leasing

SENIORS

Got Something to Say?

For the first time in the history of the University, a graduating student will have the opportunity to speak at commencement. Every member in good standing of the class of 1967 is eligible for this honor.

Are you capable of representing your class at this time? Are you willing to put forth the time and effort to construct a worthwhile address?

Applications and further information are in the RSO office. Topic titles must be submitted by Wednesday, April 26.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who voted for me and to urge their support for Bob Joyce for Class President.

JONATHAN EDWARDS

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

Vietnam

GEN. WILLIAM C. WESTMORELAND, U. S. commander in Vietnam, addresses the annual Associated Press meeting. In a panel discussion, Sens. Charles H. Percy and Harry F. Byrd call on Asian countries to send in more troops.

* * *

U.S. PILOTS get their 40th MIG over North Vietnam and claim another probable.

National

HOW IS James R. Hoffa taking prison life? A Lewisburg Penitentiary source says the convicted labor leader looks good and is cheerful and obedient.

* * *

RESIDENTS of tornado-ravaged northern Illinois clear the rubble, salvage what they can, and prepare to bury their dead.

* * *

TWO SOVIET intelligence officers get a parcel of maps and papers marked "top secret" just as they are about to leave the United States. But it's just a joke.

* * *

ALABAMA'S former governor, George C. Wallace, the South's outstanding segregationist, is thinking of heading a third-party ticket in the 1968 presidential race and believes, if he does, it would hurt the Democrats more than the Republicans.

International

PRESIDENT JOHNSON in Bonn for Konrad Adenauer's funeral, sees Chancellor Kiesinger.

* * *

THE SOVIET space traveler completes his first day amid unconfirmed reports a second will be sent up for a linkup.

* * *

KING CONSTANTINE is reported still defying the military leaders who took over the Greek government.

* * *

WASHINGTON

EARLY RETURNS in Teamsters Union balloting go against contract ratification. Some Chicago firms call a lockout.

* * *

THE NATION is on the verge of a railroad strike because of a collective bargaining failure, administration officials say.

* * *

A NEGRO congressman says Adam Clayton Powell has little chance of being seated unless he gets to work on his own behalf.

* * *

THAILAND has bid for U.S.-made surface to air missiles amid warnings at the SEATO foreign ministers' meeting that Communist subversion is continuing in Southeast Asia.

Massachusetts

RESEARCHERS from the Massachusetts Department of Public Health say they have developed a new antitetanus vaccine that is safer and more effective than the present serum now in use.

AP WIRE STAFF
EDITOR: Richard S. Kline
STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Rouperian
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini

Small Tribute

Boston Record-American

Johnson Confers Briefly

BONN, Germany (AP) — President Johnson met with West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger and President Heinrich Luebke today but postponed meaningful talks on problems between their governments until after the funeral of Konrad Adenauer.

"These were pure courtesy calls," said a White House spokesman. "There were no substantive discussions."

Presumably Johnson and Kiesinger will get down to business at another meeting scheduled Wednesday, the day after Adenauer's state funeral.

Johnson expressed to Luebke and Kiesinger American sorrow and his own personal sense of loss at the death of Adenauer.

His 40-minute conversation with Luebke also ranged over German-American relations and mutual security questions which have arisen since the end of World War II. Luebke also told Johnson that during his recent Asian tour he had found understanding for the American position in Vietnam.

Johnson told the West German president that Adenauer's death was not only a loss to the German people but to the entire free world. He said he had had many exchanges of views with Adenauer and that he had profited from all of them.

Johnson also expressed respect for the German people and for their fortitude in rebuilding Germny after World War II. He said as vice president and later as president he had worked with three West German chancellors and that he appreciated the good relations between the two countries.

Johnson arrived Sunday night from Washington. His schedule today also included lunch with U.S. Ambassador George C. McGhee and top members of his staff and a call on Adenauer's family.

He also had an appointment with ex-Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, who lost his job last November after Johnson insisted on West German fulfillment of promises to buy enough arms in the United States to offset the cost of foreign exchange of maintaining U.S. troops in Germany.

Neo-Nazis Gain In Elections

KIEL, Germany (AP) — The National Democratic party — NPD—described by its critics as a Nazi-style group, boasted of membership in five of West Germany's 10 state legislatures today after elections in two more states.

The NPD won 4 of the 73 seats in the Schleswig-Holstein and 4 of 100 in the Rhineland-Palatinate. The new party won seats last November in Bavaria and Hesse and four of its members function as deputies of the Germany party minority group in Bremen.

The Christian Democratic party of Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger won 34 seats in Schleswig-Holstein and 49 in the Rhineland-Palatinate, still short of a majority although the strongest party in both states.

MIG Jet Airfields Bombed by U.S. Planes

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force and Navy planes made their first attack of the Vietnam war today on MIG jet airfields in North Vietnam, while some 20,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops made a massive assault on three Communist jungle redoubts in War Zone C.

A U.S. command spokesman said U.S. Air Force F4C Phantoms hit one North Vietnamese airfield at Hoa Lac, 19 miles west of Hanoi, while Navy A4s and A6s hit a second jet field at Kep, 37 miles northeast of Hanoi.

Pilots reported both missions were successful, U.S. headquarters said, but there was no report of the damage.

Elsewhere in the ground war, U.S. Marine and Army infantrymen clashed repeatedly with scattered enemy forces in South Vietnam's threatened northern provinces. The U.S. command reported 91 enemy dead.

The new escalation in the air war came after a week of unusually heavy MIG activity in which U.S. fliers claimed to have shot down two of the Communist jets and said they probably got five others. The loss of one U.S. plane to MIG's also was reported.

Advocates of an intensified war against the North Vietnamese have long advocated attacking the MIG fields around Hanoi, contending while the number of U.S. planes lost to MIG's has not been high, their presence has often reduced the efficiency of American attacks.

Strategists who opposed attacking the fields argued that the effect would merely be to drive them north of the Chinese border to fields in Red China, and the result might be a clash between U.S. and Chinese forces if attacking Red planes were pursued north of the border.

EXTRA

COSMONAUT DIES

MOSCOW (AP)—Cosmonaut Valdimir Komarov has perished in completing the test flight of spaceship Soyez I, Tass announced today.

The 40 year old cosmonaut took the spaceship into orbit Sunday in his second venture into the void.

There had been official silence since a report earlier today by the official news agency Tass said Komarov was well and the spaceship was functioning. This had led to speculation that something had gone wrong.

It was the first time that the Soviet Union reported a death of one of its cosmonauts.

Moscow television and radio in a simultaneous broadcast said the cosmonaut was killed during the landing of the spacecraft. They said ropes of the parachute, meant to soften the landing, twisted and it hit with great force.

Incomplete Returns

Teamsters Against National Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — Incomplete returns in voting by Teamsters Union members on a new national contract with the trucking industry were running against acceptance of the agreement today.

Although an official tally was not expected from the union's national headquarters here until later in the day, unofficial totals from some two dozen locals in all parts of the country early this morning had 16,000 voting against the contract and 10,000 in favor of acceptance.

If ratified, the three-year contract would affect 450,000 drivers and other employees of 12,000 trucking firms.

Even as the voting was going on, five associations of truckers in the Chicago area brought a lockout against the Teamsters because of scattered strikes which they said made it impossible to continue operation.

The Chicago employers said the union was trying to pressure them into giving a raise higher than that of approximately 70¢ an hour over three years in the proposed national contract.

Teamsters locals in the Chicago area are refusing to be bound by the national contract.

A spot check indicated that most trucking firms in the five associations stopped operations at midnight Sunday night, the announced starting time for the lockout.

In Washington, a spokesman for Sec. of Labor W. Willard Wirtz said the Labor Dept. would have no comment on the lockout "until we get more details."

There was no immediate indication from the union's top officers, spokesmen for the employers or federal officials as to what the next step would be if the national contract were rejected.

Its terms were put together in Washington amid indications that the U.S. might be about to experience its first nationwide trucking strike. When tentative agreement was announced early Apr. 12, federal mediators hailed the development of "a real case of collective bargaining."

King Reveals Peace Drive

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King says he is sponsoring a "Vietnam Summer" project aimed at halting "one of the most bloody, futile wars in U.S. history."

He described the project Sunday as a "most necessary program that may well determine the destiny of our nation," and said "we must go all out to build a powerful peace bloc."

King made the announcement at a news conference with the noted pediatrician Dr. Benjamin Spock, and Robert Scheer, editor of Ramparts magazine.

The program will parallel the 1964 civil rights movement, according to Chester Hartman, assistant professor of Harvard's department of city planning and acting executive director of the Vietnam Summer project in Cambridge.

He said 10,000 volunteers will be sought to conduct the nationwide program. They will be trained by a staff of 200, most of them "experienced civil rights and peace organizers." A drive to raise $700,000 has begun.

King and the other leaders were greeted by cheers, applause and sign-carrying opponents during their visit. Shortly before King spoke Sunday night at Boston, Jordan Hall was searched after police received a bomb scare telephone call. Nothing was found.

"There comes a time when silence is betrayal," King told newsmen. "The war in Vietnam is doing much more to damage the civil rights cause than my standing up against the war."

All Under One Roof

Administration Building Due to Open

by EUGENE BURGIN

Broken glass windows, split white accoustical tile, and streams of black electrical wiring lie strewn across the floor while workmen's spring jackets hang neatly on nails banged into two-by-fours against the wall.

This is the scene of the nearly completed Administration Building located on old Alumni Field.

According to Planning Officer Jack Littlefield and staff assistant Mead, the $3 million edifice is due for completion by May 15. Originally scheduled to open on March 1 and then the first week in April, progress was hampered greatly by unusually late winter weather conditions.

As stipulated in the appropriations, the massive concrete structure is to be named the Phillip Whitmore Memorial Building after the late Sunderland State Senator, a friend of the University and former member of the Board of Trustees.

Moving into this new building will be administration offices from South College and Machmer, Draper and Monson Hall. Included in this group are the president, provost, secretary, treasurer, all deans of students, personnel officers and members of the business, mailing and central duplicating offices.

Mead, commented: "For the first time since the early stages of the Massachusetts Agriculture School all administrative functions will be housed under one roof."

Having had recent problems with its computer, the University will be receiving a newer and larger IBM 360, which will be housed in the lower floor of the new administration building. The old 1401 will be returned to IBM when the new one is completely operational.

What will become of the vacated offices? South College and Machmer Hall will house all faculty offices of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Draper Hall will become the home of the faculty of schools other than the Arts and Sciences; while Monson Hall will be the headquarters of the graduate School.

Both South College and Machmer personnel must be transferred to the new Whitmore Building before the end of the semester so the various departments may set up their new faculty offices in the vacated buildings.

Most of the office moving will be done by the UM maintenance department with additional help from students in the summer. Mead considers the move as "a little greater in volume than any other in the past couple of years".

The major architectural firm is Campbell, Aldrich and Nulty of Boston, while the general contractor is O'Connell's Sons, Inc, of Holyoke.

Behind the massive walls and windows is an attractive and functional interior. The many corridors which run throughout are lighted by both flourescent bulbs and the natural sunlight for which the tilted window walls were designed.

Most of the offices are partioned on moveable slide tracts for greater convenience if a room ever needs changing.

A year-round touch of spring will be added in the form of a quadrangle including trees, shrubs, flowers and benches along with an electric heating pad beneath the cement to keep snow from piling up.

Smith College to Hold Festival of the Arts

by EUGENE BURGIN

The ninth annual Festival of the Arts will be held at Smith College from April 24 to May 3. It will include a rich variety of exhibitions, readings, lectures, discussions and a concert. The public is invited to attend all of these events.

Benjamin DeMott, chairman of the English department at Amherst College, will deliver the keynote address. His lecture, which is entitled "Pictures, Poems, Movies, Classrooms . . . ," will take place in Wright Hall on April 24, at 8:00 p.m.

Student art work in all media from the current year will be shown in Wright Hall during the Festival. In addition, there will be an exhibition of books on American Art at the William Allan Neilson Library from April 21 through 28. It will feature works by the writers and speakers who will be guests of Arts Festival.

—On April 25, there will be a concert and discussion of contemporary American music. Edtemporary American music. Edwin London, assistant professor of music at Smith, will serve as moderator. Works by Alvin D. Etler and George J. Burt of Smith College and Philip T. Bezanson of the University of Massachusetts will be played at the concert which will take place in Sage Hall at 7:30 p.m.

—On April 26, Fred Chappell, author of "The Inkling" and "It's Time, Lord," will read from his own work at 2:30 p.m. At 8:00 that evening, Robert Watson, author of "Paper Horses" and "Advantages of Dark," will read some of his poetry. Both readings will be given in the Browsing Room of the William Allan Neilson Library.

—On April 27, Fred Chappell, Robert Watson and Ronald Hindmarsh, a lecturer in English at Smith College, will conduct a panel discussion on student writing. This event will be held in McConnell Hall at 2:30 p.m. At 8:00 that evening, Mrs. Randall Jarrell will read excerpts from her late husband's poetry in Wright Hall.

—On April 28, there will be a faculty-student reading of the play, "MacBird" by Barbara Garson at 4:30 p.m. in Sage Hall 2.

—On April 29, Amherst and Smith College students will read poetry at 4:15 p.m. in Wright Hall Common Room. This reading is being sponsored by The Grecourt Review, the Smith literary magazine.

—On May 1, Robert Francis, author of "Come Out into the Sun," and Donald A. Junkins, author of "The Partridge and the Sunfish," will read from their own poetry in McConnell Hall at 4:20 p.m. At 7:30 that evening, Richard Earle, writer and producer of TV commercials, will speak on "Film for the One Minute Medium: Award winning TV Commercials." Mr. Earle's talk, which will be accompanied by a moving picture, will take place in Wright Hall.

TOURING COMPANY . . .

(Continued on page 2)

scribed it as "a short surrearist extravaganza . . . a kind of sideshow based on pure clowning." New music for "The Elephant Calf" is by Arnold Black, music director for both plays.

Both plays are translated by Eric Bentley, who has adapted more than a dozen Brecht works being produced all over the English-speaking world. Bentley is general editor of the Grove Press edition of Brecht's work and the author of many critical works.

The two plays are presented at UMass by the University Concert Association. Tickets are available at the Student Union Office or at the performance.

These six White Sisters of Africa will play a variety of instruments at the Newman Center Tuesday. Pictured are a reed shaker from Kenya, two small drums from hollowed logs and animal skin cover, and a hollowed out gourd covered with cow's hide.

Singing Nuns Present Newman Center Concert

Tuesday at 7:00 p.m. the White Sisters of Our Lady of Africa will participate in an African Mass at the Newman Center. There will be a discussion with slides and African folk songs following in the Recreation Hall.

Better known as the White Sisters of Africa, the Sisters are an international institute founded in Algeria to work solely with African women in their native environment. To this end, they who come from all over the Western Hemisphere and Africa as well, have opened schools, social centers, hospitals, clinics, dispensaries and leprosaria.

The White Sisters are, likewise, engaged in the training of African Sisters to work among their own people. In order to carry on their work more effectively, the Sisters use the native language, customs, foods and art forms.

Currently the Sisters are engaged in a speaking and singing tour of college campuses. Their chief aim in singing African songs is to share with our American people the culture of a foreign country, stimulate their interest and concern for these people, and obtain from them their spiritual and financial help. Without these, the work of the Church in Africa could not progress.

FINE ARTS

Amherst College One-Act Plays

Friday and Saturday nights, students in a directing class at Amherst College were given an opportunity to display their various talents in a presentation of four one-act plays.

"The Informer", written by Bertolt Brecht and directed by Daniel Goldstein, '69, was the least enjoyable of the four plays. The play was intended to dispel the Nazi myth of Aryan superiority. The final product lacked the suspense necessary, and the actors appeared to be somewhat unprepared in their roles.

George B. Shaw's "Passion, Poison, and Petrifaction" was given much better treatment. Although the play seemed to have been a product of Shaw's college days, some scholars have called it the first absurdist play. In any case, the actors seemed to be more comfortable and romped (literally) through the production with ease. The director, Barry Keating '69, seemed aware of the author's intentions and did a tremendous job with the difficult blocking involved.

Marcus Parsons, with Pirandellos "The License", did an excellent job creating the atmosphere needed to tell the story of a man believed to possess the "Evil Eye". His actors, with the exception of some rather unconvincing "lawyers", are absorbed in this tragedy of a man trying to get a license to gain recognition as the possessor of the evil-eye in order to get money for his family.

The final production was that of writer-comédienne Elaine May. "Not Enough Rope", directed by David Stewart '68, is the story of a young woman living a lonely life in a boarding house who decides to borrow some rope from a handsome new neighbor to hang herself. Her plight is only aggravated by his complete disinterest in her intentions. Mr. Stewart handled this difficult play very well and accomplished the transition from comedy to tragedy with the utmost ease.

Next weekend another program of one-act plays will be presented including Chekhov's "The Boor", "The New Tenant" by Ionesco, and "Escurial" by Michel de Ghelderode.

—Christine Crowley

GEORGE WEIN Presents the 14th annual
NEWPORT JAZZ FESTIVAL
JUNE 30 thru JULY 3, 1967
at Festival Field • Newport, Rhode Island
Count Basie, Dave Brubeck, Charlie Byrd, John Coltrane, Miles Davis, Dizzy Gillespie, Woody Herman, Earl Hines, Herbie Mann, Modern Jazz Quartet, Thelonious Monk, Wes Montgomery, Olatunji, Preservation Hall Band, The Blues Project, Buddy Rich Band, Max Roach, Sonny Rollins, Nina Simone, Willie "The Lion" Smith, Joe Williams, Sarah Vaughan, and many others.
Four Evening Concerts — Friday thru Monday
Afternoon events: Saturday, Sunday, Monday
Opening Night Friday — "Schlitz Salute to Jazz"
Tickets: $2.50, 3.50, 4.50
Other Evenings: $3.50, 4.50, 5.50 (All Box Seats: $10.00)
Afternoon General Admission: $3.00
THE NEWPORT FOLK FOUNDATION Presents the NEWPORT FOLK FESTIVAL
JULY 10 thru JULY 16
Four major evening concerts Thursday through Sunday, Children's Day Wednesday, Craft demonstrations, daily Workshops; Monday and Tuesday devoted to American and International Folk Dance; Tuesday evening, folk tales, anecdotes, story telling and instrumental music.
Evening Tickets: Thurs., Fri., Sat., Sun.: $3.50, 4.50, 5.50
(Box Seats $10.00)
Mon., Tues. Eves. & Afternoon Events: $2.00 General Admission
— Group Rates Available
• All Programs Subject to Change
For information and tickets regarding all Newport Festivals
Write . . . Newport Festivals, Newport, Rhode Island 02840

WMUA Election Coverage Presents
CLASS CANDIDATES NIGHT
Wednesday, from 8:00 - 11:00 p.m.
Hosted by ACTION "67's"
Pete Ward & Pres. John Mullin
At 8:00 — The 1970 Presidential Candidates
At 9:00 — The 1969 Presidential Candidates
At 10:00 — The 1970 V.P. Candidates
KEEP UP WITH THE CAMPUS ON WMUA 91.1 FM

SUMMER POSITIONS

There are summer jobs available in the Boston-Roxbury area with the Boston Redevelopment Authority. Jobs entail exterior painting, and minor repair work plus certain interior work in some 50-60 houses. Also desired would be counselors to supervise a recreational and cultural enrichment program for local community children. If interested check with Mr. Siegrist to sign up for an interview which will be held here on campus on May 3, 1967.

Sincere thanks to all my supporters. Please vote in the finals.

—BOB JOYCE

Richard Kim to Teach Writing Workshop

The University of Massachusetts summer writing workshop on Nantucket will be expanded this year to include a course in imaginative writing headed by Richard E. Kim, novelist and UMass assistant professor of English.

Begun last year as a technical writing workshop, the summer program on the island will include a three-week summer workshop this year on technical writing from July 24 to August 11 and a three-week imaginative writing workshop from Aug. 14 to September 1.

Both workshops offer three graduate or undergraduate credits and are open to students of any discipline who qualify for upperclass or transient graduate status at the University. Enrollment in each is limited to 12 resident students and four day students.

In the imaginative writing course, Prof. Kim and his staff will provide literary and technical instruction in either the short story or the novel to students working with their own manuscripts. Applicants will be selected on the basis of prose fiction work samples judged by the admissions committee.

Prof. Kim, author of the best-seller "The Martyred," and now at work on a second novel, will be assisted by Michael Curtis, associate editor of the Atlantic Monthly; Edwin Seaver, editor-in-chief and vice-president of Braziller Press; Tamas Aczel, UMass visiting lecturer in English, winner of the Stalin Prize for literature and author of "The Ice Age," and "The Revolt of the Mind"; and Steve Oberbeck, associate editor of Newsweek.

Umass English Professor John H. Mitchell, technical writing specialist who originated the Nantucket workshop last year, heads this year's technical writing workshop staff.

Lecturers and their subjects will include: B.C. Brookes of University College, London, "Application of Information Theory to Technical Writing"; Dr. Paul H. Flint, Dean of the Tufts Graduate School, "Writing Professional and Scholarly Articles"; M. D. Morris, freelancer and president of Morris Associates, "Writing Technical Articles for Mass Media"; Kenneth Tong, eastern editor for John Wiley and Sons, "Writing Technical and Scientific Books", "Illustrating Technical Writing"; Robert E. Chandler, vice-president of Sales Promotion Services, "Procedures in Industrial Advertising"; and Jay R. Gould, director of the Technical Writers Institute of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, "Recruiting and Utilization of Technical Writers."

Resident tuition for the imag-

(Continued on page 9)

Last Religion Lecture Tonight

The last lecture in the series entitled, "studies in Religion-67" will be given on Monday, April 24, 1967. Professor William Kennick will speak on the "Language of Religion."

Professor Kennick is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Oberlin College, and holds a Ph.D. degree from Cornell University. He is the co-author with Mr. Morris Lazerowitz of the book, Metaphysics: Readings and Reappraisals, published in 1966. He also authored the book, Art and Philosophy—1954. At present Professor Kennick teaches a course in Metaphysics at Amherst College.

The lecture series has been organized and presented by the Academic Affairs Committee of the Student Senate. The lectures, held in room 120 of the School of Business Administration begin at 8:00 p.m. Students and faculty of the University are encouraged to attend and participate. The lectures run for about 40 minutes with questions and discussion to follow.

Six ROTC Cadets Awarded Two Year Scholarships

The Army recently announced the names of the students at the University of Massachusetts who will receive two-year Army ROTC Scholarships. They are Cadets John W. Killeen, Donald B. Legg, Roy W. L'Heureux, Emery A. Maddocks, Robert K. Sawyer, and Ronald B. Stephenson.

They will receive full tuition, books and fees plus $50 per month during their junior and senior years. They are among the 347 Army ROTC 2-yr. scholarships for 90 colleges and universities in the 15-state First Army area.

All of the cadets selected are sophomores. Killeen is a Government major and a member of the Bay State Special Forces Unit; Legg is a physical education major; L'Heuveux is a business administration major and member of the Bay State Special Forces; Maddocks is a history major, and a member of the Color Guard; Sawyer is a history major, and Stephenson is a history major.

Recipients of the two-year Army ROTC scholarships at the University receive congratulations from Dean Hopkins and Lt. Col. Wiseman at a recent ceremony in Dickinson Hall. Left to right: Lt. Col. Delter B. Wiseman, Executive Officer of the Army ROTC Department, Cadets John W. Killeen, Donald B. Legg, Roy W. L'Heureux, Robert K. Sawyer, Jr., Emery A. Maddocks, Ronald B. Stephenson, and Dean Robert S. Hopkins, Dean of Men.

AEPi Continues Despite Fire

by ROBERT BIEDERMAN

"A house is not a home", said Polly Adler, and how right she was. AEPi, the reigning I.F.C. champions are proving that liquor, sex, and secret rituals are not all that fraternities are based on. The closely knit brothers of AEPi remain an active participating member of the Greek way of life at the University.

Upon first settling into their new home, Berkshire House, the brothers were naturally unhappy in their change of environment. However, with the cooperation of the full brotherhood and the pledges, they transformed the dismal trunk room into a perfectly livable lounge equipped with stereo and color T.V. The salvageable furniture from the ruined house was also brought down to make for comfortable living.

Although the brothers must now eat at the commons, they still eat together as a unit, along with their pledges.

Although Berkshire is certainly not "the house" it is liveable. The same sounds of guitar playing and shuffling cards echo down the corridor, and the bull-sessions continue under the lights of the temporary dwelling of the brothers.

The talk is of the new house, and the softball season. Spirit runs high as the Greeks prove to the campus that fraternities are more than social clubs, but rather a unified group of individuals living and learning together.

PEANUTS • By Charles M. Schulz

The RAMRODS along with the TECHNIQUES will be featured on April 29th as the Class of 1970 presents the

ANNUAL FRESHMAN PICNIC

There will be food and music for all from 2:30 - 6:00. This year the picnic will have a FREE outdoor movie starting at 7:30.

JACK LEMMON stars in "THE NOTORIOUS LANDLADY"

The picnic will take place by the pond

In case of rain — in the cage

Future Professors Oppose Publish or Perish Policy

A study of a select group of would-be college teachers shows that they expect many satisfactions from their chosen career and one major dissatisfaction—the pressure to publish.

The study supported by the U.S. Office of Education reveals that members of the group "undoubtedly will be among those who do publish and publish often."

What bothers them is the expectation of being "pressured to publish before they have something to say—publication for its own sake."

On the plus side, the investigators find that these career-minded teachers expect most satisfaction from "work, association, and friendship with college-age students," and the intellectual challenge of the academic community.

These expectations are reported in a sample study of the factors that led nearly 100 college seniors to pick college teaching as a career. The seniors won graduate fellowships in 1965 from The Danforth Foundation, a nonprofit educational group.

The study found that the most common reason for wanting a college teaching career was: "I felt that I could make the greatest contribution to society in this area."

Understanding the reasons, hopes and personal traits that influence a vocational choice of this kind, the investigators believe, can be of great help in identifying and encouraging potentially good college teachers at a time when higher education faces an urgent need for high-caliber faculty.

Other significant findings of the study are:

● About a fifth of the Danforth Fellows wanted to be college teachers before entering college, and better than two fifths had made up their minds by their junior year. Virtually all had chosen this career by their senior year.

● As new faculty members, the Fellows would like to spend about 55 percent of their time in teaching activities. Twenty years later they would prefer to cut back on teaching and devote more time to research and writing. Ideally, they would like to give no more than eight percent of their time to administrative duties.

● The would-be teachers hope to begin their careers at the kind of institution where they did their undergraduate work, usually a private college or university.

New Security Guards Hired

by CAROL FULTON

The Security Department of the University has been authorized to hire up to eighteen new security guards; unlike the eight residence hall fire and security guards now patroling the dorms, the new guards will be called fire and security guards and will have the job of fighting fires when Amherst calls for help.

The new security guards will be trained in fire-fighting techniques. They will work on campus in shifts; when not responding to fires, part of their job will be parking control.

The present residence hall fire and security guard's job is to patrol the residence hall areas, checking for fire and safety hazards. In addition, they are to assist visitors and give aid when entrance into a dorm is necessary.

Some students have wondered if the security guards have the same power as police officers. The security guards do not have the power to arrest, with the exception of citizen's arrest which is the perogative of all citizens; however, they have the control given to authoritarian figures. Although they do not give out parking and speeding tickets, they are being considered for this job.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Class of '69 Presidential Election

Wayne Thomas has demonstrated positive qualities of leadership during his term as president of the Class of 1969, and therefore we feel he deserves our endorsement for re-election.

President Thomas has made sincere efforts to provide his class with a truly representative executive council. Under his capable leadership the usually unsuccessful sophomore class banquet was turned into a success in the form of "Playboy Night."

He and his executive council have also managed to deviate from purely social matters and have entered the field of charity with Campus Chest Week 1967.

We feel that the adroit execution of these events has proven that he possesses the organizational ability and experience necessary to supervise Winter Carnival 1968.

Unlike his opponent, who has based his campaign on accusations and half truths, Thomas can point to a successful past performance and the support of a hard-working, unified Executive Council.

For these reasons we support Wayne Thomas and urge his re-election.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

Girls' Rules: Archaic or Necessary

(Special to the Collegian from the Associated Collegiate Press)

(ACP)—Regulations governing women in residence at universities across the nation have long been criticized as archaic and dictatorial, comments the Daily Reveille, student newspaper at Louisiana State University.

Lack of enforcement, however, sometimes makes those rules somewhat less than dictatorial. This fact is illustrated by Nicholas von Hoffman's report of life at the University of Illinois in his new book, The Multiversity.

The Daily Receille described his account:

Closing hours at the University are 10:30 p.m. on week nights, 1 a.m. on Friday and Saturday nights, and 11 p.m. on Sundays. And according to the Code of Undergraduate Student Affairs, a coed late more than 10 minutes during a semester is subject to disciplinary action. In practice, however, a coed is less likely to get in trouble if she stays out all night than if she is 15 minutes late.

Bed checks are not made, so no one knows if a student is out overnight unless there is a fire drill. But, as one coed told Hoffman, "They always tell beforehand when they're going to have a fire drill and they never have them on weekends."

Of even greater significance is Hoffman's account of activities in the lobby of one of the dorms. "Some of the young people, in twos and fours, sat and chatted; but only three or four feet away were lovers, in close to horizontal positions on pieces of furniture that were never designed for their present usage."

The housemothers, unlike those at LSU, remain unseen. Each dorm is closed by five girls called "closers," who draw the drapes and pry loose the cleaving couples. At closing hour, they douse the lights and stand at the door to take the names of latecomers, unless, of course, the latecomers happen to be friends.

When asked why the University did not take steps to enforce regulations, the dean of women said, "It would be an insult to a young woman." We notice she said woman and not lady.

Weekend Doldrums?

Nothing to do on weekends?

There is one thing you could do about it. You could go home every weekend. This seems to be the prevaling attitude on campus according to the Collegian (Mar. 22), but is this the best solution?

Dorm events such as those held in Southwest are one solution. Many of the dorms in that area hold dances, talks and concerts. The talk by Dr. Richard Alpert on the Psychedelic Experience is a case in point, though, this was during the week. Southwest could try an interesting lecture or concert on a weekend to test the response.

Greater student involvement is another cure for weekend doldrums. Less time should be spent complaining and more time should be spent trying to improve campus social life. The S. U. Program committee is presently looking for members for it's committees and Dorm social chairmen are looking for new ideas to enhance student interest.

There are many clubs on campus which would welcome new members. Perusal of the notices section of the Collegian would reveal club meeting times. There is a Bridge Club, a Chess Club and many others. Meeting times are posted. Association with these groups can lead to other activities such as off-campus parties.

Sure there is not enough to do on campus on weekends, but it is our job to do something about it.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Slivia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

Monday's Day Editors: News Marjie Flanders, Photo Stan Furman, AP Armen Roupenian.

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Sam Spark Speaks Out

The Jacket Circuit

The Jacket Circuit — a tour through honorary societies of U Mass that pay tribute to increasingly active student leaders. For example, by the time a man has been chosen an Adolphin, he has been involved in Moron Keys, possibly Revolvers, and Arcant. Although Arcant only takes in Greeks, this has never proven any obstacle whatsoever for those who are qualified to journey through the circuit. For in the words of one Moron President, "Mostly all the sharp kids on campus are Greek anyway; dorm rats just stagnate." But let us now examine the various stops along the prestige - ridden "Jacket Circuit."

The Moron Keys this year have greatly improved. They have eliminated such nebulous activities as bicycle sales, and instead substitute more immediate and significant projects with which they can more easily identify, such as orienting Freshmen and serving the campus community.

The Keys are also striving to upgrade their selection process in two major areas. Firstly, in order to ease the tension which a prospective Key feels during his interview sessions, the Morons hope to ask still more personalized questions, and supplement these with scholastic queries which will concentrate on the field of Anatomical Zoology. Secondly, the Keys hope to increase the number of independent applications. While the Greek or Independent ratio must, out of sheer statistical evidence and personal sharpness, remain lopsidedly in favor of the Fraternity men, the Keys will attempt to have a few more Independents apply than the fifteen applicants of the past selection period. It being a campus honorary society, the Keys most correctly feel that Independents should be recognized as a significant minority faction. In defense of the Keys, the Moron President did say, "It's really not much our fault when only fifteen dorm rats apply. It's their faults. Dorm rats have the same chances to make it as do we Fraternity men. But next year we'll give the rats a better shot."

Meanwhile, the Arcant guides dramatically motivated by the Moron Keys of the previous year and the Buick-a-Month club, have greatly improved their image this year, due to a more fluid publicity effort on all their (and everyone elses) recent doing.

Last week they gave the DVP a full hour tour of the rear compartment of their newest wagon, and only yesterday held an "in-in" demonstration at the site of their reserver parking space in front of the Union. The demonstration had to be interrupted, however, when it was discovered that one of the Guides had been among the Moron Key candidates not knowing some of the anatomical parts of the female physique.

Looking to the example of their idols, the Adolphins, the Arcants split into two factions, divided over whether or not this uncool and obviously naive Guide should be expelled from the society. One of the boys, who was wearing his old Key and Revolver jackets underneath his Arcant greens, fainted in the heat of the argument and was mercifully removed to recover at a Sig Ep Happy Hour (it being Friday).

Finally, the foreman of the group, realizing the dangers in division, reminded the feuders of their guiding mission—to complete the jacket circuit. Seeing the light, the Guides stopped fighting, just in the knick of time to join their sick buddy for the end of the happy hour. Needless to say, in keeping with their function, the Guides pointed out some campus high spots along the way to the house from the tinted windows of their tainted wagon.

Adolphin, the highest society to which any student non-leader can aspire, serves the members of the University Community in a number of ways. For example, Adolphins have been known to provide a great deal of help during the time of class election. (Wait a minute; in all fairness to those concerned, that last sentence should be slightly restated.) For example, students who have been known to provide a great deal of help during the time of class elections have been known to become Adolphins. At any rate, they do help out.

Adolphins travel to the finest high schools across the state to try to recruit top scholars to our University—to lure them away from Harvard, Yale, and U-Mass-Boston. As yet, no one has ever computed the relative success of these recruitment drives, but the schoolboys have said that they got a very definite impression of UMass from the Adolphins.

There is a definite place on the UMass compus for societies such as the Morons, the Arcant, and the Adolphins. Student leader-scholars should indeed be honored, and, so long as the coat fits, they should be allowed to complete the sought-after, trying, difficult, but surely rewarding Jacket Circuit. The prestigeous jacket is incidental to unselfish and oft-unseen acts of service performed by these men from all walks of campus life.

Drug Use and Student Values

Higher Education?

by KENNETH KENISTON, Ph.D.

I do not mean to portray all American students as potential drug users, nor to decry the student values which may be interpreted to support drug use. On the contrary, I am convinced that the search for meaning through experience is an important and valid search, although I personally doubt that present experience is itself enough to provide "the meaning of life." Similarly, even those students who actively abuse drugs are seeking, I think, legitimate ends through unwise means.

It will not do, therefore, to repudiate students who misuse drugs as moral lepers and "addicts" without trying to understand their motives for drug use, and the values and goals they pursue. These motives are rarely simply anti-social or "thrill-seeking." On the contrary, they almost always involve a legitimate (if misguided) search for ultimate meaning and contact with the world. In dealing with individual drug users, then, we must attempt to provide the student with alternate routes to attain his valid goals. And since drug use is notoriously hazardous and uncertain, it should not prove impossible to suggest better avenues toward meaning and experience than drugs. Even Dick Alpert commented, in an earlier talk, that he considers the use of LSD a "crutch"; we must help our students to understand that this is so.

In addition, we need to appreciate that students who use and abuse drugs are reacting not only to the individual circumstances of their past and present lives, but to dilemmas that confront their entire generation. It would of course be wrong to identify drug use solely with cultural and historical pressures. But it would be equally wrong to emphasize the individual psychodynamics of student drug users in such a way as to avoid confronting the possibility that the rising rate of student drug use is a commentary upon our educational system and upon our entire society. Although student drug users are a small minority, they point to the inability of our colleges and our society to enlist the commitments of a talented minority. If we could understand why, it might point not only to how we could "cure" drug users, but, even more important, how we might "cure" colleges and society.

As for counseling student drug users—potential and actual—I think it important to acknowledge that the question of drug use is, in the last analysis, not a medical issue, but an existential, philosophical and ethical issue. Student drug users are, as a group, extremely knowledgeable about the possible bad effects of drug use; they can usually teach their counselors, deans and advisors a good deal about the potential bad side effects of drugs. They will argue—with considerable validity—that society does not prohibit the use of other psychoactive compounds (e.g., alcohol, tobacco) which in some ways are far more dangerous than many of the hallucinogens or amphetamines. In the last analysis, then, whether one chooses or not to use drugs, in full consciousness of their possible bad effects and the legal implications of drug use, becomes an existential rather than a medical decision. It is a matter of how one chooses to live one's life, how one hopes to seek experience, where and how one searches for meaning.

(Continued on page 7)

DRUGS . . .

(Continued from page 6)

To be sure, I doubt that we can hope to persuade students that drugs are ethically, humanly or existentially undesirable if they are not already persuaded. But I think we can at least help the student to confront the fact that in using drugs he is making a statement about how he wants to live his life. And we can, perhaps, in our own lives and by our own examples, suggest that moral courage, a critical awareness of the defects of our society, a capacity for intense experience and the ability to relate genuinely to other people are not the exclusive possessions of drug-users.

In the long run, then, those of us who are critical of student drug abuse must demonstrate to our students that there are better and more lasting ways to experience the fullness, the depth, the variety and the richness of life than that of ingesting psychoactive chemicals. It would be a pity, for example, to allow the advocates of LSD to take exclusive possession of the term "consciousness - expansion." Consciousness-expansion seems to me not the sole prerogative of psychoactive compounds, but of education in its fullest sense. The giants of our intellectual tradition were men who combined critical consciousness of their own societies with a capacity for experience and relatedness. And they were consciousness-expanders par excellence in their attempts to lead their fellows out of ignorance to a clearer perception of truth, beauty, and reality.

Thus, insofar as we can truly and honestly help our students to become educated in the fullest sense, we will be able to provide alternative routes to the pursuit of meaning, the quest for experience, and the expansion of consciousness. Obviously, much of what passes for higher education in America fails to accomplish any of these high objectives. As long as it continues to fail, I suspect that drugs will continue to be a problem on our campuses and in our society.

WMUA has presented the class of 1969 with $103.57. This money was raised by WMUA in its live broadcast booth from the union during the week of April 11 through donations for requests and auctions of records and various other items.

Youth May Volunteer To Solve Social Problems

Young people in search of experience in the positive solution of social problems can volunteer a year or more of service under a new program of the American Friends Service Committee, that organization announced recently.

Men and women, generally between the ages of 18 and 24, have been approaching the AFSC with increasing frequency in search of such opportunities in the past few years, according to Marthalyn Dickson, director of the new Youth Service Opportunities Program. Their desire to serve seems to be in part a response to the war in Vietnam, she commented.

"Many of these applicants are conscientious objectors who seek a two year alternative service to military assignment," Miss Dickson said. "All express a desire to experiment with peaceful methods of solving problems."

The new Youth Service Opportunities Program is part of a total effort on the part of the AFSC to answer new service needs linked to the war in Vietnam. Also recently launched are programs of relief and service in Vietnam, an expanded peace education program in the United States, and additional work in the field of international affairs in Southeast Asia.

Approximately forty assignments will be made during the first year of the program's operation, Miss Dickson said. Assignments will vary considerably and will be made in different sections of the United States as well as abroad.

Assignments are being made in a project of community relations among farm laborers in Pennsylvania, in community service in Robeson County, North Carolina; an enrichment program for youth in Royal Oak Township, Michigan; a tutorial project in Denver, Colorado, and a project in community development in a rural Mexican village.

All volunteers will receive orientation and training prior to their assignment, and will be part of a continuing educational program during their term of service, Miss Dickson said.

The American Friends Service Committee was organized in 1917 to provide young conscietious objectors to World War I with an opportunity to perform "a service of love in wartime." During World War II it operated a civilian public service program for conscientious objectors. Today it provides counseling and referral for conscientious objectors, as well as offering them service assignments through a number of programs, including the new YSOP.

Tuition Waiver Increase Recommended for Foreign Students

by MICHELLE KACZYNSKI
Faculty Senate Reporter

Last Thursday the Faculty Senate recommended that the number of tuition waivers for foreign students be increased from 15 to 40. The added increase would make the proportion of foreign students receiving tuition waivers equal to the proportion of American students presently receiving waivers.

In 1949, the Board of Trustees authorized 5 foreign student tuition waivers. The number was increased to 10 by 1957, and by 1959 the total had been raised to 15. The number has stood at 15 since 1959 despite the increase in foreign student attendance from about 75 in 1959 to over 300 in 1966.

The recommendation for the increase must go to the Board of Trustees for final approval.

COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"
545-2550

ACQUISITION SHOW

On Saturday, May 6, in conjunction with the HER Weekend picnic the Arts and Music Committee is presenting a student acquisition show which will consist of paintings by any students who wish to exhibit their works. The art works will be judged by members of the art department. This will be a unique exhibit in that they will be displayed on a clotheslines by the pond. It will be an excellent chance for budding artists to exhibit their works. If you are interested please leave your name and the number of works you intend to exhibit in the RSO office by April 28.

GREAT DEBATES

The candidates speak
TUESDAY NIGHT at Public Health Building Aud.
beginning at 8 p.m.

[X] VOTE INTELLIGENT

BOB JOYCE
AN IDEA MAN!
Experienced - Creative

FRESHMAN EXEC. COUNCIL • SOPHOMORE EXEC COUNCIL • S.W.A.P. DELEGATE I.F.. WORKSHOP DELEGATE • 1966 HOMECOMING COMMITTEE • 1967 HOMECOMING COMMITTEE • 1967 WINTER CARNIVAL COMMITTEE • STUDENT SENATE WOMEN'S AFFAIRS COMMITTEE • JOINT ATHLETIC STUDY COMMITTEE • STUDENT SENATE ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES COMMITTEE

1. EXPAND EXEC COUNCIL
   —to add more qualified personnel
2. CREATE PRESIDENT'S COUNCIL —to insure continual communication
   —to O.K. emergency expenditures
3. RE-EXAMINE ATHLETIC POLICY —to provide total administration support for all teams
4. ESTABLISH STUDENT LABOR RELATIONS BOARD —to mediate student labor complaints
5. ESTABLISH ACADEMIC OMBUDSMAN —to handle all student academic complaints
6. REVISE ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES POLICY
   —to re-align University policy with state law
7. CO-ORDINATE EXEC COUNCIL SUB-COMMITTEE EFFORTS —to provide ready accessibility of current information on committee action

Elect BOB JOYCE
PRESIDENT CLASS OF '69

OVERSEAS

Come in and get the feel of a VW before you pick one up in Europe.

Before you make the Grand Tour in a VW over there, make a "little tour" over here. Around the block. Up and down a hill or two. In traffic. On an open straightaway.

Then you'll know what's where on the VW and how it works.

While you're getting comfortable with the car, we'll start working out the details.

Just tell us in which of more than 50 European cities you'd like to pick up your car. We'll take care of everything: purchase, delivery, licensing, insurance, documentation. And when you ship your VW back home, we'll still be at the same old stand where we can take care of everything again.

Northampton Motors
246 King St., Northampton
Please send me your free illustrated brochure and price list. Authorized Dealer
Name_____
Address_____
City_____ Zone_____ State_____

We accept trades on overseas deliveries

NORTHAMPTON MOTORS, Inc.
YOUR AUTHORIZED VOLKSWAGEN DEALER
246 King St. Northampton
Open eves. til 9 [illegible]4-8620
Service is the heart of our bu[illegible]

NOTICES

SOCIOLOGY CLUB
On Monday, April 24 at 8:00 in Colonial Lounge there will be a coffee hour with social workers. All interested persons are invited.

NEWMAN CLUB
On April 25 at 7:00 p.m. in the Newman Center's Chapel, the White Sisters of Africa will present an African Mass in the Chapel after which they will give talk about the history of their order and show slides of Africa. There will be folk singing. This will be in the Social Hall.
On April 30, from 9:15 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. in North Dining Commons there will be the annual Communion Breakfast with speaker Rev. Raymond J. Swords, President of Holy Cross College. Donation is 99¢. Tickets at Newman Center.

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB
On April 27, at 7:00 p.m. in the Hampshire Room of the Student Union there will be a meeting. Films shown. Open to all.

MARKETING CLUB
On Thursday, April 27 at 7:00 p.m. in Room 109, SBA, election of officers will be held. If you are interested in running, please let one of the officers know before Thursday. All members, active and inactive please make an effort to attend. Plans for the picnic to be held early in May will be discussed.

PRE-MEDS
Due to difficulties in arranging the itinerary for our trip, it has become necessary to limit attendance to the first fifteen Pre-Meds who bring two dollars in an envelope with their name on it to the Pre-Med office. All others may leave their name in the event openings arise.

HILLEL
Seders Monday and Tuesday nights will begin at 6:15 in line one of the North Dining Commons. All other meals will be at the regular time.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION
Every Tuesday at 6:45 in the Worcester Room of the Student Union a meeting is held. All are welcome.

APO
On Monday, April 24 at 7:00 in Memorial Hall there will be a meeting for the election of officers.

WMUA
On Monday, April 24 at 8:00 there will be a WMUA station meeting. All are welcome. Refreshments won't be served.

MEN'S JUDICIARY SELECTIONS
From Class of 1970—one Justile, 1:00 p.m., Saturday, April 29 in the Dukes Room of the Student Union.
From Class of 1969—two Justiles, 1:00 p.m. Sunday, April 30 in the Dukes Room. Applications in RSO Office.

AFRICAN STUDENT ASSOCIATION
On Tuesday, April 25 in Student Union Ballroom at 8:00 p.m. Dr. Z. K. Mathews, Ambassador of Bokwana, will speak on Race relations in South Africa. Everyone welcome.

NAIAD TRYOUTS
Optional practices Monday, April 24, 6.30
Tryouts—
Tuesday, April 25, 6:30
Wednesday, April 26, 6:30 at WoPe pool. Girls of all classes are welcome to come out for Naiads. They will be judged on their ability to swim the crawl, backcrawl, breaststroke and sidestroke to music. Everyone is welcome.

OPERETTA GUILD
Wednesday, April 26, at 6:30 in the Essex Room of the Student Union there will be a general meeting. Anyone working on either of this year's productions is invited to attend.

LOST:
A man's class ring for the Class of 1967. Contact the Registrar's Office.
Gold link and pearl bracelet at dress rehearsal, Thursday, April 13 at Bowker Auditorium, Grandson's gift. Please contact Mrs. Kirby, Lambda Delta Phi, 549-1208.

FOUND:
A watch, in Engineering 118-120, at the close of the Math 136 exam on January 18th. See Mr. Allen, Arnold 215.

PINNINGS:
Susan Ostrander, class of '69, 216 Johnson House, to Robert Bruntil, class of '69, Troy House, Univ. of Conn.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Linda Nystedt, class of 1967, 2106 J.Q.A.—Upper, to Paul Hatch, class of '67.

Counseling Opportunities
There are many jobs available as counselors with the various day camps operated by the Greater Boston Y.M.C.A. and with the George Lerman Day Camp. This would be a tremendous opportunity for students interested in working with children. Jobs pay $2.00 per hour. On-campus interviews will be held on Tuesday, May 2, for Greater Boston Y.M.C.A. and on Friday, May 5, for the George Lerman Day Camp. If interested, sign up for an interview in the Placement Office, Machmer Hall. Students must first check with Mr. Siegrist in the Placement Office to see if they qualify for the College Work-Study Program. Eligibility is based upon financial need.

Concert Band Holds Concert

The University of Massachusettts Concert Band will be giving the first outdoor concert of the spring at 3:00 p.m. on Saturday, April 29, in the Orchard Hill Quad.

This is Concert Band's second year in existence. Directing the band will be Professor Larry V. Weed. Professor Weed is a graduate of Oklahoma City University and received his masters from Eastman School of Music. He is presently working towards a Ph.D. from the University of Michigan. This is his first year at UMass.

The program will consist of works from many well known band composers. One of the selections will be an arrangement of West Side Story.

In case of rain the concert will be held at 4:00 at the Student Union instead of at 3:00 at the Orchard.

UMass Professor Publishes Text

"Organic Chemistry of Synthetic High Polymers," an 837-page text by Dr. Robert W. Lenz, associate professor of chemical engineering at the University of Massachusetts, has been published by Interscience Publishers, a division of the John Wiley Company of New York City.

Synthetic high polymers are the high molecular weight compounds from which plastics, textiles, rubber and other synthetic materials are made. The text by Dr. Lenz is unique in its field, according to the publisher, because rather than stressing polymer structure, it emphasizes the reactions involved in the formation of polymers and builds a unifying theme around the mechanisms of these reactions.

Dr. Lenz joined the UMass faculty last year after over 10 years of industrial experience. A Lehigh University graduate, he holds an M.S. degree from the Institute of Textile Technology and a Ph.D. degree in polymer chemistry from the State University of New York College of Forestry at Syracuse.

He has published 11 articles on polymer synthesis and characterization, holds a patent on a high temperature polymer, is the editor of "Polymer Preprints" for the American Chemical Society, serves on the Advisory Board of the Journal of Polymer Science, and is a faculty member of the polymer science and engineering program at UMass.

IMPORTANT
The Graduate Student Senate will meet Wed., April 26 at 9:00 P.M. in the Plymouth Room.
The subjects to be discussed are should all graduate students pay University fees and should a graduate student activty fee be instituted.
As things are now, those graduate students who have a tuition waiver do not pay the Student Union fee. A vote will be taken on whether these students should pay this fee or not.
The selection of an election committee will also be made and there will be a discussion about next year's officers. All graduate departments are urged to send a representative to this meeting.

AN ΑΦΛ Bring-a-Date Movie
LERNER & LOWE'S
BRIGADOON
plus 3 HERMAN & CATNIP CARTOONS
SATURDAY, APRIL 29
MAHAR AUDITORIUM 8:00
50c

MASS. CLASSIFIED

WANTED

Female roommate starting May 1. Pleasant living conditions call 253-9540 between 4:15 and 6:00 ask for Sally.

Ride wanted to and from Springfield to UMass for first session summer school. Call 546-8494.

For Rent

Efficiency Apt.
¼ mile from campus
$95/mo. for summer
married couple
call—546-7368

M frame in Pelham, 4 miles from campus. For rent over summer, $90 a month, furnished. Call 253-3260 evenings.

Luxury 8-room furnished apartment in Sunderland. Wall to wall carpet, library, recreation room—all for $145 mo. Call 665-3842 or stop by 131 Hasbrouck.

HELP WANTED

Tree surgeon. Unusual opportunity with good future, top salary.
G & M Employment Service, 145 State St., Springfield, 739-1133.

FOR SALE

Meal ticket — Southwest Dining Commons No. 5, 1st semester or both. Call: 546-7355 from 7:00 p.m. to 11 p.m.

AUTOMOBILES

1963 Vespa 150 cc spare tire, windshield.
1964 Lambretta 150 cc spare tire, windshield AL 3-7562.

1966 Corvette Coupe, Nassau blue, black int., 4-spd, 350 hp, AM/FM, 12,000 miles, Greenfield, 774-4664.

MGA 1958 new tires, curtains, top & tonneau cover, excellent cond. $500 best offer by May 5. Call 253-9540 after 4:00.

1965 MG Midget Mk II roadster, 17,000 mi., equipped with roll bar but never raced, excellent condition, $1295, 584-2088.

WE GUARANTEE WE WILL — save you money on any new or used car purchased. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton.

'65 OLDS JETSTAR I 2 DOOR HARDTOP COUPE—Console. Bucket seats. Many accessories. Easily financed at Clarke Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from the Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! PRICES REDUCED! — '65 PONTIAC Bonneville, 4-door Hardtop. Luxury interior, automatic, easily budgeted. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

FANTASTIC SAVINGS AT CLARK OLDS-PONTIAC—Try this '65 Olds 4-door hardtop. Luxury interior, vinyl seats, full carpeting, power steering and many fine extras. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

'64 CHEVELLE STATION WAGON — BRONZE EXTERIOR—Luggage rack, V-8 automatic, power steering, standard for economy. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! '64 PONTIAC STATION WAGON — CATALINA on a wide track. Automatic. Priced to sell. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! '64 STARFIRE HOLIDAY HARDTOP Console, buckets, power steering and brakes, power windows. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

AUTOMOBILE

LET'S GET TOGETHER! '63 OLDS "98"—Excellent condition. Many extras, fine condition. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

INSPECTION TIME IS NOW HERE! Try this '63 Pontiac Catalina hardtop, excellent economy, fine condition, trade terms. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Opent o 9 p.m.

EVERY CAR IS UNDER WARRANTY! '64 JETSTAR OLDS "88" — Small economy V-8 that burns regular gas; 4-door sedan, low original mileage, name of owner given on request. Stop today at Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! '64 CORVAIR MONZA 4 door hardtop, excellent for the college student, 4 speed on the floor; luxury vinyl interior. Priced right; Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

WIDETRACK CATALINA 4 DOOR HOLIDAY MODEL 8—'64 V-8 engine, radio. Immaculate interior, many fine extras. Priced to sell. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

'62 KOMBI STATION WAGON V.W. Camper, or utility wagon. Priced very reasonable at $795. Why not stop at Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

A FEW MINUTES FROM CITY HALL TO TOWN HALL CAN Save you more than $50. '61 Pontiac 2 door Tempest coupe; automatic, perfected shape for the price we are asking. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

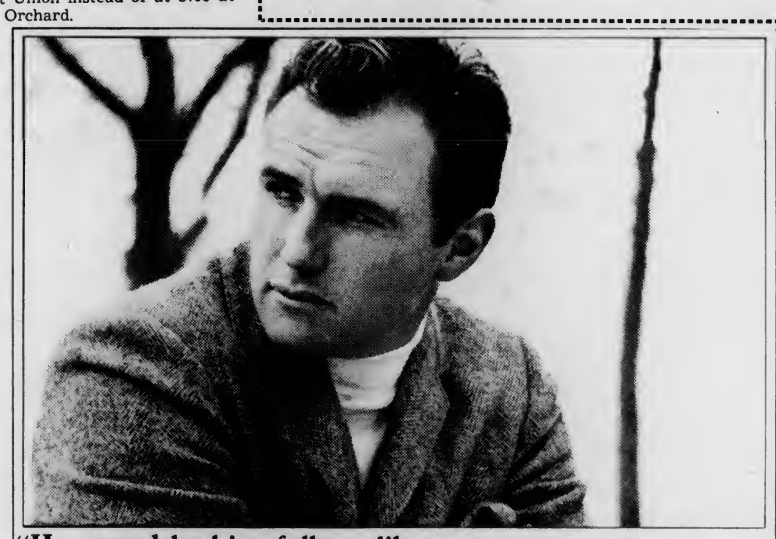
CONVERTIBLE WEATHER IS HERE! '64 Chevrolet with V-8 engine, power steering & brakes; excellent top, Impala Model. Clarke Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

COMPACT CONVERTIBLE BY CHEVROLET—'63 Spider model 4 speed on the floor; excellent condition; bucket for young comfort. Trade now at Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

'64 RAMBLER STATION WAGON "DELUXE" 700 model, electric rear window, roof rack, immaculate condition. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

$395 TAKES HOME TO FAMILY A GOOD RUNNING '60 Olds Super "88". Clark Motors, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton.

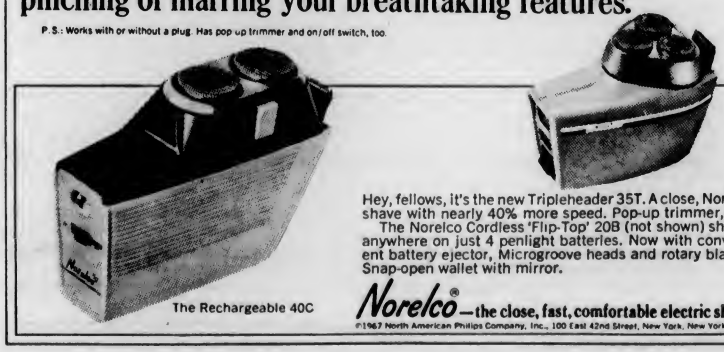
OPPORTUNITIES



CHEMISTS
CHEM. ENGINEERS
GRADS OR IMMINENT
We have 3 jobs waiting
1. Field applications engineer, Chicago area after 6 mos. training.
2. Customer applications engineer, Worcester area.
3. Project Engineer R and D, the works, in the Worcester area—leads to supervisor.

G & M
145 State St., Springfield
Call Dr. DeFriesse, 739-1133

"Esperanto is so easy that after only two hours I could, if not write, at least read the language freely."—Leo Tolstoy, Learn the simple International Language at The Esperanto Club, Student Union, 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays



PERSONAL

Who is Paul S. Lereaux?

"Hey, good-looking fellows like me.
You owe it to your public wherever you go to take along the Norelco Rechargeable. A single charge gives you twice as many shaves as any other rechargeable on the market. Enough for a fun-filled fortnight. And Microgroove heads are 35% thinner to give you a shave that's 35% closer. Without nicking or pinching or marring your breathtaking features."

P.S.: Works with or without a plug. Has pop up trimmer and on/off switch, too.

The Rechargeable 40C

Hey, fellows, it's the new Tripleheader 35T. A close, Norelco shave with nearly 40% more speed. Pop-up trimmer, too.
The Norelco Cordless 'Flip-Top' 20B (not shown) shaves anywhere on just 4 penlight batteries. Now with convenient battery ejector, Microgroove heads and rotary blades. Snap-open wallet with mirror.

Norelco®—the close, fast, comfortable electric shave
©1967 North American Philips Company, Inc., 100 East 42nd Street, New York, New York 10017

Candidates Meet In Open Debate

by WAYNE SOINI

Tomorrow night in the Public Building Auditorium live debates and addresses by candidates for class offices will take place. It is anticipated that the 300-seat auditorium will be filled with spontaneous demonstrations, poster-wavers, and even a live band during the 8:30 to 10 p.m. rally for candidates in the eight races remaining.

The sixteen candidates invited to perform, of whom fourteen have already accepted, include the following, arranged in order of their speaking (backwards to ballot order): Class of 1970, senator-at-large, Paul Harold vs. Bob Keating; treasurer, Steve Weisman vs. Burt Skvirsky; secretary, Rebecca Stedman vs. Gloria Forgione; vice-president, Glenn Mangurian vs. Joseph Doucette; president, Bruce Balboni vs. Bob Twiss; Class of 1969, treasurer, Jill Wolff vs. Wilkie Ward; president, Bob Joyce vs. Wayne Thomas; Class of 1968, vice-president, Jeffrey Humber vs. Jim Girotti.

The candidates in each race are given the option of one five-minute-maximum statement each or a ten-minute debate between them, if both candidates agree. Telephone conversations with several candidates indicate that there will be five or six debates, two or three statement duels.

The program will be moderated by Rick Hartwell, chairman of the Student Government Association. A mixture of entertainment and edification is planned by the Senator, who has inserted into next year's budget money for a "Candidates' Night" at the Student Union.

Says Rick, "This year's rally will serve partially as an experiment to determine how that might be run, as well as acting as an election interest barometer."

WORKSHOP . . .

(Continued from page 5)

inative writing workshop will be $116 for state residents and $141 for others. Day students will be charged $65 and $80 respectively. Resident tuition for the technical writing workshop will be $146 for residents of Massachusetts and $161 for others. Day student rates will be $85 and $100 respectively. Resident tuition includes books, board, room and linen.

Deadline for applications is June 1. Full information may be obtained from Prof. John H. Mitchell, Department of English, University of Massachusetts.

ADMISSIONS . . .

(Continued from page 2)

high school senior class.

"In addition to the girls we admitted in September," said Miss Ludwig, "we also accept, in February, some of the girls who have been on the waiting list. All in all I think it's a great group coming in."

Meanwhile, Miss Ave M. McGarry, the Associate Director of Admissions at Smith, supplied the Collegian with some interesting statistics concerning next year's freshman class. Originally 2,640 high school seniors applied for the class of 1971.

However, the board of admissions actually considered only 2,319 applicants, as 122 registration fees were returned as a means to discourage students who didn't possess the minimum qualifications. Also, 199 candidates withdrew applications for various reasons. The admissions board accepted 122 students under their early decision program in the fall. Thus there were 899 accepted this spring for an entering class of 592.

Smith College reports an increase in applications this year from the far west and south. Otherwise there has been no substantial change in this year's applicants. Miss McGarry reports that the class of 1971 will be "a very strong group."

SUMMER JOBS
under the
Work-Study Program

Numerous types of summer jobs are available all over the state of Massachusetts with the Commonwealth Service Corps under the College Work-Study Program. Job descriptions are listed in the Placement Office.

On-campus interviews will be held on Tuesday, April 25. If interested, sign up for an interview in the Placement Office, Machmer Hall.

Students must first check with Mr. Siegrist in the Placement Office to see if they qualify for the College Work-Study Program. Eligibility is based upon financial need.

4th Conference Held For Hampshire College

A conference to consider aspects of planning for the Hampshire College School of Language Studies was held in Amherst on Friday and Saturday, April 14th and 15th. Hampshire President Franklin Patterson announced.

It was the fourth in a series of conferences at which authorities in specific fields contributed their time to developing the preliminary plans for Hampshire which have been outlined in its Working Paper Number One, The Making of a College.

Roger W. Holmes, chairman of the Department of Philosophy at Mount Holyoke College and consultant to Hampshire College on the School Language Studies, is in charge of arrangements for this week's conference. Among those attending were: Werner Haas, professor of German, University of Massachusetts and member of the German Summer Language Program at Middlebury College; and Stephen White, journalist, T.V. producer and assistant to the chairman of the Carnegie Commission on Educational Television.

The participants considered such matters as the kinds of language with which the School of Language Studies will be concerned—foreign languages, mathemathics, logic computer languages, the languages of science and art and music; the place in the curriculum of psycholinguistics, analytic philosophy and other aspects of communication; and the role of the School of Language Studies in providing education in the programming and use of computers.

Hampshire College, an independent, coeducational college which will open here in 1969, will be organized into four Schools, set up on lines of related disciplines: Humanities and the Arts, Natural Sciences, Social Sciences, Language Studies.

The conferees discussed the relationship of the School of Language Studies to the other Schools of the College, and ways in which the School of Language Studies can profit from Hampshire's proximity to its neighboring colleges and how it, in turn, can contribute to them.

University Photo

University of Massachusetts' students from Malawi, Africa are shown taking an inventory of some of the college-level books donated to the University of Malawi by the faculties and students of the four colleges and area residents. From left to right: Vincent W. Saka, Martin S. K. Mughogho, and Peter E. Makhambera.

The book drive, sponsored by the New England branch of the Malawi Students' Association in the Americas, will continue until May 1. Headquarters for the book drive are located in the office of the International Training Program, 212A Stockbridge on the University campus.

Europe The Collegiate Way

An invaluable cost-saving reference on summer travel, study and work in Europe.

ONLY $1.00

SCHENCK STUDENT PUBLICATIONS
Prudential Center, P.O. Box 205
Boston, Mass. 02199

The White Sisters

from Africa

present an African Mass at the

NEWMAN CENTER CHAPEL

TUESDAY, APRIL 25

at 7:00 P.M.

After, they will give a talk about the history of their order and show slides of Africa in the Social Hall.

There will also be Folk Singing

BKP Wins IFC Sing

For the third consecutive year, Beta Kappa Phi took first place in the interfraternity sing. Under the direction of senior John Gilbert, the Beta Phis' sang "all Gods Chillun," an uptempo spiritual sung in six and seven part harmonies.

In a close second place was Sigma Alpha Mu singing "Wasn't That a Time" with Norm Ephraim directing. Kevin Carrol directed Sigma Phi Epsilon to third place with "Spanish Harlem." In addition, the Delta Chi colony received honorable mention for their excellent performance of "Sloop John B.", under the direction of George Child.

The Zumbyes, a singing group from Amherst College, also provided entertainment for the capacity crowd in the S.U. Ballroom.

ATTENTION, ALL STAFFERS!
Important
Meeting
Thurs., 8 p.m.

University Photo Service

Elwell is Winner Of Speaking Contest

The results of the Annual Nathaniel I. Bowditch Prize Speaking Contest have been announced.

This year's winner was Charles B. Elwell, UM '67, of Essex, with the topic "Criteria for a Successful Dairy Sale". In Second place was Cynthia Sue Lloyd, UM '67, of Whitinsville, who spoke on "What I Have Learned about Research". James Harris, SSA '67, from Nantucket, took Third prize and his topic was "Would You Bet on a Sure Thing?" All three students are majoring in the Department of Veterinary and Animal Sciences.

This contest, open to seniors in the College of Agriculture including both Stockbridge School and University students, is sponsored by the Massachusetts Society for Promoting Agriculture which provides three prizes of $25.00, $15.00 and $10.00 for the First, Second and Third place winners.

Dining Commons Menu

MONDAY
Breakfast:
Apple Juice
Tangerines
Assorted Cold Cereals
Oatmeal
Scrambled Eggs
Lunch:
Vegetable Soup
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Potato Chips
Grilled Sausages
Whipped Potatoes
Buttered Broccoli
Jellied Peach Salad
Green Salad
Pear Half with Pineapple Chunk Salad
Dinner:
Baked Ham—Cherry Fruit Sauce
Cubed Steak
Whipped Potatoes
Buttered Squash
TUESDAY
Breakfast:
Tomato Juice
Bananas
Assorted Cold Cereals
Maltex
French Toast—Syrup
Lunch:
Cream of Chicken Soup
Franks with Rolls
Baked Beans
Beef Croquettes
Tomato Sauce
Peas and Carrots
Dinner:
Stuffed Pork Chops
Applesauce
Cold Roast Beef Plate
Macaroni Salad
Whipped Potatoes
Whole Kernal Corn
WEDNESDAY
Breakfast:
Orange Juice
Purple Plums
Assorted Cold Cereals
Farina
Fried Eggs
Cinnamon Coffee Cake
Lunch:
Beef Noodle Soup
Hot Turkey Sandwich Gravy
Liver and Onions
French Fried Potatoes
Dinner:
Roast Veal—Gravy
Salisbury Steak—Gravy
Parsley Potato Asparagus
THURSDAY
Breakfast:
Grapefruit-Orange Juice
Applesauce
Assorted Cold Cereals
Oatmeal
Pancakes—Syrup
Lunch:
Tomato Soup
Hot Beef Sandwich—Gravy
Macaroni and Cheese
Whole Beets
Dinner:
Roast Lamb—Gravy
Mint Jelly
Meat Loaf
Whipped Potatoes
Green Beans
FRIDAY
Breakfast:
Grape Juice
Grapefruit Sections
Assorted Cold Cereals
Maltex
Scrambled Eggs
Doughnuts
Lunch:
Clam Chowder
Fish Fry Plate
3-Scallops
1-Haddock
Tarter Sauce
Potato Salad
Beef Pie
Whipped Potatoes
Green Beans
Dinner:
Corned Beef & Cabbage
Baked Fish—Lemon Slice
Boiled Potatoes
Carrots
SATURDAY
Breakfast:
Apple Juice
Oranges
Assorted Cold Cereals
Oatmeal
French Toast—Syrup
Blueberry Muffins
Lunch:
Chicken Vegetable Soup
Hamburg with Roll
Sliced Onions
Cold Meat Plate
Potato Chips
Dinner:
Baked Chicken
Cranberry Sauce
Ham Loaf—Pineapple Sauce
Whipped Potatoes
Buttered Corn

Danish Course

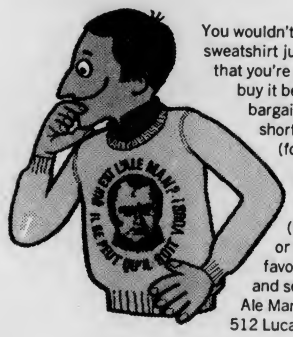
In line with the expansion of the German Department into a Department of Germanic Languages and Literatures, a program of Scandinavian studies is being developed. This program will operate mostly on the graduate level but will also extend into the undergraduate curriculum.

As a first step toward establishing this program, the principle Scandinavian languages will be introduced. In 1967-68 the Department plans to offer a course in elementary Danish to be followed by intermediate Danish in 1968-69. In 1968 the Department hopes to introduce Swedish on a similar basis, and as soon as possible, also courses in Scandinavian literature.

These language courses will be open to undergraduate and graduate students alike and can be used to satisfy the University language requirement. Interested students are asked to preregister for Danish 101 on Counseling Day, May 4.

In 1967-68, the 2-year sequence will be condensed into one year with Danish 101-102 being given simultaneously as one 6-credit intensive course in the fall and Danish 107-108 (6 credits) in the spring.

How to tell if you're an Ale Man



You've been offered a fortune for your little black book.

You didn't learn how to surf last Summer. You gave lessons in Hawaii.

You think lightweight motorcycles are for kids. You ride the big hairy bikes.

When you see a beautiful girl you don't whistle. You get a date with her.

You wouldn't buy an Ale Man sweatshirt just to announce that you're an Ale Man. You'd buy it because it's a bargain at $2.00 (with short sleeves) or $2.40 (for the long sleeve job). Sweatshirts show famous Ale Men of the past (Shakespeare, Caesar, or Napoleon). Pick your favorite, specify size—and send your money to Ale Man Sweatshirt Offer, 512 Lucas Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

When movie buffs start discussing, the films in which Bogie starred, you discuss his great stage roles.

You'd rather drink Ballantine Ale than read about it in an ad. You know it's light like beer but packs more taste. You go for that clean, dry, tangy taste. You think that ads like this one are really for people who haven't graduated from beer to Ballantine Ale. You're right!

Published with the thought that this would be a happier world if there were more Ale Men like you. P. Ballantine & Sons, Newark, New Jersey.

Free to Univ. of Mass. Students
25¢ to others

A new booklet, published by a non-profit educational foundation, tells which career field lets you make the best use of all your college training, including liberal-arts courses—which career field offers 100,000 new jobs every year—which career field produces more corporation presidents than any other—what starting salary you can expect. Just send this ad with your name and address. This 24-page, career-guide booklet, "Opportunities in Selling," will be mailed to you. No cost or obligation. Address: Council on Opportunities, 550 Fifth Ave., New York 36, N. Y.

Crossemen at Holy Cross Tomorrow

The UMass lacrosse team travels to Worcester to battle the Crusaders at Holy Cross. UMass throttled H.C. last year, 9-4.

Defense is the strong point for the Crusaders. Tri-captain Bill Donnelly, John Droney and John Gorter all have plenty of experience.

Tri-captains Ed Dimon and Paul Doyle, along with Steve St. Onge, are the letttermen back at midfield. Attackman John Vrionis, a returnee and an end on the football team, is the best all-around player on Coach Ham Perkins' squad.

On Saturday afternoon the Redmen undertake what could be lacrosse's biggest step foreward at UMass since Coach Garber graduated from Springfield College. They play tough Dartmouth in the first lacrosse game ever at Alumni Stadium.

Last year the Redmen bowed to the Indians, 13-5, after tying Dartmouth at 5-5 early in the contest.

JV, Frosh Crews Shun Winds, Capture Firsts

MIDDLETOWN, Conn.—For the second straight week, the UMass crew team showed its potential as it took two firsts and a second place in the second annual Harborow Regatta, held here Saturday.

The Regatta is hosted by Wesleyan College and is named in honor of Peter Harborow, the founder of crew at Wesleyan.

Sunny weather made conditions excellent for spectators, but a headwind that grew stronger throughout the regatta slowed the times in later races.

In the first race, the UMass junior varsity shot off to a quick lead and was never in trouble, winning by several boat lengths over Wesleyan and Stony Brook College. Despite balance problems in the shell, UMass covered the 2000-meter (mile and one-quarter) course in the excellent time of six minutes, 15 seconds.

Winds picked up slightly at the start of the second race, but the UMass freshmen were unruffled as they rowed to a decisive victory over Stony Brook. Stiff breezes and balance problems forced the freshmen to row at a slow stroke, but they managed to finish with a time of six minutes, 45 seconds.

Due to lack of transportation facilities, UMass was unable to bring any of its shells to Middletown and had to use a shell lent by Wesleyan. Although victorious, both freshmen and junior varsity crews experienced difficulty during the race because of the age and condition of the shell, which was about 40 years old.

For the varsity these problems were made worse by the increasing headwind. Unable to apply necessary power to the shell, the Redmen were defeated by the powerful Wesleyan eight. Wesleyan rowed the course in six minutes 30 seconds and thus prevented a sweep of the regatta by UMass. Finishing third behind Wesleyan and UMass was Stony Brook.

Next weekend, Coach Dave Clarke's oarsmen travel to Hanover, N.H., for a meet with Dartmouth's lightweigth crew.

BASEBALL...

(Continued from page 12)

Neither team was able to take batting practice Saturday because of the weather.

LACROSSE...

(Continued from page 12)

O'Connor completed his hat trick by depositing his third gift to the Tufts nets at 5:38 of the final quarter. Tufts could manage only one more goal during the remainder of the contest.

Coach Garber called the contest "the best offensive effort of the year." The Redmen p lted the Tufts goal with 35 shots. Jumbo goalie Steve Florin was rated the best in the country in pre-season polls, but he was no match for the Redmen's demolishing attack.

For UMass, goal tender Bill Sinclair was there when he had to be, ending with 14 saves.

The game marked the first time in four league contests that the Redmen were able to put together a string of scores, though in each of the games UMass shot with authority. In the Oberlin game UMass was able to negotiate on only three of 64 shots on goal.

The win avenged a 7-6 loss to the Jumbos suffered a year ago.

UM's Kitchen Fans 12

Frosh Drop Opener, 9-1

by ROGER KIPP
Staff Reporter

SPRINGFIELD—UMass' freshmen baseball team managed to elude the rainy weather long enough to get in its first game Thursday, an affair at Springfield College, but took it on the chin, 9-1. Saturday's home game with the Amherst frosh was cancelled due to wet grounds.

Bob McCullough of SC limited the frosh to just three hits, going all the way to post the win, striking out five and walking three. He was supported by the good hitting of Bill Donnehy and Al Putz. Donnehy ripp d a double and a homer, and Putz had a triple.

Springfield picked up lone tallies in the fourth and sixth innings and put it away with a big seven-run seventh on four hits and a couple of errors. UMass scored its lone run in the seventh when Tim Berringer drove across Chuck Espanet.

Coach Arlan Barber started John Kitchen on the mound and had hoped to get five good innings from him. He got six. Kitchen left losing 2-1, after striking out 12 and walking none.

George Anderson took over in the seventh and lasted only one-third of an inning, giving up seven runs, but was the victim of some faulty support afield. Tom Sinnamon finished up, allowing only one hit and no runs.

Espanet supplied two hits to the meager UMass attack with a triple and a single, while Jack Madieros had the third hit, a single.

The UMass pitching was impressive, but the hitting and defense will have to warm up a bit.

At this point it is hard to tell what the team's most troublesome factor is, the opposition or the weather. They will give it another try Tuesday here against Rhode Island.

UMass fielders, incidentally, recorded eight errors over the soggy weekend.

The Redmen pitching staff has an ERA of 2.06 with Canty's 0.46 standing on top. Botezo leads the hitters with a .455 average followed by DiSarcina, .396; Stewart, .341; and Klein, .333. Lasky increased his average the most at Burlington, rapping out five hits.

TRACK...

(Continued from page 12)

relay. Their time, good for fourth place, was 44.8.

In the sprint medley, the Redmen were like Silky Sullivan with a jockey who didn't know when to make the move. Their combined time of 3:39 gave them eight place, worst showing of the afternoon.

In the field events, the high-jump trio, minus Bill Tindall, placed second with 17'2". Leaping were Hall, the hurdler, John Ariansen and John Lisack, who usually divides his time between the basketball floor and the tennis clays.

The discus was heaved 367'. good for third place, by the composite effort of Dave Schlatka, Bill Wilen and Court Bassett. This contingent was outdistanced by the trio of Thors in the hammer throw.

Bassett and Wilen merely changed weapons and enlisted the aid of Anthony Disser to insure the fifth place finish in the event.

Coach Footrick's squad will be back in action tomorrow at Springfield College. Meet time is a moot point. It begins at 3 p.m.

Sports Week in Review

The Pro Shop

by STEVE ROSS

BASEBALL — The American League has good balance so far. Two games separate the top from the bottom. Detroit and Chicago lead the loop with Baltimore next. Prime contender Minnesota hasn't been able to untrack itself yet. The Twins are deep in the second division, a situation that may have been caused by the firing of pitching coach Johnny Sain at the end of last season. Manager Sam Mele's move may have hurt the Twins more than the acquisition of Dean Chance from Anaheim helped them.

LOU BROCK
Thundering bat.

SAM MELE
Sain decision?

In the National League St. Louis has ridden the thundering bats of Lou Brock and Roger Maris to the top of the pack. Strong contenders Pittsburgh and San Francisco are floundering about in second division. Juan Marichal has lost three times thus far this season, and if he doesn't come around the Giants will be in serious trouble.

It is interesting to note that the once feared Bronx Bombers went over 67 innings without an extra base hit. Elston Howard's line drive (which Boston's George Thomas played into a double) broke the string. The Yanks are hitting a whopping .222 and this is after playing the majority of their games against the great mound corps of Washington and Boston.

HOCKEY — Toronto reached the finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs by eliminating the regular season champion Chicago Black Hawks in six games. In the long run Toronto's balanced attack was more potent than Chicago's aggregation of super stars. Scooters Mikita and Mohns were injured and Bobby Hull was given little room to operate in. He couldn't quite beat the Leafs alone.

In the finals Montreal took the first game from the Leafs, 6-2. Henri Richard's hat trick was the key to the Canadien win. Toronto was outskated, outhustled, and outscored by the high-flying Habs.

The second game was a complete reversal. Toronto played its tight-checking game to perfection, and the Leafs were inspired by the fine play of 42-year old goalie Johnny Bower. Soph Pete Stemkowski tipped home a Bob Pulford drive on a power play in the first period to give the Leafs the lead.

In the second period rookie Mike Walton scored on a 45-ft. semi-screened slap shot. This followed a two-on-one Montreal break that was thwarted by Bower. That was the turning point of the game. Tim Horton closed the scoring late in the second period on a shot similar to Walton's.

BASKETBALL — Philly will have to wait until tonight or Wednesday night to clinch the title. After splitting two games in San Francisco, the Warriors upset the 76ers, 117-109, Sunday.

Philly went into the final period with a 96-84 lead and the egg throwing Philadelphia fans were set for the kill. But Philly couldn't buy a hoop. Paced by Rick Barry the Warriors kept pecking away at the lead until they pulled ahead at 9:54 on a foul shot by Barry after a technical foul against Hal Greer. Moments later Barry put the game out of reach on an almost unbelievable three-pointer. The series moves to S.F. tonight and, if necessary, back to Philly Wednesday.

The ABA has signed two NBA players: Jim Barnes of Los Angeles and Leroy Ellis of Baltimore. Seven-figure law suits have been filed by the NBA clubs against the ABA and the players involved.

Marvin Kratter, owner of the Celtics, has put his club up for sale. Club President Jack Waldron and General Manager Red Auerbach have the first chance to buy. It appears as though they will have enough support to make the purchase.

NOW
ENDS TUESDAY
on Screen
6:50 - 8:50
AMHERST Cinema
"BRILLIANT!" —The New Yorker
The Endless Summer
STARTS THIS WEDNESDAY—April 26
DAVID LEAN'S FILM OF BORIS PASTERNAK'S
DOCTOR ZHIVAGO

HURRICANE ISLAND
OUTWARD BOUND SCHOOL

One of twenty-three Outward Bound Schools in the world, Hurricane Island offers young men 16½ to 23 years old, the challenge of genuine adventure:

— Four day expeditions at sea
— Sea Search and Rescue
— Three day solo survival
— Rock-climbing
— Survival swimming

There are still openings in the following courses:

H-6 June 17 to July 13
H-7 July 17 to August 12
H-8 Aug. 16 to Sept. 11

FOR FREE CATALOGUE WRITE:
P.O. Box 160-B
Ayer, Massachusetts 01432

COMPLETE SERVICE
SAFE
MOVING
DEPENDABLE
STORAGE
EXPERT
PACKING
Call
GLEASON
MAYFLOWER
Pearl St., Northampton
584-6413—for estimate

Redmen Sweep Vermont, Spark Conference Hopes

Canty Wins, 4-3; Then Bats Boom, 11-3

by MIKE CURRAN
Staff Reporter

BURLINGTON, Vt.—The superb pitching of John Canty and Carl Boteze and the clutch hitting of Roy Lasky, Joe DiSarcina, and Boteze led UMass to a double victory over Vermont here Friday and Saturday.

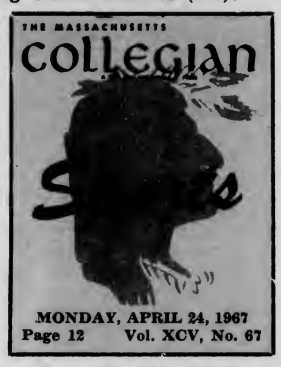
The sweep puts the Redmen (3-1) in second place in the Yankee Conference, a half game back of the front-running UConn Huskies (3-0).

UMass 4—Vermont 3

Southpaw John Canty threw another great game Friday. After a slow start, he retired the last 14 men he faced, striking out 13 en route to a 4-3 triumph.

UMass opened the scoring in the first inning when Elliot Klein singled sharply to center after Carl Boteze had tripled to deep left center with two outs.

The hosts countered with two unearned runs in the bottom half of the inning. After two were down, Steve Kunken singled and Rich Aldrich reached on a two-base error. First baseman John Packard then drilled a single to right to plate both runners. Canty curved the next batter to end the inning.



Vermont had Canty on the ropes in the third, but the ace emerged from the jam successfully. Dave LaPointe, son of Vermont coach Ralph LaPointe rapped a hit by Joe DiSarcina's outstretched glove to lead off the frame. LaPointe stole second and scored when Don Ferron had trouble finding the handle on Kunken's base hit to right.

Aldrich, the next batter, reached first while UMass catcher Tony Chinappi tried unsuccessfully to nail Kunken at third. A walk to Packard loaded the bases—with nobody out. Canty quelled the rally in fine fashion, however, getting Joe Soldano to ground to second, Frank Stewart to Chinappi at the plate. The lefty whiffed the next man on three straight fastballs and picked up the last out on a fly ball to Ferron.

The Redmen tied the score in the fourth on Lasky's double. Chinappi and Ferron walked to start the outburst and after Ted Mareno bounded into a force play, Roy Lasky laced a shot to left, scoring Chinappi from third and the hustling Mareno all the way from first.

UMass scored the decisive run in the fifth on a single by Boteze after a towering three-bagger by Stewart.

It was all goose eggs the rest of the way as Canty baffled the Catamounts and UVM reliefer Bruce Bovenizer, who took over for starter Len Sheflott in the seventh, halted the Redmen bats.

Canty, Our Man Friday

UMASS	ab	r	h	VERMONT	ab	r	h
DiSarcina 2	5	0	0	O'Leary cf, 1	5	0	0
Stewart	4	1	1	LaPointe ss	4	1	1
Boteze lf	4	1	2	Kunken 3	4	1	2
Klein 3	3	0	1	Aldrich c	3	1	0
Chinappi c	3	1	0	Packard 1	1	0	1
Ferron rf	3	0	2	Leete cf	0	0	0
Hale cf	0	0	0	Saldano rf	4	0	0
Mareno cf, rf	3	1	0	Lombard 2	4	0	0
Lasky 1	3	0	2	Fitts lf	3	0	0
Canty p	4	0	0	Stevens ph	1	0	0
				Sheflott p	2	0	0
				Bovenizer p	0	0	0
				Neild ph	1	0	0
Totals	32	4	8	Totals	32	3	4

UMass	100	210	000—4
Vermont	201	000	000—3

E—Klein, Ferron, Lasky, Bovenizer. DP—UMass 1, Vermont 1. LOB—UMass 7, Vermont 7.

2B — Lasky. 3B — Boteze, Stewart, Lasky. SB — LaPointe. S — Aldrich, Mareno ip	h	e	er	bb	so

Canty (W) 4-1	9	4	3	0	4	13
Sheflott (L) 0-2	6	7	4	4	3	3
Bovenizer	3	1	0	0	2	2

WP—Canty

Boteze, Our Man Saturday

UMASS	ab	r	h	VERMONT	ab	r	h
DiSarcina s	5	2	4	O'Leary cf	5	0	2
Stewart	4	2	1	LaPointe c	5	0	2
Boteze p	5	0	2	Kunken 3	4	1	1
Klein 3	3	1	1	Aldrich c	4	1	0
Dever 3	0	0	0	Packard 1	4	0	1
Ferron rf	5	2	1	Saldano rf	4	1	3
Hale cf	0	0	0	Stevens lf	3	0	0
Lasky 1	4	1	3	Lombard 2	4	0	1
Mareno lf	5	1	1	McCord p	3	0	0
Chinappi c	4	0	0	Schneider p	0	0	0
Lagoy c	1	0	0	D'oz'ski ph	1	0	0
Vyce cf	4	2	2	Adams p	0	0	0
Totals	40	11	15	Totals	37	3	8

UMass	011	000	720—11
Vermont	011	010	000— 3

E—DiSarcina 2, Stewart, Lasky, Chinappi, O'Leary, Lapointe, Lombard. DP—Vermont 3. LOB—Vermont 10, UM 6. SB—Farron, Lapointe, Lombard. S—Stevens. SF—Stewart.

2B — Vyce. 3B — DiSarcina. HR — Mareno.

Boteze (W, 2-2)	9		8	3	3	2	5
McCord (L, 02)	6	2-3	12	7	5	1	4
Schneider	1	1-3	3	4	4	1	0
Adams	1		0	0	0	0	0

WP—Boteze 2, McCord. T—2:38.

UMass 11—Vermont 3

A seven-run seventh inning broke up a close game to give the Redmen an 11-3 conquest Saturday afternoon.

Carl Boteze went the route for the second time in a row and helped his own cause with a pair of early singles.

The teams traded runs in the second and third innings. Roy Lasky drove in Don Ferron, who had reached on a three-base error, for UMass' first run. Vermont got that one back on Bruce Lombard's base hit to center.

With two outs in the third, Frank Stewart reached on an error and Boteze singled, sending Stewart to third. A wild pitch by starter John McCord brought Stewart home.

Rightfielder Joe Soldano's RBI single in the Vermont half of the third knotted the score at 2-2.

The Catamounts broke the deadlock in the fifth when John Packard's single to center plated Steve Kunken.

UMass exploded in the seventh inning, sending 10 men to the plate. With one out, Alex Vyce broke a long slump with a double off Soldano's glove in right. Joe DiSarcina's liner to right scored Vyce with the tying run, and Stewart's infield single put runners on first and second.

Boteze lined a shot right at the second baseman for the second out, but a single between short and third by Klein gave the Redmen the lead and a hit by Ferron drove in two more.

Ted "Neck" Mareno capped the inning with a three-run homer to left center after Ferron had pilfered second and Lasky had been intentionally passed.

The Redmen got their last two markers in the eighth. Vyce singled, DiSarcina tripled, and Stewart rapped a sacrifice fly to right.

Boteze held Vermont in check over the last four innings to even his record at 2-2.

Inclement weather plagued both games. There were intermittant showers during Friday's contest and a third-inning rain storm in Saturday's game.

(Continued on page 11)

DON FERRON TED MARENO
Confeernce hopes climb in Green Mountains.

Nine Faces 4 Games in 5 Days

Coach Dick Bergquist's baseball squad faces a rugged schedule this week, taking on four foes in five days.: Two of the games are against Yankee Conference rivals and in order to catch UConn, currently at 3-0, UMass takes to the battles in an effort to improve its 3-1 slate.

On Tuesday the Redmen host Rhode Island here at 3 p.m. in one of the decisive games. Thursday Willams provides the opposition and Williamstown provides the site for a 4 p.m. tilt.

Returning home for two week-end games the Redmen face Holy Cross at 3 on Friday and New Hampshire Saturday at 2.

Behind N.U., B.C., UConn

Trackmen Place Fourth At B.C. as Records Die

by TIM MURPHY
Poet Laureate

Chestnut Hill — The sun was in then it was out then it was rudely shielded by heavy nimbus bulks which frowned down menacingly on the sixteen colleges assembled Saturday at Boston College for the relays.

Coach Bill Footrick and his track and field performers were not intimidated either by the elements or the presence of Northeastern, New England track's response to the Soviet hockey team, and proceeded to mete out as much punishment as they received.

When the weather cleared and the runners, jumpers and tossers paused after an afternoon of competition, UMass had fared well: a fourth place finish with 42.5 points, behind only Northeastern with 81, BC with 56, and UConn with 46.

Three UMass team standards and one individual record fell, almost with the celerity shown by the callous-happy Boston Marathon trotters.

Terry Carpenter may retire after his performance. He kicked nearly 23 seconds off his old record in the 3000-meter steeplechase, clocking in at 9:32.5 while finishing second to Ed Norris of B.C.

Other marks spiked by the cleated UMass runners were the four-mile relay and the distance run. In the former, Greg Bowman, Steve St. Clair, Paul Hoss and Carpenter combined for a time of 17:32 and a second-place showing.

In the distance run, Diego Gonzalez, John Anderson, St. Clair and Hoss made taut their thighs and cudgeled their calves for 10:21.7 and a win.

A time of 3:23.3 in the mile will serve as a stimulus for future runs as Bill Thoms, Anderson, Gonzalez and Bowman negotiated the yardage for a school record. The time merited fourth.

Anderson should have been wearing feathers and counting his trinkets on Manhattan Isle instead of running the 440 intermediate hurdles. His time of 55.4 was only good enough for second place. Winning time was also 55.4, but Anderson's small snout left him short.

John Hall, Ed Davis, Steve Whelan and Pete Moryl preempted everyone but UConn as they raced to a 67.6 clocking in the 400 meter shuttle hurdle relay. Hall was at it again, this time with new friends, Bob Hasselbaum, Larry Sullivan and Steve Burrell, in the 440 meter

(Continued on page 11)

TENNIS RAINED OUT

Saturday's tennis match with UNH was postponed due to inclement weather. No date has been set to reschedule the match.

The Redmen will host Tufts tomorrow at 2 p.m. on the Boyden courts.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL — vs. Rhode Island (Home, Tomorrow, 3 p.m.)

LACROSSE—vs. Holy Cross (at Worcester, Tomorrow, 3:45 p.m.)

TENNIS—vs. Tufts (Home, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)

TRACK — vs. Springfield (at Springfield, Tomorrow, 3 p.m.)

GOLF—vs. New Hampshire and Albany State (at Orchards Country Club, Tomorrow, 1:30 p.m.)

BASEBALL (Frosh)—vs. Rhode Island (Home, Tomorrow, 3 p.m.)

TRACK (Frosh)—vs. Springfield (at Springfield, Tomorrow 3 p.m.)

Vassar's 5 Assists Lift Umass Over Tufts, 10-4

by JOE DUFFY
Staff Reporter

MEDFORD — After suffering a defeat at the hands of Middlebury, the Redmen lacrosse team bounced back to trounce perennially strong Tufts, 10-4, here Saturday.

In perhaps the roughest encounter of the season to date, UMass displayed an aggressive offense and superb teamwork in evening its New England League record at 2-2.

Saturday's victory was marred by the loss of leading scorer and captain Kevin O'Brien, who suffered a shoulder separation. O'Brien, who scored two goals before his departure in the final quarter, was joined by two outstanding sophs on attack, Kevin O'Connor and Gary Vassar.

O'Connor managed two goals, and Vassar garnered two while amassing an astounding five assists. It was the best individual scoring performance thus far this season.

GARY VASSAR
Soph feedman excels.

O'Connor started the ball rolling as he scored just after a faceoff with the first period only 16 seconds old. He then teamed with Vassar as they counted two goals within 17 seconds to push the Redmen to a 3-1 advantage at the close of the first quarter.

O'Brien scored the first of his two goals at the 27-second mark of the second period. Captain Bob Murphy and Ed Hurley notched two additional tallies to push the score to 6-1.

Murphy's goal was a pretty play. With the Redmen at a man disadvantage, the senior cleared the ball from the UMass zone and passed to O'Connor who relayed it to Vassar behind the Tufts net. Vassar then hit Murphy with a perfect pass and Murph slammed the ball past the Jumbo goalie.

Although Tufts managed to score two goals in the third period, the Redmen countered with three of their own to boost the score to 9-3 at the three quarter mark.

(Continued on page 11)

O'Brien Hurt

Saturday's lacrosse win over Tufts may have taken its toll on the Redmen. Captain and leading scorer Kevin O'Brien suffered a shoulder separation. The extent of his injury was not known.

Kevin O'Brien

Coach Dick Garber was not optimistic: "His loss would be quite a blow to the team and it is question - able whether or not he will be able to participate in this week's games."

The Redmen face Holy Cross Tuesday and Dartmouth Saturday.

PEACE CORPS
POLYNESIAN
RECRUITING
Monday and
Tuesday

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOTE
TOMORROW

VOL. XCV, NO. 67 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1967

Gen. E. Walker To Speak Monday On Conservatism

An exponent of right-wing philosophy, General Edwin A. Walker, is coming to the University of Massachusetts on Monday, May 1, to speak about "Concepts of the Conservative."

His lecture, sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program, will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the Student Union ballroom.

Walker's outspoken political convictions have given rise to serious repercussions recently. A military expert, he resigned from European Headquarters in 1961 in a controversy with the Kennedy administration over promotion of his conservative ideology.

He was mentioned in the Warren Report as a would-be victim of Lee Harvey Oswald.

In a January, 1967 reviewing of the Vietnam situation, Walker commented: "I question how we got into this war. I question the methods we are using to keep it going on and on. I question its inevitable conclusion in negotiations and a complete withdrawal with no military victory."

Addressing the conduct of foreign affairs, Walker has sharp criticism for even the attitude of our policies.

"We say we oppose the slavery of communism and yet we give millions of dollars to strengthen Tito in Yugoslavia as well as the Communist government of Poland.

"We break faith with the Cubans, with the Laotians, with the Koreans, and with the Chinese and then wonder why our prestige among nations is so low."

Walker is presently on a New England tour.

He saw action during World War II and the Korean conflict. He wears more than a score of decorations and high awards.

Lambda Phi Wins Sorority Sing

At the annual Intersorority Sing last Saturday each sorority presented two songs, one of which was patriotic.

Lambda Delta Chi, directed by Maryellen Rooney, placed first in the competition with 'Born Free' and 'The Rain in Spain'. Kappa Kappa Gamma, directed by Pamela Econopey, was second with 'The Exodus Song' and 'The Night They Invented Champaign.'

Third place went to Sigma Sigma Sigma, presenting 'Let There Be Peace on Earth' and 'No Hiding Place.' Finally, Kappa Alpha Theta added a touch of slapstick to the evening with the 'Theme to the John Birch Society'.

'Collegian' Gets First Class Rating

The Massachusetts Collegian has been awarded a FIRST CLASS HONOR RATING by the Seventy-Sixth National Newspaper Critical Service of the Associated Collegiate Press. The rating was based on the quality of the Collegian during the first semester of the current academic year.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Furman

Senator Edward Kennedy spoke before an attentive audience Monday night in Curry Hicks Cage.

Despite Small Turnout, 'Candidates' Debate Spirited

by WAYNE SOINI
Staff Reporter

It was all bets off at the candidates' rally last night at the Public Health Building. There were no statement-rebuttal debates, there was no band, and there were not three - hundred people filling the three-hundred seat auditorium.

The audience probably at no time numbered more than fifty, although possibly a hundred students drifted in and out of the doors in the course of the evening.

Rick Hartwell, chairman of the Student Government Affairs Committee, introduced the speakers after explaining the ground rules, that the candidate who had received a plurality at the primary would have the option of going first or last.

Jeff Humber, running for Class of '68 vice-president, spoke first. He commented on his past experience, in executive council and on the student senate. "The vice-president can and should become a work force of the executive council; I believe that the executive council's fullest talents are not used when it is not split into committees for efficiency," he stated.

Jim Girotti, his leading rival by two votes in this close contest, spoke briefly, "I think most of you know me for my work on the executive council and as a member of the basketball team ...A vice - president should not be a yes-man."

Bob Keating, beginning the next series, concerning senator-at-large, class of '70, said, "the Senator-at-large must not only work actively in the senate but also with his classmates. I would try to work hard to increase a coalition between the senate and the executive councils."

Paul Harold, who won the '70

(Continued on page 2)

FINAL ELECTIONS TOMORROW

CLASS OF 1968
VICE PRESIDENT
Jim Girotti
Jeffrey Humber
CLASS OF 1969
PRESIDENT
Wayne M. Thomas, incumbent
Bob Joyce
TREASURER
Wilkie Ward
Jill Wolff
CLASS OF 1970
PRESIDENT
Bob Twiss
Bruce Balboni
VICE PRESIDENT
Joseph Doucette
Glenn Manqurian, incumbent
SECRETARY
Gloria A. Forgione
Rebecca A. Stedman, incumbent
TREASURER
Burt Skvirsky
Steve Weisman, incumbent
SENATOR-AT-LARGE
Paul Harold

IMPORTANT COLLEGIAN STAFF MEETING

Attendance is Mandatory Thursday, April 27, 8:00 P.M. in the COLLEGIAN office

If you are not able to attend, please leave your name at the news desk by Thursday. Anyone wishing to join the COLLEGIAN staff may apply at this meeting.

THE EDITORS

Kennedy Advocates True Representation

by MIKE GOULD and PAM METAXAS
Senior Reporters

"We must bring our government closer to the people," said the senior Bay State Senator before an attentive audience at the Cage Monday night.

Continuing on this idea, Edward "Ted" Kennedy proposed a number of approaches toward a more ideal form of democracy.

It was Kennedy's assertion that the multitude of recent anti-government demonstrations have resulted from a public feeling of impotence in the affairs of their government. Said the Senator, "They have come to feel that the government will respond to their opinions only if they are presented in dramatic ways which catch the conscience and the attention of the public."

How to approach the American constitutional ideal of government by the people? This was Kennedy's main consideration in his speech sponsored by the four-college committee. The solutions he offered seemed well within the realm of reality.

The Senator maintained that political parties should be broadened into organizations for community action. They should work between campaigns rather than only during them. This could be done if the parties become active in such areas as youth activities, poverty programs, health and hospital work, legal services and tax advice to the poor. If political parties entered these fields, "they could begin to bring both the activists and the alienated back to the fold of the American system of representative democracy."

Kennedy urged that the office of public protector should be established "to keep bureaucracy from running away from the public". The "protector" could compel testimony about administrative action, force production of records, go to court to protect people's rights, persuade authorities to change decisions that were wrong, go on television to tell what he had found and what he had done. ". . . he would be a persistent force to make the bureaucracy more accountable to the people."

Kennedy's third proposal was for neighborhood planners to participate in the formulation of policies. "We could begin to make it possible for people to express their opinions at community meetings, to agree on a position, and to retain, as their advocate in the detailed planning, a person who knows the technicalities of projects—a man who knows how government works and can represent neighborhood opinion in a professional way." Eventually, he said, we may be able to develop citizen assemblies in the neighborhoods of large cities. They would have the power to decide policies for neighborhood projects and could receive grants to use on projects they felt would be useful. "Initiatives like these could help control riots and protests against authority by giving people a greater role in the government that makes decisions for them."

(Continued on page 4)

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM

MacDiarmid Attacks Modern Society

by SALLY DOLGIN
Staff Reporter

Clad in a red plaid kilt and tasseled kneesocks, the distinguished Scottish poet Hugh MacDiarmid delivered a startling lecture at DVP's first program on Poetry and the Modern Scottish Renaissance last night.

Dr. John Weston, a University English professor, introduced the white-haired poet, citing a quote by T. S. Eliot. The English poet praised MacDiarmid's poetry by noting that his Scottish slant has contributed greatly to English verse.

"MacDiarmid is a radical, dangerous man," Weston humorously commented. He was referring to the hesitancy of the U.S. State Department in allowing the poet to enter the country.

What views has this Scottish gentleman presented that have shaken up, not only the U.S. government, but the literary world as well? In a broad Scottish broague, McDiarmid delivered a scathing attack on modern society.

The failure—the neurosis of present day man — is caused, the poet claimed, by a refusal to recognize the power of science and technology.

Relentlessly citing one contemporary figure after another, McDiarmid urged us to stop rationalizing in the narrow realms of social, religious, political, and artistic institutions and to start thinking in the scientific realm.

The deadweight of the stagnating masses must be lifted up by the guiding will of the intelligentia into an acceptance of science and technology, the poet urged. It is the responsibility of every individual, he declared, to replace the "imbecility of the creaking man machine" with Faust's rare combination of the intellectual and the aesthetic.

Alluding to parts of the body, he compared Scoenburg's statement that "the human ear must catch up with the evolution of music" with the idea that all our resources must be combined to understand the technology revolution.

To know the end of the thing is to know the why of it," Aristotle once said. The task of modern man, MacDiarmid suggested, is to strive to solve the "why" by incorporating science and technology into poetry and all modern thought.

Al Davis, coordinator of the DVP program, extended an invitation to all students and faculty for the week's activities involving the Scottish visitor.

HUGH Mac DIARMID

BUDGET IN COMMITTEE

UMass Requests $36.9 Million

by PAT FLAHERTY
Staff Reporter

The UMass Budget request for the fiscal year 1968 amounts to $36.9 million, an increase of $10.3 million over last year's appropriations. This is due primarily to the increase in student enrollment, the increased responsibility which the University has in order to meet the demands of a growing student body.

The above figure represents the total request for both the Boston and Amherst campuses and the Worcester Medical School.

Student enrollment will increase by 1500 at Amherst, 600 at Boston, and 500 in summer school. The Amherst figure includes undergraduates, postgraduates, and Stockbridge. The University facilities and programs must expand to meet the demands of this increase. This covers 30% of the increase.

To maintain the desired 15:1 student-faculty ratio, 100 new positions will need to be filled on the Amherst faculty-staff. The budget demands are aimed at making faculty salaries more competitive with other schools.

Another important factor is the increasing "built-in" costs which must be provided for to improve the quality of the University. This includes, among other things, statutory salary increases, costs of utilities and maintenance of buildings and modification of classrooms to meet academic needs. This involves approximately 37% of the budget increase.

Another aspect is the "catch-up" factor whose consideration is important for keeping up with the new developments in higher education. Improvements here in the qualities of operation to continue progress are made on initiative outside of enrollment pressures. In this area laboratory and classroom equipment must be improved and replaced; and new and improved research equipment must be supplied.

A noteworthy new prospect for Amherst is the request for $124,000 to initiate a program of television and radio programs for educational purposes.

Requests for special appropriations amount to $1.6 million. These funds include the costs of operation at UMass Boston and other places in addition to the Amherst area.

An important program is that of library books. The requests for increases are $500,000 and $300,000 for Amherst and Boston respectively. These are considered necessary to meet the raising standards of the institutions. In Amherst the goal is to attain a million volume library by 1970.

Increased requests are being made for scholarship money; $480,000 for Amherst and $120,000 for Boston. This is due in part to the demands of increased student enrollment and increased responsibility for the University to supply these funds.

The funds for UMass - Boston are critical to its growth. Plans are being made for the implementation of programs for the "new" junior class. More faculty must also be recruited.

The budget request for the Medical School is $730,000. Expenditures are needed to 1) plan for construction of buildings, 2) purchase library books, and 3) recruit staffs. The intended date for its opening is September 1970.

The Governor's Recommended Budget totals $30.4 million. The outstanding difference in the two budgets involves the requests for library funds.

Also missing on this latter budget is additional money requested for more summer school teachers, the Educational TV program, and support for quality improvement at Amherst.

More than half of the Governor's $5.2 million increase over last year's appropriations represents 1967 salary increases.

Cutbacks from the recommendations for the Boston campus are evident in the areas of library funds, development of courses, and faculty and clerical staff recruitments.

In addition, there is a difference of $270,000 between the two budgets for library resources for the Medical School.

The discrepancy between the two reports has been the topic of discussion for the House Ways and Means Committee, which, will, after its deliberations and discussions with officials from both sides, bring the matter before the House Legislature for approval of the determined UMass budget.

DEBATE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

Sen.-at-large primary, said, "I hope to be a creative senator. The senate must become more than a debating society. Reading days are on my platform. I realize that the library is in a state of change, but I feel that the stacks should be open to qualified persons. Better scheduling of gym classes could end the cross-campus dash."

For the secretary, class of '70, Gloria Forgione and Rebecca Stedman spoke. Gloria mentioned her experiences as secretary - treasurer of her class at Lawrence High School for two years. Miss Stedman also mentioned past experience saying, "I have served you by keeping accurate records and trying to plan with other class officers the various class activities. My main qualification is the experience I have obtained over the past year."

Steve Wiesman and Burt Skvirsky faced each other for treasurer, class of '70. Skvirsky demanded the filling of a "leadership gap"—"The treasurer of any class should function as a leader as well as a machine." Weisman replied in a longer speech which often prompted appreciative laughter "I guess I am a leadership gap. I think our class has used our funds more efficiently than any other class. Free activities — toboggan run, dance, picnic food — are among our achievements."

In a true face-to-face contest Glenn Mangurian and Joseph Doucette drew quotes from one another's statements and records. Doucette indicted the class officers for "letting tradition do their work. They have not explored. If I am elected I will go into the job with a new approach."

Mangurian brought up quotes from a Doucette letter to the Collegian, countering that he has himself been an active student leader as a member of a four-college council, Collegian reporter, and worker on the frosh activities like the toboggan run, picnic, Christmas Carol Sing.

With regards to the frosh picnic. Mangurian specified, "The frosh picnic is not a four-class give-away footed by our funds. At an executive council meeting I proposed that we reduce costs of food for freshmen. There were only two votes for it then, Jim Slavas and myself. The next meeting, following a Collegian editorial by Jim, that bill passed."

Bob Twiss faced Bruce Balboni, a candidate who lost by 16 votes last October, in a bitter fought contest. Twiss spoke first saying, "UMass has grown by leaps and bounds. New problems are caused. I urge solutions like moving elections, with their 30% turn-out rate, into dormitory polling places, and better distribution of executive council membership."

Balboni retorted stating "My platform has been circulated room-to-room. I speak tonight on the role of president, a role somewhat open to interpretation. I became disenchanted with the student senate as a vehicle to solve most campus problems. I wish to bring better entertainment to the University as well as act as spokesman for the real sentiments of my class." He spoke about the necessity of judging what is possible and what a president cannot do.

The last class to have contested officers, the class of '69, had Wilkie Ward and Jill Wolff facing each other for treasurer and Wayne Thomas and Bob Joyce for president.

Jill Wolff spoke first. "Next year's treasurer will be concerned with the Class Trip to New York City and the Winter Carnival. I have had experience on executive council, homecoming committees, on the Collegian advertising staff, and in dorm government which will qualify me for the job," he stated.

Wilkie Ward began, "all too often the treasurers have done only what is required of them. Strict control of finances is important—each committee chairman would receive an R.S.O. accounting sheet if I am elected; too many committees have overspent before."

The contest between Bob Joyce and Wayne Thomas concluded the evening. Joyce confined himself to replying to a Collegian editorial endorsing Wayne Thomas. "The editorial stated that I have neither the experience nor the capabilities required by the office. Since I was a freshman, I have been on no less than nine student government associations.

Joyce went on to say, "This year, I did everything from selling '69 buttons in front of the Hatch to set up the wrestling match in the Cage. I am on the Womens' Affairs Committee, Joint Athletic Study Committee, Alcoholic Beverages Committee —all striving for mature student autonomy."

Thomas countered with a speech on "the glorious past as the best guide to the future". "Success has been the by-word of today's class. But too often pats on the back are easily given to one person. No one person is responsible. Together we have sought and found our primary goal: the welfare of our classmates. One acre of program is worth a world of promise," he said.

Sen. Hartwell requested suggestions for an improvement of the rally as it may be held next year. Better publicity for a rally before the primaries in the ballroom was the concensus of suggestion opinion.

Cynthia Sue "Cindy" Lloyd, U.M. Senior co-ed from Whitinsville, does some clipping on her Holstein calf in preparation for the 32nd Annual Bay State Livestock Classic while Arthur D. "Art" Keown, Jr., UM '67, of Wilkinsonville, assists by holding the calf and offering suggestions. "Cindy" will compete with four other contestants in the Holstein Calf Class at Grinnell Arena at 8:40 P.M., Friday evening, April 28, immediately following the Co-ed Milking Contest at 8:20 P.M.

Stockbridge to Hold Livestock Show Friday

Thirty-five University and Stockbridge School of Agriculture seniors majoring in Veterinary and Animal Sciences will compete for numerous awards and prizes in the thirty-second annual fitting and showing contest involving Angus and Hereford beef cattle, Dorset and Shropshire sheep, Yorkshire pigs, Morgan horses, and Ayrshire, Guernsey, Holstein and Jersey dairy heifers.

The program will begin at Grinnell Arena on campus at 7:00 P.M., Friday evening, April 28, and will include beef cattle, sheep, Morgan horses and Guernsey and Holstein heifers. The Co-ed Milking Contest is scheduled for 8:20 P.M.

The Saturday program will begin at 8:20 A.M. and continue throughout the day with the Champion Showman being selected at 3:15 P.M. The popular Parade of "Farm Babies" featuring the calves, foals, lambs and pigs born on the University Farm this Spring is scheduled for 2:00 P.M.

The Contest is an integral part of the management courses taught by the Department and provides the contestants with first-hand experience and an opportunity to improve their skills in fitting and showing all classes of farm animals. Again this year the former Bay State Dairy Classic and Little International Livestock Show are being combined into a single event.

WMUA Election Coverage Presents

CLASS CANDIDATES NIGHT

Wednesday, from 8:00 - 11:00 p.m.

Hosted by ACTION "67's"

Pete Ward & Pres. John Mullin

At 8:00 — The 1970 Presidential Candidates

At 9:00 — The 1969 Presidential Candidates

At 10:00 — The 1970 V.P. Candidates

KEEP UP WITH THE CAMPUS ON WMUA 91.1 FM

People Talk About BOB JOYCE

"Bob worked very closely with me on Winter Carni this year in an executive capacity. I know he has the ability, experience, and imagination to create a great one next year. He deserves your support.

Sincerely,
DICK WOOD, President
Class of 1968

"Talking with other people and with Bob himself, I have been impressed with his experiences and his ideas. His "Seven Proposals for Progress" are especially impressive. I hope you will support him in tomorrow's class election.

Sincerely,
TEDDY McDONOUGH

"I know Bob Joyce, to be a competent and dedicated worker for student rights from his service on my committee this year. He is experienced in working with students, faculty, and administration at all levels, gathering facts and carrying projects through to completion.

Sincerely,
JACKIE HALL, former Chairman
Senate Women's Affairs Committee

"I have worked with Bob Joyce for several months on the Senate Alcoholic Beverages Committee. His work on this committee has been outstanding in shaping a new, enlightened University alcoholic beverages policy.

Sincerely,
CHRIS McGAHAN, Senate Member,
Alcoholic Beverages Committee

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

Vietnam

The Senate has erupted into renewed and bitter debate over the Vietnam war.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland's report to Congress Friday appears to be an administration bid for wider support as the air attacks are intensified against North Vietnam.

Nort Vietnam claims the U.S. raid on Haiphong killed or wounded more than 100 civilians and shot up a British freighter.

U.S. planes are dropping bombs on North and South Vietnam targets at the rate of more than 3,000 pounds a minute.

The Soviet Union turns down an American request for a joint move to try to improve the lot of U.S. prisoners in North Vietnam.

National

An Air Force radar picket plane with 16 aboard catches fire over Nantucket Island and plunges into the Atlantic when the pilot decides not to risk landing in a populated area.

It has been two years since Philadelphia restricted the sal of rifles and shotguns as a crime deterrent measure. Police point to a 13.2 per cent drop in homicides as a possible effect of the ban.

A mass demonstration followed by a threat of racial violence upsets Eastman Kodak's annual stockholders meeting.

Hospital records detail the horror a 19-year-old youth suffers when he learns—too late—he cannot stand the hallucinations produced by LSD.

Massachusetts

General Dynamics Corp. plant at Quincy, Mass., has been awarded a Navy contract of $23,838,000 for construction of a dock landing ship.

The contract was announced Tuesday by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Rep. James A. Burke, Massachusetts Democrats.

Charles Sweeney of Quincy, Mass., was elected a director of the National School Boards Association Tuesday. He represents the Northeast Region on the board.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., proposed Tuesday an amendment to the Housing Act of 1955 to authorize loans to private, nonprofit organizations for construction or improvement of museums, theaters or like cultural facilities.

BOSTON (AP) — The Joint Committee on Taxation has approved Gov. John A. Volpe's bill to make the 3% limited sales tax permanent.

The committee reported the bill favorable Monday over objections of four Democratic members—Sen. George V. Kenneally, Jr., Boston, the chairman; Sen. Stephen C. Davenport, Boston; Rep. Frederic W. Schlesstein, Jr., Warren; and Rep. Edward J. Dever, Jr., Arlington.

Rep. Michael Catino, D.-Medford, chairman of the House group, said the committee made no changes in the governor's measure. He said the committee has yet to consider bills to make changes in the sales tax.

The sales tax will expire Dec. 31 unless renewed or made permanent by the legislature.

U.S. Planes Drop 3,000 Pounds of Bombs Per Minute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tactic is bomb, bomb, bomb—and U.S. planes are doing it over North and South Vietnam at the incredible rate of more than 3,000 pounds a minute around the clock.

In March as the administration quickened its drumbeat of explosive persuasion against Communist targets in the two countries, American planes unleashed 77,000 tons of bombs—a one-month record for the war.

This total is just short of the 80,000 tons dropped in Europe during the average month of the peak year of bombing in World War II.

With the recent intensification of raids over the North and the widening of the approved target list, the April tonnage seems likely to exceed the World War II rate.

The 77,000 tons in March compares with 29,000 tons per month spilled against the Japanese at the height of World War II operations in the Pacific, and with 17,000 tons a month dropped during the Korean War.

The bulk of the effort is directed at North Vietnam, although airpower is used on an unprecedented scale to support ground operations in the South.

In various configurations and sizes—from 250 pounds to one-tonners, plain impact typ s to delayed fuses—bombs are hitting virtually anything directly or indirectly associated with Communist operations in South Vietnam.

This includes roads, highways, bridges, railroads, trucks, boats, barges, fuel tanks—and most recently major power plants and MIG fields in North Vietnam.

March production almost went over 100,000 tons, and bomb stocks in Vietnam surged from 61,000 tons in inventory a year ago to 209,000 tons on hand last month.

Officials, concerned that "we're going to sink the whole place with the weight of bomb tonnage," called for a cutback, and production for April, May, June and July is being trimmed to 80,000 tons monthly.

MILITARY RULES IN GREECE

ATHENS (AP) — Troops were withdrawn from most parts of Athens today as calm prevailed throughout Greece, but the new military government kept the country under tight rein.

The newrulers are acting under a 55-yr.-old siege law that strips the people of most of the guarantees normal to a democracy.

The law provides for:

- Arrest of anyone without a warrant and indefinite detention awaiting trial;
- No bail for political prisoners;
- Bans on gatherings of more than five persons, labor unions and all strikes;
- Censorship of press, radio, letters and all other communications.

The law was bolstered by an army order giving military authorities the right to search private homes; requiring all hunting rifles, shotguns and ammunition to be turned in to the nearest police station; canceling all hunting licenses and forbiding all hunting, and requiring heads of households to report all persons living with them and any visitors or foreigners.

The government announced, however, that it has set up a special office to receive complaints against the new regime. The announcement said that if a grievance is not satisfied within 48 house, the complainant can take his case to the Interior Ministry.

There still was no word when King Constantine would make his promised speech supporting the new government installed after the army coup last Friday. The government insists that the 26-yr.-old monarch supports the coup and would prove it by addressing the nation and presiding over a Cabinet meeting this week.

Constantine has kept silent and out of sight. Informants said he is spending most of his time at the Tatoi summer palace outside Athens with his wife, Queen Anne - Marie and their infant daughter, Alexia.

In an obvious move to win support of the rural population, Premier Constantine Kollias a n - nounced that farmers' pensions would be increased by 70% by the end of the year.

In Washington, State Dept. press officer Robert J. McCloskey told a news conference the U.S. government is reviewing its military and economic aid for Greece.

"No basic decision has been made," said McCloskey.

Most of the aid is military. In 1966, economic aid was $6.8 million and military aid $78.7 million.

International

President Johnson meets again with Chancellor Kiesinger before returning to Washington.

Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, a visitor in Southern California since Sunday, leaves today for Voncouver, B.C.

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — King Mahendra and Queen Ratna of Nepal will pay a state visit to the U.S. soon to mark completion of 20 years of diplomatic relations between the 2 nations.

An official source said no date has yet been set for the visit, which will be the king's second to the U.S. He went to Washington in 1960 at the invitation of former Pres. Eisenhower.

NEW YORK (AP) — More than $6 million worth of heroin, marijuana, cocaine, opium and LSD will be dumped in the city's garbage incinerator and go up in smoke Wednesday.

Police said Tuesday they will also throw in the syringes, hypodermic needles a n d opium pipes they have seized during the past year.

The burnings are annual events. Extra AP

Washington

Sen. Russell B. Long wins a key test in the fight to save his campaign financing law.

The Teamsters Union says the membership vote on a national contract may be indecisive enough to force a second balloting.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A million Americans a year are giving up smoking, the surgeon general says.

But cigarette sales are hardly suffering.

Dr. William H. Stewart noted today that 541 billion cigarettes were sold in 1966, an increase of 12.5 billion over 1965.

Stewart also released a warning by the National Advisory Cancer Council that lung cancer is on the increase. In a recent 4-month period, the council said, 18,000 Americans died of lung cancer.

Radar Plane Crashes Off Nantucket Island

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP) — A flaming radar picket plane with 16 men aboard plunged into the Atlantic Ocean Tuesday night after the pilot apparently tried to avoid hitting homes on Nantucket Island.

"I am convinced that this boy was fighting desperately to get it to the water and avoid this summer colony," said Albert L. Manning, one of three private pilots who agreed that a last-minute maneuver kept the craft from striking the island.

"It skidded along the water for about 4,000 feet and when it hit there was this huge burst of fire and a big red fireball," said Rene A. Orleans. "I'd never seen anything like it."

At the controls of the four-engine Superconstellation when it went down about a half-mile off shore was Col. James P. Lyle, 47, commander of the 551st Airborne Early Warning and Control Wing at Otis Air Force Base in Falmouth.

The navigator of the craft, Lt. Joseph H. Guenet, 29, was rescued by a search helicopter shortly after the crash.

Two bodies were recovered and a night-long search by Air Force and Coast Guard units was intensified at dawn.

Officials at Otis said they had reports before the crash that crewmen were manning individual life rafts for a ditched landing at sea, but there were doubts that many could have survived the explosion.

If the crewmen were able to do their rubber shuits and escape in the life rafts, they could survive at sea "for a considerable period of time," Col. John M. Konosky, wing vice commander, told a news conference at Otis.

The crash was the third fatal plunge in less than two years involving Otis radar planes, which fly air defense missions between Newfoundland and Bermuda. The propeller-driven craft cost $2.5 million and carry additional millions worth of radar equipment.

The craft was less than 10 minutes out of Otis and carried about 7,330 gallons of fuel.

Stalin's Daughter Publishes Memoirs

NEW YORK (AP) — Svetlana Alliluyeva reportedly is considering writing a sequel to her soon-to-be-published memoirs describing her life in the Soviet Union after the death of Stalin, her father.

She has told friends the book might center on the disillusionment she and other Russian liberals experienced when curbs on free expression were not lifted following the dictator's death.

Her first book, to be published by Harper & Row Oct. 16, ends with her father's death and deals with her childhood, family life and gradual estrangement from Stalin.

When she arrived here from Switzerland last Friday, she explained in a statement she had come "to seek the self-expression that had been denied me so long in Russia."

Today Mrs. Alliluyeva will hold a news conference at which she is expected to enlarge on that statement and detail her future plans. It will be televised and broadcast live by all major networks beginning at 2 p.m. EST.

Reporters were asked to submit their questions in writing in advance for the scheduled 1-hour session at the Plaza Hotel.

On her arrival, Mrs. Alliluyeva greeted newsmen at Kennedy airport warmly but declined to answer questions. Her written statement said she had grown disillusioned with communism with age and experience.

Johnson Meets With Kiesinger

BONN, Germany (AP) — President Johnson met again today with West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger before returning to Washington.

The meeting today was the second session for the two leaders since Johnson's arrival Sunday to attend the state funeral Tuesday of former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

The two government chiefs met for 90 minutes Monday and laid out a program for today's talk. The topics included the proposed treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons, U.S. troop withdrawals from Europe and the Kennedy Round of tarrif negotiations.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson met with Swedish Prime Minister Tage Erlander, presumably to discuss Britain's plans to apply for Common Market membership. Both Britain and Sweden are members of the rival European Free Trade Association.

The funeral for Adenauer, who died last Wednesday at the age of 91, gave Western leaders a chance to discuss questions of mutual interest.

Johnson, French President Charles de Gaulle, Wilson and Kiesinger held meetings between the funeral ceremonies Tuesday to talk about unity within the Western Alliance. De Gaulle flew back to Paris Tuesday night.

It was Johnson's first meeting with De Gaulle since President John F. Kennedy's funeral in November 1963. Aides reported that they said little beyond expressing hope they would meet again.

Later in the day Johnson saw Premier Aldo Moro of Italy who, like the Germans, has misgivings about the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. Both nations fear it will hamper their development of nuclear energy for industrial purposes.

Russells 'War Crimes Tribunal' Begins

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) British philosopher Bertrand Russell's "war crimes tribunal" to condemn American policy in Vietnam will begin sessions here Wednesday, its organizers say, despite renewed opposition by the Swedish government.

Pres. Charles de Gaulle last week barred the tribunal from rance, and Swiss authorities last month forbade the tribunal to meet in Geneva.

Premier Tage Erlander said Monday the government did not welcome the tribunal and that he had made this clear to its organizers last fall.

AP WIRE STAFF
EDITOR: Richard S. Kline
STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Roupenian
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini

SENIOR HONORS PROJECT

Fathers and Sons in Literature

by JANINE HERMSDORF

While studying on the Oxford summer program last year, Lorna Sass noticed that a great deal of her reading material was concerned with the relationship between fathers and sons. Writing a paper on it, she became more and more engrossed in the subject. Back at the UMass this fall, she decided to enlarge it into a Senior Honors thesis. She is writing a comparative study of Jewish faithers and sons and Christian fathers and sons as portrayed in 20th Century literature.

LORNA SASS

Miss Sass is a perceptive, mature and confident young woman. Her choice of topic for an honors thesis is very appropriate as she devotes much time to reading.

Some interesting conclusions have evolved from her research. She claims, "In Jewish families the father-son relationship is much more profoundly influential on the success of the son's future life. The son is trying to break away from the father. In the Jewish novel the whole time is taken up with the son trying to break away and he never does.

"In a Christian novel, the son does break away because Christianity provides rituals such as confession in Roman Catholicism."

Miss Sass believes that the Christian son says he must break away to be religious. He interprets Christianity differently than his father does and he uses this rationalization effectively and convincingly to himself because he was brought up in the Christian tradition.

Miss Sass had become so completely involved in the subject that she radiated excitement as each idea was expressed.

"Judiasm doesn't provide this set-up for externalizing guilt," she claimed. "In other words, there is a lot of guilt inherent in the father-son relationship. In Christianity a lot of this feeling is transferred to the son's feelings toward God or to religion. He's guilty for sinning because he didn't go to church. In the Jewish father-son relationship, the son is guilty because he can't communicate with his father."

The system of God with Christ as a son doesn't exist in Judiasm. Also, the Jewish God is more of a Jehovah-type God; he is angry and jealous. The Christian God is loving and there is therefore more room for forgiveness in the Christian break away, she continued.

One of the greatest problems Miss Sass had was defining her terms. She distinguished Christianity from Judiasm in the following way: "Christianity is a religion of dogma and rules are defined so that it is easier to have a relationship with someone without getting all mixed up. Judiasm is an ethical religion. It doesn't have as many rules to live by in a day to day way as Christianity does. This has profound implications in the father and son in Judiasm because there's no established custom.

"I feel," she continued, "that the Bar Mitzvah was first established because someone noticed that there was this tremendous difficulty with the Jewish son assuming the responsibility of an adult. After the Bar Mitzvah, he's a man! It doesn't do a damn bit of good, but that's what they intended."

Have her theories been substantiated in her own relationships with males? she admitted that they hadn't because "it's a very touchy subject and guys are not generally very vocal about it."

Miss Sass said she has enjoyed working on the project thoroughly. She has read some of her background books as much as three times and claims she enjoyed them more each time. She has had some obstacles in her work. "I find the actual writing is very hard," she said, "I have my ideas but getting them on paper in a good strong way is very tedious. Also, it's very hard to keep up in courses. You sort of have to turn on and off. You get really excited about your paper and then you have an exam in two days so you've got to just forget about it."

Oxford is not the only European school Miss Sass has attended. Second semester last year she took part in a program in Florence, Italy. After the terrible floods which devastated Florence last November, she took it upon herself to help organize fund-raising committees to aid the thousands of poor Italian families who had lost so much.

Eventually, Miss Sass will work for her masters' degree in English and become a professional journalist, but for the moment she wants to travel more. Next summer she plans to visit Israel, where she hopes to spend two months on a kibbutz learning Hebrew and then work on a newspaper in one of the port cities.

The Department of Air Science and the Department of Engineering are proud to announce that John F. Hayden of Athol, Massachusetts, has been awarded the Society of American Military Engineers ROTC Award.

This award is presented annually to 20 outstanding Air Force ROTC cadets enrolled in an accredited undergraduate engineering curriculum throughout the United States.

Cadet Hayden was selected by Lt. Colonel Roy D. Simmons, Jr., the Professor of Air Science at the University of Massachusetts, as the "Outstanding Engineering Student of the year" in the Air Force ROTC Unit.

Amherst Town Fair On the Way!

What? Another Queen's Contest? More Beauty Pageants on campus? What's THIS one for??? Well, this one is for the Amherst Fair, and it's different.

On May 12 and 13 the town of Amherst breaks itself wide open. There are ferris wheels, merry-go-rounds, scramblers, and flying bullets on the Town Common. There is cotton candy, hot buttered popcorn, popsicles, shelled peanuts, and lime sherbet. There are straw golf hats, Mexican hats, gaudy cloth hats, wild shirts, short shorts, and Hawaiian leis.

There are booths where you can throw darts, or pennies, or baseballs, or water balloons. There are kids, teeny-bops, professors, and old-timers. On Saturday morning there will be a mile long Parade, featuring Larry Siegfreid of the Boston Celtics who will be on hand later to sign autographs and answer hecklers, and Saturday night will see the biggest Battle of the Bands in Western Mass history.

Displays and demonstrations of various kinds will be open all day Saturday, and on Friday evening, the Queen of the Amherst Fair will be crowned.

There will be twelve candidates, six from UMass and six from the local high schools, and YOU will be the judges. You can vote for your favorite by dropping money into jars in the Student Union and in various stores in town.

The University entries in the contest will be the winners of all the past Beauty Contests on campus this year, including: Joan Dombrowski, Winter Carni; Sue Hewitt, Las Vegas Night; Jane Ludlow, University Playmate; and Robin Sanders, Homecoming.

So watch for the display with the girls' pictures, listen for the sounds of the Parade, wait for the smells of the popcorn and candy, and COME TO THE FAIR!

KENNEDY . . .

(Continued from page 1)

Kennedy asked for a much broader method of determining public opinion to be developed. Since we, in this country, rely heavily on public opinion polls, we should enlarge them. "We could develop a system where, through a nationwide educational network, everyone with access to a television set would be able to watch a discussion or debate on, for example, whether to give economic aid to nations with military dictatorships. Then, by dialing a number on their telephone or by punching a response on a box hooked to the television set, they could record their opinions."

These computer polls would not be a referendum, but merely a much broader and more effective method of measuring public opinion than we have now. They would give people a greater feeling that their voices were being heard.

Finally, the Senator indicated that the people should be more greatly involved in Presidential elections through presidential primaries, tax deductions for contributions, and easier techniques for getting on the ballot. All of these could make primaries into significant referendums on the most vital issues of the day. This, he said, would help to channel the present unrest into the traditional political process.

In conclusion the Senator said: "Adopting these recommendations may not end the protest movements. It will not make our government perfect or restore democracy to what it was in ancient Athens, but it will give our people a stake in what is done in their name and with their taxes."

The question-answer period which followed the speech gave the Senator a chance to show off his Kennedy-dynamic personality as well as express his views on controversial issues.

One such view was to lower the voting age to 18 in all states. "My brother Bobby would like to see it lowered to 14!" quipped the Senator.

Phi Sigma Delta
ANNUAL M.D. DRIVER
OPEN AIR DANCE with WMUA
POLAROID CAMERAS
to winning tickets
50¢ apiece 2 for 75¢
at
S.U. LOBBY

CO-ED CAMP
on Cape Cod is seeking qualified male staff members to instruct Swimming & Camp Craft.
Please contact
MR. MARK BUDD
37 Cedar St.
Newton Center, Mass.

Mathematics Graduate or Associate
A job of exceptional promise for the future, and better than average income for the immediate, with top-level advancement.
IS THIS FOR YOU?
G & M
145 State Street
Springfield, Mass.
Call Dr. De Friesse 739-1133

Re-elect
STEVE WEISMAN
Treasurer of the Class of '70
- Freshman Treasurer
- 4 College Freshman Council member
- Executive Council member

BI-LINGUAL THEATER

'Yerma' Coming to Smith

The third major production of the Smith College Department of Theatre and Speech will be a bilingual production of Federico Garcia Lorca's YERMA.

YERMA wil be presented in English on May 3, 4, 5, and 6; and in Spanish on May 12, 13, and 14. The performances will begin at 8:00 p.m., and will take place in the Smith College Theatre, Alumnae Gymnasium.

YERMA is a haunting play which deals with the most elemental human passions. The story of a woman whose childlessness becomes an obsession, YERMA is a thrilling dramatic spectacle, written by the playwright considered by many to be the greatest of the twentieth century. This production will be staged in a highly theatrical manner, including the use of dancing and masks.

The English production of YERMA is being directed by John G. Fisher, chairman of the Department of Theatre and Speech. The settings have been designed by William E. Hatch, also of the department.

Special music has been composed by Edwin London of the music department, and the dancing is choreographed by Miss Deborah Zall, a professional dancer and choreographer from New York City, now a guest artist on the Smith faculty whose work has been seen at such places as the Edinburgh Festival.

Mail orders for both productions of YERMA will be accepted beginning April 26. Subscription tokens (for English version only) may be redeemed by mail beginning April 24. (A stamped, self-addressed envelope and check or money order payable to Smith College should be included.)

Box office hours at the Smith College Theatre are 10:00-12:00 and 4:00-5:45, Monday through Friday, May 1 through May 12; 10:00-12:00 Saturday mornings, May 6 and May 13; and from 7:00 on the evenings of performance. All seats are reserved.

Admission is $1.50, regular; and $1.00 for students and faculty of the Four Colleges. Special group rates on request. Phone reservations will be accepted during box office hours; the number is 584-2700, ext. 474.

SUMMER INTERNSHIP PROGRAM 1967

A complete application for the Summer Internship Program will include the following:

1. A completed application form.
2. A letter of recommendation from a professor in your major field of study.
3. A transcript of your complete academic record from all the institutions of higher education you have attended.

All these materials should be submitted at the same time, preferably in the same envelope. If you must have transcripts or letters sent separately, please enclose a note to this effect.

All applications must be submitted with all the above materials by Frl., Apr. 28. No envelopes postmarked later than midnight Apr. 28 will be accepted. Extensions of time will not be granted.

Lecture on Urban Problems

Edward C. Banfield, professor of government at Harvard University, will speak at Wright Hall, Smith College on April 28. His lecture, "The Urban Problem," will take place at 4:15 p.m. and it is open to the public.

Mr. Banfield holds the Edgar Shattuck Chair of Urban Government at Harvard. Included among the books he has written are: "Political Influence," "City Politics" (with James Q. Wilson) and "Politics, Planning and the Public Interest" (with Martin Meyerson).

THE STUDENT SENATE PUBLIC RELATIONS COMMITTEE HAS AVAILABLE LIMITED APPLICATIONS FOR PARTICIPATION the 22nd annual National Student Leadership Institute at the United Nations, June 10-17, 1967. Discussion groups; speakers include Goldberg. Leave name and phone in Senate Office, Public Relations mail box.

DVP PRESENTS:

Scottish Week at UMass

Noted Scottish poet Hugh MacDiarmid (pronounced MacDermott), guest for a week of the University of Massachusetts on his first U.S. visit, will make his second public appearance at UMass Thursday, April 27.

The world-famed lyric poet, political rebel and Scottish nationalist spoke on "Poetry and Science" Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium. He will read from his works Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium.

Two other events are scheduled in connection with the MacDiarmid visit. Wednesday, April 26 at 8:30 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium, Scottish poet Norman Mac Caig, accompanying MacDiarmid on the U.S. visit, will read his poetry. Friday, April 28, at 8:30 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium Norman Kennedy will sing traditional Scottish folk songs.

All events are sponsored by the UMass Distinguished Visitors Program and are open to the public without charge. In addition to their public appearances at UMass, MacDiarmid and MacCaig will also meet with students and faculty in a series of afternoon seminars and discussions.

Acknowledged to be one of the foremost contemporary poets in Europe, MacDiarmid is given credit for single-handedly sparking a Scottish literary renaissance in this century and restoring Scots as a literary language.

Famed as a political activist, he has championed the cause of Scottish nationalism and the improvement of conditions for the working class.

To mark his visit, a new edition of his collected poems edited by Dr. John C. Weston of the UMass English department is being published by the MacMillan company of New York City and the Massachusetts Review is featuring a special section in its forthcoming issue of poems by MacDiarmid and MacCaig. The latter poet represented Scotland last year at the Long Island University International Writers Conference.

Scottish folksinger Norman Kennedy will bring the Scottish week program to a close Friday with an 8:30 p.m. concert in Bartlett Auditorium.

Norman Kennedy, a native of Aberdeen, Scotland, has been hailed in this country and Europe as one of the most promising of the younger Scottish singers in the traditional style. He represented Scotland at the 1965 Newport Folk Festival.

Spring Cleanup Coming To Our Fair Town

Amherst's annual spring cleanup, weather permitting, will take place this Saturday, April 29. Under direction of the Village Improvement Association, town officals, civic groups and residents will pitch in to clean up roadsides, conservation areas and private residences.

Local organizations, including Kiwanis, 4-H clubs, boy scouts and Grange, will each clean up assigned areas. Groups not yet contacted may call the Chamber of Commerce, 253-9666, to find out where their help is needed.

Target areas this year include conservation areas such as Mill River, Groff Park play area, Pulpit Hill Road, curbsides of main roads which have become littered with debris through the winter. Homeowners are urged to join in by cleaning up and fixing up attics, cellars and yards.

Fire Chief John Doherty has asked homeowners to pay particular attention to cleaning out potential fire hazards in the home such as piles of rags and old newspapers and any defective wiring.

Chamber of Commerce officials are asking members to schedule clean-ups of their business areas on Saturday.

Letters have been sent to fraternities and sororities at Amherst College and UMass asking them to join in by raking up lawns and cleaning up houses. Last year, a number of the Greek houses used pledged classes for the project.

The town has provided several large trash containers for each town common this week. Residents may bring trash to be emptied at the commons in No. Amherst, East St. and the center.

Starting out at noon on Saturday, town trucks will make one trip along all Amherst streets. Rubbish left by homeowners at the end of driveways or otherwise near the street will be picked up.

Vote for

WILKIE WARD

Treasurer Class of '69

ELECT

JOE DOUCETTE

CLASS OF 1970

Vice-President

If elected I will . . .

. . . push for more class unity on all levels.

. . . make the Class of 1970 an integral part of the university.

. . . plan for more social, athletic, and cultural events, e.g. A spring week comparable to Winter Carni.

. . . push academic reform, e.g. more reading days and changes in the marking system.

. . . urge modification of unpopular university regulations, e.g. alcoholic beverages, open house policy, etc.

. . . strengthen dormitory and area government.

. . . urge retention of play boy nite and campus chest, and to work for the entire Class of 1970 on all matter and at all times.

1967 Summer Program Positions Open

Application Now Available

Student Activities Office – Student Union

Summer Collegian Staff Positions

Editor-in-Chief—Responsible for total operation of summer newspaper.

Business Manager — Responsible for advertising and financial aspects of summer newspaper. Assists with news coverage.

Photography Editor—Responsible for photo coverage of summer newspaper assists with news coverage and advertising.

Summer Program Assistant

Assists in supervising and coordinating summer program activities.

Part-time sign-maker

Operating line-o-scribe and embos-o-graf machines in Student Union, no previous experience necessary.

For more information contact:

PROGRAM ADVISOR, STUDENT UNION PROGRAM OFFICE.
Return Applications to Student Activities Office, S.U. by 5:00 p.m., Monday, May 1, 1967.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Vote Tomorrow

The turnout at last night's election rally sharply contrasts with what seemed to be great interest in the primary elections. We sincerely hope that this is not indicative of a declining interest in the candidates and election issues after a sustained campaign.

We hope that the number of votes which will be cast in tomorrow's final elections will confirm our high opinions of the intelligence and responsibility of the student body—particularly in affairs pertaining to its own immediate interests.

We strongly urge every student to exercise his right to vote, and to participate in th choosing of those who will be directing his class for the coming year.

See you at the polls.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

SUG Board President Speaks

A One Sided Proposition

by NEAL WHITMAN
President, SUG Board

I would like to make clear to the University Community that since the Students for Political Action requested permission to sell literature in the Student Union, the Student Union Governing Board has not only been fair to S.P.A. but has leaned over backwards to make sure the controversial group has had every benefit of the doubt. After a series of violations of both the SUG Board selling and advertising policies and a refusal by S.P.A. to deposit with R.S.O. bookkeeping the monies we allowed them to collect in the Union, I was forced to revoke their right, as a temporary R.S.O. group, to sell in the Union. No staff member asked me to do so, as was implied in last Monday's Collegian.

S.P.A.'s leaders claim that if they channeled their funds through R.S.O. bookkeeping, their funds could be frozen for political reasons. All I can say is that if this was done, I and many others would come to the support of S.P.A. But, until such a political tool is used against S.P.A., this organization has no right to violate SUG Board and R.S.O. policies.

Now, S.P.A. has de-affiliated from R.S.O. Consequently, they have reapplied for permission to sell literature in the Student Union. This permission has been given, but S.P.A. will not be allowed to make a profit in the Union.

Since the SUG Board policies are being questioned, there is a possibility that the language and implications of some of our rules are not clear. I am thankful for this opportunity for the SUG Board to review Union rules and regulations.

Let me conclude by stating that although the SUG Board is trying to allow as much flexibility as possible for S.P.A., we have to maintain a universal policy. S.P.A. appears, however, to be interested in but one unfair resolution: that any group of students should be allowed to use the Student Union without obligation. Only financial chaos can result from this one-sided proposition.

Just A Brief Note . . .

Our sincerest thanks go to the Campus Police for their willingness to lend a helping hand in a tight spot.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69

News Editor ..... Bob Gorman '67
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Bolver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP
CPS
ASSOCIATED PRESS AP

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Campus Comment

The '69 Presidential Election

To the Editor:

On page six of last Monday's Collegian, the editors claim I have no experience. On page seven is an ad naming nine student government groups I am or have been a member of. The editors might have thought to ask Dick Wood and Jackie Hall, and others how I have performed on their committees before they stated this untruth.

If active participation on the Freshman Exec Council, Sophomore Exec Council, IFC Workshop, SWAP Conference, 1966 Homecoming Committee, 1967 Winter Carni Committee, Student Senate Women's Affairs Committee, Joint Athletic Study Committee, and Alcoholic Beverages Committee is not experience, then I have none.

And the slanderous accusation that I based my campaign on "half truths" is irresponsible at the very least and libelous at worst, since it is not nor can it be substantiated.

If "Seven Proposals for Progress"—Expansion of the Exec Council, Creation of a President's Council, Re-examination of Athletic Policy, Establishment of Student Labor Relations Board, Establishment of Academic Ombudsman, Revision of Alcoholic Beverages Policy, and Co-ordination of Exec Council Sub-committee Efforts—are not examples of a positive program, then I have none.

I think the facts prove otherwise.

Bob Joyce

Collegian Endorsements Questioned

To the Editor:

I should like to take exception to the newly-instituted editorial policy of the Collegian to endorse candidates for elections to student government offices.

I refer specifically to those endorsements of candidates to the offices of Presidents of the classes of 1968 and 1969, as I feel such endorsements were groundless and perhaps coloured by considerations of personal friendship on the part of the editors.

I think that these editorials too glibly disregarded the very real merits of the other candidates. As not only a monopoly organ of communication on campus, but also a recipient of student monies paid by all students, the Collegian is obligated to be a responsible publication; and part of this responsibility includes refraining from bias and the attempt to influence campus opinion in any way derogatory to any segment of campus, including political candidates.

I therefore urge the editors to halt this potentially excessive and dangerous practice and to live up to the responsibility it incessantly proclaims but hardly ever manifests.

Jonathan Edwards
JFK Middle House

Close's Rights

To the Editor:

Mr. Finer's editorial of April 19th displays a gross misunderstanding of the Constitution. Those portions of that document that refer to states are not meant to be reinterpreted or ignored by the states. The University of Massachusetts is a state institution, not a private one, and hence subject to the Fourteenth Amendment. Mr. Close's constitutional guarantee to free speech clearly permits him to display his art in a state institution.

If various self-appointed art critics, such as Mr. Finer, wish to label these paintings "salacious latrines," their right of free speech also justifies them to do so. But such critics are not constitutionally allowed the right of arbitrary public censorship,

If Mr. Finer, or a few holier-than-thou members of the incorruptible Great and General Court are appaled by Mr. Close's art, then they are not obliged to view it. But neither are they obliged to prohibit Mr. Close's free expression. It is unknown to me by what curious logic Mr. Finer is able to equate the liberty of a man to shout fire in a theater where there is no fire with the liberty of Mr. Close to display his paintings.

A far greater threat to the public welfare comes from those who set themselves up as guardians of the public morality; who carry on witch hunts; temperance crusades and the like, than from those who seek free artistic expression.

Stephen E. Berk

"We have room in this country for but one flag — the Stars & Stripes. We have room for but one loyalty — loyalty to the United States. There can be no fifty-fifty Americanism. There is room here for only 100% Americanism—only for those who are Americans and nothing else."

—Teddy Roosevelt

The Grouse a

To the Editor:

The House Council of Baker titioned the officials of the to of Amherst for permission to a town park for the dorm picn The reply they received fr those town officials said, and quote from the official minu of the House Council "the to did not want to be exposed to indecencies of college stude picnics".

Graduate Recognition

To the Editor:

Although there are approximately 2000 graduate students at this university, no recognition of their existence has been shown by the administration.

Individual departments have tried to organize, unify, and create a feeling of "belonging" in their grads through clubs and social gatherings, but no effort has been made in the direction of inter-departmental activities.

These students are attending a branch of the university, the Graduate School, but instead of being a cohesive and organized school, it is composed of distinct individual students who have little contact with members of other departments, who have no cified meeting place, who h no separate library facilities addition to the existing st passes, a designated rea room, separate distribution of serve readings, and a more r interloan service are necess especially because of the li ry's gross deficiencies in g uate study material), and have no specific graduate so or cultural activities.

VOTE TOMORROW

I know of not one grad dent who feels that he is of this university or that he a place in its operations o than the seat he occupies class or the tuition he pays registration.

A graduate school does attract students solely on basis of the courses it offers the professors it employs, when the administration of Graduate School realizes fact, the present, disgruntled dents will not be advising th friends to go elsewhere for a tal graduate education.

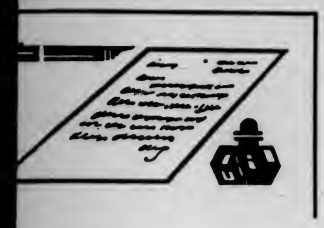
P. McMahon

Ianello's Defeat

To the Editor:

Well, a blow for legislative sanity has finally been struck. More power to thee, State Rep. Beldon Bly and all who followed you in refusing to vote on Rep. Ianello's bill which sought to order our University (and all state colleges) to "establish rules, regulations, penalties relating to standards of dress and hair style . . . consistent with good taste, proper decorum and neat appearance.

I could, I suppose, label Rep. Iannello a "right-wing ultra-conservative." But why be verbose when "ignorant" or "asinine" serves the purpose admirably?



Should Rep. Iannello's myopia relax somewhat and he's able to read this, I hope he is as offended by my forwardness as I was by his Assininity.

We are told time and t again that the future of country rests in the hands of generation. I say, "Thank G There is hope."

Michael Girouard

We need to revive on broad scale some of th common feelings arous by great religious move ments in the past—love brotherhood, patience, to erance, and above all th desire to live together i peace irrespective of dif fering political ideologies

—U THAN

New McCarthyism

To the Editor:

"While I cannot take the time to name all of the men in the State Department who have been named as members of the Communist Party and members of a spy ring, I have here in my hand a list of two hundred and five that were known to the Secretary of State as being members of the Communist Party and who nevertheless are still working and shaping the policy of the State department.

Thus spoke Senator Joe McCarthy during the Korean Conflict. It appears as though Messrs. Black and Salter in their article, Don't be a Sheep, are about to start their own Crusade to rid our great university of any evil influences.

Wayne L. Dorris '68

nd the Golden Egg

First, I reject the inane assumption that college students are indecent, because I am a college student and I challenge those so-called town officials to prove they are any more decent than I am.

Second, I resent their backhanded swipe at the very people that: one, make Amherst known and respected across the state and nation two, keep Amherst rolling in cash and prevents it from becoming a sleepy western Massachusetts town with a negative growth rate of .4.

I think that I am within my rights to ask the officials of Amherst to be more responsible in their treatment of my fellow students and as a taxpayer I request those officials to recognize exactly who (if I may, be permitted to use the analogy) is the goose that lays their golden egg.

Robert S. Chase

COLLEGIAN

STAFF MEETING

★ ★

THURSDAY NIGHT

8 O'CLOCK

★ ★

If you are note

able to attend,

please notify your department editor.

Leap into Spring

JOIN UMASS PARACHUTE CLUB

Hampshire Room, S.U.
Thurs., April 27, 1967

WHATSIT Contest Resumes

Our slow - starting Whatsit contest is finally off the ground.

Identify this photograph and receive a free black and white portrait by a Collegian photographer.

Write down your guess along with your name and address and deposit it in the Whatsit box in the Collegian office.

The winners will be drawn next Tuesday by the Collegian secretary.

The One-Man Parade

by ARTHUR HOPPE, Chronicle Features

Someone asked me why all those people marched out of Kezar Stadium in San Francisco last Saturday to protest the war in Vietnam. And I don't really know.

There were hippies ond old-time radicals and serious looking college students and teeny-boppers and a large sprinkling of middle-class, middle-aged, middling-ordinary Americans.

Some carried banners of hate and some carried banners of love. Some, I suppose, marched out of bitterness, some to change the world and some simply for a lark.

All I know is why I marched. I marched for me.

* * *

I went out of a grim sense of duty. I have that middle-class aversion to marching, to making a public spectacle of myself, to laying myself open to the comments of those standing on the curb—particularly to marching in a minority cause.

I doubted my marching would alter the course of our foreign policy. I doubted my marching would save a single life. I don't hate our leaders, nor am I able to love all human beings. I simply wanted, by marching, to divorce myself from any responsibility for the war in Vietnam.

I think the war is both illogical and immoral. And should some final judgment ever prove me right, I could then say smugly, "Yes, but I marched against it." What an easy way to absolve your guilt.

So I went to the march grim, ill at ease, self-righteous. I went to march for me. I stayed because I enjoyed it so.

I enjoyed the festival air of the marchers around me, all of us smiling and laughing and gentle with each other, warmed by the bond of having gathered in a common cause. I enjoyed the excitement of the rain showers, the tinkly bells and flowers on the hippies and picnicking on the grass.

I enjoyed the sight of a little tow-headed boy, no more than four or five, standing by a tree with a sign saying, 'Stupid War.' How stupid, we agreed, it seemed.

I enjoyed sitting in the stadium in the sun under the rain-washed sky with all those thousands of others. Here, in the stadium, we were the majority, the consensus, the establishment. How secure we were in our shared beliefs.

Then, out of a tunnel came that little band of pro-Vietnam demonstrators, waving their American flags and placard saying, "Support Our Men in Vietnam." I couldn't help but admire their courage. Yet we many thousands allowed them to parade around the track unharmed.

We tolerated these dissidents the way the world outside the stadium had tolerated us. How proud I was of both them and us.

So I walked home through the park all aglow. What a lovely day it had been. What a marvelous capacity our society has for tolerating dissent. How healthy, despite everything, our democracy still is. How good I felt about it all.

* * *

The next day on TV, Mr. Dean Rusk said that we marchers had probably prolonged the war by taking part in these Communist-backed demonstrations and while we certainly weren't traitors...

Slowly, inexorably, I could feel something inside me which had opened up the day before in the park close shut. Once again I was marching in a one-man parade. Once again I was marching for me.

From Men's Affairs...

It has seemed to many students that to "be someone" on campus it has been necessary to be a Greek. There have been two causes for this.

First, the Greek system has contained virtually all of the capable men on campus. But note the past tense. With the opening of the residential colleges a great many of the very best have chosen to remain non-Greek, so that presently one cannot distinguish a Greek from a non-Greek on the basis of ability.

The second reason was, and still is, that the Greeks are the only ones who have taken an appreciable interest in campus life to work for its improvement.

I have recently heard charges that some selection boards on campus are prejudiced. No such charges have, nor indeed can they, be levied against the Student Judicial System. It is assumed that there is no better way to "be someone" than to be of service to the entire University community. Then there is no position on campus with as much responsibility and prestige as being a member of the Men's Court of Justice.

The Men's Court of Justice exercises the right to accept or revoke appeals from lower judicial boards, advise these boards on judicial matters, and may review all laws passed by the Student Senate regarding their Constitutionality.

It's a lot of work and can be done only by men who have a responsibility to the student body and personal ambition, both backed by demonstrable ability. The University has been fortunate in the past in having a number of such men apply for the positions that become open in the Court. This weekend, selections are again being made for the Class of '69 (Sun., 1 p.m., Dukes Room of the S.U.), and the Class of '70 (Sat., 1 p.m., Dukes Room of the S.U.). It will be interesting to note whether the non-Greeks are willing to back-up their claim of equality to the Greeks. Applications are now available in the R. S. O. Office.

HAL BOYLE...

Jumping to Conclusions

NEW YORK (AP)—Jumping to conclusions:

If zoo gorillas were fed the same diet that most teen-age kids choose, they'd never grow to maturity.

Your nerves are in pretty good shape if you can let a telephone go on ringing simply because you don't feel like talking over one at the moment. The average person is a compulsive telephone answerer: He is afraid not to pick up the receiver for fear he will miss an important message, although the chances of his doing so are slim. Opportunity may knock on a man's door but once—but his telephone will ring 10,000 times.

Circus elephants look sadder than they used to. Maybe they're tired of being paid in peanuts.

We'll find it easier to believe in a better world whenever television puts on a successful soap opera about characters who lead happy lives. As it is now, many women who watch these shows feel frustrated because their own lives are so normal they are bored to tears.

The chances are one in five that the next fellow you meet will have a good luck silver dollar in his pocket or in a drawer at home—and that's one reason they are becoming so scarce.

People who are content to drink hot coffee from paper cups regularly probably never expected very much from life anyway.

God, of course, is not dead at all—or even in bad health. But there do seem to be more ministers going to psychiatrists for help than there are psychiatrists going to ministers. Man is just more myopic toward diety.

Half the pretty young girls who carry hat boxes along the streets here do so in the fond hope that they will be mistaken for fashion models.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM

Poetry and the Modern Scottish Renaissance

with

HUGH MacDIARMID

★ considered by many the most remarkable poet now writing in English
★ first American visit
★ accompanied by fellow Scots poet Norman MacCaig

EVENTS FOR WEEK INCLUDE:

POETRY READING—Norman Mac Caig
April 25—8:30, Mahar

POETRY READING—Hugh Mac Diarmid
April 26—8:30, Mahar

SCOTTISH FOLKSONGS—Norman Kennedy
April 28—8:30, Bartlett

Selma Civil Rights Group Seeks Student Volunteers

The Organization Of The Rural Poor, a civil rights group based in Selma, Alabama, is seeking college students for volunteer civil rights activity in three Southern states beginning June 17th 1967 throughout the summer or for a minimum of four weeks.

All expenses will be paid for students to live and work among Negro sharecroppers in Georgia, Mississippi and Alabama in order to collect data to document the economic basis of the racist caste system in the rural South.

This information will be vital for political and legal action to drastically alter the oppressive living conditions which now prevail. Details will be furnished to those responding.

An orientation session will be held in Atlanta, Georgia where speakers will include Stokely Carmichael and representatives of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party (MFDP) and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) who will prepare the students for the project.

For further information, you may write to the:

Organization of the Rural Poor
1430 First Avenue
Selma, Alabama 36701

NOTICES

EDUCATION CLUB
Elections of officers for 1967-1968 will be held on Wed., May 3, in Room 123 of Ed. Bldg at 7:30 P.M. Reports will also be given on "The Northeastern Regional Conference for Student Teachers and Beginning Teachers of the Disadvantaged (AACTE and USOE)" and the "100-Cities Assembly of the Year of the Non-Conference (NCTEPS)"
Now is the time to sign up for the State convention at Hotel Somerset in Boston on May 6th. Call Mike Glickman, 6-7646, to reserve your space.

MED TECH CLUB
On Wed., April 26 at 7 P.M. in Public Health Auditorium, plans for forming the Alpha Delta Theta National Sorority for Medical Technologists will be discussed. All interested are welcome.

MEN'S JUDICIARY SELECTIONS
From class of 1970—1 Justice, on Sat., April 29 at 1:00 P.M. in Dukes Room. From Class of 1969—2 Justices, at 1:00 P.M. on Sun., April 30, in Dukes Room. Applications in RSO office.

NEWMAN CLUB
On April 30, from 9:15-11:45 A.M. in North Dining Commons there will be an Annual Communion Breakfast with speaker Rev. Raymond J. Swords, President of Holy Cross College. Donation 99¢, tickets at Newman Center.
On Friday, April 28, frm 8-12 P.M. in Social Hall, there will be a dance, with "The Believers." Non-members—50¢, Members—free.

RSO PRESIDENTS
Please return the senate questionaires. If you have not received one, there are copies in the RSO office over message boxes.

JFK LIBRARY COMMITTEE
There will be a meeting on April 27, 1967, at 10:00 A.M. in the Norfolk Room.

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB
There is a meeting on April 27, at 7 P.M. in Hampshire Rm. Films will be shown. All welcome.

SCROLLS
There is a meeting on April 27, at 6:30 P.M. in Memorial Hall. New Scrolls will have pictures taken in S.U. Ballroom at 11:30 A.M. on April 27.

STUDENT SENATE
The Student Senate will meet this evening in the Council Chambers at 7 P.M. Students, faculty and other members of the University community are invited to attend.

PRE-MEDS
Due to difficulties in arranging the itinerary for our trip, it has become necessary to limit attendance to the first 15 Pre-Meds who bring two dollars in an envelope with their name on it to the Pre-Med office.
All others may leave their name in the event of openings arising.

MARKETING CLUB
Election of officers will be held on Thurs., April 27, in Room 109, SBA, at 7:00 P.M. All interested in running, please let one of the officers know before Thursday. All members, active or not, please make an effort to attend. Plans for picnic to be held early in May will be discussed.

NORTH DINING COMMONS COMMITTEE
There will be a meeting on Thurs., April 27, at 12:20 in line one. All members and interested students are encouraged to attend.

LOST:
Gold link and pearl bracelet at dress rehearsal on Thursday, April 13 at Bowker Aud. Grandson's gift. Please contact Mrs. Kirby, Lambda Delta Phi, 549-1208.

FOUND:
A watch, found in Engineering 118-120, at the close of the Math 186 exam on Jan. 18. See Mr. Allen, Arnold 215.
Man's class ring, for class of '67. Contact Registrar's office.

PINNINGS:
Nancy Worobel, class of '70 Central Conn. State College, to Thomas Simpson, class of '68, Delta Chi.
Mary Jane Madden, class of '70, Eugene Field, to Henry Laferriere, class of '69, Q.T.V.

THE NEW BREED

A new frontier imposes a natural process of selection. You can meet the people that you would see on top of a high ski run which had no chair left, and you can do it without the effort of climbing.....just let gravity take its course: it's all downhill at the PARACHUTES' INCORPORATED CENTERS.

The Centers are staffed and equipped to put you out on your first jump immediately following a time-tested four hour period of instruction. ($35 for everything involved in making the jump.) Safety is insured through the use of automatically opening main parachutes, FAA approved ten-place jump aircraft (your entire class jumps together), radio communication to the student, all-sand drop zones, and constant, overall supervision by professional instructors both in the aircraft and on the ground. (92,600 jumps to date, over 9,200 of which were first jump students)

For further details, write:

ORANGE SPORT PARACHUTING CENTER
POST OFFICE BOX 96
ORANGE, MASSACHUSETTS 01364
Tel. 617-544-6911

LAKEWOOD SPORT PARACHUTING CENTER
POST OFFICE BOX 258
LAKEWOOD, NEW JERSEY 08701
Tel. 201-363-4900

PI

IMPORTANT COLLEGIAN STAFF MEETING

Attendance is Mandatory
Thursday, April 27, 8:00 P.M. in the COLLEGIAN office

If you are not able to attend, please leave your name at the news desk by Thursday. Anyone wishing to join the COLLEGIAN staff may apply at this meeting.

THE EDITORS

REPENT

... and vote

for

Gloria Forgione

Secretary

Class of 1970

We the 600 undersigned members of the CLASS OF 1970

SUPPORT BRUCE BALBONI FOR

SOPHOMORE CLASS PRESIDENT

David Torrey
Richard Provenzano
Ben White
Debbie Shaw
Jack Rankin
James Healy
Edward Currier
Barrie Wagenfeld
John Higgins
Neal Lookner
John Maloney
Carol Leppanen
Vincent Voci
Robert D. Fowler
Edmund Kenney
David Giguere
Marilyn August
John Pranulis
Tim Koska
Ralph Cutler
John Proctor
Kevin J. Hart
Eric White
John L. Artobile
Ralph Cunningham
Mike Hanna
Andrew Jewett
Brian Shannon
Richard Gates
John Shaughnessy
George Rakauskas
William Falion
John E. Campbell
Bert Rappaport
Stanley Ossman
Dale A. Pope
Thomas A. Scanlon
Ernest Provencher
William Eckart
Donald Tenguo
Glenn Walker
Barry Weinberg
Peter Geilach
David A. Zarattero
Arthur Zarh
Brian T. Mooney
Sally Joseph
Jane Leonardi
Gerald Principe
Albert Masino
David Haughey
Helene Couchon
Kenneth Adams
Lorna R. Mitchell
Arnold Fox
Robert Potvin
Paula Zurowski
Karen Nylund
Cheryle Puglisi
Marcia Kelly

Adelaide Collier
Joyce Ranere
Ann Courtmanche
Barbara Panebianco
Susan Schjelderup
Barbara Faicone
Anne Waring
Janice Haas
Pamela Johnson
Ava Morse
Beth Collette
Maryann Fierimonte
Kathleen Roche
Marlene Fine
Eileen Miliane
Bev Johnson
Mary McTague
Pamela Miller
Paula Zloten
Joyce V. Petro
Pat Twomey
Carol S. Miller
Joanne Bucewick
Elizabeth Ferris
Leslie Berk
Ellen Buffington
Irene Karakia
Linda Provost
Donna Cushing
Emmy Su Stanley
Alison Grice
Janet Borstell
Linda Jones
Edward Kerwin
Karen Jacob
Marsha Refuse
Sue Geller
Geri Manning
Joanne Thomas
Janet Martin
Kathleen Sullivan
Mary Babel
Mary Ann Grew
Robert A. Silva
Pam Landis
Carl Jackson
James R. Dahlgren
Frank Calore
Robert Kennerly
Jay Greenstein
Merilyn Hunter
Tom Butler
Janet Di Trapano
Sherley Cohenno
Karen Peterson
Kathleen Kelly
Maxwell H. Scoon
Susan Reavey
P. Michael Falewicz
S. I. Laserowich

J. Rennich
John Fairbanks
John Brouillard
William Sobinski
Peter Rappo
William B. Chase
Nicholas DeCola
Charles C. Burr
Janet Seide
Carol Painter
Gail Sarty
Jeff Greenwood
Marilyn Gilmore
Marianne Nugent
Sally McConnon
Judy Swanson
Carolyn Haynes
Susan Lonsigian
Sandra Pettingell
Kathleen Sangster
Susan Wiliard
Beverly Knapik
Evelyn Larson
Linda Sanford
Sandy Lindquist
Sharon Stanley
Goody Thompson
Diane Porcari
Elizabeth Knowles
Julie Schneider
Pearl Rose
Pam Stokes
Dale Oakes
Lauren Davis
Jacqi Oakes
Marguerite Barron
Linda Maciaz
Pat Prece
Elizabeth Shute
Linda Gerhardt
Ginger Golden
R. Wagner
Sally Brita
Pattl Rose
Nancy DeLong
Bruce Allen White
Jan Robison
Susan Curran
Chris Fredericks
Bob Hansen
Art Murphy
Rich Gallivan
Larry Connelly
James Michael Curley
Morris Handler
David Floreen
Sally Quist
Carol Walker
Dorothy McCarthy
Cheryll Raymond

Christine M. Sweeney
Diana Thorne
David Sparks
Linda Saunders
Virginia Javitian
Leanne Goyette
Paul Schlosberg
Diana Ellery
Lynn Russell
Donna J. Ness
Monica McCarthy
Barbara Wilcox
Anne Kertilos
Mary Alice Gorman
Cynthia Jefferson
Carol Pettey
Barbara Mareus
Joanne Williams
Beverly LaCoste
Debbie Simonds
Paulette Ponn
Linda-Lee Waeldo
Denise Maldron
Judy Gravel
Jani Gillespie
Judy Abrams
Nancy Curtis
Pete Johnson
Pete Dugre
Dave Gorman
Patricia Long
Margaret Rocha
Barbara Nelson
Kathleen Hanlon
Frances Lane
Karen Karpowicz
Bonnie MacLaughlin
Kathy Hauton
Carol Miller
Bob Jewell
Ronnie Cobbett
Richard Gunderon
Sandy French
Maureen Harrington
Eilleen Murphy
Susan Leahy
Richard Park
Mike McAndrew
Andrea Balboni
Carol P. Tomkiewicz
Susan Shwom
Sheila A. Watnick
Donna M. Meeker
Kathy Burkett
Cynthia MacDougall
Kathleen A. Kane
Jackie Somma
Jane Stowell
Carol Johannessen
Josephine Granfield

Bernice Polsky
Chris Borrelli
Patricia Smith
Barbara Hobart
Jayne Pease
Carol Bellveau
Vivian Zendle
Ellen Pearimutter
Lois Danizio
Christine Gerade
Judy McCarthy
Carol Douglas
Judi Beltis
Linda Johnson
Nanci Bloom
Rita Laflamme
Cheryl Cleaves
Ina Goldstein
Margie Greenfield
Carole Hoefener
Pat Francis
Connie Semple
Teresa Drewniak
Sue Donery
Jane Shaw
Anne Johnson
Deborah Hoey
Joanne Levine
Mary Anne Bailey
Renee Golench
David Veale
Judy Sparks
Monique Ambrose
Judith A. Bevis
Nancy Schneiderman
Paula Kenney
Terry Melville
Larry DuBois
Stanley J. Baran
Timothy Berringer
Paul Harold
Lin Lamminen
Eileen Mead
Jerri Kaplan
Pauline Dugal
Charlene Lavergne
C. Weiss
Peggy Barton
Jayne A. McCarthy
Janet DiMarco
Carol Yankee
Cartha Semonian
Mabel Ford
Janis Donovan
Susan Thompson
Ann Brookbank
Lydia Baldassare
Sandra Sadowski
Janet Howes
Sue Gerson

Pamela Jacobsen
Julie Gooch
Ruth Muller
Carol LaMagdelaine
Marilyn Szydlik
Janet Markham
Judith Buividas
Kathy Hottin
Donna Hellyer
Kathy McCaffrey
Monica Paquette
Eglute Pauliukonis
Linda Threlfall
Kathleen Donovan
Kathy Scott
Janice Cane
Kathy Watkins
Nina Easler
Joan Conavan
Marsha Saltman
Mary Anderson
Janet Fleming
Mary M. Dole
Kathy Bumpus
Jane Flynn
Eileen Connors
Petra Drewski
Susan Callahan
Ellen Donovan
Jean Reed
Pamela Horne
Kathy Dexter
Victoria Woron
Jim Audet
Ellen Madden
Dale Bishop
Edward Kindness
Angela Garvey
Albert Bungard
Linda Allen
Linda Cashin
Wayne Baker
Lucille Oberlander
Carl S. Albro
Regina Guaraldi
Suusan Smirlock
Michael H. Koch
Greg Sherowski
Kristine VanCleve
Jan Nelson
Paul D. Hilton
Michael M. Ward
George T. Ryan
Kathleen A. Kane
Toni Amidon
Joanne Laptewicz
Gail McDonough
Joanne Marcotte
Joan Kaplan
Sammye Greenlaw

Elizabeth Gross
Deborah Musgrove
Marilyn Gibson
Karen Hauschild
Linda Novack
Dotty Sylvester
Janet Kolb
Gretchen Horn
Sue Gibson
Susan McLaughlin
Judy Nietsche
Rayma Kinsella
Carol Lowther
Mary Anne Clougher
Karen Heisner
Jane Gillan
Judith Lillier
Janice Bonglovanni
Joan Bentz
Barbara Panebianco
Patricia S. Welch
Jill Hosner
Janet E. Hornes
Martha Shapiro
Cynthia Olsen
Sandra Waiko
Nancy Fink
Teri Newman
Bernice Fox
Paula Footer
Karen Wolfeson
Kevin W. Donovan
Dave Browne
Philip Rosen
Paul Novak
Jeff Weeks
Cynthia Moyen
Ruth Goldstein
Linda Lyman
Leslie Weiner
Amy Moran
Tom Bigelow
Paul Airasian
Barbara Primack
Peter Murphy
Sandra Farrell
Ellen Buffington
Kathryn McLeod
Patricia Fay
Bruce Ey
Alison Crossley
John Ausikaitis
Lorraine Bourgeois
Marguerite Horn
Marsha J. MacVicar
Susan E. Donahue
Susan G. Allino
Carolyn Fitzpatrick
Margie Short
Hilda Chase

Paula Konowitch
Patricia Walter
Bonnie Fairbairn
Diana Veith
Barbara Hannigan
Rachal Rooney
Barbara Feldman
Maureen Miskia
Rich Drago
Barbara Bell
Carol LaPierre
Erica Frouman
Linda Lutz
Anne Chance
Marcy Ballard
Maureen Monahan
Sally Moreau
Sonia Krol
Mardee Werner
Priscilla Sherman
Lyn Massey
Joanne Ivanowicz
Nancy Walker
Barbara Sparks
Marilyn Berg
Karen Jablonski
Ann Cosindas
Sharon Flannery
Lorna Holbrook
Susan Nicpon
Anne Bonglovanni
Margaret Crooks
Elizabeth Harding
Linda Sanczuk
Karen Krock
Kathleen Hughes
Cynthia Magno
Jean McCaffrey
Pat Sterlti
Bob Kiley
Robert MacDougall
Mary Thomas
Andy Kittay
Susan Parzych
Gloria Tashjian
Edward J. Isoor
Karen LaRue
Sandra Kesseaman
Merriel Balazy
Andrea Christianson
Patricia Sullivan
Faith E. Giavaris
Pam Power
Gail Danckert
Pam Barrett
Ann Duggan
Leanne Orsi
Barbara Laskowski
Geraldine Baron
Gail Sarty

Cheryl J. Lawson
Ellen Madden
Susan Bickley
Jani Gillespie
Linda J. Gibbs
Dianne Allen
Susan Files
Nancy Maynard
Joan Kelly
Jean S. Forward
Maria A. Carrozza
Beverley McLain
Loreen M. Ingaciola
Susan Zoeller
Andrea Calef
Nancy Rial
Nancy Theberge
Christina C. Leslie
Susan Astbury
Nancy Lichwala
Karen Emprime
Victoria Woron
Pamela Horne
Christine Leonard
Pam Gray
Margaret Tompkins
Mary Lou Walls
Anne Barrett
Karen J. Stevens
Maryanne Peck
Carole Lind
Nancy Nichols
Barbara Ramugila
Jan Cavanaugh
Jon Santacroce
Mary Ethel Carroll
Jean Feilding
Barbara Kamanitz
David Charter
Ronald Beker
Judy Boyden
Beth Colletti
Candace Chaplin
Mary Cronin
Ann Dacey
Robt. Bosselman, Jr.
Linda Ayers
Ken Baseman
Mary Lou Day
Marjorie Lewin
Dorothy Sheehan
Joanne Lavine
Mura Chernick
Paula Held
Karen Madden
Marsha Porta
Carole Lina
Nori Matson
Linda Parsons
Margaret Whidden

Roberta Turk
Mary Ellen Kapralos
Susan L. Zwilling
Margaret Hickok
Donna J. Hess
John P. Shyavitz
Carol Michalenko
Robert Marshall
Dale Siswick
Chris Swenson
Barbara McKean
Heidi Hartley
Loreen M. Ingaciola
Jane Hough
Mary Kelley
Adela Weiss
Marilyn Hoff
Ann Costa
Cesarina Gomes
Diane Morgan
Mary E. Mackin
Christine Quigley
Fran Foster
Janice Cane
Nancy Operacz
Anita Smith
Nina Easler
Ellen Donovan
Barbara J. Nirshl
Ann Buyer
Sue Person
Linda Threlfall
Susan Callahan
Cindy Packard
Janis Donovan
Martha R. Semonian
Ann Brooksbank
Pat Provoda
Janet Caldwell
Ron Klotz
Deborah Barlow
Louise Benoit
Judith Mason
Susan Wetherbee
Hillary Haendle
Catherine Chase
Lesley Gallion
Linda Shattuck
Carol Aittaniemi
Nancy Johnson
Carol Zilman
Violet Hruschka
Cindy Horvath
Mary Ann Bezek
Lorraine Case
Margaret Strachan
Deborah Boardman
Linda Harld
Marilyn Bates
Olivia Berquist
Cindy Holmes

COLLEGIAN Photo by Fred Mackler

TOUR OF INSPECTION

Quonset Club in Hadley: "Where the Action Is"

by RICH MORAN
Staff Reporter

Being where the action is has long been the goal of the American college student. Every Friday afternoon, students throughout the country flock to their local gathering places to mingle and become part of this action. For the University of Massachusetts students the place to go is the Quonset Club in nearby Hadley.

The Quonset hut is a prefabricated shelter set on a foundation of bolted steel trusses. A semicircular arching roof of corrugated metal is insulated with wood fiber. The building might be mistaken for a deserted airplane hangar if it were not for two red doors out front.

Beyond thtse doors is a large pot-bellied gentleman, seemingly wearing a 1937 version of the official policeman's uniform. His belt is dropped below the waist and he is embellished with a well-polished, silver policeman's badge. He is stationed at the entrance to inspect proof of the parton's age.

His assistant is a middle-aged women clad in a yellowed, iron-stained, immoderately pressed waitress' uniform. Her hair is threadlike and her eyes and mouth are drawn. With legs turned inboard and shoes out of style, she stands equipped with a little blue ink pad and a rubber stamp.

It is her job to mark all females over 18 but under 21. Males, excluded from this privileged category, must be at least 21 to gain entrance.

Like most discotheques, The "Q Club" has a ventilation problem. The air is humid and stuffy and it in itself becomes an obstacle to entrance. The floor is saturated with beer and wet cigarette butts, and it is sliced with cuts from chair legs which never had rubber bumpers or polished steel runners.

Viewed from inside the wall and roof are a series of alternating grooves and ridges forced into the sheet-iron during the manufacture.

The bar is a rugged wooden structure located at the rear and running the full width of the hut. The bartender is a heavy-set man in his early forties, his hair just beginning to gray at the temples. He is wearing an imitation Indian Madras shirt with a pair of faded green chino pants. He is not wearing a belt and his pants hang low on the hips.

Hundreds of students are crammed into this arched structure. They are unavoidably spilling beer on one another. The crowd is so dense that it is difficult to makes one's way to the bar. The guitarist is singing lyrics of untold origin that he has adapted to old standard tunes.

Many of the students have given up trying to communicate with one another and have contented themselves with singing along with the guitarist.

The noise builds and builds until it reaches a constant roar.

By six o'clock the afternoon has been overworked. The crowd has begun to leave. A few students, unable to meet someone, linger briefly. Soon they leave, and with the final thunk of the red swinging doors, the afternoon has ended.

Leverett Craftsmen, Artists To Hold Exibition and Sale

Potters, woodworkers, metalworkers and other craftsmen demonstrating their work will be the feature of the second invitational exhibition and sale of Leverett Craftsmen and Artists, Inc., to be held April 29 through May 7 in the Joseph Barnes Memorial in Leverett Center.

Hours for the spring show will be 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and Sundays and 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays, with school classes admitted from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays by appointment, which may be made by calling AL 3-7843. There is no admission charge.

Craftsmen who will demonstrate include Bert Shaw, Leverett blacksmith; Paul Woodard, Leverett metalworker and former assistant to Joseph Barnes; Muriel Walker, Montague potter; Don Markham, Amherst potter and University of Massachusetts master of fine arts candidate; Jerry Wyman, Leverett woodcarver and sculptor; David Bourbeau, Northampton leatherworker; Ann Cole, Holyoke stained glass worker; Helen Klekot, Northampton Weaver; Ed Taintor, woodworker and instructor at Mahar Regional High Schol in Orange; and others.

On display in the Barnes Memorial gallery from April 29 through May 7 will be ceramics, leatherwork, jewelry, weaving and other work by craftsmen from many parts of the Connecticut Valley, plus painting, sculpture and graphics by artists from the Four-Colleeg community and the surrounding area will be on display.

The non-profit Leverett Craftsmen and Artists group was organized last September to develop the Barnes Memorial as a permanent regional crafts and arts center honoring Joseph Barnes, Leverett metal craftsman and sculptor whose own plans for such a center were ended by his untimely death a year ago.

The first LCA invitational show last October presented the work of 80 craftsmen and artists, was seen by over 3000 persons, and helped finance work on the renovation of the Barnes Memorial building, near the Leverett town hall.

Enrollment for summer classes at the Barnes Memorial will begin at the spring show. Planned is a three-week ceramics seminar, five evenings per week, by John Masson, Conway potter.

Also scheduled is a one-week workshop in raku pottery techniques by Muriel Walker. Raku is a Japanese method of fast firing that produces finished, glazed pottery within a matter of minutes.

Sculptor and woodcarver Jerry Wyman will coordinate a federally-sponsored crafts program for UMass Upward Bound students at the Barnes Memorial this summer; he will also direct the Wyman Studio, a summer program of instruction in ceramics, sculpture, painting, graphics and drawing open to all ages with classes from 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at a tuition of $10 per week. A summer exhibition and sale gallery is also planned.

Four-College Books Shown

A book show, entitled "Books by Valley Authors from The University of Massachusetts Press," will be on display in the Jones Library, 43 Amity Street, Amherst, from April 1 to April 30. Twelve books by authors in the Four-College area will be featured. Faculty and staff members are invited to view the exhibit, which is sponsored by The University Press.

Secret Agents Spoil Secret

NEW YORK (AP)—Mozschechkov and Vinogradov, Soviet intelligence agents who blew their cover, then locked themselves out of a car, have gone home. But not wothout a spy spoof ending to their month's look around New York and Washington.

The FBI held up departure of their plane for 2½ hours Sunday night while they examined a parcel rushed to the Russians just before takeoff. It contained a spy novel, and maps and papers marked "Top Secret" and "For eyes of President only."

Several phone calls to Washington later, the FBI carted the reading material off and the plane left for Paris. A note stuck in the book, "An Expensive Place to Die" by Len Deighten, said it was a practical joke.

"Best regards," the note said. "Hope you enjoyed your visit. Sorry about that chief, signed Your American Friend."

Their movements between New York and Washington, including an incident in which they locked themselves out of their own car, were under constant FBI surveillance and received wide publicity

The automobile lockout came this weekend. Commented the New York Times: "There undoubtediy will be no laughter when the two officials return home. Not only were they caught locking themselves out of their car, but more important they commited the cardinal sin for spies of having blown their cover."

COMPLETE SERVICE
SAFE
MOVING
DEPENDABLE
STORAGE
EXPERT PACKING

Call
GLEASON
MAYFLOWER
Pearl St., Northampton
584-6413—for estimate

"Let JILL Guard the TILL"

elect

JILL WOLFF

Treasurer 1969

Thank you for your support in the primaries!!!

COME VOTE AGAIN — THURS., APRIL 27

ANNUAL FRESHMAN PICNIC

featuring from 2:30 - 6:00

THE RAMRODS and THE TECHNIQUES and at 7:30

FREE OUTDOOR MOVIE

Jack Lemmon in
"The Notorious Landlady"

Sat., April 29 By the Pond

SPECTRUM

The New, general interest magazine

There will be a meeting for people interested in serving in any of these areas next year:

—Color photography
—Black and white photography
—Line Drawing
—Short-story Writing
—Poetry
—Layout
—Editing
—Advertising
—Secretarial
—Essay Writing
—Art Work
—Color Coordinating
—Satire and parody writing
—Business
—Distribution

on Thursday, April 27 at 7:00 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge.

Anyone welcome . . .
bring your ideas.

Redmen Capture Singles Matches to Top Tufts

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

The UMass tennis team stormed past Tufts, 7-2, in a home match yesterday. The Redmen swept all singles matches and Coach Steve Kosakowski was able to experiment with new doubles combinations after the outcome was settled.

Winners for the Redmen in singles were co-captains Harvey Mednicov and Gerry Johnson along with Scott Sheppard, Al Davis, Andy Meagher and Carl Clem. All won in straight sets.

In an effort to get his last two doubles combinations set, Koz combined Sheppard and Davis, John Lisack with Steve Cohen and Al Grosnick with Ed Goltz. Sheppard and Davis were the only victorious team, 6-4, 6-4.

Friday the team travels to Kingston, R. I., for a meeting with the URI Rams. Kosakowski will have more time to experiment with his doubles combinations. "Our balance in singles is the best we've ever had," he says.

The match against AIC, scheduled for today, has been postponed again. The team's record now stands at 2-1. After the URI match, the Redmen will face U-Conn here next Tuesday. The Huskies will provide the tune-up for the Yankee Conference Championship to be held here on May 5 and 6.

KING OF THE HILL—Junior Rick D'Andrea of the Greenough Grants recorded the high single and three-game totals in this year's intramural program.

All members of the Back Page Majority are urged to attend the COLLEGIAN Staff meeting, Thursday, 8 p.m.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Curt Adams

STROKE OF GENIUS—Senior Co-captain Gerry Johnson volleys during his singles victory against M.I.T. last week.

Shotput Record Smashed

Frosh Track Second in Tri-Meet

Led by weight man Ed Arcaro, sprinter Steve Chase, and distance runner Bob Keating, the UMass freshman track squad routed Northeastern, but bowed to the Rhode Island yearlings in a recent tri-meet at Kingston, R.I.

Muscular Arcaro wiped out Milt Morin's school shotput record with a heave of 47'3" and won the discus at 127'. Dave Baker took third and placed third in the hammer.

In other field events, Rocco Petitto and Boyer grabbed second and fourth in the javelin, and Don McKeough placed third in the pole vault, while Paul Nyman and Dennis Couture swept one-two in the high jump. Nyman also leaped for fourth in the triple jump.

Chase and Dave Marble placed second and third in the 100, but Chose atoned by whipping the field in the 220. Marble was fourth. Jerry Howland managed fourth in the 440, while Donaldson grabbed third in the 880.

Bob Keating was nipped in the mile, but came back to beat the same rival in an exciting two-mile. Mark Lefeuer won the high hurdles, and Nyman placed third in the intermediates. The relay team placed second to the Little Rams.

The frosh accompany the varsity to Springfield today for a dual meet against Springfield College.

'M' Club Plans Alumni Game

Plans are being made by the Varsity "M" Club for the annual varsity-alumni football game Saturday, May 6 at the Stadium. The affair will climax three weeks of spring practice for the varsity.

UMass fans will have the opportunity to see a preview of the '67 Fighting Redmen and a galaxy of past UMass stars. Among those who may appear are pros Milt Morin, Bob Meers, Phil Vandersea, Bernie Dallas, Jerry Whelchel and John McCormick, along with the current seniors.

The Fifth Column

by Steve Ross

ABA Hurting For Top Talent

The yet-to-play-a-game American Basketball Association cracked into the headlines by signing two NBA players, Jim Barnes and Leroy Ellis. The NBA promptly filed suit against just about everybody: the other league, the teams that signed Messieurs Barnes and Ellis, and the two gentlemen involved.

The NBA is getting itself worked up about nothing. Fringe players like Barnes and Ellis don't draw fans, superstars like Russell, Barry, Chamberlain, West and Robertson do. Without some established stars the new league won't make it, and it doesn't look like the ABA will be able to get those stars.

STEVE ROSS

There are two college players that are potential superstars next season. One is the great lover himself, Jimmy Walker; the other is Rhodes scholar Bill Bradley. Bradley has been away from top competition for two years, but all those who remember his days at Princeton have little doubt that he can make it with a bang. The New York Knicks have the rights to Bradley; Detroit will probably draft Walker.

The ABA will try to counter the NBA's prestige with money, but how can they? They don't have television contracts, and unlike football in which a team can draw scores of thousands at a time, basketball attendance is limited. The new league will probably have to settle for mediocre collegians along with NBA has-beens and those who didn't make it.

The ABA will have to organize itself if it hopes to lure away the cream of the NBA crop. Celtic captain Johnny Havlicek was approached by no less than three ABA clubs.

Only one team (Pittsburgh) made any sort of financial offer, and the other two were trying to find out if Havlicek would jump to their league. Havlicek, though approached by two pro football teams, and three ABA clubs, will be in his Kelly green playsuit come October.

Six years ago the late Abe Saperstein tried to start a rival league. He had eight teams in proven major league towns, but the league couldn't make it through two seasons. He experimented with a three-point field goal from more than 25 feet, to aid the little man, but the fans wouldn't come.

That league had some pretty fair ballplayers, Larry Siegfried and Jerry Lucas played for Cleveland. Bill Sharman was player-coach of Los Angeles. The promotion was good, but the league didn't sell. The owners couldn't see the obvious fact. It wasn't a major league.

Expansion won't make the NBA stronger. This year the senior circuit had three winning teams, Philadelphia, Boston and San Francisco. If another league were to come in it would only dilute the product.

DEAREST:

I can't wait to hear from you, so note the Zip Code in my address. And use it when you write to me! Zip Code really moves the mail.

PLEASE RE-ELECT
REBECCA
STEDMAN
Secretary
CLASS OF '70
APRIL 27th, S.U.

Re-elect
GLENN
MANGURIAN
VICE-PRESIDENT
Class of '70

WE ENDORSE . . .
BURT $KUIR$KY
Treasurer – Class of '70
Sue Hutton
Lee Forst

MASS. CLASSIFIED

WANTED

Female roommate starting May 1. Pleasant living conditions call 253-9540 between 4:15 and 6:00 ask for Sally.

Ride wanted to and from Springfield to UMass for first session summer school. Call 546-8494.

For Rent

Efficiency Apt.
¼ mile from campus
$95/mo. for summer
married couple
call—546-7368

M frame in Pelham, 4 miles from campus. For rent over summer, $90 a month, furnished. Call 253-3260 evenings.

Luxury 8-room furnished apartment in Sunderland. Wall to wall carpet, library, recreation room—all for $145 mo. Call 665-3842 or stop by 131 Hasbrouck.

HELP WANTED

Tree surgeon. Unusual opportunity with good future, top salary. G & M Employment Service, 145 State St., Springfield, 739-1133.

FOR SALE

Meal ticket — Southwest Dining Commons No. 5, 1st semester or both. Call: 546-7355 from 7:00 p.m. to 11 p.m.

AUTOMOBILES

1964 Comet 202-4-door sedan standard shift-radio-excellent condition, $725.00. Call Dave after 5 p.m. 256-8054

1965 MG Midget Mk II roadster, 17,000 mi., equipped with roll bar but never raced, excellent condition, $1295, 584-2088.

1966 Corvette Coupe, Nassau blue, black int., 4-spd. 350 hp. AM/FM, 12,000 miles, Greenfield, 774-4664.

MGA 1958 new tires, curtains, top & tonneau cover, excellent cond. $500 best offer by May 5. Call 253-9540 after 4:00.

OPPORTUNITIES

CHEMISTS
CHEM. ENGINEERS
GRADS OR IMMINENT

We have 3 jobs waiting

1. Field applications engineer, Chicago area after 6 mos. training.
2. Customer applications engineer, Worcester area.
3. Project Engineer R and D, the works, in the Worcester area—leads to supervisor.

G & M
145 State St., Springfield
Call Dr. DeFriese, 739-1133

PERSONAL

Who is Paul S. Lereaux?

Dartmouth Lacrosse Game to be First in Stadium

Alumni Stadium will take on a new function Saturday when it is the scene of the UMass-Dartmouth lacrosse game. It will be the first time that the Redmen have defended Stadium turf.

Coach Dick Garber's snakebeaters now stand at 3-2 after yesterday's convincing win at Holy Cross. They will be looking for revenge Saturday since the Green trounced them last year, 13-5. The Redmen trailed 4-3 at the half in that one before Dartmouth threw everything but Gene Ryzewicz at the Redmen.

Speaking of Ryzewicz, Dartmouth has a couple of defensemen who were ends last fall, seniors Bill Calhoun and Bob MacLeod.

Other standouts for the Ivy Leaguers are veterans Bob McCormick, last year's leading scorer at attack; Captain Grant Monahon, senior midfielder; Dick Curtis, senior middie; and Jeff Norton, sophomore defenseman.

The goalie will be Gary Rubus, a senior from Banning, California.

Although the Dartmouth attack has not changed considerably from last year, Coach Whitey Burnham has had to revamp his midfield and defense. The loss of All-American middie Bruce McKissock hurts.

Overall, the Green has 16 players returning from last year's 4-7 club.

This game, of course, will be the first of two to be played at the Stadium this year. The second will be the North-South all-star game Saturday, June 10.

DARTMOUTH DEFENSEMAN JEFF NORTON

UMass Lacrosse Scoring

	G	A	P
Vassar	6	6	12
O'Connor	6	3	9
O'Brien	8	0	8
Kalikow	2	5	7
Goffman	5	0	5
Connolly	4	0	4
Rana	2	2	4
Herling	2	2	4
Murphy	1	0	1
Mushovic	1	0	1
Mahoney	0	1	1
Agnoli	0	1	1

Darkness Halts After 13 Innings

Frosh Battle Amherst to 2-2 Tie

A game of give-and-take between the UMass freshman baseball team and Amherst's frosh lasted 13 innings yesterday at Amherst and was called because of darkness with the score tied, 2-2.

It was a long, frustrating encounter for both sides and especially for the Jeffs, who saw victory slip away from them with two outs in the top of the ninth.

Back to back singles by Chuck Newell and Ron Swiatlowski gave the Little Redmen some life. With two outs and two on and the score favoring Amherst by 2-1, Newell scooted home with the prolonger when the Jeff shortstop booted a grounder that might have been the final out of the game.

Amherst scored first in the fourth inning off Ed Cooney, who lasted seven innings for the frosh. The run was unearned but stood up until the seventh when both teams tallied.

In that inning Swiatlowski's single plated UMass right fielder Chuck Espanet with the tying run. In the Amherst half of the seventh, with Gerry Dobeck twirling for UMass, the Jeffs scored the go ahead run. It lasted until the UMass ninth.

Espenet and John Medeiros each had a pair of singles for the Little Redmen who had nine hits altogether. All were singles.

Amherst had 11 hits.

John Kitchen and Tom Cinnamon divided the UMass pitching chores from the seventh inning on.

Next Frosh encounter is Friday at Holy Cross. Game time is 3 p.m.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Fred Mackler

IT HAPPENS EVERY SPRING—Blocking drills are the order of the day for these young men, whose fancy this spring turns to thoughts of mayhem. The Redmen's spring practice will continue until the varsity-alumni game May 6 at the Stadium.

Intramural Scores

SOFTBALL SCORES

Tuesday Night
TKE 7, AEPi 1
PMD 18, DC 6
LCA over ASP, forfeit
Commanchees 16, Patriots 2
Trojans 8, Colts 6
Terrors over Jaguars, forfeit
Leopards 10, Cougars 4
Academics 10, Flaming A's 3
Spartans 10, Monuments 0
Apples-Hemlocks, double forfeit
Smashers 15, Redwoods 9
Nods over Pispots, forfeit
Stockbridge over NeoPites forfeit
Buds 7, All-Stars 3
Birch 4, Panthers 1
Maroons 9, Giants 3
Buffaloes 15, Maples 3
Hi-Lo's over Hoovers, forfeit
Panthers 6, Giants 5

SOCCER SCORES

Diplomats over Puffs forfeit
Lucky-B 3, Numerals 0
Seagrams-Spartans, double forfeit
Original Flaming A's over Redwoods, forfeit
Trojans 1, Senators 0
Maroons 0, Terrors 0
KS 1, LCA 0
Birch over Cherry, forfeit
Hondos over Blueballs, forfeit

TENNIS

Mixed Doubles
Berman and Bostwick defeated Brown and Tevzenev, 6-4, 5-7, and 6-3
Fitzpatrick and Armstrong defeated White and Owen, 6-2, 9-7
Kriger and Wheeler defeated Emery and Chapin, 2-6, 9-7, and 6-4

Pictured above is Michael Katz, winner of the campus Squash Champ Trophy.

The Class of 1967
Urges the Members of the classes of 1968, 1969 & 1970
To GET OUT
and
VOTE!

COLLEGIAN Staff
Meeting Tomorrow
at 8 P.M.

SENIORS
Teaching opportunities for beginners in private independent schools. Education courses not prerequisite.
SCHOOL SERVICE BUREAU
Post Office Box 278
Windsor, Conn.

DANCE
APRIL 28, NEWMAN CENTER
SOCIAL HALL
"The Believers"
8 - 12
non-members 50¢ members free

HURRICANE ISLAND
OUTWARD BOUND SCHOOL
One of twenty-three Outward Bound Schools in the world, Hurricane Island offers young men 16½ to 23 years old, the challenge of genuine adventure:
— Four day expeditions at sea
— Sea Search and Rescue
— Three day solo survival
— Rock-climbing
— Survival swimming
There are still openings in the following courses:
H-6 June 17 to July 13
H-7 July 17 to August 12
H-8 Aug. 16 to Sept. 11
FOR FREE CATALOGUE WRITE:
P.O. Box 160-B
Ayer, Massachusetts 01432

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN

WED. APRIL 26, 1967
Page 12 Vol. XCV. No. 68

Canty Stages One-Man Show As Nine Edges URI, 3-1

Twirls 3 Hitter, Clouts 2 Homers

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

If Rhode Island's baseball team never sees John Canty again, they won't complain. The UMass pitcher completely dominated yesterday's 3-1 Redmen win over the Rams at the soggy varsity field.

Canty pitched a three-hitter, struck out 16 batters and hit two home runs in a virtual one-man show. He also had a shutout until there were two outs in the ninth. His pitching was a typical Canty performance, but it was those homers that had chilled crowd buzzing.

The junior southpaw's record is now 5-1, and the one loss should never have happened. The 16 strikeouts maintained his average at around 15.

The win furthered UMass' hopes of overtaking Connecticut in the Yankee Conference race. All of a sudden, things look mighty bright for the Redmen, now 4-1 in league play.

The Rams managed three hits and six base runners via walks, but their only rally was in the ninth. Otherwise, they were unable to mount any kind of a threat in the wake of Canty's fast balls.

Canty's first homer, the first to be hit over the new fence, came in the third and it was a thing of beauty for everyone but the Rhode Island fielder. From the moment it left Canty's bat, right fielder Les Goff moved nary a muscle as he watched it sail over his head and over the fence. It was a tremendous clout.

UMass made it 2-0 in the fourth as a few other Redmen decided to get into the act. Elliot Klein led off with a walk and was forced by Roy Lasky. Don Ferron's single through the hole into right put runners on first and second.

Ted Mareno then lined a shot to center that scored Lasky with the second run. Rhody pitcher Ron Dannecker got the next two outs to work out of the jam.

By the bottom of the seventh, Canty had 13 strikeouts and a two-hit shutout going. As if this wasn't enough, he led off with his second round-tripper by lining one over the fence in right center.

Rhode Island finally got to him in the ninth when with two outs and a runner on second, Art McKenney laced a single to center to foil Canty's shutout bid.

Frank Stewart joined Canty in the two-hits department although neither single figured in the UMass scoring.

The win left the Redmen's record at 8-5 overall. Their 4-1 conference mark puts them second to UConn which has a 3-0 record.

REDMEN RAMBLINGS . . . UMass travels to Williams tomorrow for a four o'clock start . . . Then Holy Cross is in town on Friday at three . . . New Hampshire visits the Redmen Saturday at 2 . . . The Wildcats threw last year's Yan-Con race into a three-way tie by beating UMass, 8-3 . . .

Because of the April 19th postponement, the games with Connecticut have been switched around . . . The game against the Huskies on May 2nd has been changed to Storrs, and will not be played at Amherst as appears on the schedule . . . The May 16th make-up against UConn will take place at Amherst . . .

The two homers by Canty were the first over the new fence . . . Distances have been painted on the green wall . . . 335' down the lines, 375' up the alleys and 405' to dead center.

JOHN CANTY
Ninth batter?

UMASS	ab	r	h	bi	RHODE ISLAND	ab	r	h	bi
DiSarcina s	4	0	0	0	Valois s	4	0	0	0
Stewart 2	4	0	2	0	Goff rf	2	1	0	0
Boteze lf	4	0	0	0	Sartini cf	2	0	0	0
Hale cf	0	0	0	0	Coppolino 3	4	0	0	0
Klein 3	3	0	1	0	M'Kenney c	4	0	2	1
Lasky 1	4	1	0	0	DaCruz 1	4	0	1	0
Ferron rf	4	0	1	0	Kleinman lf	3	0	0	0
Mareno cf-lf	2	0	1	1	Crowther 2	2	0	0	0
Lagoy c	3	0	0	0	Dannecker p	0	0	0	0
Canty p	3	2	2	2	Cook ph	1	0	0	0
					Tymko p	0	0	0	0
Totals	31	3	7	3	Totals	26	1	3	1

UMass ..... 001 100 10x—3
Rhode Island ..... 000 000 001—1
E—Lagoy, Goff, Valois. DP—UMass 1, Rhode Island 4.
HR—Canty 2. SB—Goff Dannecker, Goff, Ferron. S—Dannecker.

	ip	h	r	er	bb	so
Canty (W, 5-1)	9	3	1	1	6	16
Dannecker (L, 0-1)	7	7	3	3	2	5
Tymko	1	0	0	0	0	0

Tomorrow, Away

Katz vs. Williams

by TIIM MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The forecast says snow for tomorrow but if the weatherman goofs, and he has in the past, the Redmen will take the field at 3 against Williams in Williamstown in an attempt to add to their current 8-5 record.

Coach Dick Bergquist will throw his usual starters at the Ephs with junior lefty Dave Katz slated to do the hurling. Katz' record is 0-1.

Williams coach Bob Coombs has a large corps of pitchers, most impressive of whom are righthanders Larry Ricketts, Jim Kile, Steve Watson and lefthander Larry Ashby. On mound standby are junior righthander Lowell Davis and sophs Bob Bower, Tom Small and Tom Parker.

The infield is a veteran unit with Bob Holdridge at first, Ronnie Bodinson at second and Andy Cadot at third. All are seniors. Soph football wingback Bob Quinn has crashed the upper class inner defense at short. He, Bodinson and Cadot were the Ephs' most effective hitters during the Southern swing.

Captain Ted McPherson will patrol center field, flanked by junior Ned Williams in left and soph Yogi Santa-Donato in right. McPherson led the team in hitting a year ago with a .340 average.

Strong-armed Dick Mosher, a senior, will handle the backstopping chores and is understudied by football cocaptain Dennis Kelly.

After the game and a retreat to the Williams House for recuperation, Bergquist's boys will return home for consecutive games with Holy Cross and New Hampshire on Friday and Saturday, respectively.

Friday's game begins at 3. Saturday's Conference battle will be called to order at 2.

New Jersey Football Star Headed Here

Head Football Coach Vic Fusia announced yesterday that Neil Hering of Hillsdal , N. J., plans to attend UMass in September.

Hering, a 5'9 160-lb. halfback, was selected to the All State New Jersey team and also to the All American High School team. He led Pascack Valley High School to a 17-0 record the past two seasons.

Hering runs the 100-yard dash in 9.9 seconds. His speed and breakaway ability enabled him to score 158 points in eight games last fall including seven touchdowns in one game. He netted 316 yards rushing for his best single-game mark and also averaged 40 yards as a punter during the season.

The highly-sought-after halfback was voted Bergen County High School Athlete of the Year for 1966. Hering will major in Physical Education at Massachusetts.

Coach Fusia stated, "Neil Hering has proven himself to be one of the fine student-athletes in the East. We are extremely happy that he will be furthering his academic and athletic careers at Massachusetts. His speed and ability should make him an exciting and outstanding performer."

Lacrossemen's Balanced Attack Rips Holy Cross, O'Connor Scores 3

by JOHN GEDSUDSKI
Staff Reporter

WORCESTER—Shooting off to a 4-0 lead in the first eight minutes, the UMass lacrosse team got another "hat trick" from sophomore Kevin O'Connor and shellacked Holy Cross, 12-6, here yesterday.

Gary Vassar and Steve Connolly, two other sophs in the UMass youth movement, scored two goals apiece. Others adding goals for the visitors were Howie Goffman, Don Rana, Marty Kalikow and Brad Herling.

UMass led by only 4-3, with about seven minutes gone in the second quarter when O'Connor, nicknamed "The Fox" scored his first goal of the game, on an assist by Don Agnoli. Rana then put the Redmen ahead, 6-3, with an unassisted tally at 7:32.

STEVE CONNOLLY
Two goals for soph.

John Vrionis, who scored three goals during the afternoon, notched his first at 9:29, but O'Connor avenged that one on a solo dodge five minutes later.

Third period goals by Connolly, Kalikow and O'Brien put the game out of reach for the Crusaders. O'Brien, who suffered a shoulder injury in Saturday's Tufts game, played only in extra-man situations. His goal, at 12:12, came off a pass from O'Connor.

Holy Cross' Joe Tepas and O'Connor traded goals before the third period ended to produce an 11-5 reading. Vrionis and UMass soph Brad Herling also swapped tallies in the fourth quarter.

The Rermen's rush on Mt. St. James was furious from the opening face-off. Vassar, the team's top point man, took an assist from O'Connor and scored after 4:22. Captain Goffman, the short but shifty creaseman, tapped in a rebound 44 seconds later.

Connolly made it 3-0 on a solo dodge at 5:20, and Vassar scored again on an unassisted play three minutes later.

The Crusaders came back, however, to score the next three goals. Vrionis took a pass from Tepas and scored the first goal for the home team at 11:42 of the first period. Junior Barry Leffrede reduced the margin to 4-2 with four minutes elapsed in the second quarter, and Tepas converted a pass from Vrionis a minute later to make it 4-3.

The Snake Beat—Coach Dick Garber said that big middie Don Rana played "his best game of the season" before his home town fans. "He controlled just about every face-off," Garber said... With O'Brien injured, Garber started the second midfield line of Rana, Paul Mushovic, and Connolly... The Crusaders were the largest team UMass has faced to date... Dick Mahoney assisted on Herling's goal... Kalikow's tally in the third period was a beauty. The little junior shot lefty on a solo maneuver.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL (V)-vs. Williams (at Williamstown, Tomorrow, 4 p.m.)

GOLF (V)-vs. Rhode Island, Middlebury, Amherst (Orchards Country Club, Tomorrow, 1:30 p.m.)

TRACK (V)-vs. Springfield (at Springfield, Today, 3 p.m.)

LACROSSE (Frosh)-vs. Holy Cross (Home, Today, 3 p.m.)

TENNIS (Frosh)-vs. Amherst (at Amherst, Tomorrow, 3:30 p.m.)

TRACK (Frosh) - vs. Springfield (at Springfield, Today, 3 p.m.)

Friday, Home

Boteze vs. Holy Cross

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Since 1900 Holy Cross has compiled a baseball record of 1,057 wins against 354 losses. It is this kind of winning tradition that the Crusaders bring into town on Friday for a game with UMass at 3.

Holy Cross has suffered just one losing season in 67 years, and another successful season looms this year. The outlook for first-year coach Bob Curran a former UMass mentor, is bright indeed.

Jack Dolan heads the pitching staff. A senior righthander, he has never lost a college game.

Behind the plate, the Crusaders use captain Jack McCarthy, who batted .371 as a sophomore and .298 last year.

Three-year veteran Tony Kopec plays first, football player Ralph Lilore is at second, long-ball hitting Jack Avis starts at third, and the shortstop is Paul Kerns.

Veterans Jim Lee and All-America Tom Kelly play left and center fields respectively. Kelly was the top hitter in New England last year, second in the East and 10th in the nation with a .410 average. Soph Phil O'Neil, the best hitter on last year's frosh squad, rounds out the outfield.

Carl Boteze should start for UMass against the Crusaders, who handed last year's Redmen team its first loss with an 11-2 pasting at Worcester.

RALPH LILORE

TONY KOPEC

PEACE CORPS RECRUITING
* *
Student Union
* *
Monday, Tuesday

THE MASSACHUSETTS
collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

YAHOO
Page 4

VOL. XCV, NO. 68 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, APRIL 28, 1967

'COLLEGIAN' TO PUBLISH DAILY; BUDGET APPROVED BY SENATE

by JACK DEAN
Managing Editor

UMass will have a daily newspaper next year.

In a marathon meeting which ended early Thursday morning, the Student Senate unanimously approved Collegian expansion plans by passing its $67,948 budget. This sum is the largest appropriation to any Recognized Student Organization.

The plan, according to Editor-in-Chief Chet Weinerman, will provide the campus with fresh news each day. "Not only will we be publishing daily", Weinerman told the Senators, "we are also planning for morning distribution."

Under this plan the Collegian will publish eight pages per day, Monday through Friday. An 8:30 campus delivery to the Dining Commons' and Union is planned.

Included in the budget is provision for an official Collegian automobile. Weinerman pointed out to the Senators that in one year the car will more than pay for itself.

At a general staff meeting last night, Weinerman announced the Senate action and expressed his hope for cooperation from the staff to make the "new" Collegian one of the finest collegiate dailies.

Weinerman told the staff that the paper will publish each day during the week of May 8-12 in preparation for next Fall's daily schedule.

Also at the meeting Bob Gorman announced his resignation as News Editor to take the post of South College Reporter. Weinerman announced the dual appointment of Ron LaBrecque and Dick Kline to the position of News Editors, effective immediately.

Successful candidates Glenn Mangurian and Bruce Balboni campaign in front of the S. U. during yesterday's class elections.

Thomas, Balboni Victorious In '69, '70 Class Elections

by RON LABRECQUE
News Editor

Final elections for class officers were held in the Student Union yesterday where next year's student leaders were chosen.

The first election return was for the office of Vice-President of the class of 1968. Jeffrey Humber received 208 votes to defeat Jim Girotti who received 137 votes.

For the class of 1969, Wayne Thomas, the incumbent, defeated Bob Joyce by a wide margin for the office of President. Thomas received 641 votes to 181 for Joyce in a contest which saw a great deal of controversy and debate. Elected to the office of Treasurer of the class of '69 was Jill Wolff, who received 414 votes to defeat Wilkie Ward who polled 375 votes.

The class of 1970 saw five contests. After some tense hours of waiting in the Student Union Lobby for the results, Bruce Balboni was announced the winner gathering 825 votes. His opponent, Bob Twiss, received 433 votes.

In the Vice-Presidential race Glenn Mangurian was re-elected as he polled 712 votes defeating Joseph Doucette who received 518 votes.

With a total of 660 votes, incumbent Rebecca Stedman defeated Gloria Forgione, 608 votes, for the office of secretary of the class of 1970. Steve Weisman was re-elected Treasurer with 764 votes. His opponent Burt Skvirsky polled 467 votes.

Bob Keating received 688 votes to defeat Paul Harold, 541 votes, for the position of Senator-at-Large.

The results of the referendum to put weekend meals on a completely cash basis were incomplete at press time.

Lutherans to Hold Viet War Discussion

The War in Vietnam will be discussed in a public meeting to be held at Immanuel Lutheran Church, 867 N. Pleasant, Amherst, Sunday, April 30, at 7:00 P.M. Leading the discussion will be two assistant professors of history at Amherst College, Drs. John Ratte and Reed Browning, who have both spoken on the war before various groups.

The discussion, sponsored by the Lutheran Student Congregation of Immanuel Lutheran Church, is to "offer an opportunity to everyone interested to rethink the issues anew."

According to the Rev. Richard E. Koenig, pastor of Immanuel Church, "the meeting is not being arranged for the purpose of espousing either a pro-or anti-administration position, nor is it being set up as a debate. We would like to see what happens when concerned citizens engage in a common exploration of an issue of grave concern frankly and openly." Discussion will continue as long as participants desire.

The Lutheran Student Congregation is made up of students from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst College and Smith College. Don Meeker, UM '67, is president. The decision to schedule the Vietnam public discussion grew out of intense discussions of the moral and religious implications of the war which Lutheran students have been engaged in.

Student Senate Gives Approval To $174,000 Worth of Budgets

by PAT PETOW
Senate Reporter

In the longest meeting of the year which broke up shortly after 3:30 a.m. Thursday, the Student Senate gave preliminary approval to $174,055 of next year's budget. The total budget for 1967-68 is expected to range around this year's $230,000.

The Senate budget for RSO groups plus the Fine Arts tax will cost each student about $10.50 a semester as at present.

The Collegian received $67,948 (see story above), the Index $67,182, WMUA $29,185, the Freshman Directory $3,875 and $865 went to the Engineering Journal.

The radio station budget is approximately $20,000 more than the one for this year. The increases will pay for a second control room, additional remote equipment, and air conditioning and filtration equipment.

In other action, the Senate:

- Defeated the entire Pre-Law Association budget in a policy stand;
- Recommended changes in the freshman signout policy;
- Adopted a Committee on Committees to make recommendations on students given appointments by the Senate president.
- Approved for the second time the Valley Centre appropriation;

Accepted the Class of 1970 vice presidential primary results despite objection.

The Pre-Law request, which had been trimmed by the Budgets Committee from $1,733.40 to $664, failed to pass in a 15-30-2 vote after Sen. John Greenquist led debate against it on policy grounds.

He labeled the Association a special interest group of the kind whose programs should come under either the DVP tax or academic departments.

Sen. Lew Gurwitz, who spoke in favor of the appropriation and made an unsuccessful attempt to increase it, asked what department could be responsible for it. But in the roll call vote, he voted "nay" in supporting the policy clarification.

Although the actual bill changing the financial policy booklet to withdraw support from "special interest" clubs was tabled, the Senate apparently made its decision to reject most requests.

While the wording would per-

(Continued on page 5)

UNIVERSITY DISCIPLINARY CODE

On Tuesday, May 2 between 3 and 5 p.m. an open meeting will be held in the Middlesex room of the Union to discuss the proposed revisions of the University Disciplinary Code next year. All students are urged to come and voice their opinions.

UMass Faculty Committee Deplores Viet Escalation

Spokesmen for the Faculty Committee on Peace and War of the University of Massachusetts, a group of about sixty faculty members concerned with U.S. policy in Vietnam, issued a statement this week deploring the continued escalation of the war in North Vietnam. According to the committee such escalation may cause a widening of the war by forcing the Chinese Communist to play a more active role in the conflict, by hardening the determination of the North Vietnamese to fight to the bitter end, and by making the prospect of early peace negotiations even more remote.

The Committee reiterated its call for an immediate end to the bombing of North Vietnam in order to test the willingness of the North Vietnamese government to accept to cease-fire and to enter into peace negotiations.

The Committee also took issue with the charge made by some administration spokesmen that a dissent with official government policy lends aid and comfort to the enemy and prolongs the war. On the contrary, the call for an end to the bombing made by U Thant, the Pope, and several distinguished U.S. Senators, including Senator Kennedy of New York and Massachusetts, holds more hope for an early peace than the dangerous policy of continuous escalation, reported the committee.

Freshmen Challenge Sophmores

THE RAMRODS

Keeping with the spirit of the Class of '70, the freshman class recently challenged the sophomore class to a tug-of-war across the campus pond.

This event will be only one of the many happening this Saturday at the annual Frosh Picnic. Two name bands, THE RAMRODS and THE TECHNIQUES, will entertain from 2:30 to 6:00, during which time hot dogs and coke will be on sale at reduced prices.

Beginning at 7:30 by the pond, THE NOTORIOUS LANDLADY, starring Jack Lemmon, will be shown free of charge.

Who said the compact car is here to stay?

Happening Set for Sunday

A happening will occur this Sunday. A Celebration reported to be completely unique, will be held amidst balloons, flowers, music, and bright colors.

A spokesman for the happening said, the reason for the Celebration is Joy — The joy of Spring, of being alive, of being a student or a professor, of loving, of good grades, of being a revolutionary, or whatever joy is being felt at this time of year."

This happening is the outcome of a similar occurance on another campus which was called "Mary's Day". Preparations for that event started weeks ahead of time, as students created brightly colored banners for a parade through the town, fashioned exotic hats and picked flowers to wear on their clothes and in their hair. Students, faculty and townspeople came together for this day, each wearing his most colorful outfit. The parade led to a worship service of celebration, and then moved on to a picnic and dancing.

No one is quite sure what will take place on the UMass campus this Sunday, for it will be a "Happening" in the truest sense of the word. A committee of students have made arrangements to hold it outside Mahar Auditorium at 11 A.M., and have provided for refreshments to follow it.

Everyone is urged to take part in this celebration, to wear your most cheerful clothes, and to come prepared to add your joy to this unforgetable event!

University Christian Worship
invites YOU to join in

A CELEBRATION OF

JOY

Sunday, April 31 — 11:00 a.m.

Outside Mahar Aud.

AMHERST Cinema
LATE SHOW
TONIGHT 11:30 P.M.

Frank Sinatra
Laurence Harvey
Janet Leigh

The Manchurian Candidate

Review of Krausman

Area Playwright Criticized

Review: The Mechanical Plays of Joseph Krausman, Bespa Press of Northampton, $1.75.

Joseph Krausman, Music Corporation of America Fellow in Playwrighting at Smith College until last January, has recently had four of his plays plus "a fragment" published by the concurrently founded Despa Press of Northampton. The collection goes under the title of "The Ice Cream Parlor and other mechanical plays."

"The mechanical play," Mr. Krausman says in the preface," deals with a human problem and the search for a device, system, or mechanism that could aid in making a life more bearable." Two of the works deal specifically with such a device.

The first, "An Ear for Truth," seems to be the only successful attempt in the collection. It is successful first because of the irony shown in the naivete of Mrs. Stern, the Jewish widow who buys a plastic ear to listen to her lonely chatter.

It is even more successful for the humor that results as the illogic of the situation is developed when Mrs. Stern gets a mechanical mouth that will answer her with one of several sympathetic acknowledgments when the right button is pushed.

"Wellington's Chair" deals with another mechanical pancreas devised to ease the pains of memory for a man who has everything money could buy. The dialogue, however, tends to be a little hollow, as the play leads nowhere except to a few very flimsy flashbacks and to the inevitable death of Wellington.

"Commencement Exercise" could possibly be the most definitive work of the collection. In this short burlesque, Mr. Krausman seems to be saying that it is possible to write a meaningful play by simply waking up in the middle of the night and recording as exactly as possible the random, incoherent events of a dream just experienced.

Although the final entry, "The Shame of Frederic Klein," is incomplete, it should be fairly easy to predict its outcome on the basis of its similarity to the titular play, "The Ice Cream Parlor." As Mendy Mendowitz must perish as a result of his preference to remain immobile, so we assume Frederic Klein must perish.

That these plays lack action and that the characters lack substance are their virtues. Anything that man works to produce is destroyed and the decision to follow one course of action prevents the following of another. Hence, the characters do nothing and the plays go nowhere.

The beginning of "The Ice Cream Parlor" indicates that the play is going to be about a guy who cannot decide what flavor of ice cream to buy. At the end of the play, we discover that this was exactly all that the play was about. Obviously there are symbolic meanings intended. There is also some very clever irony in the fact that the audience is taunted into sympathizing with this lifeless creature.

The central character of "The Ice Cream Parlor," Mendy Mendowitz, is a symbolic saint: a celibate to the end, refusing to sacrifice the thorns of immobility in order to taste the bittersweets of life. In a world of organized class structures, religion, and philosophy, Mendy could be a martyr here, except that he too, by the playwright's choice, is a mechanization.

Although "The Ice Cream Parlor" and its companion pieces seem destined to enjoy whatever success they will have with the college crowd, it should not be thought that these plays are not intended for the masses.

The sound of their lament is as universal as the sound of a man beating his head against a brick wall and the cry of anguish as he discerns the pain that the masonry has wrought upon him.

Yes, we know, life is futile. Decisions are futile. Effort is futile. In effect, why write a good play when a bad one will serve just as well? With the possible exception of "An Ear For Truth," Mr. Krausman should have followed the example of his characters and written no plays at all.

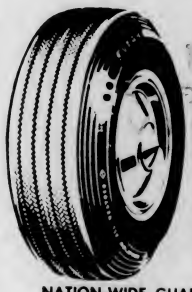
—D. Kieth Michael,
Speech Department

The Southwest College Council, in continuation with its Speaker Program, will present this Sunday at 8:00 P.M. in Dining Commons #7 Prof. John McDermott, Editor of Viet-Report magazine and a report visitor to Vietnam, who will speak on "Vietnam, Myths and Realities."

In addition to the evening lecture in Dining Commons #7, Prof. McDermott will hold an informal lecture-discussion at 3:00 P.M. in Dining Commons #5.

Academic Competence Views Vietnam
See Monday's Collegian

BULLETIN No. 24



OVER 5,000 TIRES IN STOCK INCLUDING FOREIGN AND COMPACT SIZES

UMASS FACULTY
STAFF & STUDENTS
MAY PURCHASE
TIRES
At Wholesale Prices
NEW Perfect Quality GOODYEAR

SPRING 1967

UMASS IDENTIFICATION REQUIRED

BATTERIES
FREE INSTALLATION
6 VOLT $6.83 EXCH.
Fits Most Cars
12 VOLT $9.48 EXCH.
FULL Guarantee provides for battery replacement FREE within 90 days

NYLON CORD TUBELESS		F.E.T.
650/700x13	$12.84	$1.55
775/750x14	$13.86	2.21
825/800x14	$15.52	2.38
855/850x14	$17.96	2.56
775/670x15	$13.86	2.23
815/710x15	$15.52	2.33
845/760x15	$17.96	2.53
900/915/820x15	$21.04	2.86

No Trade-In Required

NATION-WIDE GUARANTEE
NO LIMIT ON MILES • NO LIMIT ON MONTHS
(Adjust Prorated on Original Tread Depth Wear Based on Your Actual Cost Incl. Fed. Exc. Tax)

AT SAME PRICES WE SELL OUR DEALERS

Terms Available
FREE TIRE MOUNTING

Northampton Warehouse For DELTA
PREMIUM NYLON TIRES
THE 50,000 MILE TIRE

STATE INSPECTION PERIOD APRIL 1st TO MAY 15th

BAK TIRE CO.
"Northampton Warehouse Distributors"
55 DAMON ROAD • NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
584-4769

HOURS — 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M.
Saturday 8:00 A.M. to 2:00 P.M.
OVER A HALF CENTURY OF SERVICE

NEW WHEELS
Genuine Firestone Retreads

AMPLE PARKING

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

Vietnam

Gen. William C. Westmoreland is caught in a political crossfire threatening to overshadow his war report to Congress.

Another truce in the Vietnam war is in prospect for Buddha's birthday in late May.

National

The bipartisan House ethics committee is now in business.

Senate leaders indicate the resolution to censure Sen. Thomas J. Dodd will be taken up in about 10 days.

Attorneys for Cassius Clay reiterate he'll refuse to be inducted into military service.

The jury in the Coppolino murder trial retires to a hotel for the night after three hours of deliberation.

George Wallace of Alabama, visiting Northern cities, says he is not a racist, but a defender of states rights.

CORRECTION

Edwin A. Walker, Major General (Resigned), who will be speaking at UMass Monday, was erroneously reported as "presently on a New England tour" on the front page of Wednesday's Collegian. Gen. Walker will not be in any part of New England until Sunday night, when he arrives at Bradley Field Airport, Windsor Locks, Conn. Furthermore, the six programs he will be taking part in in New England and Canada are confined to Massachusetts and the city of Toronto. The trip, therefore, cannot be labeled a 'New England tour'. The Collegian regrets the inaccuracy.

(Not mentioned in Wednesday's article are the dozen suits of Gen. Walker against various newspapers and the Associated Press for over $30 million in damages. Cases are in various stages of litigation and appeal by A.P., which has been adjudged negligent. The general was reported as "leading a charge" and inciting a mob to riot during the James Meredith controversy at Ole Miss. The statements have been proven false. The Collegian hopes for a happier relationship with the general than its wire service enjoys.)

Test Ban Spies All Up in the Air

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Vaulting skyward on twin tongues of flame, a powerful Titan 3 rocket thundered into space today packing three scientific satellites and two robot sentries to police against sneak ban treaty.

The five-in-one shot, grounded one week by pesky problems, blasted off at 5:01 a.m. EST to begin nearly 4½ hours of tricky space maneuvers needed to place its multiple payload into a cigar-shaped orbit ranging from 5,300 to 69,000 miles above the earth.

The mighty Air Force rocket —similar to the type that will someday launch astronauts aboard the Defense Department's Manned Orbiting Laboratory—licked the early morning darkness with brilliant plumes of flame from two strap-on booster motors.

Two nuclear-detection satellites, called Velas, were packed aboard the Titan 3 to spot unclear blasts in earth's atmosphere and deep space, perhaps as far away as Mars.

The new Velas are improved versions of six similar satellites orbited previously to help police the limited test ban treaty signed in 1963 by the United States, the Soviet Union and more than 100 other nations.

The pact prohibits nuclear tests in the atmosphere, under water or in space but allows underground detonations such as one conducted Thursday at the Atomic Energy Commission's Nevada Test Site.

About 22 hours after separating from the Titan 3's last stage, the flight plan called for one Vela to trigger a spacecraft motor to change its elliptical path into a circular orbit 69,000 miles high, with the second Vela to perform the same maneuver in three days, stationing itself on the opposite side of earth.

Three other satellites aboard the $15-million Titan 3 are to remain in the elliptical orbit.

A small arm was installed in one of the payloads, nicknamed the "windshield-wiper satellite," to sweep across various materials such as stainless steel and gold so engineers can measure friction characteristics.

A second payload was designed to study the sun's radiation.

LBJ Tried In Sweden

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Preliminary sessions opened Thursday at the so-called "International War Crimes Tribunal" initiated by philosopher Lord Bertrand Russell to "try" President Johnson and other U.S. leaders concerned with policy in Vietnam.

While the Socialist government says it is unable to prevent the unofficial tribunal from meeting, authorities warned that it will be stopped if Johnson is defamed or the proceedings cause disturbances. Such actions would violate Swedish law.

Most Swedish newspapers are hostile to the tribunal, calling it a propaganda show, and local backers appeared uncomfortable about anti-American statements already issued.

The government and the three non-Socialist opposition parties, after a meeting of the Parliament's Joint Foreign Affairs Committee, issued a statement regretting that the "tribunal" was going ahead but conceding government hands were tied by Sweden's liberal laws.

The preparatory talks are being held behind closed doors to deal with arrangements for planned sessions later this year in other cities. These are scheduled to follow the meeting here, which is said to deal with the two main allegations charging U.S. bombings of civilians and aggression in Vietnam.

Westmoreland in Report to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland is caught in a political crossfire that threatens to overshadow his history-making report to Congress on the Vietnam war.

Westmoreland prepared an account of military progress and prospects for a joint meeting of the House and Senate, where members have been arguing for days over the propriety of his appearance.

The 4-star Army general is the first U.S. commander in history to address Congress while running a war.

In advance of the joint session, sources said the general wouldn't renew his criticism of antiwar protests.

This was a reference to Westmoreland's statement that the Communist enemy misreads antiwar protests as indicating popular opposition to the war effort.

Such protests encourage the Communists to continue their aggression and this will cost American, South Vietnamese and allied lives, the general warned.

There was no disclosure of the trend of the talks, but Westmoreland was believed to have presented his case for more troops beyond the 470,000 - man level now planned for the year's end.

War Truce in May?

WASHINGTON (AP) —The State Dept. reported without comment Thursday that the clandestine Viet Cong radio had proposed a two-day truce for May 23-24.

The reported Communist move doubled in time the proposal of the South Vietnamese government for a 24-hour pause on Buddha's birthday, May 23.

The U.S. and allied forces with troops in Vietnam have supported the South Vietnam government's proposal for a halt in the ground and air war.

In Saigon, the new U.S. Ambassador, Ellsworth T. Bunker, met with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for the first time since his arrival Tuesday. The weeting lasted an hour, and Bunker told newsmen they had an "extremely interesting talk" about many problems.

Bunker had met Ky previously at the Guam conference in Mar.

Communist forces in South Vietnam's embattled northern sector poured artillery, mortar and rocket fire on U.S. and Vietnamese government troops overnight in some of the heaviest enemy shelling of the war.

Twelve Marines were killed.

FACTORY OUTLET

25 Market Street, Northampton

Sweaters for the Entire Family

Pullovers $6 to $11	values to $18
Ladies Cardigans $4.95	values to $7.95
Ladies Pullovers $3.95	values to $6.95
Cashmeres $11.95-$17.50	values to $30

MON. THRU SAT. — 10 AM.-5 P.M.
THURS. EVENING TIL 9:00 P.M.
Market St. is across from Jack August

CLARK-PONTIAC . . . .
HAS NOW IN STOCK
THE NEW MAGNIFICENT FIVE Firebirds

SALE Now in Progress **!!

Also GTO's — CATALINAS — BONNEVILLES
GRAND PRIX — LeMANS — EXECUTIVES

ALSO – F'85's – 442's – Delta's
Toronado's – 98's

CLARK- OLDSMOBILE - PONTIAC
32 UNION ST., EASTHAMPTON
Across from Post Office

Car Rentals Daily Basis — Long Term Car Leasing

1967 Summer Program Positions Open

Application Now Available

Student Activities Office – Student Union

Summer Collegian Staff Positions

Editor-in-Chief—Responsible for total operation of summer newspaper.

Business Manager — Responsible for advertising and financial aspects of summer newspaper. Assists with news coverage.

Photography Editor—Responsible for photo coverage of summer newspaper assists with news coverage and advertising.

Summer Program Assistant
Assists in supervising and coordinating summer program activities.

Part-time sign-maker
Operating line-o-scribe and embos-o-graf machines in Student Union, no previous experience necessary.

For more information contact:

PROGRAM ADVISOR, STUDENT UNION PROGRAM OFFICE.
Return Applications to PLACEMENT OFFICE, S.U. by 5:00 p.m., Monday, May 1, 1967.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Yahoo's Delay

The Communications Board was established with the complete support of the administration. In fact, it is well known that the President had desired such a Board for a number of years. It is therefore sad to see the first major recommendation of this joint Faculty-Student Board seemingly ignored by the Provost through his delay in approving the Board's approved Yahoo budget.

It seems to be evident that one of the functions of the Communications Board is to do the evaluating and checking needed in such an issue as this. Therefore, there is no reason why the Yahoo issue should sit on the Provosts desk for two weeks without any concrete action being taken.

This would seem to be especially true considering the recommendations for approval of the Yahoo issue by the Student Senate, the Dean of Students, and the Faculty Senate.

One can only hope that in the future more faith and respect will be given to the recommendations of Student Government and the Communications Board so that they may do the job they were set up to do.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

★ ★

Coeds Seek Better Image

Special to the Collegian from Associated Collegiate Press

Coeds enrolled in the University of Minnesota Institute of Technology (IT) are uniting to erase their "slide rule, glasses, walking computer" image, reports the Minnesota Daily.

To achieve recognition as "normal students" instead of campus oddities, the coeds hope to establish an all-female IT "society" which will work to improve the male-female ratio, according to Jan Schwarz, IT sophomore and Engineering Day Queen. The sales pitch for enrollment in IT and a science career is expected to be directed at the high school sophomore, to give her time to plan her program to meet IT entrance requirements.

Seventy-five women and 3,308 men are enrolled in the Institute of Technology. This ratio may seem advantageous but said freshman Sue Nelson, "most of the guys just look at you as if they're wondering, 'What is she doing here?' I suppose most people think we're in IT to catch a husband. For most of us, that's the thing furthest from our minds."

Anticipated competition keeps away many coeds, Miss Schwarz said. "Most people think the IT girl is a real brain, a walking genus. Because many girls are afraid to compete against this image, they enroll in liberal art courses."

Asst. Dean Paul Cartwright attributed the sparsity of female enrollment partly to the "strong Scandivanian background of the state. Many women are brought up to learn the home-centered skills—cooking, sewing—and the value of a liberal arts education," he said.

Miss Nelson was enthusiastic about increasing opportunities for women in government work and technical writing. "Actually," she said, "a woman can combine a career in the science field with raising a family and keeping house just as well as she could in another job, like secretarial work."

The urgent and perplexing issues which confront our country, the new dangers which encompass our free society, the new fatefulness attaching to every step in foreign policy and to what the press publishes about it, mean that the preservation of democracy and perhaps of civilization may now depend upon a free and responsible press. Such a press we must have if we would have progress and peace.

—A Free and Responsible Press

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69
News Editors ..... Ron LaBrecque '70, Richard Kline '70
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP
CPS
ASSOCIATED PRESS AP

Friday's Day Editors: News Jim Foudy, Edit. Nancy Bourgoin, Sports Neil Rennie '70

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Campus Comment

Is YAHOO Rotting?

To the Editor:

The view of inaction has finally been lifted from the Yahoo issue with the Provosts declaration to meet immedately with the Editors of Yahoo to iron out a "few remaining problems". However it is unfortunate that this action comes too late to save this year's Yahoo.

The Administration encouraged and worked for the establishment of a Communications Board to review the various campus publications, and particularly to review Yahoo. The Communications Board arrived at its conclusion, to permit Yahoo to publish a trial issue, after a conscientious, comprehensive study and forwarded its recommendation to the Finance Committee of the Student Senate.

The Finance Committee investigated the various financial ramifications of publishing Yahoo. The Yahoo issue was then forwarded to the body of the Student Senate. After lengthy debate, the Student Senate passed the Yahoo budget, thus mirroring student opinion on Yahoo. The date of passage was March 22. After careful consideration, the Dean of Students recommended approval of the budget and forwarded the matter to the Provost. That is where it has stayed for two weeks.

Its seems strange that the Communications Board which was established at the request of the Administration and was given complete support and faith by the Administration was dealt a slap in the face by this same Administration. The unexplained delay of the budget by the Provost has dealt a death blow to Yahoo for this year. Dispite positive recommendations from the Communication Board, the Student Senate, the Faculty Senate, and apparently the Dean of Students, Yahoo will not publish this year.

It is good that the Provost has finally brought the Yahoo issue out into the open and had agreed to swift action. We must strongly regret that a Student Government recommendation was effectively killed for this year by Administrative inaction. We strongly urge that in the future, no such Student and Faculty recommendation be denied by default.

Paul J. Silverman, Student Senate
George Ungerford, WMUA
Robert Gaudet, Index
James Foudy, Collegian

Provost Tippo's Statement on YAHOO

Following the Faculty Senates overwhelming approval of the publication of YAHOO, and the YAHOO editors decision that they cannot publish this year, Provost Tippo issued the following statement.

"For the past ten days I have been considering the YAHOO matter and wrestling with my conscience. I therefore appreciate the action of the YAHOO editors. I, in my turn, pledge to meet immediately with the Editors so that we can iron out the few remaining problems.

Provost Tippo

Ring Into Spring

To the Editor:

As Ben Franklin said, "Spring is the time of year when a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of baseball." Even Franklin recognized that in Spring the spirits of the young rise and they need recreation.

We plead for one day in Spring to enjoy life, one day when we can forget the lab and the libe. During the rest of the season, we'll schedule laughter between study sessions, but it would be nice to have one day entirely devoted to it.

After that one day, we can go into finals a little but more refreshed than we otherwise would.

In view of the psychological, sociological, bioliogical and hedonistic benefits of a Spring Day, we feel that the administration should sanction this holiday. They might even sponsor a picnic on the pond, give the faculty the day off and invite them to the picnic too.

At any rate, Spring Day is coming, not immediately, but sometime before the semester ends. We cordially invite Pres. Lederle, Dean Field, Dean Curtis and Dean Hopkins to don their bermudas and join us.

Paul S. Lereaux

On "Fathers and Sons in Literature"

To the Editor:

With due respect to the efforts of Miss Hermsdorf in her article describing my honor's thesis, "Fathers and Sons in Literature," I must say that I wish she had allowed me to read the rough draft before the report went into print. Not only have I been badly misquoted, but my casual statements of four months ago have been presented as eternal truths. I hope that anyone interested in my topic will ignore the resume and contact me directly—I am not the glittering generalizer that the article would have me appear.

Lorna Sass '67

Sam Spark Speaks Out

A HATE-IN

In a time when daffodils, balloons, brotherhood, and Love-Ins are identified with the "Stop the War in Vietnam" movement, it is becoming apparent that the conservatives need to counteract the favorable publicity of the liberals with a few demonstrations of their own.

I suggest the conservatives on this campus institute a "Hate-In. Every Sunday at noon, a group should meet on the front lawn of the Student Union to revel in all the killing, greed, and corruption going on in the world. Since the objectives of the demonstrations are so solemn, the participants should conduct themselves in a manner conducive to the ideals of the group.

Only moderate signs, made by the organizers of the demonstration should be displayed. Such signs as "We Support the Napalm Bombing of Children", "Martin Lutheran King, besides being a "you-know-what' is also a Commie," Flouridation is a Communist plot", and "4,000 Students for the Removal of Sick-Ep fraternity From Campus," are acceptable.

The participants should remain silent, exchanging sneers with their fellow demonstrators and wish they could know each other better so they could know why they hate each other so much. At the end of an hour, each conservative should walk to his nearest demonstrator, growl at him for a while, and then kick him in the shins.

The purpose of this demonstration would be to prove to the world that nothing constructive can happen unless everybody harbors at least a little bit of hate for his fellow man. After all, it's the American way.

SIGNS OF SPRING

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

UMies were excited last week when this sure sign of Spring appeared down by the pond. Hopes are that UMies curing their Spring Fever down by the pond won't be buried under snow drifts.

STUDENT SENATE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

mit student tax appropriations to the "special interest" or professional clubs, they are "expected" to charge dues and conduct their own fund raising.

The bill will come up next Tuesday when the entire Budget Act is also scheduled.

Immediately after the Pre-Law defeat, Noreen Samia, treasurer of the Marketing Club, asked Budgets Committee Chairman Brad Johnson to withdraw their request for $651. Of the amount, $521 would have covered transportation and lodging for a "career opportunities" trip.

The Women's Affairs Committee recommendation on signing in and out for freshmen women would reverse the present mandatory sign-in policy for a policy of signing-in only after being out for the evening.

It would be assumed if a girl had not signed out, she is in the residence hall. Full signatures and specific destinations were also urged.

Valley Centre was again voted its funds after it was made clear that the "free university" for four-college students is still meeting. Reportedly, there had been a lapse due to overlapping spring recesses.

The action was taken to affirm the original $500 grant overturned by the General Court. Since the judicial veto, a financial policy change allowing grants to non-RSO groups was made.

An argument was presented to the Senate by Sen. Lew Smith (James) that the freshman vice presidential election was unduly influenced by rumor that a candidate was going to appear before the General Court. His effort to hold a new primary was defeated.

Dr. John S. Harris Gets $2400 Grant

Dr. John S. Harris, University of Massachusetts Commonwealth Professor of government, has been awarded a $2400 grant from the Rockefeller Foundation to study government support of the arts.

Dr. Harris will pursue his studies in the United Kingdom for three months, beginning Oct. 31, 1967. He spent three months in Britain in 1960 gathering preliminary material for his study of the role of governments in the promotion and support of the arts in that country.

Tour of Inspection

SW Establishes Newspaper

Relying on a minimum amount of material support and a maximum amount of enthusiasm, George McGee is establishing a newspaper for and by the Southwest Residential College.

In a brief interview this week, McGee, a junior, said the paper is still in an early stage of development but it is projected for a two-page publication. Two issues are being planned before the close of this semester.

Plagued by lack of support, McGee has been trying to establish a paper for Southwest since the beginning of last semester. After being approved by the Southwest Council and the Master's Staff, the initial $600 allowance was cut to $200, significantly limiting size and frequency of publication.

Despite this, McGee, as editor, and his staff of six, guided by his two years' experience at Massachusetts Bay Community College, Boston, will publish their first efforts next week. Contents will include news and sports coverage of Southwest, editorials and letters to the editor, and a political cartoon. McGee remarked that, unlike the Collegian editorials, which in his opinion are generally not up to ideal standards, his will deal with problems of greater importance to a college community than whether or not food is a few days old.

If things go right and McGee gets his promised $200, which he has not seen yet, Southwest residents will soon be reading their own paper, along with the Collegian.

Commons to Open For Study

In response to a unanimous request of the Southwest College Council, University Business Manager, Gerald J. Grady, has announced that Southwest Dining Commons #5 would be open for the purpose of studying from 7:30-10:30 p.m., Sunday-Friday.

The study hall will be a trial program for the two week period starting Monday, May 1, 1967. It will be a controlled study hall under the supervision of Masters' Aides and Dining Commons personnel.

Rules and regulations will be established by the University Food Services in cooperation with the Academic Committee of the Southwest College Council.

Poli Sci Meeting This Weekend

Nearly 200 political scientists from 50 New England colleges and universities will meet at the University of Massachusetts this weekend for the annual meeting of the New England Political Science Association.

The political science experts will spend Friday and Saturday, April 28 and 29, at the University for a series of panel discussions, speeches and a general business meeting.

Among the distinguished speakers will be Governor John H. Chaffee of Rhode Island, who will serve as commentator at the V. O. Key Memorial Panel on New England politics. The discussion, entitled "New England Politics: a Post-Election Review" will include a panel comprising representatives of six schools, and will be directed by co-chairmen Dr. Victoria Schuck of Mount Holyoke College and Dr. George Goodwin of UMass-Boston.

Saturday morning's sessions will offer a choice between panel discussions on "Judicial Decision-Making" and "Liquidation of the American Dependent Empire."

Student Opinions Sought

The UMass Counseling Center has announced that tomorrow or early next week each student at the University will receive in the mail a questionnaire concerning changes made this year in University policies relating to student affairs outside the classroom. It is most important to learn from each student the possible impact of these changes and the opinions and attitudes which relate to them.

The Counseling Office has made this plea to the campus: "We need your help in providing your considered individual opinions, attitudes and experience. By completing the questionnaire and by adding your personal comments we can develop a better understanding of the nature of current campus opinion."

The Office asks that the questionnaire be filled out right away and mailed back together with its completed answer sheet. Students cannot be identified with their answers. It has been assured that every questionnaire will be read and considered and Counseling hopes that every student sees to it that his experience and opinion is included.

— MOVIE —
WHEN WORLDS COLLIDE
Mon., May 1st 8:30 P.M.
Mahar Aud. 50¢ (members free)
Science-Fiction Club

Don't let the price fool you ...this is an expensive shirt
-ARROW-
WHIP CLUB
Easy care 100% cotton. Expert ARROW tailoring. Special collar construction to give longer wear... firmly anchored buttons. Only the shirt is expensive... the price is low. "Sanforized Plus" fabric
Glen collar convertible cuffs $4.50
THOMPSON'S
CLOTHING STORE

AMHERST Cinema
NOW SHOWING TONIGHT AT 8:00
WINNER OF 6 ACADEMY AWARDS!

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PRESENTS A CARLO PONTI PRODUCTION
DAVID LEAN'S FILM OF BORIS PASTERNAK'S
DOCTOR ZHIVAGO
STARRING GERALDINE CHAPLIN · JULIE CHRISTIE · TOM COURTENAY
ALEC GUINNESS · SIOBHAN McKENNA · RALPH RICHARDSON
OMAR SHARIF (AS ZHIVAGO) ROD STEIGER · RITA TUSHINGHAM
SCREEN PLAY BY ROBERT BOLT · DIRECTED BY DAVID LEAN
IN PANAVISION® AND METROCOLOR
Presented Evenings at 8:00 P.M.
Wed.-Sat.-Sun. • Matinee's 2:00 P.M.
Exactly as Show in its Reserved Seat Roadshow Engagement

DVP
Presents EDWIN A. WALKER, Maj. General, resigned
MAY DAY!
on "Concepts of Conservatism"
THE GOVERNMENT - VIETNAM - A VOLUNTEER ARMY
Monday, May 1 8:30 p.m. – Student Union Ballroom

NOTICES

MED TECH MAJORS
On Wed., May 1, there will be nominations for next year's Alpha Delta Theta's officers, at the Student-Faculty night. Voting will take place on Counseling Day, the following day.
Any Med Tech, wishing to join the Alpha Delta Theta National Sorority and has as overall 2.0 Cum, should sign the chapter's petition in the Med Tech office as soon as possible and pick up a copy of the constitution and petition.

MEN'S JUDICIARY
Selections from Class of 1970—1 Justice, at 1:00 P.M., on Sat., April 29 in Dukes Room, S.U.
From Class of 1969—2 Justices, at 1:00 P.M. on Sunday, April 30, in Dukes Room. Applications are in RSO Office.

ALL-CHRISTIAN WORSHIP
On Sunday, April 30, at 11:00 A.M. there will be a worship in Mahar Auditorium. Theme is "Celebration of Joy."

NEWMAN CLUB
On Friday, April 28, from 8-12 P.M. in Social Hall there is a dance. "The Believers" will furnish the music. Nonmembers—50¢, and members—free.
On April 30, from 9:15-11:45 A.M. in North Dining Commons there will take place the Annual Communion Breakfast with speaker Rev. Raymond J. Swords, President of Holy Cross College. Donation is 99¢. Tickets at Newman Center.

EDUCATION CLUB
Elections of officers will be held on Wed., May 3 in Room 123 of School of Ed., at 7:30 P.M. Reports will be given on "The Northeastern Regional Conference for Student Teachers and Beginning Teachers of the Disadvantaged (AACTE and USOE)" and the "100-Cities Assembly of the Year of the Non-Conference (NCTEPS)". All interested are invited to attend.
Now is the time to sign up for the State convention at Hotel Somerset in Boston on May 6. The subject of the convention will be "Sex Education in the Public Schools." Call Mike Glickman, 6-7646, to reserve a space.

PRE-MEDS
Due to difficulties in arranging the itinerary for our trip it has become necessary to limit attendance to the first 15 Pre-Meds who bring two dollars in an envelope with their name on it to the Pre-Med office. All others may leave their name in the even of openings arising.

RSO PRESIDENTS
Please return the Senate questionnaires. If you haven't received one, there are copies in the RSO office over message boxes.

LOST:
Silver charm bracelet, on Friday. Reward. Please call 6-6766.
Black leather wallet. Please return to Jon Fishbane, 1408 T-1. 6-7794.

FOUND:
A watch, in Engineering 118-120 at the close of the Math 186 exam on Jan. 18. See Mr. Allen, Arnold 215.

PINNINGS:
Judy Horton, class of '69, Calvin Coolidge, to Dick Geikie, class of '68, Sigma Alpha Mu.
Ginny Rochl, class of '68, Pi Beta Phi, to Ron Peterson, class of '68, Sigma Phi Epsilon.
Jean Kelley, class of '67, Pi Beta Phi, to Richard Meduski class of '67, Holy Cross.
Katherine Quincy, class of '70, Pi Beta Phi, to Frank Kempisty, class of '70, Grayson.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Sally Doggett, class of '67, Sigma Sigma Sigma, to John P. Cooke, Jr., class of '67.
Georgann Mirick, class of '67, Pi Beta Phi, to Raymond F. Kervian, Jr., class of '67, Stockbridge.
Frani Newton, class of '68, Pi Beta Phi, to Thomas Rice, class of '68, Chi Phi, Amherst.
Donna Yurko, class of '68, Pi Beta Phi, to John Anderson, class of '68, Theta Chi.
Marcia Goclowski, class of '69, Pi Beta Phi, to Charles Wojewoda, class of '67, Worcester Tech.
Irene Restieri, class of '69, Morris House, Smith, to Joe DeSisto, class of '69, John Adams.

Student Affairs Poll Begins This Week

by BOB PERLMAN
Staff Reporter

(The following message from the Office of Institutional Studies and the University of Massachusetts Counseling Center is addressed to each undergraduate individually, and concerns something of considerable value to students and administration alike.)

Tomorrow or early next week each student at the University will receive in the mail a questionnaire concerning changes made this year in University policies relating to student affairs outside the classroom. It is most important to learn from each student the possible impact of these changes and the opinions and attitudes which relate to them.

We need your help in providing your considered individual opinions, attitudes and experience.

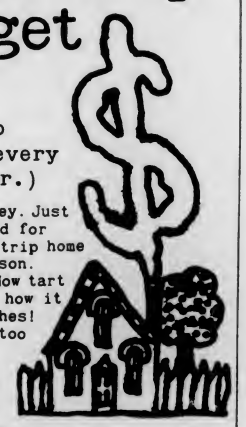
Please fill out the questionnaire right away and mail it back together with its completed answer sheet. (It takes about 15 or 20 minutes). You cannot be identified with your answers in any way so please be frank. We can assure you that every questionnaire will be read and considered and we hope that every student sees to it that his experience and opinion is included.

CO-ED CAMP
on Cape Cod is seeking qualified male staff members to instruct Swimming & Camp Craft.
Please contact
MR. MARK BUDD
37 Cedar St.
Newton Center, Mass.

Blue White DIAMONDS
¼ CARAT - 99.50
½ CARAT - 250.00
Fine Quality
WINN JEWELERS
Amherst

MAKE PAY WHILE THE SUN SHINES... get a summer job with MANPOWER

Manpower needs hundreds of stenos, typists, general office workers to work as White Glove Girl vacation replacements . . . and we're paying the highest rates in our history. Stop in at your local Manpower office when you're home on vacation and let us help plan your summer schedule.
MANPOWER
An Equal Opportunity Employer



MOUNTAIN PARK
RTE. 5, HOLYOKE — Go Where The Action Is
SAT. 8 P.M. ROCKIN RAMRODS

Plus MONTY & THE SPECIALTIES

"A RAVISHING IDIOT"
BRIDGETTE BARDOT
ANTHONY PERKINS
Friday, April 28
Mahar — 8:00 p.m.
50c
Sponsored by the International Club

WMUA 91.1 FM
OPEN HOUSE
THIS SUNDAY FROM 1:00-5:00 P.M.
AT OUR LUXURIOUS STUDIOS IN THE ENGINEERING BUILDING
THE ENTIRE UNIVERSITY COMMUNITY IS INVITED. COME AND MEET YOUR FAVORITE DJS AND ANNOUNCERS.
REFRESHMENTS
SIGNS FROM THE STUDENT UNION
"WMUA THE FIRST EDUCATIONAL RADIO STATION IN THE PIONEER VALLEY"

AN ΑΦΩ Bring-a-Date Movie
LERNER & LOWE'S
BRIGADOON
plus 3 HERMAN & CATNIP CARTOONS
SATURDAY, APRIL 29
MAHAR AUDITORIUM 8:00
50c

Win a free trip home to get money!
(Or enough Sprite to throw a loud party every night for a semester.)

Don't write home to get money. Just write a college newspaper ad for Sprite. You may win a free trip home to ask for the money in person.
What should your ad say? How tart and tingling Sprite is. And how it roars! Fizzes! Bubbles! Gushes! And tastes! (And how!) Not too sweet. Not too innocent.
PRIZES
1st PRIZE $500 IN TRAVELERS CHECKS or 5,000 BOTTLES OF SPRITE
100 PRIZES OF $25 IN DIMES
...so if you can't go home in person, you can use the telephone to make your point.
RULES
Write your ad the way you think would interest college newspaper readers.
Give it a contemporary, sophisticated flavor. (A few swigs of Sprite will give you the idea --though you don't have to buy anything to enter.)
Neatness counts a little. Cleverness counts a lot.
Your ad can be any length--if it fits this space. (But remember you're not writing a term paper.)
Send each ad you submit to Ads for Sprite, P.O. Box 55, New York, New York 10046.
All entries become the property of The Coca-Cola Company. None will be returned. Judges' decision final. Entries must be received by May 2, 1967. Be sure to include name and address. Winners will be notified by May 24, 1967.

SPRITE, SO TART AND TINGLING WE JUST COULDN'T KEEP IT QUIET.
SPRITE IS A REGISTERED TRADE MARK OF THE COCA COLA COMPANY

MASS. CLASSIFIED

HELP WANTED

Tree surgeon. Unusual opportunity with good future, top salary. G & M Employment Service, 145 State St., Springfield, 739-1133.

Part or full time bus boys, good salary, tips. Apply Mr. Whalen, Lord Jeffrey Inn, Amherst.

The "Circle D" would like to speak to a young woman who is a proficient western rider and who is interested in working with children. Circle D Ranch, call after 7 p.m., 253-5779

For Rent

M frame in Pelham, 4 miles from campus. For rent over summer, $90 a month, furnished. Call 253-3260 evenings.

Luxury 8-room furnished apartment in Sunderland. Wall to wall carpet, library, recreation room—all for $145 mo. Call 665-3842 or stop by 131 Hasbrouck.

FOR SALE

Meal ticket — Southwest Dining Commons No. 5, 1st semester or both. Call: 546-7855 from 7:00 p.m. to 11 p.m.

AUTOMOBILES

1964 Comet 202-4-door sedan standard shift-radio-excellent condition, $725.00. Call Dave after 5 p.m. 256-8054

1965 MG Midget Mk II roadster, 17,000 mi., equipped with roll bar but never raced, excellent condition, $1295, 584-2088.

MGA 1958 new tires, curtains, top & tonneau cover, excellent cond. $500 best offer by May 5. Call 253-9540 after 4:00.

WANTED

Ride wanted to and from Springfield to UMass for first session summer school. Call 546-8494.

Ride or hitchhiking partner to Mexico to leave second week in June. Will share expenses, call Dani, 253-9823 after 6 p.m.

Two attractive funloving girls to be traveling companions for two free living young men. Destination, West Coast. Leaving June 6-10. Call 6-9303 after 11:30 p.m.

PERSONAL

Who is Paul S. Lereaux?

BASEBALL...

(Continued from page 8)

four, and Quinn went to first.

With rightfielder Jim Straub, the man who lashed the opposite field triple that led to the first Eph run at the plate, the situation was crucial.

With the guts of a bell-ringer on Spring Day, Mosher suddenly streaked for the plate. Rappoli saw him, tried to alter his delivery, and threw the ball over catcher Tony Chinappi's head. That was the ball game.

Earlier the Redmen made noises of their own. In the ninth inning they negotiated two runs on one hit and some sloppy play afield. Stewart walked and Carle Botcze hit a fly to left which dropped as McPherson and Ned Williams collided. Vyce batted for Elliot Klein and beat out an infield hit. Stewart scored when Williams starter Jim Kile threw the ball away.

First baseman Roy Lasky then flied deep to left and Hale scooted home with the tying run.

A hotly disputed balk ruling on Rappoli gave Williams its second run in the eighth. It came with two out and a 3-2 count on the hitter.

NOW OPEN
DRIVING RANGE
GLACIAL PINES
GOLF CENTER
MILL VALLEY ROAD
OFF RTE. 9
HADLEY, MASS.

INTRAMURALS

Little, Digregorio, Zambrick Score Mound Wins

by TOM CONUEL
Staff Reporter

Fine pitching featured the intramurals softball games played Wednesday night.

The Smashers stopped the Flaming A's, 6-0, behind the three-hit shutout pitching of Rich Little. Marty Pikul and Paul Duby led the Smasher attack.

Dave Digregorio sparked the Cherries to a 2-1 victory over the Panthers with a fine mound performance. Digregorio also came up with an important hit to help his own cause.

Zambriek pitched the Spartans to a 3-1 decision over the Apples, while the Aces nudged the Hawks, 5-2.

Rounding out the softball action, the origional Flaming A's bombed the Rams, 15-6, and the Redwoods topped the Academics, 7-5.

* * *

In soccer, the Maroons edged the Senators, 1-0, and the Terrors downing the Birches, 2-0. Charley Rosoff scored both goals.

Pete Goodman's goal was all AEP needed to down ATG, 1-0. TKE and PSD played a scoreless tie as did QTV and APO.

Dick Bianchi scored two goals as TEP edged TC, 2-1. Tom Ward's goal allowed ZN to stop BKP, 1-0, and SAM tied SPE, 1-1.

In the Independent League, one game was played. The Chem Club defeated the Grad-Faculty, 1-0. Brad Giddings tallied the decisive marker for the Chem Club.

tuition worries?
Hood
End them all by selling Ice Cream this summer from a profit-proven mobile ice cream truck. You're on your own with a complete money-making program.

For further information or a descriptive brochure, call or write
MANLEY COLONIAL
A Subsidiary of H. P. Hood and Sons
492 Rutherford Ave. (rear),
Boston, Mass. 02129
(617) 242-5300

DEERFIELD DRIVE-IN THEATRE
Route 5 & 10
South Deerfield, Massachusetts
Tel. 665-8746
Fri. - Sat. - Sun.
Warner Bros. unlocks all the doors of the sensation-filled best seller.
HOTEL
Directed by RICHARD QUINE · Written for the screen by · Produced by WINDSOR MAN'S TECHNICOLOR® FROM WARNER BROS.
also
GEO. MAHARIS
"A COVENANT WITH DEATH"
Color
Showtime 7:30
Sun. Hotel 7:30

GUYS and gals

EARN
$125 A WEEK OR MORE
THIS SUMMER* WITH Good Humor

These Colleges Had Students With Even Higher Earnings:

UNIV OF GEORGIA $148 61
NEW YORK UNIVERSITY – $144 09 • $189 37
UNIV OF ILLINOIS $143 32 • $174 83 • $157 03
NORTH CAROLINA UNIV – $197 77 • $177 01
EMORY UNIV – $130 47
$147 76 • BOB JONES UNIV – $146 43
BROWN UNIV – $131 39
DAVIS AND ELKINS – $146 57 • $140 60
TRINITY COLLEGE – $194 70
TUFTS UNIV – $141 51
UNIV OF MASS – $132 70
CORNELL UNIVERSITY – $180 46 • $177 75
UNIV OF MICHIGAN – $146 23
UNIV. OF WEST VIRGINIA – $150 00
UNIVERSITY OF BUCKNELL – $181 45
CITY COLLEGE OF N Y – WEST VIRGINIA WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY – $131 04
TEMPLE UNIV – $145 31 • $154 89
LA SALLE $146 94
VIRGINIA POLY TECH INST – $149 03
QUEENS COLLEGE – $139 75 • $137 59
FLORIDA STATE – $147 65 • $162 67
LEHIGH UNIVERSITY – $135 13
WAYNE STATE UNIV $156 83 • $141 67
EASTERN MICHIGAN $148 18 • $134 90 •
MICHIGAN STATE – $152 84
IONA COLLEGE – SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY – $151 41 • $146 81
UNIV. OF CONN $170 70 • $150 83
UNIVERSITY OF BUFFALO – $143 15 • $143 40 • $147 76
FLORIDA ATLANTIC UNIV $158 65 • PURDUE UNIV – $162 21 • $139 04
UNIV. OF BALTIMORE – $157 77 • $179 76 • UNIV OF FLORIDA $181 38 • $198 50
FORDHAM COLLEGE – $148 63 • $142 84
BROOKLYN COLLEGE $153 42 • MANHATTAN COLLEGE $157 08 • RUTGERS – $135 88
ST. JOHN'S UNIVERSITY – $157 98 • GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIV $134 67 • UNIV OF VIRGINIA – $131 33
GEORGETOWN UNIV.
LOYOLA UNIV (CHICAGO) – $148 46 • $181 17 • $160 04 • JACKSONVILLE UNIV $151 61
UNIV. OF SOUTH FLORIDA – $132 85 • $140 72 • $134 07 • $143 47
CENTRAL MICHIGAN – DUKE UNIV – $151 39 • $201 16 • $138 94
UNIV OF MARYLAND $218 11
UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA $162 50

No experience needed. You are fully trained and work on routes with proven high earnings.

Nothing to invest . . . everything you need is supplied free.

HOW TO QUALIFY FOR INTERVIEW
1. Minimum age 18.
2. Need a valid driver's license and be willing to drive a clutch transmission.
3. Be in good physical condition.

REGISTER NOW
Ask your Summer Placement Director or Student Aid Officer to show you Good Humor's folder explaining this high paying job and to schedule you for our campus visit.

INTERVIEW DATE
COMING SOON

*Earnings for females have not approximated this average in most cases due to legal restrictions on working hours for women.
An Equal Opportunity Employer-(M/F)

JOIN the CASINO ROYALIST FUN "movement"
HE'S HERE-OUR REAL LEADER
PETER SELLERS WRITES BOOKS
URSULA ANDRESS READS IN BED
WOODY ALLEN-OGRE OGRE SEVEN
JOANNA PETTET-CELESTIAL VIRGIN WITH HEAVENLY BODY
ORSON WELLES
TEENY-BOPPER UP TIGHT
LE CHIFFRE CHEATS AT BACCARAT
URSULA ANDRESS-SIGH-SPY
DEBORAH KERR-SMERSH drainpipe SWINGER
BARBARA BOUCHET SEPARATES BONDS FROM BOYS
SMERSH BLOWS ITS COOL
DEBORAH KERR "DOODLE TIME, JAMIE LAD"
CAST OF THOUSANDS
THOUSANDS in CAST
BURT BACHARACH-OOT-BOZ-KA-YE-YE
CHARLES BOYER
VERY CASINO ROYALE
DALIAH LAVI MELTS ROCKS!
DAVID NIVEN-OH OH Seven, Sir
TERENCE COPER-007 IRA
MISS MONEYPENNY IS A BOND-AID
GIRL BY KEYSTONE
ROYALIST GET WITH IT-CASINO ROYALE IS WHERE ITS AT SMERSH BUYS IT
WOODY ALLEN-Hee Hee Hee
JEAN PAUL BELMONDO-EST ARRIVE
SIR JAMES BOND (THE ORIGINAL)
MATA BOND
FLIPS HIGH
LAMAS
BATHES WITH GIRLS
FANG GIRLS
CHEESECAKE
TERENCE COPER
BEEFCAKE
WILLIAM HOLDEN: CIA (don't sniff his flowers)
INDIANS ARE GOOD GUYS
PETER SELLERS HAS 5 WIVES AT HOME
GEORGE RAFT FLIPS
JOHN HUSTON ACTS
CHARLIE FELDMAN is a mad GENIUS
JAMES BOND 007
CASINO ROYALE
MARCH! SING RALLY SONGS! GET POSTERS! TIJUANA-WHAT BRASS! BUY OUR BONDS!
ATTEND THE BIG FUN SIT-IN at your THEATRE
Get Free Full-Color Reproduction of this Poster. Send 50¢ for handling and postage, with name and address, to "OUR LEADER," P.O. Box 7007, Grand Central Station, New York 10017

Gloucester High School Coach Named UMass Hockey Boss

Director of Athletics Warren P. McGuirk today announced the appointment of John E. Caniff, Jr. as an assistant athletic coach commencing this fall with his assignment as head hockey coach being his primary responsibility.

Caniff has been a teacher-coach at Gloucester High School for the past 11 years.

A native of Arlington, the new coach was a member of Arlington High's 1949 New England High School Ice Hockey Championship team and he was a standout performer on Boston College sextets from 1952 and 1954.

Following his graduation at Boston College in 1954, he spent two years in the U.S. Army before he began his tenure at Gloucester. While at Gloucester his teams have won 104 games, lost 30 and tied 22 and have qualified for the state tournament on nine occasions.

JOHN CANIFF
'Great Opportunity"

"It's a great opportunity to get into the collegiate field," said Caniff in a telephone interview with the Collegian yesterday. "Of course we would like to build the program up."

Caniff succeeds Steve Kosakowski who is stepping down after 13 years as Redmen hockey coach because of health reasons. McGuirk indicated that in addition to the hockey team, Caniff will also be assigned to other collateral duties in the School of Physical Education.

Lacrosse Game Not in Stadium

Because of the soggy condition of the field, the UMass - Dartmouth lacrosse game tomorrow will not be played at the Stadium. The game, which was to be the first non-football affair at the Stadium, will be played on the upper lacrosse field, between Boyden and the Cage.

The Stadium will be in use only on Saturday, May 6, for the UMass intra - squad game that will climax spring drills. The Varsity "M" Club, which is sponsoring the game, has decided against a varsity-alumni format because of high costs involved.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
Sports
FRIDAY, APRIL 28, 1967
Page 8 Vol. XCV, No. 69

Runners Excel as UMass Conquers Springfield

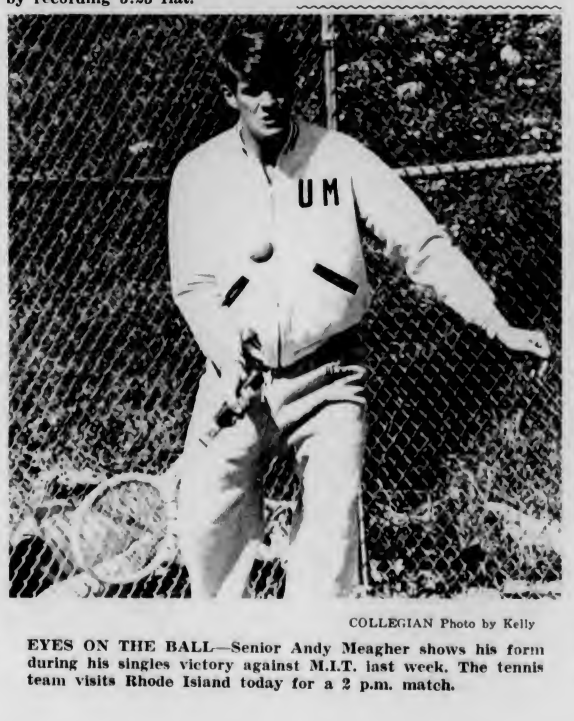
SPRINGFIELD—Leading by more than 20 points with only five events and the relay to go, Springfield College had all but written the UMass track meet into the record books.

The Redmen, however, had just begun to fight. Coach Bill Footrick's forces, used to the come-from-behind role, reeled off their most amazing display of clutch running in the final events to shock the Maroons, 80-69, here Wednesday.

UMass took one-two in the half-mile, one-two in the 220, one-two-three in the two-mile and one - one - three in the discus. To ice the meet the Redmen ripped the meet record in the mile relay by five-and-a-half seconds.

Once again the Redmen fell far behind in the field events, winning only two of eight and being shut out in three. But the runners saved the day by outscoring Springfield on the track, 57-20.

Dave Schlatka and Bill Tindall provided UMass' wins on the field. Tindall won his high jump specialty at 6' and John Lisack took third at 5' 10. Schlatka's victory, 138' in the discus, was the clutch one at the end of the meet. Co-captain Court Bassett was third.



In other field events, Tony Divver continued to improve in the hammer and threw 150' for second place. Bassett recorded a heave of 144' for third. Tindall also had a fine long jump of 22' 10" for second place, and Art Larvey leaped 22' 4" for third. Tindall also grabbed second in the triple jump. But the Redmen failed to win a place in the javelin, shot put and pole vault.

The runners, on the other hand, lost only two of nine events and scored one-two coups in five. Greg Bowman and Co-captain Terry Carpenter scored a tactical one-two victory in the mile at 4:24. Co-captain Jay Hall negotiated the high hurdles in 16.3 seconds for a win with Ted Davis a stride behind at 16.4 for third place.

John Anderson (49.8) and Diego Gonzales (49.9) grabbed second and third in the 440. Art Larvey zipped over the 100 yards in 10 flat and Steve Burrell in 10.1 for first and second places. Bowman and Carpenter teamed up again in the half-mile for another one-two finish with "Bones" clocking 1:56.6 and Terry 1:57 flat. The tired Anderson grabbed only third in the 440 intermediate hurdles.

Larvey and Burrell outsprinted Springfield's best again in the 220 with the former checking in at 22.9. And Paul Hoss, Steve St. Clair and Charlie Lang applied the crushing blow by sweeping the two-mile, usually a Springfield stronghold. Hoss made the trip in 9:28, St. Clair in 9:29 and Lang in 9:32. Those were the best times of the year for each of them.

Extinguishing all hopes the Maroons had of pulling the meet out, the mile relay team of Gonzales (51 seconds), Anderson (50), Bob Hasselbaum (51) and Bowman (50) wiped out Springfield's relay team and the meet record of 3:28.5 by recording 3:23 flat.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kelly

EYES ON THE BALL—Senior Andy Meagher shows his form during his singles victory against M.I.T. last week. The tennis team visits Rhode Island today for a 2 p.m. match.

Williams Nips Redmen, 3-2, On Wild Pitch in 10th

Crucial Walk, Balk Argued

by TIM MURPHY
Staff Reporter

WILLIAMSTOWN — Colliding outfielders, a curving opposite field triple just inches fair, a disputed balk, an odd walk and a game-deciding wild pitch on an attempted steal of home.

Someone has said that baseball is a funny game and it was a truism yesterday at Weston Field as Williams College edged UMass, 3-2, in 10 innings of crime and punishment.

The weather was cold and the sky overcast, conditions that may have influenced play. At any rate, with the score tied at 2-2 and dusk approaching after nine innings of play, it was agreed by both teams to play one more full inning. One inning was all it was to take.

The Redmen began the top half of the 10th with a pop to third and a quick strike out. Then Larry Ricketts, who had come on to pitch when the Redmen rallied in the ninth, lost his kinesthetic sense and passed Joe DiSarcina, Frank Stewart and Dick Hale in rapid succession.

Alex Vyce then struck out on a sharp curve ball and Williams came to bat.

Rich Rappoli was doing the twirling for UMass. He had come into the contest at the start of the eighth after starter Dave Katz was removed for a pinch hitter. For his part, Katz gave up just one run on seven hits in seven innings.

In the ninth, Rappoli struck out the side with ease and appeared to be in control. With one out in the 10th, Williams catcher Dick Mosher lined a double to left for his second hit of the day in five appearances.

Rappoli then walked third baseman Andy Cadot. With runners then on first and second, Eph cleanup hitter Ted McPherson bounced into a fielder's choice. Runners on first and third, two out.

With shortstop Bob Quinn at the plate, someone got his signals crossed. When Quinn was waved to first on a free pass, shouts of protest rose from the UMass bench over the number of balls called on Quinn. Many thought three, the ump thought

(Continued on page 7)

UMASS	ab	r	h	bi	WILLIAMS	ab	r	h	bi
DiSarcina, s	3	0	0	0	Bodinson, 2	4	0	0	0
Stewart, 2	3	1	0	0	S'ta D'ta, ph	1	0	0	0
Boteze, lf	4	0	0	0	Mosher, c	5	2	2	0
Hale, pr-cf	0	1	0	0	Cador, 3	4	0	2	0
Klein, 3	3	0	0	0	McPh's'n, cf	3	0	1	0
Vyce, ph-rf	2	0	1	0	Quinn, s	4	0	1	0
Lasky, 1	3	0	2	1	Straub, rf	4	1	1	0
Ferron, rf	4	0	0	0	Holdridge, 1	4	0	1	1
Dever, 3	0	0	0	0	Williams, lf	4	0	0	0
Mareno, cf	4	0	0	0	Kile, p	3	0	1	0
Chinappi, c	3	0	1	0	Ricketts, p	1	0	0	0
Katz, p	2	0	0	0
Canty, ph	1	0	0	0
Rappoli, p	1	0	0	0
Totals	33	2	4	1	Totals	37	3	9	1

UMass	000	000	002	0—2
Williams	010	000	010	1—3

E—Williams (2), Kile, DiSarcina. S—McPherson. 2B—Cador, Mosher. 3B—Straub. SB—Mosher, McPherson.

	ip	h	r	er	bb	so
Katz	7	7	1	1	0	2
Rappoli (L)	2 2/3	2	2	2	3	3
Kile	8	3	2	0	2	5
Ricketts (W)	2	1	0	0	4	3

BK—Rappoli. WP—Rappoli. T—2:40.

Cross, Then UNH

The UMass baseball team hosts Holy Cross today at 3 p.m. and another tomorrow at 2 p.m.

The team can't forget last year's second game against New Hampshire, a good incentive for tomorrow's contest.

Last year the Redmen needed only to beat the lowly Wildcats to clinch the Yankee Conference crown and an NCAA District Playoff berth. But the roof fell in as UMass was atrocious in the field, and New Hampshire won, 8-3, throwing the race into a three-way tie.

Golfers Take 2 Of 3 Matches

The UM golf team won two out of 3 matches in a quadrangular meet at the Orchards in So. Hadley yesterday.

Capt. Jim McDonald had a 78 to take medalist honors for the Redmen, who lost to URI, 6 - 1, but beat Amherst, 6 - 1 and Middlebury, 5 - 2.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL (V)-vs. Holy Cross (Home, Today, 3 p.m.)

BASEBALL (V) - vs. New Hampshire (Home, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)

LACROSSE (V) - vs. Dartmouth (Home, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)

TENNIS (V)-vs. Rhode Island (at Kingston, R.I., Today, 2 p.m.)

TRACK (V)-Penn. Relays (at Philadelphia, Today and Tomorrow)

GOLF (V)-vs. Holy Cross (at Worcester, Tomorrow, 11 a.m.)

CREW-vs. Dartmouth (at Hanover, N.H., Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)

BASEBALL (Frosh)-vs. Holy Cross (at Worcester, Today, 3 p.m.)

BASEBALL (Frosh) - vs. Mt. Wachusetts (Home, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)

LACROSSE (Frosh)-vs. Dartmouth (Home, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)

Frosh Lacrossemen Stand 1-1

by JOHN GEDSUDSKI
Staff Reporter

The UMass freshman lacrosse team owns a 1-1 record after losing to Wesleyan, 6-3, last Saturday trouncing Holy Cross, 12-3, Wednesday.

After falling behind, 4-0, at the half to Wesleyan in the game at Middletown, Conn., the Little Redmen bounced back to narrow the margin. Bob Marshall, Bob Florin and John Shyavitz found the range for UMass in the second half. Pete Dunsford assisted on the last goal.

But Wesleyan notched another two goals to put it out of reach, despite the outstanding efforts of UMass defenseman Ken Schnide and goalie Pete Scoville, who made 15 saves, many on one-and-one situations.

The team returned to home grounds Wednesday and rebounded from the loss in spectacular fashion. The attackmen tallied nine times for UMass, which blew Holy Cross off the field with an eight-goal second half.

Shyavitz, a hustling attackman, scored four goals while Florin and John Parry hit the net twice each. Other UMass goals were credited to Bill Devore, Dale Siswick, Marshall and Dunsford.

Even goalie Scoville scored an assist in the prolific offensive display.

First-year coach John (Bones) Bamberry, a former UMass lacrosse star in his own right, lauded the play of Shyavitz, Florin, Marshall and Parry, along with defensemen Devore and Fran Bositis.

The coach added that middie Dan Boudreau played well in both games after sustaining a hip injury in practice.

"We're looking forward to a real aggressive game against Dartmouth Saturday," Bamberry said. The frosh game will be on the lower lacrosse field.

PEACE CORPS IS GOING TO POLYNESIA

Liberal Arts Graduates Will Be Nucleus of New Western Samoa Program

The Peace Corps has been invited to send Volunteers to Polynesia's first independent nation — Western Samoa.

Having demonstrated in Micronesia in the space of only a few months what Volunteer catalysts can do in a Pacific Island setting, the Peace Corps will place a new contingent in training for the Samoan assignment beginning this summer, with the likelihood that by that time Volunteers will also be requested for assignment in other new South Pacific island areas.

Peace Corps planners believe it is possible that these projected programs, coupled with the existing Micronesian efforts, could add as many as 1,000 new Volunteers in the Pacific.

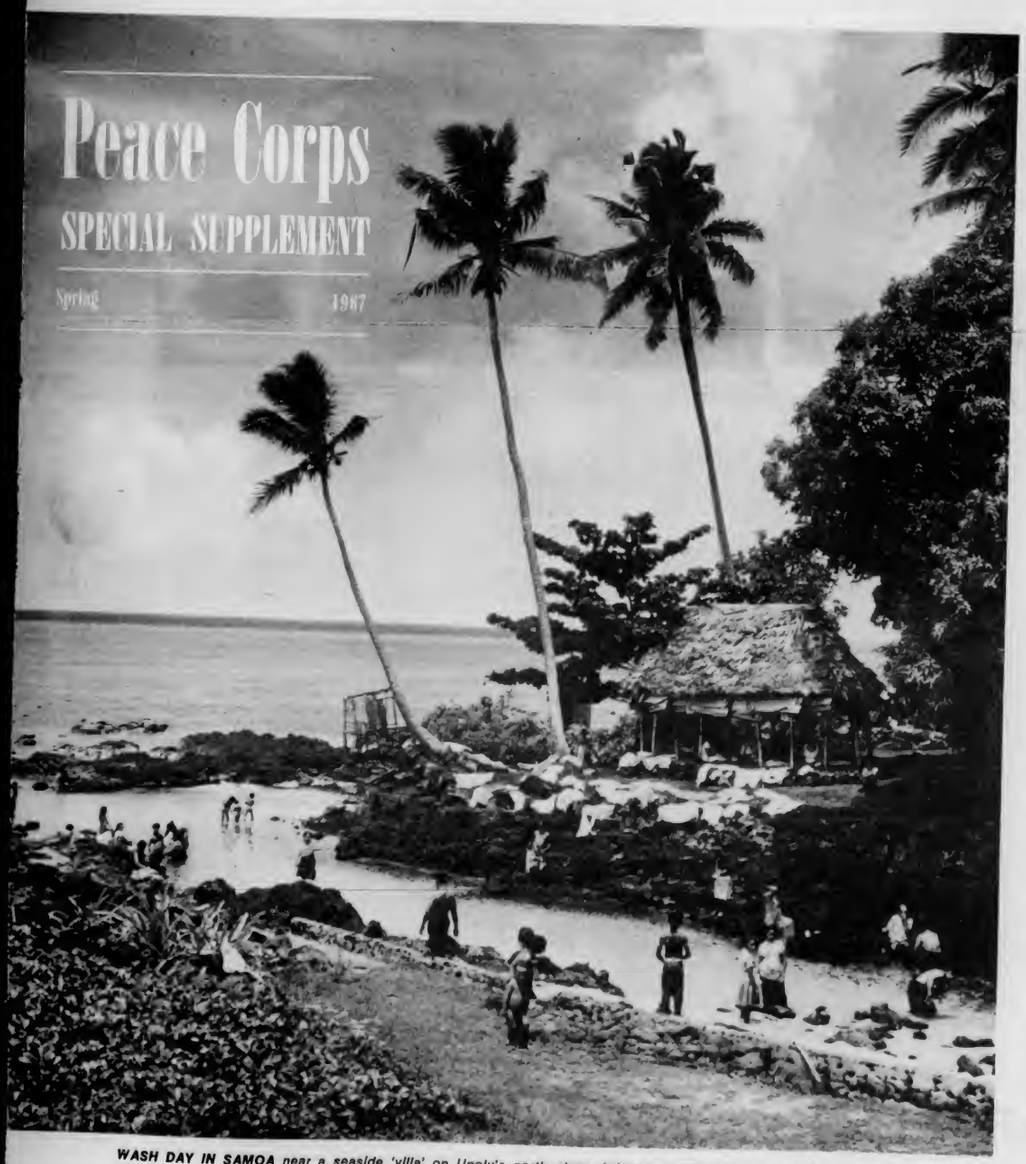
For Western Samoa, and other projected South Seas assignments, the Peace Corps is seeking mainly liberal arts graduates for tasks in teaching, public health, agriculture and community development.

* * *

THE GOAL is to raise thousands of islanders from a life of ill health, poor diet and lack of education in an area of the world that historically has received more romantic than realistic attention.

Volunteers in Western Samoa — a nine-island complex supporting a rapidly-growing population of 134,000 — will form a striking force against an array of health problems and obstacles to educational and economic development in a country where:

- almost all Samoans suffer from intestinal parasites and many others are afflicted with tuberculosis, yaws, leprosy and other infectious diseases.
- adequate, safe village water supplies are a luxury.
- infant mortality is still more common than not and population growth is outstripping what few advances have been made in improving island life.



Against this dismal background are further hindrances to development: lack of educational facilities and a meager agricultural output.

* * *

THE FIRST VOLUNTEERS to reach Western Samoa this fall will set in motion a government health program designed to survey the islands' health needs and the prevalence of diseases. Later, the Volunteers — mostly liberal arts graduates who will be supported by a team of Volunteer doctors, nurses, lab technicians, civil engineers and architects—will shift into disease control, environmental health and sanitation, maternal and child care projects and the building of village water supply systems.

Meanwhile, about 20 agricultural extension workers, including five Volunteers with business administration backgrounds to work with cooperatives, will aid farmers growing the major island crops of ba-

Continued on page 2

WASH DAY IN SAMOA near a seaside 'villa' on Upolu's north shore brings out most of the neighborhood. Thatched roof house lacks walls so occupants work and sleep in full view. Palm frond blinds are dropped only during foul weather.

— NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY PHOTO (C) 1962

Applications Are Due Now For Summer, Fall Training Programs

Despite the lure of top-paying jobs with private industry, the Peace Corps continues to be the country's number one employer of newly-minted college graduates.

As the Peace Corps loses its amateur standing and joins the big leagues in overseas development, the vast academic melting pot will again provide the bulk of the estimated 8,000 Volunteers required to fill the critical skill reservoirs in at least 56 countries this year.

* * *

ALREADY rapidly-approaching summer training programs are being developed for the new Peace Corps countries of Lesotho, The Gambia and Upper Volta in Africa (see page 4) and Western Samoa in the Pacific.

After a 2½-year absence, the Peace Corps is returning to Ceylon to assist in an over-all national effort to make the tear-drop-sized nation self-sufficient in food production.

In the Trust Territory of the Pacific (Micronesia) and South Korea in East Asia and the Pacific; Chad, Libya, Botswana and Mauritania in Africa, and Paraguay and Guyana in Latin America—all countries which received their first Volunteers only last year — additional programs are also being mounted for summer training sessions.

Graduating seniors are being urged to apply now, as summer and fall training program quotas are rapidly beginning to fill.

* * *

ENTERING A NEW ERA of consolidated growth, Director Jack Vaughn, an ex-boxer, Marine combat officer and diplomat, has brought the agency through a vital stage of development in which the Peace Corps is being asked to measure its impact overseas and not simply rely on what one official calls "youthful goodwill ambassadoring."

Although there is little quarrel with basic goals — fostering ideas and techniques of self-help, cooperative work and community organization — new trends in training are beginning to take shape. They include lengthier preparation for most programs, more in-country as opposed to stateside training, and greater emphasis on technical and language skills.

MAIN ISLANDS of Western Samoa lie on direct line between Hawaii and New Zealand, 4,000 miles from California. Nearby is American Samoa.

POLYNESIA, Continued from Page 1

Health, Education, Food Are Major Samoan Problems

nanas, cocoa and coconuts by introducing improved techniques of planning, upkeep, management and production of better and larger crops for both export and domestic consumption.

* * *

A SECOND PHASE of the Western Samoa program will send up to 150 English teachers into the elementary and intermediate levels of the Samoan school system, which currently is staffed largely by inadequately-trained islanders.

Reflecting the broad involvement in community life expected of most Volunteers, the teachers during "off hours" will help fellow Samoan teachers improve their English, instruct students and villagers in basic health and hygiene practices, and aid Volunteer health workers in their tasks.

Living conditions will be in the South Pacific image for most Volunteers, who will reside in villages in the traditional fale — a round wood and thatch structure that offers natural wall-to-wall air conditioning in a comfortable tropical climate.

* * *

THE EXPERIENCES thus far of Volunteers in neighboring Micronesia suggest that Volunteers will take quickly to the similar Samoan setting. The close confines of an island environment, instead of fostering rivalry and misunderstanding, promote a spirit of friendliness, openness and mutual dependence. It is within this cultural context that the Volunteers will live and work for two years.

Western Samoa is the first Polynesian island group to achieve independence, having slipped off its United Nations trusteeship status under New Zealand on January 1, 1962. Full political emancipation ended almost a century of colonial administration, first under Germany from 1889 onward, then under New Zealand following World War I.

* * *

DURING the latter half of the 19th century, while Germany, the United States and Great Britain contended for Samoan favors, the islands and their people were plagued by bitter internal struggles surrounding the kingship. Recent times, however, have witnessed peaceful transition from colonial to independent governments and the Samoan scene since 1962 has been one of marked stability.

Lying 1,000 miles below the equator and 2,600 miles southwest of Hawaii, Western Samoa's two major islands of Upolu and Savaii cover an area approximate to Rhode Island. The islands are surrounded by coral reefs enclosing quiet lagoons. Tropically-vegetated heights of several thousand feet dominate both islands.

Author James A. Michener, with long experience in the South Pacific, wrote of Polynesia in Return to Paradise that its "influence on world thought is far greater than its size would warrant. Musical names like Tahiti, Rarotonga, Bora Bora carry an emotional freight to all cold countries of the world . . ."

HEALTH WORKER Tod Whitaker kneels next to World War II wing tank now used to catch drinking water.

EDUCATOR Barbara Whitlow airs a radio program on public health to people of the Marshall Islands.

TEACHER Kathy Fitch is assigned to the elementary school at Wone on island of Ponape. By fall 1967 there will be more than 400 Peace Corps Volunteer teachers in Micronesia.

ISOLATED SPLENDOR of Pagan Island's black sand beaches give Carol and Wayne Waldrip and young friend complete privacy. Waldrips, both teachers, are only Volunteers on this outlying island.

RE

The gen lands out of th eternal spr
a subtle ch in the cur patterns. are being customs grained.
Micronesia
later.

The che young mar an isolate adjusts to tempo, co and steel beauty of steaming children o jungle pat small that water cat and plans cepts. Bu changes h from his i

In most are no pr still a wor

POLYNESIA DESK
PEACE CORPS
Washington, D. C. 20525

Please rush me a Peace Corps Application for Polynesia.

I am a

☐ Liberal Arts Major,

☐ Other _____ Specify

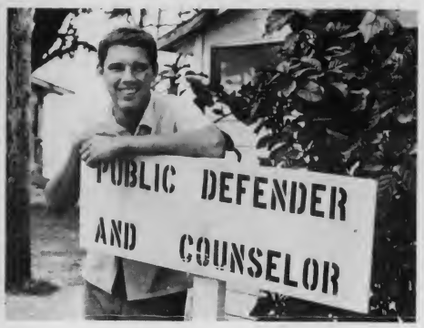
Attention: APPLICANT SERVICES

Name (please print) _____



Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip Code _____

College or University _____

I graduate in _____ Month Year

ATTORNEY Dan Persinger works in cooperation with Public Defender's office in Majuro.

HEALTH WORKER Ann Maxwell talks with two of her patients at the dispensary in Wone, Ponape.

MECHANIC Dale Baisch (left) and small business adviser Paul Callaghan are attached to the Palau boat yard.

EPORT FROM MICRONESIA

about the class of '66

e trade winds caress the is- of Micronesia for ten months e year and the climate is ng. Recently there has been hange, not in the climate, but rents of thought and social New ideas and new attitudes introduced in an area where nd mores are deeply in- his is the Peace Corps in : the class of 1966 a year ge is a two way street. The from the Bronx who lives in village of only 40 people a new life, a slower pace and mpletely alien to the concrete f New York. He discovers the an orchid blooming in the rain forest, the laughter of their way to school along a n. He teaches English in a h-roof school, improves the hment system in the village, o introduce new health con- t just as important as the e makes, he will come away sland deeply changed.

areas of Micronesia there oblems of hunger, but it is d of startling contrasts. The people of Ebeye (its main street is pictured at right), profoundly influenced by the proximity of the missile site at Kwajalein, have forgotten many of their out-island skills. They eat their tuna in cans and wear sport shirts imported from California. Only a small portion of the people on Ebeye work at the missile site. Ebeye has become known as the slum of the Pacific with 4,000 people crowded onto the small island.

On Ebeye, like other parts of Micronesia, the influence of the Peace Corps is beginning to be felt. Eight Volunteers working in cooperation with the Trust Territory perform such diverse jobs as teaching, community development, health, and even business administration.

Part of the satisfaction of being a Volunteer in Micronesia is the sense of acceptance which is given by the Micronesians. These people feel that the Peace Corps Volunteers belong to them; there is a warmth, an empathy which is a coin of great value.

The present program has over 450 Volunteers. The impact of their work, of their concern will be felt for generations.

25,000th VOLUNTEER John Phillips (left) and fellow Volunteer Thomas Sheehan, both architects, confer with a local planner on a low-cost housing project for Saipan.

MICRONESIAN HOUSING ranges from traditional grass roofed homes to this one built by Volunteer couple Jim and Ann Jones.

ELSEWHERE IN THE PEACE CORPS WORLD: NEW COUNTRIES AND NEW CHALLENGES

Peace Corps growth took a dramatic upward spiral after the organization's fifth birthday on March 1, 1966. In its sixth year of operations, the Peace Corps announced or implemented new programs for 13 nations and territories, including Micronesia and Polynesia reported on elsewhere in this edition. Welcomed to the Peace Corps family of nations were:

AFRICA

CHAD — Once part of old French Equatorial Africa, this new nation, carved largely out of desert, welcomed the Peace Corps in September when 33 Volunteers arrived to serve as English teachers and work in land reclamation in the swampy Lake Chad region and in a medical training program.

The health program — aimed at retraining Chadian hospital personnel and expanding a school health project — will probably require additional Volunteers late in 1967; it is presently contemplated that Volunteer candidates for this program will begin training in the fall. To man the program, the Peace Corps seeks registered nurses, sanitarians and liberal arts graduates, the latter to serve as public health educators.

LESOTHO — Formerly the British colony of Basutoland, Lesotho achieved its independence last October. Now it faces one of the most difficult development struggles on the African continent.

Completely surrounded by the Republic of South Africa (to which one-sixth of its 900,000 population have migrated to work as farm laborers and miners), the tiny mountainous nation has requested Peace Corps help in expanding its educational system and improving basic health services and agricultural production.

Of the 88 Volunteers requested, 50 will teach in secondary schools and teacher-training colleges. Others will work in rural development and public works such as clinics, village water supplies and anti-erosion dams.

A health group will staff baby clinics, work with mothers to improve their nutritional and domestic skills and help distribute food supplies. A few Volunteers with agricultural backgrounds will work with credit and marketing cooperatives.

The Volunteer skills required include mostly liberal arts graduates for the teaching, rural development and health programs; two registered nurses and a trained health educator, and a Volunteer capable of teaching advanced agricultural science subjects.

THE GAMBIA — Eighteen Volunteers, scheduled to arrive in October, will work in projects ranging from teaching in vocational training schools and agricultural centers to establishing cattle marketing cooperatives.

To meet the request, the Peace Corps needs Volunteers with at least summer experience in construction, repair of heavy diesel and farm equipment, carpentry and furniture-making.

Other special skills required include a veterinary laboratory technician to train apprentice Gambian veterinarians, a Volunteer to set up an electrical repair shop and to train electrical repairmen, and a Volunteer to supervise a rinderpest inoculation campaign. Training begins this summer.

MAURITANIA — With 13 Volunteers, Mauritania now has the smallest — and one of the newest — Peace Corps country program anywhere. But expansion is seen likely later this year.

The new project, as currently planned, will concentrate on health problems and complement the Volunteers now working in the rural public works programs scattered through the Saharan, Arabic-speaking former French territory.

The Volunteer health workers will staff maternal and baby clinics, and work generally in child welfare. Present plans are for training to start in late summer or early fall. Manpower requirements: Volunteers with liberal arts backgrounds or some knowledge of health matters.

UPPER VOLTA — The landlocked West African nation gets its first contingent of Volunteers later this year with the arrival of 51 Volunteers trained to help expand established rural development and health programs in the former French territory.

The Volunteers will be mainly liberal arts graduates, with some trained health personnel included. They will concentrate on three basic programs: well construction and agricultural extension; general rural development, and a public health education campaign that will improve diagnostic services and extend general hygiene and infant and maternal care services to villages near rural health centers.

LIBYA — With its oil exports increasing rapidly, Libya faces problems of modernizing a highly traditional society that must cope with material wealth derived from oil which has appeared in a few short years. The first group of 18 Volunteer teachers is providing English instruction in high schools throughout the nation.

BOTSWANA — Faced with urgent manpower needs in all areas of national development, this new Republic last year requested Peace Corps Volunteers to assist with educational and community development programs. Three months after Botswana had exchanged its colonial identity of Bechuanaland for the new role of independent nation — September 30, 1966 — 57 Volunteers were at work in the sparsely settled country.

Volunteers are presently teaching in secondary schools and teacher training institutions, providing technical supervision for a major self-help public works program and helping to improve the management and production of cooperatives.

— PIX

AFRICA: Lesotho's chill mile-high uplands make gaily colored blankets necessary.

— BLACK STAR

ASIA: Students at Seoul in South Korea.

ASIA

CEYLON — After a three-year absence, Volunteers this year will resume work in this populous island nation off the southern coast of India, assisting Ceylon to attain self-sufficiency in food production.

Peace Corps training for the program starts in August and will produce about 80 Volunteers scheduled to arrive abroad in November. Trainees will be recruited from among farmers, young persons with farming experience, liberal arts graduates and agricultural and home economics majors.

The Volunteers will take part in a national effort to expand irrigation projects and bring more land under cultivation. They will aid Ceylonese farmers in improving cropping methods, using better seeds and proper fertilization, and better feeding and management of livestock.

Women Volunteers will help village women to improve their nutrition and health practices, particularly for children. Others will work in school-lunch and garden projects.

SOUTH KOREA — Peace Corps Volunteers — 93 of them — entered South Korea for the first time last fall and began teaching at high schools and technical, agricultural and fisheries schools throughout the nation. This group will be increased by an additional 236 Volunteers later this year.

Training programs to begin this summer will prepare Volunteers — most of them liberal arts graduates — for assignments in education and a pilot health project. About 175 will serve as English teachers in secondary schools; another 61 will establish an experimental health program on Cheju Island off the southern coast.

The latter group will staff local health sub-centers on the island, train Korean health personnel, compile health statistics for use in the long-range planning of health programs, and encourage residents to use the center facilities.

The Volunteers also will promote home sanitation and rodent control programs, help set up village water supplies and work generally to sharpen community awareness of health problems. A similar program for mainland areas is expected to enter the training stage later in the fall.

— PIX

LATIN AMERICA: Bullock cart plods past presidential palace, Asuncion, Paraguay.

LATIN AMERICA

PARAGUAY — The most recent South American nation to get Peace Corps help is a land where three-quarters of the people make their livelihood by farming and raising cattle. The first contingent of about 30 Volunteers arrived early this year to conduct agricultural extension and home demonstration projects and to develop further the activities of 4-H type clubs throughout the country.

GUYANA — Volunteers first entered the former British Guiana a few months after it became independent in May 1966.

More than 40 Volunteers work under the supervision of the Ministry of Works and Hydraulics in road-building, hydroelectric, construction, irrigation and other development projects, and teach in secondary and technical training schools.

DINING COMMONS MENU Pg. 12

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

EXPO EXPOSED See Center fold

VOL. XCV, NO. 69 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, MAY 1, 1967

Campus Profs Discuss War in Vietnam

by NEIL GIROUX
Staff Reporter

Editor's Note: This is the first of a two part series of interviews with UMass professors on the topic of Vietnam. All professors of government, the academicians are all recognized as experts in their field and more than competent on the question of the war. Part 2 will appear in Wednesday's Collegian.

In recent weeks the anti-war movement has gained momentum and power, and a number of prominent National figures have extended a willingness to lend their moral and vocal support to the Cause.

Statements by General William Westmoreland and the bombing of MIG bases in the North have brought cries of disapproval from the Capitol Hill. Dissention and disgust with American policy is often coupled with highly emotional, irrational charges and bitter namecalling. For a vast majority of Americans, this very factor clouds the issue and creates a feeling of contempt for the proponents of the anti-war movement.

Many believe that rational analysis by men making pronouncements in their area of competency may help to create an atmosphere where the Vietnam problem can be thoroughly understood.

For this purpose, several professors in the Amherst area known for their competence in the area of Asian Studies were asked to present their views on the Vietnam situation.

Professor Franklin W. Houn teaches Chinese Government at

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

UMass. While receiving most of his education in China, he holds a PH.D from the University of Wisconsin. He taught at Michigan and Nebraska and has done extensive research in the Chinese area at Stanford University.

Houn's works include; The Central Government of China: 1912-1928. Chinese Political Traditions. To Change A Nation: Propaganda Indoctrination In Communist China. History of the Chinese Communist Party is scheduled for summer publication. In addition to contributing over 40 articles to professional journals, The Journal of Asian Studies will soon publish a lengthy work, Principals and Operational Code of Communist China's International Conduct by Dr. Houn.

Houn's analysis of the problem goes like this; "Washington sees this as a war of Communist aggression and subversion. Hanoi, on the other hand, views it as a Nationalist movement to secure

(Continued on page 11)

N.E. Politics Reviewed

Conference Attracts Notables

by ELAINE KAGAN

"New England Politics: A Post-Election Review" was the panel-discussion topic of the annual meeting of the New England Political Science Association last Friday night. The discussion marked the opening of a two-day program.

The New England Political Science Association consists of members representing notable academic institutions from all over New England.

President Lederle, who gave the welcoming address, reminisced about both his past career as a political scientist and a past meeting of the Political Science Association which was held in 1942 at Mass. State College in Amherst and at Amherst College. Amherst College may not have changed, but "I don't recognize Mass. State College anymore" commented President Lederle.

To the Association, which is planning to publish a journal in conjunction with the New York and Pennsylvania Associations, President Lederle advised—"give some attention to the old guard by developing an article they can understand."

Co-Chairman, Victoria Schuck, Mount Holyoke College, explained that the original program included two governors who would comment after the panel discussion, but for various reasons not one of them could attend. Governor John H. Chafee of Rhode Island was scheduled to come, but at the last moment was called to Washington by President Johnson to hear General Westmoreland talk about Vietnam.

Brooks Hayes, former congressman from Arkansas, who has taught for the past year at U-Mass, replaced Governor Chafee as commentator. In a delightful Southern drawl, Congressman Chafee, who really did not comment on the preceding discussions, entertained the Association in true political style.

Murray Stedman of Trinity College began the discussion with a talk about politics in the most democratic state in the election of 1966—Connecticut.

According to Stedman, the shift in balance of power from small town to urban areas has effected both parties. An evolution that has been under way since 1858 has made Connecticut a Democratic state.

Stedman feels that the election of 1966 shows that "Connecticut has become and has remained one of the most Democratic states in the Union."

(Continued on page 5)

ADVERTISERS

During the week of May 8-12 the COLLEGIAN will publish daily.

Please note the following deadline schedule for advertising and plan accordingly:

11 a.m. — Friday for Mon. & Tues.

11 a.m.—Monday for Wed. & Thurs.

11 a.m.—Wednesday for Fri.

No ads will be accepted after these deadlines.

Spring Day Prohibited

There was once an official Spring Day on campus. The tradition, however, was banned by the University a few years ago and attempts to revive it have failed.

Lacking official sanction, students undertook a program on their own two years ago using a large bell on the back of a truck to ring the announcement to the campus.

Rumors are presently circulating that another Spring Day is coming but the Collegian hasn't been able to substantiate the hearsay.

In attempts to curb any unofficial celebrations, Dean of Students William Field has issued the following announcement:

Any event such as "Spring Day" which is based on an unscheduled interruption of regularly scheduled classes or of a major social activity planned during class hours is specifically prohibited and those who act to organize or conduct it are in violation of University regulations.

The Faculty Senate voted in April of 1965 in opposition of any reinstatement of "Spring Day" in support of the preceding position. The inevitable interruptions resulting to classroom, laboratory and examination schedules and the general desire to include as early a closing date as possible in the spring semester University calendar were among the key issues in the debate resulting in this decision.

Last DVP

Walker Arrives for Lecture

Major General Edwin A. Walker (Resigned) arrived by plane in Connecticut last night to begin a series of programs in the area. He will be the last DVP speaker this semester.

General Walker arrived at Bradley Field, Connecticut, shortly after 8:30 last night. He was driven to Amherst where he will be staying at the home of Mr. Harold Beck.

An invitation-only news conference and luncheon for television and newspaper interviewers was scheduled for early this afternoon. Tonight at 8:30 the General will address a University of Massachusetts audience on "Concepts of a Conservative" in its Student Union ballroom.

General Walker is a frontpager from World War II and Korean days when he commanded artillery and infantry, including a regiment of the Green Berets, then called Special Forces. In 1961 he resigned from the European Headquarters staff of the Army in a dispute with the Kennedy administration over patriotic "indoctrination".

In 1963 the Warren Commission found, as an incidental part of its Assassination probe, that Lee Harvey Oswald was the sniper who selected Walker in his Dallas home as a target one April night in 1963.

Senate Votes on Spring Final Conflict

by MICHELLE KACZYNSKI Faculty Senate Reporter

A motion, made by Dean Wagner that "for the spring exam period, three finals within twenty four hours will be recognized as a conflict," was approved overwhelming by the Faculty Senate last Thursday.

Professors will now be required to give an extra exam for students with such a conflict. The second of the three finals is to be the exam made up.

The students, if he desires such makeup, should report his conflict to the scheduling office and his professor immediately. The scheduling office will also notify the professor of the conflict.

The decision was reached because of the difficulty that juniors and seniors have in preplanning their exam schedule due to multi-sectioned junior-senior courses.

There are a number of different proposals to resolve the multi-exam conflict, one of which may be effective for the fall exam period. One solution discussed in the Academic Matters Committee, is that finals be given during the regular class meeting time, with only two final exam periods in one day.

However, no proposal has been approved for the fall exam period yet.

FROSH PICNIC

Wailing out to the sound of the Techniques and the Rockin' Ramrods hundreds of students attended the annual Frosh Picnic festivities Saturday by the pond.

Marred only by the absence of the traditional soph-frosh tug-of-war across the pond, the event was a success highlighted by a cherry pie throwing contest which began ignominiously as a pie-eating contest.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Chocki

COLLEGIAN Photo by Chocki

One of the unscheduled features of the afternoon was the swim across the pond by Dick LaFontaine, Index photographer, Dick Wood, President of the Class of '69, and John Greenquist former President of the Student Senate. (From left above)

Although Chairman Mao's record swim down the Yangze remains unbeaten, the acquatic-UMies came a close second and are pictured above making plans for the Olympics.

The Consumer to be Discussed

The president of Consumers Union of the U.S., Inc., which publishes the monthly magazine "Consumer Reports," will speak at the University of Massachusetts on Thursday, May 4, at 4 p.m. in the School of Business Administration Building, Room 120.

Dr. Colston E. Warne, professor of economics at Amherst College will speak on "Marketing Implications of the World Consumer Movement." His address is the second in a spring series of colloquia sponsored by the UMass School of Business Administration.

Dr. Warne was active in the establishment of the International Organization of Consumers Unions in 1960, and has served as president. He has also served as a member of the Consumer Advisory Committee under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

The Consumers Union, is recognized as the world's largest consumer testing and consumer information organization. At its headquarters in Mount Vernon, N. Y., the organization tests sample merchandise purchased on the open market, and reports its findings to more than 900,000 subscribers and newsstand buyers of "Consumer Reports."

Dr. ZHIVAGO Called Epic

by N. C. SCANLAN

Doctor Zhivago is a film of epic proportions in all but its subject matter. It is not so much about a revolution. It is about one man, one love.

The major problem with the film stems from the change from novel into movie. The novel is a form so large and encompassing it almost defies adequate representation on film.

Zhivago (Omar Sharif) is studying to be a doctor in Moscow. His family has money and he is bound for success. A few blocks away lives Lara, a lovely but volatile young schoolgirl. They are to fall in love but it will be hopeless.

The Revolution theme comments on itself. Tom Courtenay, Lara's idealistic boy friend, is fighting for a revolution; like so many others, he will gain it but lose all the life inside. Zhivago will come back to find his spacious Moscow home turned over to the state. Later, Zhivago will serve unwillingly with a red unit.

Omar Sharif plays Zhivago as a very convincing human being, a man with a love for life. Julie Christie has a Ural look about her and her face could cause a thousand revolutions. It is hard to say how good Julie is for another picture or so, but for now she remains a very good actress.

Geraldine Chaplin, Ralph Richardson, Alex Guinnes and Rita Tushingham make token appearances. This cast speaks for itself.

David Lean shot his film in Spain but he manages to make it look like the real thing. Lean and Robert Bolt (screenplay) have interwoven everyone's life realistically.

And now they are both gone. Zhivago's brother-general has told his story to a young girl in the hope that she is Lara and Zhivago's child. Does she believe it? "Not if it's not true!"

The Good Old Days at UMass Recalled

by GERALD VIGEANT

This is the first of a two part interview with Dr. Charles A. Peters. It is a description of UMass in its younger days as Dr. Peters remembers it.

Dr. Charles A. Peters, emeritus professor of chemistry at UMass, remembers when "the University" consisted of only four buidings.

An 1897 graduate of Massachusetts Agricultural College, the retired teacher lives with his many memories at 16 South Sunset Avenue, occasionally recounting the UMass growth at public gatherings.

"The four original buildings were constructed in 1866 and 1867," declared Dr. Peters, who has been associated with the University for most of the past 70 years. He relaxed in a dining room chair the other evening and thought out loud about memorable people and buildings he has known.

"South College was one of the four buildings," he said, "but not the South College you see today." The original structure, a wooden building, Dr. Peters pointed out, was located on the site of the east wing of the present South College. Inside the building there were two recitation rooms with sloping roofs and dormer windows.

"This building burned down in the '80's. Rumor had it that someone was hatching chickens in the attic," he chuckled, "and the incubator started the fire."

The chemistry building was another of the original structures, Dr. Peters continued. "It was located south of the ravine near what is now the west wing of Machmer Hall. The building was ready in 1867," Dr. Peters recalled, "but the school had no chemistry teacher until two years later when Goessmann came."

Part of the chemistry building was a chapel, he said, and laboratories ran the length of the building, a chemistry laboratory downstairs and a physics laboratory upstairs. "In 1869," Dr. Peters pointed out, "a tower was added to the top." When Goessmann came, however, he changed the plan of the building, Dr. Peters recalled. Later, UMass named its new chemistry hall for Dr. Goessmann.

The third of the original four structures was the eating hall, Dr. Peters continued. Built like a private house, it served also as a dormitory. "An important turning point in the history of the school came when the administration had to decide whether to admit a second class to the school after the first year of operation," Dr. Peters observed. If they decided to admit a second class, a larger dining room was necessary. If they decided to wait until the first class completed its education and then admit a new class, the original eating hall would suffice.

The administration decided to erect a new eating hall, Dr. Peters declared, and North College came into being.

North College stood until Draper Hall was erected in 1903, Dr. Peters said. "If the 'Hash House' were standing today," he observed, "it would poke its corner into the east corner of Stockbridge Hall." The college operated the "Hash House"at first, he said, "but they became tired of the complaints, and turned it over to the boys to run." The students elected a manager and he got free food, Dr. Peters recalled. Each student paid $2.50 a week for food, he smiled, "and if the manager wasn't too much of a spendthrift they might get 25 cents a week back for car fare."

The fourth original structure, Dr. Peters said, was the Botanic Museum, better known to present-day students as the old Conservation Building which was destroyed by fire last Feb. 7. The Botanic Museum, Dr. Peters recalled, "was designated by a sign in gold letters. . . . It was there that President Clark, for whom Clark Hall was named, had his office," he said.

The Botanic Museum contained a recitation hall and a laboratory and was used for both botany and horticulture. When Clark Hall was built, he said, the botany department moved there. Later, Dr. Peters declared, "the mathematics department and the physics department took over . .

It was here that Hasbrouck maintained his physics laboratory. In my opinion that building stood as more of a memorial to Hasbrouck than the one that bears his name. Hasbrouck wasn't a research physicist, but he was a splendid teacher."

Coming Senate Legislation

by PETE WARD
Student Government Reporter

Legislation coming up in the Student Senate Wednesday are:

●1. Proposed revised Financial Policy which would restrict the amount of cash aid given to "special interest groups" S.F. 28

●2. Sub-Committee on Incentives report which recommends direct payment to specified students, for their services from Student Tax funds. S. 151

●3 A motion to set up a Labor Relations Board of students and non-students to work on relations between UMass student employees and employers. S 111

●4. Move to remove Class Government from the Student Government Association (SGA). S 144

●5. Move that if any candidate in primary election receives the majority of votes cast, there will be no final election. S 143

●6. Consideration of provision for recall of class officers. S 112

Comments should be sent to the Senate Public Relations Committee, Student Senate, Student Union. Note bill number.

There will be an open meeting with Dr. Gage to discuss the proposed increase in Student's Health Service fee at 6:30 tonight in the Colonial Lounge.

All interested students are invited to attend.

AMHERST CREAMERY SNACK BAR

ice cream takeout | steaks | sandwiches 253-5350

COUPON COUPON

25c

Toward the purchase of any pizza

one per customer expires May 5

These three lovelies, Barbara Sudder, Barbara Sangford and Carole Willard (from left) will be among the feature attractions at the Miss University Contest Friday night. The contest, sponsored by the Revelers and Amherst Jaycees, is the first step toward the Miss America contest.

Stockbridge Seniors

There will be a

CLASS MEETING

on

Wednesday, May 3 at 4:30 p.m.

Bowker Aud., Stockbridge Hall

Graduation plans will be discussed.

STUDENT UNION

GOVERNING BOARD ELECTIONS

NOMINATION PAPERS AVAILABLE

IN RSO

Due May 4th

Elections: May 11

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

Vietnam

U. S. planes bomb railroad yards north of Hanoi. The pilots say one MIG 17 was shot down.

National

Tornadoes hit southern Minnesota, leaving at least 12 persons dead, more than 100 injured and destruction estimated in the millions.

The lone survivor of an Air Force radar picket plane crash that killed 15 says he is ready to fly again in the same type of plane.

Florida's drought continues. Some residents are praying for rain as the sun shines warmly and brightly.

Watch that woman! She may be a bingo spy! New York City plans to hire housewives to spot any skullduggery.

Washington

The U. S. government is examining critically its costly and expanding role as life-giver to Americans who depend on kidney machines.

The feeling in the Senate is that in opposing censure of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, Sen. Russell B. Long is following a lonely road with dangerous political crossings.

A congressman's charge that American steel companies import foreign steel is denied by one major producer.

International

Soviet workers jam Red Square once more as foreign workers celebrate May Day.

The British Cabinet approves application for Common Market membership but sets conditions that must be met.

Amherst

General Edwin A. Walker arrives in Amherst, will speak at UMass tonight.

* * *

A fire at the Orchard destroys twigs and brush as two fire trucks and University police quell blaze early this morning.

Baseball

AMERICAN LEAGUE

	W	L	Pct.	G.B.
Detroit	10	6	.625	—
New York	9	6	.600	½
Boston	8	6	.571	1
Chicago	9	7	.563	1
Baltimore	8	8	.500	2
California	8	9	.471	2½
Cleveland	7	8	.467	2½
Washington	7	8	.467	2½
Kansas City	6	9	.400	3½
Minnesota	5	10	.333	4½

Sunday's Results

Cleveland 2-2, Chicago 1-4
Washington 7-3, Minnesota 3-0
Detroit 2-6, Baltimore 1-4
New York 4-2, California 1-4, 1st game 10 innings
Kansas City, 1 Boston 0

NATIONAL LEAGUE

	W	L	Pct.	G.B.
Cincinnati	15	5	.750	—
St. Louis	9	6	.600	3½
Pittsburgh	7	5	.583	4
Chicago	8	6	.571	4
Atlanta	9	7	.563	4
Philadelphia	8	8	.500	5
San Francisco	7	9	.438	6
Los Angeles	6	10	.375	7
New York	6	11	.353	7½
Houston	5	13	.278	9

Sunday's Results

Philadelphia 6-3, Atlanta 4-6
New York 2-2, Cincinnati 0-3
Chicago 4, Houston 1
San Francisco 5, Los Angeles 1
Pittsburgh 2, St. Louis 0

GEN. WALKER

TONIGHT 8:30

S. U. BALLROOM

Sponsored by D.V.P.

Fishermen Found Alive Rescued by Coast Guard

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — A fishing boat presumed sunk with the loss of its six crewmen was under tow today as its skipper awaited a reunion with his father, skipper of another boat that had been feared lost in an Atlantic storm.

"It's wonderful news. It's a miracle, I think," said John A. Edwards, 60, of New Bedford on learning that his son, G orge, 34, of Mattapoisett, was safe.

"I was sure they were done for," he said.

The younger Edwards' 94-foot lobster boat Deep Water was listed as "presumed lost," by the Coast Guard Saturday. The Coast Guard lost contact with it Friday when it was about 100 miles south of Martha's Vineyard.

A Coast Guard amphibious plane from Elizabeth City, N.C., located the Deep Water Sunday as she drifted without power 190 miles due east of Deleware Bay.

The cutter Tamaroa reached the vessel later and began helping her to New Bedford. Arrival is expected Tuesday.

The elder Edwards brought the 94-foot fishing vessel Elizabeth N. and its six crewmen in to home port at New Bedford Sunday. The vessel had been feared lost since Saturday when the Coast Guard was unable to receive radio reports from her after Edwards reported trouble.

Edwards said he was able to receive on his radio, and heard reports that his son's boat was missing, but was unable to reply because his radio transmitter was damaged.

"It was as bad as any hurricane out there, but it lasted a lot longer than a hurricane blow," he said "I've been fishing since I was 14 and I've never seen the wind and sea so bad for such a long time."

George Edwards' last r.port on the Deep Water had said she was in "immediate danger," taking on water, and that her wheelhouse was smashed, engines out of order, and only dory broken.

After finding the vessel Sunday, the Coast Guard said the engine room and galley of the Deep Water had been flooded, but the pumps were working and the crew did not need medical attention.

Soviets Celebrate May Day

MOSCOW (AP) — Marshal Andrei A. Grechko, the new Soviet defense minister, opened May Day ceremonies in Red Square today with standard Soviet attacks on the United States, West Germany and Red China.

No new weapons were among the 330 that rumbled through the square in the annual parade. Observers believe the armed forces are saving up surprise weapons for a splash display on Nov. 7, the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

Eastern Hemisphere and Latin American workers celebrated labor's traditional day. Although Labor Day is celebrated in September here, American groups held loyalty marches Saturday in cities from Newport, Ore., to New York.

The Moscow parade displayed antiaircraft rockets of the kind used in North Vietnam against American planes, antiballistic missiles and 110-foot intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Pitchers Share No-Hitter Glory But Lose, 2-1

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Steve Barber of the Baltimore Orioles, who pitched 8 2-3 innings, and relief pitcher Stu Miller held Detroit without a hit Sunday, but the Tigers won the American League baseball game 2-1 with two runs in the ninth inning.

Barber, who walked 10 men, let in one run with a wild pitch in the ninth and was taken out of the game by manager Hank Bauer with men on first and third.

Miller got the next hitter, Don Wert, to ground to shortstop Luis Aparicio, but second baseman Mark Belanger dropped Aparicio's throw attempting a forceout and another run scored.

It was the first time in history two pitchers had combined to throw a no-hitter and lost the game in nine innings.

AP WIRE STAFF
EDITOR: Richard S. Kline
STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Roupenian
Al Sirota
Wayne Soini

Six-Dozen Twisters Strike in Mid-West

WASECA, Minn. (AP) — Searchers probed through splintered rubble of homes smashed by tornadoes at Waseca and Albert Lea today grimly looking for more bodies in the aftermath of a night of storm terror which left a dozen dead, over 100 injured and property damage in the millions at eight communities and numerous farms.

A band of possibly a half-dozen tornadoes smashed across a 50-mile-wide area of southern Minnesota around the dinner hour Sunday night.

"It was horrible!" exclaimed Mrs. Archie Draheim of Waseca. "We were sitting at the dinner table eating when the picture window hit me and my husband right in the face. There was no warning. There was this terrible rain falling and all of a sudden I was diving along the floor with glass all around me."

She and her husband were treated for cuts at a hospital and released.

Countless others were similarly taken by surprise, even though a tornado watch had been issued by the Weather Bureau for the area.

The tornadoes roared upon them in the midst of heavy rains and nearing dusk, which apparently prevented them from watching the skies closely. Witnesses said the Waseca warning siren began blaring a couple of minutes after the tornado had passed.

One of the first on the scene at Waseca was Arthur Kost, whose ambulance service in Mankato took two ambulances to the stricken town of 6,100 some 25 miles to the east.

"I picked up two dead people, one of whom was almost decapitated," said Kost. "I saw several cars that had been knocked around like balls. At first, the hospital was a mass of confusion. People were sitting in chairs and lying on stretchers."

Waseca had five deaths confirmed Sunday night, and Sheriff Donald Eustice said, "I wouldn't be surprised if we found several more bodies." More than 60 persons were treated for injuries ranging from minor to critical. Forty-two were hospitalized.

About 20 Waseca homes were destroyed and 50 damaged as the twister cut a path two blocks wide and eight blocks long — touching down in the southeast part of the town, then skipping over a lake only to begin smashing homes again on the other side.

Morse Condones Student Dissent

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., says recent student demonstrations at the Univ. of Calif. were "the crying-out of individuality against the corporate bureaucracy of the University."

Morse told a Boston Univ. audience Sunday that students have the right to protest "whatever the merits of the controversies."

Morse, an outspoken critic of Pres. Johnson's policies in Vietnam, said the right of dissent strengthens, rather than weakens, American government.

"It is doubtlessly uncomfortable to hear out the dissenters when cherished myths or institutions or policies are questioned," he said, "but often the causes are deeply imbedded in questions of social justice."

Morse's talk was sponsored by the University's student newspaper.

Coppolino Appeals

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — The prosecution has called Dr. Carl Coppolino's conviction of second-degree murder "a very sensible verdict," but the unsuccessful defense says the verdict is "a flat compromise between guilt and innocence."

Coppolino sat in the Sarasota County jail today awaiting a battle his attorney, F. Lee Bailey, will wage in the appellate courts.

Bailey has said the verdict would be thrown out on appeal, but the chief prosecutor, State Atty. Frank Schaub, said "there is no merit" in Bailey's remark.

"When the defendant didn't take the stand, we realized we wouldn't get the death sentence," Schaub said. "Our appellate courts have upheld many cases of this kind.

"The judge and jury followed the law," Schaub added in an interview.

Coppolino, 34, was convicted Friday of second-degree murder and given life imprisonment in the death of his first wife, Carmela, 32, in August 1965. The prosecution claimed that the anesthesiologist fatally drugged her with succinylcholine, a paralyzing drug once believed undetectable after death.

'I Love a Parade!'

Springfield Union

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Ultimate Goal

Friday's announcement of a new hockey coach has raised hopes of a brighter future for this sport at the University. As a high school coach, Mr. Caniff established a winning tradition for himself, one that hopefully will continue on the collegiate level.

The fact remains, however, that the most surprisingly underdeveloped sport at UMass is not track, not crew, but hockey. It is surprising that the hockey program is sorely lacking in a large northern university because the sport could conceivably be the athletic department's biggest money-maker, except for football and basketball.

And yet plans for an ice arena have been as uncertain as a loose puck. Tentative construction dates have been pushed further and further into the future.

The University has been paying Amherst College $2500 a year for the use of its rink ($30 per game and $25 per half hour of practice, for both the varsity and freshman teams). That's one valid reason for UMass to build its own ice facility in the near future.

The arena would not be limited to hockey, of course. It would produce added revenue as a year-round arena for recreational skating.

We feel that a facility of this type is long overdue. A consideration of hockey's popularity among the Boston schools might make University officials realize that an ice arena would eventually pay for itself.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

★ ★

Winds of Change

Reprinted from the Boston Herald

The University Conduct Committee at Boston College is now deliberating what action, if any, should be taken against four editors of the student newspaper, The Heights. The editors violated a university ruling by allowing "anyone who was interested" to listen to a talk in the Heights office by William Baird, the outspoken critic of the Massachusetts birth control law. The university, which still reserves the right to approve visiting speakers, decided that Baird acted "irresponsibly" when he violated the law in a previous appearance at Boston University and so "had forfeited any right to the consideration and respect of this Catholic community."

More than violation of a campus rule is involved here. The Baird controversy comes at a time when Catholic higher education, according to Commonweal editor Daniel Callahan, is in the midst of a major crisis of identity and purpose that began with the Second Vatican Council. "For many decades," he writes in the New York Times Magazine, "the atmosphere in Catholic institutions was nervous, authoritarian and paternalistic, more intent on 'saving the faith' of their students than in producing scholars and leaders." Now, however, a strong drive within the church for increased freedom of expression and within Catholic colleges for academic freedom is shattering the stereotypes. The old atmosphere at some institutions like St. John's and Catholic University gives ground only grudgingly, but it is giving ground.

The winds of change have not missed the gothic towers of Boston College. In a recent speech, B.C.'s energetic president, Fr. Michael P. Walsh, S.J., outlined "The unique goals of a Catholic university in transition." "The primary objective, as regards its students," he said "is the same as that of every true university: the intellectual development of the students . . . As Newman clearly stated, our business is to lead men to knowledge, not directly to forge men into apostles or saints." In line with this spirit, Boston College has revitalized its philosophy and theology courses and is contemplating adding laymen to its Board of Trustees. The Baird incident, then, is unfortunate.

William Baird believes the Massachusetts birth control law is wrong and he is using civil disobedience to try to effect its revision. The Heights editors believe their university should be less restrictive about visiting speakers and they have violated a related ruling to dramatize their conviction. They should then, be willing to suffer the consequences. At Thursday's meeting of the administration's conduct committee there were indications the officials would be lenient.

The larger question, however, is freedom of expression. Hopefully, the Baird incident will result in a broadening of the university's policies on visiting speakers, bringing them more in line with those universities such as Harvard which let the student groups choose their speakers. Boston College's present position seems obsolete in a university that is finding "strength in excellence."

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69
News Editors ..... Ron LaBrecque '70, Richard Kline '70
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Bolivar '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

ACP PRESS CPS AP

Monday's Day Editors: News Jim Foudy, Assoc. Judy Leonard, Edit. Bob Brill, Sports Harvey Elman, AP Armen Roupenian

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Campus Comment

Too Outspoken?

He's considered too outspoken, and other faculty members say he's on the way out. The administration is nervous about his peace and civil rights activities. The university public relations man does not like to hear his name mentioned.

But he believes education involves making a commitment about life, and then acting on it no matter what it may cost. He's at war with some of his colleagues who seem, in his opinion, to hide behind words and avoid action.

He keeps risking his security by sticking his neck out on controversial issues. He says the university can't side-step such questions. Many students love him, but others feel he's a kook and don't understand why he can't settle down and do his routine job.

Please work with him in his restlessness, Lord. Give him all the interior peace that's possible without letting him go soft. Help him to pace himself in the fight, Jesus, and not to sell out under the pressures.

Life at UMass

To the Editor:

No one can fairly say that life at UMass is dull, despite some of its courses, the opportunities for fun and adventure are plentiful.

Why, take the campus for instance, if you want. The rugged terrain provides an excellent obstacle course for the students to toughen themselves up for their perpetual guerrilla warfare with the administration. Jumping to avoid one mudhole into another one they can be seen courageously struggling to their classes, and at the same time building up their stamina.

I really enjoy this; at any other school a student has to experience a dull walk to class while a friend gives him a cauliflower ear about his sex problems.

Then there is the fight for survival at the dining commons. Many people are not sure at one time or another whether they will live out the day after a meal there. Some enterprising student should corner the stomach pump market, for sometimes diners have been known to suffer from "diarrhea of the mouth" after absorbing several pounds of grease at a meal. This is a (w)retched experience—but it is all in the game.

Recently, believe it or not, I found something unusual in my food (and friends will verify this). Maggots? Hairs? No, that is par. Anyway I was chewing on a piece of meat, when my teeth cracked down on something hard. At first, I thought it was a bone—even if it was one of the 100 forms of hamburg. I extracted the piece from my mouth, and exclaimed Little Jack Hornerlike, "That's a piece of lead in my food!". After becoming the center of attraction, I cleared away the saliva and stuff and discovered graduations on the intruding piece. It was half a screw! as my stomach became dislocated. Ordinarily I would have let the incident pass with a laugh, but I could not help wondering what happened to the other half of the screw. I got more upset when my roll walked across the tray and buttered itself.

Concert time is something else. Procuring tickets is the first test; if one does not get tickets early, he is liable to fall victim to the Redmen scalpers on campus. Also students must compete with other colleges for attendance at their own events; in exchange for a good representation at our concerts, they probably give UMass 100 tickets for its 12,000 student body for a Judy Garland spas concert.

Then finally comes the coping with line cutting at the concerts. Fortunately doors have been opened earlier for students, but cutting into line extends the lines more for those who came early. At the Rascal-Spoonful concert I saw two of our finest, Football men(?), move to the front of the line with an air of defiance. Does one protest and risk missing the concert? The girls at their side were visibly impressed by their courage. At least others were ethical enough to ask for cuts.

Anyway I never knew how special football players were, so to alleviate the line cutting, I suggest that football players be given reserve tickets for next year. Certainly they aren't the only line cutters, but we must be selective in determining who deserves to be first.

But these are the things that make life at UMass so interesting and mysterious, what would we do without them? Oh, you say you would like to try?

Patrick Flaherty
John Adams 1101

Spring Weather?

Dear God:

I sincerely hope that you exist so you can read this humble letter. The consensus seems to feel that you are indeed lurking around someplace or maybe everyplace.

My name is Sam Spargue (as if you didn't know). Presently I am lying in bed with an extremely discomforting cold.

Honestly, God, I hate to complain, and this is not my purpose in writing you, but why did I have to get sick on a Friday afternoon? Couldn't you have waited until after the weekend. The weatherman has finally ceased fire and predicted a sunny day for tomorrow, and I was really up for stroking a few and watching John Canty whiff a few.

Not to get too personal, God, but what did we do to deserve this outlandish Spring weather? Is it Vietnam? Are you punishing us for that? Or are you simply in a sadistic mood? Whatever your motives, your wrathful efforts have been successful. I doubt if I've seen more than a half dozen couples grassing near the pond this Spring, and it is April 28.

Do you realize what this is doing to the reputation of my university? People used to walk and drive through campus during the Spring weeks and see couples necking in every conceivable spot. The name UMass became synonymous with outdoor fun and games.

The pond has already had more rainouts this Spring than Fenway Park had during an entire season last year. People are beginning to change their thoughts about the goings-on up here. And well they might when they observe the circulation desk to be more crowded than the Orchard on an April afternoon.

God, you know us Redmen well enough to realize that a change in the reputation of our university would make most of us very unhappy. And don't we have enough grief already with exams, papers and sex to worry about?

In view of the above, I am hereby making an official plea as representative of the UMasses. Please give the following recompensatory program due consideration:

1) Stop the wind bombings in the Southwest
2) Remove at least one-half of your front-line cloud troops from above
3) Restrict precipitation warfare to uninhabited areas
4) Cease with the inhumane chemical warfare we know as snow
5) Raise the mean temperature about 25 degrees

Your humble servant,
Sam Spargue

Campus Comment

The Negro and Vietnam

To the Editor:

It is illogical for Negroes in America to take anything but a firm stand against the behavior of the U.S. government in Vietnam. Because of the inhuman treatment of the Negro in American life, the Negro is especially equipped to recognize immorality, dishonesty, and a "profit-and-loss" treatment of a people and the attempt to justify this behavior in adopting a paternalistic rhetoric. White America has been telling the Negro what is best for him, and what he is and what he isn't since 1619. The big fight about it in the 1860's hasn't been settled to the Negroes' satisfaction yet.

In 1954, two important documents for colored peoples were signed. One was the Supreme Court decision on desegregation, the other was the Geneva Conference Agreements. Now, both of them have the taint of hypocrisy on them. They seem to be documents of convenience, and the convenience is neither on the side of the Negro nor on the side of the Vietnamese.

The official rhetoric of "honorable solution" and "commitment" sound like vicious, empty, taunting words to a Negro who sees Hubert Humphrey walking arm in arm with Lester Maddox of Georgia. In 1948, Humphrey told the Democratic platform committee that it should refuse to compromise on the question of civil rights for the Negro. In 1967, he claims that there is room in his party for a man who was elected because of his denial of civil rights to the Negro. "Honor" and "commitment" are not part of the vocabulary that describes this behavior.

How can a Negro listen to the rhetoric of the "communist threat" without thinking of the hell of a time he is having with democracy? He is always hearing that every man is born equal and he looks at a white boy being born and he looks at a colored boy being born and he knows that someone has a sadistic sense of humor. He can read a book on the history of his country and not see a dark face until suddenly, in the pages dealing with the Civil War, he sees a Negro plowing a field. And he remembers how, when time to approach those pages that have the pictures of the plantation Negroes on them came, most of his friends were absent from school for a while. And they never told him that if it weren't for the fighting, espionage, and service of the Negro, the Union might not have been preserved. He hears that any child can grow up to be president. And that's one of the dirtiest jokes, because then he knows that all this talk of democracy isn't to him at all. Making the world safe for democracy almost seems like a threat to the Negro.

Mary McCarthy comments on the economic Americanization of Saigon in her "Report from Vietnam" (New York Review of Books, April 20, 1967) and is dismayed at the fact that Americans "don't try to hide it." In a recent issue of a weekly news magazine, one of the major banks in the country advertised:

On the American Scene there's always a bank in the background

Every day of his life a Negro feels the adverse effects of commercial America. The rush for the dollar in America has taken over so many people's minds so completely that a man is judged not in terms of his integrity as a human being but in terms of his bank account. And the Negro, because he is black, because the low man in America has always been black, is not considered as a man, but as a statistic monopolizing unemployment studies. The Negro is a janitor, a laborer, a domestic. He does most of the jobs a slave would do if there were slaves. But, there are no longer slaves. There are poor people. There are poor people in Marietta, Ga., who have to smile and shuffle and dance and act the fool as waiters in a restaurant to feed a bunch of kids. There are poor fathers who can't get jobs that will support a family consistent with the American norm. There's somebody's mother who has to wash somebody else's floors all day, then come home with not enough energy to wash her own. There's a kid on the corner whose only escape from a ghetto is through stealing or pimping or just getting high enough on anything he can get to forget that 8 out of 10 of the ads in the help wanted section aren't for him. And when the Negro sees this coming in Vietnam, can you blame him for saying anything but, "watch out! Watch out because that guy with a fistful of dollars is going to make a prostitute out of your mothers and sisters, a lackeying wretch out of you, and a confused, sometimes jobless man out of your father." Can any Negro in America today not say this when he sees the dollar coming and knows for damn sure what's going to happen? I hope to God not.

The Negro has known, seen, been victim of so many lynchings, burnings, castrations, rapes, shootings whose only authorization has been superior strength, that the full horror, disgust, immense unfairness of this murderous, illegal war should be especially alive in his mind. The American Negro can't fail to know that this war stinks of the same stuff that has crippled him in America. A murderer knows only his own rules.

How, then, can I, as a Negro, accept what the U.S. government is doing to the Vietnamese, when my whole history in this country has conditioned me to react with disgust? I can't condone the present Vietnam policy because I can't condone the treatment of the Negro in the history of the U.S. Our sense of fairness and humanity is the only thing that the white man hasn't completely stripped from us. I'll be damned if I'm going to give that up.

Richard Pruitt '68

The Time Has Come to End the Draft

by U.S. SENATOR MARK O. HATFIELD

The time has come to end the military draft.

That bald declaration will startle many. But when all the facts are in, and all the current and projected needs for military manpower have been taken into account, it is difficult to avoid the conclusion that America does not need the draft, America can afford not to have the draft, and America is overdue in bringing to an end this drastic invasion of the lives and liberties of her young men.

Congress is now beginning to debate President Johnson's legislation to extend the draft another four years. In years past Congressional examination of this issue was perfunctory. This year things are different.

Thanks no doubt to the heightened awareness of America's young people, whose lives the draft so seriously affects, many in Congress are now for the first time rethinking the premises upon which the draft is supposedly based. An increasing number of them are finding it sadly out of step with both our Nation's traditions and with its military manpower needs.

We must never allow ourselves to forget that however pressing the circumstances, the draft is involuntary servitude. It is legitimate and constitutional when Congress, exercising its power to raise and support armies, has no reasonable alternative. But conscription must always be the last desperate resort for meeting military manpower needs, not the cheap and easy expedient.

The only real argument for having an involuntary draft is that the Nation could not reasonably afford to raise and retain the needed military manpower without it. I maintain that the Nation can afford to eliminate the draft. In doing so we will restore lost liberties. We can end once and for all the inherent inequities of a compulsory system. We can upgrade our armed forces and increase our national security. And we can do it at a price this rich and powerful Nation can easily afford.

There is no numerical shortage of manpower for filling military ranks. Each year nearly four times as many men as the military needs enter the draft age pool. With more realistic service qualifications and sharply increased wages and fringe benefits, and with an enhanced status for military careers, we can attract the 500,000 men we need each year, even at Viet Nam buildup level.

All we have to do is to make up our minds that we are going to stop exchanging precious liberties for false economy —false because, when the total economic costs of the draft system are taken into account, including civilian wages foregone by draftees, we may well be saving nothing at all. And this calculation fails to take into account the qualitative value of skilled career spcialists serving in crucial military positions now filled by reluctant draftees.

From the standpoint of individual liberty, equity to all, the enhancement of national security, and the total economic costs, the draft fares badly in comparison with an all-volunteer armed forces system.

How do we get from the present draft to the volunteer army?

First, we must unequivocally reaffirm our commitment to the goal of voluntary armed forces. The draft should be extended for one or at the most two years. During that time the Defense Department should embark on a program designed to make the draft increasingly unnecessary. A special joint committee of Congress—independent of the Defense Department and the Selective Service System—should be set up to make recommendations for a phasing out of the draft, and to maintain a continual review of the Defense Department's progress toward that goal. And military pay and fringe benefits should be raised substantially, starting now.

It is time we made the firm decision to put an end to inequity, put an end to uncertainty, put an end to inefficiency, and regain for our young people the liberties the draft has taken from them.

New England Politics...

(Continued from page 1)

A member of the panel who was pleased Governor Chaffee could not attend was Elmer Cornwell, Brown University, who in discussing politics in Rhode Island had to discuss the decline and fragmentalization of the Democratic party in that state. According to Cornwell, since the mid 1950's the party has been in a state of pretty steady decline.

The difference between what happened on the top of the ticket from what happened at the bottom of the ticket in Mass. was discussed by David Mayhew, UMass.

At the bottom of the ticket the Republicans offered their usual disaster while the Democrats did likewise at the top of the ticket, Mayhew commented.

John Donovan, Bowdoin College, sees Maine as having a "1½ party system" since there is an absence of strong parties in that state.

There are more enrolled Republican voters than Democrats in Maine, and the Republicans control the house and the senate.

"The future doesn't hold a very bright picture" was the comment of Robert Dishman, U.N.H., in discussing the Democratic party in New Hampshire. Dishman feels this is due to lack of a strong democratic tradition, a lack of strong leaders, and a lack of interest at the primary level to challenge those running.

Politics in a state which is basically Republican—Vermont — was discussed by Harris Thurber, Middlebury College. Thurber feels, however, that the Democrats are becoming stronger in Vermont, and that the "Democratic party can win elections if they have attractive candidates."

After the discussion and the commentary by Congressman Hayes, the floor was open for general discussion by the audience.

COLLEGIAN

If You See News in the Making

Dial

545-2550

Foreign Car Keys
Keys and
Rubber Stamps
Cheney Locksmith
90 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst
Tel. 253-7010

University Symphony Band
and
University Chorus and Chorale
with
Featured Soloist, BERNARD IZZO, baritone with the Chicago Lyric Opera Company.
SUNDAY, MAY 14 4:00 P.M.
Bowker Auditorium
NO ADMISSION CHARGE

EXPO 67

The Greatest Show on Earth

UNITED STATES PAVILION AT EXPO '67 — A huge bubble dome—187 feet high and 250 feet across—encloses the United States Pavilion at the 1967 World Exhibition in Montreal. Within the dome, exhibits on the theme "Creative America" are situated on platforms at various levels connected by escalators, elevators and stairways. The U.S. Pavilion faces the Pavilion of the Soviet Union across LeMoyne Channel which separates the two island sites of the exhibition and is bridged by the Cosmos Walk.

Fun at the Fair

One official, apprehensive lest Expo 67 be taken as a fair that might be educational but not entertaining, added a cautionary note not long ago. "Of course we want people to come and to be informed," she said. "But to my mind, fairs are fun, fun, fun. Most of all, I'd like to see people come to Expo 67 next year to have fun."

The exposition has provided for that. In La Ronde, the 135-acre amusement area, you have to work not to enjoy yourself. The idea of La Ronde is to create the best of all possible amusement parks, combining the finest elements of Copenhagen's Tivoli Gardens with the best of Disneyland. In the area, 18 of the 39 restaurants at Expo 67 will be found; there are also more than 20 snack bars and 15 food shops.

And it is in La Ronde where college-age students can Frug, Twist, Monkey, Moscow Mule, Snake, Shamble, Watusi, and whatever with students from the world over. Many of the restaurants convert, when night falls and the younger children are packed off to bed, to discotheques with top musical combos providing the beat.

For those who might feel a bit foot-weary from a day strolling through the buildings and grounds that make up Expo 67, there are night clubs where you can sit and sip a cool one and take your entertainment passively, rather than actively.

In addition to such financial breaks for the budget-conscious as having entertainment outside the grounds, Expo 67 has provided in other ways for college students. Its Youth Pavilion, for instance, offers free cultural, social, and dancing facilities for youths—ages 15 to 30. And then there are the youth rates. An admission ticket—they are known as passports, and designed in that style—for seven consecutive days is $12 for adults, $10 for those aged 13 to 21, and $6 for those 12 or younger. The season passport costs $35 for adults, $30 for those 13 to 21, and $17.50 for children. For a daily admission a youth would pay $2.50, the same as an adult.

Canada has been busy for the last five years getting ready for her world's fair. The country received sanction from the Bureau of International Exhibitions in 1962, and the governments of Canada, Quebec Province, and Montreal have been busy ever since.

Montreal's Exhibit Blends Entertainment, Education

There is a new "In" place to go this year: Montreal.

College students from all parts of the U.S. are expected to cross the nation's northern border to attend Expo 67, the Canadian Universal and International Exposition of 1967.

This event is the first exhibition of the "first category" ever held in North America: The rating was handed down by the Bureau of International Exhibitions, in Paris, an international agency set up in 1928 to establish rules for world's fairs.

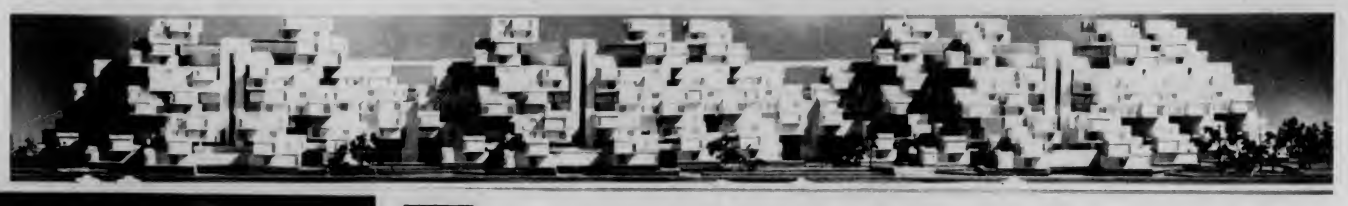
Expo 67 has two basic goals in mind. First, it wants to be educational—that's the purpose of the national pavilions put up by nearly 70 participating nations — and second, it wants to be entertaining.

In making Expo 67 an educational fair, the officials decided to give it an over-all theme—"Man and His World". The theme was inspired by Antoine de Saint-Exupery's book Terre des Hommes, in which he wrote: "To be a man is to feel that through one's own contribution one helps to build the world." It is hoped, Expo 67 officials say, that the fair "will unfold the story of man's hopes and aspirations, his ideas and his endeavors."

Expo '67 Built A Site

Expo 67 even had to build its own fair site. Montreal, Canada's largest city, with a population of more than two million, and the second-largest French-speaking city in the world (after Paris), had no available land area large enough for a fair site, so some was made. A pier in the St. Lawrence River was extended, a small island nearby was enlarged, and another island was built from scratch on a rock outcropping. It all adds up to a site of 1,000 acres.

Now (after the official opening), Montreal is gearing for a record influx of tourists. In the first three days, over one million people visited and more than 10 million people are expected to visit Expo 67, each of them entering three times. Of this number, nearly six in 10 are expected to be Americans. And of those six in 10 will be college-age visitors.



Above) Expo's Automotive Stadium—A 25,000 seat arena it is sponsored by five of Canada's automobile manufacturers at a cost of $3.3 million. Events to be held in the Automotive Stadium during the 1967 World Exhibition in Montreal include: an international soccer tournament, a Europe vs. the Americas track and field meet, military tattoos, horse pageants and spectacular variety shows. The Stadium surface is 535 feet long by 212 feet wide surrounded by a quarter mile rubberized asphalt track.

(Left) From the south, Expo 67's two islands, with Montreal in the background. The $350 million Universal and International Exhibition opened last Friday in Montreal and will run through October 27. The elevated rails on Ile Notre-Dame, in the foreground, are part of the Mini-Rail, a secondary transportation system (cost 25 cents a ride) that supplements the free Expo Express, a train service that stops at all major areas of the site. Concordia Bridge, which is the world's longest orthotropic bridge, connects Ile Notre-Dame with Ile Sainte-Helene (in the center of the picture) and with Cite du Havre, a peninsula that extends from the city of Montreal.

EXPO 67

(Above) The spectacular project called "Habitat 67" signifies something new in modern urban living. It departs from the conventional block type apartments and, instead, is made up of individual units, piled up so that the lower unit provides a roof garden for the one above it. It has 158 apartments that rise to a height of 120 feet. The apartments are of pre-stressed concrete and assembled in a factory at the site.

The Pleasures of Life

International Flavor at Expo 67

You might stroll down to the Garden of Stars, which is the most magnificent of the Expo 67 night clubs, with entertainment from all parts of the world. If you want to get away from the hustle and bustle for awhile, then La Ronde's the place for that, too. You might take the Sky Ride, to get a magnificent overhead view of the fair, or stroll along the marina, where 300 or more pleasure yachts will be docked. Or walk down to the tip of Ile Sainte-Helene, where there's a little park that looks east along the majestic St. Lawrence River and Seaway.

Le Village, a sort of old-world creation, is one of the most interesting areas of La Ronde, or, for that matter, of Expo 67 itself. You might visit Chez Rose Latulipe, a dance hall that will specialize in folk dances. While you watch, you might quaff a spruce beer, or a caribou (a local drink made of sweet red wine and white whiskey).

Then there are les boites a chanson, bistros where you can hear the new-wave singers who compose their own songs of love, sorrow, death, virtue, happiness, etc. Or, there's La Sauterie, consisting of a cocktail lounge, a gourmet restaurant, and a jet-set discotheque. If you prefer a different form of culture, you might visit Lucifer, which has no food but a complete bar service, and, in addition, strippers performing to top-flight jazz.

How far do they strip down? One Expo 67 official contemplated the question for a moment and commented, "They strip down to, ah — to good jazz."

There is additional entertainment, too, at the various national pavilions—from the $9.3 million U.S. Pavilion, a geodesic dome designed by Buckminster Fuller, to the $15 million Soviet Pavilion, a testimonial to Soviet space achievements. And this entertainment, as with admission to the splendid pavilions, is free.

At Place des Nations, at the opposite end of Ile Ste. Helene from La Ronde, there will be a series of national days for the participating nations to have special ceremonies of their own. The nations will provide entertainment—again, free—for these ceremonies.

Festival Of Arts

At the grounds, but not inside, and in downtown Montreal, there is entertainment of another type—the international festival of performing arts.

The world festival of performing arts will offer the greatest musical and dramatic entertainment in the world. The Bolshoi Opera, for instance, will come to Expo 67, marking that company's first appearance in North America and only its second outside the Soviet Union. Other major opera companies will be the Royal Opera from Stockholm, May 30-June 4; the Hamburg State Opera, June 13-18; the Vienna State Opera, Sept. 4-22; the English Opera Group, Sept. 11-23; and La Scala of Milan, Oct. 7-15.

There will also be top drama, from Britain's National Theater Company (led by Sir Lawrence Olivier) to Broadway shows.

To house the international festival of arts, Expo 67 has rented Montreal's Place des Arts, a theater complex similar to New York City's Lincoln Center. This consists of three theater buildings.

(Above)—A view of a model of the Agricultural theme exhibit, Man The Provider, shows the sun acre in the centre with displays of crops and plants. Fields to the right are tilted toward the pavilion to allow visitors to stand on top of the earth walls and watch complete planting and harvesting processes from above Greenhouses and maintenance facilities are located at the extreme right of the exhibit.

(Below)—From an architectural point of view one of the more avant garde buildings at Expo is the pavilion illustrating the theme "Man the Producer." Used in its construction were 790,000 geometrically shaped pieces of steel and 2,500,000 bolts. Cavernous spaces in the interior exhibit the many intricate products manufactured today as well as a fully automated factory in auctal production. The pavilion cost $12,000,000 and was designed by architects of Montreal.

Information

EXPO 67 is the abbreviated title of the Universal and International Exhibition of 1967 ...the only one of the "first category" ever authorized in the Americas by the International Exhibitions Bureau.

WHEN: From April 28 until October 27, 1967. Open seven days a week (9 a.m. until 11:30 p.m.) with the entertainment area, "La Ronde" open until 2:30 a.m.

WHERE: Montreal, Quebec, Canada; on two islands and a peninsula in the middle of the St. Lawrence River.

HOW MUCH: Admission tickets known as "passports" are now on sale for less than $2.50 per day. Youth passports are available at reduced rates. "Passports" available through travel agents, banks and stores posted with "Official Expo Centre" certificate. (Entrance to all pavilions is free.)

INFORMATION: Address all inquiries to: Expo 67 Information Services, 150 Kent St., Ottawa, Ontario, Canada.

Entertainment Calendar

This calendar is not complete, but is offered as a guide to some of the more outstanding entertainment that will be presented in Montreal during the six months of Expo 67—April 28 to October 27, 1967.

Date	Attraction
May 1-13	Richard Rodgers' Music Theatre of Lincoln Center
May 1	Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra
May 2	Montreal Symphony Orchestra and Los Angeles Philharmonic
May 6	Toronto Symphony Orchestra
May 9-13	Ballet of the Twentieth Century
May 15	Red Army Chorus
May 17-19	The Concertgebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam
May 29-June 3	Bristol "Old Vic"
May 30-June 4	Royal Stockholm Opera
June 5-6	Melbourne Symphony Orchestra
June 5-7, 9, 10	"Funny Girl"
June 13-18	Hamburg State Opera
June 26-July 8	"Hello Dolly"
July 2-5	New York City Ballet
July 10-15	"Odd Couple"
Aug. 3-12	Kabuki Theatre of Japan
Aug. 4-6	North American All-Indian Lacrosse Tournament
Aug. 9-10	"Europe versus the Americas," Track and Field Meet
Aug. 10-30	Bolshoi Opera
Sept. 4-7, 8, 9	Duke Ellington and Company
Sept. 4-8, 10-14, 16, 17, 19, 21, 22	Vienna State Opera
Sept. 9, 15, 18, 20	Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra
Sept. 18-23	The English Opera Group—Director: Benjamin Britten
Sept. 24-30	Pearl Bailey
Sept. 30-Oct. 1	New York Philharmonic
Oct. 2	Czech Philharmonic Orchestra
Oct. 7-8, 10-15	La Scala Opera
Oct. 16-21, 23-28	Stratford Festival Company
Oct. 17-21, 23-28	The National Theatre of Great Britain—Director: Sir Laurence Olivier
Oct. 17-22	Canadian Opera Company
Oct. 24-27	National Ballet of Canada

Write your name, student number, and agency, on all exams!

Author Discusses Realism Notes Literary Trend

by BARBARA O'LEARY

William Brandon, dressed in a white shirt, green and red stripped tie, green suspenders, scarlet socks and beige slippers sits on one side of an almost completely bare desk and in contrast to the desk, seems to be quite definitely a part of modern reality.

Asked if realism extended to today's literature, he says that "the only real realism in literature today is, more than ever, the profound and subtle 'permanent real' sought by a Holderlin, the visionary reality of a William Blake." Thus, he feels that "realism in American literature, as literary critics use the word, is an outmoded term."

"Realists" today have become unconscious instruments of the struggling political system which contains them. And "in the Ad Age of today it is so overwhelmingly true that art, if it is simply 'realistic' in representing the apparent world in which it finds itself, cannot escape being used."

Here Brandon seems to be getting to the heart of his topic and energetically launches into more discussion.

"Artists thus transformed into propagandists find themselves serving structures of world-views so distorted they can only be described as fantasies. Today's fictional 'realists', giving deadpan descriptions of a world gone dangerously paranoid, are lending their talents toward making massive fantasy seem 'real' and therefore acceptable," he said.

As Brandon continues, now with his feet plopped onto the desk top, he even works in the parallels between the historical position of the United States now and of Nazi Germany in 1939.

"We insist on using violence and duplicity in our dealings with the rest of the world," he said, then asked: "Are these parallels out of a nightmare or are we to accept and promote the further nightmare that they are a perfectly normal basis for our real world?"

He points out that "our secret police pays secret bribes to leaders of our largest students' organization, and a Congressional Committee chairman (Mr. Rivers) says this was an act not only proper but laudable, for without these secret bribes the Communists might have bribed our students over to their side."

In other words, to be a traditional literary "realist" today one must accept such fantasy as part of a normal and "real" world.

Brandon ponders some of the points he has made. He makes it definite that this dilemma is not peculiarly American, noting that abstraction and surrealism and other revolts against "realism" have been worldwide since about the time of World War I.

To wrap up his opinions which he mentions are not necessarily the same as those of every writer or critic Brandon says that not everyone has kept up with the changing pace of the world. He, though, concludes this way:

"Henry Miller used to have over his desk, when he lived at Big Sur, the legend, 'WRITE THE THINGS WHICH YOU HAVE SEEN, AND THE THINGS WHICH ARE.' I don't think he knew the provenance of the line, although he would certainly have all the more willingly subscribed to it if he had known. It's from the first chapter of the Revelation of St. John the Divine. Literary realism today is Apocalyptic. These days, baby, if it ain't Apocalyptic it ain't real."

Senate Passes Tuition Tax Credit

The United States Senate has approved by a 53-26 vote a plan to provide a federal income tax credit of up to $325 for tuition, books and fees paid by students in colleges, universities and other post-high school institutions. Final enactment of the plan probably will depend on the decisions made by a Senate-House of Representatives conference committee.

The tax credit plan was offered Friday, April 14, 1967, by Senator Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., as an amendment to a House-passed bill which would restore the investment tax credit to businessmen.

Under the amendment offered by Ribicoff and accepted by the Senate, the tuition and fee credit is 75 per cent of the first $200 paid, 25 per cent of the next $300 and 10 per cent of the next $1,000. The credit is subtracted from the income tax owed the government.

The credit is available to any person who pays the tuition. Thus, it would be available to working students and wives as well as to parents and other relatives. Parents with more than one child in college or graduate school may get a separate credit for each.

"Over two-thirds of the benefits of this amendment would go to families earning less than $10,000 a year," Ribicoff said. A formula reduces the amount of the credit available to high bracket taxpayers.

Capitol observers said an important part in the final decision on the tuition tax credit plan will be played by Congressman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. So far, he has taken no public stand on the measure which long has been opposed by the national Administration.

In offering the tuition tax credit amendment, Senator Ribicoff said there is an urgent need for tax relief for persons faced with the increasing costs of higher education. "In the long run," he said, "my amendment would serve all America. For our strength lies not just in the richness of our soil, not just in the wealth of the factories of our vast, complex physical technology—but in our minds, in our skills, in our ability to use these wisely and well."

Adelphia Elects Officers

ADELPHIA, the senior men's honor organization at UMass held its annual elections last Friday. The six members for 1967-68 voted Lew Gurwitz President, Alan Davis, vice president, and Richard Sadowski Secretary-treasurer. After the elections, President elect Gurwitz expressed his hopes that ADELPHIA would be able to serve the campus and the commonwealth in many and varied ways in 1967-68.

The organization hopes to be able to act as an impartial spokesman in the interests of the entire campus community. It also works to attract high school students to the university by traveling throughout the state and delivering slide lectures and question periods about UMass.

The 6 new junior members of ADELPHIA hope to continue the proud traditions of the society. Other members for 1967-68 are Steve Stefanik, William Boardman and Pete Ward.

Female Editor to Marry

The first female managing editor of all-male Harvard University's well-known daily newspaper, The Crimson, and her editorial colleague have decided that love in the newsroom can be the real thing.

Linda G. McVeigh and T. Jay Mathews II—both seniors at the sister-brother institutions of Radcliffe College and Harvard in Cambridge, Mass., will be Pacific-bound with the Peace Corps soon after they marry on June 15.

Marriage and Peace Corps service in Micronesia, where they will help establish a territorial radio station, will be but the latest extensions of the two California natives' similar backgrounds.

CIVIL LIBERTIES

The Hampshire County Chapter of the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts will hold its annual spring meeting on Monday, May 1 at 8 p.m. in The People's Institute, 38 Gothic St., Northampton. Speaker for the meeting will be Mr. Areyeh Neier, Executive Director of the New York Civil Liberties Union. His topic will be New Directions in Civil Liberties. The public is invited and refreshments will be served.

LSD Lecture

"Marijuana and L.S.D.: Benefits, Pleasures and Perils" will be the subject of a lecture by Donald B. Louria, M.D. at Smith College on May 4.

Dr. Louria, associate professor in medicine at Cornell Medical College, will speak in John M. Greene Hall at 8:00 p.m. The lecture is being sponsored by the Student Lecture Committee and the public is invited to attend.

First Annual ALL-CAMPUS BAR-B-QUE

SATURDAY, MAY 6th — — 4:30 - 6:30 pm

NEXT TO THE STUDENT UNION BY THE POND

In conjunction with H.E.R. weekend

OUTDOOR RECREATION ACTIVITIES WILL BE HELD PRIOR TO THE BAR-B-QUE.

TICKETS ON SALE AT ALL DINING COMMONS

AND SNACK BARS.

$1.00

DEAN SUMMER SESSION

JUNE 25 - AUGUST 5

- Adolescent Psychology
- Calculus
- Child Psychology
- Composition & Literature
- Contemporary European History
- Drama
- Elementary Accounting
- Elements of Sociology
- Fundamental Mathematics
- General Biology
- General Chemistry
- General Psychology
- Intensive Spanish
- Introductory Analysis
- Introductory Mathematics
- Major British Writers
- Modern Russia
- Principles of Economics
- The Short Story
- Theater Workshop
- Western Civilization

All courses offered for credit.
For Catalog call 528-9100 or write:

Richard C. Ferris, Dir. of Adm.
Dean Junior College
Franklin, Massachusetts 02038

ACTION "67"

SPA on WMUA Tues.

Tuesday at 8:00, three prominent members of the Students for Political Action will join host Pete Ward on WMUA's ACTION "67" to discuss their groups goals and problems. The group is an affiliate of the SDS (Students for Democratic Action), the noted new left national students organization.

Currently, the SPA is engaged in a dispute with the RSO over the existing regulations affecting on campus student organizations. It is also quite active in the anti-Vietnam movement and participated heavily by supporting the recent mass demonstrations and organizing the Mobilization against the War on campus two weeks ago.

Keep up with the campus with ACTION "67", this Tuesday at 8:00 on WMUA, 91.1 FM.

Blood Bank Coming Soon

To help relieve the critical shortage of blood in Hampshire County, all University personnel and townspeople are urged to participate in the Blood Bank sponsored by The University Women on Tuesday, May 9 at Knowlton House. Appointments are being made at 15 minute intervals between the hours of 12 noon and 5:45 p.m.

If you are in good health, between the ages of 18 and 59, you are needed as a donor. Persons between the ages of 18 and 21 must have signed parental permission to donate blood. Your donation of blood makes you a member of the Hampshire County Blood Insurance Program for the ensuing year. Walk-ins will be welcome.

For appointments and further information, persons should call Mrs. J. H. Korson at 253-3097. Mrs. Korson and Mrs. Harold Watts are co-chairmen for the Blood Bank.

STUDENT UNION GOVERNING BOARD ELECTIONS

Nomination Papers in RSO.

DUE MAY 4

ELECTIONS: MAY 11

NOTICES

WMUA
On Tues., May 2, at 9:00 P.M. a festival of 20th Century music featuring Roy Harris and Frank Martin will be presented.

RSO PRESIDENTS
Please return Senate questionnaires. If you haven't received one, there are copies in the RSO office over message boxes.

EDUCATION CLUB
Elections of officers will be held on Wed., May 3, in Room 123 of Ed. Bldg., at 7:30 P.M. Reports will be given of "The Northeastern Regional Conference for Student Teachers and Beginning Teachers of the Disadvantaged (AACTE and USOE)" and the "100-Cities Assembly of the Year of the Non-Conference (NCTEPS)".

Now is the time to sign up for the State convention at Hotel Somerset in Boston on May 5th. The subject of the convention is "Sex Education in the Public Schools." Call Mike Glickman, 6-7646 to reserve space.

DRAFT RESISTERS' UNION
On Thurs., May 4 at 8 P.M. in Machmer W-24, a number of men & women committed to resisting the draft through refusing to serve in the war in Vietnam are forming a group. All interested are welcome.

ANALYTICAL CHEMISTRY SEMINAR
On Wed., May 3, in Goessmann 157, at 2:30 P.M. Dr. Harry Agahigian, of Perkin Elmer, in Norwalk, Connecticut will speak of "Molecular Spectroscopy."

ORGANIC CHEMISTRY SEMINAR
On Tues., May 2, at 4:30 in Goessmann 152, Dr. Melvyn Churchill, Asst. Prof. of Chemistry at Harvard willl speak on "Recent Structural Studies in Organitransition Metal Chemistry."

INORGANICA CHEMISTRY SEMINAR
On Thurs., May 4, at 11:15 A.M. in Room 51 Goessmann, Dr. George Peterson of Bell Telephone Labs. will speak on "Some Applications of Nuclear Quadrupole Resonance Spectroscopy".

SENATE MEETING
The meeting will be on Tuesday, May 2, this week.

LECTURE ON COLD WAR
On May 3, at 4:20 P.M. in Wright Hall at Smith College, Prof. Norm Chomsky of M.I.T. will deliver a lecture on "The Responsibility of Intellectuals and the Cold War." He is speaking under the auspices of the group "Vietnam '67".

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION
Every Tuesday at 6:45 P.M. in Worcester Room, S.U. there is a meeting. All are welcome.

OUTING CLUB
On Monday, May 1 at 6:30 P.M. in Middlesex Room, Tom Lyman will show slides of the Grand Tetons and Ken Stowell will show assorted slides of Virginia.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB
There will be a coling meeting of the club on Tues., May 2 at 7:00 P.M. in Middlesex Room. All interested are invited.

LOCAL No. 1776 MEETING
Local No. 1776 A.F.S.C.M.E./AFL-CIO will hold its monthly meeting on May 4, in Rm W26 of Machmer, at 7 P.M. Employees of UMass invited. Special notice to janitors.

S.U. MOVIE
On Thursday, May 4, at 6 and again at 8 P.M. the movie Shenandoah, starring Jimmy Stewart and Doug McClure will be shown in S.U. Ballroom, Admission is 25¢.

FOUND:
Roll of Kodak film, Friday the 21, in Southwest, near dining commons No. 5. Call Fran Larkin, at 6-9304.

Watch found in Engineering 118-120, at close of the Math 156 exam on Jan. 18th. See Mr. Allen, Arnold 215.

PINNINGS:
Diane Radulski, class of '69, T-4, to George H. Mellen, Jr., class of '66, California.

Dianne M. Mortelliti, class of '68, Eugene Field, to Stephen P. Nault, class of '69, George Washington.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Judy Stevens, Brockton, to Don Petrone, class of '70, Phi Sigma Delta.

Robin G. Foster, class of '69, Calvin Coolidge, to Mark B. Dunay, class of '68, AEPi.

HAPPY

(day before your)

BIRTHDAY,

JEEP

In Appreciation

I would like to thank all those who voted for me in the elections and especially those who helped me in my campaign. Thank you very much.

Sincerely,
REBECCA STEDMAN
Re-elected Secretary
Class of '70

MASS. CLASSIFIED

HELP WANTED

Part or full time bus boys, good salary, tips. Apply Mr. Whalen, Lord Jeffrey Inn, Amherst.

Full time bell man, good salary, good tips, room and board if desired. Apply Mr. Amea, Lord Jeffrey Inn, Amherst.

The "Circle D" would like to speak to a young woman who is a proficient western rider and who is interested in working with children. Circle D Ranch, call after 7 p.m., 253-5779

For Rent

Girl's bike 24" used condition will accept best offer, good for first bicycle, call Adrienne, 546-8052.

Two furnished rooms for rent with kitchen privileges. 3 miles from U.M. $40 and $45 a month, call 8-9424.

AUTOMOBILES

1964 Comet 202-4-door sedan standard shift-radio-excellent condition, $725.00. Call Dave after 5 p.m. 256-8054

1965 Triumph Herald Convertible—red with black top, Radio and heater—tonneau cover—brakes just relined, new rear wheel bearings—excellent condition—27,000 miles. Must sell, or will trade for older VW sedan and cash. Phone Easthampton 527-9040.

MGA 1958 new tires, curtains, top & tonneau cover, excellent cond. $500 best offer by May 5. Call 253-9540 after 4:00.

WE GUARANTEE WE WILL — save you money on any new or used car purchased. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton.

'65 OLDS JETSTAR I 2 DOOR HARDTOP COUPE—Console. Bucket seats. Many accessories. Easily financed at Clarke Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from the Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! PRICES REDUCED — '65 PONTIAC Bonneville, 4-door Hardtop. Luxury interior, automatic, easily budgeted. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

FANTASTIC SAVINGS AT CLARK OLDS-PONTIAC—Try this '65 Olds 4-door hardtop. Luxury interior, vinyl seats, full carpeting, power steering and many fine extras. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

'64 CHEVELLE STATION WAGON — BRONZE EXTERIOR—Luggage rack, V-8 automatic, power steering, standard for economy. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! '64 PONTIAC STATION WAGON — CATALINA on a wide track. Automatic. Priced to sell. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! '64 STARFIRE HOLIDAY HARDTOP Console, buckets, power steering and brakes, power windows. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

LET'S GET TOGETHER! '63 OLDS "98"—Excellent condition. Many extras, fine condition. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

INSPECTION TIME IS NOW HERE! Try this '63 Pontiac Catalina hardtop, excellent economy, fine condition, trade terms. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Opent o 9 p.m.

AUTOMOBILE

EVERY CAR IS UNDER WARRANTY! '64 JETSTAR OLDS "88" — Small economy V-8 that burns regular gas; 4-door sedan, low original mileage, name of owner given on request. Stop today at Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! '64 CORVAIR MONZA 4 door hardtop, excellent for the college student, 4 speed on the floor; luxury vinyl interior. Priced right; Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

WIDETRACK CATALINA 4 DOOR HOLIDAY MODEL 8—'64 V-8 engine, radio. Immaculate interior, many fine extras. Priced to sell. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

'62 KOMBI STATION WAGON V.W. Camper, or utility wagon. Priced very reasonable at $795. Why not stop at Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open tp 9 p.m.

A FEW MINUTES FROM CITY HALL TO TOWN HALL CAN Save you more than $50. '61 Pontiac 2 door Tempest coupe; automatic, perfected shape for the price we are asking. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

CONVERTIBLE WEATHER IS HERE! '64 Chevrolet with V-8 engine, power steering & brakes; excellent top, Impala Model. Clarke Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

COMPACT CONVERTIBLE BY CHEVROLET—'63 Spider model 4 speed on the floor; excellent condition; bucket for young comfort. Trade now at Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

'64 RAMBLER STATION WAGON "DELUXE" 700 model, electric rear window, roof rack, immaculate condition. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

$395 TAKES HOME TO FAMILY A GOOD RUNNING '60 Olds Super "88", Clark Motors, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton.

WANTED

Organist available for summer — formor join rock blues etc. group. 12 yrs. exp. has own organ, anywhere—call George Blum, 546-8735.

Ride or hitchhiking partner to Mexico to leave second week in June. Will share expenses, call Dani, 253-9823 after 6 p.m.

Two attractive funloving girls to be travelling companions for two free living young men. Destination, West Coast. Leaving June 6-10. Call 6-9303 after 11:30 p.m.

Two mature male students to share a three-bedroom house, with 2 baths and a study, in Brighton, on a bluff overlooking the Charles. House available June-August. Rent will range between $150-$180 a month. House is 5 minutes from Harvard, close to B.C. If interested contact Fred Pilon, Rm. 311, Butterfield House, 545-2418, between 10 p.m.-12 p.m. Monday thru Friday, or leave a note in the Index Office.

PERSONAL

Dear Collector:
Are your pangs of conscience always so short-lived.
C. Mandel

Dance Recital Termed 'Illogical'

From the viewpoint of an uninitiate in the intricacies of modern dance or the symbolism which these dancers affected, Friday and Saturday's dance recital was frighteningly disjointed. The jazz group which played the overture was very good, but it was replaced by a tape recording for the dance numbers which was quite disappointing.

The curtain rose on a group of cloth bags (presumably with people inside) which swayed to weird wails produced by some unidentifiable instrument recorded at one speed and played back at another, punctuated by assorted grunts, whistles, and squawks. Totally arthymic, and unpredicable postures from these sacks coupled with recorded noises tended to raise hair and goose pimples.

Each number was, if possible, more illogical and frightening than that preceeding.

While a certain select group who might understand this type of dance would enjoy this recital, this reviewer quietly crept away during the intermission.

—B.G.

AMHERST Cinema

NOW SHOWING
Tonight 8:00 P.M.

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PRESENTS
A CARLO PONTI PRODUCTION

Winner of 6 Academy Awards!

DAVID LEAN'S FILM OF BORIS PASTERNAK'S

DOCTOR ZHIVAGO

STARRING
GERALDINE CHAPLIN · JULIE CHRISTIE · TOM COURTENAY
ALEC GUINNESS · SIOBHAN McKENNA · RALPH RICHARDSON
OMAR SHARIF (AS ZHIVAGO) ROD STEIGER · RITA TUSHINGHAM

SCREEN PLAY BY ROBERT BOLT · DIRECTED BY DAVID LEAN

IN PANAVISION® AND METROCOLOR

MATINEE'S—Wed. - Sat. - Sun. at 2:00
EVENINGS—Curtain at 8:00 p.m. at Popular Reduced Prices

Student's MAY at Southwest

Fri., May 5, 4-6 p.m.
Friday at Four with The Last Rites
Snack Bar of Dining Commons #7

Fri., May 5, 9:00 p.m.
"Picnic" with Kim Novack & William Holden
Outdoors in front of James House

Sat., May 6, 10:30 a.m.
Co-ed Softball Tournament
Lacrosse Field

Sat., May 6, 6-12 p.m.
A Close Creation with the Bold and the Flower & Vegetable Show
Outdoors in plaza between T-1 & T-2

Sun., May 7
Art Exhibit

NO ADMITTANCE CHARGES

THE MASSACHUSETTS
Collegian
Sports
MONDAY, MAY 1, 1967
Page 10 Vol. XCV, No. 70

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL (V)—vs. Connecticut (at Storrs, Tomorrow, 3 p.m.)
TENNIS (V)—vs. Connecticut (Home, Tomorrow, 2 p.m..)
TRACK (V)—vs. Connecticut (at Storrs, Tomorrow, 3 p.m.)
GOLF (V)—vs. W.P.I. and St. Anselem's (The Orchards, Tomorrow, 1:30 p.m.)
BASEBALL (Frosh)—vs. Leicester Jr. (Home, Today, 3 p.m.)
TENNIS (Frosh)—vs. Connecticut (Home, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)
TRACK (Frosh)—vs. Connecticut (at Storrs, Tomorrow, 3 p.m.)
GOLF (Frosh)—vs. Leicester Jr. (Home, Today, 2 p.m.)

Lacrossemen Bomb Dartmouth, 14-5

by JOHN GEDSUDSKI
Staff Reporter

Last year the Dartmouth lacrosse team handed UMass its worst beating of the season, 13-5. Saturday the Redmen took ample revenge by beating the Green, 14 - 6, on the Boyden lacrosse field.

The bulk of the scoring for the Redmen was done by the ones who weren't around last year. Kevin O'Connor, a 5' 10" soph attackman, was the man of the hour for UM, scoring six goals and chipping in an assist.

Three of his classmates were outstanding offensively. Gary Vassar had two goals and three assists, Steve Connolly notched two goals, and Brad Herling was credited with a goal and an assist.

Seniors Don Rana (two goals) and Rick Molander (one goal) rounded out the UM scoring. Bob Dobbin executed a "hat trick" for Dartmouth, which came to Amherst as one of the best teams in New England.

Although Dartmouth had a big physical advantage, the Redmen had the stick-handling and shooting. The home team scored four goals in the first period, four in the second, five in the third and one in the fourth to boost its record to 4-2.

UM jumped off to a 3-0 lead. Vassar scored after only 38 seconds and assisted on O'Connor's first goal seven minutes later. Goals by Rana and Vassar sandwiched one by Dartmouth's Dobbin, and UM led after the first period, 4-1.

POISED TO STRIKE—A Dartmouth defender appears about to belt UMass midfielder Don Rana during Saturday's game.

O'Connor scored three goals in the second period and Connolly added another as the Redmen built an 8 - 3 halftime cushion. Dick Curtis and Dobbin tallied for the visitors during the second period.

The Redmen really unloaded in the third period. O'Connor scored numbers five and six, while Herling, Connolly and Rana added singletons.

Meanwhile the only offensive thrust for Dartmouth was Dobbin's 3rd goal late in the period.

Grant Monahon and John Parthemore found the range in the last period for Dartmouth after the damage had already been done. Molander's goal with two minutes left was the 14th for UM.

The rough game involved 20 penalties, 13 against the Green.

Goalie Bill Sinclair did another fine job in the nets for UMass, coming up with 15 saves.

The Redmen get back into action Wednesday at 3 p.m., hosting Amherst College on the upper lacrosse field. The Lord Jeffs have won five straight without a loss.

Redmen Edge UNH After 11-2 Loss to HC

by MIKE GOULD
Senior Reporter

The Redmen nine exploited a weak New Hampshire defense to push across a ninth-inning run and give hurler Carl Boteze a hard-earned 3-2 victory here Saturday. The win enabled UMass to keep pace with Maine and UConn in the Conference title quest.

Once again the wind was a factor. Blowing with great gusto into the batters' faces, the westerly virtually nullified the long ball threat and caused fielders to shudder as pop-ups came in their direction. Nature was fair, giving each club a single windblown run.

UMass got on the scoreboard quickly, with single tallies in the first and second innings off UNH pitcher Rick Doherty, who beat the Redmen last year at Durham. Joe DiScarcina walked to start things in the first and scored on Elliot Klein's two-out triple, a drive to right that somehow sailed as it got up in the wind and eluded a surprised Kent Moore.

Don Ferron opened the second with another three-bagger, this one a clean shot to the 375 sign in right - center. The Redmen right-fielder scored when John Mitsakos flied to center with one out.

Boteze was untouchable through the first four frames, yielding but one hit. In the fifth, however, a two-out double by Doherty, on which Ferron succumbed to the elements, and a single by scrappy Bill Estey broke the ice. The Wildcat's Bruce Cygan knotted the count at 2-2 in the sixth with a single past Frank Stewart at second, scoring Moore, who had walked and stolen a base.

The Redmen ninth started inconspicuously with Boteze grounding to third. Ferron then reached on an infield error and zipped around to third on Moreno's second hit of the afternoon, a blazer through the middle. Mareno took second as Phil Chesley fumbled the ball in center, Ferron being held in no uncertain terms by third-base coach Dick Bergquist.

John Canty was then sent up to hit for Mitsakos, and UNH bought every word of his newspaper clippings. Doherty gave the Redmen's answer to young Babe Ruth an intentional walk to fill the bases for Tony Chinappi. The reserve catcher took a fat strike on the first pitch.

Doherty next attempted a curve. The tough-luck chucker, who had such good control all day, watched in agony as the ball broke sharply into the dirt and rolled to the backstop as the overjoyed Ferron streaked home with the winner.

SAFE OR OUT—Rick Doherty, the New Hampshire pitcher, tries his pickoff move on UMass' Carl Boteze Saturday, but the throw to first is late.

Nine at UConn For 'Big One'

If the weather cooperates, the UMass and UConn baseball teams will try again tomorrow to play their Yankee Conference showdown at Storrs, a game that was rained out April 19.

The Redmen are 5-1 in league play while Connecticut has a 4-1 mark, a half-game behind.

Tomorrow's game had been scheduled for Amherst, but was switched to Storrs, with a make-up slated for the UMass field on May 16.

The two teams will throw their best pitchers at each other. Southpaw Jim Canty, with a 5-1 record, will go for UMass while righthander Ed Baird, like Canty a strikeout specialist, will be on the mound for the Huskies.

Going into last weekend's Maine series, UConn junior outfielder George Greer had a .429 batting average with 17 RBI's, best in the nation.

UMASS	ab	r	h	bi	NEW HAMPSHIRE	ab	r	h	bi [illegible]
Totals	39	3	4	3	Totals	33	2	5	1

UMass ... 000 001 000
New Hampshire ... 100 01[illegible]

2b ... Doherty
SB ... Boteze

HOLY CROSS	ab	r	h	bi	UMASS	ab	r	h	bi
Kelly cf	6	1	2	2	DiSarcina ss	2	0	0	1
Kerns s	5	2	1	1	Craig s	0	0	0	0
O'Neil rf	4	2	1	0	Stewart 2	4	1	2	0
Lee lf	4	1	1	2	Botezt lf	4	0	1	0
Avis 3	4	1	0	1	Hale lf	0	0	0	0
McCarthy c	4	0	2	0	Klein 3	2	0	0	0
Kopec 1	3	1	0	0	Rappoli p	0	0	0	0
Lilore 2	5	2	1	0	Lasky p	1	0	0	0
Conlon p	4	1	1	1	Ferron rf	4	0	2	0
					Mareno cf-lf	4	0	1	0
					Vyce 1	4	0	1	0
					Lagoy c	4	1	2	0
					Elliott p	2	0	0	0
					Gagner p	0	0	0	0
					Mit'kos ph-3	2	0	0	0
Totals	39	11	9	7	Totals	33	2	9	1

Holy Cross ..... 000 006 050—11
UMass ..... 001 001 000— 2

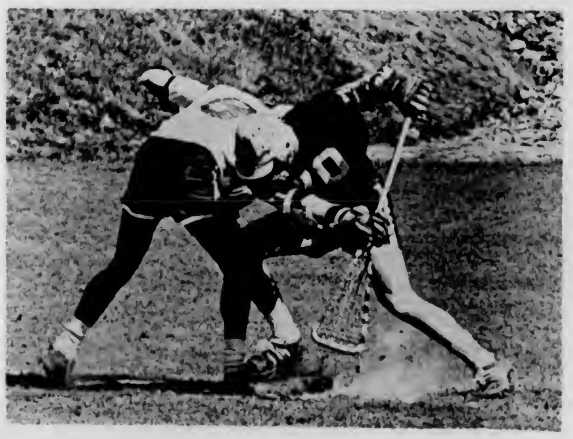
by DAVE JARNES
Senior Reporter

A six-run sixth inning in which Holy Cross got only one hit started the Crusaders' 11-2 abortion of UMass on Friday at Amherst.

For the first five innings, sophomore Norm Elliot was sailing along with a three-hit shutout and a 1-0 lead. The Redmen drew first blood in the third when Joe DiSarcina's sacrifice fly brought home a run

But the sixth inning came "and then it happened" (as the Supremes would say). Elliot Klein started the inning by booting Paul Kerns' grounder. However, neither Elliot nor his teammates were finished with their errors for the inning. Phil O'Neil and Jim Lee walked to fill the bases.

Jack Avis then blasted a long drive to left that would have easily cleared the fence if the wind weren't blowing in, but Carl Boteze dropped it anyway for another error. Only one run was able to score on this play.



Elliot fanned Jack McCarthy and it looked as though he might escape a big inning. However, consecutive errors by Frank Stewart and Klein along with pitcher Jim Conlon's single over a drawn-in infield led to four more runs.

Don Gagner replaced the luckless Norm Elliot. Before Gagner could retire the side there was another walk, an error by Disarcina, and another run.

UMass roughed Conlon, somewhat in its half of the sixth. Frank Stewart boomed a triple to start things off. Klein walked with one out and Don Ferron drove home Stewart with a single.

Holy Cross scored its final five runs in the eighth, but these were the result of legitimate hits as the Purple took batting practice against Rich Rappoli and Roy Lasky. Rappoli started the inning but couldn't get anyone out. Ralph Lilore led with a single and Rappoli walked Conlon. Tom Kelly and Kerns followed with singles for two runs and out went Rappoli.

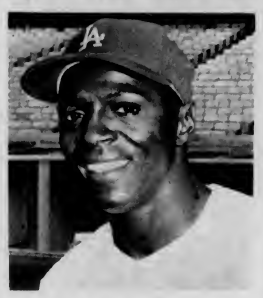
Lasky, who is really a first baseman, was promptly greeted by O'Neil's double and Lee's single. Somehow the lanky Lasky got the side out and even pitched the ninth without being scored on.

FACE - OFF — U Mass midfielder Don Rana (70) battles a Dartmouth player during Saturday's game.

Sports Week in Review

The Pro Shop

by STEVE ROSS



BASEBALL — The Boston Red Sox rode the booming bats of Jose Tartabull, Tony Conigliaro, and Carl Yastrzemski along with the sound pitching of Hank Fischer, Jim Lonborg and John Wyatt to the top of the tightly-bunched American League. Four straight wins brought them to their lofty perch.

One day later they were out of first, replaced by the Yanks. Baltimore, Chicago, and Detroit comprise the rest of the first division.

In the National League, Cincinnati has spurted past the injury-plagued St. Louis Cards. Deron Johnson's timely slugging has kept the Reds winning. St. Louis, Atlanta, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia are all trying to catch the Reds. The Mets have been reverting to form and now have 10th-place Houston in their sights. It looks like the cellar again, and on the Mets it looks perfect.

DERON JOHNSON
Hot Red.

LOU JOHNSON
Hurtful Dodger.

The Los Angeles Dodgers lost outfielder Lou Johnson until the middle of the season. Johnson fractured his ankle while safely sliding home in a game against Atlanta. Johnson is expected to miss at least two months of action.

HOCKEY — Toronto swayed into the Stanley Cup final lead, 3-2. The Maple Leafs took a two games to one lead Tuesday night when they took a thriller from the Canadiens 3-2. Bob Pulford's goal at 8:26 of the second 20-minute overtime period clinched the win. Both teams battled for more than 48 scoreless minutes before Pulford's tally.

Montreal failed to be shaken and easily outdistanced the Leafs in the fourth game 6-2. It was a typical high-flying performance by the Frenchmen. They poured in five goals in the first two periods and coasted to the win.

In Saturday's fifth game, the scene shifted to Montreal. The Canadiens took a quick lead when Leon Rochefort scored on a screened shot early in the first period. Late in the period, Montreal drew a penalty and it seemed the Canadiens had effectively killed it off, but quicker than Win Elliot can say, "Boom Boom" Geoffrion, Dave Keon sent the puck to Jim Pappin and Pappin bombed it in to the net. It was 1-1.

The second period was all Toronto. Goals by Conacher, Pronovost, and Keon gave them a 4-1 lead. Montreal couldn't counter with anything. The only move they made was changing goalies. Gump Worsley replaced Rogation Vachon in the nets. Vachon had played in the last 19 regular season games and first eight Stanley Cup games before Worsley replaced him in the third period.

BASKETBALL — The Philadelphia 76'ers took the N.B.A. title by defeating the San Francisco Warriors four games to two. The final win came at San Francisco a week ago by a score of 125-122. The 76'ers received an unbelievable 64 foul shots. They were able to convert 41 of them. This enabled them to defeat the Warriors who had only 29 charity tosses. It was Wilt Chamberlain's first title since his days at Overlook High School.

Leroy Ellis signed with the Baltimore Bullets for the '67-'68 season. Ellis also made news by signing with the ABA for the same season. He pointed at the more stable position of the NBA for his change in heart. There will undoubtedly be suits and countersuits before Ellis suits up next season.

Rhodes scholar Bill Bradley of Oxford, formerly of Princeton, signed with the New York Knicks. Bradley, the outstanding collegiate player in 1965 and a three-time All-Ivy League forward, signed a four year $450,000 contract. Bradley will join his team in January after doing a six-month stint in the Air Force.

Bradley, a 6'5" forward, has a fantastic shooting percentage.

He connected on more than 51% of his shots in college. His free throw percentage was a remarkable 87%. Bradley has the unusual habit of analyzing each shot. He breaks a shot down into six separate steps in order to properly execute his shots. The only questionable thing about Bradley is his ability to play defense.

Frosh Bow by 7 Seconds

Varsity, JV Crews Win at Dartmouth

HANOVER, N.H. — The maroon and white blades of UMass oars caused quite a stir here Saturday as Coach Dave Clarke's oarsmen won two of their three races in a meet with Dartmouth's lightweight crews.

Several hundred spectators lined the banks of the Connecticut River to watch the races, which were broadcast over a local radio station. Skies were clear, but a tricky breeze, which continually changed direction, caused some balance problems in the shells.

The UMass freshmen ran into difficulties in their race and were unable to cope with the experienced Dartmouth frosh. The "Little Oarsmen" lost by 7 seconds, as the Dartmouth freshmen lightweights swept over the one and fix-sixteenths-mile Henley course in 6 minutes, 24 seconds. It was a tough loss for the freshmen, who have been making an excellent showing throughout this season.

Dartmouth's hopes for a sweep of the meet were quickly downed, however, as the UMass Jayvees sped down the course in 6 minutes 15 seconds to beat the Dartmouth Jayvee lightweights by 1½ boatlengths. Dartmouth was off and running at the start, but it was a nip-and-tuck battle as UMass fought to catch up and finally pulled ahead. This was the second straight win for the J.V. crew, who had beaten Wesleyan and Stony Brook

The varsity race saw the late addition of the M.I.T. graduate shell, fresh from a victory of a week earlier over the University of Rhode Island and Amherst College. Tech seemed determined to win this one as they grabbed a fast lead at the start. The Redmen quickly put on the power and soon forged ahead of M.I.T., with the Dartmouth lightweights close back in third place. Rowing at a 37, UMass gradually built up a boatlength lead and held off a desperate surge by Dartmouth in the final quarter-mile. UMass rowed the course in 6 minutes 17 seconds, followed by Dartmouth, in 6 minutes 22 seconds and M.I.T., in 6 minutes 27 seconds.

Next week, the Redmen carry their oars to Lake Quinsigamond in Worcester, for the Rusty Callow Memorial Regetta. This will be an important meet for UMass, as small colleges from all over New England will be invited to complete. A victory would put UM in the spotlight of small college crew.

Tindall Elected Hoop Captain

Bill Tindall has been elected captain of the UMass varsity basketball team for 1967-68.

Tindall, an All-Yankee-Conference and All-New England first team selection, has been an outstanding performer for Massachusetts as a sophomore and junior. Last winter he topped the Redmen in scoring with 430 points for a 17.2 average, field goals with 172 and free throws with 86. He ranked in rebounds with 273 for a 10.9 average and assists with 61.

The 6'5 jumping-jack was also chosen to the Boston Garden Tournament and All College tourney he was the leading scorer with 98 points in three games and the leading rebounder.

Frosh Nine Wins Weekend Pair

by ROGER KIPP
Staff Reporter

The UMass frosh recorded two victories in two attempts over the weekend, belting Holy Cross, 8-3, at Worcester Friday and coming from behind to edge Mount Wachusetts Community College, 6-5, at home Saturday.

John Kitchen was the mound victor in Friday's contest, finally getting some hitting support from such colleagues as Jack Medeiros, Ron Swiatlowski, Chuck Newell, and Bob Hansen. Tom Sinnomon finished up with the pitching duties and once again was impressive. Both Kitchen and Sinnamon have performed capably on the mound.

Saturday's contest was almost a give-away. The frosh, by means of errors and walks managed to spot the Wachusetts team a 5-1 lead. In the entire game the opposition had a grand total of two hits. Yet going into the eighth inning, the little Redmen found themselves down by four runs.

Bob Hansen led off the eighth with a booming triple down the right field line and the frosh were on their way. Three outs later it was a tie game at 5-5, and in the ninth, a walk to Sanford, and a sacrifice bunt by Chuck Espanet plus a couple of Wachusetts throwing errors produced the winning tally.

The UMass hitting attack was not really potent. Despite some long belts to the outfield that were caught, the frosh had only six hits, three by Hansen, who seems to have come around after a slow start, and a pair by outfielder Ron Swiatlowski. Hansen had a triple, a double, and a single, hit sharply off the shins of the second baseman.

Jerry Dobeck started for the little Redmen but had control troubles. Never was the southpaw hit hard, but he had difficutly finding the plate.

Frosh Notes: George Streeter laid down a beautiful squeeze bunt in the all-important eighth inning of Saturday's encounter . . . Observers were impressed by the strong arms of third sacker Tim Berringer and shortstop Jack Medeiros . . . Hansen's three for four performance coupled with a two for three performance Friday raised his average to .400 . . . Brian Newborn was effective in relief Saturday . . . Frosh are in action again today against Leicester Jr. today at 3 at home . . . Coach Barber's boys now have a 2-1-1 record.

YOUNG BLADES—Members of the UMass freshman crew are (from left) Julian Kuffler, Oscar Desrosiers, Charles Leonard, Robert Natusch, John Farrell, Jeff White, Louis Garbose, Kurt Bettchick (frosh captain) and Paul Healy (cox).

'Little Oarmen' Use Finesse Instead of Brawn

UMass' light weight crew can almost be considered to be a lightweight crew itself. The eight oarsmen on the freshman squad have an average height of 5 ft. 10 in., and an average weight of only 160 lbs.

Though they may be small, they make up for lack of size with a tremendous amount of spirit and confidence in their abilities. In fact, this confidence borders on cock-suredness, for the freshmen once even challenged the varsity squad to a race. Varsity and jayvee oarsmen still smile when they recall the day the freshmen, looking for someone to race, cruised up and down the Connecticut, like a pirate ship looking for prey.

Thus far this season, only three crews, Georgetown, Dartmouth, and Trinity, have beaten the "little oarsmen." Georgetown's freshmen are 10 to 15 pounds heavier per man than the UMass frosh, and most of Trinity's freshmen rowed in high school. In contrast, only one member of U Mass' freshman crew has had any previous rowing experience.

From bow to stern, the frosh sizes up like this:

Bow: Julian Kuffler—5'8", 145 lbs. — Called "Dooley" by his teammates. Julian is the lightest man in the shell, coxswain excluded.

2. Oscar Desrosiers—5'8", 155 lbs.—Nicknamed "Buck". Hails from Attleboro, Mass.

3. Charles Leonard—5'11", 165 lbs—"Chick" became interested in crew when he saw a crew display at the Student Union.

4. Bob Natusch — 5'10", 165 lbs.—Also saw the crew display at the Union. Lives in Martha's Vineyard.

5. John Farrell—6', 165 lbs.— One of the newest members of the crew team. Signed up just before the season started.

6. Jeff White—6', 170 lbs. — The largest man in the freshman shell, and the oldest. Spent four years in the Navy before coming to UMass.

7. Lou Garbose—6', 165 lbs.— Another newcomer to the team; signed up same day as Farrell.

Stroke: Kurt Betchick—5'9", 165 lbs. — Captain of the freshman team and the only member with previous rowing experience. In high school, was the stroke of the varsity squad and earned a letter in crew.

Coxswain: Paul Healy—5'10", 130 lbs. — Divides his time between steering the freshman shell and studying for Anthropology, his major.

Utility oarsman: Fred Lesieur —5'10", 170 lbs.—Did an excellent job filling in for injured Jeff White in the freshman victory over Stony Brook.

Stripper Takes It Off

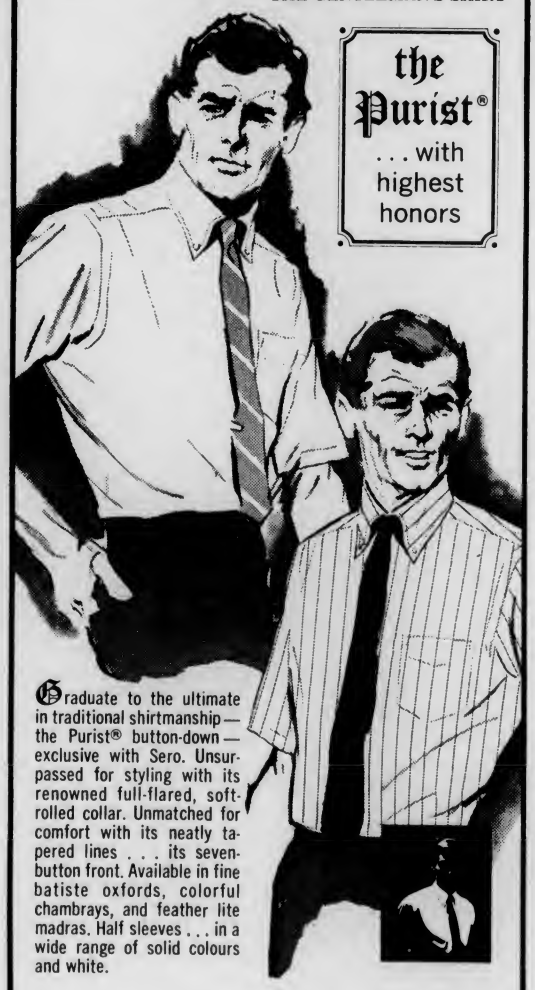


Photo by Kelly

STRIPPER IN ACTION. One of the recreational facilities of the Student Union is this tile stripper being operated by Diane Radulski. While the hatch crowd yells "take it off" the stripper performs the modern version of "cutting the rug".

Sero

THE GENTLEMAN'S SHIRT

the Purist® ... with highest honors

Graduate to the ultimate in traditional shirtmanship — the Purist® button-down — exclusive with Sero. Unsurpassed for styling with its renowned full-flared, soft-rolled collar. Unmatched for comfort with its neatly tapered lines . . . its seven-button front. Available in fine batiste oxfords, colorful chambrays, and feather lite madras. Half sleeves . . . in a wide range of solid colours and white.

AVAILABLE AT

House of Walsh, Inc.

32 MAIN STREET
AMHERST

Dining Commons Menu

MONDAY
Breakfast:
Apple Juice
Oranges
Assorted Cold Cereals
Fried Eggs
Oatmeal
Lunch:
Creole Soup
Ham and Swiss Sandwich on Rye Bread
French Fried Potato
Turkey Tetrazini
Sliced Carrots
Dinner:
Beef Croquettes—Gravy
Pork Chops—Applesauce
Whipped Potato
Mixed Vegetables

TUESDAY
Breakfast:
Pineapple Juice
Bananas
Assorted Cold Cereals
Farina
Pancakes—Syrup
Lunch:
French Onion Soup
Cold Cut Grinder
Potato Chips
Ravioli
Dinner:
Baked Chicken—Cranberry Sce.
Fried Filet of Sole/Tartar Sauce
Parsley Potato
Buttered Peas

WEDNESDAY
Breakfast:
Grape Juice
Grapefruit Half
Assorted Cold Cereals
Maltex
Scrambled Eggs
Lunch:
Chicken Noodle Soup
Hamburg with Roll
Baked Beans
Tuna Salad Plate
Potato Chips
Dinner:
Ham Loaf—Sweet'n Sour Sauce
Br. Veal Pattie—Spanish Sauce
Whipped Potato
Buttered Corn

THURSDAY
Breakfast:
Grapefruit Juice
Plums
Assorted Cold Cereals
Oatmeal
Omelet
Doughnuts
Lunch:
Pepper Pot Soup
Chicken Salad Sandwich
German Fried Potatoes
Baked Spaghetti
Broccoli Spears
Dinner:
Roast Lamb—Gravy
Salisbury Steak—Gravy
Parsley Potato
Glazed Carrots

FRIDAY
Breakfast:
Orange Juice
Tangerines
Farina
Assorted Cold Cereals
French Toast—Syrup
Lunch:
Clam Chowder
Fishburger with roll
Cold Beef Plate
Lettuce, Tomatoes
French Fried Potatoes
Dinner:
Fr. Fr. Shrimp—Hot Sce.
Turkey Loaf—Parsley Cream Sauce
Oven Brown Potatoes
Green Beans

SATURDAY
Breakfast:
Orange-Pineapple Juice
Bananas
Assorted Cold Cereals
Maltex
Fried Eggs
Lunch:
Yankee Bean Soup
Barbecued Beef with Roll
Potato Chips
Cold Plate with Potato Chips
Dinner:
Roast Veal—Gravy
Swedish Meatballs
Mashed Potatoes
Whole Beets

Academicians View Vietnam

(Continued from page 1)

independence and modernization by Communist means.

If the United States continues in the present situation, it will drive more young Vietnamese, seeking national aims, to the NLF. This will not happen if all the able bodied Vietnamese are destroyed, but this would leave the country in complete ruin.

America is going to have to reckon with national aspirations in Vietnam. An attempt to arrange internal affairs in South Vietnam is incurring resentment.

The theory that the war is a result of International Communist aggression requires re-examination. The fear of an International Communist conspiracy is no longer valid.

While Hanoi is receiving military aid from the Communist bloc, the Ho Chi Minh government is not a puppet regime. It is inconceivable that they would ever accept domination by any other power, including the Communist powers."

Concerning the probability of China's entrance into the war, Dr. Houn said, "There is no exact way to determine whether or not China will enter the war, but, there is a matter of national pride to consider. If China is pushed hard enough, for long enough, it could be prodded into active engagement in the conflict."

John M. Maki is also a Professor of Government at UMass and Chairman of the Institute for Asian Studies. He received his B.A. and M.A. from the University of Washington and a PH.D from Harvard University. He is the author of Japanese Militarism, Government and Politics in Japan, Conflict and Tension in the Far East: Key Documents 1895-1960, and, Court and Constitution in Japan. In addition, Dr. Maki has written extensively for professional journals, as well as serving as a visiting professor in Japan in 1963.

The following is Dr. Maki's statement.

"First of all, I am neither a hawk nor a dove. Like other students of war, I am against it. There is no question about the morality of war. By definition, all war is bad.

It takes two sides to fight a war and so from this point of view, both sides must be morally judged.

The issue is complicated by the fact that war is not simply a case of shooting at each other, but, it is also a political action. Both sides in any war want to achieve political goals by military means.

In the Vietnamese situation, for whatever reasons, one side has attempted to achieve a political solution by military means. The other side has resorted to military means to prevent it from doing so. In the one case, it is the attempt to establish political supremacy in the area. On the other side, is an attempt to prevent, by military means, such a solution.

What has to be achieved is for both sides to realize that it is too expensive to go on. The United States government has been making very strenuous efforts, for many months, to bring the shooting to an end because it is politically disadvantageous to continue. The other side makes no serious effort to bring the war to an end because it is politically advantageous to continue.

Any hope for negotation will be realized when the advantages and disadvantages begin to even out."

Jaycees Plan Outing

The membership of the Amherst JayCees has announced to all foreign students in the Amherst region their invitation to join the Annual Outing to Sturbridge Village on Sunday, May 7th. A free bus is being sponsored by the JayCees and lunch will be provided for all foreign students and their families without charge.

In addition, through the courtesy of the Sturbridge Village Corporation, all foreign visitors are granted free admission to visit this small town which has been maintained as an example of early post-colonial New England architecture.

Transportation will leave from in front of the Student Union at 10:30 A.M., Sunday, May 7 and will return to campus in the late afternoon.

Anyone interested in participating in this outing, should sign up by contacting Mrs. Evelyn Russell, Foreign Student Advisor, at telephone number 545-2843, by the end of the day on Thursday, May 4th.

For any additional information contact Bradford Whipple in the Sociology Department in Machmer Hall, E-34D.

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to all those who voted for me, both in the primary and the final election. Thank you,

BOB JOYCE

A Θ

What's New On Campus For Men?

Alpha Theta

MAY 1 Dukes Room, S.U.
MAY 2 Nantucket Room, S.U.
8:30-10:30 P.M.

If you are interested in joining a young fraternational organization with a new concept come to open Formal Smokers.
We welcome YOU and your Ideas

TUESDAY on WMUA at 8:00

ACTION "67" with Pete Ward

Students for Political Action (SPA) discuss their goals, organization, and the RSO controversy.

Keep up with the campus on WMUA 91.1 FM

START YOUR FUTURE IN BOSTON!

BOSTON IS AN EXCITING PLACE FOR YOUNG WOMEN TO WORK!
WHEN YOU FIND YOUR NICHE COME LIVE AT BOSTON'S MOST POPULAR RESIDENCE FOR YOUNG WOMEN

FRANKLIN SQUARE HOUSE

11 EAST NEWTON ST. BOSTON
"Convenient Lively In Town Living For The Single Girl"

THE GOOD OLD DAYS AT UMASS Pg. 2

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

HER WEEKEND CALENDAR OF EVENTS Pg. 5

VOL. XCV, NO. 70 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1967

COLLEGIAN Photo by Fred Mackler

Firemen fight fire which resulted in destruction of the home of five UMass graduate students.

Fire Leaves Five Grads Homeless

It is known that the fire started on the lower level of the home, either the first floor or basement. Whether faulty heating or a smoldering couch (Heliger had hosed out a sofa which had caught fire Monday night) is responsible is as yet undetermined by Chief Daugherty of the Amherst Fire Department.

Five graduate students at the University, including two foreign students, were homeless as of yesterday morning after a fire at 21 Hallock Street, Amherst "totalled" their rented home and adjoining barn and shed. The fire left Hamib Qureshi of Pakistan, Koon Woo Nam of Korea, Edmund Mello, Leo Zanoni, and Greg Gimbillet in desperate circumstances.

Nam and Qureshi have only their pass-ports and a pair of pajamas left from their own possessions. Friends in Amherst have contributed tooth-brush, shoes, slippers, a pair of pants, notebooks, and a few shirts for them.

Greg Gimbillet, who smelled the smoke and spread the word through the two-story dwelling was luckily able to grab his term paper notes. Edmund Mello had to leave two year's work on a doctoral dissertation in the building when the fire was discovered shortly after seven yesterday morning.

The five stood silently together as sirening trucks of the Amherst Fire Department arrived to turn their hoses on the flames. A fireman commented that "when we arrived most of the building was involved and the whole east wing was in flames."

Arthur Williams, owner of the building, arrived shortly after 7:30 after having been called by a neighbor. Before leaving his N. Pleasant Street home, he called the fire department but was told a unit had already been sent out. Williams commented, "The sub-lessor of the house, Howard Heliger, was standing silently with the students when I came on the scene. He had been burned on the fore-head and legs and I convinced him to go with police to be treated at the hospital. He later returned to the fire.

The Housing Department of the university had not beencontacted for relocation; it is known that three of the stu-

(Continued on page 5)

UMass Students Arraigned On Drug Charges

Four UMass students were arrested early Monday morning and were arraigned in Northampton District court on charges of unlawful possession of marijuana and being present where unlawful narcotics were being stored.

The quartet, three girls and a boy, were arrested as a result of a raid led by Amherst police chief Francis E. Hart at 80 Belchertown Rd.

Judge Charles J. O'Connor ordered not guilty pleas entered for all four and committed the girls to Hampshire County jail in lieu of $3000 bail each. The girls are now out on bail.

The man, Roy Westbye Cutting, 22, of Sunset Drive, Amherst, was ordered to jail, but through his defense counsel indicated he would furnish the $10,000 bail. It was reported that Cutting had been in court previously on similar charges.

The girls, Dani Ostrow, 21, Burlington, Vt.; Pamela Mancuso, 22, Palmer, and Marjorie Olsens, 25, Worcester, were committed to Hampshire County jail.

Chief Hart said the Belchertown Rd. home was rented and lived in by the girls for more than a year. Chief Hart said that the Amherst police had the home under surveillance for a long time.

GENERAL WALKER

"Should Apply Solely to Boston Lyric Opera Company"

Ianello's Dress Code Defeated

by SALLY DOLGIN
Staff Reporter

With murals of bewigged, longhaired, knickered, booted and bucke-shoe wearing Mass. Bay Colony Patriots adorning the walls of their chamber, members of the House of Representatives spent a good part of Tuesday afternoon two weeks ago lashing out at the "non-conformist" hair and clothing styles of today's college students.

Representative Charles Ianello of Boston instigated the discussion by issuing a petition to direct the Board of Trustees at the University of Massachusetts and state colleges to establish rules and regulations with the penalties relating to student standards of dress and hair styles.

Ianello charged that bearded, sandaled and unclean youths on the Amherst campus are not only flouting authority but are rebelling against the United States.

The Bill (H 3907) was sent back to a study committee.

Explaining why the university administration had not testified at the bill's introduction, Dean of Administration Leo Redfern said, "This is not a major issue."

Outside the Legislature, several faculty members and students have expressed their views on the legitimacy of this charge.

James R. Brennan, Associate Prof. of Biology at Bridgewater State, commented, "As governmental leaders and educators we must not force conformity to our established mores, but we should induce these exceptions to justify their non-conformity. We must ask them to prove that they are different in a worthwhile way. It is a valid part of their education and a challenge we may never have to meet—for we may not be exceptional ourselves.

"It is our duty to ask students to identify their own abilities for the future greatness of our society. We cannot aid the future by suppressing the will to be exceptional. Actually, we cannot suppress the exceptional. They will probably excel in spite of us."

One student took exception to the accusation that all longhaired groovies are unclean.

(Continued on page 2)

UM HOLDS RESEARCH CONTRACT FOR CHEMICAL WARFARE

According to an article in the May 6 issue of THE NEW REPUBLIC," UMass is presently holding a contract for research in the field of Chemical and Biological Warfare.

Quoting from the Pentagons's list of Army-University CBW contract holders, "THE NEW REPUBLIC" named over 50 Colleges and Universities, with up to 20 more possibly involved through other branches of the Armed Services. In addition to UMass, the article listed Harvard, M.I.T., B.U., and Lowell Institute.

It should be noted that the UMass Chemistry department is ranked among the top 5 in the nation, thus becoming a prime candidate for CBW research.

Although the article, "Just a Drop Can Kill," is not specific as to the nature of the University's contract, other colleges and universities have assisted in the development of everything from Plague to rice destroying rusts.

In 1964, the Government spent over $3 millions on CBW research, but since then a general view of secrecy has been lowered over the field.

At present, concerned students are seeking clarification from the University administration about the extent and nature of the University's alleged committment to CBW research.

Walker Says Vietnam Will End in Negotiation

by JANE ROLAND
Staff Reporter

At the Student Union Monday night, Edwin Walker explained to a few hundred visitors his feeling that the war in Vietnam would eventually end in negotiations.

In the last lecture of this year sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors' Program, Walker, usually excited and often joking, said "We will negotiate. We will pull every troop from South East Asia. Johnson is just having a fling in Vietnam because 43 million Americans voted for him."

Walker then hit upon what he called the keynote of his speech — that "if we've fought three wars and revolutions to make the world safe for Democracy, perhaps we would do better with a little less Democracy."

The resigned general frequently voiced loud disapproval of the Johnson administration. "The people in Washington are temporary, and we should change them at will. And I hope we do—and often if necessary."

"When I spoke at Berkeley," Walker continued, "I told them I'd demonstrate with them if they knew what they were against.

'I'll lead a demonstration against LBJ, elect another Kennedy — and I'll come back and lead a demonstration against him."

Walker complained that students today are being bugged. As an example of this he cited the Universay Service Program recently proposed and regarded as favorable by many.

"Why should you be automated with a button for the rest of your lives? You only reach 18 once, but another guy reaches it the next day, and your son the day after."

(Continued on page 5)

Index Holds Elections; Sadowski Named Editor

On April 19, the Mass. Index received nominations from the yearbook staff as well as the campus community for the Editorial positions on the 1967-68 Mass. Index staff.

Under the leadership of the 1966-67 Editor-in-Chief Alex Dean, the constitutional election procedures were performed on Thursday, April 27.

Richard H. Sadowski was elected Editor-in-Chief, while John L. Sandhaus was chosen to be Associate Editor. Shirley-Jean (Cookie) Inovye was elected Managing Editor, and Richard H. Jacobson, Business Manager.

Neil Rennie is photo editor, Andrew Adams is Sports Editor, Marion Cimini and Happy Hull are the Co-Editors of Campus Life, Jackie Hall is the Organizations Editor, Janice Wroblewski and Nancy Haynes are Co-Editors of the Academic Section, Barbara Goldrick and Chris Mandracia are Co-Editors of the Senior Section, while Carol Megizsky and Mary Ann Smoyer are the Co-Editors of the Greek Section.

The new Editor-in-Chief explained after the election that one of his primary concerns, aside from producing a quality yearbook, is to try to encourage as many members of the campus as possible to partake in the producing of the yearbook, since in realty it is their yearbook.

ADVERTISERS

During the week of May 8-12 the COLLEGIAN will publish daily.

Please note the following deadline schedule for advertising and plan accordingly:

11 a.m. — Friday for Mon. & Tues.

11 a.m.—Monday for Wed. & Thurs.

11 a.m.—Wednesday for Fri.

No ads will be accepted after these deadlines.

DRESS CODE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

John Legasey, 21, a junior from Medford, who wears his hair to his eyelashes in front and to his collar in back, said "It's not true—we're clean!"

Another student, fitting the standards applied to a hippie, explained that dressing like a beat or a mod is one way of telling everyone else he wants to be an individual.

One student leader declared that both the dorms and the sororities and fraternities try to maintain standards of dress and cleanliness.

Last year in Baker a group of students extracted a particularly dirty individual from his "unhealthy" room and threw him in the shower.

"They wouldn't let him out until he bathed," the student leader explained.

Back in the House, another viewpoint was expressed. Jerome A. Segal (R-Danvers), taking note of Iannello's involvement in the Boston Lyric Opera Company state-scholarship hassle, suggested that the measure be amended.

"It should apply solely to the Boston Lyric Opera Company, which should establish rules and regulations . . . relative to the wearing of mini-skirts and tight sweaters" by its students.

Segal's amendment was deemed "frivolous" by the chair. Other legislators considered the whole debate equally frivolous.

Defending Iannelo's proposal, Harrison Chadwick (R-Winchester) said, "The dress of today's college students is a disgrace to the nation. It is a symbol of rebelliousness against the United States of America."

Someone said they saw several of the long-haired Patriots wink from their perches on the murals, high above the House floor.

Elected APG Officers

UMass' chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma, national honorary journalism fraternity, has started its second year with the election of officers for the '67-'68 school year.

Initiated at the meeting were Janet Caroprese, Eric Kramer, Chuck Smith, Richard Jandrow, and Harvey Elman.

Elected at Friday's installation were President James Foudy, Vice-President Arthur Cohen, Secretary Janet Caroprese, Treasurer Harvey Elman, and Bailiff Chet Weinerman. All of the new officers are currently juniors.

In his inaugural speech, Foudy promised that next year will be an active one for the fraternity. Foudy replaces charter president Manny Gordon.

Despite a lack of recent cooperation between campus publications, the fraternity members hope to sponsor a freshman orientation magazine for September distribution. Former Collegian Editor-in-Chief Gordon Davidson is in charge of this project. A high school Journalism Day at the University is also being planned.

Retiring officers beside Gordon were vice-president Mike Gould, Secretary Joyce Harvey, and Treasurer Arthur Gordon.

NOTICE TO ALL STUDENTS

Maintain your present identification card over the summer as it will be used again next year. On Registration Day in September, your present I. D. Card will be validated for the 1967-1968 academic year.

If you have lost or damaged your present I.D. Card, plan to be photographed at the I.D. Office in Machmer Hall before you leave for the summer.

Replacement cost for lost identification cards will be $2.00.

William H. Richards
Assistant Dean of Men

MAKE-UP EXAMS

By vote of the Faculty Senate at its meeting on April 27, students with three final examinations on one day are entitled to a make-up for the "middle" examination if they present to their instructor a form signed by the Schedule Officer certifying the student's examination schedule. The date and time of the make-up examination are to be arranged between the instructor and the student.

Students must apply to the Schedule Office, South College, not later than Wednesday, May 10, if they wish such certification and must present it to the instructor not later than Friday, May 12.

Webster Week This Year

Webster Week opened officially at 1:00 a.m., Sunday, April 30. Here is a summary of the events:

Works by Webster artists will be on display in the Main Lounge all week. They will be judged by members of the art department and the artists will be rewarded with cash prizes for their efforts.

Webstermen will dine and dance with the girls of Emily Dickinson at 5:30 p.m., May 4, North Dining Commons Line #1. Music for the dance from 6:30-8:30 will be amply supplied by a big-name group, "Uncle Ralph's Tunafish Farm".

May 5 is Hootenanny night in Webster House. Webster musicians and singers, will vie for prizes starting at 8:00 in the Rec Room. To be put on the program groups or individuals should contact Pio Lombardo in room #724 before May 1.

Finally, starting at 1:00 p.m., Sunday, April 30 and running around the clock until 1:00 p.m., May 7, and giving to the whole week its special Webster flavor, is the great marathon reading of the Merriam—Webster Third International Dictionary. The launching of three large weather

(Continued on page 5)

The Good Old Days At UMass Recalled

by GERALD VIGEANT

Editor's note: This is the concluding part of a two part interview begun last Monday. It is a description of UMass as it was when there were only four buildings. The interview is with Dr. Charles A. Peters who has been associated with the University for 70 years.

There actually was a museum located upstairs in the Botanic Museum, Dr. Peters said. He especially recalls a "plaster cast of President Clark's squash." Clark measured the force of a growing squash, Dr. Peters explained.

Four early professors stand out in Dr. Peters' memory — Clark, Goessmann, Goodell and Stockbridge.

Clark and Goessmann were students together at Guettingen, Dr. Peters said. "Both of them taught chemistry, geology and botany," he recalled, "but chemistry was Goessmann's specialty, and botany was Clark's."

"Clark was a great organizer," Dr. Peters declared, "and, as president, he selected the professors personally."

President Clark lived on the hill near what is now Butterfield dormitory. "The outline of the cellar of Clark's house can still be seen," he added. Dr. Peters recalled that when he was a student, he was told that the entire Orchard Hill area "belonged to Colonel Clark," a veteran of the Vicksburg campaign of Grant in the Civil War.

It was President Clark who journeyed to Japan and established the University of Hokkaido, the sister university of Massachusetts, Dr. Peters indicated.

"Goessmann had come to the United States (before joining UMass in 1869) to investigate the chemistry of sugar," Dr. Peters continued. "It was Goessmann who discovered a method of refining American salt so that it could be used in butter.

"He also performed fertilizer experiments in what is now the parking lot behind Stockbridge Hall," Dr. Peters said. He divided an acre into smaller plots and tested various types of fertilizer.

Stockbridge, who was president for two years, was originally a farmer in North Hadley, Dr. Peters pointed out. While he was president, he lived in what is now the Faculty Club, and had his office over the woodshed where a poolroom is now located. The building opposite the South Commons, bears Stockbridge's name.

Dr. Peters saw Stockbridge only once. "He was very respected by the students," Dr. Peters said, "and when I graduated in '97 there was a great celebration because Stockbridge spoke. He gave a corkin' good speech."

Goodell came to what is now UMass from the Civil War where, like Clark, he fought in the Battle of Vicksburg. He was born in Constantinople, where his parents taught school. Dr. Peters said, "His natural tongue was French and he had to learn English.

"Like Clark, Goodell graduated from Amherst College. He could teach about anything — French, German, geology. He was a splendid teacher."

In addition to his duties as president, Dr. Peters pointed out, Goodell was the librarian. Every book in the library, than located in the Chapel, was listed in his handwriting until he died.

One anecdote concerning Goodell particularly stands out in Dr. Peters' memory. "A new teacher noticed Goodell walking along one day and asked his companion, 'Who's the bloke with the side whiskers?' His companion responded, 'That's President Goodell.' "

Four buildings and four professors—only a part of the heritage of the University. If a single expert on the history of UMass exists, he has to be Dr. Charles Peters. From the time he was a student here, one of only 125, to the present, with more than 12,000 at the University. Dr. Peters has grown side by side with UMass, and has observed its every change.

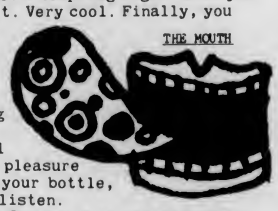
NOW
EVENINGS 8:00
Matinees at 2:00
Wed. • Sat. • Sun.
2nd Record Week
AMHERST Cinema

6 ACADEMY AWARDS!

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PRESENTS
A CARLO PONTI PRODUCTION
DAVID LEAN'S FILM
OF BORIS PASTERNAK'S
DOCTOR ZHIVAGO

IN PANAVISION® AND METROCOLOR

Now take the newest multi-sensory trip: Walk to any soft-drink machine and have some Sprite.

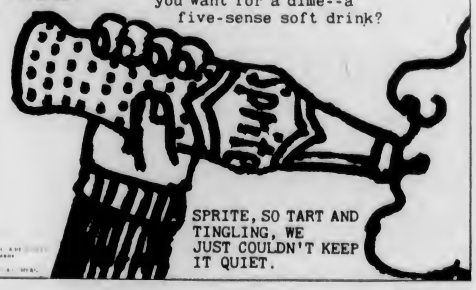


THE EYE

It happens as soon as you pay your money and take your bottle. Suddenly, Sprite takes you, the hedonist, on your way to a sensually satisfying tactile-aural-palatable-optical-oral experience.

First, you observe the refreshing green bottle. A tempting sight. Then you reach forth and touch it. Very cool. Finally, you uncap the cap. Now you're ready to drink in that delicious tartness --but wait! Before regressing to the delightful infantile pleasure of taking your bottle, stop. And listen.

THE MOUTH



THE EAR

Because Sprite is so utterly noisy. Cascading in crescendos of effervescent flavor. Billowing with billions of ebullient bubbles. And then sip. Gulp. Guzzle. Aaaaaaaaaaa! Sprite. So tart and tingling o'er the taste buds. And voila! You have your multi-sensory experience.

But what about the olfactory factor, you ask? Well, what do you want for a dime--a five-sense soft drink?

SPRITE, SO TART AND TINGLING, WE JUST COULDN'T KEEP IT QUIET.

ASCENSION THURSDAY,
MAY 4, 1967
HOLY DAY OF OBLIGATION

Masses at 6:15 a.m. 12:15 p.m.
8:00 a.m. 5:00 p.m.
9:15 a.m. 7:00 p.m.

in Newman Center Chapel

Flowers for Mother
LOCAL or FTD

from
Knowles Flower Shop
172 N. Pleasant St.
253 - 3805

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

News Briefs

Vietnam

U.S. and Vietnamese troops report 337 enemy killed in two battles at opposite ends of South Vietnam.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen keeps his sometimes balky Republican colleagues lined up behind President Johnson on the Vietnam war.

National

The California Legislature investigates its security precautions as 26 members of the Black Panthers are jailed following an armed march into an Assembly session.

Negro civil rights forces lose their grassroots political battle in the Mississippi Delta but plan a federal suit over the results.

A clash of viewpoints confronts Protestant representatives over whether to press on with development of a plan for a united church.

A cosmic love-in replete with teeny - boppers, bearded poets and banana vendors marks the launching of a campaign for the presidency of the United States.

Washington

The State Dept. orders a 2% cut in employment ceilings.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield urges a "phase by phase reduction" of U.S. troops in Europe. He says a proposed 35,000-man cutback is a good start.

Foes of the presidential campaign financing law predict final victory by the end of the week.

The contenders for the leadership of Republican women sound as though they don't disagree at all—until it comes to election tactics.

International

An 80% turnout of voters is predicted as So. Korea holds a presidential election.

The Syrian government has ordered the expulsion of the American Friends of the Middle East Assoc. on charges that the private organization has been spying for the CIA.

Peking's official New China News Agency today reported "an acute class struggle" in Albania resembling the purge which has been sweeping Red China.

A vast testing center for water desalination, the first in Europe, was inaugurated Monday by Premier Aldo Moro and officials of the Italian National Research Council.

Soviet government and Communist party officials pay tribute today to Claudia Kosygin, wife of Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, who died of cancer in the Kremlin Hospital Monday after an illness of several months.

Massachusetts

HOLYOKE, Mass.—Police and Civil Defense officials were set to resume a search at daybreak today for a twin-engine airplane that witnesses said may not have cleared Mount Tom.

AP WIRE STAFF
EDITOR: Richard S. Kline
STAFF: Jan Curley
Pam Metaxas
Armen L. Roupenian
Al Sirota

The 7th Fleet ammunition supply ship 'Virgo' displays a new paraphrase of the old Navy line "Damn the torpedoes—full speed ahead." The 'Virgo's' banner says "Damn the demonstrators" and "Pass the ammunition," a retort to the anti-war demonstrators in the U.S. The ship was photographed cruising 60 miles north of the border between North and South Vietnam. AP Wirephoto.

U.S. to Cutback Troops in Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield urged today a "phase by phase reduction" of U.S. troops in Europe, and said a planned 35,000-man cutback is a good start in that direction.

The chief Senate advocate of a substantial reduction in U. S. troop commitments in Europe also indicated he will seek to keep the pressure on for continuing withdrawals.

But Mansfield said in an interview he is not seeking abrupt, swift reductions.

"I realize that these things can't be done overnight," he said.

Sec. of State Dean Rusk discusses the troop issue today at a closed session of a special Senate panel headed by Mansfield.

It is considering a series of resolutions on the topic—chief among them, a measure sponsored by Mansfield and 43 other senators—that would have the Senate declare itself in favor of substantial U.S. troop reductions in Europe.

"We don't intend to end the hearings in a hurry," Mansfield said. "We're not going to rush out with any findings."

The hearings will continue to focus attention on the topic and on the Mansfield resolution, which the Johnson administration opposes.

The U.S. announced Tuesday a plan to withdraw up to 35,000 Army and Air Force personnel, plus their dependents, from West Germany.

Great Britain and West Germany endorsed the move as part of an effort to cut the cost of European defense.

Administration officials estimated the manpower transfer would mean saving of about $100 million a year in foreign exchange expenditures.

The withdrawal of U.S. troops and of four squadrons of U.S. warplanes will not begin before next Jan. 1. Under the 3-nation agreement, Britain would withdraw 5,000 men and a squadron of aircraft.

While the administration announcement emphasized cost reduction, Mansfield labeled the move "a sound foreign policy decision on the part of the administration."

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., said, "I think we must leave some troops there, but we can reduce our commitments even more."

Civil Rights Suffer Setback

SUNFLOWER, Miss. (AP) —Negro civil rights forces apparently lost their first major grass roots political fight in this delta area, where they outnumber whites.

However, a federal court suit was in the making, alleging that the municipal election in Sunflower was not held "in a fair and impartial manner.

Registered Negro voters outnumber white voters in Sunflower 185-153. But when the votes were counted Tuesday, white candidates for mayor and alderman held a decisive edge.

The special elections here and in nearby Moorhead were ordered by a federal court. Moorhead, however, was not considered the prime battleground because white voters there outnumbered Negro voters, 390-310.

The heavy Negro registration in both towns came after the 1965 elections were voided by the court on the ground that Negroes were not given enough time to get on the registration rolls.

The suit leading to the decision was filed by the Freedom Democratic party formed by civil rights forces in Mississippi and predominantly Negro.

A federal suit challenging the Sunflower election was decided upon Tuesday night, at an FDP rally.

Alvin Bronstein, an FDP lawyer from Jackson, said the suit was based primarily on a claim that election officials broke an agreement to allow a Negro voting commissioner to advise Negro illiterates in the polling booths.

South Koreans to Vote In Presidential Elections

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Eighty per cent of South Korea's 13.9 million registered voters were expected to vote today in the presidential election, and President Chung Hee Park was favored to win a second term.

U.S. and South Korean troops along the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea sharpened their vigilance against Communist disturbances along the border. After the election campaign began a month ago, the Communists stepped up their attacks along the 151-mile truce border.

President Park, who heads the Democratic Republican party, and his chief opponent, former President Yun Po-sun, were among the early voters in Seoul, the capital. The 49-year-old president exchanged smiles with district election committee officials and scores of voters and newsmen.

Park made no political remarks at the poll but Yun, 69, leader of the Shinmin New Democratic party, said he hoped the election would be fair. The day was declared a holiday by the government.

Absentee ballots from 45,000 troops and civilians stationed in South Vietnam arrived before the polls opened.

The Home Ministry said that four hours after the polling began under fair skies, 38.7 per cent of the voters had recorded their choice. The outcome was expected to be known by noon Thursday — 11 p.m. EDT Wednesday.

Political forecasters predicted Park would be returned for another four-year term by 500,000 votes.

Seoul was calm during early voting. National police guarded each polling place.

The election campaign was described as the most peaceful since Korea gained its independence from Japan 22 years ago.

President Park campaigned on a promise to carry on economic programs he launched under a second five-year program this year. He told the voters South Korea is enjoying political and economic stability such as never before.

Yun accused the government of corruption and promised cleaner government. He also proposed early withdrawal of South Korean troops from Vietnam.

Park has headed the Korean government since 1961 when he came to power in a military coup that put Yun out of the presidency. In the 1963 election Park defeated Yun by a slim margin of 150,000 votes.

Dirksen Rep. Support L.B.J.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen is keeping his sometimes balky Republican troops lined up behind President Johnson in fighting the war in Vietnam.

The resilient Dirksen climbed out of a hospital bed Monday, not yet fully recovered from a bout with pneumonia, to put down an incipient revolt among party members who didn't like the way the war is going and are searching for a Republican alternative.

When Dirksen got through lecturing them at a closed Policy Committee meeting about the political liabilities of questioning the commander in chief's basic direction of a bloody conflict, they went docilely along with a statement giving "wholehearted support" to Johnson and standing "foursquare" behind him.

This put the Senate Republicans in line with the latest stance assumed by one of the leading candidates for their party's 1968 presidential nomination, Michigan Gov. George Romney.

Romney said in Atlanta, Ga., Monday that "I don't think we should pursue a way that will weaken the President as long as he is president. And I don't think we should pursue a course that will help the enemy."

The wily Dirksen left an avenue open for the GOP dissenters in "preserving wholly the right of full and fair inquiry and criticism" on their part. They, in turn, left no doubt of their intention to march up that route.

Testifies in Court UMass Associate

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A UMass research associate was among several persons who testified Tuesday at the opening of a federal court hearing on a suit by five defeated Negro candidates in last year's Democratic primary.

George Barber presented testimony similar to that given by Dr. Phillip Sagie, a population expert and an associate professor at the Univ. of Penna.

Sagie was on the stand for almost an hour and a half as attorneys for the five Negroes began presentation of their case.

Sagie estimated that the maximum possible number of white voting age residents of Bullock Co. at the time of the election was slightly less than 2,400.

The attorneys for the five Negroes estimated they will call up to 100 witnesses in thair effort to win a court order directing new elections in Bullock, Barbour and Macon Counties

Defense attorneys say they will have 60-70 witnesses to present when their turn comes.

Milk Deliveries Resumed in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Settlement of a combination strike-lockout by drivers and dairy operators that halted milk deliveries in the Chicago area was announced today.

The agreement to end the milk crisis was reached at 2 a.m. after six hours of negotiations in the office of Mayor Richard Daley who had summond union and dairy representatives in an urgent attempt to settle the dispute.

Spokesmen for each side said milk deliveries would be resumed today to homes and stores.

The new one-year agreement provides for a $5-a-week across-the-board increase in wages and a $1 increase for pension, health and welfare benefits. Other issues, including dairy operators proposals to reduce the work week from six to five days and home deliveries from three to two days a week remain to be worked out.

Spokesmen said any issues unresolved in continuing negotiations would be submitted to arbitration.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Support the Mass Review

Last week, the widely acclaimed Massachusetts Review was put on the newsstands. While we were looking through the new issue, we noticed a two page special section which explained that the Review is published largely with the support of its patrons, along with the co-operation of the Four Colleges, and continually needs student support.

Our own Review is highly ranked throughout the nation and the world with the Paris Review and the Yale Review as top notch literary magazines.

Featured in this issue is a previously unpublished play of Louis MacNeice, One For The Grave, sections of poetry by two eminent Scottish poets, Hugh MacDiarmid and Norman MacCaig (who read at this university last week), and a special signature section of poems, The Graves of Scotland Parish, by distinguished UMass poet Donald Junkins.

The MacDiarmid-MacCaig section has two fine sketches by Artist Leonard Baskin, now at Smith College.

The issue also contains selected short stories, poetry, and reviews, all by notable authors.

Patrons contribute $50 a year, but the student subscription rate is $4.00 yearly for four issues of the finest literary product with which the University of Massachusetts is associated.

We urge each interested student to support the Massachusetts Review.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

What Price Progress?

by PAUL ROBERT HALLOCK

A friend of ours, not from this University, came into our office the other day and made an occasional remark which, at first, struck us as a rather questionable statement, as fact, but which eventually set us thinking and which finally set us off on a walking tour of the campus.

"This is the ugliest campus I've ever seen," he declared, in a high - pitched voice, with emphasis on the judgment ugliest.

We began our circuitous walk from Orchard Hill, where we could get an overall view of the campus. On the hill, we realized that there were sandy looking areas which detracted from the entire picture, but which seemed relatively dwarfed by the majestic spring greenery which has pushed itself through the dead land during the past week, and which seems to us to have claim over the dusty squares and ribbons imposed on our campus throughout the years.

When we became more involved in our descent to the main sections of the campus, we began to realize our friend's evidences for justifying his observation.

It sems that the University is currently undergoing "growing pains," in the form of various construction projects around the grounds, and that, in fact, they are ugly. We decided, though, that these projects are necessary, as an expanding university requires temporary insults to its natural surroundings.

However, we did observe unnatural pathways during our walk, which gave us the idea that, if associates of the school were not able to reach their destinations via designated paths, they inevitably made them.

It occurs to us that a university must be burdened with "growing pains" (that is, in the form of buildings), but that it need not be affronted by the vulgarities of people who are unable to follow walks made for them.

Yahoo
GENERAL STAFF MEETING
Very Important!
7:00 P.M. – TONIGHT (Wed., May 3) S.U.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69
News Editors ..... Ron LaBrecque '70, Richard Kline '70
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Bollver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

ACP ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS
CPS
AP ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wednesday's Day Editors: News: Janet Caroprese; Sports: Steve Lotterman; Photography: Tom Meyers; Editorial: Paul Robert Hallock.
News Staff: Bob Gorman, Sally Dolgin, Pam Metaxas, Jim Foudy, Janet Caroprese, Marjie Flanders, Larry Kornfield, Gordon Davidson, Ed Parker, Jane Roland, Don Epstein, Neil Giroux, Bob Perlman, Sno White, Joan Vanderbogart, Ed Parker, Michelle Kaczynski, Richard Lane, Pat Flaherty, Elaine Kagan, AP Wire Staff: Jan Curley, Pam Metaxas, Armen L. Roupenian, Al Sirota, Wayne Soini.
Fine Arts Staff: Larry Kornfield, Editor; Richard Tirrell, Neil Scanlon, Janet Sullivan, Christine Crawley, William Neigher, Linda Ducci, Coleen Ward, Harriet Raphael, Dick Buntip, Elaine Conter, Jan Curley, Marilyn Foley, Raymond Hildonen, Ellen Cleary, Bruce MacCombie, Steve Murphy, Pat McMahon.
Editorial Staff:
Day Editors: Nancy Burgoin, Paul Robert Hallock, Bob Brill.
Staff: Steve Finer, Rick Staples, Thom Arrison, Allen Prenner, Jim Siavos, Stan Levco, Joe Doucette, Lydia Baldasarre, Sam Spark.
Sports Staff:
Day Editors: Steve Lotterman, Harvey Elman
Staff: Tim Murphy, Glenn Briere, Mike Gould, Mike Curran, Dave Jarnes, Roger Kipp, Tom Conuel, Steve Ross, Joe Duffy, Tim Kelleher.
Advertising Staff: Jan Fialkon, Ethel Cohen, Janice Tower, Pat McMahon.
Photography Staff: Gerri Cote, Tom Donovan, Bill Gleason, Stan Furman, Larry Kornfield, Ed Rizzotto, Robert Soffer, Breck Seingiger, George Williams, Joyce Harvey, Paul Olhocki, Phil Serrano, Al Sirota.

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Campus Comment

An Open Letter to QTV

To the Editor:

On Monday night at seven o'clock I was bicycling up Fearing St. from the Southwest Complex on my way to visit relatives on Triangle St. Before I turned the corner onto No. Pleasant St. I saw on the corner sidewalk next to QTV about thirty boys.

As I neared the corner one of these "gentlemen" called the attention of the others to my approach in words not repeatable here. It appeared I was about to get the typical passing comments, but rather than turn around, since they already had noticed me, I proceeded to turn on the corner.

At that moment one of these young men dumped on me, not just threw at me, a large bucket of water. Laughter ensued and prompted more "gentlemen" to dump more buckets of water over me. I was alone and completely defenseless. The odds were thirty or more boys to one girl, with additional boys from surrounding houses watching the spectacle. As I stood there totally soaked, the climax came.

One boy rushed at me clenching in his hand a lathered cake of soap. He forced it into my face. His brothers enjoyed my anger and humility. Then they all backed up onto the sidewalk and watched me peddle away offering no help—only more coarse comments.

I should like to express my disgust at this inane, insulting event. I became the innocent scapegoat for a house of big brave men who couldn't find a more equally matched victim than a girl on a bicycle.

Betsy Chisholm

"Dept. of Amplification and Correction"

To the Editor:

A tape recording of the interview I had with Miss Sass 10 weeks ago will substantiate all quotations found in my article.

Miss Sass was well informed that the article, written in connection with a journalism course, would possibly be subject to future publication in the Collegian. She should have taken this into consideration before making too many "casual statements."

It was in no way intended to depict Miss Sass as a "glittering generalizer." The article was to be a profile of both Miss Sass and her work, not an in-depth study of her project.

Janine Hermsdorf '67

Trivia (l?) Survey

To the Editor:

We of the Penn State Special Events Committee have undertaken a survey of various collegiate trivia records. This would include phone booth stuffing, car stuffing, turtle and hamster racing, skateboarding, etc.

Your school is among one hundred colleges and universities in the U.S. which have been selected to participate in this survey. If you hold or have a claim to any such records please let us know as soon as possible. (We would like to know what the record is and when it was set.)

Your compliance with our request would be greatly appreciated. Send your reply to:

Penn State Special Events Committee
% Jack Tappata
611 S. Pugh St.
State College, Pa. 16801

With a Hope of Success...

To the Editor:

The anguished cry of South Vietnamese who have lost their home, their family; the terrible destruction rampant in all of Vietnam; the yearning of a people to be left alone in peace; all of these crowd in about us as we attempt to resolve the most agonizing problem of our time. We cannot comprehend the reality of that war as we sit in our dorms—or in an editorial office — far removed from the agony.

I have not before spoken out, and do not now presume to have the answer. Unlike many in this University, I have deep respect for those who feel compelled to take part in the protests. They are humanitarians, sensitive to the plight of the Vietnamese; people who experience a sincere and profound repulsion toward all forms of violence. But I do not agree with them.

Our methods of conducting the war are in dire need of reassessment. Yet we must not confuse disagreement over means with opposition to our ends.

Too many people have conceived of the situation as a choice between Diem and the VC, Khanh and the VC, or Ky and the VC. There is an alternate path, the only one which could conceivably result in success: the encouragement of the genuinely nationalistic, democratic elements in South Vietnam, and they do exist. It would seem that our government has finally realized its folly and is now pursuing the correct path.

Success—defined as a free and independent Vietnam—is predicted upon a popular government which can (1) merit the support of the countryside, and (2) hold the confidence of the people by being able to protect them against Viet Cong terrorism. Governments till now have been able to do neither.

The solution will not be realized by continued massive injections of American troops. The solution must lie with the government and people of South Vietnam. This destruction cannot go on much longer. If the present attempt to establish a civilian, popularly-elected government fails, all hope is lost. In the event that such a government is established, it will still be a long, difficult, frustrating struggle, but a struggle with hope of success.

John Dubois

WHATSIT?

Identify this photograph and receive a free black and white portrait by a Collegian photographer.

Write down your guess along with your name and address and deposit it in the Whatsit box in the Collegian office.

The winner will be drawn next Tuesday by the Collegian secretary.

HER Weekend May 5, 6, 7

"The Bold Return"

by PAUL HOLTON

The "Bold", led by former UMass student Steve Walker, will return to the campus on May 5th and 6th. Many UMies will no doubt remember the fine performance of Steve and Company at the Beach Boy Concert of last year.

Since their last appearance on campus, the Bold have enjoyed an almost textbook success story. In September of last year, they began an unprecedented twenty-six week engagement at the Playboy Club in NYC.

They are now concluding three weeks at the Cheetah Club in NYC. During their N.Y. engagement they recorded their latest release 'Train Kept a Rolling' on the Dyna Voice label.

This talented group consists of lead singer Steve Walker on bass guitar, Tim Griffen on drums, Dick Lafrenier lead guitarist, and Bob Lapham on rhythm.

The Bold will get a taste of spring weather, New England style, as they perform on the South Terrace of the Student Union Friday night of H.E.R. Weekend from 8 to 12. Also appearing will be the 'Maze' from Holyoke.

On Saturday, May 6th, The Bold will again be featured as the Southwest College Council presents an outdoor happening from 6 to 12.

The Happening shapes up to be quite an event with Prof. Charles Close and his "secret foam machine" as well as the 'Flower and Vegetable Show' from Amherst College. Both dances should make it an exciting weekend, and its all free.

Fellowships in Urban Teaching

Four fellowships are available for the first time in 1966-67 at UMass. Open to college graduates who have majored in English, they are designed for men and women who are interested in teaching English in secondary schools in disadvantaged urban and rural communities.

Each fellowship provides a $2,000 annual stipend, a supplementary summer stipend of $400, allowances of $400 per dependent and free tuition.

If you are interested, contact Richard O. Ulin, Associate Professor of English Education. (Tel. 413-545-2570)

"His Economic Relief"

by RICK VOLPE

Women of UMass, It's that time of year again! Thanks to the efforts of the Student Union Program Council, you will get an opportunity to treat your steady, or maybe that guy who sits beside you in Chemistry lecture, to a swinging time at H.E.R. weekend.

The weekend kicks off on May 5th at 8 p.m. when the old UMass favorite, The Bold, play for a free dance on the Student Union south terrace. The Bold has become a big name in New York City, and if you come to the dance Friday night, you will hear why. A new band from Holyoke, the Maze, will also be playing at the dance. The traditional crowning of the H.E.R. Weekend King will take place during intermission.

The Miss University Pageant sponsored by the Amherst Jaycees and the Revelers will be held in Bowker Auditorium, starting at 8 p.m. on Friday night.

On Saturday, a full day of recreational activities will be held outdoors on south terrace and by the pond. What better ways are there to release pre-final tensions than kite-flying, turtle racing, and sailing boats on the pond? There will also be the more traditional games — softball, badminton, and volleyball.

A student art acquisition "clothesline" exhibit will be on the south terrace all day Saturday. We're looking for an exhibit to rival the Student Union art corridor. So if you have any sketches, drawings, or collages that you want the rest of the campus to see, bring them down and hang them up.

The University Food Service wil sponsor a Barb-B-Que Saturday afternoon by the pond. Dinner-music will be furnished by the playing of bagpipes.

On Saturday evening, the musical genius of Ray Charles will fill the Cage with what promises to be one of the best concerts ever to be held there. Mr. Charles will be accompanied by the Raelets and the Ray Charles Orchestra, all top performers in their own right. The two-dollar tickets for the 9 p.m. concert are on sale now at the Student Union box office.

On Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. the annual Northeastern Collegiate Sing will be held in the Union Ballroom open to the campus free of charge. The groups participating represent the following colleges: Bowdoin, Rhode Island, Simmons, Trinity, Dartmouth, Williams, M.I.T., and Springfield. The UMass Musigals and Statesmen will also perform.

Once again, the Student Union Program Council has worked to put on a fun-filled, smooth-running H.E.R. weekend. Remember, you can only do this once a year and right about now his economy could use some relieving. So girls, in the tradition of Sadie Hawkins, go to it!

Calendar of Events for HER Weekend

Friday, May 5, 1967

"THE BOLD" and "THE MAZE" — Student Union, South Terrace, 8:00 p.m. Free

Miss University Pageant — Bowker Auditorium $1.50 admission (sponsored by the Revelers and Amherst Jaycees)

Saturday, May 6, 1967

Picnic 1:00-5:00 p.m. — Student Union South Terrace

Barbecue and Recreational Activities

Student Art Acquisition Show

RAY CHARLES CONCERT— Curry Hicks Cage $2.00 admission 9:00 p.m. with the Raelets and the Ray Charles Orchestra

Sunday, May 7, 1967

Northeastern Intercollegiate Sing—Student Union Ballroom Free

Tickets are available at the S.U. box office.

Ray Charles, the Raelets, and the Ray Charles Orchestra will be featured performers at this year's H.E.R. weekend, Saturday, May 6th 9:00 p.m. in the Cage.

CONTEST WINNER

With her guess of "a curled tongue", Susan Pevzner of Coolidge dorm won the second Collegian Whatsit contest. Her prize is an 8x10 portrait done by the Collegian photo staff.

I would like to thank everyone for their support in my campaign and election.

JILL WOLFF

NOTICES

PINNINGS

Anne Costa, class of '70, Lewis to James Thomas, class of '68, Chadbourne.

Roma McSweeney, class of '68 Calvin Coolidge, to Jim Collins, Grad.

Paulette Ponn, class of '70, Alpha Chi Omega, to Mark Cherniack, class of '69, Sigma Alpha Mu.

Joanne Levine, class of '70, Pi Beta Phi, to Ernest Lifland, class of '68, Theta Pi Alpha, New Hampshire College.

Pan Stoddard, class of '68, Sigma Sigma Sigma, to Bill Armstrong, class of '68, Sigma Phi Epsilon.

ENGAGEMENT

Jane F. Clarke, class of '70, Eugene Field, to Barry A. Knight, class of '69, Beta Kappa Phi.

Marty Dehey, class of '67, Sigma Sigma Sigma, to George May, class of '68, Beta Kappa Phi.

GEN. WALKER . . .

(Continued from page 1)

"McNamara is the biggest card burner in the United States, he burned the cards of the Reserves and the National Guard, then he took the cannon fodder right out of the schools. I don't like it a bit. McNamara can go jump in the lake."

During a brief question-and-answer period, in which Walker continuously misunderstood the questions from his audience, he came out in support of Governor Wallace for President. "A great president? You must be talking about George Wallace."

WEBSTER WEEK . . .

(Continued from page 2)

balloons coincided with the dictionary reading. Grayson promptly stole the balloons and destroyed them the following night. But, as of Tues., a giant helium balloon is again atop Webster.

There are 336 half-hour periods in the week so there will be time for everyone to read. This event has been advertised by the Springfield newspapers WBZ and WMEX radio (in Boston, and WHYN-TV.

FIRE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

dents have taken up temporary residence in generous Amherst family's homes. Spectators at the fire, dressed in various garbs, were quick to offer their homes as temporary quarters.

The students' major need in their brief remaining portion of the year is for clothing and money for books and possession replacement. None of the material was insured so the losses of the students are thus made even greater.

Mrs. Russell, Foreign Student Advisor, suggested, "When a crisis like this comes the students must turn to the community. This is the American way to do things."

Contributions for the students may be left in Collegian office this week. Remember, it could have been you.

TRACK . . .

(Continued from page 8)

took one-two in the half with the winning time 1:58.2. Carpenter won his specialty, the mile, in 4:19.2 while Mike Sheeley finished third. UMass also took first and third in the two mile behind Hoss (9:26) and St. Clair (9:29).

Pete Moryll grabbed third in the high hurdles, followed by the Redmen's one-three in the intermediate hurdles. The versatile Andersen finished in 57.2 to win the event as Thoms got third.

The Redmen ended a long afternoon by besting the Huskies in the mile relay even though they dropped a baton. The foursome of Bob Hasselbaum, Thoms, Ryan and Gonzales ran 3:36.

"Hot Line"
545-2550

ATTENTION CLASS OF 1968

Applications are now being accepted for next year's Executive Council. We need representatives from all parts of the campus. Deadline is 5:00 p.m., May 10. Application sheets are available in R.S.O. office.

Support Your Class in the Coming Year

Huge discounts with the International Student ID Card

Air travel throughout Europe, Israel at 60% less. Same huge savings on accommodations, admissions, etc. The ID Card is a must for every traveling student.

The Official Student Guide to Europe

Lists student hotels, restaurants, discounts, local tours, and complete routes, schedules, prices of student flights, trains, etc. An essential companion to the ID Card. $1.95

Also
4-Day $31 Expo '67 Tour

Includes 4 nights' accommodation, 4 breakfasts, 3 Expo passes, a French dinner, and sightseeing tour of Montreal.

U.S. National Student Assn., Dept. CP
265 Madison Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10016

Please send info on ID Card ☐ The Official Guide (payment enclosed) ☐ Details on Expo '67. ☐

Name_____

Address_____

City_____ State_____

USNSA is non-profit for students.

NOTICES

CHEMISTRY SEMINAR
On Friday, May 5, at 12:20 P.M. in Goessmann 51, Professor Basil G. Anex of Yale University will speak on "Spectral Studies of Highly Absorbing Crystals: The Nature of the Allowed Transitions of Certain Planar Complexes that Display Unusual Solid-state Colors."

ART EXHIBIT
Exhibition of Works of Art to Protest the War in Vietnam will take place from May 7 to May 21 in Commonwealth Room, S.U. This is sponsored by the Faculty Committee on Peace and War, and contributors are from the four-college area.

SPANISH MAJORS
Student faculty night is at 7:30 P.M. on Wed., May 3, at the Faculty Club.

NEWMAN CLUB
On May 4, in Newman Center Chapel, Masses will be held at 6:50, 8:00, 9:15 A.M. and 12:15, 5:00 and 7:00 P.M. for Ascension Thursday, a Holy day of Obligation.

MED TECH MAJORS
On Student-Faculty night, Wed., May 3, nominations for next year's Alpha Delta Theta's officers will open. Voting will take place on Counseling Day.
Any Med. Tech. wishing to join the Alpha Delta Theta National Sorority and has a 2.0 overall cum, should sign the petition in the Med. Tech office as soon as possible and pick up your own copy of the Constitution and petition.

STUDENT RELIGIOUS LIBERALS
On Sunday, May 7, at Amherst Unitrian Society the installation of officers will be held. New ideas for the coming year will be discussed. All interested are welcome. Dessert and coffee will be served.

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB
On May 4, at 7:30 P.M. in Nantucket Room there is a general meeting. The upcoming intercollegiate meet in Orange will be discussed.

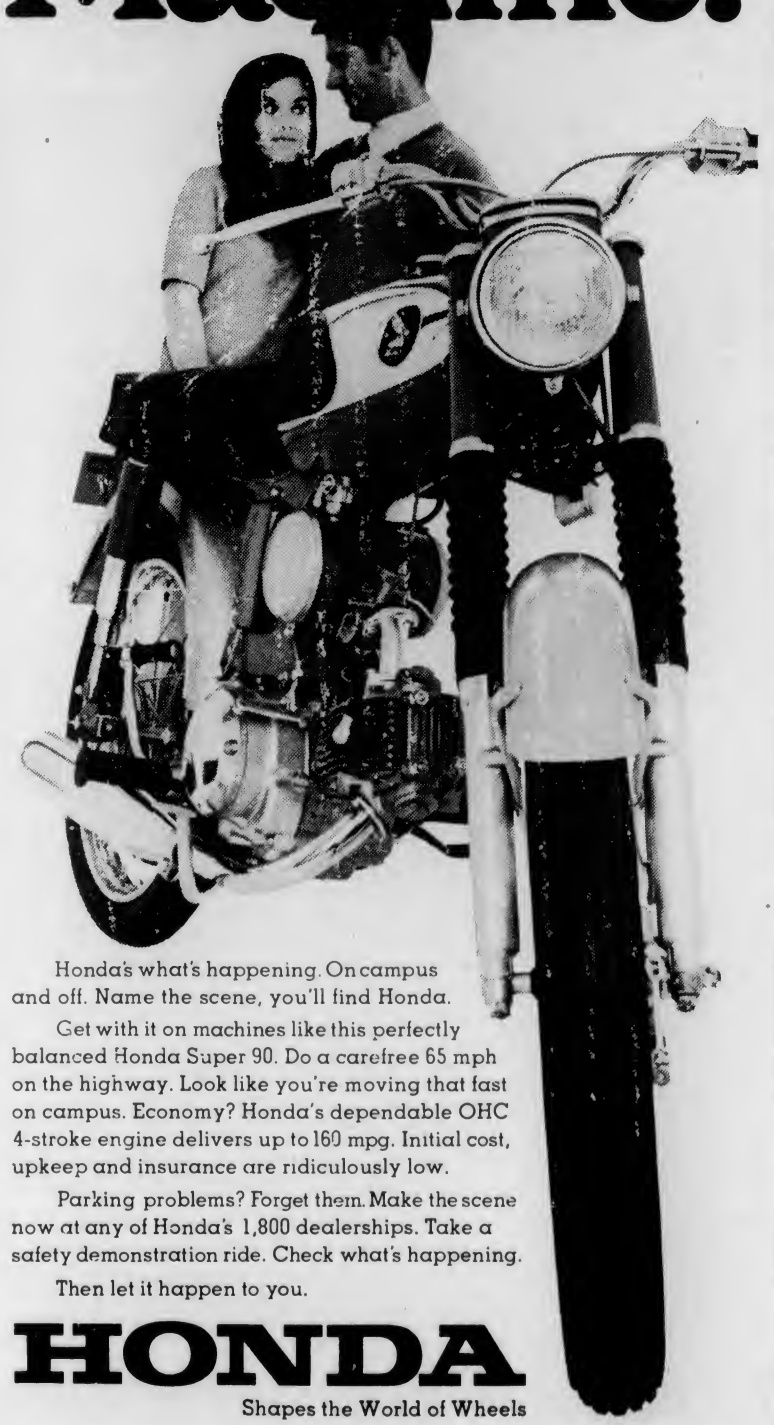
OPERETTA GUILD
Meeting on Wed., May 3 at 6:30 P.M. in Berkshire and Bristol Rooms, S.U. All interested in musical theatre production are invited.

CAR WASH
There will be a car wash at Lambda Delta Phi, 339 N. Pleasant St. on May 4, from 10-2 P.M. Charge is 75¢.

STUDENTS FOR POLITICAL ACTION
On Wed., May 3 there will be a literature table in the Union from 9-5. Information on the draft, war in Vietnam and American Society will be available. The latest copy of "New Politics" will be on sale.
Thurs., May 4, at Machmer W24 at 6:30 P.M. there will be a membership meeting. Discussion will evolve around the draft, the war and campus restrictions on Free Speech.

CHEMISTRY SEMINAR
On Thurs., May 4 at 11:15 A.M., in Goessmann 51, Dr. George Peterson of Bell Telephone Laboratories will speak on "Some Applications of Nuclear Quadrupole Resonance Spectroscopy".

ORGAN RECITAL
On May 3, at 8:15 p.m. in Johnson Chapel, Amherst College, there will be an organ recital by Arthur J. DeNero, featuring his own compositions.



RSO PRESIDENTS
Please return Senate questionnaires. If you haven't received one, there are copies in the RSO office over the message boxes.

EDUCATION CLUB
Elections of officers for 1967-68 will be held on Wed., May 4 at 7:30 in Room 123 of Ed. Bldg. Reports will be given on "The Northeastern Regional Conference for Student Teachers and Beginning Teachers of the Disadvantaged (AACTE and USOE)" and the "100-Cities Assembly of the Year of the Non-Conference (NCTEPS)".
Now is the time to sign up for the State convention at Hotel Somerset in Boston on May 6. The subject of the convention will be, "Sex Education in the Public Schools." Call Mike Glickman, 6-7646 to reserve your space.

LOST
1963 150cc Vespa Scooter. Taken from Zayre's parking lot Thursday night or Friday morning. Registration no A 989. If you have any information please contact Mary Ann Hawkins, 304 Van Meter So. Necessary for summer job.
White gold Elgin Lady's wrist watch on May 1, between Student Union and Orchard Hill. Please contact Jan Webb, 546-6710.
Gold-plated Ronson Ultraflame lighter. Engraved JRM. Reward. If found, please call John R. Mullin, 203 Hills North, 546-9289.
Valuable irreplaceable earring from Pakistan. Solid glass cube, multi-colored on green background. Reward. Contact Linda Phillips, 404 Leach.

FOUND
Watch, in Engineering 118-120 at close of Math 186 final on Jan. 18th. See Mr. Allen, Arnold 215.
Found in Lady's Ballroom, pair or Lady's glasses. May be picked up in News Office, South College on third floor.
A suitable date for Spring Day.

Scene Machine.

Honda's what's happening. On campus and off. Name the scene, you'll find Honda.

Get with it on machines like this perfectly balanced Honda Super 90. Do a carefree 65 mph on the highway. Look like you're moving that fast on campus. Economy? Honda's dependable OHC 4-stroke engine delivers up to 160 mpg. Initial cost, upkeep and insurance are ridiculously low.

Parking problems? Forget them. Make the scene now at any of Honda's 1,800 dealerships. Take a safety demonstration ride. Check what's happening.

Then let it happen to you.

HONDA

Shapes the World of Wheels

See the "Invisible Circle" color film at your local Honda dealer's. Pick up a color brochure and safety pamphlet, or write: American Honda Motor Co., Inc., Dept. C-8, Box 50, Gardena, Calif. 90247. ©1967, AHM.

AMHERST CREAMERY SNACK BAR

ice cream takeout | steaks | sandwiches 253-5350

COUPON COUPON

25¢

Toward the purchase of any pizza

one per customer — expires May 5

MASS. CLASSIFIED

HELP WANTED

Full or part time summer baby sitter. Call 665-2879 after 4.

Part or full time bus boys, good salary, tips. Apply Mr. Whalen, Lord Jeffrey Inn, Amherst.

Full time bell man, good salary, good tips, room and board if desired. Apply Mr. Ames, Lord Jeffrey Inn, Amherst.

The "Circle D" would like to speak to a young woman who is a proficient western rider and who is interested in working with children. Circle D Ranch, call after 7 p.m., 253-5779

For Rent

Girl's bike 24" used condition will accept best offer, good for first bicycle, call Adrienne, 546-8052.

Two furnished rooms for rent with kitchen privileges. 3 miles from U.M. $40 and $45 a month, call 3-9424.

Apt. to sublet for the summer. 1 mile to University. Ideal for one, two or possibly 3 rooms. Some furniture available. 256-8346.

AUTOMOBILES

1965 Triumph Herald Convertible—red with black top. Radio and heater—tonneau cover—brakes just relined, new rear wheel bearings—excellent condition—27,000 miles. Must sell, or will trade for older VW sedan and cash. Phone Easthampton 527-9040.

WE GUARANTEE WE WILL — save you money on any new or used car purchased. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton.

'65 OLDS JETSTAR I 2 DOOR HARDTOP COUPE—Console. Bucket seats. Many accessories. Easily financed at Clarke Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from the Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! PRICES REDUCED — '65 PONTIAC Bonneville, 4-door Hardtop, Luxury interior, automatic, easily budgeted. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

FANTASTIC SAVINGS AT CLARK OLDS-PONTIAC—Try this '65 Olds 4-door hardtop. Luxury interior, vinyl seats, full carpeting, power steering and many fine extras. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

'64 CHEVELLE STATION WAGON — BRONZE EXTERIOR—Luggage rack, V-8 automatic, power steering, standard for economy. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! '64 PONTIAC STATION WAGON — CATALINA on a wide track. Automatic. Priced to sell. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! '64 STARFIRE HOLIDAY HARDTOP Console, buckets, power steering and brakes, power windows. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

LET'S GET TOGETHER! '63 OLDS "98"—Excellent condition. Many extras, fine condition. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

INSPECTION TIME IS NOW HERE! Try this '63 Pontiac Catalina hardtop, excellent economy, fine condition, trade terms. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

AUTOMOBILE

MGA 1958 new tires, curtains, top & tonneau cover, excellent cond. $500 best offer by May 5. Call 253-9540 after 4:00.

EVERY CAR IS UNDER WARRANTY! '64 JETSTAR OLDS "88" — Small economy V-8 that burns regular gas; 4-door sedan, low original mileage, name of owner given on request. Stop today at Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

U OF M SPECIAL! '64 CORVAIR MONZA 4 door hardtop, excellent for the college student, 4 speed on the floor; luxury vinyl interior. Priced right; Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

WIDETRACK CATALINA 4 DOOR HOLIDAY MODEL 8—'64 V-8 engine, radio. Immaculate interior, many fine extras. Priced to sell. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

'62 KOMBI STATION WAGON V.W. Camper, or utility wagon. Priced very reasonable at $795. Why not stop at Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

A FEW MINUTES FROM CITY HALL TO TOWN HALL CAN Save you more than $50. '61 Pontiac 2 door Tempest coupe; automatic, perfected shape for the price we are asking. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

CONVERTIBLE WEATHER IS HERE! '64 Chevrolet with V-8 engine, power steering & brakes; excellent top, Impala Model. Clarke Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

COMPACT CONVERTIBLE BY CHEVROLET—'63 Spider model 4 speed on the floor; excellent condition; bucket for young comfort. Trade now at Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

'64 RAMBLER STATION WAGON "DELUXE" 700 model, electric rear window, roof rack, immaculate condition. Clark Olds-Pontiac, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton. Open to 9 p.m.

$395 TAKES HOME TO FAMILY A GOOD RUNNING '60 Olds Super "88". Clark Motors, 32 Union St., "across from Post Office", Easthampton.

WANTED

Organist available for summer — formor join rock blues etc. group. 12 yrs. exp. has own organ, anywhere—call George Blum, 546-3735.

Ride or hitchhiking partner to Mexico to leave second week in June. Will share expenses, call Dani, 253-9823 after 6 p.m.

Two attractive funloving girls to be traveling companions for two free living young men. Destination, West Coast. Leaving June 6-10. Call 6-9303 after 11:30 p.m.

Two mature male students to share a three-bedroom house, with 2 baths and a study, in Brighton, on a bluff overlooking the Charles. House available June-August. Rent will range between $150-$180 a month. House is 5 minutes from Harvard, close to B.C. If interested contact Fred Pilon, Rm. 311, Butterfield House, 545-2415, between 10 p.m.-12 p.m. Monday thru Friday, or leave a note in the Index Office.

PERSONAL

Dear Collector:
Are your pangs of conscience always so short-lived.
G. Mandel

Yankee Conference Golf Championship to Open Friday

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kevin Gilbride

ANOTHER SNEAD?—Senior Ed Polchlopek blasts out of a sand trap on the third hole at the Orchards during last week's quadrangular meet against Rhode Island, Amherst and Middlebury.

The 19th annual Yankee Conference Championship Golf Tournament will be held Friday at the Mt. Holyoke (Orchards) Golf Course in South Hadley.

The event, a 36-hole medal affair, will find each of the New England land grant universities entering seven contestants with the low six scorers from each school deciding the new conference champion.

UMass won last year's team crown at New Hampshire and the University of Rhode Island squad appears ready to wrest the title from the Redmen this week. Led by Bruce Morin, the Ram squad defeated Massachusetts 6-1 in a dual meet at the Orchards Course last week and Coach Paul Cieurzo's squad is undefeated in dual meet competition this year.

Morin, Charles Toscano, Paul Quigley, Dana Quigley, and Dave Johnson all broke 80 on the Orchards Course to give the Rams the best overall balance in the league.

Captain Jim McDonald, Bob Lawrence, Ed Polchlopek, Dave MacIver, John Pollack and Bob Nowak were all members of Massachusetts' championship team last spring and will be attempting to successfully defend a crown for the Redmen for the first time in the history of league championships.

New Hampshire and Connecticut could both be considered darkhorse contenders for the crown this year while Maine and Vermont have been seriously handicapped by the late spring which has prevented squad members from getting adequate preparations for this year's championships.

Sam, BKP, Trojans Score Wins

by ROGER KIPP
Staff Reporter

Soccer is moving nearer to the playoffs as the Fraternity division winds up its activity this week.

TEP is on the top in the Athenian loop with a 4-0-1 mark following its 0-0 tie with ZN Monday. SAM upended QTV, 1-0, on second half goal by Mike Reuben, and BKP, last year's campus champs won over SPE by a 2-0 score. APO won over fTheta Chi, 1-0, in the fourth game of the afternoon in the Athenian loop.

Kappa Sig, with a real fine team this year, can wrap up the Spartan league after their closest rival, Phi Mu Delta dropped their encounter with LCA 1-0. KS was able to salvage a scoreless tie with PSD and thus give them a 3-0-1. PMD's record is 3-1-1.

In the dorms, the Trojans of the South league took the Birches, 2-1 and the Terrors won over the Senators 1-0.

LCA clobbered new Delta Chi in softball action 12-5, getting 17 hits, Siebert and Larson getting three hits apiece. TKE bested PMD, 9-3, and AEPi got the best of ASP 6-2.

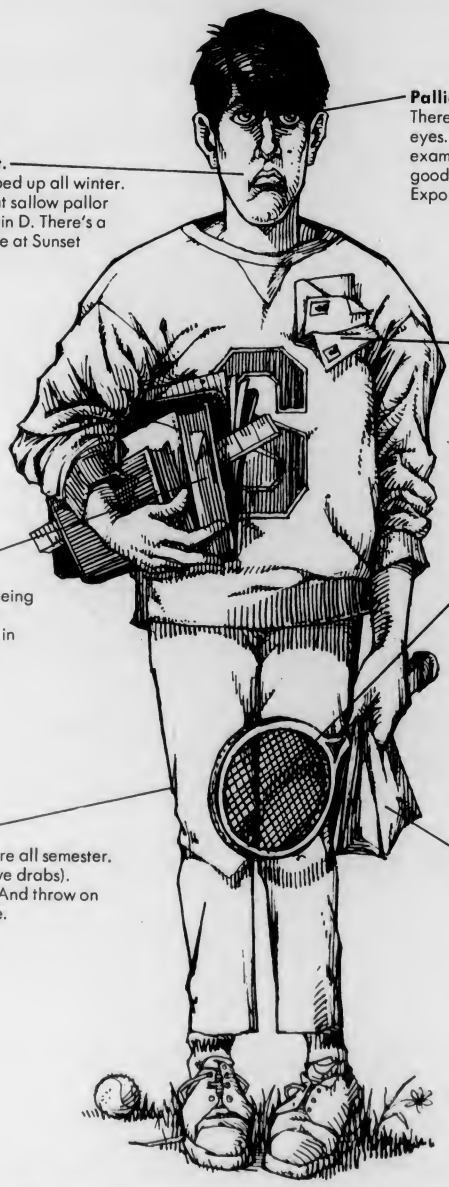
In the dorm Tower league, the Monuments got by the Redwoods, 7-4, the Apples beat the Academics, 10-8, and in the Southwest loop the Commanches conquered the Terrors 7-1. Independent-wise, the Trojans came out on top beating the Toads 4-1.

S.U. MOVIE

Jimmy Stewart

in

SHENANDOAH



Thurs., May 4

6 & 8:15

Admission 25¢

Summervācātionitis.

(How to spot and get rid of)

Pallid peepers.
There's no sparkle in those baby-blue eyes. It's been knocked out by all those exams. Get that vitality back. See what good is still left in the world. Go to Expo 67, Montreal.

Fluorescent fade-out.
That's from being cooped up all winter. What you need for that sallow pallor is some sunshine Vitamin D. There's a whole lot of it available at Sunset Beach in Acapulco.

Lip lingo.
They're letters from good buddies away for the summer. The best way to avoid them is not to be there when they arrive. Be in Puerto Rico instead.

The good books.
They have the possibility of being good symptoms. That's if you seek summer scholastics. Say in Mexico City. Or Acapulco.

Racquet squad.
That's the tennis team in your neighborhood during the summer. You'd find snorkeling or scuba diving in the Bahamas would make playing tennis seem like last summer's bad sport.

College fatigues.
That's the uniform you wore all semester. Get rid of those o.d.'s (olive drabs). Break out the white levis. And throw on a colorful Mexican serape.

BLT Down.
That's all you've known summer after summer. A change of palate would do you good. In Bermuda a few savory morsels of Hopping John with a sauce of Paw-Paw Montespan usually does the trick.

EASTERN

We want everyone to fly

Note: If symptoms get worse, see your travel agent or call Eastern.

START YOUR FUTURE IN BOSTON!

BOSTON IS AN EXCITING PLACE FOR YOUNG WOMEN TO WORK!
WHEN YOU FIND YOUR NICHE, COME LIVE AT BOSTON'S MOST POPULAR RESIDENCE FOR YOUNG WOMEN:

FRANKLIN SQUARE HOUSE

11 EAST NEWTON ST., BOSTON
"Convenient, Lively, In-Town Living For The Single Girl"

OPPORTUNITIES IN SELLING

Free to Univ. of Mass. Students 25¢ to others

A new booklet, published by a non-profit educational foundation, tells which career field lets you make the best use of all your college training, including liberal-arts courses—which career field offers 100,000 new jobs every year—which career field produces more corporation presidents than any other—what starting salary you can expect. Just send this ad with your name and address. This 24-page, career-guide booklet, "Opportunities in Selling," will be mailed to you. No cost or obligation. Address: Council on Opportunities, 550 Fifth Ave., New York 36, N. Y.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN
Sports
WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1967
Page 8 Vol. XCV, No. 70

Lacrossemen Test Strong Amherst

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Today's lacrosse game against Amherst promises to be even more than the heated crowntown rivalry it usually is. It brings together two of the finest teams in New England as UMass will try to hand the Lord Jeffs their first loss starting at 3 p.m. at the varsity field.

Last year Amherst won, 6-4, on two fluke goals. Redmen coach Dick Garber hopes to reverse that result against the high-scoring Jeffs, the leaders of the New England League.

Amherst has averaged 12 goals a game against five opponents, although the competition hasn't been as tough as that of UMass. At the same time the Redmen have been ripping the nets with consistency. Garber predicted a "high-scoring game."

Amherst's scoring has been well-distributed this year, evidenced by the fact that nine different players tallied in the Jeff's win over Middlebury. A defense that has not allowed more than three goals in any one game has also figured strongly in the 5-0 record.

The attack has been on a rampage lately. Leading Coach Scully Scandrett's offense has been the three close attackmen Co-Captain Terry Ellen, Evan Bollinger and Chris Brown.

The man to watch for in midfield is Co-captain John Ratichek. A football player in the fall, Ratichek is an All-America candidate.

UMass has been hit hard by injuries, especially the midfield. Marty Kalikow suffered a fractured collarbone against Dartmouth and will be lost for the season. Kevin O'Brien, while playing, is still recovering from a separated shoulder and Bob Murphy is not at top form with a shoulder injury.

As a result, Garber will probably start his second midfield of Don Rana, Steve Connolly and Paul Mushovic.

The attack will consist of Howie Goffman and red-hot sophs O'Connor and Gary Vassar. On defense, the Redmen will start Fred Foley, Walt Alessi and Ira Yavner.

Marc Schlossberg, a sophomore who started his first game against Dartmouth and performed admirably, will be in the nets. He replaces Bill Sinclair, who is in the hospital with an eye injury.

"This could decide the New England championship," Coach Garber said. "Last year, we outplayed them all over the field, but we lost the ball game."

LACROSSE SCORING

	G	A	P
Vassar	8	9	17
O'Connor	12	4	16
O'Brien	8	0	8
Kalikow	2	5	7
Connolly	6	0	6
Rana	4	2	6
Herling	3	3	6
Goffman	5	0	5
Murphy	1	0	1
Mushovic	1	0	1
Molander	1	0	1
Mahoney	0	1	1
Agnoli	0	1	1

Linksmen Lose

WORCESTER — Holy Cross defeated the UMass golf team, 4-3, Monday. Ed Polchlopek was medalist for UMass with a 77.

The Redmen travel to Hanover, N. H., today for a 1 p.m. meet against Dartmouth.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kelly

INDIAN CHEEK — UMass soph Kevin O'Connor climbs on Dartmouth player's back during Saturday's encounter, which UMass won, 14-6. O'Connor was impressive when he had the ball too, scoring six goals.

One More Time

The weatherman struck for the second time at Storrs, Connecticut, yesterday, as the baseball game between UMass and UConn was rained out. The original April 19th date at Storrs had also been washed out.

The Yankee Conference showdown has not yet been officially rescheduled. The two teams will meet at Amherst on Tuesday, May 16th.

Medley Team Sets School Mark at Penn Relays

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Some fine individual performances by the UMass track team marked the Penn Relays in Philadelphia last weekend, but the Redmen were overwhelmed by Connecticut, 100-49, in the rain yesterday at Storrs.

In the Penn affair at Philly's Franklin Field, UM finished second in its heat of the distance medley relay, which consists of the half-mile, quarter-mile, three-quarters and one mile. Greg Bowman led off with an outstanding 1:53.9 in the half, the best he has ever done.

At that point the Redmen were leading the race, but a dropped baton pushed them out of first place. Steve St. Clair followed with a 3:08 three-quarters, and Terry Carpenter anchored with a 4:17 mile. The time of 10:15 was a school record but was second best in the heat. It was six seconds better than the Redmen's B.C. Relays time.

In the four-mile relay, the U-Mass team of Bowman, St. Clair, Paul Hoss and Carpenter finished out of contention, but Carpenter's 4:13.5 mile was a UMass record and the best time of his life.

John Andersen raced the intermediate hurdles in 54.5 seconds, a school record, and Hoss finished the open two-mile in 9:18, his best effort to date.

UMass' loss at UConn can be attributed in large part to the fact that the Redmen failed to score in the hammer, javelin, high jump, pole vault, and the 100-yard dash.

Dave Schlatka grabbed third in the discus, John Dreyer got a third in the shot put, Steve Whalen took second and third in the triple and long jumps respectively, while Art Larvey leaped to a third place in the long jump.

Andersen finished third in the 220, but rebounded to take first in the 440 with a time of 51.3 seconds. Diego Gonzales and Bill Thoms followed him in the 440 to give UMass its lone sweep on an otherwise bleak day.

Greg Bowman and Ron Ryan

(Continued on page 5)

Tennis Squad Rips U.R.I.; Yan-Con Tourney Here

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

Then UMass tennis team ruined Rhode Island Friday and was having little trouble with Connecticut before the rains washed out an early 3-1 lead yesterday. The team now stands at 3-1.

At Kingston, the team had to play on an alternate set of courts because the hurricane force winds had blown down the protective fence that surrounded the normal URI courts.

Coach Steve Kosakowski used only six men: Andy Meagher, Harvey Mednicov, Gerry Johnson, Scott Sheppart, Carl Clemm, and Al Davis. Koz did this to receive the best possible seedings in the Conference championships this weekend.

The six lived up to Koz's expectation. He remarked, "They really came through in that wind." Indeed they did. They swept the match in 18 sets, 9-0.

Yesterday the team lost to the elements. With Meagher, Clemm, and Johnson having won and Sheppard and Davis coasting easily a win seemed assured. But the rains came and saved UConn.

It is quite possible that make-ups with AIC, UNH, and U-Conn will not be scheduled.

UMass will host the Yankee Conference tennis championships Friday and Saturday on the varsity courts adjacent to the Boyden Physical Education Building.

Vermont, the 1965 and 1966 champion, appears to be the pre-tourney favorite. The Catamounts, under first-year coach Guy Cheng, have a veteran team composed of seniors with just one junior. Senior Paul Ryan, last year's singles champion, heads the list and is joined by seniors George Cook and Bruce Hanna plus junior Ted Joslin as the key performers. Vermont had a season record of 3-1 prior to matches this week against Middlebury and Union.

Massachusetts, which hasn't finished lower than second in the Conference tourney since 1953, has a 3-1 record and may have the best chance to dethrone Vermont.

The Conference tournament will start with first round singles at 9:30 Friday morning. The tournament will continue with the finals taking place Saturday.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL (V) — vs. Coast Guard (at New London, Conn., Today, 3:30 p.m.)
LACROSSE (V) — vs. Amherst (Home, Today, 3 p.m.)
GOLF (V) — vs. Dartmouth (at Hanover, N. H., Today, 1 p.m.)
BASEBALL (Frosh) — vs. A.I.C. (Home, Today, 3 p.m.)
LACROSSE (Frosh) — vs. Dean Jr. (Home, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)
GOLF (Frosh) — vs. Dartmouth (at Hanover, N. H., Today, 1 p.m.)

Freshmen Crush Leicester, 24-3

by ROGER KIPP
Staff Reporter

The freshman baseball nine took batting practice against Leicester Jr. College Monday afternoon on the varsity field and bombed them, 24-3.

The Little Redmen ran wild on the basepaths and scored in every conceivable fashion. Their runs came by means of hits, walks, hit batsmen, and most of all errors, as the Leicester boys came up with 13 miscues.

The blunders ranged from wild throws to kicked grounders to dropped fly balls.

Nevertheless, the frosh did hit well. They rapped out 14 safeties. Jack Madeiros, Steve Stanford, Gary Belliveau, and Jeff Piken had two hits apiece. Madeiros hit the 375 ft. sign on one bounce twice in a row. Both were good for doubles and three R.B.I.'s.

Ron Swiatlowski swatted a home run over the right field fence, for the first circuit clout of the year for the team, and big Bob Hansen uncorked a triple to center. Chuck Espanet and Charlie Newell broke out of slight slumps with clean hits.

Ed Coonan went all the way on the mound, winning his second without a loss. He fanned 10, walked only two, and had a hopping fast ball.

J. V. Crew Hopes to Finish High in Regatta

MUDDY WATER—Members of the junior varsity crew row up the Connecticut River. From left are Wendell Frost, Mike Faherty, Roger O'Donnell, Dave Keating, Dick Cone, Bob Kiley, Ben Oldman, Tim McKenna, stroke, and Bill Crowe, coxswain.

Last year, in the Dad Vail Regatta in Philadelphia, the UM junior varsity crew finished fourth in a field of 16. It was quite an accomplishment for a crew that was in its first year of competition. This year, with the Dad Vail less than two weeks away, the jayvees appear set to finish even higher in the standings.

Earlier this season, the J.V. oarsmen succumbed to the powerful Georgetown eight, but they are now riding high on successive victories over Wesleyan, Stony Brook, and the Dartmouth lightweights.

Individual statistics on the junior varsity contingent of UMass crew are as follows:

Bow—Wendell Frost (Acushnet 6', 165 lb.); 2—Mike Faherty (Gloucester, 5'8", 160 lb.); 3—Roger O'Donnell (captain) (Ashfield, 5'11", 175 lb.); 4—Dave Keating (Fitchburg, 6'1", 165 lb.); 5—Dick Cone (Wilmington, 6'2", 198 lb.); 6—Bob Kiley (Manchester, 6'2", 180 lb.); 7—Ben Oldham (Maynard, 5'10", 175 lb.); Stroke—Tim McKenna (Taunton, 5'10", 190 lb.); Coxswain—Bill Crowe (Hyde Park, 5'8", 125 lb.).

Six of the jayvees rowed last year for Coach Dave Clarke. Their experience is a definite asset to the performance of the squad as a whole. The two newcomers, Bob Kiley and Wendell Frost, caught on quickly and are now combined with the six veterans to form a team that has contributed greatly to the success of UM crew this year.

SAM SPARK ON THE SITUATION Page 5

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

THE SENATE ON SPRING DAY Page 4

VOL. XCV, NO. 71 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1967

MARIO UMANA

Photo by Bachrach

LESTER S. HYMAN

Democratic State Committee To Meet with UMass Students

by RICHARD KLINE
News Editor

The Massachusetts Democratic State Committee will travel to Amherst Monday night to meet with UMass students. The Committee plans to listen and talk to the members of the younger generation as part of the effort to overcome the "generation gap."

The Party-student meeting will be conducted by Senator Mario Umana, Chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic Party's Platform Committee. Senator Umana is a Harvard Law School graduate, a member of the Senate Rules, Aeronotics, Ways and Means and Labor and Industries Committees.

He is chairman of the Labor and Industries Committee, father of U Mass sophomore Anne Umana, a UMass senior and secretary of the UMass Young Democrats.

Also leading the group will be Lester S. Hyman, Chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic State Committee. He is a graduate of Brown University and Columbia Law School.

Hyman was a close friend of the late President John F. Kennedy and according to UMass Young Dems president Nick Akerman, "He was known as a man-of-all-jobs in the Peabody administration."

The Platform Committee membership includes Democrats from all walks of life; legislators, educators and business men and women. They plan to discuss such issues as a higher sales tax, civil rights, governmental regulations and a lower voting age for the state. The Democratic leadership in the state has already pledged their full support to the proposed 18 year old voting age in Massachusetts.

This is the first time that a Platform Committee has ever traveled to college campuses. The meeting is sponsored by the Young Democrats of UMass, Smith and Mt Holyoke and will be held in the Commonwealth Room of the Student Union Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Constitutional Convention Approves 1967-68 Class Budgets and Taxes

by PAT PETOW
Senate News Editor

Budgets and the student taxes paying for them for each of next year's classes were approved this week by the class officers and Student Senate in a Constitutional Convention.

The junior year tax was increased while the sophomore and freshman levies remained the same. The senior year tax may also be the same as this year after adjustment.

One-third of the Senior Week allocation in the Class of 1968 budget was cut in Convention action. In offering the motion striking $10,000 to save each senior $4, Senate Past President John Greenquist charged the Convention with caring for "the students who don't go."

His was the only class budget to an Executive Council, said President Dick Wood in defense, where it was approved unanimously with nearly 100 members present after a month-long deliberation.

A proposal by Wood to change the procedure of class budget review will incorporate a new review board concept into the actual budget review, removing it from the jurisdiction of the Senate-dominated convention. The review board would include, according to the president, the four class officers, four senators, the RSO Business Manager, and the Coordinator of Student Activities.

To the budget adopted as of now, the 2447 or so members of the Class of 1968 will pay about $17 as a tax to make up the budget of about $125,387. The Class will not have to pay an additional graduation fee like the $10 one imposed by the administration this year, said Wood.

Details of the budget call for part of the revenue from a 20,000 seat concert with tickets selling at $3, $4, and $5 scheduled for Sept. 23 to be donated to a charity of the Executive Council's choice. Another innovation of the class is a lecture series for which $5,000 in honoraria was earmarked.

The "winter carni" budget of the Class of 1969 includes $35,450 to be spent on talent for three concerts, two nite clubs, wrestling, and two dances. The Class will take in $41,800 in receipts from Winter Carni alone.

Of the total $69,610 budget of class of '69 President Wayne Thomas, only $13,310 will be raised by the $5 student tax.

In the plans for next year is a class trip to New York which the participants would pay for. Earlier Thomas told the Collegian that he believed the Executive Council could afford the time and energy to arrange the trip without detracting from other class efforts.

Sen. Chris McGahan, who had made no secret of his support of

(Continued on page 2)

This Weekend

STUDENTS' MAY AT SOUTHWEST

The Southwest College Council will sponsor a gala weekend, known officially as "Students' MAY at Southwest". The events this weekend, May 5 through May 7, planned and presented by the various committees of the Southwest Council under the direction of co-chairmen Mike Ross and Barbara Berkowitz, will be free to all comers.

Starting off the weekend's festivities this afternoon, "The Last Rites" band will perform at four o'clock outside "Le Cave," the Southwest snack bar. Tonight, an outdoor movie, .."Picnic", starring Kim Novak and William Holden, will be shown at nine o'clock in the grassed courtyard behind Dining Commons # 5. If weather cooperates, it may be expected that the warm grass combined with traditional UMie ingenuity will produce a high degree of audience participation in the fun.

Saturday will open with coed softball tournaments at 10:30 in the Lacrosse fields, as the athletic Sou'westers exercise the muscles they built up trudging to campus.

The high point of the weekend will be a "blow your mind" dance to be called "a Close Creation with the 'Bold' and the 'Flower

(Continued on page 5)

UMass Professors Discuss Question of War in Vietnam

by NEIL GIROUX
Staff Reporter

Editor's Note: This is the last of a two part series of Vietnam. All professors of government, the academicians are all recognized as experts in their field and more than competent on the question of the war.

Luther Allen, Assoc. Prof. of Government at UMass holds a B.A. from Williams College, received an M.A. from the University of Iowa and a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago.

Dr. Allen served as a Smith-Mundt exchange professor at the law school in Saigon in 1961. He has written widely in the area of Vietnamese politics and has acted as an advisor to the South Vietnamese Government in the spring of 1964.

Essentially, Dr. Allen feels that American presence in Vietnam is fatefully necessary. While most of the opposition to the war has resulted from the large American buildup in late 1964, Dr. Allen has been intensely interested in the war and the people since early 1960.

An ardent anti-communist, Allen labels himself as a liberal. (He once served as the Hampshire Co. Chairman of the A.D.A.) He strenuously opposed Ngo Dinh Diem and his efforts were instrumental in bringing Diem down in 1963.

Dr. Allen terms his position as that of a "water buffalo" as opposed to that of a hawk or a dove. Explaining this he says, "the animal procedes with honest, independent, critical steps over a long period of time. The solution in Vietnam is not easy. It takes more than guns and money. The American people need to build up a political empathy with the Vietnamese people."

Concerning the present situation and in particular the poll being taken by an anti-war group in Amherst, Dr. Allen in a letter to the Amherst Record on Apr. 27, 1967, said, "The self-appointed pollsters of the Amherst electorate have mixed democracy and diplomatic negotiation to the point of recognizing the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam and offering that totalitarian instrumentality a role in a "coalition" government before either Hanoi or the NLF have given any indication they would deal with the present government in Saigon.

Recognition of the NLF as the sole legitimate expression of the Vietnamese people is the key demand made by the other side in Vietnam. Vietnamese Communists have long practiced national front tactics as steps in consumating the kind of heavy, oppressive, permanent totalitarian rule they practice in North Vietnam.

By saying yes, not only to stopping the bombing but to recognizing the NLF in negotiations for the establishment of a coalition government in South Vietnam, the yes-men and women of Amherst are, according to the enemy in Vietnam, the substance of what the war is all about.

Ray A. Moore

This is appeasement (offering something for nothing). It is defeatism. It amounts to granting legitimacy to the NLF at a time when they give no indication of settling for less than total power in South Vietnam. It amounts to material defeat for a great power and morally reprehensible handing over to the NLF of two million Catholics, a million and a half Hoa Hao, along with several million non-Communist Vietnamese whose way of life has been shaped by the support the U.S. has granted to a series of anti-Communist governments in South Vietnam over the past thirteen years.

What our poilsters and most Vietnam protestors

(Continued on page 4)

UMass Concert Band to Give Outdoor Performance Sunday

The University of Massachusetts Concert Band will make its public debut this Sunday at 6:00 p.m. The concert will be an out-of-doors performance held in front of Memorial Hall and will be open to the public.

The program will consist of a great variety of band works. From the opening overture, "Classic Overture" by Francois Gossec the band will play a cornet trio, "Cornet Carillon" by Ronald Binge, several folksongs, "Irish Tune" from County Derry by Percy Grainger and "The Rakes of Mallow" by LeRoy Anderson, concluding with "The West Side Story" by Leonard Bernstein. The concert will also feature the two "Armenian Dances" of Aram Khachaturian, "Nocturne" by Ralph Herman and "March, Opus 99" by Sergei Prokofieff.

The Concert Band is a relatively new concert unit at the University of Massachusetts. The band rehearses twice weekly and is 60 members strong. The band exists to afford students with a limited time and opportunity to experience and perform a wide range of band literature.

Also new with the concert band is its director, Larry Weed. Weed is an Assistant Professor of Music in the Department of Music where he teaches classes in Music Education, gives private lessons on low brass instruments and is the Assistant Director of Bands. He plays trombone with the Springfield Symphony Orchestra, the University of Massachusetts Symphony Orchestra and the Smith-Amherst Symphony Orchestra and conducts the choir program of the Wesley Methodist Church.

Criticize Administration

Frosh Vote Crew Team $250

by WAYNE SOINI
Staff Reporter

At first it looked like the crew team was going to be criticized and unsubsidized by the Class of 1970 in a meeting of the class of '70 officers early Wednesday evening in the council chambers of the Student Union. Within minutes after the meeting had begun, however, nodding heads swung to unanimity for a $250 appropriation for the team and criticism was fired at the administration, specifically the Athletic Department.

Thursday a letter was dispatched from Ron Stoltz, member of the team, to newly-elected frosh president Bruce Balboni, former senator-at-large of the class who has dealt with the crew team in the senate budget debates. The letter stated that the team needs $500 in order to participate in the Philadelphia Regatta next Fall. The team, a club of R.S.O. funded by the student senate, looked to the class of '70 to foot the larger portion of the bill since frosh form the largest crew membership. Replies received from the classes of '68 and '69 presidents Dick Wood and Wayne Thomas were each tentatively good for $125. Balboni reviewed the contents of the letter previous to opening discussion.

Beginning the debate frosh treasurer Steve Weisman asked Stoltz, "Did the crew make any attempt to raise the money on its own?"

"We represent the University," replied Stoltz, "much as the football team does. I do not see how we can, for example, hold a raffle. Furthermore, we are not coming to the classes saying, 'It's your responsibility!', we're asking them to support us." Later he added.

"Either you will be giving us the money or we will be paying for the regatta ourselves. UMass will be represented." The members of the team have been investing in the team from personal funds to cover deficits.

(Continued on page 5)

SENATE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

Bob Joyce, Thomas, opponent in the recent election, objected to the budget because it had not been submitted to the 1969 Executive Council. Thomas, he said, had enough time to present it.

Thomas explained that it would have been difficult to draw up a budget before the April 5 Playboy Night and the April 15 end of Campus Chest. More important in the decision to hold off was the election of two new class officers on April 20 and 27.

By the time a new vice president and treasurer were elected, the full Executive Council had dissolved, he explained. He pointed out that the four officers and the senator-at-large, the legal Executive Council remaining, did pass on the budget.

Bruce Balboni, class of '70 president and former senator-at-large, presented his budget in one of his first official acts. The budget had been prepared by the former president who hadn't brought it to the Executive Council. It will be reviewed by a new Council in the fall.

A budget for the incoming freshmen was also enacted. The Class of 1971 will pay $2 in taxes for the year. An attempt to increase the levy to pay for a Freshman Weekend was defeated.

To all four class budgets, Sen. Marshall Nadan proposed and the body approved a binding clause requiring that the names of those given complimentary tickets be reported.

Turning to amending the Constitution, the Convention: added a provision for recalling class officers, made four judicial changes, strengthened class fiscal responsibility, and gave approval to President's Councils for the classes.

The Convention also clarified wording relating to electing Senate officers, defeated a provision requiring Senate officers to remain undergraduates.

According to the act written by Sen. Guenter Loeser (John Adams Middle), a petition of 20% of the class shall call a referendum for the purposes of recall. A majority vote of those voting, with more than 50% of the class membership voting, would recall a class officer.

In answer to an "investigation" of class spending made by the Student Senate and over the objection of the class officers, an amendment was introduced by President Dick Wood.

All expenditures made from categories for social functions, transportation, registration, meals, or lodging must now receive Executive Council approval by form of sum allocations prior to any class administration action.

The President's Council bill, introduced by Jon Edwards, an unsuccessful candidate for Class of 1969 president, provides for a Council of the four class officers and senator-at-large ex-officio and four members elected from within the Executive Council membership.

The Council will meet regularly and "in unanticipated situations where it is impossible to call an executive Council meeting, the President's Council may by a two-thirds vote . . . approve expenditures" in the categories of social functions, transportation, registration, meals, and lodging.

Vietnam Returnee Tags Involvement "Naive"

by PAT FLAHERTY
Staff Reporter

Mr. John McDermott, the Associate Editor of the "Viet Report", gave a talk Sunday in Southwest on American involvement in Vietnam. It was entitled Vietnam Is No Mistake! Mr. McDermott has been involved in much anti-war activity and recently visited Vietnam.

The substance of the discussion revolved around U.S. policy decisions. He noted that our involvement there was not precluded by political blundering or low-level official commitments. In fact, he said decisions were made upon careful analysis with full awareness of the calculated risks involved by the "highest central policy makers" in our government.

Mr. McDermott commented that to use the word "mistake" was inaccurate in describing U.S. policy there; instead one should view it in its assessment of situations as "right or wrong."

In regard to the French defeat at Dien Bien Phu (N. Vietnam) in 1954, the initial response by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was to bomb Vietnam positions and prevent the imminent French withdrawal from Vietnam. But a secret conference of important officials, including Lyndon Johnson, then Senate Minority Leader, rejected this unilateral intervention for lack of allied support.

Instead the National Security Council decided to take France's place in South Vietnam. Support was given to Ngo Dinh Diem to head the government with U.S. "advisors", since he was the most powerful anti-Communist. This was part of our "Communist Containment."

The teams of "advisors" were called the Michigan State University Group (MSU) and were sanctioned by the National Security Council. Under the official guise to aid underdeveloped countries this group, among other things worked to train Diem's secret police to fight resistence.

An important area Mr. McDermott touched upon was the "cultural barrier" in South Vietnam; the villages cannot participate in national affairs, due to language differences between them and Saigon. The former cling to their Vietnam dialects, while the language of their government is French and English; and only a very few villagers qualify for the specialized schools that teach them. "As a result, communication is cut off between the two areas."

Also in this respect he remarked how inaccurately the economic reports on South Vietnam indicated great prosperity for the 1957-59 period. Studies were based on Saigon's economy; in fact in 1957 there was a severe depression in the countryside."

Using the village of Khan Hao to typify the conditions of Vietnam when civil war broke out, Mr. McDermott cited these figures based on studies there: 40% of the working force was unemployed, another 40% could only work about four months a year."

In addition, he noted the poor health standards around the Saigon area in 9 out of 15 provinces: "15% of the people had been blinded by traucoma, and 800,000 people had tuberculosis." This could have been prevented by the simplest governmental sanitation measures.

Taking all this into consideration with the oppressiveness and purges of the Diem regime, he concludes "that such a government did not deserve to exist."

He further stated that anyone, like the Viet Cong, who looked to alleviate such conditions had his support. The revolution was a spontaneous one and enjoyed much popular support. People with grievances were recruited to fight, terror was not instrumental for this.

Another point he made was that most government officials are aware the Viet Cong are not a part of the international Communist movement, and that the Chinese have had little or nothing to do with their battle."

Mr. McDermott's view of U.S. foreign policy is that it is counter-revolutionary. By giving the governments more money, it increases their power and simultaneously takes power away from the masses. He agrees with the government position that the outcome of Vietnam is a "test case" for future guerrilla wars, not as an absolute but as a determining factor. Upon questioning he acknowledged that revolutions will occur anyway if its participants believed in victory. He also agreed that the conditions for revolution without reform will nevertheless exist.

Applications
for Class of '70
Executive Council
Available in R.S.O.

May 5 - May 12

Last year's members must re-apply.

STUDENT SENATE IS DEAD

(without students)

If you are interested in serving as a full voting member on a Student Senate committee or a faculty committee, 1967-1968, please pick up an application at the R.S.O. office.

Participate and the choice is yours,
Don't participate and the choice is theirs.

WANTED:

50 "Adventurous" dates
for H.E.R. weekend.

Call KAPPA SIG
AL 3-9121

Tired of Listening?

The Democratic Party Platform Committee with State Senator Mario Umana and State Party Chairman Lester Hyman wants to hear your views on:

- Lowering the voting age
- Education in state schools
- Automobile Insurance
- Taxation

ANY ISSUE YOU MAY WISH TO VOICE
Monday, May 8th, Commonwealth Rm—7:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Young Democrats

What Every Young Working Girl Should Know

. . . about the fun and games, the toil and trouble of living and working in a metropolis. McCall's Editor Lynda Bird Johnson got the candid story, through personal interviews with aware young girls in big cities from coast to coast. Read this handy guide on how to confound competition and pick the plum job . . . beat the apartment scramble and the repulsive-roommate risk . . . turn on a lagging social life, turn off an aggressive male. Don't miss "The Working Girl, 1967 Style." In May McCall's.

AT ALL NEWSSTANDS NOW.

BUY IT—OR ORDER BY SUBSCRIPTION—AT YOUR LOCAL COLLEGE BOOKSTORE

Faces in the News

STOWAWAY IN NEW YORK — Sandra Hilder, 20, the Australian girl who tried to stow away on an United States ship to rejoin her boyfriend, smiles after her arrival in New York to fulfill a television engagement resulting from publicity caused by the stunt. Later, she'll fly to Las Vegas for a reunion with seaman Bernard "Bud" Brewer, her boyfriend. (AP Wirephoto)

WHERE TO FROM HERE? — Robert Mote, 32, poses in London after he applied for a British work permit stating his occupation as "thief." After a checkered career in which he said he lost his U.S. citizenship, which was recently restored, the Kokomo, Ind., native is trying to be repatriated and take his Belgian wife to the U.S. also. (AP Wirephoto)

EXILED KING EXPLAINS HIS JOB — Exiled King Peter II of Yugoslavia tells a news conference in Los Angeles about his new job with a savings and loan association. He will try to recruit savings from people abroad for his firm. The exiled monarch said he doesn't think the training as a king helps much, but he does think his connections "all over Europe will help a lot." (AP Wirephoto)

WINS MAYORAL NOMINATION — Richard Gordon Hatcher, Gary Negro Councilman, has won the Democratic nomination for Mayor of Gary, Ind. He beat Maetin Katz, the incumbent, by a small majority. (AP Wire photo)

SOVIET PREMIER'S WIFE DEAD — Claudia Kosygin, wife of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, has died of cancer in Moscow. She had been in Kremlin hospital for several weeks. (AP Wirephoto)

GETS PULITZER FOR MEREDITH PHOTO — Jack R. Thornell, Associated Press photographer at New Orleans, won the 1967 Pulitzer award for news photography. Thornell, 27, was cited for a picture he made of James Meredith being shot during the Mississippi march last June.

SELECTIONS

MEN'S COURT OF JUSTICE
CLASS OF 1970

May 6 1:00 p.m.

Council Chambers, S.U.
Applications available at R.S.O.
Signatures NOT required.

World News Roundup

From the Wires of the Associated Press

Trucking Contract Approved By Teamsters' Bargainers

CHICAGO (AP)—A renegotiated contract for 500,000 truck drivers across the nation was approved Thursday night. The pact could end the 11-day strike-lockout of more than 45,000 drivers which has crippled freight transportation in the Chicago area.

Frank Fitzsimmons, acting president of the Teamsters Union, said he was confident that Chicago truck drivers would be back to work by Monday.

Announcement of the reworked contract came amid published reports that control of the Teamsters has been shifted from the national headquarters back to local leaders, ending one-man rule of the powerful labor organization.

Fitzsimmons, emerging from a bargaining session with negotiators for the trucking industry, said the new contract will be submitted to union members across the country for a mailed vote.

The renegotiated agreement supersedes a national pact agreed on April 12.

"This is the largest money package ever negotiated by the Teamsters Union," Fitzsimmons said.

Edward Fenner, president of the 11,000 member independent Chicago union, left the session after a "no comment" reply to questions about whether his group is in accord with Fitzsimmons' views.

Spokesmen for management were quoted as saying they will continue their lockout of Chicago truck drivers at least until midnight Friday so they will not have to pay the drivers for a 40-hour week.

By Defection Rate Viet Cong Worried

SAIGON (AP) — A captured Viet Cong document calls for increased action against the South Vietnam government's Chieu Hoi —Open Arms—program, U. S. officials said today.

It is a Communist party instruction from its Current Affairs Committee ordering all cadress and units to take measures "against the enemy's psywar, 'Chieu Hoi' and 'appeal to surrender' attempts."

The Chieu Hoi program is creating "schisms on our side," it said, and called for "drastic action to grab the ideological outlook."

UMass Copley Campus Opposed by BRA

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Redevelopment Authority voted Thursday night to oppose location of the new University of Massachusetts Boston campus on 30-40 acres in the downtown Copley Square area.

BRA Administrator Edward J. Logue said the site, if used for the university, "would deprive Boston of much tax development opportunity."

At the hearing before the BRA, officials of the John Hancock Insurance Co. said location of the campus at the Copley Square site "may cause the company to rule out" its plans to build a 62-story office building in the area.

Logue said the university could be located in Dorchester, a section of Boston south of the downtown area.

University officials indicated they would continue to press for a site in the center of the city.

John W. Ryan, chancellor of the university's Boston Campus, said he interpreted the legislative mandate to set up an urban university to mean placing it in "the heart of the city."

The university's Boston campus currently is located in a downtown office building not far from Copley Square. The university plans to expand the urban campus to an enrollment of 18,000 by 1975.

Four Year Draft Extension; More Time for Appeals

WASHINGTON (AP) — A four — year extension of the military draft law with authority for a lottery-type system of selection was recommended to the Senate Thursday.

The Senate committee recommended:

—Induction of younger men starting at age 19

—Retention of full authority for the more than 4,000 local draft boards to register, classify and induct.

—Continuation of student deferments for college students until they receive undergraduate degrees or reach 24 years of age.

—Permission for use of a lottery or random selection system for inducting youths although the Senate panel questioned that this would end inequities or complaints.

Potential draftees have been given more time to appeal their Selective Service classifications to local or state draft boards.

The appeals period was lengthened from 10 to 30 days by President Johnson.

His executive order also extended from 10 to 30 days the time in which persons can appeal a local or state classification to the National Selective Service Appeal Board.

Graduate Level Training Emphasized by Donahue

AMHERST — Providing public grad-level training could well be this state's greatest educational obligation in the years ahead, State Sen. Pres. Maurice A. Donahue said at UMass last night.

"Just as we are attempting to provide for the continued education of all capable high-school grads, so we are going to have to try to provide, too, for the continued education of all capable college grads who deserve it," Donahue said in an address sponsored by the UM Young Democrat group.

"I look forward to the day when the grad school of our University will be as large as, if not larger than, the undergraduate college," he said. "This day may not be as far in the future as some may think."

Because it is doubtful that private institutions alone will be able to meet the need, "it will therefore behoove the Commonwealth to provide the answer to this eventuality," Donahue said.

HAND-TO-HAND COMBAT—A medic reaches to aid a dying Marine as their comrades swarm over a hilltop during hand-to-hand battle with entrenched North Vietnamese. The hill, near Khe Sanh at the Laotian border of South Vietnam, first had been smashed by artillery and air strikes and cleared of vegetation. The Marines are of Golf Company, 2nd Battalion, 3rd Marines. (AP Wirephoto by radio from Saigon.)

VIETNAM...

(Continued from page 1)

dogmatically ignore is the fact that South Vietnam held the freest elections in its history last September and that the Constituent Assembly then chosen has worked out a Constitution that marks progress over the Diem regime of the past. The rival candidates for president and vice-president under that constitution bear witness of the passion of the South Vietnamese for what they call democracy"

Ray A. Moore is a professor of East Asian History at Amherst College. He received his education in Japan and at the Universities of Chicago and Michigan.

Dr. Moore was asked for an opinion on how the people of Asia will react to an American war of Attrition in Vietnam. Moore replied:

"Although I approach the question of Asian reaction with caution, knowing full well that there is not one Asian reaction but many Asian reactions to such events as the war in Vietnam, it seems to me that some very general statements can be made with a good deal of confidence.

First of all, the Asian fears the American war in Vietnam because it perpetuates in its most extreme form the two kinds of Western influence that most Asians dislike instinctively — Western imperialism and white colonialism. Most Asians indentify with the Vietnamese, not the Americans, in this conflict, for we are frequently seen as simply the latest form of Western imperialism in Asia.

Asian intellectuals, often deeply influenced by Marx and Lenin, do not for a moment accept our claim that we are defending democracy or freedom, or repealing aggression. They do not forget that we first became involved in Vietnam when we supported French colonialism there.

A second point that I would make is that Asians fear that the present conflict is merely the opening round of an American effort to strike at China. I was told repeatedly in several Asian countries last summer that the U.S. and China will be fighting soon.

Many Asian intellectuals often point to the ring of military bases that we have around China, stretching from Japan to Korea, Okinawa, Taiwan, the Philippines, Vietnam and on to Thailand; and to our nuclear bombs on Okinawa and our Polaris submarines in the western Pacific as evidence of American intentions. Many scoff at the idea of this power as "defensive," and recall the continual American provocations (e. g., flights over China) as proof of our hostility.

Nor do they forget that we refuse still to recognize the Chinese People's Republic, that we prevent China's admission to the U.N. and that we enforce an embargo on trade with China. Vietnam seems to many Asians as an American plan to force China into action which we could use to justify a general attack on the mainland.

A third point that I would make is that many Asians see Vietnam as the major stumbling block to the evolution of a truly independent and neutral regional group of nations in SEA. Even the Japanese, who have shown increasing interest in recent years in economic development and political neutralization in SEA, and have taken some important steps to promote this policy, often admit that American policy is one of the main obstacles to such developments.

This may seem paradoxical in light of the oft-repeated statement from Washington that we support self-determination, economic development and so on in SEA. Yet the point is that, as one Japanese scholar told me, the American image of regional cooperation and development is the creation of an anti-communist political grouping along the rim of the continent.

The U.S. government wants regional development to serve its policy of containment in Asia. A truly independent position for SEA, however, requires not only the exclusion of Chinese power from the area, but the rejection of American power as well."

When asked if we are setting a precedent in Vietnam for intervention in other Asian countries, Dr. Moore replied:

"The precedent for our intervention in other countries was set long before Vietnam. One need only review our relations with Latin America since the 19th century to see that intervention, whatever the justification, is deeply ingrained in our history. As we have defined our interests in global terms since 1945, intervention has also become global. Greece in 1947, Korea in 1950, Vietnam from 1950, Indonesia, Iran, Lebanon, Cuba, the Dominican Republic and so on. We have intervened in many other ways in many other countries in the past two decades.

Vietnam has set a far more dangerous precedent, however, than intervention. In Vietnam our government has shown itself capable of using massive military power to turn back the clock, to force many Vietnamese to stop supporting an unpopular government of our choosing, a government of men who have already proved themselves traitors by fighting for their colonial masters, the French, against national inindependence for Vietnam.

We have decided for the Vietnamese people that they are better off dead than Red. This is a far more dangerous precedent than intervention. And, I might add, in the process we have betrayed many of our own ideals."

It is quite obvious that this survey of the Academians produced no earth shaking solutions to the Vietnam situation. From reading, it is also quite obvious that of the four men who were willing to make statements, there is an even division of opinion.

From this, it is safe to assume that there are no pat answers to this difficult problem.

These professors, all competent to speak on the Asian problem, have done so in a cool, clear manner.

In order to achieve a satisfactory solution in Vietnam, it will be necessary for all Americans to see the problems in the same unclouded light.

Student Senate Rescinds Support of Spring Day

by PAT PETOW
Senate News Editor

After a long Constitutional Convention, the Student Senate confirmed its financial policy decision of the week before; rescinded its support of Spring Day; and gave initial approval to its own operating budget, including the SWAP Conference; and that of the Ski Club.

In a brief announcement Sen. Lew Smith, chairman of the Services Committee, reported that because of the extent of "freeloaders" the dining commons administration may "modify" the unlimited seconds policy.

The adoption of a seconds policy had been advocated by Smith's Food Services Committee since the fall and went into effect the beginning of February.

The Senate had decided not to support "special interest" or academic or pre-professional organizations with student activities tax funds. Thus each student will pay $4 more next fall in Student Activities and Fine Arts Taxes unless changes are made next Wednesday night.

The Distinguished Visitors Program Tax remained the same at $3 a year.

A preliminary Ski Club budget with a student tax allotment of $656 reeclved approval. An expected 200 members will be charged $2 dues, which together with a $40 balance forward, gives the group $1,096.

In the $26,258 Student Senate operating will pay for Centrex phones in the public areas of residence halls and Greek houses, which do not have room phones.

Another large allocation, $10,000 wil go to an 802 account to be disbursed upon recommendation of the Finance Committee in the case of an emergency or to an organization which was not budgeted but is deserving.

In a test case, Sen. Lew Gurwitz moved to add $200 to the Senate budget for the student government members to attend SWAP — the motion passed 28-10-4.

The weekend conference of student delegates and administration is held in the fall at facilities off-campus. Answering objections raised, Past President John Greenquist admitted, "Yes it will always be social, and it will always be criticized for that."

But, he stressed the utility of the relaxed atmosphere from his experience this fall. The senior said he learned more about the fraternal system that weekend that he had known in three years.

Speaking against the appropriation, Sen. Dick Wimberly '67-at-large told the Senate that the reason SWAP was not held on campus was that the campus was "dry."

Senates Compete

Faculty vs. Students

On Saturday, May 6 at the Women's physical education softball field two fantastic teams will compete — the illustrious student senate and the, well, the faculty senate. They think that they can defeat the students without even trying but we all know better, don't we?

The magnanimous coach of the Student Senate will be the illustrious Harvey Stone and his team is anxiously awaiting the big day. Says Coach Stone: "Not only will we beat them, but we'll send them running." He feels the team is now, more than ever, in the best frame of mind for the contest and that there is absolutely no question of a doubt that they will steal the show.

The Student Senate would like to see a lot of their supporters there to cheer them on. There will be a Cheerleading squad, but we all know that the more voices, the better. The time is 1:00 P.M. at WOPE on Saturday, so don't forget. Many grins . . .

When You See
News In the Making
Dial the
"COLLEGIAN HOTLINE"
545-2550

BULLETIN No. 24

UMASS FACULTY
STAFF & STUDENTS
MAY PURCHASE
TIRES
At Wholesale Prices
NEW Perfect Quality GOODYEAR

SPRING 1967

OVER 5,000 TIRES IN STOCK INCLUDING FOREIGN AND COMPACT SIZES

UMASS IDENTIFICATION REQUIRED

BATTERIES
FREE INSTALLATION
6 VOLT $6.83 EXCH.
For Most Cars
12 VOLT $9.48 EXCH.
FULL Guarantee provides for battery replacement FREE within 90 days

NYLON CORD TUBELESS

		F.E.T.
650/700x13	$12.84	$1.55
775/750x14	$13.86	2.21
825/800x14	$15.52	2.38
855/850x14	$17.96	2.56
775/670x15	$13.86	2.23
815/710x15	$15.52	2.33
845/760x15	$17.96	2.53
900/915/820x15	$21.04	2.86

No Trade-In Required

NATION-WIDE GUARANTEE
NO LIMIT ON MILES • NO LIMIT ON MONTHS
(Adjust Prorated on Original Tread Depth Wear Based on Your Actual Cost Incl Fed Exc Tax)

AT SAME PRICES WE SELL OUR DEALERS

Terms Available
FREE TIRE MOUNTING

Northampton Warehouse For DELTA
PREMIUM NYLON TIRES
THE 50,000 MILE TIRE

STATE INSPECTION PERIOD APRIL 1st TO MAY 15th

BAK TIRE CO.
"Northampton Warehouse Distributors"
55 DAMON ROAD • NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
584-4769

HOURS — 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M.
Saturday 8:00 A.M. to 2:00 P.M.

OVER A HALF CENTURY OF SERVICE

NEW WHEELS
Genuine Firestone Retreads

AMPLE PARKING

AMHERST Cinema
NOW SHOWING
2nd Record Week
Evenings 8:00
Matinees Sat.-Sun. at 2:00
At Reduced Prices

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PRESENTS
A CARLO PONTI PRODUCTION
DAVID LEAN'S FILM
OF BORIS PASTERNAK'S
DOCTOR ZHIVAGO
IN PANAVISION® AND METROCOLOR

-ARROW-®
King Cotton Perma-Iron
The no-iron shirt that doesn't mean maybe!
A handsome collection of sport shirts in comfortable 100% cotton. Permanently ironed by ARROW . . . and the durable press finish lasts the life of the shirt. Colors and patterns galore. Trimway collar or popular button-downs. "Sanforized," of course.

Short sleeves $5.00

THOMPSON'S
CLOTHING STORE

New RSO Group Represents Vast Majority

by NEIL GIROUX
Staff Reporter

UMass Freshman, Roger Cruff, a Navy veteran from Marblehead, Mass. has collected 100 signatures to form R.S.O. "Citizens for Conscientious Thought".

In a statement issued by Cruff, he said, "The over-vocal minorities on both the left and right have received vast amounts of public attention. The vast majority of the American people would like to see a well thought out understanding of the Vietnam War.

"What we hope to provide with the C.C.T. is a forum where people can voice their positions without the emotion usually associated with the Vietnam War and without receiving the label of a radical."

He continued, "Initially we wanted to discuss the war situation but ultimately we would like to branch out to all contemporary problems and discuss them in the same logical manner."

Cruff remarked that he has received much favorable reaction from the people he contacted. Regarding his own position on Vietnam, he said, "the war is hell and it would be very good if we could get out tomorrow, but this seems impossible."

"I welcome all those who are interested in expressing their views in calm logical manner to join us."

University Photo Service

The second annual Dean's Book Awards for scholastic excellence at the University of Massachusetts were presented recently by Dean I. Moyer Hunsberger of the College of Arts and Sciences to three sophomores. Given this year were copies of Palgrave's "The Golden Treasury," bound in fine leather. Shown at the presentation, left to right: Michael R. McGrath of Concord, Brenda Finn of West Medford, Dean Hunsberger, and David C. Palmer of Pittsfield.

FROSH VOTE . . .

(Continued from page 2)

Stoltz explained the team's efforts to become a recognized sport. "We cannot even get in to see Mr. McGuirk. We haven't been able to schedule an appointment to talk with him about recognition." Stoltz suggested that the reason the twenty-seven man club remains but a club is the university's hesitancy to pick up the tab. "University recognition means assumption of budget responsibility," said the rower. The club's request to the senate next year amounts to $4500.

Balboni called the issue to a vote, "The administration is forcing us to pay for the crew team. We do not want to do this. We feel we should not have to do this, but the administration is forcing us to do this." The funding decision was unanimous. Glen Mangurian frosh vice president rephrasing the appropriation from a specific $250 to "the difference not made up by upperclass appropriations of costs to the crew team for participating in the Philadelphia Regatta."

Following this action, President Balboni formally assigned some extra-constitutional duties to the class officers. Glenn Mangurian will be class of '70 delegate at the Four College Coordinating Council and, as vice president, will be an ex officio voting member of all executive council committees. Treasurer Steve Weinsman will also be a delegate to the Four College group. Rebecca Stedman, secretary, will mimeograph copies of minutes for each dorm and/or exec council member after each meeting. The senator-at-large, Bob Keating, will report important senate business at each exec council meeting.

Alpha Zeta Initiates New Members at Banquet

Honored recently by a banquet at Alexander's were the newly initiated members of Alpha Zeta. Immediately following this banquet, a short film and an enjoyable and educational talk was presented by Mr. Pierpont from the Land Bank who discussed sources of credit.

As pledges many of these new members carried out some of the preliminary work involved with the Science In Agriculture Fair to be held next October. Alpha Zeta, being an honorary fraternity in the four year College of Agriculture, functions as an honor, social, and service fraternity. In order to be considered for membership into Alpha Zeta, a person must exhibit characteristics of scholarship and leadership.

The following persons were initiated into Alpha Beta: Kenneth Sterling, James Bauder, William Robbins, Daniel Arguimbau, Kevin Janda, John Teubner, Martin Starr, Ronald Melnick, Wayne Elliot, John Daly, Richard Coons, and Mark Foster.

SELECTIONS TO BE MADE

Men's Judiciary will select one man from the freshman class to serve on next year's board. Selections will be at 1:00 on Saturday, May 6 in the Council Chambers. Applications are in the R.S.O. Office.

STUDENTS MAY . . .

(Continued from page 1)

and Vegetable Show'". Between six and twelve o'clock Saturday night, the plaza between Kennedy and Coolidge Towers will echo to the sounds of the ever-popular 'Bold', combining their talents with the psychedelic music of "The Flower and Vegetable Show". Decorations will be courtesy of UMass' popular artist Charles Close, who will exercise his freedom of expression in a special "Happening" at intermission.

Rounding out the weekend on Sunday, an art show will be presented in the Dining Common.

ADVERTISERS

During the week of May 8-12 the COLLEGIAN will publish daily.

Please note the following deadline schedule for advertising and plan accordingly:

11 a.m.—Monday for Wed. & Thurs.

11 a.m.—Wednesday for Fri.

No ads will be accepted after these deadlines.

The Melting Pot Coffee House

- Folk Rock Group
- Film (Experimental)
- Bring Guitars
- 7:00-11:00 Sat., May 6

FREE

1st Cong. Church, Main St. Enter from back parking lot

SPECIAL SUMMER COURSES at BERKLEE school of music

- SPECIAL CLASSES IN: modern harmony - arranging improvisation - stage band combo - jazz workshop
- PRIVATE INSTRUMENTAL INSTRUCTION
- REGULAR FACULTY IN RESIDENCE INCLUDES: John LaPorta, Herb Pomeroy, Roy Santisi, Al Dawson, Joe Viola, Phil Wilson
- ENTIRE SCHOOL IS AIR-CONDITIONED AND HUMIDITY-CONTROLLED

For complete information write now to:

Director of Summer Studies
BERKLEE SCHOOL OF MUSIC
1140 Boylston Street
Boston, Massachusetts 02215

ATTENTION CLASS OF 1968

Applications are now being accepted for next year's Executive Council. We need representatives from all parts of the campus. Deadline is 5:00 p.m., May 10. Application sheets are available in R.S.O. office.

Support Your Class in the Coming Year

SENIORS

The General Services Administration is recruiting for Architects and Engineers in New York City and Philadelphia in all aspects of design, construction and management of Federal buildings.

ARCHITECTS and ENGINEERS

CONSTRUCTION • ELECTRICAL • MECHANICAL

$6,387 $7,729

Positions start at GS-5 ($6387 per annum) or GS-7 ($7729 per annum) with provision for accelerated promotions to GS-11 ($10,481 per annum)

$10,481

Additional details and facts about General Services Administration may be obtained at your Placement Office. Send resume to Personnel Officer, General Services Administration, 30 Church St., New York, N.Y. 10007 or call Area Code 212-264-8295 to arrange for personal interview.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

R. S. V. P.

The administration has finally taken positive steps to alleviate the unnecessary confusion presented in the past by Counseling Day.

The new process of mailing pre-registration cards to the students before Counseling Day does away, in most cases, with useless appointments with often uninformed faculty advisors.

If a student still feels a need to see his advisor, he will find him to be more accessible in view of the faculty member's lightened responsibilities.

The new system is a step forward in granting the student body the responsibility it is forever seeking. The system will fail unless it is given the active support it deserves. We therefore urge you to complete your pre-registration cards and return them to South College on or before May eighth.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

☆ ☆

Fraternities and Intellectual Life

(Editor's Note: The following is the text of a recommendation to the Academic Advisory Council by Professor Philip L. Gamble, head of the UMass Economics Departtment. Professor Gamble, who has been at the University for 32 years and an administrator for 22 years, started the University's Business School, Government Department and Bureau of Government Research. A fraternity man himself, he sees nothing wrong with fraternities but rather with the way fraternities are running at UMass. He emphasized that he has thought about the recommendation for a long time and that it is presented only in general terms, although many specifics could be provided. The Acudemic Council voted to bring the matter before the Arts and Sciences faculty for discussion. The opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the COLLEGIAN editors or staff.)

by PROFESSOR PHILIP L. GAMBLE

A strong case can be made against the continuance of men's fraternities at the University on the basis of their performance over the last few years. They have operated in an anti-intellectual manner; they have operated in a way to injure the morals of students and teenagers, and they have operated to cause friction between town and gown. It is true that part of the reason for the failure for these organizations to contribute to the major goals of a center of learning has been a failure of administration responsibility, leadership, and control but it may be true that this failure is inherent in the nature of the political relations of a state university.

The failure of the fraternity as an intellectual source is shown most strikingly by the fact that last year 10% of fraternity men flunked out—using their biased count and not allowing for "the hangers-on" or those who were not officially members. In addition, honor students in many fraternities are derided, and many upper classmen are forced to leave the fraternity to protect their "cums" in order to graduate or get into Grad school. There seems to be no hold-over from the time when fraternities were literary societies interested in promoting intellectual pursuits, nor does there seem to be any leadership present at this University designed to promote this endeavor.

The contribution to juvenile delinquency by fraternities has been overwhelming. More than one fraternity has illegally sold alcohol by the drink to teenagers without regard to their membership in the fraternity or even in the University. High school students have been able to buy liquor by the drink in fraternities. Many fraternity members have been charged with assault on both junior and senior citizens, enticement to drink of 10-year-olds or younger children (their idea of a joke) let alone places for overnight stays by female members of the community-at-large.

There is no question but that fraternities within the town have been a source of town and gown friction caused by continuous thefts, peeping Tomism, rowdyism, riots, threats, and assauits.

The administration has constantly been torn between maintaining some kind of leadership control and good public relations. The influence of politically minded fraternity supporters and the desire to conceal dirorder has taken precedent over the real need for some kind of control to encourage the intellectual aims of the University. It seems unlikely that the present administration will ever successfully attempt to adopt a strong moral or intellectual stand for the appropriate control of fraternity activities.

Presence at the Fall SWAP Conference indicated that the fraternity student's primary interest was only in having a safe place to drink and "make-out" and not on intellectual goals. The establishment of higher "cums" for admission and second semester rushing merely cover up the inherent weaknesses of the system.

Finally, a case can be made against fra- Jewish fraternities are still largely segre- attitudes. Jewish fraternities and non- ternities for their obviously segregated gated bodies and will remain so. The most obvious segregation is on a basis of wealth. Should the University encourage organizations whose dues for parties are more than the cost of room rent and almost double our tuition? If we justify low tuition at taxpayers' expense, can we afford to support high cost and luxurious partying?

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69
News Editors ..... Ron LaBrecque '70, Richard Kline '70
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Bolliver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed five times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; three or four times weekly the week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934. Subscription price: $6.00 per year; $3.50 per semester.

Campus Comment

Fire Victims Fund Started

To the Editor:

The open-hearted American might be in the Peace Corps, but he is hardly present on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. The fund to help the possessionless graduate students who lost everything to a fire Tuesday from books and term papers to clothes and toothbrush, entirely UNINSURED in the case of the two foreign students, Koon Woo Nam of Korea and Hamid Qureshi of Pakistan.

This fund has stagnated at an amount so low that I refuse to print the figure. Here is the only publicity, the only call. You who read The Collegian are the only ones who CAN help. WILL YOU? ANYTHING you care to contribute will be appreciated by these unlucky fellow students.

Please bring anything you can to the secretary of the Collegian office in the student union some time soon. Get involved, for once.

Wayne Soini
Staff reporter,
Collegian

Collegian Review Said Inadequate

Dear Editor,

We would like to point out to the Universlty public, the inadequate review and coverage which the University Concert Dance Group received in the May 1st issue of the Collegian.

The public should understand that the reviewer not only is not knowledgable about modern dance, but also contemporary music, as well as the latest "thing" in the theatre—happenings.

The reviewer saw part of the dress rehearal (most dress rehearsals are a bit disjointed[1]—what is the superstition of the theatre concerning them?). There is not "overture" to a dance concert—that was the musicians who played for the second part of the concert, warming up with Indiana. The music on tape was not played at the wrong speed—it was only the contemporary sounds of Varese (music written in 1924-1936) and Webern. It was not "arthymic" [sic] as stated by our reviewer, but possessed mixed rhythms which require deeper sensitivity of those who listen to it.

If each of the dances that followed was more frightening, the reviewer must be frozen in his seat at viewing a film such as Bergman's Persona—or does he avoid the faces of reality which come to us via the screen? An effort was made to have a reporter of the Collegian come to a rehearsal and view and discuss and possibly understand the choreography—it was in vain.

The purpose of education is to educate and we are trying to do just that—those who came and saw, we feel, are richer today for that experience. We only ask that in the future when in the dark—come ask.

The University Concert Dance Group

Elizabeth W. Rogers, Maryalice Astaldi, Anne C. Umana, Carolyn B. Hoague, Denise E. Carroll, Lois Shlenburg, Reeva Goodman, Carol Dahymple, Barbara Nabhan, Nancy Greenman, Donna Massey, Janet Craft, Christine Mitchell, Marilyn Gibson, Gunnie Zofrea, Betty Costa

Caliber of DVP Speakers Doubted

To the Editor:

One wonders about the criteria used to choose speakers under the Distinguished Visitors Program particularly after hearing former General Edwin Walker rave incoherently for over an hour on Monday evening in the Student Union Ballroom.

That Mr. Walker should be permitted to speak on the campus goes without saying; a university should provide a forum for all kinds of opinions from the wise to the foolish. But that he should be handsomely paid out of the funds of the Distinguished Visitors Program is a travesty and a sorry reflection upon the judgment of those responsible for his speaking under its auspices..

Howard H. Quint, Head
Department of History

Representative Ianello's Society

To the Editor:

Perhaps Representative Ianello would have our bearded, long haired types give up their criticism of the established order, shave the beards, cut the hair, join a fraternity, and dump buckets of water over defenseless girls on bicycles. At least the fratemen haven't the temerity to even think that perhaps all is not well with Representative Ianello's washed, shaved, well dressed, and unthinking society.

Charles A. Seavey '67

A Correctio From Grays

To the Editor:

The Orchard Hill H
the Collegian recently
Grayson Dorm's theft
ter's three helium-fille
a deed for which we hu credit. However, journ rors, intentional or should never go un
The balloons were t full intent for their the proper time. Their due to the carelessnes men on our roof, and malicious intent.

The Hobbit also had city to label the deed "amaturish" despite th no one knows how, w whom the deed was wonder what they w sider a professional jo

Let the men of Webs our apologies for the three valuable helium-
Andrea - launched,
Week Weather balloon assured that in the fu losses will be avoided less "amateurish" met

Paul
Jack
Joe

Ringing in Spring

To the Editor:

I must sincerely co
the Collegian staff for ly inserting the now
sial "secret code" in la paper.

I am sorry that man might have interpreted cidence as a clue to t Spring Day since the Spring Day on May 2 some doubt in the min dents that Spring Day cur at all.

But fear not, m
Spring Day was never for May 2 and the rea decided only on Mond
Spring Day IS coming co-operation is needed
members of the com placing ourselves at t gative hands of the A tion in order that you
one day off from s
hope that you can offe thing in return for ou
Very simply we ask th

1. You act responsib iess of any sym may incurr from or drink.
2. Avoid personal

Sam Spark Speaks Out

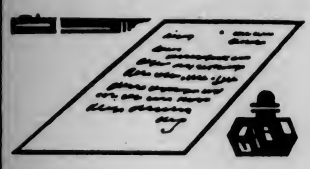
Reviewing the Situation

The dilemma of just what courses to take next semester is currently plagueing the minds of many students. To help solve this problem, it is rumored that a new department, in keeping with the academic ideals of today's students, is being instituted here at the University.

The department is called "Trot" and here are some of the courses being offered in its next semester.

Trot—101 — "Introduction to the Trot"—Examines the evalution of the trot from a meager 5 page review booklet to the multi-colored 150 page extravaganza of today. For students with no previous trot experience.

Trot 103—"Practical Application of the Trot"—Introductory course for trot majors only. The course teaches the student to skim trots and write poignant essays on the original book.



Trot 253 — "History of the Modern American Trot" — A course tracing the trot from 1965-67, showing its development from a simple review book to the complex analysis it is today.

Trot 325—"Personalties in the Development of the Review Book"—A study of the lives of the great Trotmen, from the immortal Stanley Cooperman and Charles Leavitt to the new existential Maria Gilliya of the romantic Bard notes.

Trot 341—"Creative Trotwriting" — Instruction in composition of the trot ultimate goal of havin dents compose his own dents receiving a B may continue with Tro

Trot 345—"Creative ing"—The courrse is writing a 341 page tro in Wonderful, complete intended meanings an psychological comment majors may elect this an honors project.

Trot 998—"Trot Se Only graduate student 3.7 or better in trot ar The course consists of informal hour discussio philosophical impact o view book upon preser ciety.

property damage. Last Spring Day a student was cut badly when she was thrown into the pond on a rock, (20 stitches)

3. When you receive your "invitations", don't litter the campus, and pick up any that others may have dropped around you. (The meaning of this request will become evident on Spring Day.

This is all we request. Spring Day is not a day to be wary of if you keep control; it is your final decision, not ours. We hope you will respond as we feel you will.

We are giving you the opportunity to leave school for a day; we hope you will give US the oportunity to remain in school longer than that.

I have but one thing left to say:

'IN THE NAME OF MICK'S GIRLFRIEND, RUBY, I RE-AFFIRM THAT CHARLES JOHNSON IS ALIVE AND WELL!!!

Paul S. Lereaux

Mohammed Ali

Ali versus Army

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

Last month the question was, "Will he choose army khaki or prison denim?" Apparently, Muhammed Ali has chosen the iron bars. In refusing to answer Uncle Sam's call he has made himself the target of every so-called patriot in the land. In doing what he believed to be right he has cost himself millions of dollars and thousands of fans. But why? What has he done?

In our country every youngster is taught that he has the freedom to say and believe what he wants. He is told that the Constitution guarantees him that right. Yet when Muhammed Ali stated his political views and religious principles the country treated him with scorn.

The President and his advisors have failed to give a clear, definite statement on why we are in Vietnam. These men are the most well-versed people on political and militaristic reasoning in the world.

How is Muhammed Ali, a boy who barely graduated from a Negro high school in Louisville, a man who originally failed the Army mental test, supposed to know why we're fighting there, if these men can't give a straight answer?

In our Judaic-Christian society we always stress brotherhood, but we scorn Muhammed Ali for devoutly believing his religion. Instead of having Jehovah or Jesus as his Lord, he has Allah. He leads a model life, abstaining from wine, women and song. He lost his wife because she wouldn't adhere to his faiths. He is the best evangelist the Black Muslims have ever had, but our courts wouldn't give him the benefit of ministerial deferment.

Fighting isn't a 24-hour a day production. It takes a few hours of daily training. If Ali wanted to preach Christianity during his non-fighting hours, it would be interesting to see if he would have received a ministerial deferment. Billy Sunday was a successful evangelist and major league baseball star a generation ago. Why can't Muhammed Ali fight and preach?

Seven years ago no Olympic Champion stood prouder during his national anthem than Cassius Clay. He had won the light-heavyweight title. He was and acted like a member of the "Now Generation", a generation which wasn't content to sit back and watch; it had to participate, voice its opinion. be an active part. It has shown more civil disobedience than any other age. Perhaps it could be said that Muhammed Ali has been the scapegoat.

If the army had sent Muhammed Ali to Southeast Asia, it would be the biggest surprise since Daniel walked out of the lion's den. The army would have put him in some capacity where he would have been able to continue as champ. He was far more valuable to the United States financially as a boxer, than he is toting a rifle in some rice patty. He would be Uncle Sam's perfect walking advertisement, but he won't go.

Another champion was called a draft dodger. People claimed that he was shirking his obligation, letting others less fortunate than he do the fighting. But time is the great judge of all men; it has judged Jack Dempsey one of the greatest champions

Muhammed Ali may well spend time in prison. He will go because he has convictions of his religion. He will be put there because society must be protected from his kind. After all, society can't let people roam the streets simply because they're opposed to a confusing war, embrace a foreign religion, and believe in the convictions of their religion. How safe would we be?

"Ain't makin' no predictions."

Collegian to Publish Daily

(Editor's note: The following editorial appeared in the Greenfield Recorder on May 3.)

The Greenfield Recorder, one of the oldest daily newspapers in the United States, is happy to note the impending birth of the daily Massachusetts COLLEGIAN at nearby Amherst.

This change to daily publication reflects the growth of the University of Massachusetts and its increasing importance in the lives of Bay State youth. It also is an indication of the value of a campus newspaper that has been growing in size, scope and frequency of issuance.

Some of The Recorder's readers would be regularly shaken and shocked by the COLLEGIAN. It is sometimes impudent and often brash. No sacred cow is safe from its barbs and not even UMass President John Lederle is above criticism by the student editors.

That is how the COLLEGIAN should be. It is published by, of and for the student body at the University's Amherst branch. Since both its staff and readers are totally involved in the institution and student activities, anything that bears upon them is fair game. And when the UMass world is not right, youth chooses its most effective weapons to carry into the fray.

There are issues when our student friends at the Collegian office are almost unbearably stuffy and righteous. But their sense of humor always gets the upper hand again and the next edition is sure to have something that will delight—or enrage—the more elderly society of faculty and parents.

Publishing a newspaper daily is a demanding task. Now that the student body is larger than many a city, however, there almost certainly is enough talent available and eager to accept the challenge. Thus we await the new campus daily with keen anticipation and the realization that the more sedate public press must sharpen its own procedures to keep pace with our new neighbors.

Government ownership, government control, or government action to break up the greater agencies of mass communication might cure the ills of freedom of the press, but only at the risk of killing the freedom in the process.

—A Free and Responsible Press

FACTORY OUTLET
25 Market Street, Northampton
Sweaters for the Entire Family

Pullovers $6 to $11	values to $18
Ladies Cardigans $4.95	values to $7.95
Ladies Pullovers $3.95	values to $6.95
Cashmeres $11.95-$17.50	values to $30

MON. THRU SAT. — 10 AM.-5 P.M.
THURS. EVENING TIL 9:00 P.M.
Market St. is across from Jack August

Cricket and Ladybug

ANNOUNCE AN ENGAGEMENT

You are cordially invited to the wedding of the prettiest clothes in town.

Cricket Shop
181 No. Pleasant
Open Thursday Until 9 P.M.

Aerospace Program Soars Into Orbit

The University's department of mechanical engineering has taken off into an orbit of new programs. Under the guidance of Dr. John R. Dixon, head of the department since Fall, 1966, several outdated undergraduate requirements have been replaced by better courses, a new Doctoral Program has been endorsed, and modern equipment has been instituted in the department. Of primary importance is the addition of a proposed Undergraduate Aerospace program to be initiated next semester.

The new Doctoral program is tailored to the individual needs of students. No minimum credit hours are specified. Students take a comprehensive Preliminary examination within three semesters of the Bachelor's degree. A foreign language and a tool of research, usually computers or statistics, are required. A limited number of Fellowships, Teaching Assistantships, and Research Assistantships are available.

Six outstanding new faculty members will aid in the new Aerospace Program. Among the more distinguished are the following: Jon G. McGowan, Asst. Prof. of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering, who specializes in Thermodynamics and Energy Conversion, has been closely associated with DuPont. Geoffrey Boothroyd, Prof. of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering, comes from the University of London and specializes in Materials Processing. S.N.B. Murthy, Professor of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering, an Indian, specializes in Gas Dynamics and Propulsion.

"Aeronautical Engineering programs have existed at several institutions for many years," department head Dixan commented. "With the onset of the space age and the systems engineering of missiles and rockets, the specialized education of the aeronautical engineer was no longer sufficient. This led to the aerospace engineer.

"With the heavy demand for engineering graduates in the aerospace industry, both in Massachusetts and throughout the United States, he concluded, it is appropriate for the University of Massachusetts to provide educational opportunities in the field of aerospace.

The Academic Epidemic

Astronomy Dept. Appoints Three New Stars for '67

The Astronomy Program at the University of Massachusetts and the Four College Astronomy Department are pleased to anonunce three new appointments for the fall of 1967.

Dr. John D. Strong, currently Director of the Laboratory of Astrophysics and Physical Meteorology at the Johns Hopkins University, has been appointed Professor of Physics and Astronomy at the University of Massachusetts. Dr. Strong is a pioneer in the field of astronomy from high altitude balloons.

His investigations of the solar system in the infrared region of the spectrum have resulted in a number of outstanding discoveries concerning the planets and the sun, including the identification of water vapor in the atmosphere of the planet Venus and the probable identification of ice crystals in the clouds of Venus. Dr. Strong will be moving his balloon astronomy equipment to Amherst and is making plans to continue these exciting studies, which are supported by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

A second addition to the astronomy staff at the University is Dr. William Plummer, currently a Captain in the United States Army. Dr. Plummer did his graduate work at Johns Hopkins University and was intimately involved in the balloon astronomy investigations of the atmosphere and clouds of Venus. He will continue to play an active role in the balloon astronomy research at the University of Massachusetts.

Dr. Plummer is an expert in optical physics, a field in which specialists are in extremely short supply. He has also established a reputation as a speleologist; this will presumably remain an extra-curricular activity!

The third appointment to the Four College Astronomy Department is at Amherst College. Dr. Bruce Cogan from the University of Michigan has accepted this position. Dr. Cogan is a theoretical astrophysicist interested in problems of variable stars.

Many stars are known to vary in their brightness and other characteristics because they are pulsating (alternatively expanding and contracting). Dr. Cogan will use the CDC 3600 computer at the University of Massachusetts to investigate the reasons for such pulsations.

The flying of telescopes in balloons is an important innovation in astronomy, because it allows observations to be made above the obscuring effects of the earth's atmosphere. The advantage of being above the atmosphere is shared with balloons by satellites and space probes, but balloons are very much less expensive.

The balloon astronomy equipment which will be moved from Johns Hopkins to Amherst includes the 16" telescope which is used on balloon flights. The telescope, associated equipment, and the protective gondola together weigh almost a ton. This large size necessitates that the balloons be launched from special facilities such as those of the National Center for Atmospheric Research at Palestine, Texas.

Another piece of equipment being brought to the University of Massachusetts by Dr. Strong is a 100' long, 3" diameter steel tube which functions as an absorption cell for investigating the absorption of light by gases under conditions of very low pressure.

Are you the ONE student we are looking for?

We are selecting one young lady in each of 100 colleges throughout the country to be our mail-order campus representative for the next school year. Your spare-time assignment will be to present our broad selection of high-fashion fabrics to students who like to sew and are attracted to quality fabrics designed and priced exclusively for the college girl, many of them imported from leading French, Italian, Swiss and British fabric houses. You will be furnished with a complete descriptive portfolio of colorful swatches that will actually do your selling for you. Your commissions will be liberal and we think you will be surprised at the amount of money you can earn this way. If you think you can qualify for this unique opportunity write us a letter today that will convince us that you are the one student we are looking for.

CAMPUS ORIGINALS
Box 967 Waterbury, Conn.

First Choice Of The Engageables

REGISTERED Keepsake® DIAMOND RINGS

They like the smart styling and the guaranteed perfect center diamond . . . a brilliant gem of fine color and modern cut. The name, Keepsake, in your ring assures lifetime satisfaction. Select yours at your Keepsake Jeweler's store. He's in the yellow pages under "Jewelers."

PRICES FROM $100. TO $5000. RINGS ENLARGED TO SHOW BEAUTY OF DETAIL ® TRADE-MARK REG. A. H. POND COMPANY, INC., ESTABLISHED 1892.

HOW TO PLAN YOUR ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING

Please send new 20-page booklet, "How To Plan Your Engagement and Wedding" and new 12-page full color folder, both for only 25c. Also, send special offer of beautiful 44-page Bride's Book.

Name_____
Address_____
City_____
State_____ Zip_____

KEEPSAKE DIAMOND RINGS, BOX 90, SYRACUSE, N. Y. 13202

on MOTHER'S DAY Remember MOM with a gift from WINN Jewelers

DEERFIELD DRIVE-IN THEATRE
Route 5 & 10
South Deerfield, Massachusetts
Tel. 665-8746

FRI. - SAT. - SUN.

"IRRESISTIBLE!"—LIFE

COLUMBIA PICTURES Presents GEORGY GIRL
SUGGESTED FOR MATURE AUDIENCES

also Mike Connors
in
KISS THE GIRLS & MAKE THEM DIE
Color
Showtime 8:30
Sun: Georgy Girl 8:30

Honor Society Inducts Group of Freshmen Women

Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman women's honor society, inducted 32 new members, the largest group in the chapter's history on Sunday, April 30. The inductees met the high standards a 3.5 cume of the society which seeks to promote and recognize scholarship among women in the freshman year.

President Nancy Haynes and advisors Dean Helene Curtis and Mrs. Airiam Chrismas conducted the induction as parents and faculty guests looked on. A reception in honor of the inductees followed the ceremony.

The new members are:

Gail Alt, Joyce Aanian, Dale Cashman, Kathleen Donovan, Lila Geer, Gail Geiver, Linda Gibbs, Jayne Gillespie, Lillian Hersen, Naomi Herstein, Susan Hewitt, Marguerite Horn, Janet Howes, Elizabeth Johnson, Ellen Kaplan, Mary Kapralos, Irene Karakla, June Lovenbury, Nancy Martin, Ellen Moran, Marcia Niemiec, Eglute Paulinkonis, Rebecca Portnoi, Jean Sandstrom, Erica Schuster, Gail Schwartzkroin, Kathleen Scott, Brenda Sparkman, Susan Symanski, Linda Vieire, Carol Waldman.

Another ceremony will be held in the fall for those sophomore women whose overall cume in their first year was 3.5.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Monday, May 15, is the deadline for persons applying to Peace Corps programs that begin training this summer.

Applicants should send completed Questionnaires — obtainable from the Peace Corps Liaison on campus or at most Post Offices—to Office of Selection, Peace Corps, Washington, D.C. 20525.

Shown presenting the first place trophy to the Army R.O.T.C. department are: Front L. to R. Judith Hagopian, Col. Joseph Bohnak, Frances Hart, James Lentowski. Back L. to R. David Knowlton, Barara Brunetti, Janice Johnson, Captain Thomas Wilson.

Precisionettes Place 1st In Coed Competition

The University of Massachusetts Precisionettes, the girls' precision drill team sponsored by the Army ROTC Department, returned victorious from a drill meet in Providence this past weekend.

The drill meet, sponsored by the Pershing Rifles Society, featured teams from all over the New England area.

The Precisionettes, representing the University, took first place in the coed competition with a score of 609 points out of a possible 800 points. Performance was graded on precision of movements, intricacy and originality of the drill routines, dress and alignment, and overall appearance.

The team was composed of twenty girls and was commanded by Rosemary Griffin, a senior majoring in mathematics.

In addition to the competition in Providence, the Precisionettes have represented the University at numerous home and away football games, at the World's Fair in New York, the Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, D.C., the St. Patrick's Day parade in Holyoke, and many other occasions.

NOTICES

ART EXHIBIT
The Faculty Committee on Peace and War is sponsoring an exhibition of works of art to protest the war in Vietnam, from May 7-21 in the Commonwealth Room, S.U.

NEWMAN CLUB
On May 14, in the Chapel there will be a concert of sacred music by the Newman Center choir, at 8:15 P.M.

STUDENT RELIGIOUS LIBERALS
On Sunday, May 7 at 7:00 P.M. at Amherst Unitarian Society, installation of officers will be held. New ideas for the coming year will be discussed.
All interested students are welcome. Dessert and coffee will be served.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST
On May 9, at 8 P.M. in Mahar Aud., the film "The Restless Ones", put out by the Billy Graham organization will be presented. Admission charge is 50¢.

STUDENTS FOR POLITICAL ACTION
On Sun., May 7 at 2:00 P.M. at the back of the hatch there will be an executive committee meeting. Everyone welcome.

ORTHODOX CLUB
On May 14, at 4:30 P.M. at the Grist Mill, the banquet will take place, instead of on Sunday, May 7. For reservations call Carl Ripaldi, 1815 T-5 at 6-8867.

CHEMISTRY SEMINAR
On Tues., May 9 at 11:15 A.M. in Goessmann 51, Dr. T. C. Snyder of Bell Laboratories, will speak on "The Determination of Molecular Structure from NMR in Nematic Solvents".

LOST
Suede jacket taken from poolroom in Drake Rathskeller. $30 pair of prescription sunglasses in pocket. Reward for both, particularly for the glasses. Contact Tom Donovan, Drake Hotel, Room C-9 or c/o Collegian.
A 14 karet gold bracelet in WOPE. If found, please call Pam at 6-6579.
English 203 Notebook. Call Lee Mullane, Mill Valley Rd., Belchertown. Tel. 323-6956.

FOUND
Record left on counter in Registrar's Office.
Man's class ring found. Owner contact Registrar's office for further information on person who found ring.
Pair of goggles left in Registrar's office since two weeks ago.

PINNINGS
Susan B. Kadetsky, class of '69, Mass. Art, to Leonard A. Erlanger, class of '68, Sigma Alpha Mu.
Beverly Neal, class of '68, Crabtree, to Robert Kerins, class of '68, John Adams Lower.
Sheila White, class of '69, Dickinson, to Chuck Tiberio, class of '68, Grayson.

ENGAGEMENTS
Leslie A. Dierauf, class of '70, Dickinson, to Timothy D. Nelms, class of '69, Grayson.
Carol Stentiford, class of '67, Dwight, to Bruce Schauer, Guilford, Connecticut.
Marilyn Malin, class of '70, SDT, to Howard Hunger, class of '68, Aachashla, Syracuse Univ.

KEEP OUR CAMPUS CLEAN AND GREEN. STAY OFF THE GRASS AND SAVE THAT TRASH.

RAY CHARLES CONCERT

Saturday, May 6

Cage--9:00 p.m.

TICKETS: 4-College Faculty & Students $2.00
Public $5.00

Tickets will be sold at door.

ATTENTION SOPHOMORES

The class of 1969 is again shining into new areas of class participation. For the first time at this University, a class trip is being scheduled to New York City! This New York Happening will take place the weekend of October 6, 7, and 8, leaving Friday evening after the last class and returning Sunday afternoon. Reduced hotel rates are available upon reservation and transportation rates are included in the estimate of the weekend cost. A program of events for the weekend is being set up by the Executive Council. Group tickets to Broadway shows, live T.V. filmings, United Nation tours, and Museum tours will be available on an individual basis.

In order to obtain a tentative number of sophomores planning to participate in this Happening and to make reservations accordingly, we ask you to fill out the coupon below and deposit it in the box at the Student Union Lobby Counter.

Approximate cost will be between $15 and $20 for the weekend.

This will include:

1) Transportation to and from NYC

2) Hotel for two nights

3) T.V. show tickets

Other events on an individual basis.

NEW YORK HAPPENING

Name: .....

Campus Address: .....

Phone: .....

Would you be interested in attending:

	Yes	No
Broadway Show	☐	☐
T.V. filming	☐	☐
U.N. tour	☐	☐

Sorry open to class of 1969 only.

AMHERST CREAMERY SNACK BAR

ice cream takeout — steaks — sandwiches 253-5350

COUPON COUPON

25c

Toward the purchase of any pizza

one per customer expires May 5

Attention: All Graduating Students

50% OFF ON TIME'S REGULAR SUBSCRIPTION PRICE

Under the TIME Alumni Plan by ordering now one year of TIME—52 issues—at the low $5 student rate, graduating students can renew at the student rate through 1971. To enroll, just complete and mail the coupon below. We'll bill you later. (Change of address no problem: you'll find a handy change-of-address form printed in every issue of TIME.)

So enroll now—and be eligible to save yourself 50% on TIME's regular price annually through 1971.

ENROLL ME IN THE TIME ALUMNI PLAN

and send me 52 weeks of TIME for only $5.00 (less than 10¢ an issue) this is ( ) a new subscription ( ) a renewal of my present subscription

I understand that the TIME Alumni Plan entitles me to receive TIME for four years after graduation at the special reduced College Rate (the lowest rate that TIME can offer anyone).

name .....
(please print) year of graduation

address .....

city ..... state ..... zip code.....

I am a registered student at (college) I am a graduate student ( ) undergraduate student ( )

I prefer 52 weeks of ( ) Life for $4.50 or 52 weeks of ( ) Sports Illustrated for $6.00.

Complete and mail to: University Magazines, P.O. Box 722, Amherst, Mass.

UMass Seeks Upset in Yan-Con Net Tourney, Today, Tomorrow

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

COLLEGIAN Photo by Barry Emery

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

CONFERENCE HOPES—Three of UMass's representatives in the Yankee Conference Championships held on the Boyden courts today and tomorrow are (from left) Andy Meagher, Carl Clemm and Harvey Mednicov.

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

Alex Hannum used six men to win the NBA championship; Steve Kosakowski plans to use the same number in his quest for the Yankee Conference tennis title. If the weatherman cooperates, the matches will be played today and tomorrow on the Boyden courts.

Defending champion Vermont must be favored, but Kosakowski may have the team to dethrone the Catamounts.

The coach says, "Maine and New Hampshire have strong top halfs, Rhode Island is a definite threat and Connecticut is always strong." Rhody gave the Green Mountain boys quite a scare before bowing, 6 - 3, earlier this year.

Vermont has their first two men back from last year. Paul Ryan and Laddie Cook are defending champs in the top two singles flights. This year Ryan and Cook have joined together as a doubles team.

Connecticut's top two men, Britton and Miller, are very strong. Last Tuesday, Mike Britton took the measure of Redmen co-captain Harvey Mednicov, 6-4, 6-4. The two will have to carry the Huskies if they are to make any noise.

Carrying the Bay State hopes will be Co captains Harvey Mednicov (No. 1) and Gerry Johnson (No. 3), seniors Andy Meagher (No. 2) and Al Davis (No. 5), along with sophs Carl Clemm (No. 4) and Scott Sheppard (No. 6). Davis is the only defending champ on the squad. Davis and Sheppard changed places for the Conference matches.

In doubles Koz pairs Mednicov and Meagher (No. 1), Clemm and Johnson (No. 2), and Sheppard and Davis (No. 3). Mednicov and Meagher are the defending champs.

The tournament breaks down into nine flights, six in singles, three in doubles. There are two seeds in each flight. The seeds receive a first-round bye and receive two points for winning their semi-final matches. Every other win is worth only a point.

Today the singles will play all matches except the finals, while doubles will play only the first round. Saturday will see the conclusion.

UMASS SEEDINGS

SINGLES

Mednicov (third seed) plays Flight 1
Meagher (second seed) bye
Johnson (first seed) bye
Clemm (first seed) plays Flight 4
Davis (first seed) plays Flight 5
Sheppard (first seed) plays Flight 6

DOUBLES

Mednicov and Meagher (first seed) plays Flight 1
Johnson and Clemm (first seed) plays Flight 2
Davis and Sheppard (first seed) play Flight 3
First round of singles—9:30 a.m. today
Second round—12:30 p.m.
First round of doubles—3 p.m.

Crews to Compete in Rusty Callow Regatta

Coach Dave Clarke and his oarsmen face what may be their biggest meet of the season tomorrow, when they travel to Worcester for the Rusty Callow Regatta.

Held on a 2000-meter course on Lake Quinsigamond, the Callow is one of the major New England regattas. Entered will be 12 colleges from the surrounding area. Such schools as Amherst, Trinity, Wesleyan, and U.R.I., as well as UMass, will be vying for victories in the freshmen, J.V., and varsity classes.

UMass has an excellent opportunity to make a big showing in all three races. Freshmen and J.V. crews will have to contend with crews from Trinity College. The varsity will have its work cut out for it, because arch-enemy Wesleyan is sending up its varsity eight.

In a pre-season race, the Trinity freshmen beat UMass by several lengths. The Trinity frosh have a definite experience factor on their side. As high school oarsmen, several of these boys went to the Henley Regatta in England.

The UMass freshmen will have their work cut out for them, but the endurance they gained through extensive training this year should help them greatly.

Trinity is also a threat in the junior varsity race, but a continually improving UMass J.V. squad has an excellent chance of upsetting the Owls. Last year, Trinity edged out UMass in the J.V. finals. Both teams will be battling it out in what should prove to be a close race.

The varsity race should also be a good one. UMass will face Wesleyan, and chances are good that one of these two will win the varsity division. Last year, Wesleyan nosed out UMass for second place in the Callow.

Amherst College, last year's winner in the varsity finals, does not appear to be a serious threat this year. Still, the Lord Jeffs shouldn't be counted out, for Amherst has been a perennial winner in the varsity division.

INTRAMURALS

Cherries Ground Hawks, 25-20

by TOM CONUEL
Staff Reporter

High-scoring games highlighted Wednesday nights intramural softball action. One game that sounds more like a football game than a softball game found the Cherries downing the Hawks by the score of 25-20.

In some other high-scoring affairs it was the Birches over the Rams, 12-1, the Redwoods smashing the Flaming A's, 24-8, and the Hi-Los nudging the Buffaloes, 12-9.

Rounding out the dorm action, Bob Krol's hitting led the Maroons to a 6-2 victory over the Panthers, and the Grants stopped the Maples, 8-5.

In fraternity action, KS bettered SAM, 10-9, and PSD rolled over PLP, 6-1. Bob Campbell had three hits for the winners.

Four independent games were played. The Buds nudged the Nads, 8-7, the Lucky's sunk the Pumpmen, 6-4, and the Bismarks clubbed the Foundrymen, 18-9. Bill Drum pitched a one-hitter and led the Chem Club to a 9-1 decision over the Old Timers.

Turning to soccer, it was the Flaming A's 1, the Chestnuts 0. Paul Martucci scored for the A's.

Rich Marco had a fantastic night as he scored five goals and led the Aces over the Grants, 6-0. The Jaguars beat the Patriots, 1-0, and the Leopards and Colt 45's tied, 1-1.

In the only fraternity action LCA downed PSD, 2-1. Dick Palatino scored both goals for LCA.

LAST NIGHT'S ACTION

Mixed Doubles Tennis

Gilbert & Janasus defeated Ruben & Haibert, 6-4, 6-3.

Soccer Scores

Zetu Nu 1, SAM 0
PSD over ATG (forfeit)
KS 0 PMD 0 (tie)

League Champions — Soccer

Athenian	TEP
Spartan	KS
Grad-Fac	Chem Club
National	Lucky 13's
Southwest	Commanches
South	Tower Terrors
North	Grayson Flaming A's
Tower	Adams Smashers

Soccer playoffs start Monday at 5:30 p.m.

Forfeits marred a full slate in the softball leagues yesterday. In fraternity competition BKP stopped SPE, 12-6, SAM 6-3 over QTV, and PSD and APO won on forfeits.

In the dorm leagues it was the Maroons 8, Grants 1; Hi-Lo's 14, Panthers 5; Birches 12, Cherries 9; Hawks 14, Lemons 7; and Flaming A's 8, Panthers 5. The Buffaloes, Giants, and Aces rang up victories via forfeits.

The Trojans beat the Foundrymen, 15-14, on Larkin's two-out, two-run single to spotlight the action in the Independent circuit. The Buds popped the Pie Spots, 12-7, Chem Club exploded for an 18-8 win over the CIA, and the Lucky 13's edged out the Old-Timers, 11-8. Selohssa, the Toads, Commanches, and the Bismarcks all won on forfeits.

Frosh Crossemen Top Dean Jr.

Bob Florin scored two goals and two assists to lead the UMass freshmen lacrosse team to a 4-2 victory over Dean Junior College yesterday on the lower lacrosse field.

Florin passed to John Parry, who put the Little Redmen ahead, 1-0, in the first period. Florin boosted the margin to 2-0 in the second quarter, just before the visitors scored on a goal by Steve Willis.

In the third period, Florin tallied again and assisted on a goal by John Shyavitz. Dean's Alan Weir closed the final gap to 4-2 late in the game.

Pete Scoville played another outstanding game in the UMass nets.

Last Saturday the frosh dropped a 3-1 decision to the Dartmouth yearlings here. Florin scored the lone goal for UMass on assist from Parry.

Dick Sammis had two goals for Dartmouth and Al McLane added a singleton.

The freshmen, who now stand 2-2, travel to Connecticut tomorrow for a 2 p.m. contest.

START YOUR FUTURE IN BOSTON!

BOSTON IS AN EXCITING PLACE FOR YOUNG WOMEN TO WORK!
WHEN YOU FIND YOUR NICHE, COME LIVE AT BOSTON'S MOST POPULAR RESIDENCE FOR YOUNG WOMEN:
FRANKLIN SQUARE HOUSE
11 EAST NEWTON ST., BOSTON
"Convenient, Lively, In-Town Living For The Single Girl"

MOUNTAIN PARK
RTE. 5, HOLYOKE — Go Where The Action Is
EVERY SAT. 8 P. M.
COLLEGE MIXER
2 BANDS-MONTY & SPECIALTIES
SAT., MAY 20—THE CASINOS

Do You Want to See Something FUNNY? Try...
The softball game between the Student Senate and Faculty Senate
When: Sat., May 6, 1967
Where: WoPe Field
Time: 1:00
Pick up his HER WEEKEND

tuition worries?
Hood
End them all by selling Ice Cream this summer from a profit-proven mobile ice cream truck. You're on your own with a complete money-making program.

For further information or a descriptive brochure, call or write
MANLEY COLONIAL
A Subsidiary of H. P. Hood and Sons
492 Rutherford Ave. (rear),
Boston, Mass. 02129
(617) 242-5300

Host M.I.T. Today

Lacrossemen Rocked, 9-4, by Unbeaten Amherst

by Joe Duffy
Staff Reporter

After trailing only 5-4 after three periods, the Redmen lacrosse team fell to an aggressive and talented Amherst squad, 9-4, on the lower athletic fields here Wednesday. A biting wind ripped through the dampened air and seemed to have a disastrous effect on the Redmen stickhandling throughout the contest.

Once again the names O'Connor, O'Brien and Vasar dominated the Redmen statistics. Participating in his first full game since incurring a shoulder injury, Captain Kevin O'Brien led the Redmen attack with two goals —both unassisted.

Kevin "the Fox" O'Connor scored his 13th goal and Gary Vassar added his 10th and 11th assists to boost their team leads in those departments. Also in the scoring column was Captain Howie Goffman.

It was a nip-and-tuck battle for better than three periods. Although the Redmen never led during the contest, they were never really out of contention until the last period. With UMass trailing, 2-0, in the second quarter, O'Connor took a fine pass from Vassar and fired a shot past Jeff netminder Ed Koch to make the score 2-1.

With only 22 seconds remaining in the first half, O'Brien slid past acouple of Amherst defenders and scored his first goal of the afternoon to knot the score at 2-2, to the cheers of a chilled but enthusiastic groups of onlookers.

The Jeffs managed a fluke goal, with one second remaining in the half to bring the score to 3-2.

The Redmen contingent emerged for the second half only to have their hopes dampened by two quick Amherst goals. The Redmen weren't through yet, however.

O'Brien tallied his second goal at 10:01. Barely three minutes later Goffman scored a beauty after taking a pass from the master of assists, Vasar, to bring the score to 5-4 after three periods.

During the first five minutes of the final quarter the Jeffs rapped three goals to put the game out of contention. They added an insurance tally with four minutes remaining in the contest.

Impressive in the goalie slot for UMass was sophomore Marc Schlossberg, who made a number of fantastic saves although he was pressed quite hard by the aggressive Amherst offense throughout the game. Coach Dick Garber felt "the whole story was our inability to control the ball.

The win should clinch the New England championship for Amherst, which now has a 6-0 record on the season.

Wednesday's defeat leaves the Redmen at 4-3 with six games remaining.

The Redmen host M.I.T. today in a make-up contest from a game that was snowed out earlier this year. Tomorrow the Huskies of UConn travel to Amherst to battle the Redmen in an encounter slated to begin at 2. Both games will be played on the field between the Cage and Boyden.

Lacrosse fans will also get a taste of international competition next Thursday, when the Redmen clash with the Australian National Team at Alumni Stadium in what looks to be quite an exciting contest.

LACROSSE SCORING

	G	A	P
Vassar	8	11	19
O'Connor	13	4	17
O'Brien	10	0	10
Kalikow	2	5	7
Connolly	6	0	6
Rana	4	2	6
Herling	3	3	6
Goffman	6	0	6
Murphy	1	0	1
Mushovic	1	0	1
Molander	1	0	1
Mahoney	0	1	1
Agnoli	0	1	1

IN ACTION TODAY—UMass defensemen Walt Alessi (left) and Ira Yavner flank goalie Mark Schlossberg. The three will be responsible for much of the defensive duties today against M.I.T.

Bergquist Ejected as Nine Bows, 3-1

(Continued from page 12)

deep right-center to end the rally.

In the seventh Stewart walked with one down and was forced at second by Carl Boteze, who went to second on an error and took third on a balk. A strikeout stopped the Redmen there.

Mareno walked leading off the eighth frame and was doubled-up on Vyce's hard liner to the second baseman.

In the ninth, Chinappi singled off the second baseman's glove. Rich Rappoli ran for the Redmen catcher and after a pop out, DiSarcina walked, putting men on first and second with only one down. Rappoli tagged and went to third on Stewart's fly ball to right field and Boteze ended the frustrating afternoon when he hit a vicious line drive right at the second baseman.

UMass outhit their opponents 6-5, had three more walks, and played errorless ball but could not come up with the clutch hit.

Canty struck out nine to keep himself up among the leaders in the nation despite the fact that his ball was not moving as much as usual. The southpaw went the route for the fourth straight time.

Two of the Redmen's better hitters, Elliot Klein and Roy Lasky were unable to make the trip. Klein may miss another game because of a bad back.

COAST GUARD	ab	r	h	bi	UMASS	ab	r	h	bi
Bastek, 3	4	0	0	0	DiSarcina, s	4	0	1	0
N.Ew'ds, lf	1	2	0	0	Stewart, 2	2	0	0	0
Milas, cf	3	1	1	1	Botese, lf	5	0	1	0
Schmidt, rf	3	0	1	1	Ferron, rf	4	1	1	0
Sherer, 2	4	0	0	0	Marino, cf	2	0	1	0
DeFeo, s	4	0	1	0	Vyce, 1	4	0	1	0
Smith, 1	3	0	1	0	Mitsakos, 3	1	0	0	0
White, c	3	0	1	0	Chinappi, c	4	0	1	1
Rose, p	2	0	0	0	Rappoli, pr	0	0	0	0
M.Ew'ds, p	1	0	0	0	Canty, p	4	0	0	0
Dubois	0	0	0	0
Totals	28	3	5	2	Totals	32	1	6	1

Coast Guard ..... 201 000 00x—3
UMass ..... 000 001 000—1

	ip	h	r	er	bb	so
Rose (W)	5	5	1	1	1	9
M. Edwards	3	1	0	0	4	1
Dubois	1	0	0	0	1	0
Canty (L, 5-2)	8	5	3	3	4	9

E—Sherer, Rose. DP—Coast Guard 1. LOB—UMass 11, Coast Guard. 2B—Ferron. 3B—Milas. SB—Stewart, N. Edwards 2, Schmidt. HBP—Rose (Stewart). Canty (Milas). WP—Conty. Balk—M. Edwards. T—2:21

Baseball Statistics

	G	AB	R	H	2B	3B	HR	SB	SAC	SF	HP	BB	SO	RBI	AVE.
DiSarcina	17	63	12	20	3	2	0	3	1	2	1	8	6	6	.317
Boteze	15	54	3	17	3	1	0	0	1	0	0	1	3	9	.315
Stewart	17	53	9	18	2	3	1	7	1	3	3	10	6	8	.310
Klein	15	47	4	14	2	1	1	1	0	0	2	7	6	6	.298
Ferron	16	61	11	17	1	1	1	3	0	0	0	5	9	5	.279
Lasky	16	57	6	15	3	2	0	0	0	2	3	3	12	8	.263
Mareno	17	63	6	16	2	1	1	0	1	0	1	4	13	5	.254
Mitsakos	7	13	2	3	1	0	1	0	0	1	0	3	2	4	.231
Craig	3	5	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	.200
Vyce	14	41	4	8	3	0	0	0	0	3	0	0	5	14	1	.195
Canty	12	26	3	5	1	0	0	2	0	1	0	0	1	5	4	.192
Chinappi	14	40	1	6	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	5	6	3	.150
Lagoy	6	15	1	2	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	6	0	.133
Katz	3	6	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	.000
Hale	13	2	3	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	2	0	.000
Rappoli	6	3	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	2	0	.000
Elliot	7	2	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	.000
Dever	4	2	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1	0	.000
Gagner	2	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	.000
TOTALS UM	17	568	69	143	21	12	7	14	8	8	11	57	99	61	.252
TOTALS OPP.	17	536	62	94	15	3	2	24	9	4	7	89	150	46	.175

Orr Takes Post At U. Michigan

John Orr, former head basketball coach at University of Massachusetts, has joined the cage staff at University of Michigan. Orr is varsity assistant and head recruiter under Coach Dave Strack.

Resigning in 1966 after three years at UMass, Orr went into the insurance business in Illinois. He reportedly was one of the top candidates for the head basketball job at University of Illinois, which was filled in March.

Orr has been living in Urbana, Ill., but will soon move to Ann Arbor, Mich.

Horse Show Here Tomorrow

The UMass riding program presents its annual horse show at the stable (behind Machmer) tomorrow at 1 p.m. Miss Sylvia Wilson, riding instructor at Smith College, will be the judge.

The afternoon's program is as follows: Parade of Morgan horses, Pair Cass, Beginning Equitation, Drill Team demonstration, Bareback Class, Command Class, Saddle and Brille Contest, Pleasure Class, Obstacle Class and a showing of "Bay State Flintlock," the University's top stallion.

Admission is free and refreshments will be served.

NOW OPEN
DRIVING RANGE
GLACIAL PINES
GOLF CENTER
MILL VALLEY ROAD
OFF RTE. 9
HADLEY, MASS.

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION — Defenseman Fred Foley (71) and goalie Mark Schlossberg (20) of UMass and a Dartmouth attackman all seek the ball in different directions during last Saturday's game.

SENIORS
Commencement Invitations and Rainy Day Tickets can be picked up in the R.S.O. at the
STUDENT UNION
from 8:30 - 5:00
MAY 9 thru MAY 26
These are free to the Class of '67

MASS. CLASSIFIED

HELP WANTED

Full or part time summer baby sitter. Call 665-2879 after 4.

Part or full time bus boys, good salary, tips. Apply Mr. Whalen, Lord Jeffrey Inn, Amherst.

Full time bell man, good salary, good tips, room and board if desired. Apply Mr. Ames, Lord Jeffrey Inn, Amherst.

The "Circle D" would like to speak to a young woman who is a proficient western rider and who is interested in working with children. Circle D Ranch, call after 7 p.m., 253-5779

For Rent

Girl's bike 24" used condition will accept best offer, good for first bicycle, call Adrienne, 546-8052.

Apt. to sublet for the summer. 1 mile to University. Ideal for one, two or possibly 3 rooms. Some furniture available. 256-8346.

Furnished 2 bedroom, 4 bed ranch house, apt. on wooded estate 20'x15' living room, electric kitchen, washing machine, dinette, 1½ baths. All utilities included in $200 month. Available. Sept. 1, 8 p.m., Northampton 584-3640 after 5.

3 room apt for June-July-Aug. 1 mile off campus, Brass Eagle, No. Pleasant. $50 p. mo. for two or three $33 p. mo. Call 549-1745.

AUTOMOBILES

1965 Triumph Herald Convertible—red with black top. Radio and heater—tonneau cover—brakes just relined, new rear wheel bearings—excellent condition—27,000 miles. Must sell, or will trade for older VW sedan and cash. Phone Easthampton 527-9040.

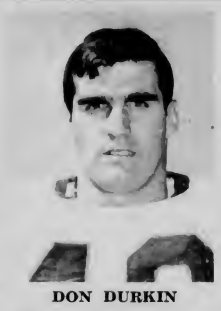
MGA 1958 new tires, curtains, top & tonneau cover, excellent cond. $500 best offer by May 5. Call 253-9540 after 4:00.

1962 Vauxhall, Victor, 4-speed transmission, floor shift, very good condition, $350, phone 253-7257.

FOR SALE

1964 85cc Yamaha Trailmaster. Excellent condition! Only 3,000 miles. Real fast. Call 549-1861.

WANTED



Organist available for summer — to form or join rock, blues etc group 12 yrs - exp. has own organ, anywhere—call George Blum, 546-8735.

PERSONAL

Worried about the draft? Write for information on Immigration to Canada. Committee to Aid American War Objectors, Box 4231, Vancouver 9, British Columbia, Canada.

BRUCE GOMBAR

DON DURKIN

BRUNO DEBIAK

NOEL SCHABLICK

ERNIE SMITH

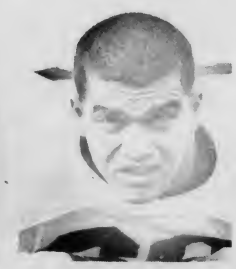
Intra-squad Scrimmage Offers Preview of '67 Redmen

UMass will conclude its spring football practice sessions Saturday afternoon with a game-style intra-squad scrimmage at 3:30 p.m. in Alumni Stadium.

The game, sponsored by the Redmen Varsity M Club, will be the final test of the spring instructional drills. Over 50 Redmen varsity aspirants will be in action Saturday. The Redmen, led by Co-captains Greg Landry and Jim Mitchell, have a nucleus of 20 returning lettermen from last fall's Yankee Conference championship team. Although 18 lettermen have departed from the squad a strong group of freshmen, blessed with speed and potential, have added spice to the 1967 Redmen.

Heading the frosh list is quarterback Tim Adams, open end Steve Parnell, flanker back Gerry Grasso, defensive halfback Dave Driscoll, tackle Jim Nangle and defensive tackle Mark Toner.

All-Conference quarterback Landry, who has had an outstanding spring, heads the veteran list. But the Redmen sessions, sparked with a great amount of spirit and enthusiasm undiminished by the poor weather conditions, have had other bright spots. Good-looking veterans include tackle Mitchell, offensive end Bill Carty, defensive ends Bruno Debiak and Paul Mlinar, linebacker Randy Robinson, offensive guards Bob Santucci and Ernie Smith, center Bruce Gombar, halfbacks Tim Driscoll and Don Durkin and defensive safety Mike McArdle.



GREG LANDRY

PAUL VACCARO

ROGER PREFONTAINE

BOB SANTUCCI

TIM DRISCOLL

UMass Timbers Shiver

Coast Guard Scuttles Redmen and Canty, 3-1

by MIKE CURRAN
Staff Reporter

NEW LONDON, Conn.—Coast Guard scored early and hung on for a 3-1 victory over UMass here Wednesday afternoon. The loss gave the Redmen a 918 record and handed Redman ace John Canty, his second defeat.

In the opening frame, the home team tallied twice on a one-out walk to Norm Edwards, an opposite-field triple by Charley Milas, and a bloop single by Bob Schmidt.

The Redmen began the first of many unsuccessful threats in the top of the second. Ted Mareno and Alex Vyce lined singles to left putting runners on first and second with no outs. Coast Guard pitcher Bob Rose struck out the next three batters, however, to leave U-Mass high and dry.

In the bottom of the third Coast Guard made it 3-0 on a strange play. With two outs and men on first and third via walks, the runner on first broke for second. Catcher Tony Chinappi faked a throw to second and threw to third catching the runner there in a pickle. After a short rundown, third baseman Charley Dever dove for the runner, but apparently missed him and a run scored.

UMass coach Dick Bergquist argued vehemently with the umpire on that play and had to watch the rest of the game from behind a fence. Canty struck out the last batter and was never in serious trouble the rest of the game.

UMass began a threat-an-inning series in the fifth. Joe DiSarcina singled and Frank Stewart was hit by a pitch with two down, but Rose whiffed the next batter.

In the sixth, the Redmen had their biggest opportunity. Don Ferron doubled down the right field line. After a long foul poke by Mareno, Coast Guard brought in a new pitcher, Mike Edwards.

Edwards walked Mareno and after Vyce's grounder advanced the runners, pinch-hitter John Mitsakes was intentionally passed to load up the bases. Chinappi's ground-out put U-Mass on the scoreboard, but Canty's drive was caught in

(Continued on page 11)

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL (V) — vs. Tufts (Home, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)
LACROSSE (V) — vs. MIT (Home, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)
LACROSSE (V) — Connecticut (Home, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)
TENNIS (V) — Yankee Conference Champ (Home, Today and Tomorrow)
TRACK (V) — Quantico Marine Relays (Away, Today and Tomorrow)
GOLF (V) — Yankee Conference Champ (at The Orchards, Today)
CREW — Rusty Callow Regatta (at Worcester, Tomorrow)
BASEBALL (Frosh) — vs. Connecticut (at Storrs, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)
LACROSSE (Frosh) — vs. Connecticut (at Storrs, Tomorrow, 2 p.m.)

FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1967
Page 12 Vol. XCV, No. 71

Never on Sunday?

Athletic Director Warren P. McGuirk announced the rescheduling of the rained-out Yankee Conference baseball games between Massachusetts and Connecticut yesterday. Massachusetts will travel to play Connecticut at Storrs on Sunday, May 14, at 2 p.m. Connecticut will play at Massachusetts on Wednesday, May 17 at 3 p.m.

* * *

The varsity and freshmen track meets with Holy Cross have also been rescheduled. The Redmen will host the Crusaders Monday at 3 p.m. at the Amherst College track site.

Nine Hopes to Stay Above .500 Ball

Katz to Start Against Tufts Tomorrow

BOB BUDNICK
Tufts catcher.

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

The UMass baseball team hosts Tufts College tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. on the varsity field.

The Jumbos are 6-6 on the season, playing mostly Boston area colleges. Improved pitching is the key to their improvement over last spring's 5-11 squad.

Senior Ron McRobbie heads the mound staff, followed by left-hander Bob Elliott and junior righty Jack Wallwork. Elliott, a junior, is the brother of Norm Elliott, a UMass hurler.

In the infield, the Jumbos go with junior Steve Hansen at second, junior Dan Wood at short and Captain Hank Fuller at third. Fuller batted .323 last year and led the squad in RBIs with 13.

The first baseman will be either Jack Roccio, last year's leading hitter with a .560 BA, or sophomore lefty Gene Curletti, a Pittsfield product.

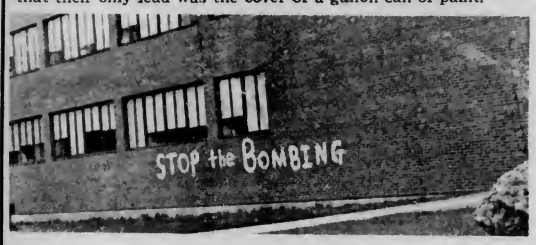
Senior Joe O'Kelly and junior Tim Crowell are definite starters in the outfield. The other outfield position will be manned by senior switch-hitter Mike Weeks or sophomore Bob Karp.

The catching will be handled by junior Bob Budnick, an outstanding defensive receiver whose hitting has improved over last year's .182 BA.

UMass, now 9-8 overall, figures to start lefty Dave Katz, who hurled well in his last start at Williams. The Redmen play Springfield College at home on Monday.

DINING COMMONS MENU
Page 5

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS



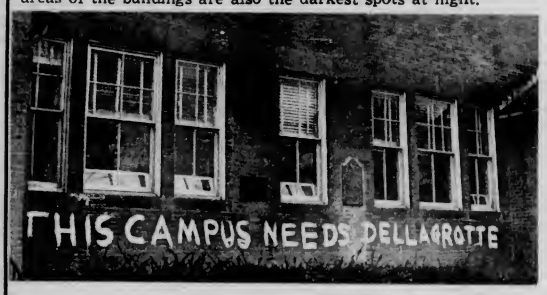
SUMMER LIBRARY HOURS
Page 6

VOL. XCV, NO. 72 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, MAY 8, 1967

Vandals Hit UMass

The UMass campus awoke yesterday morning to find seven of the main buildings on campus defaced with painted slogans referring to the war in Vietnam.

University police discovered the vandalism about 1:30 a.m. Sunday and dispatched three cruisers and two men on foot. Two police cruisers from Amherst also aided in the search. They said that their only lead was the cover of a gallon can of paint.



COLLEGIAN Photo by Rizotto

MORRILL

University maintenance crews began cleaning the buildings yesterday morning. One of the men commented that the paint was "very difficult to remove" and he expected that the buildings would have to be touched up with paint in order to completely remove the markings.

The slogans were painted on parts of buildings that are most noticeable during the day. Police noted, however, that these same areas of the buildings are also the darkest spots at night.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Rizotto

SOUTH COLLEGE

It is estimated that two or three people participated in the vandalism and the police are hopping that any students who saw the crime or heard anything about it will step forward.

Buildings that were defaced included: Student Union, Morrill, Hasbrouck, Memorial Hall, Bartlett, South College and the Newman Center.

Slogans included: "Stop the bombing in Vietnam". "The campus needs DellaGrote." "Students awake—you are the victims of totalitarianism" and "Spellman is a Fascist Dog".

COLLEGIAN Photo by Rizotto

BARTLETT

A Plea for Help

The response to a request for money and clothes to aid five male graduate students who recently lost all their belongings to a tragic fire has been extremely gratifying.

Close to one hundred dollars and several articles of clothing have already been received in the COLLEGIAN office. However, much more is needed.

Two of the grads are foreign students and their belongings were completely uninsured. Their only hope is the charity of the University community.

If you have anything you wish to donate, cash or otherwise, PLEASE bring it to the secretary in the COLLEGIAN office this week. Remember, they lost everything and they need our help.

Donahue Discusses Education; Stresses Role of Democrats

by PAM METAXAS
Staff Reporter

President of the Massachusetts Senate, Maurice A. Donahue, spoke in the Commonwealth room Thursday night on education in Massachusetts and the role of the Democratic legislature in providing it. He was presented by the Young Democrats at the University.

Donahue began by saying that "change is the essence of education" and that education must constantly change and adjust to fit the change of the society it serves. He also emphasized that education "molds society" in that it leads to new ideas and new concepts.

He stated that real educational progress didn't begin until the idea of "free public schools" was established. This concept was initiated by Horace Mann, a famous Massachusetts educator and a former President of the Massachusetts Senate.

Donahue said that education has grown throughout the Commonwealth, the most obvious example being the University of Massachusetts. At one time UMass only had some 3,000 students and was a "rather disjointed system of state teacher colleges."

He noted that the Republican "domination" of the Legislature up until 1949 made any far-reaching educational progress in higher education impossible. Donahue explained this by the fact that the Republicans are "conservative by nature" and most of them believed that higher education should be limited to those who could afford to pay for it.

With the exception of a two-year period in 1952-53, the House has remained Democratic, he stated, and this fact has greatly altered the progress of education in Massachusetts. According to Donahue, some of the beneficial changes in higher education that the Democratic Legislature has brought about include the following:

- a rapid growth in the student body at UMass. Instead of 3,000 students, there are now over 15,000.
- a system of community colleges that enrolls some 8600 students.
- the Willis-Harrington Commission which "has already studied in depth every aspect of education in Massachusetts and has submitted a report which outlines our educational goals for the years ahead."
- the expansion of UMass in Boston
- UMass Medical School
- a large program of College scholarships for needy students which now numbers nearly $500,000 annually.
- fiscal accountability and autonomy at UMass "so that the Administration of University affairs would be removed from the political arena."
- a change in the curricula and the name of the former teachers colleges. They are now called state teachers colleges.

Donahue continued by attributing all this growth in higher education to the Democratic Legislature. Although he mentioned some individual Republican efforts in the field of Massachusetts higher education, he emphasized that mainly, "the Republican Party has been and continues to be generally adverse to significant progressive endeavors in higher education."

But the Senate President sees a good deal that remains to be done in "reaching our educational objectives." He looks forward to greater expansion through "more physical facilities, more professors, more capital expenditures, higher appropriations."

He also mentioned the necessity of providing adequate graduate facilities for the future. Donahue felt it will be the responsibility of the Commonwealth to provide these facilities, since private institutions will not be able to do it alone.

(Continued on page 5)

The Genius of Soul

Charles Concert Cages Crowd

by BOB GORMAN
Staff Reporter

Accompanied by a 15 piece band and his chorus of Raelets, Ray Charles, considered the master of soul music, performed masterfully to a capacity audience at the HER Weekend concert in the Cage Saturday.

In his clear, bluesy tones, the "genius" sang numbers like "Cryin' Time", "I Can't Stop Lovin You" and "You Don't Know Me".

Ray Charles, blind since he was six, accompanied himself on the piano and also played a brilliant saxophone.

The 35 year old musician, relaxing after the concert, talked in a clear easy tone about the music, the audience, and himself —the artist.

Charles said the audience was marvelous. "I have no complaints about the audience. They responded nicely."

Continuing, the blind singer just back from a European tour, stated, "Audiences in Europe reminded me of college students in America. They were very attentive."

"Once the audience sits down that's it. If a popular song is played, the European audience acknowledge it and then you could hear a pin drop."

When asked if he had any problems on stage with language differences in foreign countries, Charles answered, "Language has nothing to do with it in foreign tours."

He went on to say that many Europeans know more about his recordings than Americans. Besides this, millions of English speaking records are sold in Europe.

COLLEGIAN Photo by John Kelly

COLLEGIAN Photo by Kelly

For transportation of his some 20 accompanists, Ray's private plane is used.

However, for trips of less than a hundred miles the group usually travels by charted bus.

Saturday night they traveled by bus to campus from Boston where they had put on a show at Boston College earlier in the day.

Asked how often he plays in Boston, Ray said he averages one performance every seven months unless he is playing at a club. However, he doesn't play in many clubs.

Concerning the effect of the Beatles, the veteran showman said that they have had great influence on youth and, "if they like it, than I like it too."

(Continued on page 5)

OPEN HOURS

PRESIDENT LEDERLE WILL HOLD OPEN OFFICE HOURS TOMORROW, BEGINNING AT 4 P.M.

UMass Hosts Horse Show

COLLEGIAN Photo by Rizotto

This pretty young equestrian was one of the participants in the annual UMass horse show Saturday. The events included a parade of Morgan horses, Pair Cass, Beginning Equitation, Drill Team Demonstration, Bareback Class, Saddle and Bridle Contest, Pleasure Class, and Obstacle Class. The University's top stallion, Bay State Flintlock, was also shown.

Tour of Inspection

Observations on Dorm Meetings

by SHAREN GALLANT

On Saturday afternoon, the officers had optimistically posted notices announcing "Mandatory House Meeting — Sunday 10 p.m.—Rec Room," and for several hours the seductive smell of baking cookies had drifted from the kitchenette, hopefully to lure the not-so-willing residents from their dorm rooms. Now, a few minutes before 10, pajama-clad females, heads wreathed in pink plastic rollers, and bangs plastered to foreheads with scotch tape, began to straggle into the aptly-titled "Rec" room.

A crowd congregated in the kitchenette, where cookies and coffee were being given out, ignoring the pencil and-lined-paper sign reading "3 only please," and frustrating the attempts of the cultural chairman, who was trying to conduct the distribution with some measure of organization. Finally, when the cookie bowl was empty and the coffee had been repeatedly tasted and declared undrinkable, the girls settled down and waited for the meeting to begin.

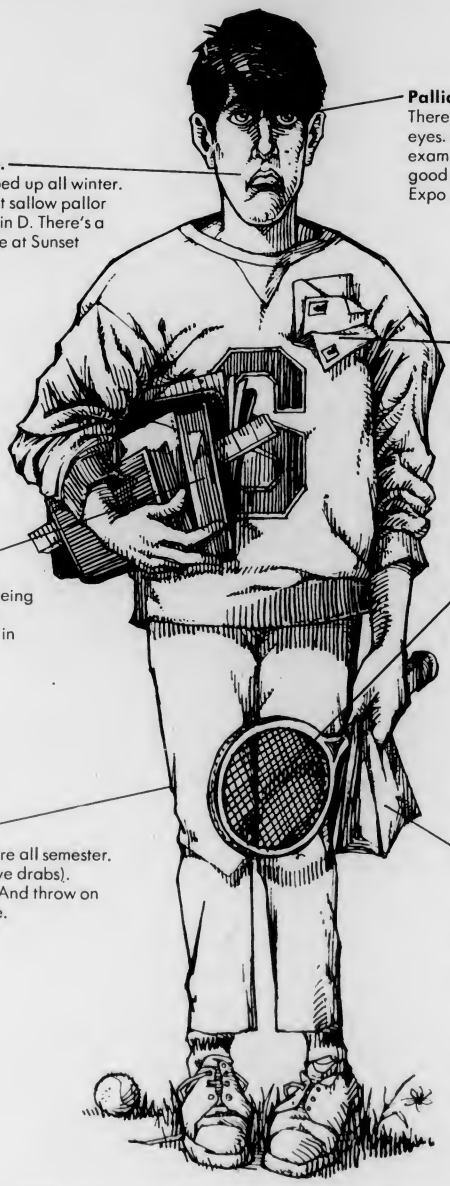
The "Rec" room is a lounge on the 12th floor of John Quincy Adams where the residents and their dates play cards, study and watch television. The east wall is half-shrouded in off-white woven drapes whose stripe-like folds alternate with windows spotted with muddy water from the construction below.

In the center of the room are two bulky, rectangular pillars which stretch upwards like brawny arms to support the ceiling. The colors of the room look like the spatterings from an artist's brush. Grey walls and tables with blue and brown chairs, underlined with a red-dish-orange-rust carpet present a combination which is, to be kind, quite unusual.

The room seemed to shrink as girls stuffed themselves into every available spot, perching on window ledges, huddled in gossiping groups on the floor, and peering around the corner from the hallway to watch.

The dorm president, balanced on the corner of a table at the front of the room, bell-bottomed legs swinging, smiled in satisfaction at the hoped-for, but not really expected crowd, and called the meeting to order. The other officers, seated behind the table, smirked at their friends, then assumed business-like expressions.

It went the way of all dorm meetings. New girls were introduced, and chairmen reported on the activities of their committees. Volunteers were requested for various jobs, and new rules were explained.



An attractive girl seated at the front, her pink robe only partially covering a faded blue nightshirt, sat silently throughout the meeting, never changing her expression. A faceless pair of pigtails in the back continuously demanded that parliamentary procedure be followed, while another girl, leaning around the corner, loudly disagreed with every proposal made, completely undaunted by the hisses of the crowd.

Most of the girls looked entirely bored, squirming restlessly in their desire to escape, which some did, sneaking off on hands and knees as soon as they had devoured their cookies. Small cliques clustered here and there, gossipping among themselves, now and then urging one of their members to make a motion, and cheering half-heartedly when their proposals were accepted.

A few more notices, and few more motions and votes, and the meeting was over. The few girls that were left scattered to their rooms wearing "Thank God!" expressions, leaving behind a disaster area of crumpled paper cups and cigarette butts, but proud in the conviction that they had fulfilled their obligations. And the officers sank into their chairs among the rubble, and shook their heads, and wondered if there would ever be a time when a dorm meeting would accomplish something.

Summervācātionitis.

(How to spot and get rid of)

Pallid peepers.
There's no sparkle in those baby-blue eyes. It's been knocked out by all those exams. Get that vitality back. See what good is still left in the world. Go to Expo 67, Montreal.

Fluorescent fade-out.
That's from being cooped up all winter. What you need for that sallow pallor is some sunshine Vitamin D. There's a whole lot of it available at Sunset Beach in Acapulco.

Lip lingo.
They're letters from good buddies away for the summer. The best way to avoid them is not to be there when they arrive. Be in Puerto Rico instead.

The good books.
They have the possibility of being good symptoms. That's if you seek summer scholastics. Say in Mexico City. Or Acapulco.

Racquet squad.
That's the tennis team in your neighborhood during the summer. You'd find snorkeling or scuba diving in the Bahamas would make playing tennis seem like last summer's bad sport.

College fatigues.
That's the uniform you wore all semester. Get rid of those o.d.'s (olive drabs). Break out the white levis. And throw on a colorful Mexican serape.

BLT Down.
That's all you've known summer after summer. A change of palate would do you good. In Bermuda a few savory morsels of Hopping John with a sauce of Paw-Paw Montespan usually does the trick.

EASTERN

We want everyone to fly

Note: If symptoms get worse, see your travel agent or call Eastern.

Pol. Science Journal Founded

The New England Political Science Association has announced the founding of a quarterly journal of political science to be sponsored jointly with the New York and Pennsylvania Political Science Associations and to be published at the University of Massachusetts.

The announcement was made by Dr. William C. Havard, head of the UMass department of government and newly-elected president of the New England group.

Publication of the new quarterly will begin in September, 1968 and will be directed by an editorial board jointly named by the particpating associations.

In conjunction with the publication venture, the New England, New York and Pennsylvania groups have become the Northeast Federation of Political Science Associations and have invited political science associations from New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware to participate.

World News Roundup
From the Associated Press

News Briefs

Vietnam

PRES. JOHNSON held U. S. bombers away from Hanoi for more than four months in an effort to find out whether Pres. Ho Chi Minh would open secret peace talks or scale down the war.

U.S. MARINES battle Communists just south of the demilitarized zone.

International

PEKING WALL posters tell of growing strife in Red China, with hundreds killed or injured.

THE KENNEDY Round negotiators appear optimistic as the tariff-cutting talks near an end.

SEVERAL THOUSAND left-wing Greek Cypriot trade unionists protested Sunday the imposition of military dictatorship in Greece.

Washington

SEN. MAJORITY Leader Mike Mansfield says prospects for congressional action on East-West trade are dismal.

AMERICA's changing attitude toward illicit sex, gambling, abortion and drinking requires less strict criminal laws in these areas, a presidential panel says.

REPUBLICAN women continue their bitter scrapping after they elect a president.

National

THOMAS A. BRADEN, a former CIA official, says he organized the CIA program subsidizing student, labor and cultural groups. Walter Reuther says the UAW funneled CIA funds into the European labor movement to combat Communist subversion.

FORMER PRES. Dwight D. Eisenhower is reported resting comfortably after an apparent attack of acute gastroenteritis.

FORMER PRES. Harry S. Truman marks his 83rd birthday. He has a touch of vertigo but his friends say he's just as sharp as ever.

A MEMBER of the Virginia General Assembly says he is discontinuing his nominal contributions to Dartmouth Col., his alma mater, because of harsh treatment some of its students accorded former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

IT WAS A SURPRISE to some, but Pres. Johnson stayed out of public view all day Sunday as he worked at his Texas ranch.

'Relax, Honey, I'll Dream Up Something!'

Springfield Union

Publisher, Agent Reveals CIA Subsidies for Labor Group

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas W. Braden, a newspaper publisher and former Central Intelligence Agency official, says he created the CIA program subsidizing student, labor and cultural groups abroad — including $50,000 of CIA money spent by the United Auto Workers Union to combat communism.

Braden told the Los Angeles Times Sunday, in connection with an article he has written for the May 20 issue of the Saturday Evening Post, that he personally gave the money to UAW President Walter Reuther to influence West German labor unions.

Reuther replied that on one occasion the UAW had "agreed reluctantly" to use the funds for European trade unions "to intensify their educational and organization programs." Subsequently, Reuther said, the UAW agreed never to "transmit government funds regardless of the urgency."

Braden, former president of the California Board of Education and a California state college trustee, is editor and publisher of the Oceanside Calif. Blade-Tribune.

Braden, who headed the CIA's division of international organizations from 1951 to 1954, said the program was successful in infiltrating every field where international Communist fronts operated.

He wrote that the "vast and secret" operation was killed by "small - minded and resentful men."

In my opinion, then and now, it was essential," he wrote. "Was it 'immoral,' 'wrong,' 'disgraceful'? Only in the sense that war itself is immoral, wrong and disgraceful. For the cold war was and is a war fought with ideas instead of bombs."

Eisenhower Rests Comfortably

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, 76—a rather frequent but notably snap-back type of hospital patient — is said to be resting comfortably with what appears to be a gastrointestinal ailment.

The five-star general, hospitalized including two heart attacks and two major surgical operations since 1955, entered Walter Reed Army Hospital about midnight Saturday after an ambulance ride from his home in Gettysburg, Pa.

The provisional diagnosis is acute gastroenteritis, an acute inflammation of the lining of the stomach and the small intestine.

All evidence presently available from the hosptial indicates doctors there do not look upon the case as a serious, life-threatening one, at least at present.

A hospital spokesman said no further medical bulletins were planned until late this morning.

Eisenhower's admission followed what a hospital spokesman called "an episode of nausea and vomiting, with abdominal cramps" suffered late Saturday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a chronology of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's major illnesses and surgery during the last 12 years:

Sept. 24, 1955 — Suffered major heart attack in Denver, Colo.; hospitalized seven weeks.

June 8, 1956—Suffered attack of regional ileitis or inflammation of the ileum, the lower part of the small intestine. Surgery performed.

Nov. 25, 1957—Stricken by small cerebral stroke.

Nov. 9, 1965—Second major heart attack occurred in Augusta, Ga.

Dec. 12, 1966—Gail bladder surgery.

May 6, 1967—Gastrointestinal ailment, provisionally diagnosed as "acute gastroenteritis" or severe inflammation of the stomach lining and small intestine.

Growing Strife in Red China

TOKYO (AP)—Wall newspapers in Peking say growing strife has killed or injured hundreds of persons in Red China's western provinces, including 200 supporters of Mao Tsetung drowned when anti-Maoists rammed their boat.

Machine-gun fire killed two Red Guard members ,a man and a woman, and grenades injured hundreds of other persons Saturday in Chengtu, 950 miles southwest of Peking, said wall posters reported by Japanese correspondents in the Chinese capital.

The wall newspaper said south China Red Guards claimed 4,000 Maoists were imprisoned in Chengtu and were fasting. Other reports said rioters poisoned the city's water supply.

The 200 pro-Maoists who drowned were riding a ferry across the Yangtze River at Chungking to attend a rally Saturday when a boat manned by anti-Maoists rammed them, wall posters said.

Reds Hammer U.S. Positions

SAIGON (AP) — Some 1,200 North Vietnamese hammered at a U. S. Marine camp for three hours today before pulling back and leaving 179 Communist dead strewn over a battle-scarred hillside.

Charging beneath a mortar barrage and behind spewing flamethrowers, the men of the North Vietnamese 324B Division smashed into a perimeter defended by U. S. Marines, small detachments of U. S. Navy Seabees, Army Special Forces men and South Vietnamese militiamen.

Unofficial reports from the battlefield said 35 Marines were killed and 89 wounded. The South Vietnamese lost 14 dead and 16 wounded while the Special Forces and the Seabees each had five wounded.

The attack on the new camp near Con Thien, two miles below the demilitarized zone, began with a 200-round mortar barrage at 3 a.m. Coordinated with it were mortar attacks on three other Marine positions below the border zone which wounded at least eight marines.

Richardson Urges Preference End

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson says the state's veterans' preference laws "cannot help but have a demoralizing effect on all those within the Civil Service structure."

"We must recognize that the present system of absolute vets' preference adds nothing to the strength of our civil service system."

Richardson urged "modernization of our civil service" so that it will be similar to federal laws.

MASS. CLASSIFIED

HELP WANTED

Full or part time summer baby sitter. Call 665-2879 after 4.

AUTOMOBILES

1956 Buick. Has new inspection sticker. Runs well. $100. Call Danny, 253-7456.

MGA 1958 new tires, curtains, top & tonneau cover, excellent cond. $500 best offer by May 5. Call 253-9540 after 4:00.

1962 Vauxhall, Victor, 4-speed transmission, floor shift, very good condition, $350, phone 253-7257.

1963 Pontiac Tempest 4 door sedan, automatic, 3 new tires, excellent condition. $575. Call Ralph Prolman, 313 Butterfield.

65 Ford Custom in very good condition. Have to sell because moving to Europe. For any reasonable offers, call AL 3-9664 after 6 p.m.

1960 Hillman Minx, automatic, 4 door sedan, blue $350.

1962 Pontiac Catalina, 4 door hard top, tran., power steering and brake, w/w tires $950. Dale Mistry, 253-9728 or 253-2733.

FOR SALE

1964 85cc Yamaha Trailmaster. Excellent condition! Only 3,000 miles. Real fast. Call 549-1861.

For Rent

Apt. to sublet for the summer. 1 mile to University. Ideal for one, two or possibly 3 rooms. Some furniture available. 256-8346.

Furnished 2 bedroom, 4 bed ranch house, apt. on wooded estate 20'x15' living room, electric kitchen, washing machine, dinette, 1½ baths. All utilities included in $200 month. Available. Sept. 1, 8 p.m., Northampton 584-3640 after 5.

3 room apt for June-July-Aug. 1 mile off campus, Brass Eagle, No. Pleasant. $50 p. mo. for two or three $33 p. mo. Call 549-1745.

APARTMENT June-Sept: 3 bedrooms, livingroom/kitchen combo, large bath; $120 mo. all utilities included, fully furnished; 5 min. from campus; call 546-8609 after 10 P.M.

8 room furnished, 2nd floor apartment in Sunderland, 10 min. drive from campus, 2 car garage. $145 mo. June 1 to Aug. 31.

Rooms to rnt in large old Colonial house for $35 per person. Kitchen, 2 bathrooms, 4 firepiaces, 5 min. from private lake. 14 minutes from campus, and 4 acres of adjoining land. Call 323-7250. Before 9 a.m. or after 5 p.m.

PERSONAL

Worried about the draft? Write for information on Immigration to Canada, Committee to Aid American War, Objectors, Box 4231, Vancouver 9, British Columbia, Canada.

SENIORS

Commencement Invitations and Rainy Day Tickets can be picked up in the R.S.O. at the

STUDENT UNION

from

8:30 - 5:00

MAY 9 thru MAY 26

These are free to the Class of '67

Huge discounts with the International Student ID Card

Air travel throughout Europe, Israel at 60% less. Same huge savings on accommodations, admissions, etc. The ID Card is a must for every traveling student.

The Official Student Guide to Europe

Lists student hotels, restaurants, discounts, local tours, and complete routes, schedules, prices of student flights, trains, etc. An essential companion to the ID Card. $1.95

Also 4-Day $31 Expo '67 Tour

Includes 4 nights' accommodation, 4 breakfasts, 3 Expo passes, a French dinner, and sightseeing tour of Montreal.

U.S. National Student Assn., Dept. CP
265 Madison Ave., N. Y., N. Y. 10016
Please send info on ID Card ☐ The Official Guide (payment enclosed) ☐ Details on Expo '67. ☐

Name_____

Address_____

City_____ State_____

USNSA is non-profit for students.

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

The Central Voice

Among our agencies of Student Government, the one criticized the most is the Student Senate, the central political voice of the student body. There is no question that the criticism is often justifiable and needed, yet students should not forget the immense amount of progressive and constructive legislation that the Senate has produced in the course of the past school year.

Our Student Senate is without doubt one of the most powerful in existence. Each year it controls over $200,000 worth of expenditures in student taxes. Each year it researches and legislates on matters that cover almost every aspect of our life at the University.

This year the Senate has approved funds that will expand the Collegian to a daily paper, allow WMUA to operate on a truely professional basis, and provide for the first general interest campus magazine, Spectrum. In addition the Senate continues to provide support for over twenty other RSO organizations while keeping a constant protective eye on the uses of student tax funds.

In other areas, the Senate was successful in setting up a student loan fund, having three finals in one day declared a conflict, and improving our system of Residence Hall Government.

Yet all of the above examples comprise only a small part of the work done by the Senate through its committees, individual members, and over-all legislation.

We feel that the Student Senate is to be commended for the fine job it has done in the past year to advance and protect the interests and rights of the student body.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

★ ★

The Pass Fail System

by BOB BRILL, Editorial Day Editor

The initiation of a limited pass-fail system was proposed by an ad hoc pass-fail sub-committee to the Academic Matters Committee of the Faculty Senate Monday night and accepted by that body. Under this plan juniors and seniors will be given the options of taking one pass-fail course per semester outside of his majors core requirements. This system will allow the student to choose a course that he is interested in, but would not normally take, and thus broaden his background without hurting his cum. This option will also be open to junior-senior students going full time (taking four courses) during the summer.

The student will be given a ten day period at the beginning of each semester to elect whether or not, subject to the professor's approval, to take a course as pass-fail. This idea is good as a start but it should be modified to provide for pass-fail sections in each upper-division course. The possible extra paperwork and confusion inherent in the original proposal would be eliminated if the student could sign up for a pass-fail course on registration day.

The minimum grade required to pass would be a "D". This would go on the grade sheet as an "S". Anything below that point would be considered a failure and would be entered as an "F". While the pass will not be figured into the cum, there are good reasons why the "F" should be counted as a regular failure. First, this will be an incentive to work at passing the course rather then sloughing off and concentrating only on the courses in which a grade is given. Secondly, it will deter marginal or lazy students from using this play as a way of getting three credits while doing a minimum amount of work.

The pass-fail system should be broadened in future years to take some of the stress out of the "pressure cooker". The proposed plan is a good step in that direction.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69
News Editors ..... Ron LaBrecque '70, Richard Kline '70
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Fine Arts Editor ..... Larry Kornfield '69
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Boliver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

CPS

AP

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed five times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; three or four times weekly the week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price: $6.00 per year; $3.50 per semester.

Campus Comment

A Ping Pong Ball?

To the Editor:

The image of the South West Complex student is new and unique. He is a ping-pong ball, batted between the notorious prices of the Amherst Creamery and his inconvenient distance from the Hatch at the Student Union. Therefore, as all ping-pong balls must now and then, he falls into the net of slow service and insulting food. Where is this net?—The "Little Hatch"!

Realising that the administration had "planned" ahead in case any abnormal student should get hungry at night, the student trots to the "Little Hatch" in search for something to eat. If he can get by the lines to read the menu, he finds:

TO OUR PATRONS
for your OVERSTUFFED Grinders:

Delicious Corn-Fed Hams—when delicately cut this flavor-filled meat bears a close resemblance to sliced lard.

For the "Kosher" Minded. Roast-Beef—to titillate your palate: co-agulations of fat laced with well - done stringy meat.

a light SNACK?

We have a large store of grill-warmed . . .Hamburgers and Hotdogs—you get a full 2% over other restaurants (fat content). Our Tasty Meat is surpassed only by the cold buns they're served in!

FRIDAY

Cape Cod is only a. . .Fish Sandwich away. four or five will hold one till lunch. (Be sure to have onions with it to cover the fishy taste)

a Side Order?

25 delicious greasy French Fries served handily in a dish meant to be a cover.

for your CONVENIENCE

the Pleasant Surroundings are only part of our "new Efficiency" and "Student Oriented Attitudes." Upon request the Management will be happy to take any patron on a Tour of the Fountain Area. Features of importance are:

the Freezers—taking up prime counter space

the Milk-Shake Machine — facilitating a game of "dodg'em" between the worker and the customer.

the Soda Fountain Area — located too many important steps from the counter.

All of this Well-Planned Organization is meant to Speed up Service and Cut Down the Waiting in Line!

Thank you,
The "Management"

I haven't done any "study" on the Little Hatch and I haven't interviewed any people. The following remarks on what the Little Hatch represents at the present time come from my observations while on both sides of the counter at both of the "Hatches", as well as, experience in two of my own successfull "food enterprizes." This total experience is hardly necessary to obtain these conclusions, however.

I, and those in sympathy with their stomachs, would appreciate an answer to this letter in reference to: Why the quality of food, planning of the fountain area, and attitude of a number of workers(not all), is so insulting to the S.W. student? Is it too much to hope that some one in a responsible position might know why this isn't just another failure by the Administration to "co-operate" with the student?

Now that all these changes will be effected (for sure when one sees the right path, he follows it); one other suggestion on how to deal with he, who is now interested in running the Little Hatch for the student,—remove him!

Thank-you,
R. G. Moore

Matter of Course

To the Editor:

Professor Gamble's recommendation concerning fraternities on campus points up a serious problem on campus. The unfortunate fact which has always been very prevalent is that fraternities are the only place where a couple can have privacy on a date, where a couple can have alcoholic beverages in a decent atmosphere, and where the tremendous pressures of the university can be alleviated. The fraternity also serves to counteract the mass-student features of a multi-university. The problem is even more accentuated by Dean Hopkins' "corney" attitude about open houses.

If the administration is desirous of improving fraternity life and campus life in general, then it should face these problems. The most obvious solution is to first of all allow open house every weekend in the residence halls, without any unnatural open door directive. It would be the responsibility of the house governments to decide whether the open house is on Friday night, Saturday night, or both. Second of all drinking should be allowed officially in the Residence Halls. The university is not in the liquor business and therefore does not come under the purview of the law prohibiting sales of liquor to those under twenty-one. The places to watch are the package stores, not the students' rooms. If the university wants a responsible student body, then it should put the responsibility for these activities onto the students.

If students were given the above rights, then they would not be driven to join fraternities as is now the case. If the students were not explicitly denied privacy with a female and the right to drink alcoholic beverages, then there would be no need for fraternities as they exist on this campus. That fraternal feeling would become part of the Residence Halls. And most important, the emphasis on intellectual activities would become the "new" preoccupation. If the physiological and emotional needs were handled as a matter of course, then the intellectual needs would come to the forefront.

Wayne L. Dorris '68

House Painters

To the Editor:

Handwriting on the wall.

Somebody white-washed the Newman Center Saturday night with the words "Spellman is a Fascist Dog." And I had thought that the days of swastikas on synagogues were over! But then, we will always have our hate-mongering house painters in Berlin, in Amherst.

I thank the harbinger of a new era of free speech for this initial announcement. If only I could be sure it was the work of a college student I would include congratulations for the professors, parents, and cohorts of the artist for a job well done.

The bravery of soldiers on the front lines is nothing when compared to the staunch painter taking on the walls of a church in pre-dawn hours.

Yes sir, he deserves a pat on the back. He is a mighty big man on campus! Sign me,

A Fascist Dog

A Spring Day Poem

Many think it will not come,
and this is so untrue.
Yes, Spring Day will be here this year,
no doubt it's here for you.
I know that you will learn the date,
now some of you will not;
the date, you'll see, is very clear,
however, give it thought.

Paul S. Lereaux

Democrats Here Tonight

CHAIRMAN OF THE MASS. DEMOCRATIC PARTY PLATFORM COMMITTEE, State Senator Mario Umana (Standing left) speaks to students at American International College in Springfield. Senator Umana and the rest of the platform committee will be in the Commonwealth Room of the Student Union tonight at 7:30 to discuss all phases of Mass. Democratic policy and state issues with students.

WMUA to Host Field In Discussion of Issues

Tuesday at 8:00, Dean of Students William F. Field will join host Pete Ward on WMUA's ACTION "67" to discuss some of the problems that have occurred between students and administration during the past academic year. Included will be comments on the subject of more effective communications between students and the Administration.

In the past year there have been several breakdowns in student-administration communications. Examples were the ten dollar graduation fee imposed on the class of 1967 and the removal of the Close art exhibit. Both of these actions were accomplished with little or no student consultation, or participation.

Dean Field and Pete Ward will discuss some of the proposals that have come from both students and administration in an effort to close the communications gap. Tune in ACTION "67" Tuesday at 8:00 on WMUA. Keep up with the campus on WMUA 91.1 FM.

THE GENIUS OF SOUL . . .

(Continued from page 1)

He continued, "If older persons don't like what the kids like, then they should keep it to themselves."

Ray added that he enjoys whatever the kids like. He tries to go with the crowd and this might be the reason for his long success.

"I've been lucky because I've never had trouble finding work," he concluded.

Regarding future releases the singer added that he had a new single out, Here We Go Again. He happily stated that 5,000 of these singles sold in Boston last week.

"This is very unusual for Boston," Ray said.

He also has a new album coming out entitled "Listen" in a couple of weeks.

Ray then said that he had to go put on his coat and walked out to the bus hitting the road for another concert.

DONAHUE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

Donahue went on to say a "comprehensive adult education program" is also needed to provide quality education for "those who are not able to attend school on a full-time basis."

Donahue concluded by saying: "It is my sincere conviction that the only hope for both such undertakings will lie in the hands of a Democratic Legislature. That being the case, my friends, I will close with the following remark: 'Let's keep our Legislature Democratic'."

When You See News In the Making Dial the "COLLEGIAN HOTLINE" 545-2550

Housing Notice

The continued growth of the University's summer program has resulted in a shortage of short-term summer rentals in the University area. The Housing Office has received many requests for such housing from participants of a number of summer institutes, plus students who plan to pursue course work during the summer session. Many of these persons are married, and it is their desire to have their families accompany them during their 4 to 12 week stay in Amherst. Any persons who plan to be away for all or part of the summer, and if they are interested in subleting their apartment or house, are urged to contact the Housing Office, extention 5-2785.

Dining Commons Menu

MONDAY
Breakfast:
Pineapple Juice
Tangerines
Assorted Cold Cereals
Farina
Pancakes—Syrup
Lunch:
Chicken Vegetable Soup
Frankfurts with Roll
Macaroni Salad
Chili Con Carne
Peas
Dinner:
Baked Pork Chops
English Brown Potatoes
Braised Beef on Rice
Parsley Cauliflower

TUESDAY
Breakfast:
Grapefruit Juice
Bananas
Assorted Old Cereals
Maltex
Fried Eggs
Ham
Lunch:
Beef Barley Soup
B.L.T. Sandwich
Potato Chips
Stuffed Peppers
German Fried Potatoes
Whole Kernal Corn
Dinner:
Roast Lamb—Gravy—Mint Jelly
Meat Loaf—Gravy
Whipped Potato
Carrots

WEDNESDAY
Breakfast:
Tomato Juice
Grapefruit Half
Assorted Cold Cereals
Oatmeal
Scrambled Eggs
Cornmeal Muffins
Lunch:
French Onion Soup
American Chop Suey
Green Peas
Fruit Salad Plate
Potato Chips
Dinner:
Grilled Ham Steak
Veal Fricassee
Parsley Potato
Green Beans

THURSDAY
Breakfast:
Orange Juice
Purple Plums
Assorted Cold Cereals
Farina
French Toast—Syrup
Lunch:
Split Pea Soup
Hamburg with Roll
Potato Chips
Corn Fritter & Sausage
Lima Beans
Punch
Dinner:
Roast Turkey—Dressing—Gravy
Cranberry Sauce (Turkey Roll)
Whipped Potato
Cold Meat Plate
American Cheese
Potato Salad
Diced Carrots

FRIDAY
Breakfast:
Grape Juice
Applesauce
Assorted Cold Cereals
Maltex
Omelet
Doughnuts
Lunch:
Clam Chowder
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
French Fries
Veal Chow Mein
Rice
Dry Noodles
Dinner:
Baked Halibut Steak—Lemon Wedge
Salisbury Steak
Lyonnaise Potatoes
Whole Kernal Corn

SATURDAY
Breakfast:
Apple Juice
Tangerines
Assorted Cold Cereals
Oatmeal
Scrambled Eggs
Blueberry Muffins
Lunch:
Vegetable Soup
Franks/Bun
Baked Beans
Cold Plate/Chips
Punch
Dinner:
Beef Meat Loaf—Gravy
German Fried Potatoes
Chicken a-la-king & Corn Bread
Buttered Peas

Senate to Consider Incentives Bill

The following are major issues or bills up for consideration in the Student Senate this Wednesday. If you have any comments, you can direct them to your senator or to the Senate Public Relations Committee, Senate Office. Senate Meeting is open and begins at 5:45.

S1. Move underway to cut several budgets, possibly including Motar Board, Forensic, etc. This is in response to a new Senate policy of limited aid to special interest groups. Chances are good.

S109. Move to establish an Academic Complaint Board to protect student rights.

S11. Move to establish a Labor Relations Board to handle student—University labor relations.

S128. Move to recommend weekend meal ticket be done away with on grounds of unfeasibility.

S153. Move to endorse the proposed University Health Services fee increases of $5.00.

S160. Move to endorse the statements of YAHOO and the Communications Board in answer to the Provosts objections to YAHOO's publication under the present Senate approved plan.

S123. Move to accept an RSO constitution for the Bay State Special Forces.

S139. Move to extend 5th Amendment to SGA.

S151. None to establish a system of monetary incentives for certain positions of Student leadership, such as WMUA station manager and COLLEGIAN editor in Chief.

ADVERTISERS

During the week of May 8-12 the COLLEGIAN will publish daily.

Please note the following deadline schedule for advertising and plan accordingly:

11 a.m.—Monday for Wed. & Thurs.

11 a.m.—Wednesday for Fri.

No ads will be accepted after these deadlines.

LIBRARY

All books charged out to graduate and undergraduate students must be returned to the Library by May 22. Any extension beyond May 22 will have to be taken up on an individual basis at that time.

University maintenance crew attempts to remove the work of vandals on the red brick of the Student Union this morning. The paint was difficult to remove since it soaked into the porus bricks and the building will probably have to be retouched.

ENDS TUESDAY
Shown Evenings at 8:00
AMHERST Cinema
BORIS PASTERNAKS
DOCTOR ZHIVAGO

Student - Faculty Forum
THURSDAY, MAY 11, 11:15 A.M.
MAHAR AUDITORIUM
ALSO BEING PRESENTED:
The Outstanding Teacher's Award within the College of Agriculture
Sponsored by
ALPHA ZETA & STOSO

ATTENTION CLASS OF 1968
Applications are now being accepted for next year's Executive Council. We need representatives from all parts of the campus. Deadline is 5:00 p.m., May 10. Application sheets are available in R.S.O. office.
Support Your Class in the Coming Year

Youth Orchestra Presents Concert

The UMass Department of Music presented the University Youth Orchestra Concert on Sunday, May 7.

The young local musicians were conducted in an hour-long program by Joseph Contino. The program consisted of four pieces: Mozart's Minuet from Symphony No. 39 in E Flat and Concerto No. 4 for Horn, Ditterdorf's Tournament of Temperaments, and Strauss' Emperor Waltzes, Op. 437.

Chapin Kaynor, was the French horn-soloist for Concerto No. 4 for Horn.

The University Youth Orchestra was established in the Spring of '65 and has been given much assistance by the Department of Music.

If You See
News in the Making
Dial
545-2550

Spectrum Editors Stress Creativity

Spectrum, the new general interest magazine on campus, will be holding two coffee hours in the Commonwealth Room beginning at 6 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday, May 15th and 16th.

Editor-in-Chief Fred Pilon said that the coffee hours are designed to attract members of the University community into participating in and contributing to the "new creative attempt in UMass journalism".

Pilon explained that the mazagine will be soliciting the best manuscripts in all areas from poetry to essays, feature articles, drama and short stories as well as photography and geographic arts.

Writers known on the national level will also be approached for literary contributions. John Farr, Fiction Editor and that he "hopes the national contributions will help spark campus interest in the publications as well as give campus authors a standard of quality to shoot for".

The magazine will appear four times a year beginning next semester and has a working budget of $26,000. Spectum will be stressing creativity in make up as well as writing and photography and graphic arts according to Managing Editor Jim Foudy.

A number of approaches are being taken to see that the best material is published.

Pilon explained that in the past some campus publications have grown into cliques and only the members of the clique had their work published. Pilon said that procedures are being adopted to avoid this.

Spectrum is still seeking a non-fiction editor and positions on the staff are open in the areas of layout, color-coordinating, copyediting, secretarial, advertising and business.

Summer Library Hours

29 May-12 September 1967

Monday, 29 May—8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Tuesday, 30 May—CLOSED

31 May-13 June

Monday-Friday — 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Saturday-Sunday—CLOSED

14 June-3 July; 5-21 July; 26 July-1 September

Monday-Thursday — 8:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Friday—8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Saturday—10:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Sunday—2:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
Tuesday, 4 July—CLOSED
Saturday, 22 July—CLOSED
Sunday, 23 July—CLOSED
Monday-Tuesday, 24-25 July — 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Saturday-Monday, 2-4 September —CLOSED

5-11 September

Monday-Friday—8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Saturday-Sunday—CLOSED
Tuesday, 12 September — 8:00 a.m.-10:00 p.m.

NOTICES

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
On Tues., May 9, at 6:30 in the Council Chambers of the S.U. there will be a general business meting.

AEO
On Tues., May 9, at 8:00, 118 Sunset Ave. there will be a meeting of the Free Agents Association, come if you care to.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION
There is a meeting every Tuesday in Worcester Room, S.U. at 6:45 P.M. All are cordially welcome.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST
On Tues., May 9, at 8:00 P.M. in Mahar Aud., the film "The Restless Ones" put out by the Billy Graham Organization. Admission 50¢.

HILLEL
On Mon., May 8 at 7:00 P.M. in the Council Chambers of the S.U. Dr. Haim Gunner will speak on "Secular Judaism".

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB
On Thurs., May 11 there will be an important meeting-election of officers to be held.

PHYSICAL CHEMISTRY SEMINAR
On Tues., May 9 at 11:15 in Goessmann 51, Dr. T. C. Snyder of Bell Telephone Labs will speak on "The Determination of Molecular Structure from NMR in Nematic Solvents".

LOST
Pair of ski type sunglasses on Counseling Day in rm. 300 Eng. Lab. between 9:00 and 10:00 A.M. Contact Prof. Bisgey or Clifford Savell, 6-9775.

FOUND
Man's class ring, 1967, record and goggles. Contact the Registrar's Office.

PINNINGS
Susan Anderson, class of '68, Crabtree, to John Kraszeski, class of '68, George Washington.

ENGAGEMENTS
Moira Coleman, Falls Church, Va., to John Kelly, class of '69, Sunderland.
Diane Marshall, class of '68, Crabtree, to John Kraszeski, class of '68, George College.
Renata Bruigezu, Berlin, Germany, to Dave Gmyrek, class of '69, Millers Falls

APT. FOR SUMMER
Florence, Mass., just off Rte. 9 $70/month, possibly furnished, space for four, call 546-8832.

THINKING OF GETTING ENGAGED

Student Diamond
BUYING SERVICE
(WITH SPECIAL PRICE CONSIDERATION)
by
HERB COHEN
in association with his father

NATHAN COHEN
Jeweler & Diamond Merchant
"In the Bowles Building"
Room 206 - Second Floor
1618 MAIN STREET, SPRINGFIELD 3, MASS.
Established 1912 Phone RE 2-5244

Dear Student,

"A diamond engagement ring--one of the most personal and important purchases in an individual's life--is often one of the most difficult.

"I believe that young adults in general, and university students in particular, would welcome a straight-forward unembellished presentation of the facts by someone qualified by training and experience, who is sincerely interested in assisting them in making an intelligent and informed selection."

Qualifications:
N.Y.U.—B.S. Marketing
G.I.A. (Gemological Institute of America)—Specialized Diamond Training

TUESDAY NITE IT HAPPENS
The Billy Graham Film
THE RESTLESS ONES
MAHAR
MAY 9
8 P.M.
50¢
Sponsored by Campus Crusade
for Christ
& I.V.C.F.

INTERVIEW ON CAMPUS
MAY 11, 1967
THURSDAY
4 P.M.
STUDENT UNION, MIDDLESEX ROOM

A representative of the AMERICANA CORPORATION will visit our campus to interview and select men and women for full time summer employment, on Thursday, May 11 at 4 p.m. in the Middlesex Room.

To those selected Americana Corporation will offer liberal income, part education and training for:

- SALES
- SALES MANAGEMENT
- ADVERTISING
- SALES PROGRAM
- MARKETING

Along with valuable knowledge and experience gained Americana offers a minimum income of

$750.00 GUARANTEED INCOME PLUS BONUS
for those selected.

COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS
Are also awarded to those selected
Here is a great opportunity for those who are Go-Getters!

EARN WHILE YOU LEARN
Many of Americana's executive programs have been by students upon graduations, who have gained experience with the corporation during the summer recess.

BE THERE!
MIDDLESEX ROOM — THURSDAY
MAY 11 — 4 P.M.

KAWASAKI 250
MODEL A1 (SUPERLUBE) "Samurai" rotary valve—twincarb
31 bhp
ss ¼ 15.1 sec
105 mph
5 speed

HELMETS

SERVICE AND REPAIRS ON ALL MAKES
Models from 85 cc to 650 cc
Parts — Accessories
HOURS: MON.-FRI. NOON-8 P.M.
SATURDAY 9 A.M.-2 P.M.

USED BIKES
'60 Indian 700 $625
'65 Honda 305 $500
'66 Honda S65 $225
'56 Matchless 500 $325
'66 Jawa 250 $375
'65 Honda 305 $450

Shop, inc 57 S. Prospect St. 253-3283
CHARGE IT ... CAP THIRD NATIONAL

The Sports Week in Review

The Pro Shop

by STEVE ROSS

BASEBALL—The bubble has burst. The cries of "Wait Til Next Year!", "Look Out Below!", and "Boston is dead!" are being heard all over Beantown. Thanks to the slumps of Carl Yestrzemski, the wild pitches of Jim Lonborg, the gopher serves of Bill Rohr, the inept fielding of Dalton Jones and the untimely hitting of just about everybody, the Sox are slipping ever downward. The only one to attempt a reversal of trend is Dennis Bennett.

Detroit and Chicago appear to be definite contenders. The White Sox with their pitching and speed and the Tigers with their pitching luck have moved to the top.

In the National League, Cincinnati is still on top, but the Pittsburgh Pirates have moved into definite contention. Atlanta also looms a threat. The Giants have failed to get untracked and are still in the second division.

HOCKEY—The Toronto Maple Leafs won the Stanley Cup for the fourth time in six years. The highly-favored Montreal Canadiens were defeated in six games. Faced by Dave Keon, the Leafs took the final game on Tuesday, 3-1. It broke a two-year monopoly the Canadiens had on the Cup.

Keon, a nifty 5'9", 163-lb. center, received the Conn Smythe award. The Smythe award, consisting of a sports car and cash, is given to the most valuable player in the Stanley Cup playoffs. Smythe is the retired owner of the Maple Leafs.

The NHL announced its individual post-season honors. Winner of the Hart (Most Valuable Player) Trophy was Chicago's Stan Mikita. Mikita also won the scoring title, and the Lady Byng (sportsmanship) Trophy. Cash bonuses accompanied the awards. Also honored was New York's Harry Howell, who was given the Norris (best defenseman) Trophy. Howell polled a huge lead during the first half of the season and nosed out Chicago's Pierre Pilote.

To the surprise of absolutely no one, Bobby Orr of the Bruins won the Calder (best rookie) Trophy. Orr will make the second All-Star feam as well. He will be the youngest player ever to make an All-Star team. The only surprise was that Orr received only 168 out of a possible 180 votes. A few "experts" should have their eyes examined.

* * *

BASKETBALL—The NBA held the college-draft last Wednesday. Before the draft was held, Detroit, who had first pick guaranteed, signed Jimmy Walker. Walker, who was the best of a poor lot of college seniors, received $250,000 for a two-year contract. Second player to be selected was Earl Monroe of Winston-Salem who went to Baltimore. Baltimore promptly signed Monroe.

The ease with which the NBA has been signing players may force the ABA out of existence or to super-minor league status. All the college stars who have superstar potential (Bradley and Walker) have gone to the NBA.

Boston picked Mal Graham of NYU. Graham, a 6'1" guard, set a Violet scoring record during his three years. He is a nifty ball-handler with great defensive skills. Red Auerbach then selected Neil Shedd of Texas Western and Mike Redd of Kentucky Wesleyan.

The Celtics lost Jim Barnett, Toby Kimball, and Roy Watts in the expansion draft. With the loss of Barnett and K. C. Jones (to retirement), Graham will become the ninth player on the club.

URI Takes Championship

SOUTH HADLEY—Defending champion UMass held a slim lead after the first round, but Rhode Island rallied to win the Yankee Conference Golf championship by 17 strokes at the Orchards Country Club here Friday.

Team depth was the key to URI's victory, its third Conference title in five years. The Rams placed five men in the top men. UMass placed two in the top five but failed to put any more in the upper ten, finishing second.

Maine was third, New Hampshire fourth, Connecticut fifth and Vermont finished last.

Jim McDonald was high man for UMass with rounds of 78 and 74 for a 152 and second place. Ed Poichlopek ended up in a three-way tie for third place with 77-76-153.

Dan Esposito of UConn won individual honors with a 151 score for the 36-hole tourney. Dana Quigley shot the low round of the tournament with a 72.

Other top ten finishers: Bruce Morin (URI), 76-77-153, tie for third; Quigley, 81-72-153, tie for third; Len Ladd (Maine), 83-73-156, tie for sixth; Dave Barbour (Maine), 77-79-156, tie for sixth; Kevin Hoban URI), 77-81, tie for eighth; Paul Quigley (URI), 80-78-158; tie for eighth; and Charley Tascano (URI), 78-81-159, tenth.

UNH Here Wed.

Lacrossemen Trounce M. I. T., 14-4; UConn Bows 9-2; 'Super-Sophs' Shine

by TIM KELLEHER
Staff Reporter

After a tough loss to Amherst, Coach Dick Garber's lacrosse team bounced back Friday and trounced MIT, 14-4, on a cold and rainy field behind the Cage.

In what was thought to be a rather close contest, the game turned out to be a field day for the "Super Sophs." Accounting for eight goals and four assists, the sophs were led by Kevin O'Connor with four goals, Steve Connolly (3 goals), Sean Walker (one goal), Brad Herling (two assists), and Steve Chambers and Gary Vassar each chipping in with an assist.

Co-captain Kevin O'Brien's shoulder injury didn't stop him from scoring two unassisted goals. Rick Mollander, also a starting hockey player this year, had a goal and an assist along with Don Rana. Seniors Bill DeRosa and Co-captain Howie Goffman each scored a goal to round out the scoring for UMass.

The UM defense played an outstanding game. Led by soph Mark Schlossberg, whose hustle and some fine saves pose a threat to regular goalie Bill Sinclair (he has an eye injury), the defense of Walt Alessi, Fred Foley and Tom Tufts broke up several of the Engineers offensive drives. Tufts, who's filling in for the injured Ira Yavner, played an exceptionally fine game.

In the first quarter, the score ended 1-1. O'Brien opened the scoring for UMass at 8:01 on an unassisted shot. A minute later, MIT's George Wheeler evened the score.

From the second quarter on, it was UMass all the way. O'Connor scored two in a row on assists from Herling and Rana at 4:32 and 8:07. MIT's Walt Marling kicked in a fluke goal 25 seconds later. Molander boomed in score number four on an assist from Vassar at 9:42.

Two back-to-back goals, one by O'Connor, on an assist from Bob Murphy at 11:49, and one at 11:55, by Howie Goffman, Molander put the game out of reach of the Engineers. MIT's Neal Gillman screened shot scored the final goal of the half to make the score 6-3, UMass.

UMass opened the scoring in the third period at 7:41 on a shot by senior Bill DeRosa. Nine seconds later, Connolly fired a beautiful shot past the Engineers' goalie. O'Brien made the score 9-3, UMass, at 10:02.

On a break from center field, Steve Anderson flipped the ball to Chambers who passed to O'Connor, "the Fox," in the corner. If "the Fox" is anywhere near the goal, especially the goalie's right hand side, you almost can be certain of a score for UMass. O'Connor scored again at 11:40 with an assist credited to the bone bruiser, Chambers.

Gutman of MIT scored the Engineers' last goal at 13:40 on an assist from Von Waldburg. Rana and Connolly scored at 14:03 and 14:56 to end the third quarter with the score 12-4, UMass.

The last quarter saw plenty of action for the UMass reserves, giving them valuable experience. Connolly made the hat trick at 5:12 and Sean Walker scored his first goal of the year on an assist from the scrappy Herling.

In what was probably their easiest game of the season, UMass' lacrosse team walked all over the University of Connecticut Saturday afternoon, 9-2, yy the intramural fields.

Once again, the determined defense of UMass, made up of Schlossberg, Tufts, Foley and Alessi played another superb game.

Kevin O'Connor had two goals and two assists, boosting his total points to 25, which leads the second highest scorer, Gary Vassar, who had one goal and two assists in the game, by two points. Co-captain Howie Goffman bagged a goal and an assist and Rick

(Continued on page 8)

COLLEGIAN Photo by Bill Gleason

FIGHTING IRISH—UMass soph Steve Connolly battles for ball against two UConn defenders. Connolly tallied once in 9-2 Redmen victory. Against MIT, Connolly netted the hat trick.

Tired of Listening?

The Democratic Party Platform Committee with State Senator Mario Umana and State Party Chairman Lester Hyman wants to hear your views on:

- Lowering the voting age
- Education in state schools
- Automobile Insurance
- Taxation

ANY ISSUE YOU MAY WISH TO VOICE

Monday, May 8th, Commonwealth Rm—7:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Young Democrats

Would You Be Interested in Helping An Incoming Freshman?

A list is being compiled of those concerned with the fall orientation of the class of '71.

THIS LIST WILL BE MADE AVAILABLE TO NEXT SEMESTER'S FRESHMAN CLASS ON THEIR ARRIVAL.

You would be giving only "advice" and mostly to students from your "hometown" or vicinity, and only when they contacted you.

YOU WOULD NOT BE ASKED TO HELP MORE THAN TWO (2) STUDENTS.

IF INTERESTED CONTACT:

GEORGE GOODFELLOW 6-7909
ROGER FRENCH 6-7904
ARNIE WALLENSTEIN 6-7900
PHIL PRZYBYSZEWSKI 6-7916
GARY GREENBERG 6-9141

THIS TUESDAY at 8:00 on WMUA's with host Pete Ward—ACTION "67"

DEAN FIELD

Dean of students discusses present University-Student Relations.

Keep up with the campus with ACTION "67" on WMUA 91.1 FM

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
MONDAY, MAY 8, 1967
Page 8 Vol. XCV, No. 72

Landry, Grasso Star

Gridders Display Speed, Passing, Outstanding Sophomores in Scrimmage

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

UMass football fans can expect more speed, more passing, and some outstanding sophomores next fall. At least that's the impression one got from watching Saturday's intraquad game at Alumni Stadium.

The Red team, comprised mostly of veterans, defeated the freshman-packed White squad, 19-0, although there were bright spots on both sides in the game, the culmination of spring practice for Vic Fusia's Redmen.

Co-captain quarterback Greg Landry ran for one touchdown, passed to freshman Gerry Grasso for another and soph Tim Driscoll scored the third TD on a run. It wasn't all Red, however, as several White performers stood out.

Ron Coltin started at quarterback for the Whites and moved the team well, but a couple of costly fumbles ruined their chances of scoring. In the second half, frosh Tim Adams came in to call the signals for the Whites and showed a good deal of poise.

Landry scored the first touchdown at 9:53 of the first quarter on a sweep around right end from six yards out. His running, along with that of Grasso, Don Durkin and freshman Larry Fortunoff had set up the Red score.

The second touchdown was a picture play, coming 3:10 of the third period. From the 44-yard line of the Whites, Landry hit Grasso with a pinpoint pass at the 15. The speedy wingback shot out from between two defenders and raced into the end zone unharmed. That made it 13-0.

Another Landry-Grasso collaboration, this one for 19 yards, set up the Reds on the White five with 6:11 to go in the game. Driscoll then took a handoff and burst right up the middle to wrap up the afternoon's scoring.

The two squads used the I formation for much of the game, giving reason to believe that Fusia will go with the I a lot more next fall. With what appears to be a wealth of backfield depth, Redmen fans can expect more offense next year.

Grasso, a product of Everett, will be dangerous at either a wingback or a tailback spot next year. A speedster, he promises to be one of the most exciting Redmen in a long time.

Excelling for the Whites were freshman wingback Bob Lovell, who showed he has all the moves, and sophomore end Joe DiVincenzo.

For the Reds, big Don Durkin was very effective on off-tackle slants from the I formation. On defense, Mike McArdle has moved to the safety spot vacated by graduating Dave Giarla. Moving into the defensive backfield were freshman Dan Driscoll and soph Frank Tavolacci.

The interior line looks good despite the loss of Dick Qualey and Ed Toner. With the likes of Paul Mlinar, Bruno Debiak, Kent Stevens, Roger Prefontaine and Doug Faucette, Fusia appears set with his front five.

It was good to see Bob Santucci of Newton back on the offensive line. "Tooch" was injured before last season and was forced to sit out the fall. A senior, he is being red-shirted and will return to play offensive guard. His presence will be an invaluable help to the UMass offense.

COLLEGIAN Photo by Bill Gleason

TWO FOR STEW—UMass second-baseman Frank Stewart rips double to right in fifth inning of Tufts game to plate Tony Chinappi and Elliot Klein. UMass prevailed, 7-3.

Reliever Elliot Saves 7-3 Win Over Tufts; Three Hits for Joe D.

by MIKE GOULD
Staff Reporter

Norm Elliot's superb relief pitching and a six-run fifth-inning rally gave the Redmen an uphill 7-3 win over Tufts Saturday at the varsity field.

The visiting Jumbos took a 3-0 lead at the expense of UMass starter Dave Katz. Joe O'Kelly treated the junior lefty harshly with a single and a long triple, setting up all of his teams runs.

The Redmen got one back in the third on three walks by Tufts hurler Bob Elliot and a fielder's choice off Frank Stewart's bat. Norm Elliot entered in the fourth and the stage was set for a pitching duel between the brothers Elliot. Norm won it easily, with help from the suddenly booming Redmen bats.

The decisive fifth inning started when Tony Chinappi reached on an error. Elliot then embarrassed his brother with a well-placed bunt for a hit. Joe DiSarcina liked what he saw, and he, too, beat out a bunt to fill the bases for Stewart. Frank responded with a double off the right-field wall to tie the game at 3-3. Part-time pitcher Carl Boteze then conformed to his outfield role with a line single to center, scoring a pair. Don Ferron followed Ted Mareno's double with a hit to right scoring the last two runs of the game.

DiSarcina, with three hits, and Stewart with the clutch double were the offensive standouts for UMass.

The star of the game, however, was sophomore righthander Elliot. Norm showed the polse and stuff that made him the top frosh hurler last season. He was in trouble only in the ninth, but preserved his six-inning shutout by getting O'Kelly on an easy fly with the bases loaded.

UMass catcher Chinappi made the game's best defensive play when he crashed into the backstop while making a driving catch of a pop.

Nine Hosts Springfield Today, Faces Crucial Week Ahead

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Facing its heaviest and most crucial week of the season, the UMass baseball team hosts Springfield College this afternoon at 3 at the varsity field.

The Redmen play five games in the next seven days, with three of them Conference games. UM is leading the conference with a 5-1 record, as UConn dropped to second Saturday by losing to New Hampshire, 3-2. The Huskies are 5-2.

Springfield has one of the better teams in the area, and goes into today's contest with a 6-3 mark. The Maroons rely on excellent hitting and better-than-adequate pitching. Coach Archie Allen has a veteran-packed squad.

Leading the pitching staff are senior righthander Jeff Williamson, a fast ball specialist, and junior righty Ken DeMond, who throws an excellent curve.

Only one starter has been lost from the rest of the team. In the infield, Springfield starts Tom Bohan, a long ball hitter, at first. Junior Bob Kyle, a slick fielder and a good hitter, plays second. Sophomore Skip Clayton plays short and Dick Wojtukiewicz handles third.

The outfield is led by Captain Dave Bennett, a football player with a great arm and a fine bat. He is helped out by Charlie Lelas, a junior who swings a good bat, and junior Brian Hamernick, the fastest man on the squad.

Warren Parker and Jim Watson, both strong defensive players, share the catching duties for Springfield.

Carl Boteze should start for the Redmen, who will be looking to revenge last year's 11-7 loss to the Maroons.

Elements Entangle Yan-Con Netmen; Leading UMass Halted by Rain

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

A bad call by the weatherman robbed the UMass tennis team of their first Yan-Con title in four years. On Saturday at 11 p.m. calls were placed to the weather stations throughout the Connecticut valley. Everybody gave predictions of rain throughout the weekend. With these predictions, the only logical thing to do was to cancel the tournament.

Steve Kosakowski explained, "The other five schools would have to secure motel accommodations for another night, and it would be ridiculous to do so, just to have them watch the rain. With the forecasts we were given, we had no choice except to cancel.

Attempts were made to move the meet elsewhere, but facilities couldn't be found. Calls were placed to indoor courts in Hartford, Springfield, Storrs and Durham, but they were either booked or the workmen required in setting up the courts couldn't be assembled.

The sun's appearance at 4:00 Saturday afternoon did little to cheer up Koz. He remarked "When I saw the sun, I really felt badly. Conditions wouldn't have been ideal, but we could have played. The boys wanted it so much and they played so well it was a terrible disappointment."

After the action that was completed on Friday the Redmen appeared to be in great shape. Four of the six singles men were in the finals and all three doubles were top-seeded.

Ander Meagher (Mo. 2) won his semi-final match against URI's Sunshine (how's that for irony?) in three sets. He was slated to meet UVM's Laddie Cook in the final. Co-Captain Gerry Johnson (No. 3), Carl Clemm (No. 4), and Scott Sheppard (No. 6) all had easier times reaching the final. Sheppard had the easiest time of all demolishing his opponent, 6-0, 6-1.

The only Redmen to lose were co-captain Harvey Mednicov and defending champion Al Davis. Davis just had an off day. Mednicov ran into his old nemesis, Mike Britton of UConn. After winning his first round match, Mednicov and Britton hooked up in a seat-squirmer. Britton had a tremendous overhead, while Mednicov was trying to play it to Britton's backhand. Britton rallied after losing the first set, 9-7, to take the last two 6-4, 8-6.

The Redmen had nine points while UVM had seven after the first day. An impending victory loomed ahead for the Redmen.

Three of the six are coming back next spring. Davis, Clemm and Sheppard are all underclassmen but Mednicov, Johnson, and Meagher are gone.

The team travels to Worcester today to meet Holy Cross, Wednesday they journey to Springfield College, and Friday they finally get to play UNH at Durham.

LACROSSE . . .

(Continued from page 7)

Mollander added an assist to his record.

With a 7-3 record, the Redmen are eager to face a strong New Hampshire team this Wednesday at 3 p.m. behind the Cage.

Sub-Par Showing By UMass Crews At Rusty Callow

WORCESTER, MASS. — UMass' hopes for an impressive showing in the Rusty Callow Regatta were all but wiped out as all three crews finished below expectations. Several hundred rain-soaked spectators watched as crews from twelve colleges raced down the 2000-meter Henley course on Lake Quinsigamond.

In the freshmen finals, UMass was unable to keep up with the favored Trinity frosh. The faltering Redmen wound up in third place as Marist sped by in the last 200 meters. Winning time for Trinity was 6:47.

The UMass J.V. squad had won their preliminary race, but were scuttled in the finals as Amherst, Holy Cross, and Trinity beat them to the finish line. Amherst covered the course in 6:47.

The UMass varsity fared even worse, failing to place in the preliminary round. The Redmen finished only 6 seconds behind Wesleyan College, but Holy Cross and Worcester Polytech passed the Redmen in the final 100 meters to qualify for the finals. Third place Worcester Polytech nudged out UMass by just .2 second, but it was enough to erase Redmen chances for racing in the finals. Wesleyan went on to win the varsity finals, with a time of 6:27.

Distance Runners Assault Records at Quantico Relays

Several members of the track team performed well in the two-day track carnival at the Quantico Marine Base in Virginia this weekend. The distance runners once again led the assault on school records.

The team's best showing came in the distance medley relay where they ran second to Temple in school record time of 10:07. Diego Gonzales led off with a fine 1:54 half-mile to put the Redmen right in contention with the leaders. Bill Thoms followed with a 51 sec. quarter - mile. Steve St. Clair ran the three-quarter mile in 3:07, and Terry Carpenter finished with a 4:14 mile to bring the team up to second only .3 seconds behind the winner. The time broke the old record of 10:15.

Greg Bowman, who has been assaulting assistant Coach O'Brien's half-mile record this season, drew closer with a 1:53.7 clocking while finishing fourth in the invitation half-mile. The winner of the race was Olympian and U.S.-Russia dual meet winner Tom Farrell of the Army.

Charley Lang, who has been running in the shadow of Paul Hoss and Steve St. Clair this year in the 2-mile, may have found his race. The bespectacled sophomore ran a fine 10,000 meters (over 6 miles) in 32:18 averaging 5:13 per mile and finished eighth against a classy field.

The first day was marked with sunshine and 80-degree weather, but on Saturday the events were marred by rain and cold, raw winds.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL — vs. Springfield (Home, Today, 3 p.m.). vs. Rhode Island (at Kingston, Tuesday, 3 p.m.)

TENNIS—vs. Holy Cross (at Worcester, Today, 2:30 p.m.)

GOLF—vs. AIC and Connecticut (Home, Today, 1:30 p.m.)

BASEBALL — (Frosh) — vs. URI (at Kingston, Tuesday, 3 p.m.)

LACROSSE — (Frosh — vs. Amherst (at Amherst, Tuesday, 3 p.m.)

PICTURE ESSAY: 'On Children' Pages 4 & 5

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

NATIONAL DAY OF INQUIRY Page 6

VOL. XCV, NO. 73 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | TUESDAY, MAY 9, 1967

PROFESSOR HOWARD LEBOW

Piano Solo by Professor To Be Given in Austria

by SNO WHITE
Staff Reporter

Professor Howard Lebow of the University of Massachusetts music department will perform in a solo piano concert at the Vienna International Festival in Austria this June. This is one of the most important music festivals in Europe and is unique in that it will be infested with people from Iron Curtain countries.

The performances are given by invitation. Leonard Bernstein and conductor Lorin Mazel were the only other Americans asked to appear. Professor Lebow will be the first American soloist at Vienna since Van Cliburn.

The motto of this year's Festival is "Danube Area". Thus the Danube River will serve as a symbol of unity between east and west Europe. Professor Lebow will play the music of composers of the Danube countries. The Schoenberg, Mozart, and Busoni selections have been performed by him on the University campus this season.

Professor Lebow has been at UMass for two years, however, his frequent concerts have interrupted his stay here. He has been to Europe three times already this year. He said that he will be glad to be back in Vienna, the city where he first made his European debut in 1960.

No Agreements At Trade Talks

GENEVA (AP)—Negotiators for the United States and the European Common Market failed to reach agreement early Tuesday at a crucial night session of the Kennedy Round of talks on lowering barriers to world trade.

A talk that lasted more than five hours broke up at 3:45 a.m., with no progress reported.

Another and bigger meeting was scheduled later in the morning with other key countries sitting in.

A neutral mediator said he could report no progress. He added that if no accord was reached later in the day, he saw little chance of getting one by the end of the week.

American negotiators declined to comment.

Six Oil Paintings Stolen From U. of Illinois Campus

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Six oil paintings, including one by Renoir and another by Rubens, were stolen Sunday night from the Krannert Art Museum on the University of Illinois campus.

Officials declined to give an immediate estimate of the paintings' value.

The Renoir painting was Femmes Nues Couchees, done in 1910. Rubens' work was the Banquet of Tereus, painted in 1936-37.

Other paintings stole were Madonna and Child, by Bartolome Estaben Murillo; Sunrise, by Dwight W. Tryon; Landscape, by Winslow Homer, and The Coin Collector by Adriaen Brouwer.

Campus police said the thief gained entry by breaking a glass in a door.

Atlantic City?

Junior Crowned Miss University

by JOAN VANDERBOGART
Staff Reporter

Kappa Kappa Gamma's Carole Willard, an English major from Groton, Conn., was crowned Miss University 1967 Friday night before a small but enthusiastic audience. The 5'8" dark-haired junior wore a yellow day outfit for the introductory Pageant Parade and a black and white linen gown for the evening gown competition.

Miss Willard not only showed beauty and poise in the first two competitions, but proved her talent by her portrayal of "The Jewish Wife," a monologue by Brecht. Miss Willard will receive a $200 scholarship award. As Miss University, she will go on to compete for the Miss Massachusetts title, then, perhaps, to Atlantic City for the Miss America Pageant.

Elizabeth True, a sophomore from Greenfield, and a member of Chi Omega, was selected as first runner-up. She won the audience with her singing "I Cain't Say No." Miss True will win a $100 scholarship.

Nominated by Sigma Kappa, Carlyn Miller was selected as second runner-up. Miss Miller, a physical Education major from Weymouth, will receive a $50 award.

"Golly!" exclaimed Dorrie

CAROLE WILLARD

Alderman, chosen by the contestants themselves as Miss Congeniality. Smiling Miss Alderman is a government major from South Hadley and was nominated by John Quincey Adams house.

Other contestants chosen for the queen's court were Roberta Kelley, from Lexington, a sophomore nominated by Hamlin House, and Judith Goodwin, a fashion merchandizing major from Waltham.

Special thanks should be given to Miss Pam Econoply, who sparkled the evening with her musical presentation, and brightened the long, tense wait for the judges' final decision. Mr. Samuelson, who played organ and piano, and accompanied some of the contestants in the talent competition, also helped to make the evening most enjoyable.

Presented by the Revelers and the Amherst Jaycees, the pageant was an official preliminary for the Miss America Pageant. It was the result of a week of long, hard hours of work for everyone involved, most especially for the contestants themselves.

As Judy Sturtevant, Miss University 1966 said of a past contest, "It wasn't just a pageant and it wasn't just a show . . . It was a cherished production . . . and we loved it."

Health Services Change Policy

Dr. Robert Gage, of the University Health Services, has released a statement concerning changes in the handling of student health information.

In order to protect the confidential nature of the contact of students with the Health Services, he feels obliged to adopt a policy of uniformly refusing to grant requests for detailed information when this information is to be used for screening.

The University Health Services has reviewed its practices and now feels that a modification in policy is in order. In the past, no information has been given concerning the nature of the health problem or the content of the consultation with the staff without the direct knowledge and consent of the student involved.

In spite of the desire to continue providing help to the vast majority of students whose welfare is not compromised by our previous policy, this change will be effective at once: requests for detailed health information from whatever source will be denied whenever it is apparent that the information is to be used for screening for another position. Only a general statement of health will be submitted in answer to such requests.

We shall continue, however, to complete health information forms for graduate schools, etc. whenever it can be indicated that the student has been accepted and that the health information being transmitted to appropriate medical personnel will be used only as a basis for providing health care for the future.

The need for some exceptions to this policy is recognized. Any complaints will be answered on an individual basis.

● Any court subpoena for health records will be answered. A request of this sort is made only two or three times a year. Every effort will be made to protect confidential information and to present all information in the best interest of the student.

● Selective Service requests will continue to be answered. The health statement will be made in an open letter.

● Requests from insurance carriers concerning applicants: Anyone applying for life insurance, etc., is entering a contract, one condition of which is that there shall be access to previous health information. This contract is a voluntary act on the part of the applicant and

(Continued on page 6)

Clay Arraigned; Released On Bail

HOUSTON (AP) — A quiet and subdued Cassius Clay answered "Not guilty" Monday to charges of refusing to be drafted into the armed forces.

The indictment, charging violation of the Selective Service Act, had been returned earlier in the day by a Federal grand jury. Bond of $5,000 was set.

The arraignment followed a conference with Clay's attorneys and U.S. Dist. Judge Ben C. Connally.

Clay then was photographed and fingerprinted and was released after posting the bond.

Conviction could bring a fine of $10,000 and a jail sentence up to five years. But Clay's attorneys say they are confident that he eventually will win his fight for exemption from the draft because of being a Black Muslim minister.

Air Force Jets Bomb Near Hanoi

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force jets swept in from Thailand bases Monday and bombed the Hoa Lac MIG airfield 20 miles west of Hanoi for the fifth time.

Simultaneously, Navy fliers from the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise pounded a naval supply area 20 miles northeast of the port city of Haiphong.

In South Vietnam, there were no reports of fresh fighting around "Leatherneck Square," an area of four U. S. Marine outposts just south of the demilitarized zone.

But late reports showed mounting casualties in the ranks of the Marines, Seabees and South Vietnamese forces defending the four forward positions.

The U. S. Command said the fighting Monday took a toll of 44 Marines killed and 140 allied troops wounded. Nearly all of the wounded were Marines also, but a few casualties were among Navy Seabees and U. S. Special Forces — Green Beret — troops.

Republican Party Strife

Mrs. Phyllis Schafly, right of Alton, Ill., who was defeated by Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, Calif., for the Presidency of the National Federation of Republican Women, is taking court action against the organization for alledgely fixing the election. (AP Wirephoto)

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

A Free Press

In a recent Playboy interview, Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba made some cogent comments on his country's policy of strict censorship. He said that no criticism of Cuba is allowed within that country; that no publication containing any counter revolutionary sentiments would be printed in Cuba; and that "the party . . . the political power, the revolutionary power" decides what is counter revolutionary, what is good, what is bad.

But what has this to do with freedom of the American collegiate press? Can Castro and his stooges be equated with a university president and his administration? Is freedom of the press on campus merely a mirror image of the "freedom" emanating from Havana?

On the face of it, censorship does not exist on American campuses. On the face of it, college administrators are dedicated to the democratic principles inherent in American higher education.

But perhaps a closer look will provoke some thought about a free press—policy and practice.

When asked if they favor freedom of the press, the majority of college administrators answer with a strong yes. Asked again if they would want their college's student publications to exercise freedom of the press, administrators still answer affirmatively.

But when asked if they would either condone or suppress a news story about mismanagement of university funds, or editorials questioning the competence of a university official, or editorials supporting, say, the legalizing of abortions, then college heads drag out the old saw: ". . . in the best interests of the university community". Here is the critical point.

As determined by college chiefs, the best interests of the university community are not always the best interests of the students. Or of the faculty. Rather, the best interests of the university community are just that: the preservation or solidification of existing functions, determined and executed by a select group of individuals who rarely, if ever, are responsible other than to the corporate body which they govern.

This is where a free press enters. As an independent voice, a free publication could examine issues and provide a public with both facts and opinion.

However, a free press always carries with it the potential of rocking the boat, of treading on sacrosanct ground and cutting the grass to see what that ground really looks like.

Castro feels that his ground is inviolate, that it needs no examination because it is right, that most people wouldn't understand the more complicated workings of the system anyway. He believes "in a people sufficiently cultivated and educated to be capable of making a correct judgment about anything without coming in contact with ideas that could confound or deflect their fundamental beliefs." But he doesn't believe his Cubans are capable of all that at the present time. He states, "May all the men and women of our country be like this in the future."

College administrators feel the same way. Sacrificing open debate for smoothness of operation, they feel that a free student voice amplified by a press would be operating in ignorance and without direction. When asked why students are presented over and over with a fait d'accomplie, never knowing the how or why, they explain that a student or body of students could never understand or assimilate all the intricacies involved in a decision-making process affecting hundreds and thousands of other individuals. Students could not gain the proper perspective, they say. Falling back on another homily, they say that a little information is a dangerous thing while all the information is beyond a student's comprehension. Thus, little or no open information about many, many areas. Castro operates out of the same misguided sense of all-encompassing knowledge.

There are many campuses across the nation in which freedom of the press is as remote as it is in Havana. What are some of these campuses? At the University of Texas student publications are not allowed comment "influencing the passage or defeat of any legislative measure" (House Bill 140). At Syracuse University in 1956-57, a question arose as to the good taste displayed in the humor magazine. Later in the year, the Publications Board interviewed three candidates for the post of editor. None were accepted and the magazine was scrapped. Robert M. MacIver, author of "Academic Freedom in Our Time", found that "in 1952, 141 institutions surveyed showed that 91 exercised supervision over editorial policy; 64 of these 'predicated prior censorship of editorial content'."

All this doesn't mean that every college administrator is a bearded, screaming dictator; or that all college publications are tightly and overpoweringly controlled. But it does mean that freedom of the college press is closer to being abridged than absolute. It means that censorship is achieving a degree of acceptance. It means that many students have not yet gained the courage of their convictions—have not yet begun to realize that to comply with control and censorship is to prolong their infancy and delay their maturity.

In reply, many say that control of a college press is nearly universal in varying degrees. They add that there must be some sound basis for such universality. That is like saying that infantile paralysis is all right because so many children have it.

The fact remains that students, faculty and administration alike must work to keep Cuba from our campuses and Castro from our college publications. T.D.

THE COLLEGIAN EDITORS

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed five times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; three or four times weekly the week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $6.00 per year; $3.50 per semester.

Ex-Congressman Hays Ending Year at UMass

"Politics is the delicate balance between principles and pragmatism," says Brooks Hays, former Democratic Congressman from Arkansas who is now completing his second semester of teaching at the University of Massachusetts.

The practicing politician, Mr. Hays tells his UMass classes, must be skillful at a sensitive task. "He must have values worth defending, be faithful to those values, and yet be flexible enough to succeed in advancing his beliefs and principles through the complex machinery of government."

The distinguished career of Brooks Hays, spanning over 40 years in public service, stands as a monument to his ability to be effective while at the same time maintaining his integrity in the world of politics, a world he calls "a hotbed of tranquility."

An eloquent, outspoken man with a pleasant Arkansas drawl, Hays served his country as Congressman, Assistant Secretary of State, United Nations Delegate and Democratic National Committeeman. Defeated for reelection to Congress in 1958, Mr. Hays has served as special assistant to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, and has also taught at Rutgers University. He came to UMass last fall as the University's Distinguished Professor of Practical Politics, a lectureship sponsored by a Ford Foundation grant.

So successful—and so popular—were his seminars, that the University invited him to remain on campus another semester to give more students a chance to benefit from his knowledge, charm and wit.

His lectures, always enhanced with colorful anecdotes drawn from his experience, cover many topics in the realm of public affairs. He talks of his own career, the relationship of religion to politics, the sources of power, the next Presidential election, the campaigns, and current issues facing Congress such as the Powell and Dodd cases.

Common to all subjects discussed, however, is the theme that the public servant must first be committed to values worth defending, and then be effective in advancing those values.

For example, as a Congressman, Hays was willing to modify his position on minor issues so that he could remain in a position of responsibility as an unyielding advocate of his principles when grave issues were at stake.

Such a situation arose, he says, in the selection of Post Office sites in his Congressional District. Hays yielded to local sentiment when it came time to decide on locations for new Post Offices although he may have favored different sites.

But when opposition to the Supreme Court's school integration order plunged Little Rock into a racial crisis in 1956, requiring the intervention of Federal troops, Congressman Hays, a dedicated moderate on the race issue, spoke forcefully of his belief in the rule of law and compliance with the Court's decisions. His efforts on behalf of Negroes and his attempts to mediate the dispute between Governor Orval Faubus and the Federal government were highly unpopular with many of his constituents, and led ultimately to his defeat for relection to Congress in 1958.

He had yielded in the relatively minor matter of a Post Office site to defend later his principles when the gravity of the situation called for it. It was, he says, "a painful dilemma."

The benefits of his vast political experience are enhanced by Hays' unique gifts in the realm of public speaking. Dr. William C. Havard, head of the department of government at UMass, has called former Congressman Hays a "verbal artist."

He's probably one of the most effective platform orators and easily the greatest example of grace and wit among public figures around." Prof. Havard says. "In addition, his career has been an example of integrity in public life."

The statesman's oratorical prowess has made him much sought after as a speechmaker, and he remains a close friend and adviser to many national leaders. In the classroom, for example, he often begins his remarks with "as I said to a group in San Francisco last week. . ." or "as President Truman pointed out to me. . ." Such introductions are invariably followed by a pertinent story enunciating an important principle.

And, too, his students get valuable advice about the inner workings of official Washington. "The martinis they serve there are lethal," he said while discussing the function of parties and the social aspects of government.

He has also discussed such matters as informal relationships among Congressmen (highly important"); race relations ("the issue of our ties"); the two-party system ("necessary. . .an opportunity to protest"); and even philosophy ("I insist that politics needs more philosophers in every branch, people who are equipped to follow consistently ideals that are rooted in sound philosophy").

VISTA To Recruit May 15 thru 17

Special to the Collegian

VISTA recruiters will be on the University of Massachusetts college campus, according to assistant field director Ken MacKenzie, on May 15 thru 17.

VISTA has recently adopted a new, accelerated policy for students who have received their bachelor's degrees or expect to receive them this year. "Our recruiters will now be able to invite qualified students to training programs while they are on campus," said MacKenzie.

More than 75 percent of VISTA Volunteers are drawn from college campuses. This year VISTA will recruit and train 4,500 volunteers to serve in more than 300 projects from coast to coast and in Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The Volunteers train intensively for six weeks and serve for one year. They receive a monthly allowance to cover basic living expenses. At the end of service they receive a stipend of $50 for each month served.

TUESDAY NITE IT HAPPENS
The Billy Graham Film
THE RESTLESS ONES
MAHAR
MAY 9
8 P.M.
50¢
Sponsored by Campus Crusade
for Christ
& I.V.C.F.

Flying Redmen at Review

The University's precision drill team, The Flying Redmen, will appear Friday evening at the annual Spring Military Review, The Flying Redmen have recently competed in the Manhattan College Invitational Drill Meet and Beanpot Drill Competition sponsored by the Northeastern University, where they placed fourth in trick drill among the twenty-two teams taking part. The Drill Team has prepared a special routine for its appearance Friday, and invites the University community to attend the military review.

Maroon Keys Elect Officers

Officers and committeemen of Maroon Keys have been elected for 1967-68. Peter Murphy was elected President; Robert Mahoney, Vice President; Philip Goldberg, Treasurer; and James Wilkinson, Secretary.

Elected to the Constitution Revision Committee were: Richard Aherne, William Bannick, John Langworthy, Robert Lewis, Edward Malmborg and Patrick McKenna.

Summer Program Committee officers are: John Ausikaitas, Robert Mahoney, Irwin Novack, Charles Ratner, and James Wilkinson. On the Activities Committee Richard Picket and Peter Schofield will represent Southwest, William Bannick and Richard Wynn will represent Orchard Hill and representing Brett, Gorman, and vicinity will be James Audet.

Patrick McKenna is chairman of the Judiciary Board. Robert Mahoney has been appointed already and two others will also be named.

War Protestors' Conviction Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court left standing today conviction of 17 demonstrators who protested U.S. policy in Vietnam in a street rally in the Times Square area of New York City.

Their appeals were thrown out as "improvidently granted" although the justices had held a hearing on the case last month.

No explanation was given of the court's views or why a majority of the justices now felt that the case should not have been heard in the first place.

The vote was 7 to 2, dissenting Justices Williams O. Douglas and Abe Fortas complaining in a written opinion that the constitutional questions raised in the appeal should have been resolved.

NOTICES

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB
On Thurs., May 11 at 7:00 p.m. in the Council Chambers there will be a general meeting and election of officers for 1967-68 will be conducted.

SU MOVIE
"FATHER GOOSE" will be shown in the SU ballroom on Wed., May 10th at 8:00 P.M.

SW STUDYING
Dining commons No. 5 in Southwest College will be open to students for studying between 7:30 and 10:30 Monday through Friday nights.

DISENGAGEMENTS
Leslie A. Dierauf, class of '70, Dickinson from Timothy D. Nelms, class of '69, Grayson.

ENGAGEMENTS
Dee Campbell '67, Leach to C. Bruce Parent class of '68, Kappa Sigma.
Correction. Dianne Marshall class of '68, Crabtree to John Foraste class of '67 Holy Cross College.

MARRIAGE
Linda Grasso, class of '70 Lesley College to Daniel Henderson, class of '69, Alpha Sigma Phi.

PINNINGS
Mary Ellen Carrigan, class of '68, JQA to Roddy F. Gerraughty, class of '68, Tufts University.
Pamela Green, class of '70 Dwight to Alan Johnson, class of '69, LCA.
Susan Anderson, class of '68 Crabtree to Jon Kraszeski, class of '67.
Margo Christensen, Johnson House class of '68 to Terry 'Studman' Crouch, class of '69, Phi Sigma Kappa.
Susan Niedzialkowski, class of '70 JQA to Steven Sheiffer, class of '70 Grayson.
Donna McLaren, class of '69 B.U. School of Nursing to Paul Richardson, class of '68 Phi Mu Delta.
Janie Zinober, class of '66, Florida State Univ., to Stephen Brecher, class of '67, Alpha Epsilon Pi.

SBA Lecture

Dr. Warne Discusses Consumer Movement

by ELAINE KAGAN
Staff Reporter

The dual nature of the consumer movement which benefits both business and buyer was discussed by Dr. Colston E. Warne, president of the Consumer's Union of the U.S., in his lecture on "Marketing Implications of the World Consumer Movement" last week.

Dr. Warne, who is a professor of economics at Amherst College, also discussed conditions which created a need for a Consumer's Union and the impact of the Consumer's Union on business.

The Consumer's Union, which has its counterpart in 27 major countries, came into existence 40 years ago. According to Dr. Warne, these consumer agencies have formed an international organization in Hague to co-ordinate efforts "to foster protection on the international level." He also noted that agencies of the United Nations have been working to introduce consumer movements in Africa, Asia and Latin America.

The goal of this non-profit, scientific organization, the Consumer's Union, is in Dr. Warne's words, "to insure our economy is organized to serve the consumer". The consumer movement is accomplishing this by appraising all brand name goods which will result, in Dr. Warne's opinion, in making the more highly ranked articles more readably sold and causing the disappearance of low-ranked goods.

Business too will benefit from international consumer testing, Dr. Warne continued. First, consumer testing will lower marketing costs by pre-selling the consumer. The salesman will become the order-taker not the persuader. Second, testing will be beneficial, because it will give feedbacks on manufacturing efficiency and production quality.

In summing up the reasons which made necessary a consumer movement, Dr. Warne said, technology created such a vacuum of production knowledge that the consumer movement emerged to compete with advertising slogans". It is Dr. Warne's opinion that the consumer movement is a counter-balancing force which followed in the wake of brand-name advertising. The Consumer's Union, which "harnesses science to the realm of the buyer", revives the competitive system.

With the combined assets of its financial independence, technical assistance from academic institutions (UMass inclued), and its own laboratory facilities, the Consumer's Union has been able to evaluate goods according to price relative durability, cost of repair, ease of operation and numerous other factors.

According to Dr. Warne, the affect of the Consumer's Union is massive—at least in the appliance industry. For example, in 1959, the RCA Whirle Pool washer was rated as superior by a clear margin. The result was a doubling in production, and within a month there was a 90 day back ordering. 50% of the buyers who responded to questions on the warrantee cards said they were influenced by the Consumer's Report, (publication of the Consumer's Union). One manufacturer who had been rated highly reported an increase in sales from 6% to 13%

One unfortunate aspect of the Consumer's Union in Dr. Warne's opinion is that the union has not yet reached the people that need it most since its influence is greatest among wage earners.

Offer ends May 31st.

You have until May 31st to get all the travelers checks you want –up to $5,000 worth–for a fee of just $2.00. At banks everywhere.

You can save real money by buying First National City Travelers Checks now for your summer vacation trip. Read how.

Normally travelers checks carry a fee of a penny a dollar. It costs $1 for $100 worth of checks, $2 for $200, $10 for $1,000, and so forth.

Now, during May only, you can buy any amount you need – up to $5,000 worth – for only $2, plus the face value of the checks. You could save up to $48. (For less than $200 worth, of course, the fee is less than $2.)

If you're planning a trip to Europe, what you save from this offer could pay for an extra day on the Rhine. Or dinner and Shakespeare at Stratford.

Or a patch of grass at the Newport Jazz Festival, if you're staying closer to home.

Welcomed everywhere

First National City Bank has been in the travelers check business for 63 years. Our checks are known and accepted in more than a million places throughout the world – airlines, car rental agencies, steamship lines, hotels, motels, restaurants, stores, etc.

You can spend them as easily at Le Drugstore as at the drugstore. And they're just as convenient on a weekend trip as on a world tour.

Fast refund in case of loss

The greatest advantage of First National City Travelers Checks is that you get your money back promptly if they're lost or stolen. We've built a security network of 25,000 banking offices around the world where you can get lost checks refunded fast. On the spot.

How do you find the nearest refund offices? In the Continental U.S., call Western Union Operator 25. Abroad, we've supplied every principal hotel with a list of the nearest offices.

No wonder we're called the Maximum Security travelers check.

Buy now, travel later

Buy your travelers checks now – at a saving – and use them later. Many people, in fact, keep some travelers checks on hand as insurance against the day when they may need cash in an emergency.

Offer good only in U.S. and Puerto Rico, May 1-31, 1967

Never before has such complete protection for your cash been so inexpensive. So act fast. Get your summer supply of First National City Travelers Checks now. They can be bought at most banks and savings institutions.

If your vacation money is in your local bank and you won't be home until after May 31, you can still take advantage of this offer. Just mail this ad to your parents and ask them to send your money to you.

Note to all banks and savings institutions

During the month of May, we're making this unusual introductory offer to your customers at no cost to you. Your customer gets the saving, but you earn your normal commission.

First National City Travelers Checks

Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.
© 1967 First National City Bank, New York.

SOMETIMES . . .

IT'S NOT MUCH FUN TO BE A KID . . .

Photo Essay
by Gerri Cote

"Your children ar
They are the son
They come throu
And though they
You may give the
For they have the
You may house t
For their souls dw
Which you canno
You may strive to
For life goes not

SOMETIMES IT'S NICE
TO HAVE A GROWN-UP
PLACE A REASSURING
HAND ON YOUR SHOULDER . . .

OR A TREE TO LEAN AGAINST ON A BEAUTIFUL DAY . . .

OR A SECRET JOY THAT MAKES

On Children

e not your children.
s and daughters of Life's longing for itself.
gh you but not from you,
are with you, yet they belong not to you.
m your love but not your thoughts,
ir own thoughts.
heir bodies but not their souls,
ell in the house of Tomorrow,
t visit, not even in your dreams.
be like them, but seek not to make them like you,
backward, nor tarries with yesterday . . ."

—Kahlil Gibran

TO BE SO LITTLE AND SO ALONE . . .

SOMETIMES IT HURTS . . .

BUT MOST OF ALL IT'S NICE TO HAVE SOMEONE WHO KNOWS EXACTLY WHAT IT'S LIKE TO BE YOU.

YOU SMILE . . .

Student - Faculty Forum

THURSDAY, MAY 11, 11:15 A.M.

MAHAR AUDITORIUM

ALSO BEING PRESENTED:

The Outstanding Teacher's Award within the College of Agriculture

Sponsored by

ALPHA ZETA & STOSO

On Campus with Max Shulman

(By the author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!", "Dobie Gillis," etc.)

HOW TO GET A'S IN ALL YOUR FINAL EXAMS

In today's column, the last of the school year, I don't intend to be funny. (I have achieved this objective many times throughout the year, but this time it's on purpose.) The hour is wrong for levity. Final exams are looming.

Have you got a chance? I say yes! I say America did not become the world's foremost producer of stove bolts and cotter pins by running away from a fight!

You will pass your finals! How? By studying. How? By learning mnemonics.

Mnemonics, the science of memory aids, was, as we all know, invented by the great Greek philosopher Mnemon in 526 B.C. (This, incidentally, was only one of the inventions of this fertile Athenian. He also invented the house cat, the opposing thumb, and, most important, the staircase. Before the staircase people were forced willy-nilly to live out their lives on the ground floor, and many grew cross as bears. Especially Demosthenes who was elected Consul of Athens six times but never served because he was unable to get up to the office of the Commissioner of Oaths on the third floor to be sworn in. But after Mnemon's staircase, Demosthenes got to the third floor easy as pie —to Athens' sorrow, as it turned out. Demosthenes, his temper shortened by years of confinement to the ground floor, soon embroiled his countrymen in a series of senseless wars with the Medes, the Persians, and the Los Angeles Rams. This later became known as the Missouri Compromise.)

But I digress. We were discussing mnemonics, which are nothing more than aids to memory—little jingles to help you remember names, dates, and places. For example:

Columbus sailed the ocean blue
In fourteen hundred ninety two.

See how simple? Make up your own jingles. What, for instance, came after Columbus's discovery of America? The Boston Tea Party, of course. Try this:

Samuel Adams flang the tea
Into the briny Zuyder Zee.

(NOTE: The Zuyder Zee was located in Boston Harbor until 1801 when Salmon P. Chase traded it to Holland for Alaska and two line backers.)

But I digress. Let's get back to mnemonics. Like this:

In nineteen hundred sixty seven
Personna Blades make shaving heaven.

I mention Personna because the makers of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades are the sponsors of this column. If I may get a little misty in this, the final column of the school year, may I say it's been a pleasure working for Personna? May I say further that it's been an even greater pleasure working for you, the undergrads of America? You've been a most satisfactory audience, and I'm going to miss you this summer. In fact, I'd ask you all to come visit me except there is no access to my room. The makers of Personna, after I missed several deadlines, walled me in. I have no doors or windows—only a mail slot. I slip the columns out; they slip in Personnas and such food as can go through a mail slot. (For the past six months I've been living on after dinner mints.)

I am only having my little joke. The makers of Personna have not walled me in, for they are good and true and gleaming and constant—as good and true and gleaming and constant as the blades they make—and I wish to state publicly that I will always hold them in the highest esteem, no matter how my suit for back wages comes out.

And so, to close the year, I give you one last mnemonic:

Study hard and pass with honors,
And always shave with good Personnors!

* * * © 1967, Max Shulman

Personna and Personna's partner in luxury shaving, Burma-Shave, regular or menthol, have enjoyed bringing you another year of Max's uncensored and uninhibited column. We thank you for supporting our products; we wish you luck in your exams and in all your other enterprises.

32nd Bay State Livestock Classic, Left-Right, Kenneth Parsons, Mill Valley Road, Hadley, Mass. (swine and sheep breeder) Dr. Joseph Riker III, Dept. of Animal Sciences, Univ. of New Hampshire (Judge) (beef and horses); Dick Pearson, Stockbridge '67 from Sutton Overall Champion Livestock Showman holding his winning Shropshire ewe.

ATTENTION
Seniors and Grads.

Many Opportunities Still Available With New York State

IMMEDIATE ACTION NECESSARY

See Placement Office to make arrangements

INTERVIEW ON CAMPUS

MAY 11, 1967
THURSDAY
4 P.M.

STUDENT UNION, MIDDLESEX ROOM

A representative of the AMERICANA CORPORATION will visit our campus to interview and select men and women for full time summer employment, on Thursday, May 11 at 4 p.m. in the Middlesex Room.

To those selected Americana Corporation will offer liberal income, part education and training for:

- SALES
- SALES MANAGEMENT
- ADVERTISING
- SALES PROGRAM
- MARKETING

Along with valuable knowledge and experience gained Americana offers a minimum income of

$750.00 GUARANTEED INCOME PLUS BONUS

for those selected.

COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS

Are also awarded to those selected

Here is a great opportunity for those who are Go-Getters!

EARN WHILE YOU LEARN

Many of Americana's executive programs have been by students upon graduations, who have gained experience with the corporation during the summer recess.

BE THERE!

MIDDLESEX ROOM — THURSDAY
MAY 11 — 4 P.M.

Smith to Conduct "National Day Of Inquiry"

NORTHAMPTON — Smith is one of the 40 American colleges and universities which will conduct a National Day of Inquiry on May 10. There will be workshops, panel discussions, a movie and a lecture dealing with the problems presented by the war in Vietnam and the draft. The Smith Student Curriculum Committee is co-sponsoring NDI with Amherst and Williams College students who will assemble in this area. The public is invited to attend all of the events.

The idea of NDI originated with the 100 students who signed a December letter to President Johnson concerning the war in Vietnam. Ninety colleges will participate in NDI on 40 different campuses across the nation.

Henry Steele Commager, Winthrop H. Smith, Professor of American History at Amherst College, will speak following a movie which will be shown in Sage Hall at 8:00 p.m. The movie is entitled "Why Vietnam?"

Two panel discussions are scheduled for Sage Hall between 2:00 and 5:00 p.m. One will be concerned with "Benefits and Costs of Present Policy in Vietnam," and the other with "The Draft and Conscientious Objection to a Particular War." Serving on the two panels will be John Boettiger, professor of psychology, Reid Browning, assistant professor of history, and Gordon Levin, assistant professor of American Studies, all from Amherst College, as well as Bruce Marshall, lecturer in the Smith government department.

A series of workshops will take place from 11:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m. on NDI. Those wishing further information and an opportunity to register for the workshops may do so in Wright Hall from 10:00 to 11:00 a.m.

White to Lecture On Eastern Block

Dr. M. P. White, Commonwealth Professor and head of the Civil Engineering Department at the University of Massachusetts, will give a talk, illustrated with slides, on his impressions of tours of some Eastern Block countries, including Russia. Dr. White spent a year in Poland at the invitation of the Polish Academy of Science in 1965-66 and has travelled in many Communist countries.

Dr. White will be at the International Club Coffee Hour on Wednesday, May 10, at 6:15. All are invited to attend.

Briefly Told

NUERNBERG, Germany (AP)—Unemployment in West Germany dropped 74,700, to 50,000, in April but was still three times higher than a year ago, the federal employment office reported Monday.

HEALTH SERVICES . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

can be withdrawn at any time without compromise to his future. This type of request will be answered only after written consent has been received.

- In connection with applications for employment, enlistment in the armed services, etc., in which the potential employer already has knowledge of the specific health problem, it seems reasonable to answer a specific request concerning this disability, with the student's specific authorization, especially when withholding this information would be construed to the disadvantage of the student.
- A committee of the Medical Staff will be prepared to review others as they are presented.

Redmen to Oppose Touring Aussie Lacrosse Squad

Alumni Stadium Site of Exhibition on Thursday

The touring Australian international lacrosse team will pay a visit to Western Massachusetts Thursday when it will face the University of Massachusetts in an exhibition.

The Aussies are headed for Canada where they will compete in an international tournament, but are prepping for the competition by meeting selected U.S. college teams.

The game will be played at 3 p.m. in Alumni Stadium.

This will mark the first lacrosse game ever played in the stadium although the North-South college lacrosse game, which pits the best in the country against each other, will be held at the stadium June 10.

Coach Dick Garber of UMass has announced there will be no admission charge for the exhibition against the 23-man Australian all-star squad.

A Meeting
Of
The Back Page
Majority
To Discuss
Plans For The Future,
Thursday at
6:30 P.M.

The Marylanders—Members of the UMass lacrosse team from Maryland, left to right, Brad Hurling, Mark Schlossberg and Howie Goffman.

Freshman Nine Hits Stride; Visits URI Today

by ROGER KIPP
Staff Reporter

Things are really starting to shape up for the UMass freshmen baseball team as they walked off the field 12-1 winners in a tilt with the AIC frosh last Friday. Their Saturday encounter with the UConn frosh was cancelled due to inclement weather.

The Little Redmen used the superb pitching of John Kitchen and booming bats to register their fourth straight victory.

Kitchen started and went all the way, striking out twelve and walking three. Never was he in any amount of trouble, as the big righthander put them down with remarkable regularity. In each of his outings this season, he has been impressive.

Ken Beretska, the rightfielder, cracked a home run over the left field fence, only to have his feat equalled by third-sacker Tim Berringer. Bob Hansen, who swings from the left side, gave the frosh their third homer of the day when he unloaded a shot over the right-center fence in the eighth inning.

It seems that the frosh have taken to that green fence at the varsity field; in the last two games they have put four out.

Coach Arlen Barber's hardballers travel to URI today, where they will try to make it five in a row. The way they have been hitting, a win is very likely. And either Ed Coonan or Tom Sinnamon is capable of following up Kitchen with a good pitching performance.

Lineup Settled

The line-up, at this point in the season, seems fairly settled. Barber seems to have found the nine or ten ballplayers that he wants to go with, and the combination is producing results.

Chuck Newell is the catcher and a good defensive one he is. Equipped with a good arm and a knowledge of the game, he could very well have a job with the varsity next spring. His hitting has been off so far, but most feel that he will come around and start pounding the ball. Jeff Piken is the back-up and has been impressive.

The infield is set with Jack Medeiros at shortstop, Tim Berringer at third, Hansen at first, and Chuck Espanet and Steve Stanford rotating between second and leftfield.

Medeiros is a good hitter and is hovering around the .300 mark and his fielding is superb. Berringer, likewise is a deft fielder with a rifle arm who can poke the ball a long ways.

Hansen has done the job at first. His batting credentials include not only a high average but good power, while his play around the bag has been fine. Espanet seems to like second base better than the outfield and he seems to hit better when he is at that position.

Back at second for the AIC game, he got two hits. In left field, he delights in making basket catches. Stanford does a fine job at either position and can swing the bat to compliment his fielding versatility.

Outfield Punch

The outfield has been full of pleasant surprises and has supplied a lot of the punch in the batting line-up. Ron Swiatlowski covers center field and hits the ball with authority, batting fifth in the order, while a new man to watch is Ken Beretska, who played right against AIC and came up with a homer.

Barber simply put the extra man in left field when he came up with two good second basemen. Stanford and Espanet are too good to be out of the lineup.

Kitchen, Jerry Dobeck, Sinnamon, and Coonan are the mainstays of a mound staff that could make this first season for Coach Barber a very successful one.

Kitchen is overpowering, while Dobeck is effective if he can get the ball over the plate. Coonan and Sinnamon have done well, but need more work to prove themselves.

Burris Captures Chess Tourney

Ronald Burris has won the Campus Chess Tournament by defeating Gil Daniels in a playoff round, 4 games to 1. Each player had five points after the scheduled six rounds of play, Burris losing a point to Kim Sargent in the second round, and Daniels by winning four games and drawings with Stanley Scoles and Dave Palmer.

Sargent had come through the first three games with a perfect score, but then lost to Palmer and Scoles to be eliminated from the top three places.

Palmer did come home with the third place prize, with 4½ points.

Stanley Scoles also did well, having 3½ points after 4 rounds. However, he then had to play Palmer and Burris, and folded under the competition. Eighteen players were entered initially in this event, one of the largest fields in recent years.

Greenfield Community College

presents

Caroline Hestor

SUNDAY, MAY 14, 1967

AT 2 P.M.

Greenfield High School Auditorium

— ADMISSION $1.00 —

TICKETS ARE AVAILABLE AT THE UMASS STUDENT UNION TICKET OFFICE

Would You Be Interested in Helping An Incoming Freshman?

A list is being compiled of those concerned with the fall orientation of the class of '71.

THIS LIST WILL BE MADE AVAILABLE TO NEXT SEMESTER'S FRESHMAN CLASS ON THEIR ARRIVAL.

You would be giving only "advice" and mostly to students from your "hometown" or vicinity, and only when they contacted you.

YOU WOULD NOT BE ASKED TO HELP MORE THAN TWO (2) STUDENTS.

IF INTERESTED CONTACT:

GEORGE GOODFELLOW 6-7909
ROGER FRENCH 6-7904
ARNIE WALLENSTEIN 6-7900
PHIL PRZYBYSZEWSKI 6-7916
GARY GREENBERG 6-9141

AFTER THE FINALS

RELAX

at

THE FELKA

HAMPTON BEACH, N.H.

Housekeeping Units Under $10 Per Week
Dancing, Bicycling, Bowling, Surfing

RESERVATIONS & INFORMATION—
CALL MARY AT 546-6679

Applications for Class of '70 Executive Council Available in R.S.O.

May 5 - May 12

Last year's members must re-apply.

A Flaw-ful Match

Boteze, Redmen Topple Spfld., 3-2; DiSarcina, Stewart Lead Comeback

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Springfield College shortstop Phil Sienna made three errors yesterday but his biggest error was getting out of bed. His ninth inning boot gave the UMass baseball team a 3-2 win over the Maroons at the varsity field.

Carl Boteze went all the way for the Redmen, allowing just three hits and one earned run. UMass had to fight back in this one, getting runs in the sixth, eighth and ninth innings to erase a 2-0 Springfield lead.

Only one of Sienna's errors resulted in a run, but it was a fatal one. UMass went into the bottom of the ninth in a 2-2 tie, when Ted Mareno led off with a ground single to right. Jeff Williamson, who had pitched a strong game, was yanked in favor of Ken DeMond.

Boteze was the batter, with instruction to bunt the winning run over to second. Carl laid into it a little hard and first baseman Charlie Lelas went to second trying to get the force.

Mareno beat the throw, however, and the Redmen had runners on first and second with nobody out.

Elliot Klein also got the bunt sign, placing the ball halfway to the mound. Lelas came charging in and winged it across to third, again looking for the force. But shortstop Sienna, covering third, let it bounce off his glove into the outfield as Mareno raced home with the clincher.

Boteze and Williamson hooked up in a scoreless duel for the first five innings, but the Maroons struck first. With one down in the sixth, Lelas walked and Glenn Adams hit an opposite field shot off the wall down the right field line.

Pinch hitter Dave Bennett then drove a single to left scoring Lelas. A fielder's choice followed as Adams was hung up and tagged out at third. Bennett, who had come around to tihrd, remained there.

Ironically enough, Sienna batted next and hit a grounder to third that Elliot Klein couldn't handle. Bennett crossed the plate and Springfield had a 2-0 lead.

UMass came back with a run in the bottom of the sixth as Frank Stewart led off with a double to right center. A fly ball to left moved him to third, and Mareno hit a grounder to short. Stewart held momentarily, then as throw went to first he broke for home.

Lelas' throw to home was on the line but Stewart managed to slide around the tag and touch home with his hand to make the score 2-1.

Stewart was also involved in the tying run that came in the eighth. Joe DiSarcina hit a booming triple to left center with one out. Stewart then laid down a perfect squeeze but to score DiSarcina with the knotter.

DiSarcina led the batting department for both teams as he went three for four. The Redmen might have had more runs were it not for two players being called out at the plate early in the game.

DiSarcina doubled in the third and after an error was thrown out at home on an attempted double steal. And in the third, Alex Vyce was erased at the plate trying to come home on a pitch that got away from the catcher.

Boteze is now 4-2 on the season while Williamson, who deserved a better fate, took the loss dropping his record to 2-2. UMass, leading the Yankee Conference, is now 11-8 overall and Springfield is 6-4.

	ab	r	h	bi	UMASS	ab	r	h	bi
Parker lf	3	0	1	0
Gillis cf	1	0	0	0	DiSarcina ss	4	1	3	0
Cece 2b	3	0	0	0	Stewart 2b	3	1	1	1
Lelas 1b	3	1	0	0	Ferron rf	4	0	1	0
Adams rf	3	0	1	0	Mareno lf	4	1	1	1
Ham'nick cf	2	0	0	0	Boteze p	4	0	1	0
B'n'tt ph, 3b	2	1	1	1	Klein 3b	4	0	0	0
W't's 2b, lf	3	0	0	0	Lasky 1b	3	0	0	0
Sienna ss	4	0	0	0	Vyce cf	3	0	1	0
Watson c	4	0	0	0	Chinappi c	2	0	0	0
Will'mson p	2	0	0	0
DeMond p	0	0	0	0
Totals	30	2	3	1	Totals	31	3	8	2

SPRINGFIELD ..... 000 002 000—2
UMASS ..... 000 001 011—3

E—Sienna 3, Cece, Lasky, Klein. DP—UMass 2. LOB—UMass 6, Springfield 6. 2B—Adams, DiSarcina, Stewart. 3B—DiSarcina. SB—Adams, 2, Cece, DiSarcina. S—Chinappi, Stewart.

	ip	h	r	er	bb	so
Williamson (L, 2-2)	8	8	3	2	0	4
DeMond	0x	0	0	0	0	0
Boteze (W, 4-2)	9	3	2	1	5	6

WP—Williamson. T—2:35.

CARL BOTEZE
Sharp in win.

JOE DiSARCINA
Hits 3 for 4.

UMass Hosts Wildcat Insurgents; Crossemen Out to Up 7-3 Mark

by IVON EDOME
Staff Reporter

Wildcats, snakebeating, crosses and plenty of action will be the order of the day tomorrow when the UMass lacrosse team, freshly cast in a winning mold with weekend victories over MIT and UConn, meets the University of New Hampshire on friendly territory at 3 p.m.

UNH Coach Junie Carbonneau, in his first year at the Wildcat lacrosse helm, brings a predominately rookie outfit to Amherst, anchored by co-captain Al DeCarlo in the goal.

On attack UNH has only a single returnee, Bob Doherty. Doherty will work with sophs Gene Isaccs, Pete Steer and Steve Otis. Isaccs netted 10 goals last year for the frosh while Steer tallied four.

Last season's leading scorer Dick Sprague was an academic causalty. He scored 21 goals in 1966 and was counted upon by Carbonneau to shoulder the scoring load.

Co-captain Bill Johnson, Forbes Farmer and former trackman Jack Doherty will be the starting midfielders. The second line will have senior Jay Green and juniors Dave Hagerman and Pete Campbell.

The third line is undecided.

On the plus side of the ledger for the Wildcats is their midfield speed. Doherty is a dash man and holds numerous UNH track records.

Jim Davies and Bob MacLeod are the returning lettermen on defense. Sophs Craig Goffman and John Nichols alternate as the third defenseman.

DeCarlo is a fixture in the nets where he averaged 18 saves per game last year when UNH posted a 4-10-1 record, including a 5-4 loss to the Redmen.

UMass coach Garber will counter Mark Schlossberg in the goal, Fred Foley, Walt Alessi and Tom Tufts on defense, Don Rana, Steve Connelly and Paul Mashovic at midfield and Gary Vassar, Howie Goffman and Kevin O'Conner on attack.

Connelly netted three goals and O'Conner four in the Redmen's 14-4 win over MIT. UMass is now 7-3 on the season.

Redmen Nine at URI Today For Crucial Yan-Con Clash

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Rhode Island's baseball team will get another taste of John Canty this afternoon as the Redmen travel to Kingston to play the Rams at 3 in a Yankee Conference clash.

Rhody's first taste of Canty turned out to be a bitter one. Back on April 25 the UMass ace struck out 16

JOHN CANTY

Rams, hurled a three-hitter and hit two home runs in the Redmen's 3-1 conquest of URI at Amherst.

Canty will start today and will throw to Tony Chinnapi, while Rhode Island's starter has not yet been determined. Last time, Ron Dannecker pitched against UMass and held everybody but Canty in check.

The Redmen are leading the Yankee Conference with a 5-1 record, and every league game is important now. After contests against URI and New Hampshire, UMass winds up with a home and home series against Connecticut, the second place team at 5-2.

The Redmen travel to Storrs for an unusual Sunday make-up game this weekend, and the Huskies return to Amherst the following Wednesday. With these two crucial games, UMass can't afford to lose to either UNH or Rhode Island.

TONY CHINAPPI

Weather Cooperates As Netmen Sweep Cross

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

The UMass tennis team swept Holy Cross, 9-0, yesterday in an easy match at Worcester.

The win lifted the Redmen's season mark to 4-1.

UMass was without the services of Co-captain Harvey Mednicov, but apparently the racqueteers didn't need him. Steve Cohen of Worcester replaced him in the Redmen lineup.

Co-captain Gerry Johnson, Andy Meagher, Carl Clemm, Scott Sheppard and Cohen all swept in straight sets.

Junior Al Davis (5) had to rally to win his match, 5-7, 6-4, 7-5.

In doubles Coach Steve Kosakowski paired Johnson and Meagher for the first time and the two responded with a 6-3, 6-4 win.

Cohen and Davis won easily, 6-2, 6-2.

In the longest match of the day Clemm and Sheppard battled to win 9-7, 15-13.

Kosakowski was obviously pleased with the team's performance. "This was one of the best days we've had all season," he said smilingly. "No rain or high winds. As a matter of fact, the good conditions nearly threw our timing off."

The tennis team will travel to Springfield College.

Gridders Injured

The after effects of Saturday's intrasquad football game at Alumni Stadium were soured yesterday with the announcement that two promising freshmen linemen were injured during the contest.

Mark Toner and Mike Cooney were reportedly injured on the first series of downs in the game. Toner will be operated on this week at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton for torn cartiledge in the vicinity of the knee.

Cooney suffered torn ligaments in his right knee and may be forced to undergo corrective surgery during the summer.

Toner and Cooney were opposing linemen and lunged into each other at the snap. Their legs became entangled and both fell to the ground heavily.

No other injuries were reported but the loss of the two could be critical to the freshman team.

WILL THEY HOLD?—Redmen defensemen who will see plenty of action against a strong UNH team today here at 3:00. First row (from left) Goalies Bill Sinclair, Marc Schlossberg. Second row: Tom Tufts, Bob Gosick, Fred Foley, Walt Alessi and Ira Yavner.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL—vs. Rhode Island (Kingston, today, 3 p.m.)

LACROSSE—vs. New Hampshire (home, Wednesday, 3 p.m.)

GOLF—vs. AIC (home, today, 1:30 p.m.)

BASEBALL (Frosh) — vs. Rhode Island (Kingston, today, 3 p.m.)

LACROSSE (Frosh)—vs. Amherst (Amherst, today, 3 p.m.)

GOLF (Frosh)—vs. Amherst (Amherst, Wednesday, 1:30 p.m.)

COLLEGIAN
"Hot Line"
If You See
News in the Making
Dial
545-2550

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

AMHERST
FAIR
QUEENS
Page 6

VOL. XCV, NO. 74 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, MAY 10, 1967

Loud Speakers in the belfry of Old Chapel officially announced the beginning of Spring Day.

"For Whom the Bell Tolls..."

by RON LaBRECQUE
Sports Editor

The mysterious Paul S. Lereaux kept his promise to the campus by bringing Spring Day to UMass and the students responded to his request for an incident - free day.

According to a security official, all action of the University police yesterday was "routine". Amherst police reported no incidents and the infirmary reported only one minor injury to a coed who cut her foot on a piece of glass. However, it could not be directly connected with Spring Day activities.

Robert N. Brooks, Assistant to the Dean of Students, was contacted by the Collegian and commented on the situation by saying that student judicial bodies will handle any matters that may arise concerning Spring Day incidents. He added that the Faculty Senate had ruled a Spring Day illegal with the primary concern being that of injuries which could very possibly arise when an extremely large group of people get together. He said that as of last evening his office had not been informed of any incidents.

The first official announcement of Spring Day to the campus appeared in the Collegian last week in a letter received by the editors, signed by the now famous Paul S. Lereaux. Late Monday evening leaflets were distributed in the dormitories signifying May ninth as Spring Day.

At 10:00 a.m. yesterday loudspeakers in the chapel shook with the sound of the traditional Spring Day bells. Additional announcements followed in the form of electronic sound effects, the utterances of a cuckoo clock, and the beginning phrase of a "goldie oldie".

At 1:00 p.m. yesterday afternoon an airplane added the final touches by dropping a large number of leaflets over the campus.

Rain in mid-afternoon ended outside activities at the rifle range where it was reported that close to 3,000 UMies gathered to listen to a live rock band and partake of the customary Spring Day beverages.

An alert Collegian photographer caught these students on the SU patio puzzling over the strange sounds coming from Old Chapel at mid - morning yesterday.

A Spring Day tradition is revived at the rifle range.

Area Students Voice Opinions To Democratic State Committee

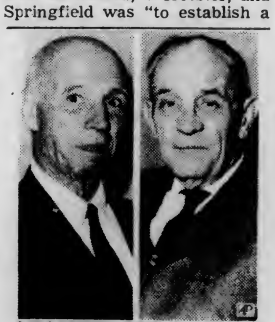
by PAM METAXAS
Senior Reporter

At an informal meeting with students from the four-college area Monday night in the Ballroom, the Democratic State Committee listened to opinions from students concerning such issues as lowering the voting age to eighteen and automobile insurance.

The discussion was led by State Senator Mario Umana, Chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic Party's Platform Commitee and also by Lester S. Hyman, Chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic State Committee. The dominant topic raised by those present was the lowering of the voting age.

Lester Hyman began by stating that the Democratic Party is anxious to "solicit all views in deciding what our future's going to be." He added that the only way for the Party to go is "up." "Politics is one of the most honorable professions," he said, and "the Democratic Party is not going to indulge in cliches but will come to grips with the problems."

Senator Umana made it clear at the start that the purpose of the Platform Committee's visit to UMass and to other areas such as Boston, Worcester, and Springfield was "to establish a liason with the student body." He described the sessions as give and take in which the State Committee is largely interested in "getting an expression of opinion by the students." "We're here to try to find out from you what your opinions are," he said.



COLLEGIAN Photo by Kline
STATE SENATOR MARIO UMANA

The discussion began with the voting age issue. Umana noted that there is a lag in voting interest in the 21-26 age group while there is an increased interest during the years 18-21.

One student who was in favor of lowering the voting age to eighteen suggested that students be allowed to vote in the town in which their school is located (i.e. Amherst) since they spent nine months out of the year there. Umana answered him by saying that the Democratic State Committee has proposed a new residence requirement bill which would enable a person to vote in the community where he has lived for 6 months. The proposal requires that two legislative bodies pass on it and then it goes to the ballot. If it is passed, it would go into effect in four years, he added.

The students who were in favor of lowering the voting age to eighteen expressed the opinions that eighteen year-olds who are old enough to bear arms for their country are old enough to vote. They also said that it would be more practical since the population explosion has brought and will bring more persons into the eighteen year-old bracket, it is only fitting that they should be able to vote since they constitute such a large majority of the population at large.

(Continued on page 3)

AWARDED LENIN PEACE PRIZES — Rockwell Kent, American artist, and Pastor Martin Niemoller (right), German religious leader, have been awarded International Lenin Peace Prizes according to Tass, the Soviet news agency.

Marijuana Laws Hit at Brown

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP) — Severe laws against the use of marijuana were characterized at Brown University Sunday as part of a campaign against nonconformism and free expression.

Thomas G. Sanders, associate professor of religious studies, said the university should not feel obliged to discipline users of the drug or to assist law enforcement officers investigating its use.

Sanders was participating in a panel discussion of the ethical and social implications of marijuana use.

Also participating in the conference was the Rev. Daniel Egan, director of New York's DAYTOP Drug Addicts Yield to Overt Persuasion program.

He questioned Professor Sander's view, saying the university should conform to the law as long as it is law.

Massachusetts Birth Control Law To Be Tested in Court

BOSTON (AP) — A Hempstead N. Y. man who came to Boston a month ago to test Massachusetts' birth control law, was moved one step closer to the test Monday when a district court judge declined jurisdiction.

Judge Charles I. Taylor of Roxbury District Court released William Baird, 34 in $400 bail for appearance June 5 in Suffolk Superior Court.

"This court is not interested in giving publicity to your case," Judge Taylor said. "If you want to test the constitutionality of the law, I will help you along and get this case moved up to Superior Court."

Some 150 persons, many of them Boston University students, paraded outside the courthouse. Several of them wore signs inscribed "Legalize private morality," and "bring Massachusetts into the 20th Century."

Baird was arrested April 6 at B.U. and charged with four counts of violating Massachusetts law by exhibiting birth control devices, orally giving information about them, distributing non-prescription contraceptives and giving the name of an abortionist in another country.

"I'm delighted by the turnout," Baird told newsmen. "This supports my original contention that the public wants a change in the Massachusetts birth control laws."

He was made a consultant to the New York State Senate and Assembly Joint Legislative Committee in 1965, and has held an advisory position with the federal Office of Economic Opportunity.

Charges against Baird stemmed from his response to a petition signed by some 650 B.U. students urging him to test Massachusetts birth control laws. He was arrested after addressing 2,500 students.

Attention Advertisers

The Collegian will publish for the last time this semester Wednesday, May 17. There will be no issue on Monday, May 15.

GREENFIELD LEAFLETING ENDED BY ACTION OF LOCAL POLICE

by JANE ROLAND
Staff Reporter

Several students from UMass and Greenfield Community College met in downtown Greenfield Saturday afternoon to distribute anti-war leaflets to the shoppers there.

After leafleting for a while, Dick Shortt and Victor Aranow, co-chairmen of Students for Political Action (SPA), the sponsoring organization, were brought to the local police station on grounds of violation of local anti-litter laws.

According to Captain Donald Grogan, the students were brought in after several complaints from town merchants.

Shortt, however, explained that the town by-law had been overruled by a recent Supreme Court ruling on passing out political literature. Although they did not want to be a test case because their primary interest in Greenfield was handing out the leaflets, the students held that leafleting was their right.

A call to the town counselor, Felix Cerrafo, solved the immediate problem by saying that the by-law would be broken only if flyers were thrown on the ground. The student group asked everyone to dispose of the leaflets in a proper place, and retrieved some that were thrown away.

There were several discussions during the afternoon, but no disturbances. At one point a man approached one girl and said "I have a son in Vietnam."

"Yes," she answered, "I've got a brother there."

According to co-chairman Aranow, this is the first time leafeting in an area town has been attempted by a political group at the University. SPA will continue this action throughout the summer and into next year.

"We are going into these towns because the people in them don't have a chance to hear our side—the only opinions they get about the war are from newspapers and pro-war people. Most all the information they get on people against the war is prejudiced by coming from a pro-war source.

"I think it's a student's obligation to go out and talk to people," he added.

UPenn Terminates Warfare Contracts

The trustees of the University of Pennsylvania have approved the termination or transfer of Penn's controversial Spice Rack and Summit chemical and biological warfare contracts as soon as practicable.

Support was also voiced for Penn president Gaylord Harnwell's recommendation that it would be undesirable for the projects to be transferred to the University City Science Center.

Harnwell told a Board of Trustees meeting, "The university's resources are limited and in order that its faculty and students make the most effective use of them for the primary educational purpose for which the university exists, we should not undertake peripheral technical work which can as well be done by others, and which shows little promise of contributing materially to the corpus of fundamental knowledge."

The Penn president said that "on this basis, these contracts in question are more appropriate to government, or industrial laboratories, or to one of the non-profit corporations set up for the purpose of conducting problem-solving investigations."

It was said that the decisive factor in the trustees' decision was the appropriateness of this type of research for the university.

The trustees' decision appeared to end protests which had continued for almost two years, culminating in a sit-in demonstration against the projects two weeks ago.

Robert Brand, a leader in the recent actions against the projects, said that the trustees' action was "a major step forward and will pave the way for a more thorough examinaeion of the role of universities throughout the country."

AMERICAN FORESIGHT INC.

SUMMER JOBS

GUARANTEED INCOME

EARN...

$1000 to $2500

No previous experience necessary

Qualifications:

1. You Must Have a Car
2. You Must Live Within These Areas

NEW ENGLAND	MID-ATLANTIC
Massachusetts	New Jersey	Delaware
Connecticut	Eastern Pa.	Maryland
Rhode Island	Brooklyn, Bronx, Long Island, N. Y.
So. New Hampshire

Or Within 50 Miles Of One Of Our Eight Regional Offices:

NEW ENGLAND	MID-ATLANTIC
Springfield, Mass	Newark, N. J.
Boston, Mass	Long Island, N. Y.
Lowell, Mass.	Philadelphia, Pa.
Providence, R. I.	Baltimore, Md.

Interview: THURSDAY, MAY 11th.
at 1:15, 2:30, and 4:00 p.m. in the PLYMOUTH ROOM of the STUDENT UNION BUILDING

Would You Be Interested in Helping An Incoming Freshman?

A list is being compiled of those concerned with the fall orientation of the class of '71.

THIS LIST WILL BE MADE AVAILABLE TO NEXT SEMESTER'S FRESHMAN CLASS ON THEIR ARRIVAL.

You would be giving only "advice" and mostly to students from your "hometown" or vicinity, and only when they contacted you.

YOU WOULD NOT BE ASKED TO HELP MORE THAN TWO (2) STUDENTS.

IF INTERESTED CONTACT:

GEORGE GOODFELLOW 6-7909
ROGER FRENCH 6-7904
ARNIE WALLENSTEIN 6-7900
PHIL PRZYBYSZEWSKI 6-7916
GARY GREENBERG 6-9149

There's been a change...

The Senior Class will now be presenting

PETE SEEGER

in concert

Saturday, June 3, 1967 at the

SENIOR WEEK CONCERT at Forest Park

This will replace the previously scheduled Judy Collins concert

Any Seniors wishing a refund of his deposit as a result of this change should request such a refund at the Ticket Office before May 15, 1967.

GARY SHOSTEK

Former UMie Peace Corps Volunteer

Gary Shostak, UMass '67, is one of 53 Peace Corps Volunteers recently assigned to the Himalayan Kingdom of Nepal.

The new Volunteers depart for Nepal April 30 where they will be working to improve food production in the areas of rice, wheat, vegetable gardening and poultry. The new Volunteers will be assigned to small villages in the southern part of Nepal, called the Terai.

During 12 weeks of training at the University of California at Davis, the new group studied rice production and agricultural extension methods, the Nepali language, Nepalese history and culture, and community development techniques.

With this group's arrival about 250 Peace Corps Volunteers will be at work in Nepal in community development, surveying and rural construction, and teaching programs.

Gary, a psychology major, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Shostak of 240 Almont Street, Mattapan, Massachusetts.

AREA STUDENTS . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

Another argument brought up was that young people would have more interest and less apathy for elections than some of their elder adult counterparts who have shown their disinterest in past elections, etc.

In a question concerning the lowering of the drinking age also, Umana emphasized that these two topics, voting and drinking, should be separated. He believes that a lowering of the voting age does not necessarily go along with a lowering of the drinking age.

"The Democratic State Committee has taken a stand in favor of the reduction of the voting age," he said.

Senator Umana took a poll at the end of the discussion concerning the lowering of the voting age and the majority of the audience was in favor of lowering it to eighteen. He said this was about the same proportion that the Platform Committee had found in the other schools they had visited.

He noted that the "quality of discussion here (UMass) was excellent" and that it only reaffirmed his faith in young people of the state. The Democratic State Committee then met with interested students in the Hatch to further discuss pertinent issues.

Discovery of Secret Files Triggers Student Protests

Discovery of secret administration files on political and personal activities of students at Wayne State University last week has triggered a series of student protests and demands for greater control in university affairs.

President William R. Keast had previously denied the existence of the files, saying that if such files did exist he would have them destroyed immediately.

Last week, however, the Vice-President for Student Affairs, James P. McCormick, agreed to inspect the Safety and Security office with two students, Charles Larson, Chairman of the Student-Faculty Council and Dena Clamage, head of the campus students for a Democratic Society.

McCormick ordered the Investigation department head, Edward Stogdill, to open the files to "put all the grievance to rest once and for all."

Stogdill at first refused to unlock the file cabinets. When the records were opened, the students discovered, to McCormick's surprise, newspaper clippings from demonstrations, records of arrests for homosexuality and files on mentally disturbed people.

In addition, the files contained records and charges of sex offenders, paroled convicts attending the university, and pamphlets of campus organizations, most frequently the Young Socialist Alliance.

Following the discovery of the files, Donald F. Stevens, head of University Safety, said there was nothing incriminating in the records. He agreed, however, to destroy them.

Students reacted to the disclosure by staging a 24-hour vigil outside the president's office and organizing a mass demonstration to protest the "lack of student involvment in university affairs."

A group of 28 students presented a mandate for change demanding more student power on campus. The demands included the establishment of investigatory committees" with full access to relevant information in areas of university administrative concern, such as Security Files."

Other student demands were:

—students must be voting members of each Presidential Advisory Committee;

—A student on the Board of Governors to become a voting member;

—A mechanism for binding student, faculty, and administration referendum on university affairs;

—Administrators should be selected by those people whom they directly serve;

—"Students and faculty must have sole decision-making power in the areas of basic academic policy."

The demands were presented to the university at a mass rally May 5 which 800 to 1,000 students attended. On the same day, the administration said that they had burned the controversial files.

S-FC Chairman Larson said, however, that he doubted that the files had actually been burned because no student was allowed to see what papers were destroyed.

The students, meanwhile, have suspended their protests until May 11, when they have demanded that President Keast give his opinions on the six point mandate.

ATTENTION CLASS OF 1968

Applications are now being accepted for next year's Executive Council. We need representatives from all parts of the campus. Deadline is 5:00 p.m., May 10. Application sheets are available in R.S.O. office.

Support Your Class in the Coming Year

Ninth Bryn Mawr
BOOK SALE

Opens May 15, at 5 p.m.
May 16-18 at 10 a.m.

MEMORIAL HALL
Harvard Square, Cambridge

Thousands of good books
BARGAIN PRICES

DEAN
SUMMER SESSION
JUNE 25-AUGUST 5

- Adolescent Psychology
- Calculus
- Child Psychology
- Composition & Literature
- Contemporary European History
- Drama
- Elementary Accounting
- Elements of Sociology
- Fundamental Mathematics
- General Biology
- General Chemistry
- General Psychology
- Intensive Spanish
- Introductory Analysis
- Introductory Mathematics
- Major British Writers
- Modern Russia
- Principles of Economics
- The Short Story
- Theater Workshop
- Western Civilization

All courses offered for credit.
For Catalog call 528-9100 or write:
Richard C. Ferris, Dir. of Adm.
Dean Junior College
Franklin, Massachusetts 02038

SENIORS

The General Services Administration is recruiting for Architects and Engineers in New York City and Philadelphia in all aspects of design, construction and management of Federal buildings.

ARCHITECTS and ENGINEERS

CONSTRUCTION • ELECTRICAL • MECHANICAL

$6,387 $7,729

Positions start at GS-5 ($6387 per annum) or GS-7 ($7729 per annum) with provision for accelerated promotions to GS-11 ($10,481 per annum)

$10,481

Additional details and facts about General Services Administration may be obtained at your Placement Office. Send resume to Personnel Officer, General Services Administration, 30 Church St., New York, N.Y. 10007 or call Area Code 212-264-8295 to arrange for personal interview.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Campus Comment

COLLEGIAN ESSAY

The Residential College

(Editor's Note: The opinions expressed in the following essay are not necessarily those of the Collegian editors or staff.)

"A well-balanced community, in respect to academic, social, cultural, communicational and athletic endeavors in which dedicated faculty and students collaborate toward a goal of educated persons. . ." An idealistic, but unrealistic concept? The Southwest College Council of the University of Massachusetts doesn't think so. This is how the Second Article of its "Revised Articles of Organization" describes the Southwest Residential College.

The residential system, although a relatively new concept in college residence halls, is rapidly expanding and developing. As described in the 1966-1967 Student Handbook, Southwest is one of two experiments in residential college living at the University and is essentially a combination of living facilities, academic affairs and extra-curricular activities.

According to a pamphlet, "New Skyline—New Horizons", the Southwest Residential College is a co-educational area with a planned total of twelve low-rise dormitories, five 22-story towers, "each of which is divided into three district residential halls which operate independently", and three dining commons to accomodate an expected 5,600 students upon completion in 1968.

This pamphlet also states that each residence hall has a Head of Residence (a faculty or staff member who acts as "houseparent"), 6 counselors and an autonomous student government planned and run by the residents. In addition, faculty Fellows and a faculty Preceptor are assigned to each residence hall. They are described in the "Handbook" as faculty members who contribute to the academic and cultural programs initiated by students, and who make social contact between student and instructor a reality.

The 1966 edition of Spectrum, a student orientation magazine, describes one of the more important aspects of the residential college as the opportunity to hold classes within the residence halls. It is hoped that, by having students who live together attend the same classes in a familiar and comfortable atmosphere, the students will be more apt to discuss and work together academically outside of class.

Another element of the residential college plan is the co-ordination of extra-curricular activities within the residential area. According to Spectrum, activities such as creative writing seminars, religious discussion groups, lectures, concerts and films supplement the regular academic schedule.

Emphasis on running the residential college is placed upon the student. Committee on Student Life recommended in a memorandum of November 26, 1966, that student government be set up by, voted upon, and run by members of the residence hall. Programs planned by student committees with the aid of faculty and administration serve the cultural and social ends. The group responsible for the co - ordination of these events in the Southwest area, (also composed of students), is the Southwest College Council.

This Council, composed of a representative from each house, is divided into 5 committees. These, according to Section 1 of their "Revised Articles of Organization", are academic, social, cultural, communicational and athletic. The duties of these committees, as stated in 2, are "to develop proposals in their particular areas of interest which have value to the College as a whole. Standing committees will bring such proposals to the Southwest College Council for modification and dissemination to the Houses and will assist in their execution upon approval of the Council." The primary consideration of this Council is planning and organizing all - College activities.

The Southwest Presidents' Forum is another organization in which all of the houses in Southwest participate. This organization consists of the dorm presidents or executive council chairmen, who meet weekly. Their function as described in their "Statement of Purpose" is to: "discuss mutual problems of dorm government and problems of administration, among the houses, Southwest and UM; to help assure the freedom of house government from outside interference; to aid in the definition of student and administration rolls in government in the Southwest; to initiate approaches to the proper authorities on problems of mutual interest; and to recommend solutions of problems in the Southwest and UM."

Both of these organizations are instrumental in running the Southwest Residential College and producing better-informed and better-trained student leaders.

Essentially then, the residential college, as demonstrated in Southwest, is a synthesis of the academic and the residential. It is not complete by any means, nor has its progression toward the ideals of "providing a living-learning environment which promotes viable student-faculty relationships", (as stated in the "Handbook"), been unimpeded by problems such as lack of funds and cooperation.

But as a whole, enthusiasm for the programs from students, faculty and administration promises the support and participation that the residential college needs to develop into a finished product worthy of the money and brainpower that have gome into its conception.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... Chester S. Weinerman '68
MANAGING EDITOR ..... John H. Dean, Jr. '69
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles Smith '69
News Editors ..... Ron LaBrecque '70, Richard Kline '70
Photo Editors ..... John Kelly '69, Paul Bolliver '68
Advertising Managers ..... Dot Silvia '69, Sharon Kramer '69
Editorial Editor ..... Ellie Skinner '70
Fine Arts Editor ..... Larry Kornfield '69
Sports Editor ..... Tom FitzGerald '69

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed five times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; three or four times weekly the week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price: $6.00 per year; $3.50 per semester.

Think Before You Scream

To the Editor:

I appreciate intelligent, thoughtful criticism from informed sources as imperative to the advancement of any organization. Professor Gamble has chosen to criticize the University fraternity system. I do not feel his criticism is valid.

His first words are, " a strong case can be made against the continuance of Fraternities at the university". Prof. Gamble if you can make it—make it—don't talk about it.

You say 10% of fraternity men flunked out last year—compare it to that percentage of independents who flunked and for what reasons. Honor students are derided by whom? I hear the same jokes about 4.0 cumes in dorms as well. Why not say this instead of "honor students are derided in many fraternities."

Upperclassmen leave fraternities to protect their cumes. Mr. Gamble, how many leave dorms? Teenagers drink in fraternities. How many drink in dorms?

Ten year olds are given liquor as a joke. Mr. Gamble, this I won't even dignify with a retort. As for teenagers outside the system being served alcohol, if you had attempted to enter any fraternity party on any weekend you would have found a door policy designed to prevent this type of problem. Am I to assume also that you have never heard of the $100 fine instituted by the IFC to stop girls from spending the night in a fraternity? Apparently you don't believe there are two sides to this problem. You prefer to see only one — your own.

Your allegations that SWAP indicated fraternities have for their primary interest only methods of finding " a safe place to drink and make out," are a personal affront to both myself and the other delegates who composed this conference. If, Mr. Gamble, you had chosen to listen instead of assuming a childlishly close-minded stand you might have heard fraternity men point out their own faults and suggest remedies for them.

During this conference I had the good(?) fortune to be seated at dinner with Mr. Gamble. Why, Mr. Gamble, if you are so interested in our fraternity system, did you continually interrupt me and prevent me from speaking as I attempted to alleviate some of your fears concerning the system. Are you afraid someone might satisfactorily answer your allegations and you will lose the object of your constant irrational rantings.

Our system has faults. You know it and I know it. But is this reason to destroy the system? Acknowledge faults and rectify them; don't use them as an excuse to abolish a potentially useful organization.

Mr. Gamble, I find it hard to believe that you think so little of yourself that you would sign such a close — minded and thoughtlessly biased essay as that printed in Friday's Collegian.

If you can make an honest case for the abolishment of fraternities, please do so. Don't call names as you did in grammar school. Act like a professor, Mr. Gamble, not a child. Think before you scream.

Bob Joyce
Alpha Sigma Phi

SWAP Redefines Goals

To the Editor:

In the past SWAP has been criticized by both students and faculty members who felt that the conference produced no worthwhile reform. The main reason why new ideas were rather scarce at SWAP conferences in the past is because for several years discussions were held among specified groups such as service organizations, men's and women's dormitories, sororities and fraternities, and communications. These groups had already attempted reform amongst themselves so that the SWAP Conference served merely to extend rather than to initiate discussion of reform.

By defining the purpose of SWAP, this year we hope to rectify this problem. This purpose is for the SWAP Committee as a whole to act as sounding board and an initiating body for proposals made at the fall conference. Discussions will be focused on all inclusive areas such as student government, academics, and social policies. The discussion groups will be composed of a cross section of representatives from the student body, the faculty, and the administration. In this way we hope to obtain reform proposals truly representative of the University as a whole.

In keeping with this new trend, we the members of the SWAP committee, welcome your opinions, constructive criticism, and most important your suggestions so that we may incorporate them into our discussion formats, and thus serve as a truly representative body. Please deposit all written suggestions in R.S.O. Box No. 305 or speak to one of the members of the 1967 SWAP Committee.

Al Davis, Chairman
Karen Rose, Secretary
Ed DeMore, Treasurer
Betsy Singer
Lorraine Contuzzi
Marty Estner
Bob Cohen
Bob Keough
Marty Sheila Ryan
Gary LeBeau
Ellen Rockmuller
Sue Tracy
Stephanie Leach

For Services Rendered . . .

To the Editor:

As a member of the Class of '70, my first year at the University is drawing to a close. I have gained a new insight to student government. The standards that have been set by previous classes have been high. Throughout this year I have observed and been inspired by certain members of this year's graduating class—student leaders of the Class of '67.

People like Jerry Benezra, Helen Cassoll, Tim Cunningham, Gordon Davidson, John Greenquist, Ken Hardy, John Mullin, Jim Wilkey, Dick Wimberly, and others who, unfortunately, I did not come in direct contact with. Their unselfish efforts have sometimes gone unnoticed, but their accomplishments speak for themselves.

Without people like these the University's progress would be years behind time. I feel that these graduating student leaders deserve the recognition that they have earned over the past four years. To these seniors I off my hat" and hope th three years some freshma be able to write the same the Class of '70.

Glenn Mang
Vice President Class

In Memoriam

To the Editor:

Spring Day is dead! other tradition bites the at UMass.

Thomas P. Le

Despa Press Thanks, Corre

To the Editor:

Despa' Press is pleased t had its new book, "Th Cream Parlor and other anical Plays", reviewed Collegian. We wish only to out one slight error: the n the Press is "Despa," a "Bespa" as you printed. W also to add note of our a which is Box 123, Northa Massachusetts 01060. Than

Jerrold L. Pa
Executive Di

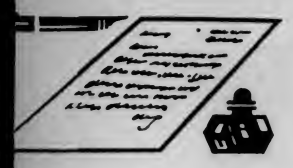
NO 'COLLEGIAN'
MONDAY
FINAL ISSUE WE

Letter F

To the Editor:

Well, my friends, it's a and done with. Spring Da the success that I hoped it be. Briefly, there were injuries or property dama there was last time there Spring Day; this takes in sideration the fact that were more people at the Range this year than two ago. Even though I conside Spring Day a success, I al I should point out where th ings lay.

First, had we been allow work on Spring Day open could have been much mo ganized at the Range. Also was room for more organi on campus after the air openly, we could have pic any leaflets left on the po



However, talking abou problems does not make broad-minded administ We have shown you and t

"Mere Bomb

To the Editor:

Instead of the quotation Theodore Roosevelt whic recently printed on the ed page, a statement that w pear to many thoughtful p as mere bombastic chauv I suggest you try the follo taken from George Sant Three Philosophical Poets chor Book ed., 1953, p. 81)

A man who is just and r able must nowadays, so his imagination permits, the patriotism of the riva enemies of his country, patriotism as inev and pathetic as his Nationality being a rational accident, like complexion, a man's alle to his country must be tional, at least if he is

"That Futile Fraternity Frolic"

To the Editor:

Charles Johnson may still live, but he certainly doesn't want any credit for that futile fraternity frolic Tuesday at the Rifle Range.

Perhaps next year we can have two (count 'em, 2!) Spring Days. We can: (1) Bus all the fraternities and their beer out to the Rifle Range and leave them there, and we can (2) provide the opportunity for entertainment and edification of those of us who really can find worthwhile things to do when the Pavlovian stimulus of classes is not present.

We have always maintained that the coed who goes back to her dorm to wash her hair, or the honors student who takes the time to read an unassigned book, are more typical of a real Spring Day than any drunken brawl. I'd almost be inclined to align myself with the administration if I didn't cling to one forloorn little hope: Administrative sanction could bring about a useful and, eventually, an invaluable Spring Day. It really could.

Selrahc Nosnhoj
Spring Day Committee '65

rom Lereaux

ministration that a safe Spring Day can be formed. But if the administration cannot open their minds to this act, then all I can do is to wish them the best of luck in managing their "over 35 years old" attitude.

I would like to thank all those who did participate in a responsible manner. I would have to exclude two fraternities in this note of thanks because I sincerely feel that it was these groups who contributed most to several minor incidents on the Range. (I don't think that they can possibly dispute the fact that it was brothers of these houses who did the tree climbing and the hill "show".)

Finally, I would like to thank my committee, which worked so enthusiastically on the entire event, from its conception to its implementation.

Farewell,
Paul S. Lereaux

astic Chauvinism"

losopher. His patriotism has to be subordinated to rational allegiance to such things as justice and humanity.

These lines were originally published in 1910. Santayana, born in Spain, educated at Harvard, was for decades Professor of Philosophy in that university. He retired to Europe, dying in Italy in 1952. He stands near the top of any list of outstanding American writers and thinkers.

Perhaps the key word in the quotation is imagination, a quality distinctly human, liberating, and unprovincial. A university ought to be dedicated to such an outlook and, therefore, dedicated to enlivening and enriching the imaginative faculty of all those who are its members. You render a distinct disservice to education by suggesting to your readers that one of the most intricate problems of existence can be settled by wrapping oneself in the flag or by inviting to leave all those who do not agree with such a definition of patriotism.

Associate Professor of English
Paul S. Sanders

SALLY RYAN . . .

Sweat Shirts with a Message

NEW YORK (AP) — "How can we lose when we're so sincere?"

Not by a sweatshirt, Charlie Brown.

Hard-buying teen-agers and hard-selling businessmen have taken to sweatshirts to convey messages.

Once a sweatshirt was something shotputters warmed up in and you could get them in any color-as long as they were locker room gray.

Now book stores, fashion stores and mail order catalogs are full of red, blue, yellow, pink and green numbers saying "Curse You Red Baron," "Legalize Pot," "I'm Cute." That last one comes with winking eyes.

"They're terrific," said Leonard Schwartz, president of Brentano's, the New York book store chain that has been going to great lengths to promote Charlie Brown and his friends from the comic strip.

"This month it will add a sleeveless, stretched-out sweatshirt — miniskirt length-saying "Surf's up" or "To live is to Dance, to Dance is to live." This summer you may be too busy reading sweatshirts to keep an eye on the bikinis.

Just in case there is any doubt, Pepsi-Cola has labeled its light blue sweatshirts "Girl" and "Girl Watcher." And National Bellas Hess, the Kansas City-based retail store chain, is offering "Official Boy Watcher" shirts for $1.99.

As part of the promotion for the movie "Casino Royale," Columbia Pictures painted a sweatshirt with a lissome lass surrounded by such readings as "Indians Are Good Guys," "Miss Moneypenny is a Bond-aid," "LeChiffre cheats at Baccarat," and "Ursula Andress Reads in Bed."

Even the Jolly Green Giant will send you the shirt off his back-for $1.95 and two vegetable labels. It's a short-sleeved green sweatshirt covered with Ho-Ho-Ho's.

In New York, radio station WMCA has given away almost 200,000 of its grinning "Good Guy" shirts.

Allison Manufacturing Co., Inc., of New York is turning out sweatshirts for breweries and soft drink firms, along with fashion department stores such as Lord & Taylor and chain giants like Sears, Roebuck and Co., and J. C. Penney Co.

Allison's newest design is printed with buttons, bearing such slogans as "Make Love Not War."

"Let Sleeping Dogs Lie"

Applications
for Class of '70
Executive Council
Available in R.S.O.
May 5 - May 12
Last year's members must re-apply.

SENIORS
Commencement Invitations and Rainy Day Tickets can be picked up at the S. U. Ticket Window.
STUDENT UNION
from 8:30-5:00
MAY 9 thru MAY 26
These are free to the Class of '67

WHATSIT Contest

Identify this photograph and receive a free black and white portrait by a Collegian photographer.

Write down your guess along with your name and address and deposit it in the Whatsit box in the Collegian office.

The winners will be drawn next Tuesday by the Collegian secretary.

May 9th's Whatsit winner was Dianne Schmidt '68, 310 Van Meter South.

Boston College Editors May Escape Discipline

BOSTON (CPS) — Four student editors of the Boston College HEIGHTS appear likely to escape serious administrative disciplinary action for having invited birth control crusader William Baird to address students at an "unauthorized" meeting in the HEIGHTS office on April 17.

The HEIGHTS action was in direct defiance of a ruling by Rev. George Drury, director of student personnel services, banning any BC appearance by the controversial Baird. The editors had been threatened with probation, loss of position or scholarships, and even possible suspension.

The HEIGHTS-administration conflict came to a head Thursday when the four editors appeared before a university disciplinary board holding a preliminary "open hearing" on the matter.

Drury recommended leniency in the editor's case, but a final decision on the matter was delayed until the university's Educational Policy Committee will reconvene, later in May.

Approximately 200 disgruntled students, however, were locked out of the unpublicized hearing. Only some thirty students were able to attend due to "space limitations."

During the meeting, students attached a padlock to the outside of the locked door. The padlock later had to be cut off.

She'd love to receive flowers!
from
Knowles Flower Shop
172 N. Pleasant St.
253 - 3805

MASS. CLASSIFIED

WANTED

Full or part time summer babysitter. Call 665-2879 after 4.

For Rent

Fully furnished 4 bdrm aptmt for summer. Rental $100.00, call 584-6548.

Apt. to sublet for the summer. 1 mile to University. Ideal for one, two or possibly 3 rooms. Some furniture available. 256-8346. $80 mo.

Apt. to sublet for the summer
2 miles from campus. 3½ furnished rooms all utilities included, call 549-1919 after 11 p.m.

Furnished 2 bedroom, 4 bed ranch house, apt. on wooded estate 20'x15' living room, electric kitchen, washing machine, dinette, 1½ baths. All utilities included in $200 month. Available, Sept. 1, 8 p.m., Northampton 584-3640 after 5.

3 room apt for June-July-Aug. 1 mile off campus, Brass Eagle, No. Pleasant. $50 p. mo. for two or three $33 p. mo. Call 549-1745.

APARTMENT June-Sept: 3 bedrooms, livingroom/kitchen combo, large bath; $120 mo. all utilities included, fully furnished; 5 min. from campus; call 546-8609 after 10 P.M.

8 room furnished, 2nd floor apartment in Sunderland, 10 min. drive from campus, 2 car garage. $145 mo. June 1 to Aug. 31.

Rooms to rnt in large old Colonial house for $35 per person. Kitchen, 2 bathrooms, 4 fireplaces, 5 min. from private lake. 14 minutes from campus, and 4 acres of adjoining land. Call 323-7250. Before 9 a.m. or after 5 p.m.

FOR SALE

1964 85cc Yamaha Trailmaster. Excellent condition! Only 3,000 miles. Real fast. Call 549-1861.

AUTOMOBILES

1961 Rambler 2 door sedan, $240. Call Mlle Haussoullier, 545-2139.

1956 Buick. Has new inspection sticker. Runs well. $100. Call Danny, 253-7456.

MGA 1958 new tires, curtains, top & tonneau cover, excellent cond. $500 best offer by May 5. Call 253-9540 after 4:00.

1962 Vauxhall, Victor, 4-speed transmission, floor shift, very good condition, $350, phone 253-7257.

1963 Pontiac Tempest 4 door sedan, automatic, 3 new tires, excellent condition. $575. Call Ralph Proiman, 313 Butterfield.

65 Ford Custom in very good condition. Have to sell because moving to Europe. For any reasonable offers, call AL 3-9664 after 6 p.m.

1960 Hillman Minx, automatic, 4 door sedan, blue $350.

1962 Pontiac Catalina, 4 door hard top, tran., power steering and brake, w/w tires $950. Dale Mistry, 253-9728 or 253-2733.

1956 Volkswagon in running condition. 12 volt ignition. First offer over $100. Call Larry 546-7192 mornings.

1966 Vespa SS 181 c.c. 2800 mi., ignition switch, excellent condition, $350. Call 546-9143.

1958 Chevy Bel-Air V-8, 4-door sedan, front & rear speaker radio, 4 good white walled tires, new battery, new radiator, new wiring, heater, brakes relined, good running condition. $225 or best offer. Call Steve, 546-9134.

PERSONAL

Worried about the draft? Write for information on Immigration to Canada. Committee to Aid American War Objectors, Box 4231, Vancouver 9, British Columbia, Canada.

ANNE EIBEN

DONNA HAYES

SUSAN HEWITT

DEBBIE HULL

Fair Maidens Vie In Queens Contest

One outstanding feature of this year's Amherst Fair will be the Queens Contest presented by Alpha Phi Omega. This year it will have a new format. Five University girls will be competing against five girls from the Amherst community. APO feels we have ten beautiful candidates. Cast your vote for the girl you feel should be "Miss Amherst". Voting will be done by money, with one penny constituting one vote. Displays will be placed in the Student Union Lobby, Amherst Tower, Louis Foods, Zayres, and Amherst Regional. All proceeds go to defraying costs of the Fair.

Representing the campus will be Robin Sanders '69, Homecoming Queen, Susan Hewitt '70, Las Vegas Night Queen, Kathy Sullivan '70, Greek Week Queen, Winter carni Court, Kathy Koumjian '69, Best Dressed Girl on Campus, Donna Hayes '69, Playmate Finalist, Las Vegas Night Finalist.

Representing the community from Amherst Regional will be: Anne Moreau, senior, Colleen McGuirk, senior, Debbie Hull, junior, Anne Eiben, junior and Donna Mellen, junior.

Unfair competing college girls vs. high school girls? Wait till you see the girls. All are sparkling and extremely attractive.

APO urges the campus and the community to attend the crowning of the Queen and her Court Fri., May 12 at 8 p.m. on the Amherst Commons. Saturday morning all ten girls will ride in the Parade commencing at ten.

KATHY KOUMJIAN

COLLEEN McGUIRK

PHOTOS BY JOHN R. KELLY

DONNA MELLEN

ANNE MOREAU

ROBIN SANDERS

KATHY SULLIVAN

Potwine Gallery in Amherst Exibits UMass' Artwork

by LINDA CUCCI
Staff Reporter

The Potwine Gallery at 383 Main St., Amherst, has recently been open to the public by its owners Burton S. Wolfe and Michael Rivers, students at UMass. The current exhibition is of William Gruter's paintings, Kathy Pattern's ceramic mirrors, and James Painten's sketches: all are or have been former UMass art students. Viewing the exhibit is enhanced by Spoonful —Blues Project rhythms and wine, such as the name inspires.

As Sandy Wolfe expressed, "This intimate gallery is geared such that the average (every man) can purchase an original work by an aspiring artist, rather than hang Van Gogh copies." He encourages all UMass art students and faculty to contribute works for sale. They are reasonably priced and bartered upon.

William Gruters, student of Charles Close, is decidedly a dedicated artist, who is looked on by the art department and local art students as one who will "make it big" if anyone will. His large canvases of abstracted nudes are executed in rich, garish pinks, bold brush strokes and powerful charcoal slashings for drawing and outline. The execution displays his total involvement, direct, jarring intention to portray shattered, modulated nudes in rich, broad patterns. They are emotional statements, possibly expressions of an internal necessity or a social comment on man's conscious condition.

Gruter's work exhibits a restless linear activity expressed within calculated restraints of construction. Although the beholder senses spontaneous gestures of evocative pinks and broken pieces of black charcoal shattered during execution, his works are undoubtedly deliberant, and coherent. He experiments without restriction in technique and media. As a result his dynamic colors are of vital intensities, identifying the turbulent reclining nudes in strong diagonals and drippings.

In the "Floating Figure" Series, the rich tones define restless abstractions of emotive, fluid figures for calculated effects.

Gruters has liberated the form of the nude, forged ahead toward free creation. He explores the nature of reality, plays with deception in simultaneous vantage points on one canvas, so that the viewer finds it difficult to know where he's at. Whether or not Mr. Gruters is conscious of his mission as an innovator, this first showing exemplifies a definite style contributing to art changing scene.

Potwine Gallery hopes to display some works of Charles Close starting May 13. All are encouraged to visit any evening from 6-9 p.m.

Steve Smith, (at right) Southern Methodist University sophomore, displays in Dallas a letter he received written on a mannequin's leg from a girl friend at Texas Tech in Lubbock. It all started when Steve penned a letter to Barbara Reece on a bed sheet. Not to be outdone, Barbara and friends secured the mannequin and had a lumberyard cut off the leg for the letter. Now Steve is writing Barbara a letter on a roll of paper towels. He is on page 30 of 180 pages. Part of the roll can be seen at right. (AP Wirephoto)

ARCON

Volunteer Student Guide Service

The University of Massachusetts campus has 1100 acres and more than 100 major buildings but visitors can now see all the high points in 45 minutes, thanks to Arcon, the volunteer student guide service.

Green blazers with gold letters and an encyclopedic knowledge of the campus are the trademarks of Arcon. The 22 members are all juniors and all unpaid volunteers carefuly selected from among the 13 fraternities at UMass.

Last year, their first, they showed 2800 persons the highlights of the UMass campus. This year they have already more than doubled that figure and have been guides to over 6000.

Arcon—Greek for leader—was organized as an honorary society by the UMass Interfraternity Council. Members are tapped or chosen only after a series of intensive interviews in which both students and staff take part.

Dedication and enthusiasm, ability to speak well before groups and an intelligent curiosity about the University are some of the criteria used to select the Arcon members from the growing group of volunteers.

Once chosen, Arcon members get an intensive two-day training session at the beginning of the fall semester. University administrators brief them on academic programs, new construction, traditions and history.

Arcon members staff an information desk in the Student Union from 1 to 3:30 p.m. on weekdays, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays and 1:30 to 5 p.m. Sundays. Duty assignment rules are strict—a member is dropped from Arcon if he misses more than two assignments. Each member puts in an average of six duty hours per week.

On duty, Arcon members answer questions, direct visitors and conduct tours. Many of the visitors they serve are family groups—parents on a visit who want to see the campus, or a prospective student and his parents. Arcon members are the official hosts each fall to several hundred students from all over the state during High School Guest Days.

This spring for the first time they will be the official guides for UMass alumni returning for commencement visits. They are planning a special tour that will point out the sweeping changes in the UMass campus for the 50th reunion class of 1917.

Massachusetts Senate Pres. Maurice A. Donahue spoke this week to the Young Democrats on the UMass campus. Discussing Pres. Donahue's speech are left to right: Nathaniel H. Akerman, 107 Gillette Ave., Springfield, class of '69, president of the Young Democrats; UM Pres. John W. Lederle; Pres. Donahue; and Laurence R. Marcus, 106 Bedford St., Bridgewater, class of '69.

Final Concert To be Given This Friday

The University of Massachusetts department of music will present the final concert in its series of faculty recitals on Friay, May 12, at 8 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

Joseph Contino, associate professor of music, will perform on the clarinet and Dorothy Ornest will be featured pianist in a program that will include pieces by Gordon Jacobs, Reynaldo Hahn, Elliott Carter, William O. Smith and Paul Hindemith. The recital is open to the public without charge.

The program will begin with Jacobs "Sonatina for Clarinet and Piano," to be followed by Hahn's "Sarabande et Theme Varie" and Carter's "Pastoral." After intermission the featured artists will perform Smiths "Five Pieces for Clarinet Alone" and "Sonata" by Hindemith.

An active performer, guest conductor and consultant, Prof. Contino's work at UMass centers around the performance and teaching of woodwind instruments, particularly clarinet and flute.

Miss Ornest teaches applied music, voice and piano at the University. She is well known for her roles with the Amherst Community Opera, and has performed as oratorio soloist with several other New England colleges.

NOTICES

AMHERST STAMP CLUB
On Friday, May 12, in Room 103 of Public Health Bldg., at 7:30 P.M., Mr. John Pemberton will show "Amherst 19th Century Covers". Interested visitors welcome.

STUDENT SENATE
There will be a meeting this evening in the Council Chambers at 7 p.m., Students, faculty and other members of the University community are invited to attend.

RUSSIAN CLUB PICNIC
There will be a picnic at Look Park, Sat., May 13. Interested students should meet at the Russian Dept., Arnold on 2nd floor, by 10 A.M. Sat. Cancelled in the event of rain.

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB
On Thurs., May 11 at 7:00 p.m. in Council Chambers B, there is a general meeting. Election of officers for 1967-68 will be held.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
On Wed., May 10 at 6:30 p.m. in Governor's lounge, S.U. a talk on "America Re-Visited: Impressions of a Foreign Student" with slides will be given by Alladin B. Hashium, graduate student.

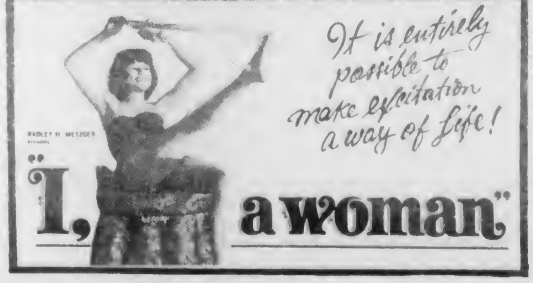
NEWMAN CLUB
On Sunday, May 14, at 8:15 p.m. the Newman Club Choir will present its annual Spring Concert, in the Chapel. All invited.

CLASS OF 1969
Oon May 14, at 8 p.m. in the Council Chambers, there will be an Executive Council meeting, open to all sophomores.

J. F. K. COMMITTEE
On May 11, 1967 at 10:00 a.m. there will be a meeting in the Norfolk Room, S.U.

PRE-MED CLUB
On Friday, May 12 at 8:00 p.m. in Morrill 203, there will be elections and a film of the "LeMage Method of Childbirth". Mrs. B. Soltysik of ASPPO will be present to discuss the ideas concerning this subject.

BIOCHEMISTRY SEMINAR
On Friday, May 12, at 4:30 p.m. in 259 Goessmann, Dr. Jack Gorski, of University of Illinois, will speak on "Hormone Receptors: Studies on Estrogen Binding in the Uterus."



LOST
Pair of ski-type sunglasses lost on Counseling day in Room 300, Eng. Lab. between 9:00 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. Contact Prof. Blasey or Clifford Savell, 6-8775.

PINNING
Suzanne Fredette, class of '70, Dickinson, to Harry Sutliffe III, U.S. Navy, Newport, R.I.

Student - Faculty Forum
THURSDAY, MAY 11, 11:15 A.M.
MAHAR AUDITORIUM
ALSO BEING PRESENTED:
The Outstanding Teacher's Award within the College of Agriculture
Sponsored by
ALPHA ZETA & STOSO

OUTDOOR MOVIE
"Barabas"
plus "color cartoons"
May 12 8:30
— FREE —
Lawn by terrace of Student Union
Sponsored by THE CLASS OF 1970

SUG Board Elections
Class of 1968
Temporarily Postponed until Further Notice

AMHERST Cinema
STARTS TONIGHT at 6:20-9:00

To R.S.O. Treasurers:
All purchasing must be completed by
Monday, May 15, 1967.
ALL PURCHASE ORDERS must be in
R.S.O office on FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1967.

AFTER THE FINALS
RELAX
at
THE FELKA
HAMPTON BEACH, N.H.
Housekeeping Units Under $10 Per Week
Dancing, Bicycling, Bowling, Surfing
RESERVATIONS & INFORMATION—
CALL MARY AT 546-6679

INTERVIEW ON CAMPUS
MAY 11, 1967
THURSDAY
4 P.M.
STUDENT UNION, MIDDLESEX ROOM

A representative of the AMERICANA CORPORATION will visit our campus to interview and select men and women for full time summer employment, on Thursday, May 11 at 4 p.m. in the Middlesex Room.

To those selected Americana Corporation will offer liberal income, part education and training for:

- SALES
- SALES MANAGEMENT
- ADVERTISING
- SALES PROGRAM
- MARKETING

Along with valuable knowledge and experience gained Americana offers a minimum income of $750.00 GUARANTEED INCOME PLUS BONUS
for those selected.

COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS
Are also awarded to those selected
Here is a great opportunity for those who are Go-Getters!

EARN WHILE YOU LEARN
Many of Americana's executive programs have been by students upon graduations, who have gained experience with the corporation during the summer recess.

BE THERE!
MIDDLESEX ROOM — THURSDAY
MAY 11 — 4 P.M.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
WEDNESDAY, MAY 10, 1967
Page 8 Vol. XCV, No. 74

Redmen Outlast URI in 16-Inning Thriller

Elliott's Long Relief Stint Merits 8-6 Win

by TOM FITZGERALD
Sports Editor

KINGSTON, R.I.—Sammy Davis, Jr. was appearing at the University of Rhode Island's Keaney Gymnasium yesterday, but as far as the UMass baseball team is concerned, the only Golden Boy in Kingston was sophomore righthander Norm Elliott, who pitched 10 innings of clutch relief work as the Redmen edged the Rams, 8-6, in a 16-inning marathon.

The four-and-a-half hour game, played as usual in frigid, cloudy weather, was finally decided on an unearned run. The win enabled the Redmen, now 12-8 overall, to pull a full game ahead of Connecticut in the Yankee Conference race. UMass stands at 6-1 and will face UConn twice next week, after a stop at New Hampshire, to decide who will go to Fenway Park.

Elliott relieved starter John Canty, who had given 10 bases on balls and fired three wild pitches, in the seventh. Although the bespeckled fireman allowed nine hits and five bases on balls (two intentional), he was in command with men on base.

Al Vyce opened the sweet 16th for the Redmen with a sharp single to right and moved up when Ted Mareno rapped another single off U.R.I.'s fourth pitcher, Ed Tymko. Dick Hale's successful bunt loaded the bases.

Charlie Dever, substituting for the injured Elliot Klein at third base, placed a perfect suicide squeeze bunt to plate Vyce. Tymko hit Tony Chinappi to load the bases and walked Elliott to force in the insurance marker.

Each team pushed across its sixth run in the 13th inning. UMass shortstop Joe DiSarcina doubled down the left field line in the top half of the inning and was sacrificed to third by Frank Stewart. When Carl Boteze missed on a squeeze attempt, DiSarcina was caught off base, but third baseman Steve Pisatoro's return throw to the plate was low, allowing the run to score.

The Rams got that one back in their half of the 13th, however, on a curving double down the right field line by Dave Crowther and a base hit to left by John Sartini.

Canty's wildness spotted Rhody a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Crowther and Sartini, both on base via walks, worked a double steal. The former scored on Canty's first wild pitch, the latter on a hit by Bob McKenny.

UMass tied the score in the fourth on run-producing singles by Dever and Tony Chinappi off Ram starter Ron Dannecker. Canty and DiSarcina pushed the Redmen ahead, 4-2, with RBI safeties in the sixth, but another wild pitch by Canty, after two walks and a single, reduced the margin to 4-3 in Rhody's half of the inning.

A long home run over the left field fence by Ted Mareno put the Redmen ahead by two in the seventh. But once again the Rams scored the tying runs in their turn at bat. After Canty's 10th walk to open the bottom of the seventh, Coach Dick Bergquist called for Elliott.

The runner, Sartini, promptly stole second and rode home on McKenny's third hit. A single by Da Cruz and a passed ball by catcher Chinappi produced the run that tied the score at 5-5 and sent the game into the twilight hours.

The victory was Elliott's second in three decisions. The loser was Frank Fleming, who pitched gave up Vyce's lead-off hit in the nine innings of relief. Fleming 16th before being lifted, but that was enough.

UMASS	ab	r	h	bi	RHODE ISLAND	ab	r	h	bi
DiSarcina s	8	1	3	2	Crowthers	2	4	2	1
Stewart 2	6	0	1	0	Goff rf	4	0	2	0
Boteze lf	7	0	1	0	Sartini cf	5	2	1	1
Vyce lf	1	1	0	0	Coppolino 3	4	0	0	0
Mareno cf	7	2	3	1	Rainville pr	0	0	0	0
Ferron rf	5	1	1	0	Pisatoro 3	3	0	1	0
Hale rf	2	0	1	0	McKenney c	7	1	3	1
Lasky 1	7	1	2	0	DaCruz 1	6	1	2	1
Dever 3	6	1	1	1	Valois s	5	0	1	0
Chionppi c	5	1	2	1	Bradley lf	2	0	0	0
Canty p	3	0	1	1	Aiello ph	1	0	1	0
Elliott p	3	0	0	1	Cok lf	4	0	0	0
					Dannecker p	2	0	0	0
					Fl'ming ph-p	5	0	0	0
					Stenhouse p	0	0	0	0
					Tymko p	0	0	0	0
					Sutt'land ph	1	0	0	0
Totals	59	8	17	7	Totals	53	6	12	3

UMass ..... 000 202 100 000 100 3—8
Rhode Island ..... 200 001 200 000 100 0—6

E—Dever, Chinappi, Pisatoro, DaCruz. DP—Rhode Island 1. LOB—UMass 17, Rhode Island 18.
2B—DiSarcina 2, Ferron. Mareno. Crother, Valois. HR—Mareno. SB—McKenney 2, Valois 2, Sartini, DiSarcina. S—Goff 3, McKenney, Stewart, Dever.

	IP	H	R	ER	BB	SO
Canty	6	3	4	3	10	6
Elliott W, 2-1 ...	10	9	2	1	5	3
Donnecker	5 1-3	7	4	4	3	2
Stenhouse	2-3	0	0	0	0	0
Fleming L, 0-1 ...	9	8	3	2	3	0
Tymko	1	2	1	1	1	0

HBP—Donnecker (Stewart). WP—Canty 3, Donnecker. PB—Chinappi 2. T—4:36.

Golfers Rip UConn, AIC

The varsity golf team warmed up for the New England Intercollegiate Championships that will be held on Thursday and Friday at the Quidnessett Country Club in Rhode Island by trouncing UConn and A.I.C. yesterday at the Orchards.

The Redmen defeated the Huskies, 6-1, and blanked the Yellow Jackets, 7-0. Captain Jim McDonald was medalist for the day as he fired a two-under-par 70 for the 18 holes. All seven UMass golfers were under 80 for the round and the medal scores were Bob Lawrence 77, Dave MacIver 76, John Pollack 76, Eric Lekberg 75, John Ariansen 74 and Eric Mushovic 77.

Trackmen Discover Comforts of Home

With surprising sweeps in the weight events and the usual killing on the track, the U-Mass track team easily swept past Holy Cross, 94-52, at Amherst Monday, prepping for the Yankee Conference meet this weekend.

Performing on their home grounds for the first time in two years must have inspired the usually hapless hammer, shot and discus throwers, as they swept all three events. Bill Wilen won the hammer with a toss of 158' 10" and was followed by Tony Divver and Court Bassett at 147'.

Basketballer John Dreyer flipped the shot 40'5" to win that event as Bassett and Divver backed him with 39' and 38' respectively.

Bassett completed the cycle by winning the discus with a heave of 136'. Dave Schlatka had an off day with 133' but took second, with Divver third at 126 feet.

In the jumping events, the Redmen performed well despite the absence of Bill Tindall. John Lisack won the triple jump at 42' 4" and Art Larvey was second with 41'8". Lisack also placed second in the high jump with a leap of 5'10". Art Larvey won the long jump at 21'3" and John Waterman grabbed second in the pole vault grabbing 10'6".

The runners did their usual stuff on the Amherst College track. Paul Hoss and Steve St. Clair ran 4:22 for one-two in the mile and Mike Sheeley ran 4:27 for third. John Andersen tied his school record of 49.4 in winning the quarter, and Diego Gonzalez was third in 50.4.

Jay Hall and Pete Moryll placed second and third in the high hurdles at 16.0 and 16.4. Art Larvey clocked 10 flat and Steve Burrell 10.1 in grabbing second and third in the 100. Greg Bowman and Terry Carpenter placed one-two in the 880 with times of 1:55.4 and 1:56.2.

Andersen won his second race with a 55.6 clocking in the 440 intermediate hurdles. Bill Thoms was second in 58.3. The 220 saw Larvey and Burrell take second and third again at 22 flat and 22.1. Hoss made it a double win by capturing the two-mile in 9:38. Marc Gelinas grabbed third in 9:46.

The mile relay team again lowered the school record although it placed second to a swift Holy Cross quartet. Thoms led off with a 51.6, Andersen ran 49.2, Gonzales hit 50.1 and Bowman anchored with a fine 48.9 that almost pulled it out. The time of 3:19.8 broke the old school record of 3:23 set just two weeks ago.

Starring for the Crusad rs was John Collins of Springfield, who won both the 100 and 220 and anchored the mile relay team, which ran 3:19.5.

The Holy Cross meet was the final dual meet of the season for the Redmen, as the team ended 3-2.

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL—vs. Boston University (Home, Tomorrow, 3 p.m.)

LACROSSE—vs. New Hampshire (Home, Today, 3 p.m.)

GOLF — New England Intercollegiate Golf Championships at Quidnessett Country Club (at East Greenwich, R.I., Tomorrow and Friday)

GOLF (Frosh)—vs. Amherst (at the Orchards, Today, 1:30 p.m.)

MEETING OF THE BACK PAGE MAJORITY THURSDAY 6:30 P.M.

BU's Sophs Could Be Troublesome

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

UMass will warm up for three very important Yankee Conference baseball games by hosting Boston University tomorrow afternoon at 3 at the varsity field.

The Terriers are 6-6-1 thus far this season, a marked improvement over last year's 7-14 mark. It is a young squad, but a fine crop of sophomore's have more than nullified the loss of last year's lettermen.

The starting pitcher for B.U. will be either lefthander Jack Mara, a junior, or senior righthander Dick McBride. These two won only two games between them last year but have improved considerably this spring. Soph Tim Masick has developed into an excellent hurler.

The only veteran in the infield is Captain Jim Wood, a hockey player and the younger brother of former major league pitcher Wilbur Wood. He handles third base.

Howie Neild, a junior, plays first base with highly touted soph Paul Fenton at second and basketball player Skip Mortimer at short. Mortimer is a fair hitter with a good glove.

In the outfield, B.U. coach Bob Crocker starts footballer Tom Thornton in left. Paul Fontas, a sophomore who belted two home runs in Monday's 11-1 win over Tufts, plays center with either Jon Sidorovich or Bob Leverone, both sophomores, in right.

Dave Abbamonte, a senior who played the outfield last year, is the catcher with juniors John Cooke and Steve McBride backing him up.

Coach Dick Bergquist of UMass will start junior Dave Katz who started against Tufts Saturday but was not involved in the decision.

JIM WOOD
Terrier captain.

CHARLIE DEVER
Redman third baseman.

Bergquist will save his aces, John Canty and Carl Boteze, for the two Yankee Conference games this weekend. On Saturday, the Redmen travel to Durham to play New Hampshire, mindful of what happened up there last year. Then on Sunday, UMass travels to UConn for the big one.

Canty will probably go against UNH and Boteze against UConn, with Canty coming back to face the Huskies next Wednesday at Amherst.

INTRAMURALS

by ROGER KIPP
Staff Reporter

Action for the year is coming rapidly to a close, but the next week and a half will be loaded with action.

Soccer has progressed into the playoffs already. Kappa Sig and T E P played to a scorless tie Monday, even after playing two overtimes, so the teams had a sudden death affair Tuesday to decide the I F C championship. LCA met BKP to settle the third place issue.

In other games, all on the playoff level, the Adams Smashers took the measure of the James Commanches, 3-0, to go on to the dorm finals, while the other dorm game between the Grayson Flaming A's and the Tower Terrors ended in a scoreless tie and had to be decided in a game similar to the KS-TEP tussle. The Smashers will play the Flaming A's-Terrors winner for the dorm title.

The Lucky 13's won the independent soccer title with a 1-0 victory over the Chem Club and earned the right to play the fraternity winner in the campus playoffs. By this printing, there should be only two teams left in the running, the dorm winner and the winner of the game between the Lucky 13's and the IFC champ. The finals will take place tonight.

In softball, the three fraternity divisions are all over and only playoffs await these teams. Kappa Sig, a powerhouse in just about everything, won the Trojan division, while LCA grabbed the Spartan, and BKP the Athenian.

Beta Phi won last Monday by the amazing score of 17-0 over APO, as John Pollack pitched his second no-hitter of the season. With pitchers like that BKP could very well go all the way.

CIA of the Independent league won two games Monday night and earned the right to the title of the Graduate-Faculty league. Jack Leaman, varsity baseball coach, pitched both games, downing the Selohssas, 7-4, and the Pumpmen, 11 - 1.

The Old Timers took the Pumpmen, 8-1, while the Lucky 13's also won two, one over the Bites, 11 - 8, and the other over the Chem Club, 8 - 2.

The Trojans and the Bismarks tied for the American Independent title and will play off for the championship, while the Stockbridge club has clinched the National crown and sits back to await the outcomes in the other leagues.

Dorm action continues, but the leagues have already been wrapped up. The Adams Spartans are the winners in the Tower League by virtue of a 6-5 victory over the Smashers Friday night. The Wheeler Trojans lay claim to the title in the Southwest loop, while the Chadbourne Maroons copped the West League crown, edging the Buffaloes Monday night, 18-17.

The Hi-Los won their game over the Maples 11-4, but could only hope that Chadbourne would be beaten to force the league into a tie. That almost happened.

The North-South league is up in the air. The Flaming A's of Grayson and the Aces, both won Monday night to remain tied. Each, in fact, won by only a run. The Aces got by the Panthers, 3-2, while the A's had a close call with the Birches, 4 - 3.

The Hawks, who don't figure in title considerations, clobbered the Rams, 23-3. The Cherries and Lemons played to a 6 - 6 tie.

Last Night's Scores

INTRAMURAL RESULTS

Soccer
KS 1, TEP 0 (sudden death, frat. champs)
LCA 2, BKP 0 (3rd place, frats.)
KS 1, Lucky 13's 0 (semis, campus)
Flaming A's 2, Terrors 1 (sudden death) (dorm semis)
Terrors over Comanchees, forfeit (3rd place, dorms)
Smashers 3, Comanchees 0
Badminton
Norman Chan defeated Phil Fisher, 15-9, 15-10, for campus championship
Softball
Flaming A's 14, Aces 2 (North-South League playoff)

SENATE REJECTS INCENTIVES
Page 2

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

SPRING DAY REVISITED
Page 6

VOL. XCV, NO. 75 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | THURSDAY, MAY 11, 1967

HASTINGS K. BANDA

RAYMOND J. SWORDS

KENNETH B. CLARK

JOHN A. VOLPE

Eight to Receive Honorary Degrees at Commencement

Special to the Collegian

The president of the East African nation of Malawi, the governor of Massachusetts and six other distinguished persons will be awarded honorary degrees by the University of Massachusetts at commencement exercises Sunday, June 4, closing the University's 104th year.

Gov. John A. Volpe will be the principal speaker at the 11 a.m. ceremonies in UMass Alumni Stadium. Degrees will be awarded to the largest group in UMass history — approximately 1900 graduates, undergraduates and Stockbridge School students.

University President John W. Lederle will present honorary degrees to President Hastings K. Banda of Malawi, Gov. Volpe, polaroid inventer Edwin H. Land, architect Pietro Belluschi, educator Mrs. Livingston Hall, urban studies pioneer Dr. Kenneth B. Clark, magazine publisher and UMass alumnus George A. Allen and Holy Cross College President Very Rev. Raymond J. Swords, S. J.

Born in Nyasaland, now Malawi, in 1906, Dr. Banda came from a farm family and left a mission school at the age of 13 to set out on foot to seek an education. He worked as a hospital orderly in Rhodesia and as an interpreter in South Africa, then came to the U. S., where he graduated from the University of Chicago and received an M.D. degree from Meharry Medical College, Nashville, Tenn.

While practicing medicine in London from 1945 to 1953, Dr. Banda became active in the African self-determination movement and his home was often a meeting place for such leaders of the movement as Jomo Kenyatta and Kwame Nkrumah. Dr. Banda returned to Africa in 1958 to become leader of the Nyasaland African Congress and was imprisoned in Rhodesia for 13 months as a result of his efforts on behalf of African self-government. On his release he assumed the presidency of the Malawi Congress Party and took a lead in negotiations that led in 1966 to the establishment of Malawi as an independent republic with Dr. Banda as its first president.

Born in 1908 in Wakefield, Gov. Volpe was one of four sons of immigrant parents from Italy. He became a plasterer after high school, worked his way through Wentworth Academy and founded his own construction company in Malden in 1953.

The GOP governor first entered public life in 1953 as head of the Massachusetts Department of Public Works. Four years later Dwight Eisenhower named him the first federal highway administrator to supervise the launching of the $40 billion interstate federal highway program. He was successful in his

(Continued on page 4)

Campus Police Identify Spring Day Aviators

Blasko Cites Danger From Falling Leaflets

by RICHARD KLINE
News Editor

AMHERST—Campus police know the identity of the student who dropped Spring Day literature from a rented plane Tuesday afternoon, littering the campus with thousands of leaflets. They have not, however, taken him into custody.

According to Police Chief Alexander Blasko, a cruiser was dispatched to La Fleur Airport which arrived shortly after the student left to join the festivities at the rifle range, a mile north of the campus.

The police learned from airport personnel the identity of the youth who rented the plane during the time it flew over the campus and have reported his name to UMass officials.

Although littering the campus from the air is prohibited by law, no legal action is expected to be taken against him. Disciplinary action by the University, however, is expected.

Action will probably be taken against the operator of the plane who flew the student over the campus, as the case has been handed over to the Aeronautics Commission.

Blasko reported that one package of leaflets that fell on the campus was still tied in a three inch bundle when it landed. "Fortunately," said the Chief, "it didn't hit a student." It did, though, land within three feet of a dairy animal used by Stockbridge.

Police Seeking Clue to Vandals

by RICHARD KLINE
News Editor

Police continue to investigate the defacing of seven buildings on the UMass campus in the predawn hours of last Sunday morning

A large area of dried paint of the same type that was used to deface the buildings was found in the south parking lot or "S-lot", adjacent to the Newman Center and the School of Business Administration.

Campus Police estimate that the vandals started their spree at the lower end of the lot, smearing the Newman Center first, continuing to Morrill Science Center and then on around, ending at South College.

Since the paint used was oil based, efforts to scrape or wash

(Continued on page 3)

Governor's Action May Topple Proposed UMass Boston Site

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. John A. Volpe warned yesterday that some sites proposed for the University of Massachusetts Boston branch may jeopardize major tax-producing construction.

"I feel very concerned," he told a news conference, "about the utilization of such prime land for non-taxable purposes."

Officials of the Boston branch indicated earlier this week they favored a site at Copley Square near the Boston Public Library. The proposal was criticized by Boston Redevelopment Authority officials who proposed sites in Roxbury and Columbia Point.

"I understand also it (the Copley Square site) might jeopardize the building of the $80-$90 million John Hancock building," Volpe said. "I will be talking with the president of the University about this before the end of the week."

Volpe said University officials are anxious to have the school as close to rapid transit and highways as possible. He estimated about 50 acres would be needed for the 15,000 students expected eventually to attend.

The governor noted that the total cost over 10 years of building the school is estimated at $389 million, and added, "it astounded me because, recognizing some of our other needs, it would take a sizeable chunk of our capital outlay money."

Volpe said that he plans to review the combination bill on reforming auto insurance, but added, "I understand it does not have what I consider essential."

Asked if he would sign a bill that did not have the financial responsibility clause he sought, Volpe answered "only if it was a major improvement over our present system."

Other points made by the governor in his news conference:

• He hopes the joint legislative convention on the constitution starting today considers reduction of the size of the House and a cut in the voting age.

• He plans a new report on the proposed $55 million stadium in Weston sometime next week.

• The governor said he did not think that testimonial dinners need to be abolished but said they may need added controls.

The former Boston Gas building, now filling UM-Boston students with knowledge, seems destined to lose its textbook atmosphere even if the Copley Square location for the new campus is scuttled by Governor Volpe. The site, adjacent to the Boston Public Library, is favored by school officials.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Collegian Essay

The Hippies

by RICHARD MORAN

(Editor's Note: The opinions expressed in the following essay are not necessarily those of the Collegian editors or staff.)

Through the ages, the question of the essence of man's existance has constituted a mystery that no amount of dialectic has been able to clear up. Philosophers, theologians and novelists have devoted lifetimes to puzzling out what is singularly unsatisfactory and frustrating about the human condition. To date man's search for being has lead to failure.

But there is a new breed of thinkers determined to answer the philosophical questions plaguing mankind. Rejecting the unproven, time consuming methods of their predecessors, and embracing the more expedient phenomena of mind - expansion through the use of hallucinatory drugs, these new generation thinkers call themselves "the hippies."

The hippies are not without a leader. As in every social movement there emerges a great man to provide leadership and guidance, and just as the "beats" of the fifties rallied around Alan Ginsberg, the hippies look to Dr. Timothy Leary for direction. The former professor actually launched the shift from "beat" to "hip" in the early sixties while still at Harvard. The administration objected to the use of students in mind-expansion experiments and dropped him from the faculty in 1963. Refusing to recant, the 45 year old doctor vowed to "turn-on the world".

In his never-ending struggle to legalize marijuana and LSD, the champion of the hippies has clashed face to face with our legal institutions. In his 64-room baroque-styled mansion in Dutchen County, N.Y., Timothy was dealt a severe blow of reality when 30 policemen surprised him with a search warrant. Making their way through 30 hippies and also 20-25 dogs and cats (dogs and cats together?) the sheriff and his men confiscated several "nickel bags of grass". Clad only in a cotton pullover night shirt, Dr. Leary was appalled at the invasion of privacy and the lateness of the hour (1 a.m.). On the confiscation of marijuana he said, "You don't expect that 30 policemen could search this house for five hours without finding something, do you?"

Sheriff Lawrence M. Quinlan who ordered the raid said his men observed "a great many people dancing wildly around a bonfire." He added, "That's not normal."

Little about the hippies could be classified as normal. What first started out as an obscure mind expansion experiment in a Harvard lab has turned into a nation-wide religious movement. The mystical experiences often encountered by a hippie while high on a trip, has inspired Timothy to develop a new religion called the League of Spiritual Discovery. Dr. Leary explains, "visionaries throughout history have made this voyage and come back to teach its truth to the waiting world." It now appears that the old argument of how does one know there is a Heaven was settled when Dr. Leary returned from his first trip.

"The Death of the Mind", a psychedelic celebration, serves as the first step in formalizing this new religion. Performed in the Village Theatre, Manhattan, it is a one minute LSD trip reinacted on stage before your very eyes. The cast consists of Dr. Leary as the guide and Dr. Ralph Metzner, who plays Harry, an imprisoned intellectual who is suddenly swallowed into a great green doughnut. The guide questions, "can you float through the universe of your body?"

The high-priest's greatest following is crowded in a 10 x 15 block midtown section of San Francisco known as Psychedelephia (actually the Haight-Ashbury district), where 7,000 hippies are high on drugs ranging from LSD to such stimulants as Methedrine, dexedrine, and benzedrine.

It is a utopia with a vague sense of mission. A far cry from the original utopianism proposed by Sir Thomas More some 400 years ago requiring six hours of work each day, the new utopianism demands a "zero hour day and freak outs for all." Built on drugs and dreams, grass and acid, free love and amoralness, it offers its members a chance to blow their minds—to achieve a state of mindlessness — and as the high-priest would contend—mindlessness is next to Godliness.

Reminding us of the bread lines of the Depression, the "diggers", a Salvation Army type organization, distributes hot stew and bread to the hip and not so hip. The only criteria being an empty stomach. "The whole idea is love," explains Leonard Sussman, a former insurance agent who retired at 25, and a current digger. The hippies claim a concern for their fellow man and a preference for communal living. Many hippies, male and female, share overcrowded living quarters under the guise of brotherhood (few hippies work). They (the diggers) are even operating a communal farm in Mexico, harvesting mostly Mary Jane and goodwill.

But not all the hippies wish to fashion their way of life in the spirit of the new utopianism. A few have turned to profit making, as Larry Starin, who opened up the Mellow Yellow Co. to sell half-ounce sections of oven dried banana peel scrapings. Insisting his enterprise is operating for the good of the community, Top Banana, as he has come to be called, hands out the useless banana fruit to hungry hippies.

The hippies are not a passive group as were the "beats" of a decade ago. They are people with

(Continued on page 8)

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press. Member of the Collegiate Press Service of the United States Student Press Association. Member of the Associated Press—The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for reproduction of all the local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed five times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; three or four times weekly the week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price: $6.00 per year; $3.50 per semester.

UMASS CAMPUS OFF LIMITS FOR CARS THIS FALL

by GERALD W. VIGEANT

The center of the UMass campus should be exclusively pedestrian by next year, Treasurer Kenneth W. Johnson has declared.

Asked to comment on the administration's failure to erect permanent signs to aid visitors in locating major buildings on campus, to pave temporary parking lots, to repair sidewalks and to install adequate lighting, the treasurer pointed out the futility and unnecessary expense involved in making improvements which would become obsolete soon after their completion.

Treas. Johnson indicated that in areas other than the center of campus some progress has been made in these matters. Lights now exist in the south parking lot, and sidewalks and temporary lights have materialized in the area of the Southwest complex.

The reorganization of the road system on campus, however, makes improvements in the center of campus pointless, he stated. Several existing roads soon will be eliminated. The new Campus Center and the addition to Goodell Library, for example, will eliminate Ellis Drive. Lincoln Avenue, too, will be cut off by the addition to Bartlett. Included in the new road system will be the necessary lights and signs, the treasurer added.

"There has been some concern that campus buildings do not have identifying signs visible from the road," he continued. "With a purely pedestrian campus, such signs will not be necessary. Theerfore, their installation at this time would be a waste of the taxpayers' money."

Busing arrangements, too, will change with the pedestrian campus, the treasurer stated. In the future, buses will make stops at several points on campus instead of stopping only in front of the Student Union. The new parking garage near Machmer, addition, will have a bus terminal.

Treas. Johnson predicts a big change in the campus by next fall. Further, by the end of three years, with the addition to Bartlett, the Fine Arts Building, the addition to Goodell Library and the new Campus Center, a very different traffic pattern will exist in the center of campus.

"Give us more time and we'll develop one of the most beautiful campuses in the country," the treasurer promised. The key is patience, he indicated: "We must live with our growing pains." Right now, with the shortage of funds, there is little sense in finishing off projects that we are going to tear up in the near future."

Hershey Gives Endorsement To Deferments for Students

WASHINGTON (AP)—Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey gave a personal endorsement Wednesday to continuation of college deferments for undergraduate students.

However, he made it clear to the House Armed Services Committee that President Johnson still is considering whether and to what extent such existing deferments should be altered.

Asked how he felt about the question, Hershey said, "I think we can afford to keep this. I think we have enough faith that college graduates produce something. I am obviously for college deferments."

A special advisory panel set up by the committee recommended continuation of student deferments.

The Senate Armed Services Committee had taken a similar stand in recommending a bill to provide a four-year extension of the draft law.

The Senate committee headed by Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., recommended drafting of 19-year-olds first instead of the present system of taking older men in the 18 to 26-year age bracket.

Russell, calling the Senate bill up today for expected quick passage, said the committee had unanimously backed the measure.

Retired Gen. Mark W. Clark told the House committee Tuesday that people who urge others to violate draft laws should be severely punished.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., a committee member, said later on the floor he is "amazed to learn the Department of Justice does not instend to prosecute these people."

ROTC will Present "Spring Review"

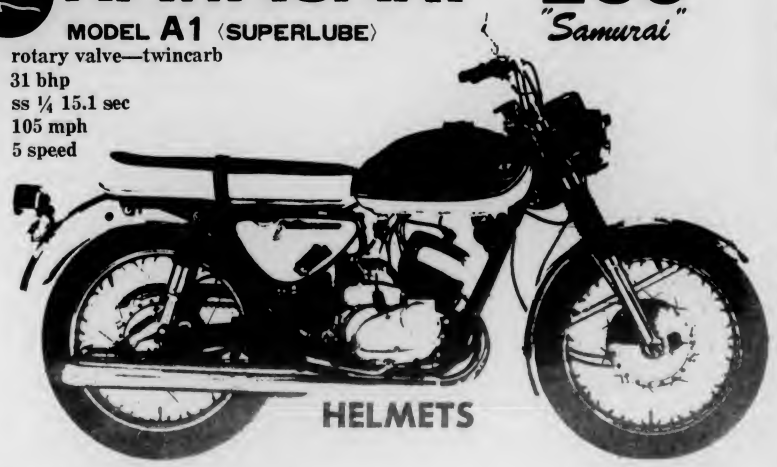
Awards will be presented to outstanding ROTC cadets and Air Force and Army ROTC units who will perform at the University of Massachusetts ROTC Spring Review, to be held tomorrow at 7 p.m. on the lower athletic field.

Presented by the UMass departments of air and military science, the review is open to the public without charge.

The program will open with demonstrations by four crack UMass ROTC units — the Air Force ROTC Flying Redmen, the Army ROTC Grenadiers, the Army ROTC Bay State Special Forces and the Precisionettes, Army ROTC-sponsored girls' drill team.

The formal review of the entire UMass ROTC cadet corps will follow. The reviewing officer will be Maj. Gen. Frank H. Britton, deputy commander of the First Army.

Presentation of a variety of awards to outstanding cadets by University, military, veterans' and community groups will close the program.



Student Senate Rejects Incentives

After much heated debate the Student Senate last night defeated the controversial Incentives bill. The proposal provided for payment of Student Senate officers, the top editors of Index and the Collegian, and the officers of WMUA.

The voting went as follows: 18 Aye, 20 Nay, 1 Abstention.

The full story of last night's Senate meeting will be in tomorrow's Collegian.

KAWASAKI 250
"Samurai"
MODEL A1 (SUPERLUBE)
rotary valve—twincarb
31 bhp
ss ¼ 15.1 sec
105 mph
5 speed

HELMETS

SERVICE AND REPAIRS ON ALL MAKES
Models from 85 cc to 650 cc
Parts — Accessories

HOURS: MON.-FRI. NOON-8 P.M.
SATURDAY 9 A.M.-2 P.M.

USED BIKES

'60 Indian 700	$625
'65 Honda 305	$500
'66 Honda S65	$225
'56 Matchless 500	$325
'66 Jawa 250	$375
'65 Honda 305	$450

Shop, inc 57 S. Prospect St. 253-3283

CHARGE IT with ... CAP THIRD NATIONAL

COLLEGIAN Photo by Paul Boliver

PRESIDENT LEDERLE TO BE ON WMUA NEXT TUESDAY, AT 8:00 ON WMUA, PETE WARD AND BOB GORMAN WILL HOST PRESIDENT LEDERLE IN A ONE HOUR DISCUSSION ON UNIVERSITY AFFAIRS OF THE PAST YEAR. WMUA IS 91.1 ON THE FM DIAL. Keep up with the campus with WMUA.

The 'Death of God' Discussed at JFK Tower

by PAT FLAHERTY
Staff Reporter

"The Death of God" was the subject for discussion at John F. Kennedy Tower Monday night Dr. Clarence Shute, of the UMass Philosophy Dept., sat in for Dr. Emmot Bennett, who was unable to attend the meeting.

Dr. Shute confined himself to a brief survey on the subject to allow much informal discussion afterwards. His talk was studded with many anecdotes which clarified the meanings of some areas in this difficult subject.

The phrase "Death of God" is an expression of nature, and its use is first attributed to Ludwig Feuerbach in his work "The Essence of Christianity." This book was a landmark in the development of humanistic religion."

According to Dr. Shute, this author presents the idea that "God is the projection of what man is aware of as a species."

Previously, Emmanual Kant showed in his "Critique of Pure Reason" (1781), how the arguments for God's existence could be used to disprove it. He used a "regulative ideal of reason . . . not in empirical terms. People would have shuddered, if they understood what he meant."

Martin Buber, a Jewish philosopher to whom Dr. Shute owes much of his thinking, mentions in his "Eclipse of God," periods where "vital lived relationships between man and God "existed. "Lived" is contrasted with thought relation, i.e. man's idea of God. "Man has substituted thought for lived relation." He believed in the "imagelessness of God" and was grateful to atheists (image-destroyers) and the development of faith.

An exposure to another religion, Dr. Shute conjectures, might revive interest in "God" who has become "irrelevant" today. He agrees that God's death has been hastened by people's seeking to find themselves and their security in international relationships.

Dr. Shute notes that Neitsche with his "God is dead" statement meant that God's death was "willed by man", whereas today the phrase connotates man's "inability to think of God in traditional terms."

He believes in "cutting morality from religious roots," because some of the greatest lives have been led by atheists and unorthodox believers. Despite the current trend, Dr. Shute feels that religion still serves a useful function to man.

Grayson Sponsors Coffee House

Orchard Hill will sponsor a Coffee House at David Grayson from 8 to 12 p.m. on Friday, May 12. Among those to perform are UMass faculty poets Leon Barron, Stanley Koehler, Robert Tucker, and Donald Junkins who will be accompanied by flutist Andy Haig.

Others reading are Brendan Galvin and Bill Clamurro. The folk singers include Rick Preston from Amherst College, Erwin Mellor, Chuck Tiberio, Carol Talbot, and Cynthia Denomme.

Also featured are Hawaiian Dancers, a Jug Band, and an Experimental Play. Expresso and Java-Mocca coffees will be free to all. Anyone interested in performing contact Dale Spencer, 546-6918.

Ninth Bryn Mawr
BOOK SALE
Opens May 15, at 5 p.m.
May 16-18 at 10 a.m.
MEMORIAL HALL
Harvard Square, Cambridge
Thousands of good books
BARGAIN PRICES

UMass Officials Comment On YAHOO Controversy

by EUGENE BURGIN

"All that is good is not embodied in the law and all that is evil is not prescribed by the law. A well-disciplined society needs few laws, but it needs strong morals."

William F. Buckley, Jr., one of the country's leading conservatives, wrote these words in proposing his resistance to Hugh Hefner's "Playboy Philosophy". The key insight of which is that "a man's mortality, like his religion, is a personal affair, best left to his own conscience."

As there exists controversy over the standards of morals ethics and tastes displayed by national publications such as Playboy Magazine, so is there discussion, disagreement and debate at the University of Massachusetts concerning it's humor magazine Yahoo. The magazine, stripped of its funds, has not published for a year.

A cross section of interviews with members of the faculty, administration and student body reveals the opinion that there is a definite need and place on the campus for a true humor magazine. What appears to be the major problems of Yahoo is it's content and manner of presentation.

Senior Richard Moran, Collegian cartoonist and writer and former staff member of Yahoo, feels that the magazine has been done in bad taste both morally and ethically. He comments, "The articles launch into the obscene and penetrate the vulgar aspect of humanity. They debase human condition reducing women to objects to be manipulated."

On the other hand, he feels that Playboy, in some fashion does this more on a subtle, highly sophisticated plane and not in bad taste".

Assistant editor of the University News Bureau, Richard Shanor believes that "Yahoo has only partly filled the function of what a campus magazine should be—a safety valve for opinion, an outlet for humor and satire". He feels that a campus humor publication should look around for "what's going on here on the campus; what is ridiculous, funny, not dirty and sexy".

Dr. Richard Harper, speech professor, comments, "Yahoo is nothing more than sophomore provincial humor." Nevertheless, he does believe that there is a place for humor on the campus.

He was asked last year to be adviser to Yahoo; but after all consideration, he declined. He also feels that Provost Oswald Tippo has been unfair to the students. The unexplained delay of the 1967 budget by the provost has made it impossible for Yahoo to publish this semester. Dr Harper comments, "The provost has not lived up to his obligations to the student body."

All three feel that Yahoo should be what it claims to be—a campus humor magazine, cynical and satirical, rather than vulgar. According to Moran, the Yahoo staff "justify themselves by saying this vulgarity and sex is what the students want but, he continued, "do you give cannibals what they want." He questions the"credentials" of the Yahoo staff writers by saying, "Yahoo is only a manifestation of writers frustations in their daily lives. They should realize that they have a responsibility in words and pictures of representing the student body and should not shun or twist it."

VANDALS . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

it off the porous brick surfaces were unsuccessful. As a result the phrases were removed only by the process of sand blasting. The University has no sandblasting machines and outside crews had to be hired.

The damage to the buildings is estimated by Campus Police to be in excess of $700.

Police ask that anyone having seen a suspicious looking person or persons carrying paint between the hours of 11 p.m. Saturday night and 1:45 a.m. Sunday morning report what they saw to the Campus Police, the University administration or to the Collegian.

THE HIPPIES . . .

(Continued from page 2)

strong social and political convictions determined to see that their voices are heard. Whether marching in Washington for Civil Rights, or demonstrating in New York against the Vietnam War, the hippies are a potent force among America's youth and their voices will be heard.

SANE Director to Lecture On Vietnam & Its Politics

Dr. Sanford Gottlieb, Political Action Director of SANE, will give a public lecture entitled "Vietnam and Party Politics: Is there an Alternative?" on Monday, May 15 at the University of Massachusetts, at 8 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

In 1965, Dr. Gottlieb served as adviser to the interdenominational group of clergymen who visited South Vietnam on the fact-finding mission sponsored by the Fellowship of Reconciliation. He met in Paris and Algiers with officials of North Vietnam and the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front in 1965, 1966, and 1967. In January 1966, Mr. Gottlieb was instrumental in securing an agreement to deliver mail to U.S. prisoners of the Viet Cong. He was the New York Times "Man in the News" on November 27, 1965, when he coordinated the March on Washington which brought 40,000 people to the capital.

SANE has recently been criticized by the more radical of those opposed to the War in Vietnam for withdrawing support from the Spring Mobilization in New York on April 15 and for censuring its own co-chairman, Dr. Benjamin Spock for endorsing Martin Luther King's stand on the war.

Dr. Gottlieb's address is being sponsored by the Faculty Group on Peace and War, University of Massachusetts.

Guest soloist Bernard Izzo, baritone with the Chicago Lyric Opera Company will be featured in a concert by the University Symphony Band with the University Chorus and Chorale on Sunday, May 14 at 4:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Commencement--

(Continued from Page 1)

first bid for the governorship in 1960, lost a reelection bid to Endicott Peabody two years later, and then retrieved the chair in 1964. He was reelected to his third and present term in 1966.

Mr. Land, president, director of research and chairman of the board of the Polaroid Corp., began his experiments in polarized light while an undergraduate at Harvard and is today recognized as a principal scientific contributor to the fields of polarized light, photography and color vision.

In the field of photography, he conceived the cameras and films that produce instantaneous dry pictures and later proposed the broad principles and made basic contributions to instantaneous one-step color photography. Mr. Land has received 22 awards and medals for his discoveries from organizations in this country and in Europe and has been named to 12 honorary and scientific societies, including the National Academy of sciences.

Mr. Belluschi, born in Italy and educated at the University of Rome and Cornell University, has been a leading U.S. architect for more than 40 years, designing several hundred commercial and residential structures and receiving many awards. He is now serving as architect or professional consultant for a score of institutions of learning, churches and museums throughout the country, among them the University of Massachusetts.

Appointed to the National Commission of Fine Arts by President Harry S. Truman, he has served as advisor on foreign buildings to the U.S. State Department, and was an advisor on the Air Force Academy design. He was a consultant for the Lincoln Center design in New York City, is now principal architect for that city's new Juilliard School building, and is one of the architects for the new New York High School for the Performing Arts. He served as dean of architecture at Massachusetts Institute of Technology from 1951 until his retirement in 1965.

Mrs. Hall is creator, organizer and director of Simon's Rock, a girls' school in Great Barrington that has been called an entirely new experiment in education. It offers the last two

(Continued on page 6)

1. Um...uh...now that we know each other a little, I was wondering if, uh, you think I'm the type of guy you could go for?

I could go for a real swinger.

2. I have an exciting pipe collection.

I want to be where the action is.

3. I know some daring chess openings.

I want a man who's making it happen.

4. I read all about it in The New York Times.

I want to do 'in' things with 'in' people in 'in' places.

5. I spend a lot of time in the library.

My motto is fun today and fun tomorrow.

6. Then I guess you wouldn't be interested in someone like me who has landed a good-paying job that will let his family live well and who, in addition, has taken out a substantial Living Insurance policy from Equitable that will provide handsomely for his family if, heaven forbid, anything should happen to him.

How's about showing me that pipe collection, swinger?

For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write: Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States

Home Office: 1285 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019 © Equitable 1966

An Equal Opportunity Employer, M/F

46% OF VOTERS POLLED DISAGREE WITH AMHERST PEACE REFERENDUM

In the Amherst Community Referendum on the war in Vietnam, 46% of the voters who participated in the Referendum, excluding those who were undecided disagreed with the statement calling for unilateral U. S. initiatives towards peace in Vietnam. The statement urged the cessation of bombing of North Vietnam, negotiations with the National Liberation Front, establishment of a coalition government, and the withdrawal of foreign troops under international supervision.

The secret ballots were taken out of a safe deposit box at the First National Bank of Amherst and counted Tuesday afternoon. Of the 1935 registered voters who participated, including those undecided, 740, or 38% voted agreed, 897, or 46% voted disagreed, and 298, or 16% were undecided.

Results of the Amherst Community Referendum were announced Tuesday, May 9th, at Referendum Headquarters in Amherst. Amherst residents and members of the Four college community canvassed the town of Amherst asking the registered voters to indicate their agreement, disagreement, or indecision towards the following statement: "We are concerned with the human and material costs of the war in Vietnam. We urge our government to cease bombing North Vietnam immediately and to recognize the National Liberation Front in negotiations for the establishment of a coalition government in South Vietnam. These proceedings and the withdrawal of foreign troops should be under international supervision."

The purposes of the Referendum were: 1) to determine the actual opinion of Amherst voters on the war in Vietnam; 2) to stimulate thought and discussion on American policy in Vietnam; 3) to provide a means of expression for Amherst townspeople who desire an immediate end to the war and who believe that more effective steps can be taken towards peace.

A petition with wording identical to that of the Referendum statement, was also circulated, and over 700 signatures were obtained. The petition, along with the compilation of the Referendum results, will be sent to Representative Silvio Conte, Senators Edward Brooke and Edward Kennedy, and to President Lyndon Johnson.

Sponsors of the Referendum include over 60 Amherst residents, professors in the four colleges, the Mount Toby Meeting of Friends, and the Smith-Amherst chapter of Students for a Democratic Society. The text of the Referendum statement was formulated and voted upon by over 125 people at a public meeting at Amherst College on March 13th. After amendments were proposed, the present statement was chosen to be the official Referendum statement.

The high percentage of people who were undecided about the Referendum statement (16%) was an unexpected result. This suggests that there exists a considerable amount of reservation about American policy. "It is clear", said Sam Clark of the Referendum Committee, "that President Johnson's concensus failed to materialize in Amherst. Our experience in the Referendum suggests that public opinion on the war is undergoing a crisis of conscience and doubt. Perhaps there is also a crisis of consciousness; many people don't know what to believe or how to decide what to believe. Old ways of thinking just don't apply".

Attention Advertisers

The Collegian will publish for the last time this semester Wednesday, May 17. There will be no issue on Monday, May 15.

UMass Theater To Present Three Plays

The University of Massachusetts Theatre will present a Master of Fine Arts acting thesis performance on May 13th at 8:15 p.m. in Skinner Auditorium. There will be no admission charge.

The program will include two one act plays—The Zoo Story by Edward Albee and Hugo von Hoffmansthal's Death and the Fool—and selected scenes from The Tempest by William Shakespeare.

The plays will be performed by Pasquale Freni, with assistance from other acting students, in partial fulfillment of requirements for the Master of Fine Arts degree in acting.

The plays, which were written for three different styles of theatre—realistic, neo-Romantic and Elizabethan — were selected to emphasize Mr. Freni's versatility.

Freni has appeared in many University Theatre productions in the last year and a half. Last season he performed in The Fantastics, The Martyred, and Merchant of Venice while his most noteworthy appearance was that of Nichols in J.B..

- Notices -

CAESURA
Because of Graduation, there will be openings on the staff next year. There are 2 vacancies on the prose staff, four on the poetry staff, and six on the art staff. Anyone interested in working in these areas is cordially invited to attend an informational meeting in the Franklin Room of the S.U. on Tuesday, May 16, at 6:00 p.m.

UNIVERSITY CHRISTIAN WORSHIP
On May 14, at 11 a.m. in Mahar Auditorium, there will be a service — the topic will be "Communication Problems."

HILLEL
On Thursday, May 11, in the Governor's Lounge, from 2:00-5:00 p.m. Rabbi Reiner will be there to meet you.

NEWMAN CLUB
On Sunday, May 14, at 8:15 p.m. the Choir will present its annual Spring Concert in the Chapel. All are invited.

CLASS OF 1969
On May 14 at 8:00 in the Council Chamber, S.U. there will be an executive council meeting, open to all sophomors.

RUSSIAN CLUB
There will be a picnic at Look Park on Sat., May 13. Interested students can meet in the Russian Dept. on the 2nd floor of Arnold, by 10 a.m. There will be a 50¢ contribution. Cancelled in the event of inclement weather.

SPA
There will be discussion of a Draft Resistance Union at 8:00 p.m. on Thursday, in W-24 Machmer. The regular meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. All interested please come.

BIOCHEMISTRY SEMINAR
On Friday, May 12, at 4:30 p.m. in 259 Goessmann, Dr. Jack Gorski of Univ. of Illinois will speak on "Hormone Receptors: Studies on Estrogen Binding in the Uterus."

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB
On May 11, at 7:00 p.m. in Council Chambers B, there will be a general meeting for the election of officers for next year.

PDE-MED CLUB
On Friday, May 12, at 8:00 p.m. in Morrill 203, elections will be held. A film—"The LeMaze Method of Childbirth" will be shown, and Mrs. B. Soltysik of ASPPO will be present to discuss the ideas concerning this concept.

LOST
Pair of glasses in dark brown case lost at Rifle Range on Spring Day. Please call 546-7230.

Carved Wood candleholder lost near Student Union. Sentimental value. Call Anne Urizar, 201 Johnson, 253-9103.

Watch, with Scarab Band, very valuable. Lost Spring Day at Rifle Range. Reward. Call Carol Lang, '68, 417 Brooks, 546-6379.

PINNINGS
Caryn A. White, class of '68 Johnson, to Joel Stone, class of '69, John Adams.

Anne Pazurchek, class of '69 Dickinson, to James Klekotka, class of '67, Pi Lambda Phi.

Cricket and Ladybug

ANNOUNCE AN ENGAGEMENT

You are cordially invited to the wedding of the prettiest clothes in town.

Cricket Shop

181 No. Pleasant
Open Thursday Until 9 P.M.

PUBLIC vs. PRIVATE INTERESTS

THE REDWOODS' BATTLE: THE LAST STAND

Conservationist to Present "ZERO HOUR IN THE REDWOODS"

by GORDON A. DAVIDSON
Senior Reporter

Gary A. Soucie, Executive Director of the Eastern Division of the Sierra Club, who this week completed a tour of the redwoods in California, will present a lecture and movie entitled "Zero Hour in the Redwoods" on May 17 at 8 p.m. in Morrill Auditorium.

The movie and lecture are cosponsored by a new campus group called "Save the Redwoods", the Collegian, the Geology Department, the Outing and the Arboculture and Park Administration Association. Soucie has worked in Washington on conservation efforts concerned with the proposed Grand Canyon Dam and the Redwoods, and has presented the case for conservation to the President and the Cabinet and congressional committees.

The Redwoods group is composed of students, faculty, and interested citizens from the Valley area who are attempting to unite in local and national conservation efforts. The group was inspired by F. Stanley Mikelk, Chairman of the Massachusetts Advisory Commission on Conservation Education, and a member of the Wilderness and Sierra Clubs and the National Association for Conservation Education.

The group is circulating bumper stickers and distributing literature and information on the redwoods situation. This material may be obtained in the Collegian office. The purpose of the group is to bring together people in the Amherst area with a common interest in conservation, although its major concern at this time is to acquaint the public with the issues concerning the redwoods and to rally support for the Sierra Club's proposed 90,000 acre Redwood Creek Park.

The natural beauty of a stand of redwoods before logging operations. Uncontrolled floods from the recently clear cut upper watershed have washed out these trees at Bull Creek.

A redwood forest after a logging company has finished in the area. This area has been reseeded.

Editorial Comment

To Preserve A Heritage

The redwood issue, although it may seem distant and unimportant to Massachusetts citizens, is close to the heart of many of the basic conservation issues of today—the life-and-death struggle between private interests and the good of the public, both now and in the future.

The redwood is not in danger of extinction — yet. At present, there is less than 5% of the original acreage of primieval redwoods remaining. At the current logging rate, it is estimated that by 1980 all original stands will have been converted to house siding, lawn furniture, and waste. The large logging concerns will have made their profit. BUT AT THE PUBLIC'S EXPENSE!

Two major proposals are being considered in Congress this month. The $60 million Mill Creek Plan calling for 42,000 acres and the $50,000 Redwood Creek plan proposed by the Sierra Club which involves 90,000 acres. The Redwood Creek plan, from an ecological viewpoint, is the only viable proposal for a continuing preservation of the redwoods.

This plan will provide for the preservation of a complete watershed, and insure that erosion and wind will not destroy redwoods because of logging incursions on its watershed.

The redwoods are part of the heritage which future generations will receive. It is the task of all Americans to guarantee that future generations will not be denied the spectacle of the beauty and awesome power of the redwoods.

Congress Now Considering Two Redwood Park Proposals

by GORDON A. DAVIDSON
Senior Reporter

This month Congress will consider two main proposals for a redwood park in California. The first, the Redwood Creek plan, was originally drawn up by the National Park Service and later expanded by the Sierra Club and calls for a 90,000 acre park. It would include the Redwood Creek drainage, an area of 33,000 acres of virgin timber, and the recently discovered tall trees grove. The cost would be $150 million.

The main rival, the Johnson Administration's proposal Mill Creek Plan, calls for a 42,000 acre national park farther north, which would add 6,000 acres of virgin timber to the existing Jedidiah Smith and Del Norte state parks, at a cost of $60 million.

The primeval redwoods have been reduced from 2 million acres 115 years ago to 250,000 acres remaining today in private and state forest lands. The 90,000-acre Redwood Creek park, sponsored by Senator Lee Metcalf and Congressman Jeffery Cohelan and 55 congressmen and 4 senators would combine the better stands in the private and state complexes and is the only sound ecological judgment, according to F. Stanley Mikelk, spokesman for the redwoods group.

Debate between the lumber and conservation interests led by Sierra Club over the proposed park has been heated. The lumber industry says there are sufficient state parks already available, and that they are managing the redwoods carefully. But the conservationists feel that if the redwoods creek proposal is not adopted, the redwoods will soon become isolated stands of trees which will be destroyed because of the logged off surroundings, and the destruction of the ecological system.

The lumber industry states that the redwood lumbering is vital to the economy of the area, while the conservationists argue that increased tourism will help create an economy for the people of the area.

According to an article by Harold Gilliam in a California newspaper entitled "Destruction Goes On Among the Redwoods" logging is continuing within the boundaries proposed in both major park bills. Logging was supposed to be suspended last summer after pressure from Congress, but logging is now going on down the slopes to Mill Creek itself. Any delay in proposals for a park will be very costly, according to the article.

The redwoods group urges the following steps to take action to save the redwoods:

1. Write your congressman or US Senator.
2. Affirm your strong support of the Metcalf - Cohelan-Sierra Club Redwood Creek National Park Bills.
3. Ask your congressman to report your views to the heads of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, and Senator Jenery M. Jackson, and Wayne Aspinall, Chairman.

Photo by Soucl

"Another Arcata tree farm, logged in 1965. This kind of clear-cutting goes on daily in the Redwood Creek area proposed as a national park by the Sierra Club and other conservation groups." Photographed 10 April 1967 by Gary A. Soucie

Photo by Soucl

"Second-growth redwoods forest logged in 1962 by the Arcata Redwood company. Arcata calls this a "tree farm." Note the careful stewardship of the land. Photographed 10 April 1967 by Gary A. Soucie

Spring Day 1967

SOME DANCED . . .

CONFUSION . . .

SOME JUST STOOD AND TALKED . . .

SOME JUST WANTED TO BE ALONE . . .

PIETRO BELLUSCHI

EDWIN H. LAND

GEORGE H. ALLEN

Students for an Objective Society

AYN RAND-VALUE DEPRIVATION

Sunday, May 14, 1967 7:30 P.M. WMUA 91.1 FM

Would You Be Interested in Helping An Incoming Freshman?

A list is being compiled of those concerned with the fall orientation of the class of '71.

THIS LIST WILL BE MADE AVAILABLE TO NEXT SEMESTER'S FRESHMAN CLASS ON THEIR ARRIVAL.

You would be giving only "advice" and mostly to students from your "hometown" or vicinity, and only when they contacted you.

YOU WOULD NOT BE ASKED TO HELP MORE THAN TWO (2) STUDENTS.

IF INTERESTED CONTACT:

GEORGE GOODFELLOW 6-7909
ROGER FRENCH 6-7904
ARNIE WALLENSTEIN 6-7900
PHIL PRZYBYSZEWSKI 6-7916
GARY GREENBERG 6-9149

Commencement--

(Continued from page 4)

years of high school and the first two of college and stresses study in the humanities.

Dr. Clark, a graduate of Howard University with a Ph.D. in psychology from Columbia University, is president of the Metropolitan Applied Research Center (MARC), on leave from the City College of New York where he is a professor of psychology. He was active in the development of Harlem Youth Opportunities Unlimited (HARYOU), as chairman of the board and chief project consultant during the planning phase, and as a contributor to the report, "Youth in the Ghetto," that provided the basis for much of the national anti-poverty program.

Since 1951 he has been social science consultant to the NAACP in cases where it has challenged the constitutionality of state laws applying to school segregation. He has also been research psychologist for the Carnegie Corporation - Gunnar Myrdal Study of the Negro in America. Dr. Clark is the author of "Prejudice and Your Child," which when it appeared in its report form was cited by the U.S. Supreme Court as part of its 1954 school segregation decision; "The Negro American," and "Dark Ghetto," winner of two awards.

Mr. Allen, a native of Boston and a UMass alumnus, Class of 1936, has been vice-president of Fawcett Publications Magazine Division since July of last year. In this post he directs all operations of such national magazines as Woman's Day, True and Mechanix Illustrated. He was formerly general manager and assistant publisher of McCall's and general manager of the Meredith Publishing Co. Magazine Division, publisher of Better Homes and Gardens and Successful Farming.

Father Swords, a Springfield native and a 1938 alumnus of Holy Cross, entered the Society of Jesus at Shadowbrook in Lenox, completing his studies there in 1941. He received an M.A. in philosophy from Weston College, an M.A. in mathematics from Harvard and the degree of Licentiate in Sacred Theology from Weston. He was ordained in 1950 at Weston by Francis Cardinal Cushing and in 1951 was assigned to Rathfarnham Castle, Dublin, for studies in ascetical theology.

He first taught at Holy Cross in 1943, rejoined the Holy Cross faculty in 1951, became director of admissions in 1953, chairman of the mathematics department in 1955 and president in 1960. He is chairman of the Commission of the Presidents of Jesuit Colleges and Universities and a member of many professional, academic and community organizations.

To R.S.O. Treasurers:

All purchasing must be completed by Monday, May 15, 1967.

ALL PURCHASE ORDERS must be in R.S.O office on FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1967.

UM Professor Does Research On "Non-Adaptive" Behavior

by VICKI BRYDON

Dr. Robert Feldman, professor of psychology at the University has been working for 17 years on a problem in behavior pathology and the end is not yet in sight. In these 17 years, he has received approximately a quarter million dollars from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to study the "Modification of Fixated and Compulsive Behavior". His laboratory in one corner of Bartlett Hall is a group of small rooms filled with apparatus, monkeys and rats. And his assistants are students interested in relating the behavior of these animals to the behavior of human beings.

Prof. Feldman's field of study deals with abnormal behavior that is destructive to self or to others, or that is otherwise "non-adaptive". It differs from normal behavior in that it is not "learned", he explained. Some period of conflict and fear, or conflict and anxiety, earlier in a subject's life has caused this abnormal behavior. Examples of such behavior might be alcoholism, sex obsession or overeating. In such cases, the subject realizes what he is doing, knows how it should be corrected, but somehow is helpless to change his behavior. Prof. Feldman studies animals in non-adaptive situations in order to discern the causes of the abnormal reactions. His ultimate goal is to discover why the animal is incapable of altering its behavior after it has gone through a period of anxiety, fear and conflict.

From his studies, Prof. Feldman has found that abnormal reactions caused by a conflictful situation are more difficult to change than ordinary habits. To test his theory, he has subjected the animals to a problem that they could not logically solve. The animals, punished for half the trials, found no satisfaction during the experiment. The experience of not being able to solve the problem resulted in a conflict situation.

When later given a problem that could be solved under normal conditions through a learning situation, these animals were unable to react in the expected manner, Prof. Feldman said.

He has concluded that failure to act in the normal manner did not result from a deficiency in the learning process, but from a deficiency in performance.

Since the learning situation seems to have no effect in changing the non-adaptive habit, new work is being done with measuring brain waves. Prof. Feldman hopes that analyzing these waves mathematically will yield some clue to this specific type of abnormal behavior.

After 17 years' work, and facing many more years of study, Prof. Feldman still has strong hopes he can discover a method for altering behavior patterns. But, he added, when this occurs, a key to the correction of the problem of alcoholism and other abnormal responses will have been found.

Aircraft Carriers Bomb MIG Airfield

SAIGON (AP) — A powerful strike force from three U.S. aircraft carriers bombed a MIG airfield just outside the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong Wednesday and two of the city's thermal power plants, including one inside the city limits.

The raid just after noon cost one Skyhawk jet shot down by Red gunners — the 536th U.S. combat plane reported lost over North Vietnam. The pilot was missing.

In the ground war the northwest corner of South Vietnam continued to be the hottest front as U.S. Marines fought another battle with North Vietnamese troops and Air Force B52s made two attacks in support of the Leathernecks.

The Marines claimed 31 North Vietnamese dead in a five-hour fight Tuesday but reported 24 Marines killed and 19 wounded.

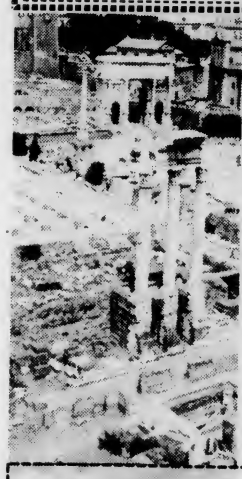
Last Chance to Contribute to Fire Victims' Fund

Tomorrow, Friday, will be the last day to contribute money or articles to the Five Graduates' Fund. The total figure will be announced in Wednesday's Collegian.

The UMass grad students, who lost almost everything in a fire May 2 and two of whom have no insurance, could use anything you could spare from Mommy's allowance money or hard-earned poker stakes.

The secretary in the Collegian office is the one to consign your gifts to, or use the convenient collection box for coins and bills on the Student Union lobby counter.

Senate to Censure Senator Dodd



WASHINGTON (AP)—The sole business of the Senate beginning May 22 will be a resolution to censure Sen. Thomas J. Dodd for financial misconduct.

The Senate's bipartisan ethics committee unanimously recommended April 27 that Dodd, a Connecticut Democrat, be censured for allegedly diverting to his personal benefit at least $116,083 in campaign and political testimonial funds and for collecting travel expenses from both the Senate and private organizations.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois announced the schedule to the Senate Tuesday.

The B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation of the University of Massachusetts
cordially invites you to Parents' Day Breakfast
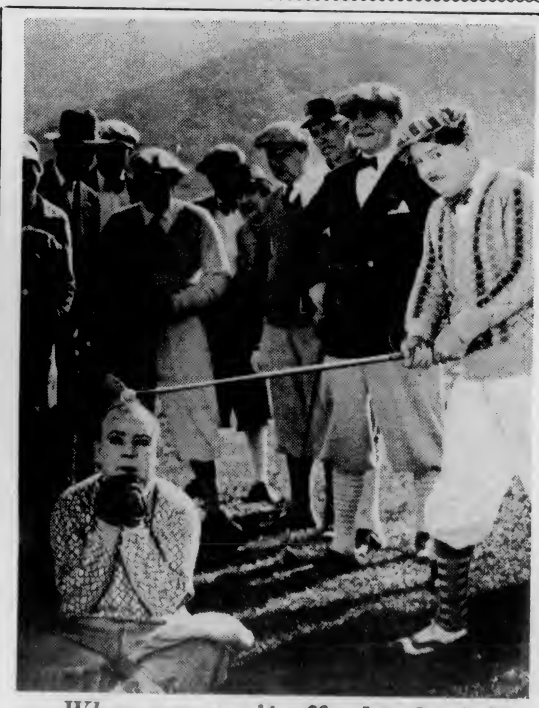
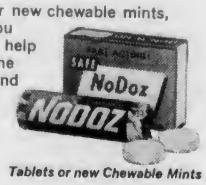
Sunday, May 14 at 11:00 a.m.
in the Ballroom, Student Union,
Guest Speaker:
RABBI JACOB REINER
Congregation Rodphey Sholom,
Holyoke, Mass.



AFTER THE FINALS
RELAX
at
THE FELKA
HAMPTON BEACH, N.H.
Housekeeping Units Under $10 Per Week
Dancing, Bicycling, Bowling, Surfing
RESERVATIONS & INFORMATION—
CALL MARY AT 546-6679



Spring Term Study Cruise on the Mediterranean
University Classes in Architectural & Art History:
1968 Rome, Pompeii, Alexandria, Cairo, Luxor, Baalbek, Ephesus, Istanbul, Athens, Assissi, Crete, Sicily and others.
From March 20th to May 19, 1968, learn from shipboard lectures . . . then visit the great historical sites for maximum appreciation. 190 students will study under professors from American Universities on a newly commissioned, fully air-conditioned study-cruise ship.
Write for complete details and an application today. Space limited. Sponsored by Foreign Language League Schools, a non-profit, tax-exempt organization. Prices vary from $1349 to $1489, depending on stateroom. Clip coupon below and mail today.

To: Foreign Language League Schools
P.O. Box 1920
Salt Lake City, Utah 84110
NAME
ADDRESS
CITY STATE ZIP
HOME ADDRESS

When you can't afford to be dull
sharpen your wits with NoDoz
NoDoz keep alert tablets or new chewable mints, safe as coffee, help bring you back to your mental best . . . help you become more alert to the people and conditions around you. Non-habit forming.
While studying, or after hours, sharpen your wits with NoDoz.
Tablets or new Chewable Mints

TRIUMPH
T-DAY is coming!
Announcing the great new TRIUMPH line!
Triumph leads the way again with a complete line of outstanding models.
We're featuring:
models to be set by newspaper
See 'em on the big Triumph T-Day. A special celebration is planned for T-Day. Be sure to come in and join the fun.
T-DAY (To be set by newspaper)
DEALER'S NAME
ADDRESS AND TELEPHONE NUMBER
(To be set by newspaper)

and now... JADE 玉東 EAST
CORAL
A NEW AFTER SHAVE & COLOGNE
AFTER SHAVE from $2.50
COLOGNE from $3.00
SWANK Inc.—Sole Distributor

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN
Sports
THURSDAY, MAY 11, 1967
Page 8 Vol. XCV, No. 75

Crossemen Foil Rallying UNH, 9-7

Connolly's Late Goal Decisive

by GLENN BRIERE
Senior Reporter

The UMass lacrosse team held off a fourth quarter onslaught by New Hampshire to defeat the Wildcats, 9-7, yesterday at the UMass field. The win was the seventh in 10 games for UMass.

The Redmen had a 7-3 lead midway through the third quarter, only to see it dissipate quickly in the fourth. But Steve Connolly's second goal turned out to be a very important one for UMass as it gave the Redmen some breathing room after the 'Cats had crept to a 7-6 deficit.

Kevin O'Connor scored first to give the Redmen a 1-0 lead, but UNH's Dave Hagerman countered with the first of his three goals to make the score 1-1 after the first period.

In the second quarter, UMass put through four goals against the Wildcats' two. Kevin O'Brien, Paul Mushovic, Don Rana and Bob Murphy each tallied for UMass as the half ended with the score 5-3 in the Redmen's favor.

In the third quarter, O'Brien scored his second goal and Connolly hit his first to give UMass a 7-3 lead. Hagerman scored for UNH to make it 7-4 after three periods.

The Wilcats wasted little time in the last quarter in getting back in the game. Two goals by New Hampshire, including Hagerman's third, narrowed UMass' lead down to 7-6 with about 11 minutes to go.

Things were looking tense for the Redmen until Connolly scored on a beautiful solo sweep in which he literally knocked his way through the UNH defense. O'Brien's third score on an extra-man situation wrapped it up. UNH scored once more with about three minutes left, but it was not enough to overtake UMass .

Garber had praise for goalies Mark Schlossberg of UMass and Al DeCarlo of New Hampshire. "DeCarlo kept them in the game with some great saves," Garber noted, "and Schlossberg made some key saves in the third period."

Redmen on the Warpath

BASEBALL—vs. Boston University (Home, today, 3 p.m.)
LACROSSE (exhibition)—vs. Australian National team (Alumni Stadium, today, 3 p.m.)
GOLF — N.E.I.G.L. at Rhode Island (at Kingston, today and tomorrow)
TENNIS—N.E.I.T.L. at Yale (at New Haven, tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday)
CREW—Dad Vail Regatta (at Philadelphia, tomorrow and Saturday)

Next Stop: Expo 67

Lacrosse, Aussie Style

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

The boys from down under invade the turf of Alumni Stadium tomorrow at 3 p.m. as the Australian National lacrosse team meets the Redmen in an exhibition.

The Aussies, on their way to Expo '67 in Montreal for international competition, have been playing top-notch American colleges on the way.

Last week they met two teams vying for the NCAA title, Johns Hopkins and Navy. They lost both games, bowing to Hopkins, 16-10, and to the Midshipmen, 16-14. Obviously the team is offense-minded.

The man to watch for is attackman Brian Griffin, one of the best lacrosse players in the world. He has been playing for 13 years and is well known for his amazing stickwork.

One of the best defensemen is Co-captain Graham Hill, who will probably play the Redmen's high-scoring Kevin O'Connor. The goalie, Bruce Neill, is another vetran with 15 years of lacrosse experience.

Most of the Australian players started playing lacrosse before many of the Redmen had even seen a game. The oldest man on the squad is 30 years of age. The average age is around 20.

They aren't very big, but they are rugged and fast. "I understand they play the man and not the ball," UMass coach Dick Garber quipped.

It should be an interesting measure of how UMass can do against some of the best stickmen in the world. There is no admission charge.

DICK GARBER
UMass coach.

Netmen Roll at Springfield

SPRINGFIELD — The UMass tennis team romped over Springfield College, 8-1, here yesterday to bring its season's record to 5-1. UMass used the same six it has used all season.

Co-captain Harvey Mednicov (no. 1), Carl Clemm (no. 4), Scott Sheppard (no. 5), Al Davis (no. 6) won in straight sets, while Co-captain Gerry Johnson (no. 3) banished his opponent in three sets. Andy Meagher (no. 2) lost a tough match in three sets.

All three doubles teams won, Mednicov and Meagher, Johnson and Clemm, and Sheppard and Davis.

Coach Steve Kosakowski remarked, "The only difficulty the boys had today was with the clay surface. Of course it is much slower than the hard surface they are used to."

Saturday the team travels to Durham, N.H., for a 1:30 match with the Wildcats.

The team may be without Davis, who will be attending a Bar Mitsvah, and Mednicov, who has a heavy exam schedule.

FAIRWAY FLASHES — The UMass golf team, which finished second in the Yankee Conference Championships last week, consists of (kneeling, from left) Ed Polchlopek, Dave MacIver, Capt. Jim McDonald, John Pollack; (standing) Eric Lekberg, Eric Mushovic, Bob Nowak, Jim Reidy and Bob Lawrence.

Not All the Action Was at Rifle Range

by JOHN GEDSUDSKI
Staff Reporter

While Spring Day was an artistic success, one UMass contingent had a singular Tuesday afternoon about 120 miles from the rifle range. And the shenanigans of the UMass baseball team lasted longer—four hours and 36 minutes.

The Redmen finally beat the University of Rhode Island, 8-6, in a 16-inning duel that may be the longest so far in New England this year.

The following is a play-by-play account of the extra innings of the Tuesday tilt. The score was tied, 5-5, after nine innings.

10TH INNING

UMASS — Chinappi grounded out. Elliott bounced back to pitcher Fleming. DiSarcina walked and stole second. Stewart grounded to short. No runs, no hits.

URI — Cook popped up to first. Fleming bounced out to short, with DiSarcina going deep in the hole. Crowthers filed to right. No runs, no hits.

11TH INNING

UMASS — Boteze grounded to short. Mareno hit back to the mound. Ferron struck out. No runs, no hits.

URI — Goff flied to center. Sartini grounded out, second to first. Pisaturo popped to third. No runs, no hits.

12TH INNING

UMASS — Lasky grounded to second. Dever popped to first. Chinappi singled. Elliott fanned. No runs, one hit.

URI — McKenny flied to Mareno in deep center. DaCruz singled to right but was out stealing, Chinappi to DiSarcina, Valois rapped to third. No runs, one hit.

13TH INNING

UMASS — DiSarcina doubled down the third base line. Stewart sacrificed, DiSarcina moving to third. Attempting a suicide squeeze play, Boteze missed the ball and DiSarcina was caught off third by catcher McKenny. But third baseman Pisaturo's return throw to the plate was low, allowing the runner to score. Boteze fouled out to the catcher, Mareno fanned. One run, one hit.

URI — Cook popped to first. Fleming skied to the second baseman. Crowthers looped a double down the right field line. Goff bunted for a basehit. Sartini singled to left to score Crowthers. Pisaturo flied to center. One run, three hits.

14TH INNING

UMASS—Hale was out bunting. Lasky slammed a single to right. Dever struck out. Chinappi tapped back to the mound. No runs, one hit.

URI — McKenny grounded to third. DaCruz tapped a slow roller and was thrown out by catcher Chinappi. Valois ripped a hit on one bounce to the left field fence for a double. Cook reached on error by Dever. Fleming fouled out to Lasky. No runs, one hit.

15TH INNING

UMASS — Elliott walked. DiSarcina rapped into a double play. Stewart K'd.

URI — Crowthers walked. Goff sacrificed to Lasky unassisted. Sartini was intentionally walked. Pisaturo smashed a hit to left, loading the bases. McKenny forced Crowthers at the plate by bouncing to DiSarcina. DaCruz grounded to DiSarcina. No runs, one hit.

16TH INNING

UMASS — Vyce, who had replaced Boteze in the 13th, singled to right. Tymko replaced Fleming as the Ram pitcher. Mareno singled through the box. Hale's bunt single loaded the bases. Lasky popped to third. Dever's suicide squeeze scored Vyce with the go-ahead run. Chinappi was hit by a pitch to load the bases again. Tymko walked Elliott to force in another run. DiSarcina popped to first.

URI — Valois bounced back to Elliott. Cook whiffed. Pinch-hitter Sutherland bounced to third. No runs, no hits.

Freshmen Allow 2 Hits, But Bow

KINGSTON, R. I.—The four-game winning streak of the UM freshman baseball team came to an abrupt halt here Wednesday as the Rhode Island frosh downed the Little Redmen, 5-1.

The UMass pitching allowed only two hits in the game but five redmen errors accounted for most of the Rams' runs. Ed Coonan started for UMass, pitching three innings and giving up three runs on one hit. He took the loss.

John Kitchen was outstanding in relief for Coach Arlan Barber's Little Redmen, but he gave up two more runs due to his teammates' fielding lapses. Kitchen, too, allowed just one hit.

The Rhode Island pitcher was also impressive, as UM got only three hits. Catcher Chuck Newell got a bloop single, third baseman Jim Berringer had an infield hit and Bob Hansen clouted a triple.

The lone UMass score came when Hansen came in on a squeeze bunt after his triple.

The next game for the UMass frosh is Saturday against WPI at Worcester.